TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST

Two Hundred Square Miles of Territory Inundated by Floods.

Four Rivers Swept by Waters—Bound Reports Kansas, Iowa and Missouri Rivers Torrents Tear Raging Rivers—Appalling Conditions at Topeka—8,000 People Without Homes—Loss All of North Topeka Burned—Flood Worst in History.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—A section of the Western States two hundred miles square has been flooded and more than two hundred people have perished. The property loss has exceeded ten hundred million dollars. Many more lives and vast property interests continue to be threatened. The appalling flood covers that part of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, radiating from the corner, where the four States join. Railroad traffic is paralyzed. The Missouri and its tributaries are out of bounds and sweeping everything in their path. The weather indications are for continued rain all over the district. The deluge continues over that watershed drained by the streams now contributing to the ruin. The heaviest loss is both life and property is at Topeka, the capital of Kansas, and Des Moines, the capital of Iowa. At the former place more than 150 lives have been lost, while hundreds are cooped up in public buildings, which, with the flood rages. At Kansas City fifteen have perished, and at Des Moines seven are known to have been drowned. All of Topeka is inundated from the surrounding sections special railroad trains are rushing to the scene with help. Many boats of the steam launches and other life saving contrivances.

Fire Adds to Flood Horror.

To add to the horror here big lumber yards caught fire, and the burning piles have drifted in every direction communicating the blaze to many residences. Last night eight distinct fires were burning in the flooded district. All of North Topeka is burned. The capital buildings have the far seven feet of national guard is out at Kansas City to prevent looting and rescue people. The lower part of the city is the heart of the jobbing district, and along the packing houses. It is feet under water. Big steam boats are plying around the Union Depot, where thousands of frantic people are being rescued from the trains they had occupied since the flood suddenly surrounded them. The country is threatening to reach national proportions, and fears are entertained that the worst is yet to come. That section, except the upper part of Kansas City is a great plain swept by the Missouri, Des Moines, the two Plattes, Kansas, Grand and smaller rivers now covering the whole country.

The greatest flood in the history of Kansas City, Kansas, and the bottoms of Kansas City, Mo., prevailed here yesterday, and 15 lives and millions of dollars have been lost.

The entire stock yards, situated on the state line, are submerged, nasty of the peak being five feet deep in water.

All trolley lines in both cities have been shut down.

Removing Metal Guests.

At 12:30 the water in Union avenue was three feet deep, and 2 copin were being taken out of the Missouri House and adjacent buildings in wagons, which were soon forced to quit. Cattle have been generally submerged under an ocean of water. The Kansas City police spent all night rescuing persons. The police had 55 boats in service.

A steady rain has fallen here and West all night, and still continues and all streams in the stricken country are rising at an alarming rate, chiefly after noon. The Third Regiment Missouri National Guard, 800 strong, was ordered out, with a peremptory measure and to stop looting.

KANSAS CAPITAL DEVASTATED.

Loss of Life Exceeds 150 and Many Others Are Missing.

Topeka, Kans., June 1.—There is reported for the first time the extent of the flood situation has passed. The treacherous Kansas River, which rose during the day, was last night slowly receding, and the five mile wide river bed, settling rather into its rightful channel. With 175 or 200 lives lost, millions of dollars of property destroyed, the capital city has passed the most memorable Sabbath day of its existence.

Rescued Many Persons.

The actions of all the heroic officers was not abandoned in the least by the conditions which confronted the city. For long drenched hours, knee deep in water, and sometimes up to the necks, they worked with might and main. Last night they can point to 200 or more rescued persons who otherwise might have been swept away in the current.

Briefly stated the present condition of the flood is this:

Dead—Over two hundred people drowned; 8,000 people without homes.

Loss of property $64,000,000.

Identified dead—3.

Floating bodies seen—20.

People missing 200.

Buildings razed, result of fire in lumber from slacking line, probably 200.

Banks collapsed—two.

Wholesale grocery stores docked—two.

Big business blocks almost ready to crumble—two.

Wholesale commission houses destroyed—six.

Rock Island trains, containing 150 passengers, held here by high water, which can have made a careful examination of the flood, and all its conditions, and as a result of their investigation they give 250 as the probable number of lives lost. A more conservative estimate places the number of dead at 175. It will be at least three days before the correct number can be known.

Work of rescuing the victims of the flood is being pushed with vigor.

Refugees in the Capitol.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 1.—Once more hope has been inspired in the people of Des Moines, following the report that the river has begun to fall slightly. After a long night, yesterday a fall of two inches was noted between 9 o'clock and noon. Not a wheel is turning in the factory district, and no efforts to be made to start them until the houses. Boats are the only means of communication between North, South and East Des Moines and the main part of the city. This is extremely perilous.

So far as is known but seven authenticated fatalities have occurred here.

CONSERVATIVES CLAIM GAIN.

Over 11,000 Names Added to List in Winnipeg Registration.

Winnipeg, June 1.—Registration in the interests of the Tories is approaching provincial elections and Dominion legislation is finished on Saturday. Over 11,000 names were added to the list. The Conservatives will probably have a majority of 2,000 on the registration. It is reported that the Conservatives have been successful.

Charles R. Corbett, an agent of J. D. Cameron, Liberal candidate in South Winnipeg, is charged with unlawfully taking away from the registration booth two applications filed on behalf of the Liberal candidate. The matter is in the hands of the Attorney-General, who will act in accordance with instructions of Judge Walker.

SEVENTEEN KILLED THEMSELVES.

Kentajis Choose Death Rather Than Defeat and Capture.

Saloniki, June 1.—A letter from Monastir, written by an agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who was in Smilevo during the fight at the Bulgarian village of Bouli, says that the Kentajis, who fought at Smilevo between the Imperial forces and insurgent bands, says 17 Kentajis were in the village when it was attacked, and, seeing that resistance was useless, killed themselves.

PRIOR GOVERNMENT DISSOLVED.

Will Appeal to Country Immediately on Question of Union.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—A report was widely circulated last night that the Lieutenant-Governor has given Premier Prior a dissolution and that an immediate appeal will be made to the country on party lines. Col. Prior will not confirm or deny the report.

Wrecked on Lake Huron.

Port Huron, June 1.—That the storm raging on Lake Huron Saturday wrought at least one marine tragedy, became known that night, when the steamer Cadillac Cities reached Port Huron. Officers of the vessel reported having passed the three-masted schooner dismasted off Thunder Bay Island. The schooner's spars were hanging over her side, and there was no sign of life aboard. The sea was running too high for the China to attempt an investigation of the wreck. The name of the wrecked ship is not known.

Killed in Bicycle Race.

Cambridge, Mass., June 1.—Harry D. Elkes of Glen's Falls, N. Y., the premier motor pace follower of the United States, was killed; Will Stetson, another well-known follower, and F. A. Gaiger, a motor steersman, were seriously injured in an accident at the bicycle meeting on the new Cambridge track. Elkes was yesterday afternoon. The accident was due to the breaking of the rear tire on Elkes' wheel.

Found Dead Body.

Stratford, June 1.—Saturday morning while out shooting crows in Lonsau Shuster's bush, near Tavistock junction, some boys found the dead body of a man hanging. It proved to be that of Henry Hahn, about 70 years of age, who had lately been employed at the Commercial Hotel in Tavistock. He formerly farmed in South Easthope. He had disappeared on Wednesday last.

ROSS SEES LAURIER.

Ontario Government Must Know What Federal Cabinet Will Do With G.T.P.R.

—Premier Ross Would Not Talk.

Ottawa, June 1.—Hon. G. W. Ross and Hon. J. M. Gibson were in the city for a few hours Saturday. They arrived on the morning train, and left on the 11.30 a.m. train, for Toronto. The object of the unofficial visit was to confer with the Laurier Government in regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Mr. Ross and Mr. Gibson had a conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but they declined to make any statement as to what took place.

The position is this. The Ross Government is under obligation to give a provincial subsidy to the Grand Trunk Pacific. It does not want to act, however, until it knows what the Federal Government will do. That information Mr. Ross did not obtain from Sir Wilfrid Laurier Saturday. Sir Wilfrid cannot state what action his Government will take for the reason that the Cabinet is divided on some distinct lines of cleavage.

MONTREAL MAY DECIDE.

Chamberlain Wants Proposals Discussed and Colonial Attitude Made Clear.

London, June 1.—It is understood that Mr. Chamberlain has expressed the hope that his proposals will be freely discussed throughout the whole of the colonies will be made clear at the Congress of the Chamber of Commerce of the Empire to be held at Montreal in August.

Lord Brassey (Liberal, former Governor of Victoria), who has had considerable colonial experience, raised the question as to whence comes the demand for a change in the fiscal policy and concludes: "The only demand comes from Canada, where, in view of the preference given to Great Britain, the tariffs remain almost prohibitive."

Liberals Split on Preferential Trade.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the House of Commons, has apparently declined a public expression of his views on Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential reciprocity scheme until the report of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the Finance Bill will come up. In the meantime Sir Henry's first lieutenant, Herbert Gladstone, issued a Liberal whip, in an open letter to his constituents, warns the Liberals that no time must be lost in putting their house in order.

Government is Discredited.

"The Government is hopelessly discredited," writes Mr. Gladstone, "and it is impossible to assume that a general election will be long delayed."

This impression, however, is not supported in Unionist circles, where it is said that the Government has no intention of precipitating a dissolution of Parliament until the whole subject of preferential trade is thoroughly threshed out.

IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER.

Whom the King Delights to Honor With His Favors.

London, June 1.—The names of those in the Civil Service who have been honored by being appointed Companions of the Imperial Service Order appeared Saturday. Mr. Kivas Tully, the well-known consulting engineer of the Ontario Government, H. W. McMichael, chief inspector of Customs for Toronto, are two of the few so honored. Alexander Ross, a local letter carrier, is granted a medal:

The other names are: J. M. Courtney, the Deputy Minister of Finance; Charles Jerome Jones, clerk in Governor-General's office; Col. Gascoigne, superintendent of stores; Martin Murphy, Provincial Engineer of Nova Scotia; J. S. Bell, Auditor-General of New Brunswick; S. Power, K. C., Chief Clerk in the Department of Justice; F. Montizambert, M.D., F. R. S., Director-General of Public Health.

The following are granted medals: R. B. Slater, Jean Gauthier, Robb, Rivers, light-house keepers in the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

Patrick Penneey, lockman, in the Department of Railways and Canals.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

Sad End of Abbe Soly of St. Hyacinthe College.

Montreal, June 1.—The Rev. Abbe P. X. L. Soly died at St. Hyacinthe under very painful circumstances. The poor gentleman, who was 71 years old, had retired from the ministry some years ago and taken up his abode in the St. Hyacinthe College. He was a very studious man, and as a result of his long hours of brain work had become subject to severe headache. He was discovered to be raving, and at a moment when attending him unnoticed leant and opened a window on the third flat and jumped into the open space. He fell on the lawn below and was unconscious when taken up by his confreres, who rushed to his assistance. Death followed after a few moments.

Ottawa, June 1.—The fight of the printers employed at the Government printing bureau for better terms came to a head on Saturday afternoon, and the probability is that at 8 o'clock this morning some 200 printers will be on strike. Communications addressed to the men by Hon. R. W. Scott and Mr. Dawson, King's printer, precipitated this crisis.

MYSTERY OF CHILD MURDER

Still Puzzles Police of the Province and Collingwood.

Suspicions at First Entertained Have Now Been Thrown Aside as Fast Refuted by the Investigating Authorities—A Town Agog with the Latest Developments—Big Funeral For Glory Whales—Services at the Church.

Collingwood, June 1.—There is as yet, no light thrown on the mystery surrounding the death of little Glory Whales. Saturday afternoon Detective Greer, after visiting the Whales homestead with Chief Wilde, made a hurried trip to the station and caught the 4.10 train for Toronto. He vouchsafed no information to the local authorities as to his destination, save that he was "going down the line" and might be back Sunday afternoon. He had not returned last night.

On Saturday Chief Wilde received word from Chief Constable Greenwood at Whitby, that a young negro had passed through there who had answered only one description. Chief Wilde at once got into communication with the police authorities at Oshawa, Bowmanville and Port Hope to look out for the man. But as yet nothing is reported. The negro was said to be traveling fast and to have come from the north.

As the days pass on, with the attendant feeling of all the time deeper and more ominous in its perplexity, there is beginning to be a belief that the case alone and unaided will bring retribution to the slayer of the innocent girl. Suspicions at first entertained by the investigating authorities have now been thrown aside now as past belief.

In the little Roman Catholic cemetery, which Glory Whalen passed every day as she walked to school, the poor disfigured body was laid to rest on Saturday morning. The procession was a mile and a half in length and it was composed of the country for miles around. Rev. Father Leonard preceded from the Whalen home to St. Mary's R.C. Church, where the impressive funeral service ritual was observed before a congregation which filled the edifice to the doors. When the coffin was carried forward along the aisle, the sobbing of the women and the tear-bedimmed eyes and trembling demeanor of the men showed how strongly affected the people are over the pitiful tragedy.

Simple, But Impressive.

Father O'Leary delivered a simple but impressive sermon. It was not a customary case, when the child had been taken from a sick bed, but the spectre of death had descended her from the roadside by the bloodstained hands of a murderer.

"The angels of heaven must have wept as the inhuman assailant rushed down upon her. The spirits of heaven must have veiled their eyes and closed their ears to the cruel blow and the ringing shot. But for one thing we are thankful that divine Providence defended her body from insult. The innocent girl, fresh in the bloom of her girlhood, was protected by her Maker. Justice required that the perpetrator of the crime be sought out and punished for the preservation of society."

The pall-bearers were Glory's three cousins, Thomas and James Connery, and Herbert Smith and Clarence Allen, John Cowie and Russell Kendall.

MASSACRES PREVENTED.

Towns Looted by "Dagger Society"—Rioters Were Finally Dispersed.

Victoria, B.C., June 1.—News from Hotsan says the official at Hwai Ching prevented a massacre of foreigners, following the looting of the place by rioters of the dagger Society. Its advanced against the Settlers, who were several thousand strong, armed and unarmed, and engaged with them. They pelted him with stones, but were dispersed, and were for the time calmed.

At night the rioters were burned part of the city gates, but next morning they were dispersed. They had posted placards, saying they intended to kill all foreigners.

A disaster, fraught with great loss of life, is reported from Canton. The Chinaman steamer boat, which was being put on the Kent River, swamped near Sam Shui. The Shui sunk, after the line broke, and over 1,000 passengers on board, but 75 or 80 were saved.

Leg and Both Arms Off.

London, Ont., June 1.—Mr. Christopher Smallman of York street met with a terrible accident last night, from which it is doubtful whether he will recover. While crossing the Grand Trunk tracks shortly after 11 o'clock he was struck by a train and had both arms and his right leg so badly crushed that the three limbs had to be amputated. He is in the employ at the Canadian Chemical Manufacturing Company, and was returning home when he was struck down. He is a married man.

DURING THE WARM WEATHER.

Even during the warmest weather Aspier's Peptonized Emulsion is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach. For this reason it is the ideal remedy for consumptives. Made of odorless and tasteless petroleum, glycerine, and hypophosites, it is better in every way than emulsions made of fish oils or other fats.

of circumstance has converted an estimated indebtedness of $60,000 into a comfortable fortune in some 15 or 20 years. Mr. Shifton is probably impressing upon Mr. Treadgold the aim of making money! Is He Little Glory Whalen's Murderer?

ARREST OF A NEGRO WITH ONE SOCK ORDERED THIS MORNING.

Chief Newton this morning received the following telegram from Collingwood:

"Arrest a negro with one sock on. Seen in your park yesterday.

J. A. WILSON,
Chief of Police."

In obedience to the telegram Police Officer Hynes arrested the party referred to. He gives his name as Walter Charles Scott, aged 31 years. He has been in the city since Friday night, and alleges that he came from Ottawa here. In answer to an enquiry if he had ever been in Collingwood he stated that he was there in the spring of this year. His home, he states, is at Deseronto.

The Chief at Collingwood has been notified of the arrest.

A PEITY BURGLARY.

SOMEBODY BROKE INTO THE REAR PART OF GREENLEAF & SONS' ESTABLISHMENT.

Some time during Saturday night and this morning an entrance was effected into the rear of Greenleaf & Sons' establishment, next to this office. The back door of the premises was forced open, but the party or parties did not gain an entrance to the front part of the shop. As far as could be ascertained nothing was taken from the premises and the police were notified this morning and Officer Hynes made a thorough inspection of the premises. It is thought to have been the work of boys.

HOW A SPRAIN DOES HURT!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and work. Spavin without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it be a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will ease. There's only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

THE STOLEN HOUR.

Will H. Clemens in the Reader for June.

When midnight comes
And all is still ; when work is o'er
And silent is the city's roar
I lightly step across the floor
And softly close my study door,
When midnight comes.

When midnight comes
'Tis then I love to wander o'er
The ancient tombs of mystic lore,
And dream away an hour or more
With wise men dead of yore,
When midnight comes.

MOTHER'S INFLUENCE

IT IS POTENTIAL IN FORMING HER DAUGHTER'S CHARACTER.

AS IS ONE, SO IS THE OTHER

Importance of This Fact Emphasized in the Formation and Development of a Young Girl's Character—Mothers Are the True Wits and Mother Should Live If the World Have Good Daughters.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1903, by William Bayley, of Toronto, in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Chicago, May 31.—In this sermon the preacher illustrates the potential influence of the mother upon the character of the child and the importance of that influence being of a kind that goes to the formation and development of a pure and noble womanhood. The text is Micah6 viii, 44, "As is the mother, so is her daughter."

The Philadelphia mint is one of the chief sights for the traveler in the Quaker City. It has many wonderful pieces of machinery, not the least of which is the automatic stamping machines, cutting the gold and silver bars into pieces the size of a five cent piece or a dollar. Then, with one terrific pound, they stamp them into United States coins. These stamping machines are powerful enough to make hard steel dies in forms of eagles bearing the impress of the Goddess of Liberty. Then they are capable of doing very delicate work. If a plain piece of wet paper is placed in the machine and stamp they can cut out of that wet paper a round piece the size of a silver dollar more neatly and accurately than could be done by any of the girls in grimy scissors and sawpaper's knife.

It is wonderful that a machine should have the power of thus producing from the blank metal thousands of coins exactly alike, each bearing exactly the same impression; but I want to speak to you to-day of something still more wonderful, to look at the girl and see in her the mother, and in the mother the girl. It is the power inherent in every mother to mold her daughters after her own image and to impress upon them her own characteristics.

The mother's life is inevitably produced in the lives of her little girls whose arms rock in the cradle. What influence of the mother's life should be—the wholesome and unconscious kind! The girls will be like her as they grow up, and her faults will reappear in them. Therefore, the object of this sermon is to show how the true wife and mother should live. She should not only be true to her husband, but true to her daughters and mother, brothers and sisters, and to God, as well as directly to the little children who will grow and follow in her footsteps. As she thinks, they will think. As she acts, they will also do.

The true mother should, first, be a true wife. Like a butterfly, a wing is developed in the physicals. The sole thing that will hang long from the tree branch as nuggets of gold unless they are magnificent and fragrant in the springtime. The summer song of the nest is only a mere encore of the spring song, while one softly echoed its way through the tangled halls of the forest of the woods. Neither can the rich, spotless robe of the monarch ever be found in the home unless it comes from a loom in the bride's parlor. The consecrated fingers have already woven out of untarnished web, perfumed with the sweetest incense, the robe of true wifehood.

This analogy is axiomatic. Yet there are some women who confess enough to suppose that the name of wife and mother are not indissolubly twins and have no connection or affiliation. They are the blighted ones. They cannot see that the silver lettings of true wifehood are traced upon the golden background of true wifehood and that the strongest, and best results will be cut from the scented wood of the marriage altar. The relation of wife and mother is one and no woman is doing your fire supersede or extinguish the duties of the wife. There are many sisters who are true wives until the babies are born. Then, instead of being any longer the comfort, the companion, the helpmeet of the man whom they promised on the wedding day to live for, they turn their backs upon their husbands and fall into their existence in the nursery. From morning to night and from night until morning those engrossed and absorbed mothers think and plan about nothing but the welfare of them of baby.

They will tell you over and over again how many teeth their babies have cut and when those teeth came, but they cannot tell you how many sharp, poisonous fangs of business and pleasure have been developed in their husband's brains and heart. Neither can they care for those of those fangs may be. They can tell you, without any mistake, how many times last night their babies coughed, but they cannot tell you how many hours their husbands in the same night walked the floor, hour after hour, trying to find some plan by which they could meet the great crisis of life which might be coming upon them. There is many a man—mark this!—who heard the death rattle of his wife's respiratory associates in the night that there first baby was born and, "Behold, a short time ago I had a prominent man say to me: "Any success which I have made in life, I have won in spite of my wife. From the day that my first baby came she has had no interest in me or my work. In my intercourse with my business associates she has been a positive damage instead of a help." There is many a husband who is today living as far apart in thought from his wife as if he were in thousand miles apart from her. He may eat with her at the table and live with her in the same house, but their mental and spiritual association is absolutely dead. She lives for her children. He lives for his business. Between them there is the great yawning chasm of indifference, ever widening, ever becoming blacker and more fatal to marital love.

Now, remember, I am not going to you that a woman cannot be a true mother unless at the same time she is a true wife. I want to say that if a wife will not enter into the life and hopes and fears, the cares and perplexities of the husband who is her side and will want to love her and have her share his burdens she is not true to her daughters, who will follow in her footsteps. I want to tell you that the daughter is developed aright unless she has had before her the example of a mother who has been faithfully trying to be true to her father as well as to her.

God develops true motherhood in many ways. The factory's machinery is one way. It is organized on to be working uniformly and in ridiculous regularity. The factory finds wheels running from right to left others from left to right. There are jagging belts, and great piston rods moving up and down, and twisted belts, and whirling wheels and round and round. There are tanks where the water sprays naked and fierce where the raw goods are chewed into shape. The foreman, under the explanation of the superintendent or guide, the visitor to the factory finds that every bolt and every wheel and every cylinder of the machinery is for a definite purpose. All the different parts of that machinery are for the creation of the good, for the completion of a finished article. So God in the great human factory has created the consecrated motherhood has many wheels and all wheels and everything contributing. They all have a purpose, not the least of which is the influence resulting from the right performance of the duty of wife and mother owes to her childhood's home.

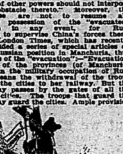

My sister, how can you honestly expect your daughter to respect you if you are stony hearted and refuse to honor the many wrinkles and the bedimmed sight of an aged parent? Can your mother breathe forth the blessed benediction of the neglected old woman who said, "When I was a little girl my father so petted upon my feet; but now, when I am old, they are treading upon my heart." Are you going to show the selfish spirit of the brutal people of the Dark Ages, which were accustomed to behead or bury alive their helpless mothers, and can you not be becomes crippled with age? Are you hearing the woman, going to tear your parents from your thoughts and affections, merely because they are helpless and service out of them? How can you expect your little children to do such things after you are gone when you yourself have nothing to do with the brothers and sisters of your childhood? Is it nothing to you when they are left in financial trouble? Is it nothing to you when they are dead? Way, some mothers think that they are good and true mothers never pretend to have the affection for their parents or brothers and sisters or for their nephews and nieces. Inevitable result will be that some day your own children will cease to love each other. Your own friend blood seems to be thicker than water. The ties of the blood and the heart to the home of childhood ought to be as strong as links of gold.

Read the sacred memories of the past are calling many a mother to her knees and to her self. A short time after her marriage a young wife had a vision in which that was so vivid it was difficult to believe that it was not real. As she lay in bed in the morning light of the day when she was to leave her father's home, and to begin a young girl's new great life, in which her mother, for years, had been occupied a prominent place. What, she thought, would that dear mother say to her when she came to bid her farewell? She looked forth, the tender tones of her voice, the very expression of her face, were on the memory it seemed to her that she was standing beside her. She had the same dear old face, the same look of love. Dressed in pure white, the mother had stood at the foot of the bed. "I was not in the least afraid," said the young girl, "but felt and know that I was awake. I raised myself on my elbow and said, 'Is that you, mother?' 'Yes, daughter,' the mother answered. 'It is I.' I sprang back to have a few parting words before you start. I said, 'Mother, I am afraid I am taking awhile, the mother said: 'Daughter, you have to yourself. Be true to your new home; but, daughter, also be true to your old home. Never forget or neglect your old father. He is alone now. Never forget to write to him sometimes. Never. You cannot be true, my daughter, to your new home unless you are true to your old.' Then the change vision slowly turned and disappeared. It was the mother memories of the past plead for a noble motherhood from her child. It was the love and which will therefore be doubly true to the new.

Mothers, you have seen forth in life and see the miseries and the suffering and the tragedies which are everywhere self evident. Her heart time last night their babies coughed, but they cannot tell you how many hours their husbands in the same night walked the floor, hour after hour, trying to find some plan by which they could meet the great crisis of life which might be coming upon them. There is many a man—mark this!—who heard the death rattle of his wife's respiratory associates in the night that there first baby was born and, "Behold, a short time ago I had a prominent man say to me: "Any success which I have made in life, I have won in spite of my wife. From the day that my first baby came she has had no interest in me or my work. In my intercourse with my business associates she has been a positive damage instead of a help." There is many a husband who is today living as far apart in thought from his wife as if he were ten thousand miles apart from her. He may eat with her at the table and live with her in the same house, but

Russia and Manchuria.

For months the leading British organs have warned the world that Russia would make Manchuria her own. It is true, says the Liberty Digest, that overtures to the Manchurian convention, signed in Pekin in the year 1901, must overcome the rich province next October. But this "evacuation," now taking place on the instalment plan, is subject to such vague conditions as "the event of there being no trouble in Manchuria," and "the conduct of other powers should not interpose any obstacle thereto." Russia and the Chinese are not to resume allegiance to any "evacuated" region in any event, for Russia speaks of the "evacuation" "Evacuation, pure and simple," means that Manchuria now in the military occupation of Russia, will remain in that condition, and from the cities to the railway. But the chief of these is Harbin, the junction of the railway guard the cities. Ample provision has been made for them at the railway stations adjoining all the chief cities of Manchuria; means the withdrawal of all Manchuria; means the withdrawal of the troops from the cities to the railway side the wall, where provision is being made for their reception. Harbin is the junction of the railway to Port Arthur, then 6,000. So with Kaiyuan, Liao-yang, Mukden, the other cities of Manchuria held. They will be equally well command. Of these Mukden is the largest. It has the two other cities distinct cities of Manchuria, Mukden and Hsin-King, 5 miles from the railway; the troops will be quartered at the railway. The Russian forces will be concentrated at the mighty miles from the railway. Troops withdrawn from the city surround the city from a powerful position only three miles distant. Besides this the railway is built the evacuation will consist in moving the troops from Pekin, Tsi-Nan and the railway station outside the walls." Russia will be in possession of the railway. The railway will be guarded as no of railway in the world is guarded, with detachments every five or four miles, with garrisons at every important point. Russia's railway will also be to determine what force will be ordered "railway guards." They are "from time to time" to be "reduced to a number not exceeding 15,000. They are paid by the Minister of Finance, and are under the orders of the Russian Minister of War. Russia's regular troops, from whom they have been withdrawn, will be kept where their action can be concentrated along the railway—cavalry, infantry and artillery—and there is none to say them say. They are to be called "railway guards," but every soldier becomes a frontier guard by the simple change of name. The "railway guards" are to be "reduced" after two years. It is a lightning transformation."

The Russian Minister to Great London daily against attaching any importance to Japan's protests. It is the intention of her policy in this part of the world. Russia is going to be the dominant power in the Far East, as she is in most of the world. Yet "a single act of forbearance," he says, "on the part of Japan is asked to believe, "might have" changed the whole course of events." But it has not been changed it, at the time of the Russo-Japanese treaty, and Germany—that the occupation of Kiao-Chau by Germany would be detrimental to the lasting peace of the Far East, and that Japan and Russia easily could have obtained, a satisfactory settlement of their claims. Japan's powers would ever occupy the territory of Kiao-Chau, but that it would be held by Germany for a short time, and that within less than three years: Russia was to withdraw from Manchuria, and her and fortress from which she had ejected China. Mr. Moore, Superintendent of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs, says: "Russia has done much good to the Far East, but she has done it in a way that is properly hitherto unknown to them. Russians in the Far East do not understand or treat the population. Acts of cruelty and oppression, which would not be tolerated in Britons, have long become things of the past. Russia has not yet learned that the Chinese are human beings. She does not accommodate thousands of soldiers. Cities and towns are destroyed, and villages, temples and ruins, have been built in the wilderness where there is no water by the hands of Chinese coolies for their Russian taskmasters. Russia's railway work is a magnificent piece of engineering, and have brought their wives and children with them. Russia has been the imperial portion of the Chinese Emperor's dominions, but she has done it in a manner a measure of admiration from the energy with which she strives to develop the latent resources. In less than six years Russia has "transformed Manchuria, which was a wilderness, into a province of Russian Province," and has no transformation of Manchuria into a province of Russia. Russia's railway guards will be stationed in those territories she is appropriating to the Russian Empire. Not a single step has been at once the pretext and the instrument of aggression, and it is by such work which makes her position secure. It is by such work which makes her position secure. It is by such work that she is laying the foundations of her future power. It is an immeasurable benefit to the commerce of the world that the Russian Empire is to be from China of sending railway guards" to Manchuria.

Russia, says Public Opinion, is "deeply hurt" by the attitude of Japan and the United States in the matter of the Chinese misunderstood, and Secretary Hay has been misunderstood. The Russian Foreign Minister, of his great "treaty" with China, has misled the Russian people. This is quite according to the rules of the game. Russia has been playing it for years. Her policy is to make the world believe it's emphatic declaration that no such treaty as the Russian people have been made on China were ever contemplated by Russia. Russia has been misrepresented of Dr. Morrison, the careful and veracious Pekin correspondent of the London Times, Count Lamsdorff, Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Mr. Plancon, Russian Minister to Pekin, to the effect that the demands were actually presented as reported. Meanwhile Pekin correspondents of the Times confess which Russia "did not ask." At the same time Russia's representatives at Pekin so having discovered the feeling of the Chinese people, presented modified demands of Monitory.

Selling or Peddling Spectacles As a Business vs. Fitting Spectacles As a Profession

Many use simple tests, mechanics, for determining as nearly as they can what glasses the eyes can wear and call themselves opticians or professors. Ours is strictly a profession—a true scientific one that will find the cause of the trouble and glasses are prescribed that will stop it and relieve and overcome the cause. We guarantee results. Our guarantee means something. We are not here to-day and away to-morrow.

Anecdotal.

Once, when passing through a cemetery, Sidney Gregory was surprised to see that the headstones of one old New England family had been buried in a circle, with their feet toward the center. He asked the reason for this arrangement, and a wit of that family, daughter of Mrs. Stowe, replied: "So that when they rise at the Last Day, only members of their own family may face them!"

Prof. Syle (pronounced Sill), of the State University of California, must be either a boor or a smart Aleck, if the following story told by the "Argonaut" is true, and the general verdict will be "Served him right." Some other day, says the "Argonaut," while calling the roll of one of the classes, Professor Sill came to the name of a Miss Greene. He paused and looked his disapproval of the final e in her name by asking: "Is it a fact that the name Green or Greenie?" Miss Greene promptly replied: "S-p-i-n, does that spell Spin or Sillis?"

"It is a shame," John Randolph once said in the United States Senate, "that the bull-dogs of the administration should waste their time in worrying the rats of the Opposition." The members constituting the "Opposition" groaned, hissed, and called him to order. The presiding officer ruled that he was in order, and Randolph, springing to his feet, pointed at his antagonists and screamed: "Did I say rats? I meant mice, mice, Mr. President."

James McNeil Whistler was recently dining with a friend in London. Suddenly, when all had dined and were back in the drawing-room, Whistler said that he had almost forgotten it, but he absolutely must write a letter and get it off by the night's post. He was told that in a room at the head of the first flight of stairs he would find the lights burning and pens, paper and ink at his disposal. He went up, and presently there was heard a series of slumps, ending in a heavy thud at the foot of the stairs. The master had tripped, lost his balance, and come near killing a bad job. He got up, cursed him and asked if he was hurt. "I am not killed, if that's what you mean," Whistler replied; "but, tell me, who built those stairs?" The host mentioned the name of a builder unknown either to Whistler or to fame. "Humph. he did, eh! The old 4-d teetotaler," said Whistler.

Booker T. Washington tells an amusing story of an old colored preacher who was endeavoring to explain to his congregation how it was that the Children of Israel passed over the Red Sea safely, while the Egyptians, who came after them, were drowned. The old man said: "My brethren, it was this way: When the Israelites passed over, it was early in the morning, while it was cold, and the ice was strong enough so that they went over all right; but when the Egyptians came along it was in the middle of the day, and the sun had thawed the ice so that it gave way under them, and they were drowned." At this, a young man in the congregation, who had been away to school and had come home, rose and said: "I don't see how that explanation can be right, parson. The geography that I've been studying tells us that ice never forms under the equator, and the Red Sea is nearly under the equator." "There, now," said the old preacher, "that's all right. I've been 'specin' some of you smart Alecks would be astin' jest some such fool question. The time I was talkin' about was before they had any jogaries or 'quators either."

All flower-lovers who read Elizabeth and her German Garden and who sympathized deeply with the heroine in her hopes and fears over her wantons, will be interested in the following from the writer herself, who is the Countess Von Arnim, an English woman married to a titled German, though not, one will hope for her sake, "The Man of Wrath" in verity. The letter was sent in answer to one from a fan of a gentleman in Ottawa who owns a beautiful rose-garden; it will be seen that she understood the meaning of the "Pimporta Qui," which he pretended to hide, and for any doubters is shown in her own signature, which she would vet under a sketch of a rose upon words. This is the way she writes on paper with an old-fashioned pen and ink, and is postmarked with some illegible German words:

"Dear Mr. Nanpan,—

"Your charming letter has so pulled me up with pride that I have become quite modest. I am unbearable. Your rose has no fault in it, because it is mine. If I had one here it would not grow, the climate is so changeable. We have not had something in August. All my tea roses that I wrote about are dead and frozen, in spite of every tender attention and covering than the babies get even. This autumn, greatly daring, I start fresh ones.

"I think I must make an expedition to America, the letters I get from there are so delightful, and I should so much enjoy seeing my unknown friends' gardens. It was so kind of you to send me a photograph of a bit of yours.

"Believe me,
"Yours very gratefully,
"Elisabeth—Nanport Kwa."

A Whimsical Fable.

One of the most whimsical fables about the Knickerbocker settlement in New Amsterdam, to which the descent of President Roosevelt gives interest, concerns the acquisition of Manhattan Island. The Dutchmen wanted to buy the Red Indian was not indisposed to sell. So a "deal" was arranged. For a specified amount of cash as much of the island was to become the property of the Hollanders as he could cover with their garments. His name was Ten Brocck (scottice, "ten breeks," anglice, "ten pairs of breeches"). But of this the too confiding savage was unaware. When Ten Brock duly proceeded to disrobe himself, and to spread his voluminous clothing on the island—which he succeeded in covering entirely—the look of mingled chagrin and amazement on the chief's usually impassive face must have baffled description. However, the noble Red Man buried his hatchet, puffed away at his calumet, and stood by his bargain, while all the time realising the force of Canute's epigram that "in matters of commerce the fault of the Dutch is giving too little and asking too much." And that—again to fall back on legend—why succeeding generations of Dutch cut are called "knickerbockers" even unto this day.

THEY DROVE FIENDS AWAY. Poor Dyspeptics with their ghastly pallor, walls of internal irregularities which should long since have been removed, and Constipated victims of the blues generally, are not patronizing their neighbors' Dr. Hartley's Vegetable Pills. Good, and these simples are to be had at any drug store, and there will be another witness to their success.

Life has no blessing like a prudent wife.

HAD LA GRIPPE—Mr. A. Rickenson, Cayuga, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe cough. I tried many remedies, but could get no relief, and was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Balsam. I did so, and found it to be the best medicine I ever used. Before I had taken one bottle I was entirely cured." Sold internally and externally; morning, noon and night. Cures all pain, no matter of which name it may be called.

A DEATH'S DOOR—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED—A GRAND MEDICAL DISCOVERY. "I was completely run down, nervous and debilitated, could neither eat nor sleep, and was reduced to a mere skeleton. I was confined to my bed and was attended by our family physician, Dr. Hawthorne, & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery & Dyspepsia Cure was one of the worst of its kind, but three years I could not eat anything but the most delicate food, and was reduced from 200 lbs. to 119 lbs. All the food I took for three years was given me with a teaspoon. Discovery consisted of Vegetable Discovery & Dyspepsia Cure. After taking the first bottle I noticed a change for the better, and I have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a hearty relish and sleep well. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery & Dyspepsia Cure, and have recommended it to many people in this section, some here in Toronto, and it has never failed to satisfactorily be cured. They are cheaper by one dollar and a half per bottle than any recently saved my life as I never expected to recover from. First, I believe, because I had faith in it, and next because I used it; and not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to recommend it to the afflicted, and trust it may be the means of conducting others back as a blessing to health as it has to me." Sold by all druggists.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Gaynell," "Little Leafy," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

Harold St. John fistened with bated breath.

"Where does she go——I mean where is her destination?"

And again, thoughtlessly enough, the man answered:

"Over Troy."

Then the footman seemed to consider he had been civil enough for he lifted his hat and closed the door. At that instant Harold St. John saw a little phaeton passing through the gate. He caught the gleam of golden head-dress and plumed hat and knew, much to his chagrin, that he had just missed the object of his search; but he made up his mind to follow the carriage, and presently he returned. Then he would confront her.

But he might have to wait for hours. Never mind fatigue, never mind the cost, he would see her and settled the rest of the day there.

He watched the sun set and the stars rise; he watched the sweet moonlight shed its silver brocade in gloomy silence over the revenge he was planning to wreak upon the one false to him.

He would be a glorious revenge to take her triumphantly from Alexander Hamilton, to drag her from the luxurious home to follow his fortunes, no matter what they might be, and then—no matter what he might have to take to—he would cast her lovely face, too, would trample the memory of all his friendship.

He was too deep in his reverie outside the palatial home of the rich to hear the velvety lawn and up to the carriage steps.

He raised his head just in time to see the footman assisting the young descend from it, and run lightly up the marble steps.

His sponge after them, but before he had time to reach the door it opened and closed after them. Then Harold St. John rang the bell, and the door was opened by the same servant he had seen early in the afternoon.

"Mrs. Hamilton is at home?" said St. John. "I know it. I watched for her. I must see her."

"Come, come!" said the man, "this will not do at all. We are not used to this sort of thing here; you cannot see any visitors at this hour of the night."

"But I must see her—I will not take a refusal. You have no right to refuse me. I must and will see the lady!"

The footman eyed him severely.

"I tell you," he said, "I should be very sorry to take any violent measures, but this will not do at all. You must not make this a noise here."

"I will not," said Harold St. John, excitedly.

"There I" interrupted the man, "say no more; it's of no use. I'm sorry enough that I can accept what I did from you."

"I will wait—I will ponder gate until I do see her, mark my word," said Harold St. John, emphatically.

"All right! that will not be my fault at all; you can help yourself. If my mistress leaves the house to ride tomorrow, it will not be with the late in the afternoon; the police will have removed you long before that.

"A lady's love is her own affair, and not get into it just when you will, you can tell you that."

"You are an impudent menial!" said Harold St. John, angrily, advancing with rage.

"Just so; well, never mind; get off those steps and I will be anything you like."

So saying he closed the door, and St. John had no recourse but to go away.

"What is the matter, John?" asked Mr. Harold, who was standing in the hall and had heard angry voices; "what is it?"

"Only a man, sir," answered John, "who insisted upon seeing my mistress."

At the hour of the night? What is it anything important?"

"I should say not, sir. I told him it was impossible."

"Some one awaiting money, I presume," said Mr. Hamilton, with a dark look. "she is so good in that way to every one."

Mr. Hamilton counted the two-dollar note tucked away so carefully in his pocket-book, and was when he found that the servant had mistaken in that at least.

In turning away, blinded by rage, Harold St. John missed his footing and went crashing down the steps headlong, and there, unconscious, on the pavement he lay, when the footman in wonder at the strange faces that had appeared.

He tried to spring from the couch, but his head reeling so that he rendered him almost frantic, and he abandoned the attempt.

"Where am I, and what's the matter with me?" he groaned, sinking back upon the pillows.

"A sprained ankle," replied the doctor, briefly, "and a fracture of the bone."

"How long will it be before you can get off out of this?" he demanded, fiercely, "under two months if you don't, and I prescribe at least three."

A volley of horrible oaths broke from Harold St. John's lips.

"Curses on the way affairs are going!" he cried; "I can't lie here for weeks—and I won't."

"You are a perfect liberty to walk off any time you can," replied the doctor, indifferently.

What could not be cured must be endured, as there was no help for it.

Harold St. John was obliged to lie on the hospital cot and allow the fractured ankle to slowly mend.

He bought the daily papers and scanned them carefully. In the head of the departure for the east of Alexander Hamilton and his young wife at the twenty-fourth, and another volley of curses broke from his lips.

As he was about to crush the paper in his hand, and toss it from him, his eye fell on a thousand shreds, another paragraph caught his eye which held him spellbound—slowly he read the article through from beginning to end—the veins standing out like whipcords on his forehead as his startled eyes traversed each line, and he read in letters of fire before his gaze.

CHAPTER XXX.

"Would You Have Loved me if You Had Known Never Seen Me?"

Harold St. John thrust the paper from him with a muttered imprecation.

His face white to the lips, and great drops of perspiration stood out on his forehead.

Each paragraph which had startled him, so, was a list of passengers' names who had become over from London, and among the list he saw the name of Alexander Hamilton and wife.

He recovered himself with a mighty effort.

"Fishawt the world is wide — we shall never meet," he told himself shall never meet," he told himself shall never meet," he told himself

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

A Fast Electric Road.

One frequently reads about trains going at the rate of one hundred miles an hour, but few persons have ever ridden at the rate of over seventy-five or eighty miles, says Harper's Weekly. On a little railroad extending from the suburbs of Berlin to the Town of Zossen an electric car has been travelling as fast as 130 miles an hour, breaking the record for speed on the highways of steel. It is that we call a trolley car, but the trolley wire is insulated on a very elaborate scale, and the motive power which operates the car is simply enormous.

The railroad in question is only about sixteen miles in length, and was built by the Prussian Government for military purposes. Several months ago it was decided to try the question of electrical engineers and other experts for the purpose of ascertaining what speed could be developed by the electric motor. A car was built by the Allgemein Elektricitats Gesellschaft of Berlin, a car was constructed socially for the purpose, and when completed had the enormous weight of nearly one hundred tons. The body of the car is similar to those in use in many railroads in this country, but the wheels are smaller than those of a coach, and also tapering in order to offer as little resistance to the air, when going along at a high rate of speed, as possible. The car is divided into three compartments, and is strongly framed transversely, while the motorman is separated from the passengers by a heavy partition. What engineers call the three-phase system of electricity is utilized for running the car, the two rail system on which it has been hauling during the experiments. Instead of the current being conveyed by one or two wires to the motor, as is customary, there are no less than three of which are carried along the side of the railroad upon posts. These are known as high tension, and are capable of supporting a current of no less than 12,000 volts, before the system of reduction and insulation. The current passes through the trolley wheel to the motor, is there reduced to 3,000 volts and then passed through transform rs to the motors. The motors are bolted upon the axles of the trucks beneath the car, each motor being large enough to run an ordinary factory, as it can generate fully 750 horse power, under efficient conditions. Although these ponderous proportions are given to the motors, they run at a high rate, that more at the rate of 900 revolutions to a minute when a car is at full speed. It would be impossible to stop and start the car with the controller which the motorman uses on the ordinary trolley system, so special apparatus has to be employed. The current supplied to the motors by the transformers are moved by compressed air, which really does the duty of the motorman.

Had Lots of Time.

The following anecdote is told of Joaquin Miller, reports of whose death published lately were promptly denied by the poet, who had a funeral pyre and monument built after his own design:—

Years ago he was journeying on foot, and was overtaken by an honest countryman, who took him up on his load of waggon and gave him a long ride. Tired, at length, of conversation, the poet took a nooze from his pocket and settled over it long and silently.

"What are you reading?" said the countryman.

"A novel of Bret Harte's," said Mr. Miller.

"Well, now, I don't see how an immortal being can afford to be wasting his time with such stuff as that."

"Are you quite sure?" asked the poet. "Are you quite sure that I am an immortal being?"

"Of course you are."

"If that is so," responded Miller, "I don't see why I need be economical of my time."

The accompanying sketch of the pyre and monument—it is to serve both purposes—was taken from a California newspaper some ago. It is described as follows:—It has already been built under the supervision, and from the new designs, of the artistic poet, on the top of a beautiful knoll, in front of the poet's home in Oakland, where big trees thrust themselves up into the air and huge boulders dot the grounds. On one of these is carved in big letters, "To the Unknown," the poet's greeting to the future which he says he cannot picture. The pyre is circular in form, built of 69 rough blocks of stone. Three steps lead up to it. It is ten feet square and eight feet high, so that from the top step a man can look over and see the world only a shallow depression.

Here the poet has directed that his body be cremated, and the ashes scattered to the winds.

The Farthest North.

Last November there was opened up to travel a railroad which crosses the northern part of Norway and Sweden, in a section which up to the present has never been touched by railroad commerce. This railroad, according to La Nature of Paris, is unique in that it is farther north than any in existence at the present time. In June, 1895, the concession was given a Swedish company, the plan being to construct a line between the fjord of Ofoten, in the Norwegian province of Nordland, and the port of Lulea on the Gulf of Bothnia. Owing to lack of financial support, however, the enterprise was abandoned, but finally the Norwegian Parliament, in 1898, proved all the necessary funds and now the road is completed from one end to the other. The terminus on the Atlantic coast is found at Narvik. The second section of the line, which reaches from Narvik to Lulea and to the Gulf of Bothnia, is less interesting, but the freight carried in this direction reaches the respectable figure of 250,000 tons per annum. It is estimated that the mineral beds which are tapped by this railroad, and which are now being worked, actually contain more than 250,000,000 tons of minerals.

The Defendant Won.

Judge Siebecker of Wisconsin has displayed Solomon-like wisdom in some of his decisions. Two men appeared before him. One was a butcher, who claimed that the defendant owed him $19 for a meat bill. The defendant, a strikingly thin and gaunt figure, denied the bill. Statements and counter-statements followed each other with great rapidity. The bill was passed, but the counsel for the defendant arose.

"When was this meat purchased which you sold the defendant?" asked the Judge.

"During the past four weeks, your Honor," declared the butcher.

"Then I decide this case in favor of the defendant," remarked the Judge, decisively. "Any man who has lived on a butcher's figure before him. His appearance indicates that he has not eaten his worth of meat in his lifetime."

Interesting Items.

A Berlin publisher has recently brought out a new dictionary of twenty-five hundred and eighty German words.

Potatoes form the world's greatest single crop, 4,000,000,000 bushels being produced annually, equal in bulk to the entire wheat and corn crops.

Australia has more members of Parliament per head of population than any other civilized community on earth. The mere statement that, excluding New Zealand, Australia possesses no fewer than fifteen Houses of Parliament, counting 731 members, for a population of less than 4,000,000, is a bit of arithmetic calculated to make all sober Australians sigh, and the rest of the outside world grin.

An ingenious wedding present has been received by a French bride from one of her relatives, who is a geographer. The present, says the "Figaro," is a silver sugar bowl in the design of a terrestrial globe, the upper hemisphere forming the cover. The map of the earth has been elaborately engraved on the outside, and the route taken by the newly-wedded pair is indicated by a line of lapis-lazuli, the names of the towns at which a stay was made being inserted in enamel.

A writer in the "Lancet" says: "Since I began to study diet, I have been astonished at the number of cases of which I have heard, even of medical men, who, after being ill and not often, have found that their susceptibility to colds has quite gone. Such facts as these seem with point to the conclusion that it is the system overcharged with the products of food which was not required, and can act only as a poison to every organ in the body, which is most susceptible for the moment."

One of the most remarkable newspapers in the world is the "Mexican Herald," printed in English, with all the Associated Press telegrams, which have to travel over a thousand miles by special wire, edited by English and Americans, but set up by compositors who are all Mexican Indians, not one of whom knows a single word of the language he is setting up. He does it word by word from typewritten manuscript, and the "readers" are so careful that there is seldom a wrongly-spelt word in this hurriedly-put-together daily paper.

The ancient whaling bark "Kathleen," while cruising off the West Indies, was recently struck by an infuriated harpooned whale, and so great was the damage done that the vessel immediately began sinking fast. The captain's wife had barely time to get into a boat when the old bark went down. The sailors declare solemnly that the favorite parrot of Captain Jenkin's wife, which she rescued, still plainly as he was being lowered over the side, "D—— hard luck; that's what I say, d—— hard luck." The skipper's wife and her beloved bird were followed over the side by the cook, the cabin boy and the master himself.

Mr. Worm—By Heavens! If our acorn cottage hasn't sprouted while we were gone!—"Life."

Magazine Verse.

"Magazine poetry," said a young Philadelphian who dabbles in verse, "is always a source of wonder to me. For a long time I have read it and tried to understand it, but many of the poems I couldn't make head or tail of. For five years I have sent verses of my own to one magazine, and always got them back neatly with a printed rejection slip, but occasionally with a polite note from the editor explaining why the particular verse was not available. One day it occurred to me that obscurity was the open sesame to the pages of this magazine, and, more or less than anything else, I scribbled off a sonnet that meant absolutely nothing. My only thought was to string together a lot of meaningless words that would rhyme. I couldn't help laughing to myself when I read it over. I called it 'Oblivion,' and sent it off. After three months had gone by I got a check for it, and a letter from the editor complimenting me on having at length fathomed the depths of true poetry. What became of it all is"—Philadelphia "Record."

Tolstoy, a Bicycle and a Theory.

Tolstoy seems to have carried his theories into practice even in the smallest details of life. On one occasion relates "M. A. P.," he mounted a bicycle belonging to that a stocatic son of his. He soon mastered the art of balance, and was delighted with the swift, smooth motion. His wife noticed his enjoyment, and immediately offered to give him a machine. Tolstoy at first accepted, but, on reconsidering the matter, he decided that as other less-favored mortals could not afford to possess bicycles, he had no right to own either. So he declined the gift and renounced the pleasant exercise.

The late historian, Samuel Rawson Gardiner, used to say of Froude: "Whenever I find myself particularly perplexed on any point, I look to see what Froude has to say about it. I always find his help invaluable, for I can trust implicitly to his unfailing instinct for arriving at false conclusions; and the more positive he becomes, the safer I feel in adopting a diametrically opposite view."

The Fruit Marks Act.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Burlington, May 30th, 1903.

Dear Sir,—Noticing that Bills to amend the Fruit Marks Act are being introduced in the House of Commons, many fruit growers consider it an opportune time to draw the attention of legislators and the public to existing grievances which our last under the Act, and possibly to suggest remedies for some of these evils.

No one questions the fact that great improvement in the packing of fruit has resulted from the passing of the Act of 1901. So far we know all fruit growers are in the fullest sympathy with what was ostensibly the purpose of its designers. The purposes of the Act as clearly stated and understood at a conference between the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and representative fruit growers and dealers was—so to frame it as to consider the interests of the growers in preparing it by those of dealers when these interests conflicted:—

To prevent fraud in packing by having the contents of all closed packages to correspond fairly with the marks appearing on the package.

To give the packer's name and address in full as a guarantee of good faith.

And to stipulate that certain marks to be defined were not to be used unless the contents of the package graded up to a certain standard, all other marking to be at the discretion of the shipper.

These provisions would have adequately protected the public from fraud, would not have been onerous on the grower or shipper and would have been entirely acceptable to the great majority of fruit growers and to fair-minded dealers.

The beneficial results have been derived principally from section 7 of the Act, which provides that "Any one of any package shall be a fair representation of the contents of the whole," and section 4, which provides for the name and address being placed on the packages. These are the vital points in the Act and considered within themselves a sufficient safeguard for the public, and with the penalties imposed for infractions a sufficient deterrant to such packers as may be inclined to dishonesty. The standards are not too much to expect of the ordinary fruit grower, who can readily understand the difference between honest and fraudulent packing, and who cannot but understand the importance of fruit going forward under his name having a uniformity of excellence.

These improvements in the trade and satisfactory conditions, as before stated, have been effected entirely under certain sections of the Act as originally passed in 1901, but in the spring hours of the session of 1902 amendments to the Act were rushed through the House without explanation or due consideration, and being quite unsalled for either by the public or the fruit growers. The objectionable feature of these amendments are principally, embodied in clause "G" of section 2, which primarily demands that a farmer shall grade to a specified standard which must necessarily vary materially in different sections, and in the ideas of various individuals, and then brand with a fixed mark to designate such grade or quality, which no other class of the community is called upon to do, and to which no class but the farmer would submit.

It is, therefore, widely regarded as an unwarrantable interference with the liberty of the subject, and fraught with the rights of a citizen, and the farmers of the Dominion should as one man raise a protest against this injustice being perpetrated on a section of their calling and resent the indignity thus thrust upon them.

Sensible laws provided for failing to comply with all the conditions required and heavier penalties for attempting to do so when the judgment of the farmer fails to conform to that of the inspector, but that it may be the judgment of an experienced and honest farmer against that of an Inspector, whose efficiency is questionable, and the farmer is at once branded a criminal without the privilege of trial by jury. Thus rorising the grower who, rather than have his fruit damaged by packages, and incurring the odium of being fraudulent, decides to sell his fruit to the speculator much below its value rather than to be branded by the orchard.

This compulsory grading and branding is not only impossible as applied to fruit under varying conditions, but it is both absurd and useless. Being the marks of the owner who is an interested party, these marks demanded by the Act would not be considered by any court and would consequently have no commercial value in case of a dispute between buyer and seller.

There should be no compulsory grade marks, and responsibility for grades should rest not on the farmer, but on qualified and competent inspectors, who should be available to do inspection work where required, and issue certificates as in other lines of business—these certificates would be final in case of dispute as to quality.

The Act might, in the opinion of many shippers define No. 2 or No. 3 fruit, but it should be entirely optional with a shipper whether he has his fruit graded to a Government standard or not. Millions of bushels of wheat change hands annually without inspection, and when it is inspected the owner does not indicate the quality. The Inspector makes his examination and issues his certificate. In such cases the person requiring the services of the Inspector pays the established fees.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY

Bridge St. Methodist Church Fittingly Celebrates its Eighty-Eighth Birthday

Cultured and Earnest Sermons Preached by an Ottawa Divine, Rev. Dr. Rose

Notes of Services in Belleville's Different Places of Praise and Worship.

Bridge St. Church's 88th Anniversary.

Bridge St. Church people are renowned for their anniversary celebrate, in which, it may be pointed out, they stick close to the advice given by the great John Wesley himself. Opinions may differ as to many points in the make-up of the great organizer of "methodism" as to his practicability and success of his methods there can be no two opinions. The results speak for themselves. Therefore, while it is said that an especial feature has the particular approval of John Wesley, that settles it, so far as Methodists are concerned.

Bridge St. Church was 88 years old yesterday, and the anniversary was celebrated with the appropriateness which ever marks the big congregation that worships on the corner of Church and Bridge streets. The preacher of the day was Rev. S. D. Rose, D.D., of Ottawa. Rev. Dr. Rose is not a stranger to Belleville, he having spent some years in this city when his father was senior pastor of the church, and three years more in 1875-76-77, when he was himself junior pastor. Such being the case he well believes the Rev. gentleman when he last night stated that he was deeply grieved at the opportunity given him to once more meet the congregation of Bridge St. The church has been completely fire and rebuilt since Rev. Dr. Rose was its junior pastor, and he last night took occasion to compliment his hearers on the beautiful edifice, "a new building," he said, "is better than the old one was, but the old congregation was very much the same as the congregation of to-day." And a quiet smile stole over many faces.

As might be expected, there were large congregations present both morning and at the evening service being particularly so. The pulpit platform at the latter service was beautifully decorated with flowers. The choir was in full force, rendering two anthems in grand style; a solo by Miss Mae Vermilyea, "Glory to God on High," being especially rendered.

Rev. Dr. Crothers, in his prayer, was earnest and practical, referring particularly to the need to bring about in the men and women of Bridge St. in the year of grace 1903 the spiritual results being shown at the present time. "With the proofs of beneficent godliness all around us," said the Rector, "and the evidences that the labors of the past generations of the church have not been in vain, we pray, O God and Lord, Amen."

The following interesting figures were read by Rev. Dr. Rose:

In the sixteen years since the church was rebuilt the congregation has contributed for all purposes $141,063. Average for each year, $8,256. For the past year $9,485 was given. Of this $141.668 the Trustees received $3,000; for the support and maintenance of the church property. $1,000 was paid to the Belleville Missionary Society and $4,349 to the Woman's Missionary Society; $162,278 being the total for missions. For several years prior to 1898 the average annual for missions was $50. Since then it has been $81. A new method to fill the fruit to the year of "the great revival"—the Revs. Crossley and Hunter's first visit, which resulted in many new members to the church. There has been added to the church in the past 16 years 1,566 persons. 127 have died in the Lord. There are now members of the Sunday School for the same period has been 807. For some years prior to 1897 it had been 477. For the 1,566 persons who entered into the church there is now a total of 1,000 in the Sunday School.

The sermon by Rev. Dr. Rose gave evidence of deep culture and great earnestness. It was based on part of the 17th verse of the 2nd chapter of the Acts:

"And your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams."

Youth, the preacher said, was naturally full of hope and vision, while comparatively young. St. John had his great vision on the isle of Patmos just the same as Joseph learned to discriminate between visions. God had never sent a blessing into the world but Satan had immediately followed with a counterfeit. Even when God urged people to confess Christ, Satan replied with bigotry. God sent earnestness and self-sacrifice, Satan followed with hypocrisy. Thus it was hard, sometimes, to distinguish between genuine visions. But there was a sure guide—earthborn visions were always self-centred; heaven-born visions had Christ as their central figure. The earth-born vision brought not benediction, but maledic-

tion; the heaven-born vision brought the peace which passeth all understanding. The grandest, noblest vision we could have was that of redeemed, regenerated humanity; a vision of Christianity pressing onward to its goal: a vision of men and women dwelling in unity, with sound minds in sound bodies. The preacher said he was convinced that St. John's vision on the isle of Patmos was a vision of this earth as it would be after the Christian regeneration had come. These heaven-born visions sometimes faded, and because men did not try to turn the vision into a reality. But some aged man might ask him: "What comfort is there for me in these visions of youth?" In my case the vision has gone, and youth has faded away." To such an one he says with the Gospel: the Saviour said, "I will take away the stony heart out of your bosom, and I will give you a heart of flesh." Jesus preached the doctrine of regeneration to a man well advanced in years, and he (the preacher) was afraid that nowadays the churches make a mistake in their treatment of that doctrine; they advanced it rather as a threat than as a gospel message. The text said "Your old men shall dream dreams." It was not good for young men to dream. He could conceive of nothing so hateful to young men as the habit of falling into reverie, which led them into an unreal world, but they might invest for themselves when old age comes, sweet dreams of the Beautiful country so vividly described by John Bunyan in his great allegory. Who knows but what God may realize those sweet and peaceful dreams? Simply by being true to the heavenly visions of youth. To the young he would say, cultivate the spirit of heavenly visions, then when old age, the evening shadows gathered, joy-inspiring visions of the past and dreams of the better land, dreams so beautiful that they would hardly distinguish where earth ended and heaven began.

The beautiful voluntaries played by Prof. Hunt were not the least pleasing features of a bright, and attractive service.

In the Sunday School.

In the afternoon in the Sunday School in its different departments, turned out en masse to welcome back the Rev. Dr. Rose. In 1884 was a member of the school as a scholar, and is justly proud of it now. The welcome was a very gratifying one to Dr. Rose. He was most enthusiastically received with the "Chautauqua Salute." In his reply he referred to the memories which lingered in the heart to that church and to Belleville, and was delighted to receive such witness the many evidences of growth in the church and to see that Belleville was more beautiful than ever.

Emmanuel M. E. Church.

At the morning service the Rector, Rev. Dr. Rexter, conducted the service and preached the first of a series of sermons on "Christian Life in Daily Life." The beginning, the end, the aim, the motive, the power and the example in all these things was given as an address in reference to missions. Rev. Dr. Rexter will be assisted by a large congregation.

St. Thomas'.

At the morning services the Rector, Rev. Canon O'Meara, conducted the service and preached the first of a series of sermons on "Christian Life in Daily Life." The beginning, the end, the aim, the motive, the power and the example in all these things was given as an address in reference to missions. Rev. Dr. Rexter will be assisted by a large congregation.

Christ Church.

Rev. Prof. Howard, of Montreal, who is at present ministering to the spiritual wants of Christ Church, yesterday preached two able sermons. A large congregation was present to hear him at both services. In the evening the Rev. gentleman's text was "Let us take courage," and he said in part:

"And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost."

During the service Miss Grace Ponton rendered a solo which was very appropriate.

John Street.

At this place of worship last evening Rev. Canon Spencer, Rector, preached, his subject being in reference to Christ's stilling the tempest. The text was Matthew 8th, 24th verse and 41st verse.

The choir feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him!"

Tabernacle.

At the Tabernacle Church yesterday morning Rev. Dr. Gardiner occupied the pulpit, his subject being taking for his text the 6th, 7th and 8th verses of the 2nd chapter of Hebrews. In the evening the Pastor, Rev. J. H. Locke, preached.

St. Andrew's Church.

The Pastor, Rev. M. W. Maclean, officiated and preached at both services, taking for his subject in the text was from St. John, 8th chapter and 46th verse:

"Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth why ye not believe me?"

The choir rendered an anthem at both services. In the morning Mr. John McIntosh took the solo and in the evening Miss Norah Lazier.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TRANSACTED SOME IMPORTANT BUSINESS.

The Executive Committee of the City Council, at a recent meeting, transacted some important business.

A letter from Major Maude, which had been received by the Mayor, was read, announcing that the Viceregal party would be here for two hours on Friday afternoon next. A committee to deal with the matter was appointed, consisting of Ald. Ghovz, Galbraith, Sinclair and the Mayor. The Mayor was instructed to write Major Maude, asking what form of reception the Corporation would like. (When an answer is received arrangements will be made.

Mr. Frank Bolen, prospective lessee of the Gas works, presented a satisfactory proposition to the committee, which was accepted, and will probably be ratified by the Council to-night. Mr. Dolan, by the agreement, binds himself to pay a rental of $2,000 per year, which covers interest charges, insurance and taxes, on a basis of an output of 10,000,000 feet of gas; and to pay $250 extra for each additional million feet of gas made and sold. The Council, in its turn, guarantees the interest on the Gas Company's mortgages. A by-law ratifying the agreement will be sent to the Council to-night and be at once submitted to the people.

There will also be submitted to the people a by-law authorizing the purchase of land for the erection of a drill shed. The Government offers to erect a drill shed at a cost of $5,000, if the city will buy the property on which the skating rink now stands, and the remainder of the property north as far as the opera house, and deed it to the Government for the purpose mentioned. The cost of the property in question will be $7,500. The city will stipulate that the drill shed, if erected, shall be equal to the ones in Brockville and Kingston.

Another by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers is one asking authority to borrow and expend $50,000 for sewerage purposes, the money to be obtained by 20-year debentures, the said debentures to be issued when needed.

The fourth by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers is one granting exemption from taxation, on his wood storage plant, to Mayor Graham, the exemption to be for 10 years and commended by the agreement of 1898. The Mayor asks exemption for the next 10 years, and will, in case this is granted, pay the back taxes at present in dispute and start afresh.

The four by-laws in question, providing the City Solicitor's bills are prepared, will receive their first and second readings to-night, and will be submitted to the people as soon as is legally possible.

AN UNDOUBTED CURE FOR CANCER.

A New, Painless Method of Treatment That Completely Cures Cancer.

The well marsh of medical science has at last overtaken cancer and placed it in the Arts Category, where it belongs.

The old painful methods of treating it by knife or plaster and which were a disgrace to medical failure, have been superseded by our Constitutional Treatment, which completely roots out the disease from the system and leaves no scar. Cancer has been held to again cause trouble, but guarantee to cure the worst cases or no payment sent to anyone on receipt of two stamps. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Ran Away From Home.

A lad who gave his name as James Cadadonna, and Toronto as his home, was found at an early hour on Sunday morning asleep in a barn in the rear of a house on Pinnacle street. The boy stated that he had run away from home intending to take a trip to the old country on a cattle ship. He promised to return to the Queen City if allowed his liberty, and his request was granted. Labanister is 15 years of age.

COURT TO-DAY A RISK.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. Such a calamity by these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. FOUL MURDER OR SUICIDE—WHICH?

Dead Body of a Man Named Peene, of Long Point, P. E. Co., Found

By Some Boys in a Bush Yesterday Afternoon, With Ugly Wound in Neck.

Authorities are Now Investigating the Gruesome Affair—Leaves Wife and Family.

The adjoining County of Prince Edward has at present a mystery on hand and the authorities are at a loss just yet to determine whether a murder has been committed or whether it, is a case of suicide.

It appears that between two and three weeks ago a man named Peene, whose home is in the vicinity of Long Point, in Ameliasburg Township, left his residence with the intention of looking for work. His absence from home was not a matter of concern to the family, as they believed that a few days they would hear from him.

Yesterday the serious aspect of the case, was presented by some boys discovering the remains of a man in a bush on Long Point. They were readily recognized as those of Peene by the neck of the body having been a large hole made by some kind of an instrument, which had caused death.

From the meagre details which have been learned of the affair, it is impossible at present to state whether the deed committed suicide or was murdered.

The unfortunate man was about 45 years of age, and was married, and that he leaves a wife and family.

The affair is being investigated by the authorities.

NOTHING LIKE RETIREMENT.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one does not have." Tell a man that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus in 20 minutes and he will refer to the ed of the day. His Fifty Years.

Rev. Professor Wm. McLaren, of Toronto, a former pastor of the John St. Presbyterian Church, this city, was presented on Friday evening with a magnificent Arts Library, it being the half century as a member of the Presbyterian Church.

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any wrong action of fact in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of cases, moreover, as a result of the exhibition of Catarrhozone, are reported, and on the blighted ear. We strongly commend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone is a boon to those hard hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the success it has met with. Sold by druggists from Toronto, who have every perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone after years of deafness. Price $1. At druggists, or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Mainly About People.

Dr. Parr, on meeting Lord Chancellor Erskine, with whom he was friendly, once said: "Erskine, I mean to write your epitaph when you die." "Doctor," answered the great lawyer, "it is almost a temptation to commit suicide."

At a ball in the country a gentleman undertook to introduce a companion to a young but somewhat stout lady, who seemed to be sighing for a dance. "Sir," thanks, all dollows." I don't care to waits with a card." A few evenings later the same young lady, who had overheard the conversation, beheld the young man seeking an introduction, and asking if he might have the honor, etc., "Sir, thank you," she replied, "I may be a cart, but I am not a donkey cart."

A rich Irish-American, who frequently visits England and dearly loves a lord, loses no opportunity of talking of his great acquaintances. At a recent dinner party in New York, where there were several Roman Catholics, during a conversation on the subject of fasting, this gentleman said: "It is very strange how little Catholics in the higher ranks mind the fast days. I was dining at the Duke of Norfolk's on a fast day, three weeks ago, and there wasn't a bit of fish at dinner." "I suppose," said another Irishman, "they had eaten it all in the morning."

John D. Rockefeller recently told the following story: "I don't question the veracity of that story, but I am going to tell you one that I know to be true. It happened down in Washington. A negro was driving a wagon and in going through a street ran against a person. With the superstition of his race he thought it would be bad luck to cross behind the funeral, so he tried to cross ahead of it, but the driver of the hearse whipped up his horse, and the two went neck and neck for a time in full reality the darkey sang out: 'Bad luck, pull up yoush hoss! Mah boss is in a hurry an' yuahs isn't!'"

Judge Pennypacker of Philadelphia tells a story which shows the readiness of the Pennsylvania Dutchman to obey those in authority: In 1864 Sheridan, under orders, burned every barn from a valley above Staunton to a certain point before Winchester. A band of angry rebels followed this raid, watching for a chance to pick up any straggler. Among others who fell into their hands was a little Pennsylvania Dutchman, who quietly turned to his captors and enquired: "Vat you follows going to do mit me?" The reply was short and sharp: "Hang you." "Vell," he said, "dot's vatever is de rule." His good-natured reply threw the Confederates into a roar of laughter and saved his life.

One day last autumn Bennet Burleigh, the noted English special correspondent, was encountered a few miles outside Pretoria by that volcanic reporter, General Packer. "Burleigh, the ——— are you doing out here with that ——— thing?" asked the general, pointing to a kodak which was slung round his shoulders. "Well, sir," promptly replied Mr. Burleigh, "I was intending to take some photographs, but I'm glad to see that it was to be the pleasure of meeting you I should have brought out a phonograph." And this audacity, it is said that even General Packer's stock of sulphurous adjectives ran low.

Gilbert Parker, to illustrate the gullibility of some Englishmen in the colonies, recently told the following story: "Once in Australia on my way through the bush, with my friend Cabbage Tree Bill, we were accompanied by a rich and intelligent young gentleman from Devonshire, and as we came along we saw along the road, if it might be called a road, a young kangaroo. Bill said: 'Now wait a minute; you will see him take the letters.' The kangaroo was near by and on waiting for another word Bill said, 'He has his pouch and everything ready to carry them,' but as we came along Bill snapped his whip and said, 'Nothing, to-day,' and the kangaroo trotted off, the young gentleman believing for a great part of the rest of the journey that the object of the kangaroo's presence was as Bill had said."

John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster, usually wears his uniform at all times and seasons, and prefers that his men do the same. The practice has led to many very amusing experiences. For example, one night Mr. Sousa was standing in a railway station, on the platform waiting for a train. A belated traveler ran up to him and asked, excitedly, "Has the nine-three train pulled out?" "I really don't know," responded Mr. Sousa. "Well, why don't you know?" shouted the traveler. "What are you standing here for with a stick of wood? Aren't you the conductor?" "Yes," said Mr. Sousa, pleasantly, "I am a conductor." "A queer sort of conductor, indeed!" exclaimed the man. "Well, you see," Mr. Sousa responded the musician, "I am not the conductor of a train, but of a brass band."

The Perfect Cordial.

THE CRY FOR JESUS.

Harry Moore Lowry, Pastor Bethel Church of the Redeemer, New York City.

Sir, we would see Jesus—John, xii., 21.

The East came to the cradle of Christ, the West came to His cross. The Magi sought Him, impelled by that enlightened religious instinct which, dissatisfied with that which carries the soul, is able to rise above previous education and prejudice and seek the gratification of its deepest needs and its highest aspirations wherever that gratification may be found.

These who thus came to Christ stood for that large number of Greeks, so frequently alluded to, who, perceiving the vanity of popular religion, turned to something more satisfying, and found in the synagogue service of the Jews something which appealed to the craving of that instinct for God, which all men possess. Attaching themselves more or less to Judaism, without submitting to its religious rites necessary to give them full standing, they came to Jerusalem to worship the God in whom they had come to believe. Here they put themselves in communication with one of the disciples of Jesus and request an interview with the man who has created so great a stir in the popular mind.

Their action may well be regarded by us as suggesting the cry of an enlightened religious instinct for the personal Christ.

Mere curiosity may prompt such a cry.

How, as then, Jesus Christ is the problem of the ages. He is a personality that must be explained; a force that must be reckoned for. He is a man, whom millions love and no one hates, thrusts Himself before us in such a way that life is entirely changed for us after we meet Him. "By what authority doest thou these things?" is a question we must have an end for the sake of our own peace of mind. "What shall I do with Jesus?" is the inquiry of a soul who is confronted by this perplexing personality, this masterful man. The age of inquiry in which we live finds its curiosity baffled by this teacher, whose character defies human analysis, whose truth transcends human philosophies and whose influence is more living, more essential, more powerful in each succeeding age. Eager to know what God would have us do and be, we turn from all else to Jesus, in the hope that at last we can find a satisfactory point at which we can rest.

Appreciation may lead us to Him. Beyond mere curiosity a soul has come to know enough of Jesus to make him feel that life offers nothing better than the study of this character and life. Its beauties disclose themselves in such a way as to charm us. We are fascinated by His graciousness, enthralled by His tenderness, moved by His love. We cease to wonder why it is that those who follow Him rise above those who accept Him in laying their tribute at admiration at His feet, and understand how it is that even an infidel can find the life of Jesus his highest theme and greatest satisfaction.

The motive which draws us to Jesus may be something more than these. It may be a strong personal desire on our part for Jesus because He has wooed us and won us. We hold Him not at arms' length; we look not at Him in the spirit of critical inquiry; we treat Him not as something outside of ourselves, but as a part of us. In all the world, we desire to take Him into our very lives, to reign there king and Lord of all.

In any and every case that which this religious instinct cries for is personality. When the church, by-those rude methods which it once used, tried to convert the world to Christianity, it brought into its fold a mass of barbarous and unspiritual votaries. Gibbon left its impress on church life for a thousand years. If the church had maintained paganism, paganism in turn paganized Christianity. As a result, the personality of Christ was largely lost. It is the glory of the present time that the church is swinging back more and more to the personal Christ. As the din of religious strife subsides we hear the voice of Jesus more clear and power this one perfect personality. He, and He alone, meets the want and answers the cry of the present day man. It is an age of individualism. The needs of man are paramount. As the monarch has gone down, man has gone up. He simply wants a Christ who deals with individual men, and who addresses Himself to individual wants. In the movement of sorrow we feel for the hand of the Comforter; in the hour of loneliness we seek our Companion; in the day of trouble we want the counsel of the Friend. There is no one in all history who satisfies us so fully as Jesus of Nazareth, as "Man of Sorrows" and "Friend of Sinners," touches human hearts to cure, to comfort, to cleanse.

Systematic theology is a necessary as the bone of a man, but dem bones must be covered with warm flesh if we are to have a friend. Delight in the study of Christian anatomy must not rob us of our living friend, the matchless Son of Man. The cry of the soul the forsaken ere crying to-day as never before, "Sir, we would see Jesus."

Got the Dowry.

The successful applicant this year for the Duke Humphrey dowry, says The London Daily Mail—Miss Sarah Amelia Robertson—yesterday, after her marriage to a coachbuilder's assistant named Johnson, presented by the Mayor of Cardiff with a check for £9 18s. This represents the interest on £300 invested by the Marquis of Bute for the purpose of providing an annual gift to some deserving girl servant to assist her in furnishing her home on her marriage. Besides receiving a beautifully bound Bible to the bride, Pope Is No Longer Described as Anti-Christ.

Presbyterian General Assembly in Session Also Makes Important Revisions in the Creed of That Church—Language on Important Points Has Been Modified—Doctrine of Predestination Dismissed in a Line.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly Saturday a motion made by Dr. W. A. Page, for the adoption of the report of the Creed Revision Committee as a whole, prevailed by unanimous vote.

In the new confession the doctrine of predestination is disposed of in the words, "any man is condemned except on the ground of his sin" from accepting the offer of free salvation.

In the estimation of churchmen one of the most important of the changes in the confession is that which deals with chapter 10, section 3, this statement being adopted:

"That it is not to be regarded as teaching that any who die in infancy are lost. We believe that all dying in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ, through the Spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases."

Another important change is the omission of the appellation "Antichrist," as applied to the Pope, the following section being substituted for section 6, in chapter XXV., of the old Confession:

"The Lord Jesus Christ is the only head of the church, and the claim of any man to be the vicar of Christ, and the head of the church is unscriptural without warrant in fact, and is a usurption dishonoring to the Lord Jesus Christ."

In the old Confession the section reads:

"There is no head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ, nor can the Pope of Rome in any sense be the head thereof, but is the Antichrist, that man of sin and son of perdition, that exalteth himself in the church against Christ and all that is called God."

Another statement in the new Confession declares that "works done by unregenerate men, although for the matter of them they may be things which God commands, and in themselves praiseworthy and useful . . . they come short of what God requires and do not make any man meet to receive the grace of God."

KILLED BY BURST WHEEL.

Albert Holden of Toronto Meets With Sad Death Saturday.

Toronto, June 1.—Albert Holden, aged 23, son of Charles Holden, Rubber Co.'s factory in Parkdale, was thrown a distance of 25 feet against a brick wall, by the force of the bricks dislodged from the flying part of a 12-ft., 20-ton fly wheel of the reclaiming factory. This happened at 11.45 Saturday morning and as soon as possible Drs. Hunter, Burns and Coleman were in attendance. They immediately had the ambulance, in charge of Orderly Hall, as Holden died on his way to the Western Hospital. His skull was fractured and several ribs broken, besides he sustained severe internal injuries. Holden was the only man who received any practical injury, though several others were present and can have been reported from others resulting from flying bricks and stones. The deceased was 23 years of age and came from Nobleton. Holden's brother and sister work in the factory. His two cousins were killed in an accident six years ago in the same factory.

ADVISE RUSSIAN WAR.

Russia Will Keep 30,000 in Manchuria as Railway Guards.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—The Department of War at Pekin has given instructions to the Governor-General of Sinking to go to Pekin to report on the existing conditions of the Russian military movement in Manchuria, and also to decide upon a future administrative policy.

Several anonymous notices of Chinese students have been held at Shanghai. Telegrams were sent to Pekin by Viceroy Yuan Shih Kai, urging that China declare war against Russia to protect her rights.

Nikolas Kolossoff of the Russian Legation at Pekin, who left Pekin for there, says that Russia intends to keep 30,000 troops in Manchuria as railway guards, towns being built along the railway military centres established. He says the Reclamation of Manchuria will soon make progress, hampered though it is by Japan.

Hamilton Has No Bread.

Hamilton, June 1.—Hamiltonians will get up this morning face a bread famine. The journeymen bakers held a meeting Saturday night, and decided not to go to work last night. They want day work, and the master bakers refuse to grant it, on the expense that the change would cause. There are fifty members of the union, and not one was working last night. The master bakers have rolled up their sleeves and are bending over the kneeding troughs doing their best to get enough bread to keep the people from going to work hungry. With the help of the small bakeries, where no men are employed and non-union shops, it is thought that the citizens will not suffer very great inconvenience for a day or two.

Three Men in a Boat.

Montreal, June 1.—Three men in a boat left Point Aux Trembles on Saturday night to row to Isle Grou Pois. The boat capsized, two of them, one named Dubois, were drowned. The other's name has not been learned. The third man, named Langlois, was saved.

Fruit Marks Act Amendment Squelched by Farmer-General.

Sir Frederick Borden Drops His Comprehensive Militia Act Amendment Bill For This Session—Railway Commissioner Bill Again Considered—Appointment With Premier Three and Not Dismissable by Governor-in-Council.

Ottawa, June 2.—Sir Frederick Borden's bill to amend the Militia Act was dropped in the House yesterday. The bill was quite comprehensive, providing among other things for a Canadian general officer commanding, an increase in the permanent corps and the creation of a cadet corps.

The Railway Commission.

The evening session of the House was devoted to consideration of Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill.

The bill was fought on almost every clause while passing through the committee stage. Many clauses affecting the jurisdiction of the commission were held over.

Mr. Smith (Wentworth) urged that the commission should be placed under the authority of the commission.

It was decided that three members should constitute the commission.

An amendment proposing that the commissioners may be dismissed by the Governor-in-Council for cause, was passed. Mr. Blair moved to dismissal possible only by the action of Parliament.

Questions Answered.

Canada has 12,833,126 acres of fair domain vested in the railways which have not been earned within the time specified for the earning thereof. The charters may, of course, be extended, otherwise the following areas represent lands earned for which the time specified for earning has lapsed. Mr. Scott was informed:

Alberta Railway Company. 384,000 acres.

Brandon and South Western, 109,-0.0 acres.

Calgary and Edmonton, 287,552 acres.

Lac Seul Railway, 115,200 acres.

G.N.W. Central, 2,560,000 acres.

Medicine Hat Railway, 1,200 acres.

Manitoba and North Western, 1,-417,024 acres.

Manitoba and South Western, 36,-800 acres.

N. W. Railway of Canada, 3,350,-000 acres.

Long Lake and Saskatchewan, 352,000 acres.

Rock Mountain Railway and Coal Company, 384,000 acres.

Wood Mountain and Qu'Appelle, 1,536,000 acres.

Lands, voted to railways, and which may yet be earned under existing legislation, amount to 582,-524 acres.

Mr. Blain was informed that fifty-nine buyers purchased binder twine since the issue of the circular in May, 1903, at the following points: Pure Manila, 14,975 pounds, at 11½c and 11¾c; 48,250 sisal, at 10½c and 10¾c; King special 5,150 lbs. at 9 1-2c and 9½c.

The numerical strength of the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry Mr. Smith (Wentworth) was informed, was 359 men of all ranks. Sergt.-Major Lee got $1.50 per diem; after four years, $1.50; after eight years, $1.75. Quartermaster-sergeants, after eight years, $1.50; after 12 years, $1.75.

Instructors, after three years, $1.15; after six years $1.25; sergeants 90c. Col. Prior said: "With the 25c. officers of the permanent corps Royal Canadian Regiment will hold a first-class long course certificate will have to pass an examination for substantive rank.

Mr. Lancaster was informed that for the year 1902-3 the Dept. of water per second from the old Welland Canal, the Hamilton Electric Light and Cataract Power Company pays $21,000 per year.

Large sums were paid in rebates on agricultural implements exported from Canada during the years 1901-2. The largest rebates were: Massey-Harris Company, $5,168, in 1901; $6,696; in 1902. Verity Plow Company, Brantford, $3,163, in 1901; $3,211, in 1902. Other rebates were trivial.

The More Protection.

Before the House rose last night, Mr. Borden moved that, when the House met on Tuesday, Department of Supply, he would move the following resolutions:

"This House is of the opinion that the tariff of customs duties should be so framed as to afford adequate protection as will not only secure to the people of Canada manufacturers the Canadian market in articles of manufacture now manufactured in this country, but will also develop and sustain the manufactures in Canada of other lines of goods products, which, at present, are imported in large quantities from other countries. And that the present tariff of customs duties requires to be now readjusted on this principle."

CIVIL SERVANTS' SALARIES.

Mr. Lucas' Bill to Provide For Their Garnishment Read a Second Time in the Legislature.

Toronto, June 2.—In the Assembly yesterday a number of petitions were read praying the Government to put the Liquor Act of 1902 in force.

Mr. Whitney presented a petition from the United Counties of Dorchester, Dundas and Glengarry, asking the Legislature to extend the tenure of office of municipal councils from one to two years.

Several private bills were read a third time and some were considered in committee.

Among the second readings was Mr. Lucas' bill to provide for the garnishment of the salaries of civil servants.

The Attorney-General asked that it be withdrawn.

Short speeches in its favor were made by Messrs. Lucas, Gross, Smyth, Whitney, Lucas and Jessop.

Mr. Gibson finally agreed to allow the bill to go to committee, and put on the Opposition the onus of making the bill work.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Manager Charles M. Hays and Leighton McCarthy Interview Min sters.

After the session of the House, which lasted only an hour, the Premier and his colleagues devoted most of the balance of the day to receiving the promoters of the projected Grand Trunk subsidy, among whom were Charles M. Hays, general manager of the company, and Leighton McCarthy, M.P. As a consequence, it was announced that there was nothing to give out.

Mr. Hays also had a short interview with Mr. Whitney. What the talk was about the leader of the Opposition would not say. He did say, however, that he would not be in a position to discuss the matter until the Premier announced what the Government intended to do.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

Capt. Sullivan Arrives to Give Evidence vs. Shannon Case.

Capt. John Sullivan arrived here last night from Ashtabula, O., and will appear to-day before counsel for the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature re the Shannon deal this morning.

Through error last week it was stated that Mr. Hoyle was the only Conservative who voted against Mr. Downey's bill to do away with the Coumse Act in the committee. The fact is Mr. Hoyle was not present, and he says that if he had been he would not only support Mr. Downey's bill but would have moved an amendment in favor of public ownership.

SINCLAIR'S AD.

MR. BRIDE IS NOW PREMIER

Called Upon by Lieut-Governor Joly to Form New Cabinet.

Two Liberals and Three Conservatives Chosen For British Columbia Government—New Premier Was Formerly a Member of Col. Prior's Cabinet, But Was Placed at Head of the Opposition on His Retirement.

Victoria, B. C., June 2.—Richard McBride was called upon to form a Government by Sir Henri Joly yesterday, after the late Premier, Col. Prior, was dismissed by the Lieutenant-Governor. The dismissal of the late Premier was due to his connection with the contract for the supply of a cable for Chimney Creek bridge.

The Governor, in his letter of dismissal, says the late Premier's conception of the Independence of Parliament Act is such that he can no longer give him his confidence.

Col. Prior said: "While His Honor was satisfied that I had not done anything intentionally wrong in connection with the Chimney Creek contract, he considered that I had not quite seized the Independence of Parliament Act."

He said further that he was willing to admit that his course in regard to the contract in question had, perhaps, been impolitic.

Premier McBride's Cabinet is slated. Its personnel:

T. W. Paterson, member for North Victoria.

Mr. McPhillips, member for Victoria.

R. G. Green, member for Kaslo.

John Oliver, member for Delta.

Captain Tatlow, member for the view of self-interest, as admirable one. Neither Liberals nor Conservatives.

Mr. McBride, the new Premier, was formerly a member of the Prior Cabinet, but retired from the Government and was placed at the head of the Opposition. Since his withdrawal the party which he leads has won every by-election.

GOVERNMENT SHORTAGE COVERED.

There Will Be No Prosecution in Henderson Defalcation Case.

Georgetown, June 2.—Short in his accounts and hard-pressed by numerous creditors, Postmaster Herbert V. Henderson, son of Mr. David Henderson, M. P. for Halton, has left the country. In addition to several hundred dollars of Government funds squandered, many personal friends claim to be out on borrowed money, to an amount ranging from $25 to $200. The Government shortage, something less than $400, has been made good by friends. Therefore, there will be no prosecution.

Hon. J. R. Stratton Gets $350.

Perth, June 2.—The Conservatives of the new Presbyterian Sunday School at Centreville was well filled on the hall yesterday afternoon by Hugh Waddell, and not Hon. J. R. Stratton as stated. The Provincial Secretary announced that he would give $250 for a library for the Sunday school. This was loudly applauded.

Victim of Fire Shooting Cars.

Toronto, June 2.—Late evening Charles Irvine was struck by a train while shunting cars at the foot of Yonge street. He was fatally injured and died shortly after reaching the hospital.

Fast Atlantic Service.

Ottawa, June 2.—The time expired yesterday for the receipt of tenders for the fast Atlantic service. The Trade and Commerce Department admits the receipt of several tenders.

Explosives Captured.

Vienna, June 2.—The New Freie Press, correspondent at Uskub says the authorities at Kroepruloo, Prilep and Monastir have captured nine kilograms of dynamite and quantities of other explosives in the houses of two men named Alexo Milanoff and Grigorcutchieff, both of whom have been arrested on suspicion of complicity in the recent dynamite outrages.

Frontenac Crops Spoiled.

Kingston, June 2.—No amount of rain will save the hay crop in this section, grain crops having been practically laid waste by the ground being in such a soft condition. The fruit crops will be a failure. Plums and pears will be particularly scarce, as these are dropping from trees for lack of moisture to sustain life. Berries will also be a light crop.

Death of Mrs. Gibbs.

Toronto, June 2.—Mrs. Gibbs, of Port Arthur, who was stricken with paralysis on last week while attending the meeting of the Women's National Council, held here, died yesterday at the Hospital. Her husband, son, and her sister, Mrs. Osler, of Cobourg, were with her when she died.

Boiler Bursting Killed One.

Montreal, June 2.—Napoleon Marcoux, engineer, was killed yesterday by the explosion of a boiler at Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co. station. Another workman was badly injured.

$5,000 OPERATIVES OUT.

Great Strike of Textile Workers Affecting 600 Firms—Wage Loss Daily of $135,000.

Philadelphia, June 2.—A general strike of textile workers, involving 90,000 operatives, was inaugurated here yesterday. Of the 600 firms engaged in the textile industry here 47 have granted the demands of the union, and their plants, employing about 15,000 hands, are in operation. All of the sixty-three largest carpet mills are idle, affecting directly 18,000 hands. All of the dyers, who are said to control the situation, are on strike, with the exception of those of the Berkshire mills. Thirty-nine branches of the textile trade are affected by the strike, and the interests affected are worth $100,000,000. The daily loss in wages will amount to $125,000. While the dyers continue on strike the mills must remain idle, no matter what the other textile workers may do.

BUREAU PRINTERS AT WORK.

Did Not Stand to Their Intention to Strike at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 2.—The Ottawa "Special" :—The printers at the Bureau were at work yesterday morning, and apparently there was no intention of a strike. Such being the case, the Bureau of Statistics will be removed from a union into an open office. It will not strike. "They" evidently contemplated the acceptance of the service of printers who did not belong to the union. Legal advice had taken place, but the Bureau employees appear to have arrived at decision as the better part of valor, and hence the question of employing union or non-union men will not, it is thought, arise. The decision of the printers is free from the point of view of self-interest, as admirable one. Neither Liberals nor Conservatives in Parliament are in the temper to brook any dictation from the Ottawa Typographical Union, and it would not take much to bring about a determination to close the office altogether, and have the printing done by outside firms.

Sir Thomas Interviewed.

Montreal, June 3.—Through the intervention of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the differences between the Montreal Longshoremen and the shippers have been settled, and there will not be any further trouble on the wharf as threatened.

G.T.R. WRECK HURTS FOUR.

Passenger Crashes Into Freight Through an Open Switch.

Komoka, June 2.—The London local ran into an open switch and collided with an extra freight train yesterday morning, injuring four trainmen and giving a number of passengers severe bruises. Both locomotives were much damaged and several freight cars battered to pieces. Those injured seriously are:

Conductor Adam Douglas, London; Engineer Coote, London; the fireman of the local of Edmonton and Brakeman Carney, London. Coote and his fireman were the most seriously injured, from jumping to escape death when they saw the approaching train. Drake of London was on the train and attended the injured.

The wreck was the result of a misplaced switch, left open, it is charged, by section men.

Deadly Barrel Windows.

London, June 3.—Two boys, each 14 years old, were burned to death in a fire which gutted one of the pastor's houses at Bon College yesterday morning. There were thirty-three others in the house, and the survivors, clad in their night clothes, had great difficulty in escaping, many scrambling from the windows down the icy-covered walls on the house. The work of rescue was considerably delayed, owing to some of the windows of the house being barred. The incineration of the two students is attributed to this fact.

To Give Europe the Plague.

London, June 2.—A lurid story from Sofia is to the effect that revolutionary leaders there have in their possession a large quantity of Indian plague bacilli, with which they threaten to infect Constantinople, Salonica and even Berlin, if, within eight days from time of warning the powers do not agree to the execution of the Berlin treaty. "We shall not die alone," they say, "for we shall follow us into the graves the myriads of people in Europe which robbed us of our liberty."

Expected to Be Arrest Soon.

Toronto, June 2.—Provincial Detective Greer returned to Collingwood yesterday to continue the investigation of the Whalen murder. The coroner's jury will hold another session to-morrow. The Deputy Attorney-General asserted yesterday that an arrest was expected in a day or two.

'Tis a Blessing in Disguise.

London, June 2.—Among the latest to express full approval of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's Zollverein plan is Premier Seddon of New Zealand, who declares that Germany's attitude toward Canada is a blessing in disguise.

Killed by a Fall.

Ottawa, June 2.—Thomas Dorsey of Manotick, aged 70 years, met a tragic death yesterday. He was driving into Manotick Village, and was thrown from his buggy. Death was almost instantaneous.

Winter Wheat in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., June 2.—The question of the successful growing of winter wheat in Manitoba has been solved by Wilmot Martin, owner of Hope farm, Saint Jean Baptiste. It is a short distance from Morden. Mr. Martin sowed a field of Kansas red winter wheat, which was sown in August last year. The yield is very large. It is just beginning to head, and will be ripe in about three weeks or another six weeks. The plant is strong and gives every evidence of an abundant crop.

Alexander Fraser Dead.

Ottawa, June 2.—Sir Alexander Fraser, one of the pioneer lumbermen of the Ottawa Valley, died yesterday at the age of 74 years. Mr. Fraser was a son of David Fraser, of Perthshire, Scotland, and was connected with many large lumbering firms. In late Mr. Fraser was a Highland Scotchman; his parents having come to Canada in the nineteenth century. His sons, John D. and W. H. B., are known as the Fraser Lumber Company of Ottawa.

Whole Family Held Up.

St. Thomas, June 2.—With big revolvers in their hands, three men two masked burglars held up the Sutton family in their residence yesterday Sunday morning. In approved western style the desperadoes robbed the family of all the valuables they could find, and fled. Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Wallace, Miss Wallace, girls, and the hired man, Fred Osborne. The robbers forced the family into a chair with them for an hour and then departed.

Slater Shoe Advertising 119

Shoes of Beauty

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 6.

A shoe which looms large in the public eye must combine in it positive elements of price value, of durability, comfort and beauty.

The "Slater Shoe" because it makes strenuous claims on public attention must not only feel easy when worn, it must not only wear well, but it must look well,—all advertised claims are unconsciously and critically weighed by the first impression conveyed to the mind through the eye in its initial inspection of the shoe.

So the "Slater Shoe" with its high prestige obtained by years of advertising must not only fulfill the wearer's expectations of fit, shape retention and wear, but its beauty must meet with the instantaneous approval of the wearer's eye in its most critical moment, viz: the first glance, and the succeeding closer scrutiny.

And the makers of the "Slater Shoe" realizing this fact have made "Slater Shoes" not only foot houses of ease internally, but foot palaces of beauty externally.

The Slater Shoe

Made in Canada 40 years. Goodyear Welted.
For men and women, $3.50 and $5.00 per pair.

HOW MANUFACTURERS AND FARMERS SUFFER.

The Fielding tariff deprives manufacturers and farmers alike from securing the markets of Canada for their produce. The United States is given a splendid field to rid itself of its surplus output. There is no good reason why our factories should not have turned out the following goods imported into this country last year:

Boots and shoes	$701,283
Barb wire	256,646
Farm wagons	95,512
Buggies	71,192
Portland cement	861,751
Wheel barrows, trucks and hand carts	44,894
Box and flat cars	443,931
Harness and saddlery	82,137
Furniture	489,306
Gloves	653,234
Scales	102,506

That shows where the manufacturer is hard hit. But let us look at the farmer's end of it? Here is what American farmers sold Canadians in 1902:

Wheat	$7,217,157
Rye	230,484
Peas	26,748
Oats	181,816
Barley	286,544
Wheat flour	21,333
Beans	54,917
Tomatoes, fresh	90,307
Apples
Blackberries, gooseberries raspberries and strawberries	94,195
Potatoes	88,017
Onions	570,653

The remedy is to be found in a policy of "adequate protection," which will guarantee the right of farmer and manufacturer to their natural markets. Both have a common interest in bringing to an end these disastrous conditions. They can do so by turning out the present Government, who care for nothing but power, and who refuse to meet the issue fairly and squarely, and that is one country with the footstool is more blessed by nature than fair Canada?

TIMELY TOPICS.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has declared against the sympathetic strike. The railroad brotherhoods have generally been conservative, and that is one strong why they are held in such respect.

We are in receipt of a letter from "Vox Populi," protesting against any possible action by private parties in this city looking to the making of the Vicergal reception anything but a public function. Our correspondent uses some strong language, in which the following sentence appears: "I write to protest against the possible attempt of anybody to get up some little private function by which they will hope to bask, for half an hour, in the sunshine of Vicegerality. As a loyal man, and a veteran who has borne arms in the service of Canada and the Empire, I demand that there be no distinctions when it comes to receiving the Governor-General, in whose person is represented His Majesty King Edward the Seventh."

Our correspondent will see by the programme, which is published in our report of the Council proceedings, that the difficulty regarding the matter in hand has mapped out a programme which, we think, should please everybody. And we don't think the programme, as promulgated, should be changed to please anybody.

The city is asked to expend rather a large sum of money for the purchase of a site for the new drill shed, but as to the advisability of its doing so we don't think there should be two opinions. A $75,000 drill shed is what we need in this business, and if the Government is determined to make the city purchase the site for that sum, to settle it. Certainly Belleville cannot do without a drill shed, the erection of which will mean employment for large numbers of our people. Then again the building will be an ornament to the city as well as the regimental home of the flower of our young men. The drill shed site by-law should be carried by a large majority.

And the same may surely be said of the gas works by-law. No one can look with equanimity upon the prospect of a light monopoly, and that is what will surely come if the by-law in question is defeated. But, of course, such a contingency is out of the question. With the by-law in question carried the fire gas system can and will be extended, which will mean economy and an increase in comfort to large numbers of our citizens.

Ald. Sinclair made a very pertinent point when he said that if the city waited for a public bath till there were no more sidewalks to repair that much to be desired institution would never be built. The amount, $350, is small; if we take the experiences of other places as a criterion, the benefits will be large. Some of our scribblers' wit and labored jokes are poor things with which to combat a proposition which stands for cleanliness, hygiene and public safety.

• • •

Hon. Mr. Stratton did not lay the corner-stone of that Centreville Sunday School yesterday afternoon, as he was advertised to do. The Centrevillians did not, it seems, relish the idea of having such a notorious character as him mixed up with their ceremony, so they easily hunted up another and a better man.

Cap. Sullivan is in Toronto, and his evidence, when given, is expected to sap the climax. Now, perhaps, we may have The Globe's question answered, "Where did the money come from?"

Hardly a day passes but some tale of death and disaster comes from the United States. Now it is Georgia, which, with its 200 killed by cyclone and 1000 homeless, appeals to our sympathies. The U.S. is a great country, but it has its drawbacks, like the rest of the world. Come to think of it, what country on the

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

There was a good turnout at lacrosse enthusiasts last night and, besides getting in an excellent practise, the lacrosseists were made for the game at Hastings to-morrow. The following players were selected: Kirby, W. Hitchon, Pat Hitchon, Cook, Jas. Jeneral, Hamilton's name is on the and the glasses were in our course returned in their original condition.

"D. F. Coon, whose son was last night united in Miss Hattie Combs, is one of the best natured men in Fort Scott," remarks the Fort Scott (Kan.) Daily Tribune. "After the ceremony he blazed the bride and gave her $1,000, at the same time remarking that it was worth another hundred. The bride then walked up and kissed him, and he pulled out $100 more and gave it to her. The bridegroom thought the year a good financial swap, and he tried the same game on his father, but only got $40. However, the old gentleman went broke on this little series of specializations.

A monument was recently unveiled at Dundee, Scotland, in memory of James Bowman Lindsay, who, Sir William Preece says, demonstrated in 1854 that houses and towns would soon be lighted and heated by electricity, and that machinery would be driven by electricity instead of by steam. About 50 years ago Lindsay went to London and illustrated by experiments a system of wireless telegraphy, but there was then no practical call for such a system, and it was forgotten. "An invention, to be of use," Sir William Preece remarks, "must come at the proper time"—a fact in which disappointed inventors may possibly find some comfort.

A Minnesota paper tells of a giant bull cuddle rooster, owned by a Mr. Plumason of Luverne, Minnesota, which has been trained to trot in harness, pulling a tiny cart, in which rides the baby son of its owner. Golden Duke is the name of this strangest of fowls, and it is a prize-winner in its class, as well as a freak. The big bird was broken to harness by the boys of the Plumason household, and now seems to enjoy its work. It wears a little harness and is guided by reins, which it carries in its bill. It is the master of several guits, and at the word of command, given by the small child who is driving, it will walk, run, trot, or come to a standstill. At home in the country the big rooster often puts the cart and its occupants at rest a mile or more without stopping.

Following closely on the recent announcement of the young women of the Delta Gamma Club of Northwestern University, Chicago, that they were open to proposals of marriage, comes the formation of a club of celibates among the young men of that institution. The Knight of the Maiden Heart is the name of the new organization, and, as the name indicates, the club proposes to give the "marble heart" to the young co-eds with matrimonial inclinations, and to cultivate the joys of jolly bachelorhood. The new society of knights is composed of members of the senior class, and their organization was completed last week. The colors, scarlet and black, were pinned on the thirteen charter members, and they will be worn until the arrival of the society's pins, which will consist of small hearts of marble set in gold.

A Bargain in Gloves.

Something more than a warm heart and an open hand is needed in dispensing charity. A Boston woman who wanted to be generous found this to be true in at least one case, related in the Boston Transcript.

She had been giving to a poor family, consisting of a mother and three grown daughters, a regular allowance of six dollars a week until the daughters should find employment.

The eldest daughter called at the house every Saturday to receive this allowance. One week she appeared on Thursday, and wanted to know if it would be "quite convenient" for her mother to advance the money on the Saturday instead of waiting until Saturday.

"We are out of fuel and flour, and the grocer will call this evening for his weekly rent, and we haven't a penny to settle his bill," she said.

"How does it happen that you are in the condition this week, when the six dollars I have been giving you has sufficed to pay your weekly expenses in the past?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the young woman, frankly and calmly. "Mamma was down town yesterday, and she came across such a genuine bargain in kid gloves that she felt that it would be almost wicked not to take advantage of it, so she got each of us girls and herself a pair. They're regular two-dollar gloves marked down to seventy-nine cents a pair, and mamma didn't know when she'd ever have another chance to save four dollars and eighty-four cents on four pairs of gloves, so she got them, and who could blame her?"

Death of Genius.

The present seems to be an age of accomplished mediocrity. In every field there is a glut of "able men"—that is to say, men who by brains and know their business, who are industrious and energetic, and are either clever, or have the trick of appearing so. But the kind of intellectual distinction which we call genius was never so rare a

A Triumph in Medicine.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets

A Non-Alcoholic Remedy and a Positive Cure for All Forms of Kidney Disease.

The use of liquid kidney medicines containing alcohol is suicidal, and must quickly come to an end. A deadly poison like alcohol aggravates and sustains troubles like Bright's disease and Diabetes.

Kidney-Wort Tablets are a triumph of medical science—a boon to victims of a disease that puts off tens of thousands every year. Kidney-Wort Tablets are, to-day, curing well-developed and established cases of kidney, urinary and bladder troubles; no other remedy has ever given such marvellous and assuring results.

Kidney-Wort Tablets are now prescribed and recommended by eminent medical men in Canada and the United States. Do not fail to give them a trial if you experience the slightest symptoms of deranged or weak kidneys. If you are making use of liquid medicines, throw them aside at once, the alcohol in them will hasten your destruction and death. Ask your Druggist for the genuine cure, Kidney-Wort Tablets.

Successful Students.

The following from the city and district passed successful examinations at the recent closing exercises of the Royal Dental College, Toronto: Messrs. David D. Wilson, James M. Wilson, William J. Garland and Morley A. Day. The two Wilsons are sons of the Rev. W. F. Wilson of Canfield. Mr. Garland is a son-in-law of Rev. Mr. Tomblin, of this city. We congratulate the boys.

Curious Bits of News.

A French savant who lately returned from Egypt, bringing a royal mummy with him, had a somewhat curious experience at Marseilles. On the case being opened at the custom house there the officer on duty, hearing that it contained a Pharaoh, looked up Pharaoh in the tariff. But no mention could be found of such an article. Then it occurred to him that a nice high duty was exacted on dried fish, and the savant was obliged to pay as if for that commodity.

A small free delivery, according to the report of the United States Postmaster-General, is being rapidly extended in that country. The number of routes in operation increased from 1,078 at the beginning of the last fiscal year to 4,301 at its close; and under the present law the number of routes by the end of next July will be 6,400. By that date the rural population receiving daily service will reach 3,700,000, and the delivery system will then cover more than a quarter of the eligible portion of the country.

A remarkable story is going the rounds of the English papers with regard to General Sir Ian Hamilton's spectacles. It appears that General Hamilton lost a pair of spectacles in the battle of Majuba Hill. They were apparently picked up by a Boer whom they suited, and who kept them for twenty years. In the early part of the present year the spectacles were found on the body of a dead Boer. The case with General Hamilton's name on it and the glasses were in our course returned in their original condition.

Executor's Notice to Creditors.

In the Matter of the Estate of the late John Finnegan, deceased.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to R.S.O. 1897, chapter 128, that all creditors and others having claims against the estate of the said late John Finnegan, who died on the 7th day of May, 1903, at the city of Belleville, are required on or before the second day of July, 1903, to send by post prepaid or deliver to the undersigned, William N. Ponton, solicitor for William E. Finnegan, executor of the last will and testament of the said deceased, their names and addresses, with a full statement and particulars of their claims and accounts, and the nature of security, if any, held by them.

And further take notice that after the said last mentioned date, the said executor will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which he shall then have received notice, and the said executor will not be liable for the assets of the said estate or any part thereof to any person or persons of whose claim or claims notice shall not have been received at the time of such distribution.

Dated at Belleville this 1st day of June, 1903.

The Flying Fishers, who are engaged with Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows this season, were the reigning sensation of London last summer. These great artists perform feats in mid-air that many clever acrobats hesitate to attempt on the ground. Don't fail to see them act like this in the world.

A Glimpse Into the Future.

Homer G. Wells, in a brutally frank article in the "Fortnightly Review," gives us a striking glimpse into the future through what most people will consider a very blighty colored lens. His description of the New Republic is, of course, an arraignment of the present order of society.

"The men of the New Republic," says Mr. Wells, "will not be squeamish either in facing or inflicting death, because they will have a fuller sense of the possibilities of life than we possess. They will have in mind that will make killing worth the while; like Abraham, they will have the fear of God, and they will have no superstitions about death. They will naturally regard the modest suicide of incurably melancholy or diseased or helpless persons as a high and extravagantly act of duty rather than a crime. And since they will regard, as indeed all men raised above a brutish level do regard, a very long term of imprisonment as infinitely worse than death, as being indeed death with a living misery added to its natural terror, they will, I conceive, when the whole honor of a man's actions, and not simply some incidental or impulsive action, seems to prove him unfitted for free life in the world, consider him carefully and condemn him and remove him from being. All such killing will be done with an opiate, for death is the last thing to be made painful or dreadful and not used as a deterrent from crime. If deterrent punishments are used at all in the code of the future, the deterrent will neither be death, nor mutilation of the body, nor mutilation of the life by imprisonment, nor any horrible thing like that, but good scientifically caused pain, that will leave nothing but a memory. Yet even the memory of overwhelming pain is a sort of mutilation of the soul. The idea that only those who are fit to live freely in an orderly world state should be permitted to live is entirely against the use of deterrent punishments at all. Against deterrent conduct in children or women, perhaps, or for very cowardly or brutal assaults of any sort, the men of the future may consider pain a salutary remedy, at least during the ages of transition while the brute is still at large. But since most acts of this sort do, under conditions that neither occur nor can operate, point to an essential vileness in the perpetrator, I am inclined to think that even in these cases the men of the coming time will be far less disposed to torture than to kill. They will have another aspect to consider. The conscious infliction of pain for the sake of the pain is against the better nature of man, and it is unsocial and demoralising for anyone to undertake this duty. To kill under the seemly conditions science will afford is a far less offensive thing. The rulers of the future will grudge the making good people into jailers, warders, punishment dealers, nurses and attendants on the bad. People who cannot live happily and freely in the world without spoiling the lives of others are better out of it. That is a current sentiment to-day, but the men of the New Republic will have the courage of their opinions."

Politeness, it is true, must have its guide in a kind heart and a desire to please; but tact and thoughtfulness and quick wit are also essential to good manners.

An every stout hostess who was entertaining a large company one evening turned to a group of young men standing near her chair and asked politely: "May I trouble one of you young gentlemen for a glass of water from the pitcher on the table?"

Several of the young men hurried to comply with the request. One, who was particularly active, succeeded in reaching the table first.

As he handed the glass of water to the hostess she complimented him on his quickness.

"Oh, that's nothing," he said, "I am used to it. I got into many a circus by carrying water for the elephant."

It was only when he saw the expression on the lady's face, and noticed the fence, that the young man realized that he had said.

DO YOU KNOW THOMAS HUNTLEY?

PEOPLE WHO KNEW HIM A YEAR AGO, AND SEE HIM NOW, HARDLY RECOGNIZE HIM—HE LOOKS SO WELL AND STRONG.

This is what he says:—

Belleville, Ont., May 7th, 1903.
The O. R. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope, when a friend induced me to try one O. R. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and feel as well and permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS HUNTLEY.

What to Eat at Breakfast and How to Eat It.

Malt Breakfast Food the original and only Malt Meal cereal. Is the result of years of successful scientific experiment. Is an honest health food that satisfies the taste and meets the needs of young and old. Malt Meal is the great morning invigorating dish.

Malt Breakfast Food requires no boiling before eating. It is a mistake to imagine that a food that needs boiling with the country is deluged, can impart health or strength. Malt Breakfast Food brought to the table steaming and hot, gives to young and oldest its fullest measure of its delicousness and health virtues. Any cereal food worthy of a place in the home, should be cooked and eaten while hot. Here is the difference; Cold food produces colic and stomach troubles; Malt Breakfast Food eaten hot, imparts life and vim. All Grocers.

For the Next Royal Baby.

It is said that never before has there been such a lively stirring of affairs going on at one time as at present in Holland. Every woman is manufacturing baby clothes, the absorbing interest in the prospective baby who will be the pride of the Dutch throne, and tremendous rivalry among the good wives in the various towns is manifesting itself in the contributions which they are making to the royal layette. Little dresses, gowns, caps, skirts, sacks, coverlets, blankets and underclothing of every description are being made in elaborate form, covered with beautiful lace and embroidery, and wrought with wonderful needlework skill. The wives of Amsterdam are in the contest with mere needlework. They are to present a handsome silver cup of their own to the great ear-tappets of the national headdress, but the line is to be sprinkled with costly pearls and diamonds. The women of the Dutch nobility will give a cradle to the royal baby. It is to be a very gorgeous affair of silver, decorated with the arms of Holland and Mecklenburg Schwerin, while at the head of the cradle is a full-sized angel of silver, and at the foot a silver baby of early lifelike proportions. From the women of The Hague will come the christening robe of white silk, with its jeweled embroidery and lacedrawn, and its buttons of diamonds, and the wives of the cabinet ministers are making the satin cushion upon which the baby will be laid as soon as born, so that, according to old custom, it may be shown to the cabinet ministers, and they may certify that it is a genuine prince or princess.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Curious Bits of News.

Dr. G. L. Johnson, whose studies of the organs of mammalian have recently been published, calls attention to the fact that men and monkeys alone possess parallel and convergent vision of the two eyes. On the other hand, the lower mammals possess divergent and consequently very widely extended vision. Squirrels, for instance, and probably hares and rabbits as well, are able to see an enemy approaching directly from behind without turning the head.

It is not surprising that more people live to be over 100 years old in warm climates than in the higher latitudes. The German Empire, with 56,000,000 inhabitants, has 778 centenarians; France, with 40,000,000, has 213. England has only 186, and Scotland 46. Switzerland, 10; Norway 22, Belgium 6, Denmark 3, Spain 401, and Switzerland, none. Russia, with a population of 2,250,000, has 876 people over 100 years old. It is claimed that the oldest living person, one Bruno Cotrim, living in Rio de Janeiro, is 159 years old.

River since the Forth bridge was opened—eleven years ago—painting has gone on continuously, according to the "Mechanical Engineer." "Beginning at the south end, the workmen take three years to cover the entire length of the bridge, and, as three years represents approximately the life of the paint, no sooner are they finished than the men have to begin again. In this way every square inch of steel comes under observation at least once in three years. The staff of men employed varies in number from the maximum of 45."

In comparison with the English tongue, foreign tongues seem parsimonious in some ways of expression and wasteful in others. For instance, it is impossible to "kick" a man in French. You must give him a "blow with the foot." The Portuguese do not "wink" at one; they "shut and open the eyes." In the languages of the Canadian Indians there is no word with which to convey the idea of "stealing," and yet because the idea of property is so vague. It is related of one of the early missionaries that, in attempting to translate the Bible into Algonkin, he could find no word to express "love," and was compelled to invent it.

The first thing that strikes a landsman on a man-of-war is the rigid discipline observed everywhere. On some of the ships belonging to the tropical countries, however, discipline is very lax. The "Defense," a Haytian man-of-war, was lying in the harbor of Port au Prince. One day a mess cook, for some reason, cleaned about a peck of knives and forks on the gun-deck, and, being suddenly called away, and not wishing to spend time to go to the galley, he seized the mess-pot full of knives and forks and stuck it in the muzzle of the ten-inch gun, putting the tampion in after it. About an hour afterward the admiral came aboard, and as the gun was loaded with blank cartridge, they used it to fire a salute. It happened that the gun was aimed between the town, and almost pointblank at the Grand Hotel. The guests assembled on the porch to witness the ceremonies, when they were saluted with a rain of knives and forks, which stuck against the wooden walls like quills on a porcupine. Fortunately no one was hurt, although there were many narrow escapes.

A Famous Necklace.

The famous pearl necklace of the Countess Castiglione, which has just been sold by auction in a French jewelry dealer for eighty-four thousand three hundred dollars, is one of the beautiful things of its kind in existence. The piece consists of two hundred and seventy-five pearls, which are threaded on five strings. Each string was put up separately and knocked down to different bids. Grandeur of Paris successfully sold each of them, thus giving him possession of the beautiful necklace in its entirety. The countess was an eccentric character. To punish France for having become a republic she had herself put in her house and never let the light of day shine on her, constantly lighted her rooms with candles and gas. At the same time she abolished mirrors from her apartments, and thus spared herself the pain of looking at her face as it aged.

A Miracle Explained.

The vagaries of memory are some of the most interesting things connected with the human mind and body. Why it is that we forget certain things and remember others? Myriads of these irregularities are as yet unaccounted for; perhaps not even the cleverest metaphysician will ever account for them.

Professor James reminds us how something which we have tried in vain to recall will afterward, when we have given up the attempt, "saunter into the mind," as Emerson says, as innocently as if it had never been summoned.

Still more curious, perhaps, is the revive after years of oblivion, often as the result of some cerebral disease or accident.

Such a case is the one quoted by Coleridge of a young woman in Germany who could neither read nor write, but who was said to be possessed of a devil because, in a fever, she was heard raving in Latin, Greek, and an obscure rabbinical dia lect of Hebrew. Whole pages of her talk were written down, and were found to consist of sentences intelligible in themselves, but not having the slightest connection with one another. To say that she was possessed of a devil was the easiest way of accounting for the matter.

At last the mystery was cleared up by a physician, who traced back the girl's history until he learned that at the age of nine she was taken to live at the house of an old pastor, a great Hebrew scholar, and that she remained there until the pastor's death. It had been for years the old man's custom to walk up and down a passage near the kitchen, and read his sermons in a loud voice.

His books were examined, and among them many of the passages taken down at the young woman's bedside were identified. The theory of demoniacal possession was abandoned.

Mrs. Wargles—I met the doctor today, and told him about your malaria. He said you were to take some whiskey every time you had the chills. Waggles —All right, my dear. I'll shake for the drinks.—"Judge."

TIMELY TOPICS

The report of the Educational Council in the Art School examinations, held April 22-25, was given out on Saturday. Albert College had 21 successful candidates in the Primary course, 15 in the advanced course, and 7, including 1 honors, in the special subjects. Some people are wondering why Belleville High School does not appear in the list.

ONTARIOS ORATORS.
(Toronto Telegram.)

Empire Day is becoming a positive affliction to the children of Ontario since stern usage has begun to line them up and talk them to sleep with the remarks of speakers whose intellects are stimulated by no other preparation than the purely physical exertion of rising to their feet.

It is notable that the Toronto Globe is not asking "Where did the money come from?" since Col. Matheson showed that there was good reason for thinking it came from that Sullivan-Shannon timber deal.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For a long time I was troubled with a severe attack of Nervous Debility. I tried almost every remedy I saw or heard of, but got no relief. I was induced to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Pennyroyal and Tansy, and before I had taken one box I felt much benefited. I continued taking them for a short time and was entirely cured. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pain Panacea with excellent results. I have found it a good liniment for rheumatism, stiffness of the joints and muscular pains. I have also used it as a gargle for sore throat, and find it very beneficial. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pills for Indigestion and Biliousness, and have found them to be the best medicine I know." The above testimonial speaks for itself. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are sold by all druggists and dealers at 25 cents per box. Manufactured only by The Hamilton Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Low's Sulphur Roleston Oil has nothing in common with the impure, greasy preparations of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and highly medicinated, possessing the soothness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and all pain. It is, therefore, an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

The average waiter represents but a figure of speech.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Lenore," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

in the meadow-sog could hear the plaintive songs of a host of the nightingales in a neighboring villa. Then, suddenly, she heard nothing, her heart out in the lone wood, the haunting words of the bold song came back to her with the plaintive notes of the nightingales:

"Oh, cruel-like birds! They sing for hate,
They sing for hate, they sing for love;
They'll sing through death who sing through night,
They'll sing and sting me in the night—
The nightingales, the nightingales!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

"To Err is Human."

"He had come back to Lillian Ruthven; he might have married her but for me!

Those were the words that burned themselves into Daisy's heart.

Brushing all the traces of tears from her face by lightly touching the waters of the brook, Daisy mechanically turned to the villa.

On the porch she met Hetty.

"Why, where have you been, Daisy?" she cried. "Your dress is bedraggled with dew, and it lies heavy on your golden hair; your hands are cold and chill."

Daisy drew her hands away from her sister's clasp like a petulant child.

"I have been merely wandering through the grounds," she said; "is there anything so strange about that?"

"Why, yes, at this time of the night," said Hetty, gravely.

"Habit is strong, Hetty," she answered. "Don't you remember how I used to wander in the fields at all hours, when my fancy willed, watching the lily- bells close their eyes and the stars come out in the sky? No one thought it strange then and I cannot see why you do."

"A farm is a different place from the suburbs of this great metropolis, besides, you were only a child then, and we thought when you grew older you would grow out of all those childish habits."

Daisy threw herself with a burst of tears into her sister's arms.

"I wish I could have remained a child forever, Hetty," she sobbed. "Oh, I was so happy, then — so happy, dear!"

"Then you are not happy now?" questioned Hetty, earnestly. "Oh, Daisy, I fancied that you had everything in the world to make you contented."

"I was only jesting," declared Daisy sobbing and laughing in the same breath. "You ought to know that Hetty!"

"Do you ever dream at night, Hetty?" she asked suddenly, "dreams that leave traces of tears on your heart?"

"Yes, often," replied Hetty; "and they are said to be caused by an unsettled state of the mind."

Daisy crept nearer to her, and laid her hot cheek against hers in the darkness. "I see she is wrong now," once she was a little child.

"I always dream the same bad dream, Hetty," she whispered. "That I am parted from Alack, but not in death; if it were that it would not seem so terrible to me. I dream that in my arms to him and he turns away—turns away in the bitterest scorn and anger, and I wake weeping as though my heart would break. I am afraid you love him too well dear," said Hetty, gravely. "You have always loved him, and now you are the soonest shattered."

"Do you know, I should do Hetty, if Alack ——" ever left me," she said, with a sudden fierceness in her utter.

"Daisy, you so horrible and so far from actually occurring that her words took Hetty's breath away; for a fear she could entertain for her for the ridiculous notion, Daisy continued in a low voice:

"If he should ever leave me, Hetty I would steal gently away to rest in the grave—you know the spot well its white cloth, standing in the sunshine, just within the shadow of the old grey church—and I would be at rest."

"I would part the long grass, and lay my tear-worn head on the cold earth and sleep; I have found the world too hard and cruel to me, dear, for I have been here in your grave with my head pillowed on your palse- ful breast, for day and when the stars came out and were burning golden in the night sky, then you would find me, with the dew lying like icy on my face—dead."

"Heaven forbid!" cried Hetty fervently. "You are morbid, Daisy, and express —mind pictures — that you terrify me. Why, you are becoming unconscious, I think, to what is near us, on the subject of Alack's leaving you. Do you know of any reason why it would be liable to happen?" she asked, sharply.

She saw the question strike her as lightning flashes a darkened room, and in an instant she seemed to wither, as terrible a blow indeed must be, for her lovely face grew ghastly in utter terror, and her slender figure grew grew almost black with inward emotion.

Her manner was so strange Hetty began to feel anxious. Daisy was looking at her with such a wild look, but she did not answer her question.

"Is it older enough? Is it wise, isn't it, Hetty?" she said, in an unsteady voice, trying to change the conversation. "The air is sweet with roses, but it seems to me chill," and again a shudder passed over the slender frame. "I wish," she added, with a sudden, piteous quiver in her voice, "that I could live my life over again, and know as much as I do now. Oh! Hetty, Hetty, how I wish it from the bottom of my heart!"

"I do not suppose there are many people but what have had that same thought," laughed Hetty, amusedly.

"All people make grave mistakes one time or another in their lives, do you not Hetty?" she asked, slowly.

"Very many do," replied Hetty; "but surely you are not among the number, Daisy, you can have made no mistake in your life."

"Hetty," she cried, drawing her sister's face down to hers and laying her dimpled pink- and- white cheek upon it, "do you think if any one loved another very much, and found out that the one we loved had done great wrong, do you think it would be easy to find pardon —to forgive and love still?"

"It would depend altogether on the nature of the wrong committed," answered Hetty. "I should imagine one who loved and trusted could overlook ordinary faults and weaknesses, dear, but ——"

"To err is human," said Daisy, "but there are some things that should never be pardoned."

"Daisy, for they?" asked Daisy, breathlessly.

"Trickery, deceit, and falsity in love," she replied, "the latter especially. There are many people who would, I think, almost forgive murder sooner than anything of that nature."

Daisy was looking at her with widening, frightened eyes.

"Would sooner forgive murder than falsity in love, Hetty," she echoed.

The words had a strange sound as she uttered them, and made a lasting impression on Hetty.

"I am sure it is chilly," she exclaimed, after a pause, "I am going in, Hetty."

Long after Daisy left her Hetty paced the grounds in silence. What could be the matter with her? There was some dark and awful secret, she felt sure, but what could it be?

How strangely Daisy had dwelt on the words "falsity in love." Was Alack —whom the world looked upon as a model young husband, who seemed to fairly adore his lovely girl-wife —false to her?

What had darkened Daisy's life so pitifully?

That Lillian Ruthven was connected with it in some way she felt certain.

At length Hetty came to a strange conclusion.

"I will see Miss Ruthven, and accuse her of trying to come between Daisy and Alack," she decided. "Poor little Daisy! happiness shall not be wrecked if I can prevent it."

Meanwhile matters were nearing the fatal end for the hapless girl who had made such a bitter price for love's sake.

Lillian St. John had entirely recovered from the accident which had befallen him, and was speeding toward New York city as fast as steam could take him.

"Heaven is a million in her own right," he muttered, for the fiftieth time on that journey, as he leaned back in his cushioned chair watching the night flit past the train whirled along. "I shall take a terrible venture, however, for daring to marry Hamilton. I will show her that Lillian St. John's name is not to be trifled with. She shall become my wife, even though she should leave me again. If she were kneeling here with the look of death on her face, and the cold chill of death in her heart and I could save her by only one word I would speak that word until I had had my revenge."

There was little hope for beautiful, hapless Daisy with a relentless foe combining against her.

It was nearly sun-down when the train bearing Harold St. John reached New York city.

"Too late for me to do anything tonight," he decided, as he drove to his hotel, "tomorrow I will begin my search and see the sun gets I have had claimed her, my fair, false, beautiful, young wife. She may tremble for the future which lies before her, for she will have need it."

CHAPTER XXXII.

A Significant Telegram.

It so happened that on the day following Daisy's interview with Hetty in the meadow, Alack received a telegram from Boston stating that his presence was required there in very important speculation, and accordingly made preparations to go at once.

All in vain Daisy pleaded to accompany him. For once Alack was firm in refusing her.

"It is to be purely a business trip," he declared, "and a man cannot attend to a wife when he has business on hand, my darling, much as I love you, darling," he added.

"Are you not in the bloom of your career with both your father, dear, and Hetty about you? With fully a dozen more devoted friends to fall back on should you grant company? Why, you couldn't be lonesome, my dear," he added laughing.

"I am always lonely when you are not near, Alack," she said, twining her arms about him, and hiding her face on his breast. "You are my world, Alack. Ah, Year, if you would but take me with you," she sighed. "I have a strange presentiment that something will happen before I see you again."

"Foolish, superstitious Daisy," he laughed. "I gave you credit for more logic than my heart."

"You will always remember how I begged to go with you, Alack," she said solemnly; "how I prayed and pleaded with you, telling you that I had a presentiment."

Alack stopped the lovely mouth with kisses lest she should persuade him against his better judgment to take her.

The thing was almost among the impossibilities, for he was going with a party of gentlemen, and upon important business. No— no, it meant to be thought of.

But the lovely, tearful face haunted him for hours after he had reached Boston.

He thought it over because he had never been parted from her a whole day since their carriage ride.

While reading the mail after dinner cigar, he took out of his pocket a copy of a New York paper, and almost the first item his eye rested upon was the announcement of the arrival at one of the New York hotels of Harold St. John.

He could not understand then, but he knew soon afterward when the shivering sensation meant that passed like an icy breath to his heart.

Two gentlemen, seated in the smoking- room, were evidently discussing some topic.

"St. John is a man of splendid talents," observed one; "but they are fearfully misused. Such men, I always claim, are better dead than without. Despite his career, he seems to take well with women. He is as handsome as a prince, and as wicked as the Prince of Darkness."

Both gentlemen laughed immoderately.

"Did you see him talking to that little beauty in the parlor last night, Ned?" asked the quiet, little scene. I was riding by in too big a hurry to look in, but I am told that he would have done so to have found out what the disturbance was about. The lady he was speaking to threw up her head haughtily, and the pretty face drooped in a dead faint. "She was such a beautiful little creature," continued the gentleman, "a perfect fairy, in fact, and I'm sorry for a poet I might attempt to describe her. She was like —like like, which seemed to have caught the shining gold of the sunlight, and the reverse of the bewitching pink- and- white dimpled face I ever beheld. Poor thing! how worried she is, simply like the hearts of two velvet pansies drawn in drip."

"If we like the description of my Daisy!" thought Alack, angrily. "I imagined there was not another in the whole world like her."

It would certainly have been against the mystic laws to have deliberately listened, but he was so near he could not help overhearing their remarks.

"She is married," pursued the gentleman, "or rather she was so before with her husband at a New York reception. It was certainly not to her credit to be seen in company with such a man as St. John. I knew her husband quite well— he was a very worried man, allowing his young wife to make the acquaintance of such a man as St. John. I declare the husband ought to be a ward in chancery, I do."

"Take my advice and don't meddle with affairs of that kind, Ned," said the other gentleman, "unless you want to figure in a divorce proceeding, and that isn't pleasant."

"I know," persisted his friend, "but I cannot see a lovely young wife's name given on a wrong path without feeling deep concern. I am married to a young and beautiful girl, you know, and what does she know of the world or of men, pray? Supposing she should, by chance, make the acquaintance of such a consummate villain as St. John, I should be thankful enough to any man who would drop me a line. Of course, I should be quite innocent enough, but there's no trusting a woman, you know, in practice— no honor."

"My advice is, keep out of the affair, my dear fellow," laughed his companion.

The Final Stages of Locomotor Ataxia

ARE ABSOLUTE HELPLESSNESS, LOSS OF ALL POWER AND COMPLETE PARALYSIS — PREVENTED AND CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Locomotor ataxia is a form of paralysing nervousness which is rapidly fully common these days, because of the nerve-exhausting habits of the present age.

Probably you have seen victims of this ailment, walking with a striking motion, and putting their feet down in an awkward manner, and wondered what ailed them. It was locomotor ataxia, the paralysis of the nerves and muscles which control motion.

There is a peculiar uncertainty of the feet and legs in locomotor feeling when you start to walk, when you go up or down stairs, or when you attempt to step over a move backwards instead of forward.

The final stages of locomotor ataxia are absolute helplessness, loss of all power, and complete paralysis of the nervous system.

The first step in this treatment is when the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion become apparent. When you find that you do not sleep well, start up suddenly from your slumbers, experience trying your thoughts, suffer from headache, indigestion, and irritability, it is time to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, to restore the vitality of the blood and nerves. For this purpose there is no more satisfactory treatment than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Nervous diseases never get well of themselves, however, but in accordance with nature's laws, and it certain to do you good because it forms new, rich blood and nerve cells. Fifty cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

MIXING PAINTS

If you have a house to paint a barn to paint a fence to paint
a floor to paint

If you want paint of any kind come right here to this store—we will sell you prepared paint of the very best make at the very best prices and we will do better than that we will mix you paint of the pure lead and oil—at about the same price as ready mixed paints and will guarantee each gallon to cover more surface than one and a half gallons of ready-mixed paint—then as to wearing anyone knows the oil and lead paints we propose mixing for you to any color will wear double the time the prepared paints will.

WE ARE IN THE

Paint business and the painting business, the decorating business, the paper hanging business. In the same manner as we are in the Wall Paper business, the big way.

A big assortment, never less than 100,000 rolls to select from and prices at least 25 per cent. lower than any competing house—in fact no ordinary buying house can compete with us, we can sell you papers at the cost to them and still have a living profit and we do it, our customers experience that everyday.

In addition to our extremely low prices we give to our customers a Free Bordering to match all papers, 2 yds of bordering free with each double roll of Wall Paper.

REMEMBER

We do painting, any kind outside or inside—in country or as business—have a large and excellent staff of workmen, the kind that do not require watching.

Keep your Stomach Healthy.

When you get up in the morning with a bad taste in your mouth that the tooth brush will not remove, a coating on your tongue, and a general "out of sorts" feeling, don't blame it on what you had to eat the night before. A healthy stomach would be able to look after that. It's poor digestion that makes you feel so badly. A teaspoonful of Abbey's Effervescent Salt in half a tumbler of water at rising will make you feel better —will cure you if you follow directions. Abbey's revilities every organ of the body—it clears away fermenting matter and refreshes and cleanses the stomach. It prevents the suffering that often follows a pleasant evening.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

is a pleasant, palatable and effective medicine for all stomach ills.

Anecdotal.

Once, during a dry season in China, the late Li Hung Chang called on Minister Conger, and spoke of the weather. "Yes," said Mr. Conger, "it seems to be dry everywhere. It is dry in America, too. I read in one of our papers the other day that in many places in the West the people were praying for rain." "What!" said the earl, "do your people pray to their God for rain?" "Oh, yes," said the minister, "they often pray for rain." "And does their God send it when they pray for it?" asked the earl. "Yes, sometimes their prayers are answered, and sometimes they are not." "All the same like Chinese joss, hey?" said the earl, with a grin and a chuckle.

General Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, tells a story of a prayer-meeting held in New York on the Sunday during the recent mayoralty campaign. In the midst of a prayer, he relates, one pious brother said: "Oh, Lord, we pray Thee that the Democratic party may hang together in the coming election." "Amen," answer prayer, Lord," put in a Republican who was near. "But I do not mean it as the Republican brother means it, Lord. I pray that we may hang together in concord and accord," continued the Democrat. "Amen, Lord," again said the Republican; "any cord, so long as they hang."

Lord Kelvin once paid a visit with a friend to some well-known electrical works. They were escorted over the workshops by the senior foreman, a man of much intelligence and an enthusiastic electrician. Entirely unaware of his visitor's identity, he minutely explained the details of the plant and machinery, and lectured him in his role of layman quite professionally. Lord Kelvin's friend was on the point of interrupting several times, but an amused signal from the great master of electricity kept him silent. When the tour of inspection was complete, Lord Kelvin quietly turned to the foreman and asked: "What, then, is electricity?" This was a poser for the man, who, somewhat shamefaced, confessed that he could not say. "Well, well," said Lord Kelvin gently, "that is the only thing about electricity which you and I don't know."

A certain congressman who had instructed his butler to say to all undesirable callers that he was in the bath and could not be seen, was recently visited by a constituent with a grievance to exploit. He called every day at the house, but no matter at what hour he presented himself he was inevitably informed that the congressman was bathing. "I must see him," he finally said one day to the servant; "my business is most important; I'll wait until he is through with his bath." "It's no use," replied the negro waiter; "gen'leman done waited foe hours an' six udder day; he wa'n't through yit. Whereupon the disappointed constituent is said to have written this upon his card: "You may succeed, if you persevere, in getting your body clean one of these days; but if you should spend the rest of your life in a bathtub it would not purify your conscience or your political record."

A correspondent of the "Canadian Gazette" (London) relates the following story to illustrate the abnormal development of the late Li Hung Chang's bump of curiosity. "One day I was inverse enough to tell him that it was possible to tap the telegraph wires at any point along the line. This got me into a nice mess, for Li insisted on stopping the train to the heart of the Rocky Mountains, and although Le Fung Lee pointed out to him that the tapping might interrupt the transcontinental business of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, he was determined to see Mr. Joseph Baker (an expert telegrapher who accompanied us) tap the wires. The obliging Baker, to my surprise, willingly consented, and entertained His Excellency with an agile pole-climbing feat and a spectacular manipulation of the wire. Joe came down the pole with a most pleasing story of what the operators at the end of the line had said to him, but he afterwards confessed to me that he had 'only fooled the old man.' Li, however, was delighted, and talked of wire-tapping until he heard about a typewriter we had on board. Then Mr. Baker was kept busy for half a day explaining to His Excellency and the equally interested members of his suite the intricacies of the writing machine."

A Duel of the Wits.

There had been a somewhat protracted discussion in the smoking room between the Aged Cynic and the Prize Idiot, and it had now reached the stage of flickering snappiness, which indicates the beginning of the end.

"After all," said the Prize Idiot, "there is no fool like an old fool."

The Aged Cynic surveyed him calmly. "There is no ass like a young ass," he retorted.

"A la guoque is the reparter of the intellectually destitute," sighed the Prize Idiot, wearily.

"When your case is bad abuse the other side," quoted the other cheerfully.

"Wise men make proverbs, and fools repeat them," said the Prize Idiot in his most hydraulically crushing manner.

"And who was the wise man who said that?" asked the Aged Cynic in a nonchalant way, and the Prize Idiot is now making elaborate arrangements for having his seat moved further back.

An Ancient Problem.

How often do passing events recall the halcyon days of our youth! It was announced at a recent mission meeting, to which apparently a sewing circle was attached, that the women seemed shy of making clothes for the other sex, and in regard to attempts that had been made, it was stated that the boys had been able to stand up in the suits, but when they stooped, or tried to move about a bit, there had been trouble. "Times have evidently not changed in this respect, and cutting down the parental left-offs to fit little Willie is as much a problem today as it was forty years ago. We have all more or less experienced the trouble referred to, and we can sympathise with the little victims of that mission.

Mamma—Well, did you tell God how naughty you have been? Lily—No, I was ashamed. I thought it had better not get out of the family.—Harlem

If You Fail to Remove Your Burden of Disease in June, Your Life is Not Secure.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Will Do For You What It Did For Mr. J. B. Butts.

There was never a remedy so highly recommended for making sick people well by a multitude as Paine's Celery Compound. It successfully grapples with all diseases and ailments common in summer time, and never fails to remove the many troubles that have baffled the keenest diseases that have baffled the skill of physicians. When Paine's Celery Compound is used, there is no long waiting for results. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, assists digestion, gives sweet sleep, excites the bowels to healthy action, and gives all foul humors from the blood and braces the nervous system. Mr. J. B. Butts, Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont., says:—"I had a very bad attack of la grippe, which left me with a nervous and broken-down system. I also suffered from indigestion and sleeplessness added to my misery. I was troubled with horrible nightmares and dreams; indeed, my sleeping hours were to me times of terror and fear. I commenced to use patent medicines to relieve my trouble, but derived little benefit from them. I happened to get one of your books in my house and after reading about the wonderful cures effected by Paine's Celery Compound, I decided to give it a trial. In three months I found myself fully and perfectly restored to health, and had gained fifteen pounds in weight. I am satisfied Paine's Celery Compound saved my life, and without it I would not now be alive. It is, without doubt, the best remedy in the world."

Orders for needle-fitting should be left at this office. Blank books such as journals, ledgers, day Bills, Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont., says:—"I had a very bad attack of la grippe, which left me with a nervous and broken-down system. I also did when he was last heard here, but he had some striking costumes and some songs which were enjoyable and up-to-date, which, however, he might find some merit—with a microscope. Taken altogether, though, Mr. Fax made, as usual, a hit with the audience.

Chalaupka's orchestra rendered some tuneful selections, and Miss Lulu Chalaupka played the singers' accompaniments in a style hard to surpass. There was a well-pleased audience which listened to the National Anthem at 10:35 o'clock.

THE FAX-CHAMBERS CONCERT

LARGE AUDIENCE AND EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT.

There was a large audience present at the opera house last night to listen to Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Jas. Fax in their concert, which proved to be a very enjoyable affair, indeed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were in fine voice, and certainly never before appeared to such advantage in this city. Mr. Chambers—"Inkerman" was put on in a much superior way to what it was on a former occasion, while their duets were certainly very pleasing to the audience. The selection from The Burgomaster, "Cupid Knows What He's About," was sung superbly, as was also Neidlinger's duet, "Parting." In her solos, Mrs. Chambers' rich contralto voice and perfect pronunciation were very pleasing; it her vibrato were not so pronounced, the effect might be made better, but perhaps that's a matter of taste. She certainly sang tastefully and with much vivacity last night. Mr. Chambers' numbers were given with good taste and expression. In the light opera selections the combination for two baritones, unless one goes among the stars for a comparison, is fine. Their voices are of similar light, in fine control, and his enunciation, technique and method are worthy of sincere praise. His two encore numbers, "Oh, Dry Those Tears," and "Violets," were gems in their way.

Mr. Jas. Fax added to some old laughable "stick-in-the-mud," as he might say himself, it's voice needs and-papering a trifle more than it

CITY COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION

City Will Endeavor to Secure important Legislation re the Waterworks.

Program for the Viceregal Reception—Route of the Procession —Other Details.

Ald. McFee Fails to Get Forfeit Money Put Into the Sinking Fund.

Ald. Green and Pope were the only absentees at last night's Council meeting.

Communications.

From Mr. George Edwards, complaining of the goose neck near his residence on John street south, as it was a damage to his property.

From the Trenton Electric Company, stating that, owing to the illness of their manager, they were unable to submit a definite proposition re the street railway, and asking the city to defer action in reference to taking up the matter.—Referred.

From the Public Works Department at Ottawa, stating that the supplementary estimate provision for a drill shed in Belleville would be made.

From Major Maude, stating that any proper representation in reference to the visit of His Excellency and Lady Minto to Belleville would be approved by them, and also asking that a programme be furnished in case His Excellency before Friday.

A petition was presented to the Council stating that the premises on Front street, between John and Bridge, was afford was a nuisance, and asking that the same be abated. A communication in connection with the matter was read from the Medical Health Officer, stating that it was a decided nuisance.

Letters were read from Hon. G. W. Ross and Mr. M. B. Morrison, M.P.P., stating that they had received the motion from the Council in reference to the proposed Municipal Assessment Act,

Reports.

Reports were presented from the various committees, which have already been published.

A report was presented of a special meeting of the Executive Committee in reference to four by-laws being submitted to the electors for their approval. The substance of these by-laws was published in The Intelligencer yesterday.

Committee of the Whole.

The Executive Committee's report was first taken up and adopted, without any discussion.

The report of Ald. Panter in reference to the repairing of Mill street from the upper bridge to Ashley street, was considered. The cost was estimated at $450.

Ald. Panter said the road was in bad shape and should be repaired.

The report was adopted, as was also the recommendation that the holes on Front street be filled in, also that the street rails be repaired up.

Ald. Panter said if the Council desired Bridge street macadamized it would be done. The secretary estimated the cost would be $5575.0.

A motion prevailed that Bridge street be macadamized from Dundas street to Charles street.

The report was then considered from City Solicitor Mikel, to the effect that in the present condition of the Municipal Waterworks Act, municipalities when have constructed waterworks have the right to levy 3 mills on the dollar in the assessed roles of all property in the street having water services, so that persons who do not take water will be required to pay something towards the costs of the waterworks. As the city did not construct the waterworks, but purchased them, this provision does not apply to our city. He has prepared an amendment to the Act of the request of the Water Committee, enabling this city to claim the same rights as places which built their own works. The amendment comes up to-day before the Legal Committee, and Mr. Morrison, M.P.P., asked him (Mr. Mikel) to go up to Toronto in the matter.

Ald. Galbraith stated that a tax of 4 mills could be levied by corporations which had constructed water works, but it did not apply to corporations which had taken over waterworks after their construction, such as Belleville's position was. He thought the Solicitor should go to Toronto and endeavor to have the matter put on the same footing as the suit Belleville's requirements. He left the matter in the hands of the solicitor, which was seconded by Ald. Sinclair, and carried.

Viceregal Reception.

Ald. Sinclair, Secretary of the Special Committee in reference to the visit of the Governor-General and Lady Minto to the city on Friday next, reported verbally as to the programme mapped out, which was as follows:

The Viceregal party will arrive at the market square at 4:30 p.m. They will be received by the Mayor and members of the City Council. Escorted by a guard of honor, the party will proceed to Queen Victoria School, where the school children and students of the various colleges will be massed and sing the National Anthem as the party driven upon the grounds. An address of welcome will be read by His Worship to His Excellency and an opportunity will be given to editions to be introduced to the distinguished visitors. The children will then sing Rule Britannia or some other appropriate song. The drive about the city will then follow, the route being up Church street to Victoria avenue, up Victoria avenue to Charles street, south to Queen street, down Queen street to George street, down George street to Dundas street, thence to the Hospital. The return trip will be up Bleecker avenue to Bridge street, down Bridge street to Front street and to the park. Passed up Front street to the upper bridge, over the bridge to Mora street, up Moira street to Hillside street, thence down Dunbar street to Bridge street west to Commercial street, and thence to the Deaf and Dumb Institution. After the ceremony at the Institution, the party will drive to the market square and entrain.

Ald. McFee asked if the members of the School Board would be invited.

The Mayor stated that the Board would be at the school grounds, and suitable platforms would be erected. The Separate School Board, and children, the Veterans and Board of Trade would be in attendance.

The programme as outlined met with the approval of the Council.

The Public Bath.

Ald. Panter wanted to know if the Committee which had the matter of public baths under consideration should go ahead. They had made an estimate of the work, would be about $350. There appeared to be a diversity of opinion as to whether the city should build a bath house or not.

Ald. McFee was opposed to having a bath built. We had any amount of work to be done on our streets, and he did not see the necessity of having a bath house built, at least this year.

Ald. Cooper said if we had a nice beach we might erect a bath house, but he did not believe that we had the money to erect such a building.

The Mayor was in favor of the Special Committee getting all the information they could as to the plans, plans, costs, etc., and report.

Ald. Sinclair said that we would have to build and repair streets next year, and every other year. He was in favor of a public bath being erected, but thought that next year it would be a good place for it. At the request of the Council the committee would report.

Enquiries.

Ald. Marsh wished to know when the granolithic sidewalk on Church avenue would be built.

Ald. Panter—"Just as soon as the crusher is repaired and material is ready."

Ald. Solman asked if an extra case in the police court could be supplied for No. 1 hose wagon.

Ald. Meree said that was a matter for the Council to decide. There should be two horses for the wagon, not to mention an extra one in the building, as there was at present. The recommendation for three, he would like the members of the Council to visit the building and see what could be done.

Ald. McFee asked about the $500 forfeit money put in by Ryan. He sent it was only depositing 3 per cent. interest. He thought the Council was trifling with the matter. It should be placed in a fund where it would draw 5 per cent. interest.

Ald. Chown said as present it was drawing but 3 per cent. If the Council desired it could be placed in another fund.

Ald. McFee.—"It should go in the sinking fund."

Mayor Graham.—"Make a motion to that effect."

By-laws Not Ready.

When the order of introduction of By-laws was reached, Ald. Chown stated that the by-laws in connection with which were to be submitted to the electors were not in shape for receiving their necessary readings, and another meeting of the Council would have to be held to consider them.

Motions.

Moved by Ald. McFee, seconded by Ald. Meree, that the $250 deposited by Mr. Kirkwood, re tolling mills By-law, be returned to him as the city is sinking fund, and that the Mayor and the Chairman of the Executive Committee be authorized to sign the agreement that the manager of the Bank of Montreal may execute.

Upon a vote being taken to suspend the rules for the introduction of the By-law, Ald. Wood, Ward 1, was voting for it, namely, Ald. McFee, Chown, Meree, Wood.

It was allowed to stand as a notice of motion for to-day.

Ald. McFee desired to know from the Mayor if he had heard from Mr. Kirkwood in reference to the bonus.

The Mayor.—Mr. Kirkwood left a week ago for Paris, with the intention of trying to interest capitalists in the matter.

Ald. McFee.—"Which Paris?"

The Mayor.—"Paris, France."

"When do you expect he will be back?" was asked. Ald. Chown moved that the Council adjourn until next Friday night.—Carried.

Council adjourned.

SCOTT WAS RELEASED.

COLORED MAN ARRESTED HERE YESTERDAY WAS NOT THE MAN WANTED IN COL-LINGWOOD.

The negro, Wesley Charles Scott, who was detained here yesterday afternoon by the police on a telegram from Collingwood, was last evening allowed his liberty, as it was clearly proven that he was not the party wanted. Chief Newton received a message from Chief Wilde, of Collingwood, later in the evening, to the following effect:

"Let negro go. The man we want is a coarse man, with a heavy tache, and when last seen had but one sock on."

WEDDED AT ST. ANDREW'S

TWO YOUNG MADOC PEOPLE CAME TO THIS CITY TO ENTER MATRIMONY.

A wedding took place at 11 o'clock this morning, at St. Andrew's Church, the contracting parties were Mr. Wm. Curry, of Madoc, eldest son of Mr. S. Curry, and Miss Agnes Leonard, of Madoc. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. M. W. Maclean. The groomsman was Mr. Henry Johnson, of this city, and the bridesmaid Miss Duncan, of Campbellford. After the ceremony the bridal party partook of dinner at the National hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Curry left on the afternoon train for the west, from where they will visit several places of interest before returning to take up their residence in Madoc.

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results generally from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries, as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone, are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Warren, of Toronto, who received perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. Also druggists, or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

SEQUEL TO A SHOOTING.

DOCTOR CALLED TO ATTEND MAN HE HAD WOUNDED.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Late last night Dr. Maurice D. Steppe was awakened by a burglar in his house at Euclid and St. Clair and inspected at close range. The burglar yelled, and jumped through a window. The doctor followed and fired, thinking he found no trace of him. Early to-day Dr. Steppe was called to a nearby house and found the burglar in attendance upon a man who, it was said, had been accidentally shot. The doctor found the man with a bullet in his side. Later the patient died while en route in an ambulance to a hospital. According to a statement made by the man accompanying the wounded man he did that he was the burglar. His name was Henry Miller.

McINTOSH BROS.

Saved by Two Pumpkins.

"TIS the season of the "Jack-o'-lantern," and a story told by a Chicago paper, although it deals with an incident which took place nearly two hundred years ago, in therefore timely. It is the story of Prudence and Endurance Place, two girls who lived in the Cocheco Valley, New Hampshire.

At that time the country from Portsmouth to Cocheco was an unbroken wilderness, and settlers were few. The Place family lived in a log house in a small clearing. Indians occasionally called at the house, and Mr. Place always treated them courteously and never sent them away empty-handed.

When Prudence and Endurance, twin sisters, were fourteen years old, Mr. and Mrs. Place, with the younger children, went on a visit to Portsmouth, leaving the twins to keep house. During the first day of their housekeeping the girls gathered the big yellow pumpkins from the fields and laid them in a pile near the back door.

While resting from their work they amused themselves by cutting two hideous Jack-o'-lanterns from large pumpkins, each seeking to outdo the other in making the most grotesque face. They stuck the two heads on poles, fired candles inside, and made up their minds to astonish their father on his return by showing the grinning faces at the window.

While Endurance prepared the simple supper and set the house to rights for the night, Prudence went out to drive home the cow and the calves, which had to go farther than she had expected, and as she passed a clump of trees was startled to see three Indians on the other side, talking earnestly, gesticulating, and pointing now and then toward the log house in the clearing.

The girl was alarmed. Turning back without allowing herself to be seen, she hurried homeward and told her sister what she had discovered.

"They have found out that father and mother are away, and they are coming here to steal, and perhaps to kill us," the two said to each other.

For a minute the frightened girls did not know what to do. The Jack-o'-lanterns were lying in a corner of the room, and like an inspiration it came to Endurance that with these horrible, grinning faces they might scare away the Indians.

Near the door was a pit, used for storing potatoes, and now covered with boards and brush. Taking their Jack-o'-lanterns, the two girls scrambled into the hole, and concealed the entrance by drawing the boards and brush back into place.

After what seemed hours of waiting and listening, they heard stealthy steps about the house, which was in total darkness.

Listening intently, they heard the Indians in the garden, evidently searching for them.

Now was the moment for action. The candles lighted in the Jack-o'-lanterns, and the hideous heads thrust up through the brush. The Indians waited for only one glimpse. Filled with superstitious terror and believing that they had seen devils, they fled in such haste that Prudence and Endurance, when they ventured from their place of concealment in the morning, found a tomahawk and three eagle feathers in the garden path.

The spot was ever afterward regarded by the Indians with superstitious awe, for not one of them was ever known to approach the log house of the Places again.

Another Crow of Austin.

WE have been deluged with such an amount of cheap, smart, so-called criticism of Alfred Austin that it is a treat to read something in his favor written by such a literateur as Edgar Fawcett, who, in the November "Era," says:

"It is now many years since England has welcomed a new poet with wider. Possibly she might give as a reason for this reserve her belief that there have been no new poets, of late, worth welcoming at all. Mr. Swinburne, she might tell you, still remains, the poetic spectre of himself, and yet with his splendid energies allied to some of the most lofty lyrics ever felt or grasped. But certainly has set his face against the present Poet Laureate, even now, when his verses, courteously printed in the "Times," outings Jingoism. It has indeed become an iron fashion to speak disagreeably of Mr. Alfred Austin's poetry. I am afraid that if anyone attempted to stand up for him in the literary club-room, such defender would soon find himself haranguing empty chairs. And yet, quite apart from the actual quality of his productions, there is no doubt that Mr. Austin has been very cruelly treated indeed. His verses would prove to be discreditable if they were as bad as certain fiery folk insist, and that they're worse at their worst than mildly commonplace is altogether too absurd to assert. It is true, Mr. Austin was unlucky enough to sing of 'dang-threated troops.' Some critics at once began a wicked war-dance, and wanted to know if fangs were to be found, as a rule, in throats. Mr. Austin might have retaliated that even Shakespeare had given a sea-coast to Bohemia, and Byron had made ducks and drakes of the verb 'to lie.' As a prose-writer the Laureate is a numerous admirers, and as an orator I am one of many who have heard with extreme pleasure his finest and felicitous handling of his native idiom.

Preferred the Old Way.

Mrs. Bradbury was instructing the new cook, who was not only new, but as green as her own Emerald Isle. One morning the mistress went into the kitchen and found Katie weeping over a pan of onions.

"Why, you're having a harder time than you need to have, Katie," said Mrs. Bradbury. "Always peel onions in water."

"Indade, ma'am," said Katie, "I'm the last one to do that, askin' yer pardon. Me brother Mick was alwiz divin' and pickin' up stones from the bottom. He's little he couldn't do under wather, if 'twas tyin' his shoes or writin' a letther, but me, I'm that unlaky in it I'd be gettin' me mouth full and drownin' entirely. So if ye plase, ma'am, I'll pale thim the same ould way I've always been accustomed to, and they me tears afterwards."

A moral failure that fails is bad enough, but one that succeeds is considerably worse.

An Eagle's Nest.

THOSE who seek to rob birds' nests sometimes repent of their deed, especially if the bird happens to be an eagle as fierce as those on the California coast. These birds are seldom shot, and consequently they have increased in numbers; but the eggs are in demand by collectors, and a few adventurous spirits make a business of trying to secure them. Mr. C. F. Holder tells in the New York "Commercial Advertiser" of an adventure where two egg-hunters had a trying experience, and the end was not victorious.

The nest was on a rocky pinnacle, perhaps one hundred feet in height, completely separated from the shore. At storms the waves rose in splendid mass of foam, to the very summit. The base was exposed at low tide, and the waves would rise eight or ten feet, then as suddenly drop away, leaving jagged points upon which a boat would be hung until overwhelmed by the next wave.

One quiet day the men approached. They rowed about the rock for ten minutes, then, the sea being level, rushed at it. With all their care, however, the boat was dashed on a ledge, and they found themselves prisoners on the rock with nothing to eat—the provisions having been lost overboard—and the bottom of the boat crushed in. They rescued a rope in the rush of water, and being still determined to try for the eggs, they turned their attention to the nest, allaying their unnoticeness by the thought that some passing yacht would take them off.

The rock, however, proved slippery from spray accumulation, and gaining at the men found it impossible to climb nearer than forty feet from its nest.

One of the adventurers decided to attempt that last forty feet after the fashion adopted by South Pacific natives in climbing trees. A long rope, doubled, with a stone attached to the doubled end, was hurled over the rock so that it fell on the other side, thus encircling it. Then the egg-hunter began climbing barefooted, not going up, but gradually circling the pillar and hitching the rope upward.

In his circuit of the rock he had gained ten or twelve feet, and the footing was secure. Then, with a second brought him twenty-five feet up. He was resolved not to raise the rope when he heard a cry from his companion, and then came a sharp whistling sound, a rush, and something filled the air in front of him, striking with blows and throwing him from his feet, so that he hung for a second by the rope, fallen from the rock.

It was the mother eagle, that had plunged down upon him from a great height. She was driven off for a time by the long rope, who hit her savagely on the breast with a stone.

The hunter, still undaunted, proceeded to climb, this time with his knife between his teeth. Then he was within reach of the top the mother's experience was repeated.

A short, sharp fight ensued. The bird fell away, but immediately returned. The man struck at it with his knife, and missed it, and then, while one of its claws was fixed in his shoulder, lost his balance and fell against the rope. The rope broke, and bird and man went plunging into the sea.

The fact that the bird's talon had caught in the clothing saved the hunter's life, for the eagle, as soon as it struck the water, flew off with its prey, and actually helped the man out of the kelp bed into which he had fallen. Then by its struggles it freed itself, and the hunter swam to the rock.

All thought of securing the eggs was now abandoned. The boat proved to be damaged beyond repair, and the men spent a miserable night in a crevice of the rock, the sea after all carrying them. Late on the following day they were rescued by a passing boat.

CYCLONE STRIKES GEORGIA

Two Hundred Dead at Gainesville 1,000 in Need of Aid.

The Property Loss Is $300,000—Tornado Did Its Fearful Work in Two Minutes —The Dead Are Mainly Employes of the Gainesville Cotton Mills and the Fresh Cotton Mills—Two Hundred Cottages Razed.

Gainesville, Ga., June 2.—A tornado of terrific force struck this city yesterday afternoon, causing fearful loss of life in this city and New Holland and White Sulphur Springs. As near as can be calculated, the results are 85 dead, injured and children dead, and perhaps 40 more fatally injured, with property loss of something like $300,000. The death list is yet imperfect, not all the bodies having been recovered and identified. Many of them were mangled beyond recognition.

The storm appeared suddenly a little before 1 o'clock, and, within two minutes, had killed nearly 100 persons, torn two stories from the five-foot brick factory of the Gainesville Cotton Mills, demolished almost 200 cottages, raised two brick stores to the ground, and blown down innumerable outbuildings.

The list of the dead is confined mainly to operatives of the Gainesville Cotton Mills and the Fresh Cotton Mills, and two-thirds of them were women and children. The tornado did its appalling work in such an incredibly short time that it is difficult to obtain a coherent description of its character. It appears to have swept down from the northwest, striking the Gainesville Mills with a force like the report of artillery. After lifting two storeys from this structure, it swept on to the northward, leaving a trail of destruction along Summit street, which is inhabited almost exclusively by negroes. Nearly 100 cottages of colored people in that section were levelled to the ground, but, by a fortunate circumstance, the tenants were mostly absent, having left in the city in the morning to take part in a picnic.

Says 200 Are Dead.

Atlanta, Ga., June 2.—Governor Terrell last night issued a proclamation, saying about 200 were dead at Gainesville and 1,000 in need of aid. He calls on Georgians to send relief.

Government Issues Bulletin.

Washington, June 2.—Although the crests of the floods in Northeastern Pennsylvania and Northwestern New Jersey are apparently reached yesterday, yet the extreme gravity of the situation cannot be over estimated. The stage of the water at Kansas City yesterday morning was 33.6 feet, but 2 feet lower than the great high water stage of June 20, 1844. At 5 p.m. the water was stationary, 34.9 feet, with light rain still falling.

FIERCE TILLSONBURG FIRE.

Eleven Business Places and Twelve Residences Burned Down—Three Acres Now a Black Waste.

Tillsonburg, Ont., June 3.—The worst conflagration in the history of Tillsonburg occurred yesterday, when eleven business places and twelve residences were razed to the ground and as many more considerably damaged. The fire started about noon at the rear of Buckborough's blacksmith shop, it is supposed, by some children playing with matches. The fire then spread to Darrow's foundry, and then to the barns of W. Parker and E. Dingwall.

In a very short time the flames had crept to the residence of Sheriff Sinclair, Mrs. R. H. Armstrong, and to four residences owned by Mrs. Parker, and occupied by C. H. Denton, Mr. Fowlk, Mrs. W. Harris, J. Hillman, and one new house, just completed.

Three Acres Swept.

By this time the rear of Mr. Parker's own residence and butcher shop, and the stores of J. M. Clark, J. B. Weston, P. F. Newell, residence and store of Thomas Fero, office of Chas. Brady, V.S., and Town Clerk Rayner were in flames. Inside of two hours the fine brick block of Dr. Sinclair and buildings covering over three acres were all burned to the ground.

The high wind was carrying great flakes of burning stuff west, and many dwellings were ignited. Four fine residences on Broadway were also caught, and were also destroyed. They belonged to Wm. House, H. H. Betts, J. J. McMahan and A. H. Robertson. Heroic work of the citizens saved the house of Mr. Wm. Haysworth and G. T. R. Agent Stinson. In the block west of this, J. E. Devlin's barn and George Carle's stable were also consumed.

Carried Two Miles.

The cinders were carried for miles into the country, and caused great havoc on the farm of F. Sanders, at least two miles away. His barns and sheds were destroyed, and his house was only saved by hard work. The wide street, Broadway, saved the west side of the town from being wiped out also. Several places were on fire at different times. McDonald's and Law's blocks had a close call. The plate glass windows in the stores on the West Side were nearly all ruined by the heat. McIntyre's being the only one to escape.

The roofs of houses on the West Side all suffered considerably, but the bucket brigades kept the fire under control.

Three Men Killed.

Elmira, N. Y., June 2.—An explosion yesterday afternoon at 5.30 destroyed the plant where lovite, a high explosive, was manufactured. Three men were killed and several injured.

Nearly Killed.

Windsor, June 2.—W. H. Naylor, an insurance man, nearly killed by inhaling escaping gas in the International Hotel last week.

CALL BRITTON A PARTIZAN

Conservatives Object to Judge For Treadgold Enquiry.

Rival to Bell Telephone Company With a Million Capital—Canadian Associated With Americans With Headquarters at Ottawa—Electric Railways, Which Do Freighting Under Jurisdiction of Railway Commission.

Ottawa, June 3.—A bill was introduced by Mr. Harty in the House yesterday, incorporating the Queen's College, Kingston. The bill provides that in addition to the Chancellor and principal, a rector is to be appointed by the students. It is provided that the College shall continue distinctly Christian, but no religious test or qualification save the profession of Christianity shall be required. Laymen, as well as clergymen, are eligible for any position therein. The college is declared to be affiliated with the university.

Rival to Bell Telephone Co.

Mr. Taylor introduced a bill to incorporate the Canadian Telephone and Telegraph Company. The incorporators are nearly all Americans. The Canadians associated with them are W. H. McCormick, Orillia; John Calbert, Brockville; Rufus Pope, M. P., Toronto; W. Cane, M. P.; F. A. Henry, G. W. Fowler, M.P.; George Kidd, M. P., and John Thompson. The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, and its headquarters is at Ottawa. The powers are asked for Hates are to be approved by the Governor-in-Council, and are made subject to prompt revision. At least three directors are required to be residents of Canada.

The Treadgold Commission.

Mr. Casgrain called attention to the fact that the newspapers had announced Judge Britton's appointment for the Yukon, and said he considered this a strange way to treat the House. The Government should first have information of the House of the commission and the terms of the commission. He said Judge Britton had only recently left the political arena, and had expressed strong opinions on the very questions he was now called upon to adjudicate. He would thus be severely tried to do his duty because of his political leanings.

"They are ugly rumors," said Mr. Casgrain, "as to the granting of the concessions in question. It is said, not on the streets, but in the corridors of the House, that sums of money passed between the grantees of concessions and men high in authority. The Government should wash its hands of these rumors."

The Minister's Reply.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the member for Montmorency had based his remarks on rumors, and that, as a matter of fact, Mr. Justice Britton had merely been asked if he would accept the commission. To this no reply had been received. The Government would not appoint a commission to investigate rumors, but let a member take responsibility for the matter, and a commission would be appointed forthwith. Perhaps the only rumors had been heard by those who were anxious to hear them. The remarks concerning the British Yukon Premier regarded as entirely uncalled for. Because a man had political leanings was no reason why he could not be an upright judge. Commercial Governments, he pointed out, had appointed politicians to the judiciary, and aside the impartiality of the knowledge had not been challenged. he believed Judge Britton to be an admirable man in whom he had the fullest confidence. Further he presented to lay the commission on the table of the House in a few days.

The debate was continued by Messrs. R. L. Borden, F. D. Monk, Hon. A. G. Blair and W. D. Northrup.

The House again went into committee with Mr. Blair's railway bill. Electric railways carrying freight would be placed under the authority of the Railway Commission. The Minister explained that the 50th clause limiting the speed at crossings to six miles an hour. Objection was taken to this course by some opositionists who claimed that it was desirable to control speed at crossings. Mr. Blair argued that the absence of a definite limit gave the commission fuller authority, and it could act as the circumstances seemed to warrant.

The Customs Estimates.

Customs estimates were taken up at the evening session of the House. E. F. Clarke and A. E. Kemp attacked the preferential tariff, which, they said, while affecting to be a British preference, was in reality more useful to other countries.

Hon. William Paterson replied that he was always open to the department to prosecute for fraud.

Senate and Provincial Grants.

There was a lengthy argument in the Senate on the question of provincial subsidies. Senator Macdonald of British Columbia brought the issue into the House, and asked if it was the intention of the Government, to give this year to the request of the provincial Premiers for an increase in their present annual subsidies.

Hon. R. W. Scott said Mr. Macdonald assured that the expenditures made by the Federal Government was not for the benefit of the provinces. It was a question of who should spend the money. It was a questional ary of Government. The provinces had gone into housing railways and had affected enormous expenditures which were never contemplated by them at Confederation, and which belonged to the Federal power. Prince Edward Island, since Mr. Scott's claimed was entitled to the increase. Quebec's water powers were worth $100,000,000 more than was ever expected at Confederation. He deprecated the spending of railway subsidies by provinces. There ought to be only one spending Government.

The Senate went into committee of the whole and dealt with the Yukon bill.

Senators from the various provinces took up the question from their particular standpoint. Hon. James McMullen said that in the States the trusts received the money. He thought it a pity that direct taxation had not been resorted to, as it would be more helpful to the people to be more careful. If any province had a grievance it was Ontario and Quebec. In view of the national debt the Dominion, he thought, the provinces must provide for their own expenditure. The Senate then rose, having gone way there would be no end of it.

G.T.P. ROUTE NOT FINAL

If Government Gives Aid the Question May Be Reopened.

Ottawa, June 3.—Some progress was made with the Grand Trunk Pacific bill in the Railway Committee yesterday afternoon. Mackenzie Bowell met with stubborn resistance. Many objections were made to Moncton as the eastern terminus.

Hon. W. S. Fielding made the important announcement that the route proved by the committee was not final. The only thing finally settled was given the Grand Trunk Pacific the question of route could be reopened by the Government.

New Clause.

A new clause was brought forward by the committee, providing that if the construction of its line is not commenced and $5,000,000, is not expended within two years after the passage of the act, and if the whole way is not finished and in operation within seven years after the passing of the act, the powers conferred upon the company by Parliament shall cease as regards the portion remaining uncompleted. This was accepted.

Mr. Casgrain expressed the belief that the company did not intend to build the line east of Winnipeg.

As the committee was about to adjourn, Hon. Mr. Emmerson moved an amendment requiring simultaneous construction of the sections east and west from Quebec.

TEXTILE PLANTS TIED UP.

Those Who Have Not Granted Operatives' Demands Can Do Nothing.

Philadelphia, June 3.—Of the 320 plants here which will not grant the demands of the textile operatives for a 55 hour week, there were only half a dozen in operation yesterday, and these were working short handed. In the Kensington district where are located the majo.ity of the mills, the number of idle hands is said to be more than 60,000. The mills in the Southwark district are completely tied up, rendering idle a out 2,500 hands. More than 2,000 operatives are idle in Germantown. Nine workers in the two Bromley Mills have been out for nearly three week. These plants employ about 2,100 operatives when in full operation. All other departments of the factories are idle. The strikers held meetings yesterday in all sections.

Another Coal Cloud.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 3.—Another dark strike cloud has appeared upon the horizon of the anthracite coal region. The officials of the United Mine Workers' in session here yesterday declined the invitation of their three district presidents on the Board of Conciliation, authorized by the Strike Commission, to which the members are not recognized by the operators, while action may come the executive board contemplate calling a convention of delegates and to declare a general suspension of work until their members are given recognition.

Condemned Secretary Chamberlain.

London, June 3.—Fifteen hundred delegates of the Liberal Federated Societies of the United Kingdom, at their annual meeting at Doncaster yesterday adopted a resolution emphatically protesting against any "tampering with the free trade policy and this country by preferential tariffs." There were only three dissentients.

Administration Is a Straight Conservative One, With the Premier as Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works—Mc-Tavish Is Finance Minister, and the Minister of Mines Is Mr. Green-Howse is Supply.

Victoria, B.C., June 2—(Special.)—The new Premier, R. McBride, has decided to form his Ministry strictly upon party lines, and the Cabinet will be a straight Conservative one. Premier McBride will take the position of Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works; R. G. Tatlow of Victoria, Hardy North of Nelson, Charles Wilson, Conservative leader in British Columbia, Attorney-General; R. F. Green, of Kaslo, Minister of Mines; J. F. Fulton, Provincial Secretary, and A. E. McPhillips of Victoria, President of Council.

In the Legislature yesterday afternoon the motion to go into committee to grant supply was passed by 29 to 4.

FIREBRIGS AT NORWICH.

Policeman Saw Two Attempts But Failed to Catch Perpetrators.

Norwich, June 3.—At an early hour yesterday morning fire broke out in the barn owned by F. G. Decey and totally destroyed it. With it were destroyed a horse, a cow, a buggy, a wagon, a sleigh, and a valuable lot of lumber. About midnight Policeman Hutchinson saw, or fancied a man in the act of setting fire to the barn in the rear of the Queen's House. The man made his escape when detected. Later the policeman found two incendiaries in the rear of the laundry, also engaged in the same work as those in the building. The officer gave chase, but the parties escaped in the direction of their escape.

Mutinous Murderers Hanged.

Liverpool, June 3.—Captain Ross, a Germans, and William Smith, an American, seamen of the British barque Veronica, from Rio Janeiro, Miss., who were sentenced to death May 14, after having been convicted of murdering Captain Shaw and six other members of the Veronica's crew, were hanged here simultaneously yesterday morning. Ross protested his innocence of the murders.

Prof. Caven Critically Ill.

Toronto, June 3.—The condition of Rev. Dr. Caven last night was not as favorable as on the preceding day. The recovered gentleman is suffering from blood poisoning, caused by some lesion of the bowels, which is impossible to locate. His son, Dr. John Caven, stated last night that he was in a dangerous condition, although perfectly conscious, and not now suffering any pain. It is impossible to forecast the result 24 hours ahead.

PEOPLE SHOULD RUN IT.

Mr. Whitney, Leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, Says Government Should Operate Temiskaming Ry.

Toronto, June 3.—The Legislature put in the full time yesterday and at 6 o'clock the order paper was not half cleared off. The Premier made the announcement that he expected the report of the Ganong Commissioners early and the conclusion of the ordinary business of the House next week.

People Should Run It.

When the Temiskaming Railway Bill was again taken up in committee, Mr. Whitney said he was in favor of Government operation of the road. He said there had been a great deal of discussion in the press and elsewhere on the question of Government ownership of railways, and the opportunity had presented itself for the Government to test the feasibility and desirability of Government ownership. He suggested that the Government retain control of the road for at least ten years, and give other companies running powers on such terms as could be arranged.

Mr. Davis' bill to amend the act providing for the appropriation of lands for volunteers who served in South Africa and the widows and children who served on the frontier in 1866 was read a third time, as were also private bills. A number of bills were reported from committee.

Hon. Mr. Davis introduced a bill entitled "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1903." Hon. Mr. Dryden introduced a bill to amend the Separate Schools Act.

Patching Up the Statutes.

A good deal of time was taken up by the Attorney-General in explaining the various clauses of the Statute Law Amendment Act, 1903. This is an annual measure designed to patch up the various statutes.

For over two hours the attention of the House was given to the bill to amend the Municipal Act. The bill is a summary of the work of the Municipal Committee, all the clauses recommended by the committee being included in one general bill. There are 73 clauses in the bill.

The House sat till 11.30.

WAS "CAPS" PARTNER.

Theodore Taylor, an Ontario Government Official, Suspected of Complicity.

"Cap" Sullivan was examined for about 20 minutes before the Public Accounts Committee yesterday, most of the morning being taken up with the examination of Messrs. E. B. Wood, Patrick McDermott, and Thomas Charlton. Sullivan's examination will be continued to-day.

The sensation of the evidence was Sullivan's partner in the deal was Theodore C. Taylor, Chief Clerk in the Woods and Forests Branch of the Crown Lands Department.

Sullivan swears that he paid Taylor one-half the profits, amounting to $4,012.50. Mr. Brough, General Manager of the Dominion Bank, has been summoned to corroborate this, if possible, and to show the ramifications of this sum.

Mr. Taylor, who was suspended by the Commissioner of Crown Lands immediately after Sullivan's evidence was received. He has been in the employ of the department for a number of years.

Legal Committee.

In the Legal Committee Mr. Whitney's bill making it an offence to proceed into by the Niagara Falls Park Commissioners subject to the consent of the Legislature was passed. Mr. McCart's bill, which establishes municipal Councils in districts, two resident drainage viewers to accompany the engineer when he makes drainage works and making assessments to meet the cost of such was passed.

The Special Assessment Committee in its session yesterday morning decided to take a week during the fall, when the Legislature was not in session, and at its meetings then consider the Royal Commissioners' report on assessment together with Mr. Pettypiece's Railway Taxation bill. The committee will recommend this course to the House.

Engines Collide at Woodstock.

Woodstock, June 3.—A collision occurred yesterday morning at the G. T. R. depot between two detached engines. The Lehigh express, due here at 10.12, pulled into the station under a double-header. On the arrival the two engines were uncoupled and proceeded down the yard, one behind the other. The rear one became unmanageable, and, gaining speed on the downgrade, crashed into the other. One was disabled and was unable to proceed. As a result of the accident the express was delayed a considerable length of time.

Kingston, Jan., June 3.—Colonial Secretary Oliver left here yesterday for Boston. Thence he will go to Ottawa in time for the opening of the Dominion Government, and the Australian Delegates will find the establishment of a fortnightly steamship service between Jamaica and St. John, N.B.

MODERN MEDICINE.

Cod-liver oil is good. Purified Petroleum is better. Angier's Emulsion is made of cod-liver oil and petroleum, and hypophosphites. It does all,—and more,—than cod-liver oil and emulsions prepared alone. It is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach.

It Nourishes Infants.

No other baby food is so nourishing, wholesome or so easily digested. It is a perfect substitute for mother's milk.

An Absolutely Perfect Medicinal Food

Reinforced Cod Liver Oil

That is just what FERROL is. It is well known that Cod Liver Oil is the ideal food-fat, but it fails short of being a perfect nutrient, because it does not in itself contain sufficient Iron. In FERROL the Oil is reinforced with just enough Phosphorized Iron to make it an ideal food. As a reconstructor it is absolutely unequalled.

HOW A SPRAIN DOES HURT!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, but think of the long illness and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the parts of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, then see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

SIDNEY CROSSING.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Warrington, of Elston, spent a few days with friends here during the week.

Mrs. Manson Fralick has returned from a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Florence Denyes, of Odessa.

WEAK GOVERNMENT, INDEED!

The Laurier Government has been chasing a bubble for years in the form of the transportation question. Away back in 1896, Mr. E. F. Clarke asked for the appointment of a commission to investigate the whole problem. Nothing was done by the Government until a few days ago, when the Governor drove round and see it.

Say, isn't our rolling pretty high? A concert, Council meeting, Board of Trade meeting, the Governor-General and a circus all in one week. Is this the pace that kills?

Rain is again badly needed, and our hope seems to lie in the circus as the moisture bringer.

The Intelligencer heartily concurs in the Board of Trade's good wishes for the success of Mr. Thomas Hanley, who left the city on Monday night, hoping he'll have a pleasant journey in the west, get homesick and eventually find his way back to Belleville, where he will always find the latch string hanging out.

The Board of Trade struck the nail on the head when they condemned and finished up the Bay of Quinte, but why did they not take the initiative and petition the Government to do so? Let the Board now get to take the lead in the matter.

Ald. Sinclair nearly had a fit this morning, when he received a letter from Major Maude, private secretary to the Governor-General, announcing that the Viceregal party would be here on the 8th inst. The first intimation the Ald. had that it would be here on the 8th, and it can easily be seen that the change in date would knock existing arrangements into the proverbial cocked hat. However, the new date turned out to be a typographical error. The party will be here on the 5th, and everything is lovely.

But the Major should really be careful. He came dangerously near giving one of our worthy City Fathers an attack of apoplexy, failure, especially as the Mayor is in Ottawa and won't be back till Friday at noon, and, in his absence, all the heavy work would have fallen on the Chairman of Industries.

The letter said the Viceregal party will arrive at 4 p.m., and will consist of Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Minto; their daughters, Ladies Eileen and Ruby Elliott; Captains Bell and Graham, A.D.C.s, and Major Maude. And now it's up to everybody, to put his best foot foremost and give a hearty Bay of Quinte welcome to the representatives of His Majesty the King and his gracious wife and daughters. All together now, ladies and gentlemen, let's do this thing up in style and make Friday, June 5th, a day long to be remembered.

This, the 3rd of June, is a memorable day in local annals, for thirty-seven years ago over four hundred of the flower of Belleville's manhood—the 15th Battalion and the First Belleville Rifles—back-good-bye to home and loved ones to offer up, if called upon to do so, their lives for their country on the 8th. Lawrence fronted it repelling the Fenian hordes. No wonder it is that the day of days for excitement that Belleville ever passed through!

UNPLEASANT PERSPIRATION

THE OFFENSIVE ODOR OF PERSPIRATION REMOVED BY FOOT ELIM.

If there is any unpleasant perspiration odor from any part of the body, it can be entirely overcome by the use of Foot Elim. Dusted in the soles or pits in the shoes, the antiseptic action is most effective, destroying those bacteria or germs which are the cause of disagreeable, sweaty odors. Besides this it is soothing, cooling and refreshing, and can be used with impunity on the most delicate skin. Price 25 cents a box or 3 for 50 cents, at druggists or by mail. W. I. TIMELY TOPICS.

It's rather early for sheep shearing yet, but, judging by the stock market reports, the woods are full of short-haired home days.

The circus is only three days off, and little Willie is on his very best behavior, while Willie's papa is just beginning to feel the annual attack of love for the natural history working in him.

The Stony Lonesome philosopher wonders what he ever did to the Reception Committee, that it should flashed suddenly its fangs, and they are not going to let the Gov'nor drive round and see it.

GOOD HEALTH.

HOW IT CAN BE OBTAINED AND HOW IT CAN BE PRESERVED.

The health of the whole body depends upon the blood and nerves. The blood must be rich and pure, and the nerves vigorous and strong. Therefore a medicine that makes new blood and strengthens the nerves reaches the root of many serious diseases. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this and this is the secret of their wonderful power to conquer disease. Thousands of cases—many of them in your own neighborhood—have proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure rheumatism, sciatica, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, nervous and bilious headache, heart trouble, indigestion, neuralgia and the ailments that render the lives of so many women a life of misery. Mr. James Adams, Brandon, Man., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills my health was much shattered with rheumatism, nervous depression and sleeplessness. For fully a year I rarely got a good night's sleep. I was under medical treatment, tried and can now truthfully say I could not wish for better health."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others they will surely do for you, but you should be careful to get the genuine with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50c. per box; or six boxes for $2.50 by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

RESIDENT OF MINNEAPOLIS CARRIES OFF A BELLEVILLE LADY.

A pretty home wedding took place this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Frederick, 199 Church street, when Miss Edna Roblin, daughter of Mr. James H. Roblin, of Seattle, and the groom Mr. L. A. Kennedy, of Minneapolis. Rev. C. Bodington performed the ceremony. The bride wore a dress of grey trimmed with white silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Young, of Rochester, N. Y. The groomsman was Mr. Percy Wallace, of Belleville. The bride carried a handsome bouquet of white roses, and the bridesmaid a bouquet of pink carnations. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was partaken of. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain, the bridesmaid a ring set with rubies and pearls, and to the groomsman a pearl scarf pin. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left immediately for their home at Minneapolis. The groom was two years ago in attendance here at a business college, having come from Brown Town, Jamaica.

Curious Bits of News.

Lajat Carence, a Journalist of Rome, is order to get up a story on the Pope's life, recently received compliment at the Vatican as a testimony.

Spotted leopard skin rugs have been found in cost from Spitzbergen, the latest going to the Arctic Ocean, midway between Greenland and Nova Zembla.

Writer in "Blackwood's Magazine" mentions as an incident of life in Labrador the arrival of a pet in a kennel under the November snow. The owner of the kennel (a Scotch deer-hound) dug up the barrel twice during the winter, but did not awaken the dog, which was permitted to sleep on till May.

Reverend Beaupre of the Territory of Assiniboia, Canada, claims to be the tallest man in the world. His exact height is seven feet ten and three-fourths inches, and he is still growing, and expects to reach the seven-foot mark. He is twenty years old, wears a number twenty-one shoe and a number twenty-one collar.

The original manuscript lately discovered in the Paris library proves the startling fact that assassinates were used in political measures centuries ago. A certain concoction, it states, was given to doctors before being forming an operation, which rendered the patient unconscious. The same mechanic was a simple preparation of hemlock.

The translation of the Bible from ancient to modern Greek, against which students in the Greek capital have been rioting, and coming into fatal conflicts with troops, was ordered by Queen Olga, because she found so many errors in the text that the language of their classic superiors. The students oppose the translation, as they consider it would be desecration to put the Bible into Greek as it is now spoken.

Four hundred and ten thousand immigrants landed in the shores of the United States last year. Many of them were Christians, many were Hebrews. The majority even of those who were Christians, however, had never before had no copy of the Bible. In the midst of the rush, at the pier, on the east of his new home, the New York Bible Society placed a copy of the Scriptures in Twenty-one different languages were represented, the largest number being in German, the next largest in Swedish.

Because a beautiful young white woman, the heroine in Sir Walter Besant's new book, "The Bell of Arrow," is made to marry a negro criminal, the "Sunny South," one of the leading literary weeklies of the South, has announced the discontinuance of the publication of the story. The "Sunny South" declares the story passes the limits of the sensational. It appears that the novel was selected after a synopsis had been submitted, and not until the fourth instalment were the objectionable features discovered. The editors declare the plot of the story to be "an utter waste, the result of mere suggestion, from which we shall endeavor to save our readers."

Hang Trouble on a Chair.

"LAUGH and grow fat" is a saying as old as the hills. It has long been an accepted fact that humor is a promoter of digestion and merry words the deadliest foes of disease. A doctor named Kennedy writes an interesting article on the value of laughter, in which he shows it is not only a remedial agent, but is also a valuable preventive against a host of diseases. The physical effects of laughter are thus put down by Dr. Kennedy: Laughter increases the blood circulation. It relaxes the heart. It expands the lungs. It jiggers the diaphragm. It promotes the digestive processes. In other words, laughter sets up the vital regions of the body, gives them healthful exercise, and produces a mental exhilaration which makes the man smarter and at a brisk walk in a crisp atmosphere does upon the appetite. As strong allies to laughter, Dr. Kennedy gives the following directions for mental peace of mind: Beware of theologians who have no sense of mirth; they are not safe either human. Keep your chin up. Don't take your troubles to bed with you; hang them on a chair with your trousers or drop them in a glass of water with your teeth.

Society Slang.

It is rather amusing to watch the changes in society slang; for the "best" society has its own peculiar vulgarisms, which change from decade—even from year to year. Mrs. Humphrey Ward, in her well-earned and suddenly projected into a new area afterwards chatter at a social club, would think she had missed her opportunity when an English contributor a few years ago it was the mode to scatter Gallicisms freely into conversation. But the French craze has passed, and even such an old sesquipedalian "chic" is never heard, and rarely seen but in the fashion articles. Today's slang—in the "best" circles in England—has probably reached the lowest depth of vicious vulgarity its promoters is abbreviation. What are "undies"? Well, they are the things that a woman puts on first in the morning and takes off last at night. When she gets into her "undies" "Tizzy-wizzy" is another favorite Masonic word among those in the social know. It corresponds to the bus conductor's "little bit of all-right." And if you want to go a step further in compliment, you may describe your new frock—if you are a woman in the "best" set—as "quite too devie" for words. We hope Dr. Murray has a contributor on the pounce for these words in Mayfair. He has missed "devie" from the New English Dictionary, but he is in time for "tizzy-wizzy," to say nothing—as, of course, nothing should be said—of "undies."

Surgeon (after the operation)—I am glad to be able to assure you, Mrs. Van Pelt, that the danger is now over and your husband will recover. We have successfully removed the appendix vermiformis, and it is of such a unique formation that I shall preserve it for use in my medical lectures. Mrs. Tyte-Pate (opening his eyes)—You'll allow me some?—we for it, I suppose, doctor?—Ex.

"How did it happen?" "Oh, I got into a game where the limit was the ceiling—and somebody took out the ceiling."

Mr. Galloway's Mothers.
By Ethelwyn Wetherald.

"NOW, pa, don't you forget," Lettie would say, be sure you remember."

Then some more of the same sort of chestlle, and a spool and this thread, No. 60, black."

Oh, yes; and call at Vanderlin's for my shoes."

"Not a greasy kind of cake, pa—nothing with butter in it. Something fluffy and delicate, with chocolate icing."

"Keep your mind on roses, pa. Just say 'roses' over to yourself the moment of the day. And don't let Filmore pick them out, pa; pick them out yourself."

"Why, Pet, there's roses in the front yard this morning."

"Yes, but pa, what kind—of roses! Mamma Galloway always used, attractive things, acting as if they just hated to open. I want long, swaying, top-heavy beauties, nearly as tall as I am."

"Don't waste your money on Pet, pa, even if she is going to a party. It's just encouragement. I'm going to make the invalids' lunch, and cream tartar, and you'll get me some cake to match, won't you, pa, dear?"

"What kind of cake, Winnie?"

"Me, pa? On this blistering hot day? Why my ill-ness would vanish if you'd only wish your Winifred thus to immolate herself."

"It won't do to forget the cake, pa," said Eleanor. "Winifred's young man is coming this evening, and I've promised him with a piece of cake of her own baking. Mr. Winfield likes any young man say more."

Pet and Eleanor were highly delighted with this jest. The weary-eyed pa did not smile. Neither did Winifred, whose face was riveted on the breakfast biscuit.

"If I made biscuit so doughy that people were compelled to eat just the upper and lower crusts and toss the sogger center—"

"Oh, ma, pa," broke in Pet, "I nearly forgot, I want some new-pink ribbon, just the exact shade of the heart of the roses—three yards of a half—that will be easy to remember, won't it, pa?"

"Whatever you say, my dear. Don't let it be my shoes, pa," said Eleanor. "And I'm really suffering for that chenille."

"Now, I'll tell you what it is, girls," said Mr. Galloway, pushing away his plate, on which lay about one-half of his dough, in marked contrast to the burned slices of bread. "I'm not going to get you a single thing you want—not a single thing."

"Ah, pa, you are!"

"Now, pa, dear!"

"You don't mean a word of that—you know you don't."

Eleanor pressed his right shoulder, Winifred his left. The rebellious neck lost a little of its rigidity as Pet's arms went round it, but the voice was defiant.

"I'm sick of this kind of breakfast-table talk. It's the same old thing—or rather a bit worse—every morning in the year. Why can't you go down town yourselves and get what you want, and not bother me?"

"Oh, pa, in this fearful heat!"

"Yes, there's always fearful heat, a frightful cold, or driving rain, or—"

"For old pa, he doesn't look good; he didn't sleep well last night. Too bad!" They pressed their cheeks against his and kissed him in succession.

"Well, girls, I must be off. And, mind what I say—I'm not going to get you anything."

The girls laughed at that. They had heard it so many times before. As Mr. Galloway walked down the street three open parasols were instantly framed on three pretty heads.

"You remember what I said, pa?"

"Not a greasy kind, pa; nothing with butter in it."

"Three yards and a half of the very pinkest pink, and tall roses, pa."

"Not a single thing, girls. Pa and pa! Don't forget the cake."

But the bewildered little man, who had been walking with remarkable briskness, suddenly, in the warmth of the morning, suddenly turned down a side street and disappeared. Business worries had kept him awake for two hours, and there was no refreshment in the sultry air of the morning. The feeling of being imposed upon was unusually bitter with him. His head ached, and he was tired out by the time he reached the street car.

The ache was a long and wearisome one down town, but the thought of his girls in their cool and tasteful home never brought no ease to Mr. Galloway's heart. "Selfish creatures," he said to himself. "Don't care for anything but their own pleasure. And it's all my fault. I've been a fool from the day I took to myself a wife. But I isn't too late yet."

As he approached his home that evening three white-clad figures ran to the gate to meet him. "Pa, pa, dear!" they chorused as they murmured. "You didn't forget my things, did you, pa, darling?" They looked for all the world like a strange, unnatural rigidity in his face and figure. Each one questioned:

"I didn't forget anything," he said, "and I didn't get anything right, one bit."

"Didn't get anything!" Such a thing had never happened before. They looked at each other in consternation, and Winifred steadied herself with a hand on the gate.

"I said I wouldn't get anything. You heard me, girls, and I'm glad that I kept my word. You don't ask me for many things at a time—you know I'd forget them if you did—but when you do I'm going to stick to them."

Up fire or six things every day, and dinging, ding 'em into me until I'm just as soon go to a lunatic asylum as to our breakfast-table."

The girls' eyes widened, but their lips were speechless. Could this be some frightful nightmare that they were having?

"I may as well say right now that I'm not going to be a beast of burden any more. You're strong enough to walk as far as the street cars, and you can buy your own foldorols in future. And in between times you might learn to cook the Graham bread this morning, and it's for a pig."

His heart was not quite unpacked of all its grievances, but before he could think of anything more the girls had melted away from him. He heard Eleanor say, "Never mind, Pet, some more open spread co-day, and we'll make the best of them," and Winifred added, "You can have my new ribbon that as well as not." The girls went upstairs to gether.

Their father came up the front walk at noon. "I was the first time he had been so since Eleanor was old enough to toddle. He found his table ready for him spotless, and fresh linen laid out, beautiful always attended to that. He entered the room with some refreshment, the dinner-bell rang. It is hard to have a meal with people one doesn't care to talk to, even.

It seemed to Winifred's young man that the Galloway girls were less "at home" than usual that evening, and their father more silent than he had ever known him. The dinner was good. Dinner in the Galloway home was invariably good. Breakfast, being dependent on Eleanor's capacity for oversleeping her alarm, was variable. There was no lunch, with the ice cream, but nobody seemed to notice its absence. Winifred's young man, who had brought up a family of children left orphans by the death of their sister.

Sally Cooper assisted the woman-from the kitchen by setting on the table with his stiff arm and stiffer knee. She will, while he blinked his horse, and Napoleon or they entered the parsonage.

"Now you can guess what we've been for, parson," he said. "My sister Jane, who has kept house for me sigh on to twenty years, died last winter, and I've been lonesome for me and the cows and pigs alone. Miss Jones, here, has reared them chickens of her sister's until they've got from under her wings and gone to live for themselves. Now 'taint far enough from my farm to here, and we concluded that we can run my house, and I can run the farm, and it would be better for both of us and mine. So we thought we'd just drive over and get you to hitch us up for a spec. I'm going to be good to her and provide everything and worry, and she's going to be good to me and take care of me. So whenever you're ready, go ahead, only make it short."

The ceremony passed off without special incident. After Card had administered a sounding smack on Nancy's cheek, he said, "Now, parson, I'll be glad to pay you for your trouble."

"Well," I said, "you can give me whatever you choose," and I added, with a smile, "Give me what you think my job is worth to you."

In an instant his Yankee love for a trade came to the front, and finding an old-fashioned copper cent out of his pocket, he said, "Parson, I reckon I'll not be stuck very bad if I give you that to begin with. If I find she's worth more, why, you'll hear from me again."

He had the better of me; there was nothing more to be said. I went to the entry of the wedding in my private recent, and went home against 10 o'clock cent."

A year from that day Cooper drove into the yard with a cord of fine hickory wood.

"I don remember what I told ye when I gave ye that cent? The woman's doing well so I thought I'd give ye a dollar bill."

The following anniversary he drove in. to the barn with a ton of hay, and said, "Neither dividend, parson. The wife is all right."

Every anniversary of the wedding during my pastorate another dividend found its way to the parsonage. So he has and my one cent became my biggest fee.

A Strange Stage Incident.

Stuart Robson tells a strange story of Laura Keene, with whom he played in the 'sixties. "The night of a battle of note was enough to upset the nerves of a week," he says. "On one occasion we were playing a farce called 'The Lady and the Devil.' An important scene of the piece is when she was sitting in a table preparatory to writing a letter. I, as her servant, stood at the back of a chair. Take your right hand off that chair," she whispered. The stage dialogue proceeded. 'Do as you are told, sir,' and Rafael at his lodgings? 'Yes, madam; I have seen him.' 'Then you must send for him to his bed for a week.' 'Is this the only paper that we have? Where is the ink?' 'Here, madam,' and I moved forward to place the ink within her reach, but, in the confusion, I upset the bottle, the vessel was upset and its contents began to run to the lap of the actress. The ink was blood red. I shall never forget the ghastly look that overspread her face, and I was so frightened that I never knew how the scene ended.

"Miss Keene declared a rehearsal she told me I was doomed to ill-luck for the remainder of my days. I joined the company together and gave them a detailed description of the awful scene I had witnessed between the two actors, which would never make an actor, but which would make a good bad, in which some great person had been murdered before her eyes, and that she had attempted rescue without avail; how he had fallen dead at her feet; and how his last words were, 'Save her for me.' I was two years after this that Miss Keene was playing in Wallack's Theatre, London, on the occasion when Abraham Lincoln was shot. Miss Keene was the only person who seemed to realize the situation. She ran to the box, and in a moment had the head of the President in her lap, while the scene of her dream was being pitifully enacted."

The Minister's Dividends.

It was a queer couple, says a preacher in a Massachusetts town, that drove up to the parsonage door. She was tall and angular, a typical "old maid," he was short, fat and jolly, with a sort of David Harum twinkle in his eye. "I live on a rising farm, will kept and paid for; and this is known as a neat, industrious man, who had brought up a family of children left orphans by the death of their sister.

Sally Cooper assisted the woman-from the kitchen by setting on the table with his stiff arm and stiffer knee. She will, while he blinked his horse, and Napoleon or they entered the parsonage.

"Now you can guess what we've been for, parson," he said. "My sister Jane, who has kept house for me sigh on to twenty years, died last winter, and I've been lonesome for me and the cows and pigs alone. So whenever you're ready, go ahead, only make it short."

The ceremony passed off without special incident. After Card had administered a sounding smack on Nancy's cheek, he said, "Now, parson, I'll be glad to pay you for your trouble."

"Well," I said, "you can give me whatever you choose," and I added, with a smile, "Give me what you think my job is worth to you."

In an instant his Yankee love for a trade came to the front, and finding an old-fashioned copper cent out of his pocket, he said, "Parson, I reckon I'll not be stuck very bad if I give you that to begin with. If I find she's worth more, why, you'll hear from me again."

He had the better of me; there was nothing more to be said. I went to the entry of the wedding in my private recent, and went home against 10 o'clock cent."

A year from that day Cooper drove into the yard with a cord of fine hickory wood.

"I don remember what I told ye when I gave ye that cent? The woman's doing well so I thought I'd give ye a dollar bill."

The following anniversary he drove in. to the barn with a ton of hay, and said, "Neither dividend, parson. The wife is all right."

Every anniversary of the wedding during my pastorate another dividend found its way to the parsonage. So he has and my one cent became my biggest fee.

A Strange Stage Incident.

Stuart Robson tells a strange story of Laura Keene, with whom he played in the 'sixties. "The night of a battle of note was enough to upset the nerves of a week," he says. "On one occasion we were playing a farce called 'The Lady and the Devil.' An important scene of the piece is when she was sitting in a table preparatory to writing a letter. I, as her servant, stood at the back of a chair. 'Take your right hand off that chair,' she whispered. The stage dialogue proceeded. 'Do as you are told, sir,' and Rafael at his lodgings? 'Yes, madam; I have seen him.' 'Then you must send for him to his bed for a week.' 'Is this the only paper that we have? Where is the ink?' 'Here, madam,' and I moved forward to place the ink within her reach, but, in the confusion, I upset the bottle, the vessel was upset and its contents began to run to the lap of the actress. The ink was blood red. I shall never forget the ghastly look that overspread her face, and I was so frightened that I never knew how the scene ended.

"Miss Keene declared a rehearsal she told me I was doomed to ill-luck for the remainder of my days. I joined the company together and gave them a detailed description of the awful scene I had witnessed between the two actors, which would never make an actor, but which would make a good bad, in which some great person had been murdered before her eyes, and that she had attempted rescue without avail; how he had fallen dead at her feet; and how his last words were, 'Save her for me.' I was two years after this that Miss Keene was playing in Wallack's Theatre, London, on the occasion when Abraham Lincoln was shot. Miss Keene was the only person who seemed to realize the situation. She ran to the box, and in a moment had the head of the President in her lap, while the scene of her dream was being pitifully enacted."

Many use simple mechanical tests for determining as nearly as they can what glasses the eyes can wear and call themselves opticians or professors. Ours is strictly a professional; we use scientific tests that will find the cause of the trouble and glasses are prescribed that will strike at the evil and overcome the cause. We guarantee results. Our guarantee means something. We are not here to-day and away to-morrow.

"STICKY WEATHER"

Aptly describes these hot days, when comfort is out of the question.

Ill fitting clothes makes matters worse.

The nearest thing to comfort is one of our correctly tailored suits made up in the fashionable loose style.

We guarantee to fit you.

A very cool part of cool clothes is the fit. How hot it makes you if you know your clothes don't fit.

We don't make to order, but we make to fit.

Another cool part is the wear. How hot you become if you have to repair them.

Your money back, here, if anything goes wrong.

Another cool part is the ease with which our kind can be bought. No ten days' delay—perhaps ten minutes will suffice.

TIMELY TOPICS

Hamilton bakers are on strike, and the Ambitious City people are living on health foods and putting a new and peculiar emphasis on a certain portion of the Lord's prayer.

The silk hat, it may be remarked, is popularly supposed to look well on anybody. This will be cheering news to the Aldermen and certain other prominent citizens who will don the Sovereign's hat to be presented to Lord and Lady Minto.

If there is anything which provokes a sensation of reverence and awe in the average man, it is to see a worthy citizen with his best bib and tucker on, and his roof overgrowed by a tile of the latest pattern, the date of the manufacture of which is shrouded in the mists of antiquity. He must be a bold man, indeed, who could face Major Maude with a prehistoric relic of that kind on his thinker.

Now that the route of the Viceregal procession has been announced, it is to be hoped that everybody along the line of march will do their best to decorate for the occasion. Put out your flags and banners, and let the distinguished visitors see that we're glad to see them and wish them well.

It is to be hoped, when driving up Dundas St., the Gov'nor won't ask to be shown where the early denizens of Belleville are buried. Somebody ought to start a dog fight on the other side of the road when he passes the old G.B.G.

After seeing Queen Victoria Park, it's dollars to doughnuts that Lord Minto will bestow the D.S.O. on Ald. Tyrrell, chairman of the Parks Committee.

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries, as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone, are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Warren, of Toronto, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Harry Whitney's Murder.

Collingwood, June 3.—Though a week has passed since Glory Whelan was slain in the outskirts of this town search for the murderer continues in a very vigorous manner. There are many aspects of the crime that convince Collingwood people that the child was killed by no stranger. The coroner will reconvene the jury to-day for a resumé of the inquest. Provincial Detective Greer has some additional evidence to offer, but the precise character of it he refuses to state.

Lady Henry Somerset Is Ill.

London, June 3.—Lady Henry Somerset, who has been dangerously ill from rupture, has undergone an operation and will be unable to attend the convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, at Geneva, Switzerland, June 7 to 9. It developed yesterday that Lady Henry Somerset was superceded in the presidency of the National British Women's Temperance Association because she advocated municipal ownership of public houses.

Killed by a Train.

Sundridge, June 3.—About seven o'clock yesterday as Mr. William Adams, a well-to-do and highly respected farmer was driving across the railway track here, a train, consisting of engine and one car, crashed into the wagon, breaking it into kindling wood and throwing Mr. Adams about sixty or seventy feet. When picked up Mr. Adams' life was extinct.

Fell Three Stories.

Hamilton, June 3.—Charles Atkinson, 123 North West Avenue, fell from the roof of the Traders' Bank last evening. He is a three-storey building, and when his fellow workman ran to pick him up they thought his neck was broken. Examination showed that no bones were broken, but he was badly bruised. That he got off with such slight injuries is a miracle.

Poet Years Succeeded.

Santiago de Chili, June 3.—A great storm occurred yesterday at Valparaiso. Four vessels foundered in the bay, the Esplandae was destroyed and great damage was done to the floating docks. There are some fears regarding the safety of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Arequipa.

3 MISERABLE MONTHS

South American Nervine cured this man—Cure a guarantee—Usually upset nervous system is traceable into Stomach—Regia of the stomach. No nervous trouble that it will not cure quickly and permanently.

William Davidson, of Thedford, Ont., put in three months of very acute suffering from neuralgia of the stomach and a generally disordered nervous system. Medicine failed and any treatment that would give me any permanent help. Then South American Nervine was tried and a very stubborn case of neuralgia of the stomach yielded to it. Words fail me to tell in detail how gratefully benefited and six bottles effected a permanent cure.

A Pious Parrot.

"I Coco meant the half of what he said, and was even a quarter as wise as he looked, he was a wonderful bird," says a writer in "Forest and Stream." Coco is a parrot that has been in close with an old English lady, who spent her life in her own apartments between her maid and the parrot. Coco was thus her almost constant companion, and, being intelligent, he developed, as had an easy flow of conversation, and said many very funny and apt things to have forgotten, but no one who saw and heard him at his devotions of a Sunday morning is likely to forget it. His mistress, being deaf, used the ear-trumpet in English read the service in her own room aloud, with Coco for company, and the parrot followed the instruction of his long-drawn 'Amens,' nor the comforting quaver of his 'Good Lord, deliver us' in the litany, and when it came to universal prayer Coco threw up his eyes and nodded his old head in dismal approval.

The parrot would have been unkind to smile during the performance, for Coco's feelings were sensitive, and, moreover, the old lady found comfort in the thought that he, perhaps, dimly understood. She told the following story in proof of his sanctity. A friend once came to visit her one day who also owned a parrot. The two birds were placed in their cages, and the visitor instanced, in proof of her pet's powers, an historical sentence that she had taught to say. She repeated the sentence several times, mimicking a parrot's nasal voice. Coco, meanwhile, showed evidence of great excitement. He sidled head over head across the back of the sofa on which the visitor sat, puffing out his chest and holding his breath till all of his feathers stood on end. Something was on his mind, and he was straining to get it off. As the visitor rose to go, his efforts culminated, and as she passed out of the door he screamed the sentence after her, exactly as he had heard his rival quoted.

Anecdotal.

Philip II, sent a young nobleman to Rome to congratulate Sixtus V. on his exaltation. Sixtus was dissatisfied at so young an ambassador being sent and, with his usual frankness, said, "Does your master want men, that he sends to me a beardless sophomore?" "Had my sovereign thought," replied the haughty Spaniard, "that merit consisted in a beard, he would have sent you a goat."

Charles Kean and James Wallack were once playing in the same theater at Windsor, Canada, and the actors were somewhat chilled by the cool and hearty applause to which they were accustomed in public. At the end of one act there was a little suggestion of hand-clapping and exceedingly gentle foot-tapping. Wallack, picking up his cane, remarked, "What is that?" "That, my dear Wallack," Kean replied, "is applause." "Bless me!" exclaimed Wallack. "I thought it was somebody shelling peas."

Bishop Potter is accused of having given currency to the following anecdote: A Chicagoan had been taken around Boston all day to observe her bulwarks, but had failed to exhibit any of those symptoms of paralysis which are acceptable to the Bostonian mind. "How confined," said the Bostonian host, after the burden and heat of the day, "isn't Boston a unique town?" "Unique?" mused the Westerner; "I believe that word is derived from two Latin words, unus, one, and equus, horse. I think Boston is a 'unique' town."

Walter Dean, sr., once hired an artist to paint his portrait, with the stipulation that the picture would not be accepted and paid for unless it looked like himself. When the portrait was completed it was sent to Mr. Dean, who did not recognize himself, and consequently refused to pay the painter. The painter sued, and Joe Strong, the artist, was called in to give an expert opinion. "You see the portrait of Mr. Dean?" the lawyer asked. "No," said Joe Strong. "I do not." "Why not?" he said the lawyer, pointing to the big picture on the wall. "Because that is not what I call a map of Mr. Dean," said Mr. Strong.

"Down in South Carolina," says Congressman Talbert, "I once attended a colored church. The preacher, one of those negroes with an oily face and big spectacles, was talking about the prophets. He had taken an hour to discourse upon the major prophets, and then he took up the minor ones. In course of time he reached Hosea. 'My brethren,' he exclaimed, 'we come now to Hosea. Let us consider him. Where shall we put Hosea?' At that moment an old negro, who had been peacefully slumbering in one of the back pews, woke up and looked at the pastor. 'Hosea can take my seat,' he said, 'I'm so sho' tired that I am going home.'"

The "Evening Post" of New York narrates that on Washington's birthday a well-known New York caterer gave the pleasure of a pair of English soles and English pheasants, and invited a couple of friends to dine off them at the dog show. It was a great success, but one of the guests, remembering the day, said it was not entirely patriotic. "Why," he added, "here it is Washington's birthday and we are dining on English sole, pheasant and currant jelly, eating French bread and drinking French wine. Let's have something American. Why don't you serve some clamdiggings?" "Don't worry," was the reply, "you've got it."

"Good Word" prints a little story of the early school days of Lord Salisbury, when he was Lord Robert Cecil, which shows how soon in his life his conspicuous disregard for dress began. When he was about seven years old he came into the nursery one afternoon on his return from school, which was held at the old rectory outside Hatfield, and dumped his books into a corner. "Oh, Betty," he said to his old nurse, "I wish I were dead." "Fie, fie, Lord Robert," Betty replied, "how can you wish yourself a beast?" "Oh," he replied, with a sigh, "then I think of how many times I must dress and undress before I die! I will my clothes grow on my back."

Some years ago a Philadelphia preacher inaugurated in his Sunday-school the practice of having the children contribute their pennies into the collection box, and if they had forgotten their pennies into the contribution box. On the first Sunday in question, a little shaver walked up to the desk. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," and in dropped his penny. "Charity shall cover a multitude of sins," said it dropped the next. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" quoth the third, and so on. Just then, up walked a little fellow with the unmistakable remnants of molasses candy on his chubby face, and as he dropped his cent, he blurted out: "A fool and his money are soon parted."

The Wit's Hour of Trial.

Repartee is like tennis. The ball is driven backward and forward from one player to the other, and it is one on whose side it last strikes is the loser. It is a terrible trial to the artist at repartee to find that he has no answer. The mere pretender does not care. He will answer anything more to the point or not; but the artist will not debase his art even for a moment. He merely sorrows for a good one.

There was a little Irishman who kept a liquor shop, and he was noted for always having ready answers. A sailor one day came in, laid a dollar bill on the bar and called for whiskey. The proprietor set out the bottle and a glass, and the customer filled the glass right up to the top. "Is it a coved you'd be wantin'?" the proprietor asked, implying thereby that the customer had poured out a bath, rather than a drink. "Look here," said the customer, pointing to the money, "there's a dollar, you can take the price of that drink out of it, and if there isn't enough, tell me how much more you want and I'll pay it, but I don't want any call from a little Mick of a bartender."

The proprietor picked up the dollar and laid down $5 cents. As the customer disappeared he walked around in front of the bar and said to a friend who sat there: "Casey, I'd have given me Hquor shop to have knowed what to answer back to that man."

Anecdotal

At North Berwick, near Edinburgh, the other day, a golfer whose record is greatly in advance of his skill got into difficulties at the second hole. He "topped" the ball, left his ball badly located in a bunker. He turned to his caddie in despair. Said he: "I've tried my brassie, and my cleek, and my mashie, and none of them will lift out that ball. What should you say I should take now?" "Sir," was the perfectly respectful and sympathetic response, "I was myself no taking, were it just me myself, the four-twenty train back to Edinburgh." And he did.

The English papers are full of sporty little incidents, alleged to have taken place in Canada during the recent Royal visit. It is related, for instance, that a proud and touchy resident in the neighborhood of Perth declined to go to Ottawa to see the Duchess because, although he went to see the Prince of Wales in 1860, the Royal family had never returned his call. Less ceremonious was the Western sidesman who, grasping the Duke's hand with firmness and effusion, exclaimed, "I met your old man here forty years ago."

A recently published story of the late Lord Morris, Chief Justice of Ireland, illustrates his scorn of red tape and petty details. A question had arisen as to the cost of heating the Irish law courts, and a consequential treasury official was sent over from London to Dublin on purpose to investigate the matter. When he introduced himself and explained his errand, Lord Morris smiled with suspicious blandness and said: "Certainly, I will put you in communication with the person immediately in charge of that department." There he sent out a messenger, and presently there entered an old charwoman. Lord Morris arose and left the room, saying as he did so: "Mary, here is the young man to see about the coal."

Father Taylor, the sailors' friend, was a man who at all times spoke with an engaging frankness, which sometimes became more brusque than was desirable. A banker from the West End of Boston once visited Father Taylor's church during a fervid revival, and during the usual character of the meeting by a rather pompous address. Its purport was that the merchant princes of Boston were a very beneficent set of men, whose wealth and enterprise gave employment to thousands of sailors, and that it was, above all, the duty of seamen to show their gratitude to the merchants. At the close of his address the banker was somewhat taken aback when Father Taylor rose and asked, simply, "Any more any other sheet from up-town who would like to say a word?"

Not long ago a Western Kansas politician was asked by his wife to lay aside politics long enough one day to dig the potatoes in the garden. He consented, and, after digging for a few minutes, went into the house and said he had found a coin. He washed it off, and it proved to be a silver quarter. He put it in his jeans and went back to work. Presently he went to the house again and said he had found another piece. He washed the dirt off of it, and this time it was a silver half-dollar. He put it in his jeans. "I have worked pretty hard," said he to his wife; "I guess I'll take a short nap." When he awoke, he found that his wife had dug all the rest of the potatoes. But she found no coins. It then dawned upon her that she had been "worked."

England's "Guinea-Pig" Aristocracy.

We are all "ladies" and "gentlemen" now, but the ladies and gentlemen themselves—the bitterest enemies of the latter would not accuse the majority of them of being either the one or the other, says an English journalist. Shopkeepers sell their goods, "society" sells their friends! The following advertisements, which are quoted from a well-known London newspaper, bear out the charge:

"A lady of title, moving in the best London society, is prepared to introduce a lady of means. Luxurious home in the West End; carriages kept. Terms must be liberal. The highest references offered and taken. Address Box —."

"A well-known lady, titled, is willing to chaperon a colonial or American lady. Would instruct one unaccustomed to the tablets and behavior of good society. Liberal terms required. Address, in confidence, care of —."

"A lady"—a member of one of the oldest county families, having a beautiful house in the country, would receive a young lady during the winter months and introduce her to the society of the neighborhood. Good hunting, hospitable society. An unique opportunity."

"A West End dressmaker who desires to extend her connection wishes to meet with a lady, or ladies, who would introduce business. Liberal commission offered. The strictest confidence may be relied upon. Address —."

"An old-established firm of wine merchants (city) is desirous of obtaining West End orders, of high percentage given to ladies or gentlemen introducing business."

"The nobleman or gentlemen of position in society able to influence capital. A large sum wanted by an old-established firm. Genuine concern. Particulars in confidence to Secretary, —."

"A young lady, rich, desires to spend the season in London, and to be introduced to the best set in society. Would pay handsomely for services rendered. Absolute secrecy guaranteed. Address Box —."

Our commercial friendships! Not content with selling worthless shares, illconducted lotteries, impure wines and unsmokable cigars, the "ladies" and "gentlemen" of the day apparently sell each other to middle-class aspirants for social distinction and to tradesmen! They complain that their servants receive commissions, and accept commissio n themselves! Our selling society is a combination of touts for all the trades! That explains, perhaps, why London "society" has become an object of such general pursuit; it is the only "gentlemanly" profession left, now that competitive examinations bar the way to appointments and sinecures under the Crown. How popular in the West End should be the well-known hymn as revised by Artemus Ward:

"I want to be an agent,
And with the agents stand!"

Brutalities in the Congo.

Mr. Frank H. Vizetelly of New York writes to The Globe in part as follows: "The Congo 'Free State' does a fruitful and a profitable trade, since, under the administration of the Congo Free State, the interior has been a vast field of blood. Under its "beneficent" influences the land has been devastated and the people subjected to atrocities without parallel even in the bloody annals of the "dark continent." The Semitic cruelty towards the natives which has at times been exercised by officials employed by the Congo State," says Sir Charles Dilke, "is not now denied even by the advocates of the State itself, and has been officially recognized by the British Government." He continues: "Our responsibility is such that if, knowing what we do, we fail to denounce the crime, we become participators in it." Such are the words of a British statesman on the conditions that Captain Guy Burrows, late in the Congo Service, aimed to expose in his book, "The Curse of Central Africa." That, indeed, Mr. Wilberforce and Buxton went to the help of the enslaved negro, Dilke has championed the cause of the Congolese natives in Parliament and on the platform, hoping to awaken in the English-speaking people a more than passing interest in their fate, and Captain Burrows has left up to the civilization of the Belgian people, the brutalization of their servants and of the Congolese natives, aimed to expose in the name of Central Africa. That, indeed, Mr. Wilberforce and Buxton went to the help of the enslaved negro, Dilke has championed the cause of the Congolese natives in Parliament and on the platform, hoping to awaken in the English-speaking people a more than passing interest in their fate, and Captain Burrows has left up to the civilization of the Belgian people, the brutalization of their servants and of the Congolese natives, aimed to expose in the name of Central Africa, the foul doctrines of Jean Christ. That, indeed, Mr. Wilberforce and Buxton went to the help of the enslaved negro, and

BOARD OF TRADE'S REGULAR MEETING.

Necessity of Prohibiting Net Fishing in Bay of Quinte Pointed Out.

Belleville's Advantages as a Summer Resort Should be Properly Advertised.

Prominent Gentlemen Speak in Support of the Public Bath Scheme.

At the Board of Trade meeting, held last evening, the following members were present: Messrs. C. M. Sinclair, Treasurer, Frankford; C. Hunt, J. H. Reeves, A. E. Lewis, J. A. Tousaw, Col. Ponton, C. F. Holton, Dr. Boyce, Dr. Goldsmith, Mayor Jones and the Secretary, J. D. Thomas.

Communications.

From Sir William Meloek, acknowledging the receipt of the Board's motions in reference to the Montreal strike and the local Post Office. These matters would be duly considered.

From Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., in reference to the receipt of motion re Post Office, and stating that he would do all in his power to have a change made. Sir Wm. Mulock had declined to interfere with matters in the office, but he had promised to send an inspector and instructor.

Mr. J. W. Johnson said that an inspector and instructor had been here.

The Duty on Coal.

A communication was read from the Sarnia Board of Trade in reference to asking the Belleville Board to assist in petitioning the Government to remove the duty on bituminous coal and permit free entry of coal for present.

From the Secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade in reference to the meeting of the Imperial Board of Trade, which would be held in that city during the month of August.

The communication from Sudbury re the reception of delegates was given a brief discussion.

Mr. J. W. Johnson said that a duty was imposed to protect Canadian coal, which was mined by boys.

Col Ponton asked if it affected Belleville.

The communication was, on motion, placed on file.

A number of resolutions were read by Col. Ponton, in reference to matters of importance which will be brought up at the Imperial Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Mr. Holton moved, seconded by Mr. Hart, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the committee which drafted the resolutions.—Carried.

Col. Ponton moved, seconded by Mr. A. E. Lewis, that ex-Mayor Johnson's name be added to the delegation that will attend the Congress of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held at Montreal.—Carried.

A Tribute to Mr. Thomas Hanley.

Moved by Col. W. N. Ponton, seconded by Mr. J. W. Johnson, That this members of the Board of Trade of the City of Belleville learn with sincere regret of the approaching departure of Mr. Thomas Hanley, architect and builder, from the city, and they desire to record and express their appreciation of the good citizenship and public-spirit continuously shown by him during the many years of residence in the City of Belleville, and to wish him success in the future wherever his field of labor may be found. That this Board takes pleasure in commending Mr. Hanley to the community with whom he may take up his residence, as a man whose skill and ability have been recognized by all.

The resolution was unanimously carried.

The Assessment Bill.

The question of the proposed new Assessment Bill being next up in the Legislature, Col. Ponton and Mr. Johnson, in referring to the Bill, stated that they had not considered it minutely, and as the Bill was a lengthy document, containing many amendments, it could not be discussed intelligently without a careful study.

The matter was allowed to drop, after an understanding that the Council of the Board could be called together if any action was considered necessary.

Belleville as a Summer Resort.

Col. Ponton stated that another important matter which should be brought up was that of advertising Belleville as a summer resort. There was not enough money spent in this direction. If we desire to attract tourists to our city we must offer no inducement, and the best way to do so is by advertising. Why not have printers' ink and colored steamers. The City Council should spend some money in this way, and it would, in the end, be money saved. Speaking of Zwicki's Island, the speaker said it was disheartening to see that place turned into a quarry. It was a valuable landing and could be made a beautiful summer resort. Turn it into a park and make it attractive. Another idea he suggested was that strangers coming to the city should be met by some member of committee from the Board could be appointed to meet them, welcome them the hand of fellowship and show them various places of interest. He felt convinced that next year Belleville and the Bay of Quinte would be better advertised by the G.T.R., as the result of the recent visit to this city of the magazine of that road.

Should Stop Net Fishing.

Mr. Johnson agreed with the remarks of Col. Ponton, but there was one matter he had not touched upon, namely, fish. We have scenic beauty here and an attractive city, but poor fishing. What we wanted was our bay stocked with fish and if it was advertised as an excellent place for fishing it would prove invaluable. Gill netting and seine fishing had robbed the bay. As there were but few fishermen who made a living by this industry, it might be well to consider the advisability of pensioning them off.

Mayor Graham—"On Sunday last two men were taking up a net on the bay in front of my residence in Sidney."

Col. Ponton—"Nets are placed in the bay before the ice is out."

Dr. F. G. Goldsmith, in speaking of the matter of attracting visitors, said that in Peterboro a club house had been erected and kept up, where strangers were entertained, something like that might be done here.

The Proposed Public Bath.

Mr. Johnson spoke in regard to the proposed public bath. He protested against being built off Victoria Park, as the water there was not pure and the shore not suitable. Off the Island there was an abundant supply of pure water and the shore was splendidly adapted for it.

Mayor Graham said the Council had not decided upon any place to erect a bathing house. A committee had been appointed, but had not yet reported definitely upon the matter. If the Board of Trade would make any suggestions in this regard he was certain the committee of the Council would receive and consider them.

The Viceregal Reception.

Mr. Johnson asked if the Board of Trade was to be officially represented at the reception of Lord and Lady Minto.

Mayor Graham said the President of the Board would be officially invited to participate in the drive, and the members of the Board would be provided with places upon the platform at the Central School.

The Public Bath Again.

Mr. Holton spoke in support of a bathing place being erected off the southwest corner of the park.

Supported by a Doctor.

Dr. Boyce thought the citizens generally approved of the project of erecting a public bath. Such a bathing house should be erected in as close proximity as possible to the city, but it was also necessary to have it placed where the water is pure. He thought that Zwicki Island was rather too far away for the younger children who would desire to use the bath house. In reference to advertising the city, one of the best ways is for its citizens to speak well of it at every opportunity.

Mr. Goldsmith spoke in support of having Belleville advertised by envelopes and mail cards, which would have some local scenes printed upon them.

This completed the business of the session and some informal conversation ensued in reference to the visit of the Viceregal party to the city and the route of procession which was proposed to be changed slightly.

The Mayor stated that the committee would consider any suggestions emanating from the Board.

Nothing definite was settled upon, and the Board adjourned.

ARE YOU WARM ENOUGH?

Don't ask me if I am hot enough, but ask me if I am cool enough. I am from now. Then you may ask me with an easy conscience, "Are you warm enough?" Fact is, I'm a trifle overheated in my haste to Oak Hall for a light coat. He came—and he went away pleased.

AN ERRING LAD.

WAS GIVEN A SUSPENDED SENTENCE BY THE POLICE MAGISTRATE THIS MORNING.

A boy named John W. Simpson was arrested last night on the charge of stealing some lead pipe and coil rope from the vacant premises known as the Tennant House. When brought before the Magistrate Simpson admitted he was guilty. The mother of the boy was in court and pleaded on his behalf and the Magistrate acceded to her request by not sentencing the lad to the Reformatory which sentence will be enforced should he again get in trouble. Simpson was ordered to go to school and be a better boy.

AN OPEN VERDICT IN THE CASE OF JOHN PENN.

REMAINS WERE TOO BADLY DECOMPOSED FOR CHEMICAL EXAMINATION.

The remains found in a bush on Long Point on Sunday afternoon last by some boys were those of John Penn, not Pemn, as formerly stated. The unfortunate man was a native of this county, and resided on the Indian Reservation, a short distance below Shannonville.

An inquest was held on Monday evening at Shannonville, conducted by Dr. Yeomans, coroner, of this city. Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, County Attorney, was also in attendance at the inquest.

From the evidence it appears that Penn left his home on Friday last, and from the statement of going somewhere to look for work. This was the last seen of him alive, until on Sunday last some boys, whilst wandering about on Long Point, came across the body. Owing to the fact that the body was badly decomposed it was utterly impossible to tell what caused death, but there was an appearance of a wound in the cheek, whether self-inflicted or not could not be ascertained.

The jury, after deliberating upon the case, returned an open verdict to the effect that the deceased was found dead and they were unable to say whether death was caused by violence or whether the wound was self-inflicted or not.

AN AGGRAVATING COUGH CURED.

A customer of ours who had been suffering from a severe cough for six months, bought two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it was entirely cured by the use of half bottles of it. TOO GREAT A RISK.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these troubles should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. THE VICEREGAL RECEPTION.

EVERYTHING POINTS TO A MOST SPONTANEOUS AND GRATIFYING FUNCTION.

Ald. Sinclair, Chairman of the Civic Reception Committee, had an interview with Miss Mc Maude, private secretary to His Excellency, the Governor-General, that the Viceregal party will arrive here at 4 p.m. on Friday, the 26th inst. Arrangements for their reception and entertainment are about completed. The school children and students have all been notified. The front of Queen Victoria School will be gaily decorated with flags and banners, and there will be an unique ceremony when the children gathered party leave their carriages and wend their way to the dais. Mike no mistake, Belleville people will not be behind when it comes to handing out a hearty welcome to the Governor-General and wife. The Fifteenth and Forty-ninth will both be represented in the civic banner. It will be a gala afternoon, so buy for boys' a "stovepipe" hat and see to the game.

A Forest Fire.

A geologist who explored with two companions a region on the western shore of Hudson Bay had an experience in a forest fire which would hardly be equaled in scope and fierceness farther south, where the woods are broken by settlements. The men had pushed far to the north of Fort Nelson, a trading post inhabited by tribes of Indians, where no white man had left a trace. Their story, as given in the "Youth's Companion," continues as follows:

We had crossed the mouth of a stream, he says, which forked twice some distance from where it opens into the bay of Nelson, making narrow deltas. By sundown we had gone a mile or so north of the upper branch. The air grew hot and dry. The light in the western sky was more dense and solid than that of the sunset, and it extended round to the north beyond the range of the setting sun. We knew that it was a fire, and hallooed on a rising slope, where we could get a broader view of the sky.

The wind was from the north-west, and the fire must be coming straight before it. In the hope of reaching one of the deltas of the stream which we had crossed about a mile to the south, we turned back and walked for our lives.

We reached the upper branch of the stream before the fire overtook us, crossed it, and sat panting on the soft moss on shore. The sun had set, and the fire marked its limits in a wide sweep covering the north-west.

As we sat waiting, the brush across the stream crackled, and five or six deer broke from the woods and stood on the bank, sniffing.

The air grew dense. A dull roar like a distant surf was blown to us from the south. It climbed half-way up a small tree, and then I saw a sight. Perhaps five miles away came the fire, a sea of red flame under a wall of smoke that rolled on in silence.

Before I descended from the tree the smoke was on us. One of my companions, noting that the trees on the delta were of a smaller growth, thought we might escape between the piles, with strips of water and an island between us and the fire. We plunged into it a hundred yards to the next mouth of the stream.

We were wrapped in smoke. The roar of the fire grew like a storm. We waded into the water, took off our coats and wrapped them wet about our heads. Then we noticed that we were not alone. Round us, only a few yards away, stood groups of horned creatures. Behind it a black shape lay in the water, evidently a bear. The dangers had made the whole world kin, and fear of the common foe my had made all the driven animals tame to each other.

Ashes and cinders settled over us, and we bowed our heads close to the water. The heat grew intense. Then with a shrids the fire burst over the northern bank. We turned to the south shore and waited. Our coats grew hot on our heads, and we "ducked" again and again. I turned and looked at the fire. It mounted, I should say, more than a hundred feet and leaned across the stream which was fully two hundred feet wide. I felt that some sprig of flame we crouched in the water, which grew tepid and then cool, and the mountains ashed that for miles up were seeking shelter it ith.

It was impossible for us to push on to the next stream. We were dazed and parched, and if the fire leaped that stream it would have caught us in the woods.

Suddenly I raised my head, and saw the flames like clouds of fire leap over the tops and under the tips of the trees on the southern bank. The fire had jumped the stream.

For an hour we stayed in the water waiting for the fire to burn out on the northern shore. A great weariness and stupor weighed us down. Presently we felt the air grow clearer and cooler. It was raining, and we dragged ourselves to the northern bank, where we lay with our noses close to the baked earth and grass.

Afterward we learned that the fire had ruined a stretch of timber three hundred miles long and seventy-five miles wide. Its exact as long as from Boston to Buffalo and half as wide again as the north-and south breadth of Massachusetts.

Mainly About People.

The Englishman sent by his Government to examine the schools of Germany reports that the fond Shakespeare so popular there that his landlord, when he made some reference to that poet, exclaimed with surprise: "Dear me! Have you also Shakespeare in England?"

A Kansas editor wrote this obituary notice: "He was born May 3, 1878, and therefore escaped this earth in time to celebrate his twenty-seventh birthday in the house of his eternal abode between the grating aines, having terminated hasi a Friday, March 21, 1902, at 9.30 p.m., central time."

Joseph Maltby of Philadelphia tells of a neighbor of his who went home at a rather unusual hour of the day and said to the family servant: "Can you tell me for any whereabouts?" Bridget hesitated for a moment, and then replied: "Faith, to tell ye the truth, I really believe they are in the wash!"

"Well, yes, I liked Dr. Hale," remarked a Western revivalist on an occasion when Dr. Edward Everett Hale preached in Pasadena, Cal., during a visit there. "I liked him pretty well, but I don't like some of his grammar. He said in one part of his sermon, 'It rests between him and me,' whereas he ought to have said, 'It rests between he and I.'"

Queen Alexandra, when Princess of Wales, came one day upon a tiny mite of a boy crying piteously. He was in charge of a fat and comfortable old lady, who seemed quite unmoved by his grief. "What is the matter?" enquired the Princess, who is very fond of children. "Is he ill?" "Well, ma'am," said the comfortable old lady, "the tan't heavatir ill, but no stomach can't stand nine buns."

"Will you please raise my salary?" "Why, I gave you a raise only last week, because you told me that you had your mother to support." "I know, but my mother got married and now I have two to support."—Ohio State Journal.

Mouse Whiskers and Bears' Eyebrows.

There are trout and salmon-fishers who pay several thousand dollars a year "for their flies" alone. Few persons can learn to tie artificial flies—knotting hairs that can hardly be seen, so the skilled fly-maker commands high wages. The materials used, moreover, too, says the Maine "Sportsman." The earth is ransacked for feathers and hairs, and one hair wrong makes "all the difference."

The business done in mouse whiskers is considerable this year, for they are used for the making of a wonderful little fly, the "new gray gnat," and they are sometimes worth more than their weight. Trout rise very much better at mousewhisker flies than at the same flies dressed in jungle-cock hackles, which look very much like them.

Bears' eyebrows, being stiff and exactly the right shade, are used in a newly invented fly that is killing quantities of salmon this year. These eyebrows come from the Himalayan bear, and hardly cost about one dollar and a half a set.

There are agents all over the world searching tropical forests for the right birds to supply fly hackles. One of the most sought-after skins is that of the rare "green acremer," an African bird about the size of a hen, which has a tiny bunch of feathers on each shoulder that is worth fifteen dollars a bunch to the fly-maker. One of these birds supplies only feathers enough to make eight or half a dozen flies.

There is no limit to the enthusiasm of an artistic fly-tier, who will use hair from his own eyebrows to "dress the entire scalp" fly. Babies' hair is much sought after, if it is of the right shade—golden preferred—for all the lighter salmon flies, and one curl will make a dozen such flies.

It takes an expert only fifteen minutes to turn out a fly, which consists of a tiny hook, with wings of Egyptian dove feather, legs of fox hair, and a body of yellow silk. A carelessly made fly will sell for a sovereign. The better the trout, the true expert adds the legs and puts on a pair of long "antennæ" of fox hair, tied at the tips. All these tiny details will be carefully followed, and a fly finally tied to the hook that the fly will take half a dozen strong fish and be none the worse.

A Plausible Suggestion.

They were coming across the Brooklyn bridge, says the New York "Evening Sun," and saw a little tug puffing around one of Uncle Sam's war vessels out outside the navy basin.

"There's a man-of-war, my dear," he said, pointing to the big ship.

"And is that little one a tug-of-war?" she asked, as she gazed dreamily upon the water.

What a Man Says.

We are only men, mere men, and perhaps our opinions are of no consequence; therefore it is with due modesty that I venture to say I do not like to hear slang from maiden lips. Both slang and swearing in any degree are most unbecoming in a girl, and the girl who shouts her "By Jovers!" in the faces of young men is sadly lacking in the charm she would so soon as she is engaged. It is no small thing to hear if she wins a man's love in spite of her repulsive methods of speech. If is strange that we should feel such distaste at hearing girls use expressions we ourselves use on occasions, but there is no account for it on the plea that we are eager to fancy that women are (as they ought to be) infinitely our superiors in refinement and delicacy. Many a man would think of little Miss The girl who innocently exercises the right of free speech and thinks that she possesses over the other sex, and who innocently rejoices in her talents, is not the girl we may be unwise, even blamable, but she is not malicious. There are, however, those who seem to take pleasure in bending men on their knees before them and in dismissing them in spite of some of their self-respect. These are cold-hearted beauties, and to be shunned by men as if they were serpents. On the whole, I think it must be said that men do not like flirts. It is our business to woo, not to be wooed. Flirts seem to us to be ungentle. Girls should be, of course, be nicely dressed; but, that said, all that need be said by us on the subject is said. Extravagant girls suit few of us. We are tempted to look askance at girls who come out every week in a new bonnet—every fortnight in a new "chic" enough to have cost something handsome. One more matter may be mentioned. It will surprise some readers that we should trouble our selves about so small a detail. When I see a girl who treats little children and dogs either with indifference or cruelty, I mark her down at once as not quite the right sort of girl; and others, I observe, are quick to notice the same thing and make the same estimate from it.

Schwab's New York Mansion.

Andrew Carnegie's splendid new residence on Upper fifth avenue is to be a rival in the home soon to be erected on the West Side, for his protege, Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel Corporation.

Plans for Mr. Schwab's city home have been completed, and it will cost about $2,500,000 and stand on a plot for which Mr. Sch wab paid $665,000 about a year ago. House and site, therefore, will represent an investment of more than $3,250,000.

Ever since the young president of the billion dollar steel trust bought the block bounded by Riverside drive, West End avenue, Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets he has been the cynosure of all eyes as to what he would do with it. One report was that he had bought the land merely as an investment. All doubt as to his purpose has now been set at rest and the borsan buildings have been completed about the block in which Mr. Schwab will build.

Following the example of Mr. Carnegie, the steel king will have a city residence with ample ground all about it. His new house will be built on the east end of the block. There will be a fine frontage on Riverside drive, overlooking the Hudson, and the grounds on each of the other sides will be laid out magnificently. The house will be four stories in height and is expected to be completed by Christmas next year. The New York Orphan Asylum, which has stood on the site for many years, is being demolished, and orders have been given that work for Mr. Schwab's mansion begin at once.

A FINANCIAL SENSATION

Brokers A. E. Ames & Co., Toronto, Suspend Payment.

A Slump in Stocks and a Continual Decline of Securities Held by Them the Cause—The Liabilities Are Estimated in Millions—What They Consist of—Private Fortune of Head of Firm Wiped Out.

Toronto, June 3.—The following notice was posted on the street door of the office of A. E. Ames & Co., of the well-known brokers, at ten o'clock yesterday morning:

"Owing to the continuous severe decline in the securities market, we have found it necessary to suspend payment, and would ask the indulgence of our friends for a few days till we can prepare a statement of our affairs, and consider what is best to be done. A. E. Ames & Co."

The suspension came as a surprise to the general public, and in a less degree to financial circles. A crowd gathered, the news spread, and soon it was known all over the city. Brokers and others interested in stocks were the intelligence more quietly than the uninitiated. The latter knew more of Mr. Ames' reputed wealth than of the fluctuations of the market, and so took longer to grasp the matter.

A Slump in Stocks.

A. E. Ames & Company's difficulties are due to the slump in stocks, which even the personal capital could not withstand. Disquieting rumors had been afloat, but these were not widely credited. Of late, however, securities in which Ames & Co. were interested took a downward tendency, and continued till the present climax. Ames & Co. are known among the largest operators in C. P. R., Twin City, Dominion Coal, Dominion Steel, Rich. and Ont. and Lake Superior. Of these, there has been pronounced pressure on C.P.R., Twin City, and Dominion Coal. Continuing for some days, the decline was very heavy Monday, and yesterday morning brought no relief. In some instances, Ames & Co. took stocks off the market to save themselves, but the effort could not be maintained. Heavy margins drained their resources, with the above result.

A Man of Wealth.

Mr. A. E. Ames has always been regarded as a very wealthy man, and, undoubtedly was, until recently. For three years ago successful coups brought him handsome results. The tide of fortune has may have turned a few months ago, when issues with which he was connected declined.

The suspension of the firm will have no absolutely no financial effect upon the many business institutions with which it was connected. Indeed, He was a member of the directorate of many companies, and his stock in these organizations, being paid up, is entirely unaffected by the suspension.

The members of the firm are, besides Mr. Ames, Messrs. Hilton, H. Tudhope, E. D. Fraser, and Alexander E. Wallace.

The Liabilities.

The liabilities are estimated in millions. Capital is $2,000,000. The money of the public on deposit, estimated by The Telegram at last night, is $200,000; amounts held by the firm for their customers who were speculating in stocks, which will be very large; what the firm owed the banks for loans; financial institutions for advances on stocks that they carried for their customers, also for money also loaned the Ames firm a quarter of a million dollars, but his personal securities, as have the other members.

Mr. Ames' personal fortune, estimated at 18 months ago at $1,000,000, is also likely swallowed up.

The company are not preferred as in a chartered bank and rank as ordinary creditors.

Mr. Macpherson Resigns.

Mr. Ames was President of the Metropolitan Bank, but he yesterday resigned that office and Dr. H. H. Warren has been elected in his stead, with Mr. S. J. Moore as vice-president. The directors issue a statement that the bank is in a healthy condition to the amount of $50,000, amply secured. They think says the failure will not affect it.

Nothing Further Expected.

The financial world is truly sorry for A. E. Ames & Co., and the best opinion does not expect further failures to affect other monetary institutions.

Mr. Ames was born in Lambeth, Ont., in 1886, is the son of a Methodist minister, and is married to a daughter of Senator George A. Cox. Last year he was president of the Toronto Board of Trade.

Justice Armour Dying.

Toronto, June 3.—Private advices received here yesterday state that there is very little hope for the recovery of Mr. Justice Armour, who is lying ill in Sydney, England.

Enquiry last night failed to confirm the report, but the statement was made from an authoritive source, that he would not live to sit on the Alaskan Arbitration.

Broke His Spine.

Underwood, June 3.—While driving home from Riverton Monday night, Jas. Smith, a farmer living on the second concession of Bruce, was fatally injured in a runaway accident. The horse took fright at some sheep on the roadside and leaped across a ditch, throwing Mr. Smith under his cart and fracturing his spine.

A Strong Swimmer Drowned.

Morrisey Junction, B. C., June 3.—A sergeant, name unknown, from Morrisey mines, attempted to swim the Elk River at Morrisey Junction Monday afternoon and lost his life. The river is in a flood and two bridges at this point have been completely washed away.

Rate of Speed Fixed by the Ontario Legislature.

Attempt to Make the Figure Seven Miles Talls—Mr. Playfair's Residence Exempted—Other Legislation Passed—Mr. Ross Defends the Government—Liberal-Labor Bill Talked—Mr. Hoyle's Lien Contract Bill Killed.

Toronto, June 4.—The House went into committee yesterday on Mr. Preston's bill to regulate the speed and operation of motor vehicles, when the father of the bill moved that the limit of speed be fixed at 10 miles an hour. He made a special appeal for a change to the bill, and showed that seven miles an hour would be altogether too slow.

Dr. Willoughby said seven miles an hour was as fast as cities should be allowed to run, and Mr. Carscallen (Hamilton) advised that the speed at crossings be limited to seven miles.

The speed will be 10 miles.

Mine Foreman's Bill.

The House divided in committee on the bill respecting the assessment of the property of James Playfair, in the Town of Lintodel. This bill was debated at great length a few days ago. It was reported by the House with an amendment, excluding the residence of Mr. Playfair from the provisions of an agreement, fixing the assessment of Mr. Playfair's mill property at $1,000 for ten years. The report of the committee was carried by 56 to 39.

Purchase of Lighting Plant.

Mr. McKay moved to amend the Municipal Act to allow the Town of Listowel to purchase and operate the plant of the Gas and Electric Light Company. The amendment proposed to restrict the town to the operation of the plant for lighting purposes only.

Mr. Carscallen argued that the town should be permitted to operate the incandescent plant.

The discussion was not concluded when the House adjourned.

The following bills were also considered in Committee of the House: To amend the Municipal Waterworks Act (Brown); to amend the act to permit municipalities to use voting machines (Pettypiece.)

The bill of Dr. Pyne, to amend the Public Health Act, was read a second time.

Third Readings.

Third readings were given to these bills: To amend the Public School Act (Hargraft); to confirm By-law 247 of the Village of Beamsville (Lansing); to confirm By-law 207 of the Town of Niagara Falls (Gross.)

Enquiries of the Ministry.

In reply to Mr. St. John, the Minister of Education furnished the House with some information concerning the Law Society of Upper Canada.

To Mr. Preston (Durham) the Minister of Crown Lands said Samuel Johnston was not employed by the Government in any capacity.

Export of Natural Gas.

Dr. Jessop moved for a return of the regulations at present in force by Order-in-Council, respecting the exportation of natural gas to the United States. The return was granted.

In the Legal Committee, Mr. Beck was given another chance to urge his Street Railway Tender Bill. This was thrown out on Tuesday last, but by reconsidered today. Mr. Mc. Cart's bill, to allow street railway companies to run only one trains on at crossings be limited to seven miles.

Conforming.

Foot soles are curved and soft.
Shoe soles are flat and hard!
Breaking in new shoes invariably means shaping the foot soles to the shoe soles, till wear moulds the insoles to the curves of the feet.
The RESILIA is the only shoe which conforms to the shape of the foot sole immediately, from the first moment it is borne upon, and without any "breaking in."
It does this through the compressible nature of the resilient, elastic, cushion centre-sole, which is placed between the leather insole and outsole, instead of the usual scrap filling."

A PRACTICAL LESSON IN PROTECTION.

At Sturgeon Falls in the Province of Ontario, a large pulp and paper mill is in course of erection. The pulp will be manufactured into paper right on the spot, and 500 hands will be employed. It is anticipated that the population of the town will be increased by 2,000 within a short period. If the pulp were shipped to the United States and finished there, the gain for Sturgeon Falls would be small compared with what it will be under existing circumstances. Two thousand new settlers means a new market for the farmer worth in the vicinity of $160,000 per annum. Here is a practical illustration of what manufactories mean for the agriculturist. What is being done at Sturgeon Falls can be duplicated at many points, provided that adequate encouragement is given to investors. The Borrier Government declines to make it possible to finish Canada's natural products within her own borders. If, instead of sending our pulp abroad and providing employment for foreigners, we were to look after the interests of our own people, there would open up large fields of employment for our labor, and at the same time place large sums of money right at the doors of the farmer. Canada can stand many happy experiences like that which has fallen to the lot of Sturgeon Falls. And the way to obtain such highly desirable results is by adopting a system of adequate protection and adequate encouragement for factories. That is what the Conservative party advocates.

Col. Matheson seems to be pouring hot shot into Cap. Sullivan. No wonder the Ancient Mariner is getting warm under the collar.

A Chicago actress has been ordered by her medical man to live, for a time, entirely upon champagne. We don't know the name of the disease she suffers from and wouldn't print it if we did. It would be just like some Kingston people to go to Chicago and catch it.

An Oklahoma young man tried to kiss a maiden whom he loved, and in the scrap that followed she beat him with a flat iron. Such strenuous love making as that is happily barred in Ontario.

THERE MAY BE SOME TRUTH IN THIS.

(Ottawa Journal.)

The worst soldier Britain is likely to have is the commander of the militia for four or five years is likely to be better for the militia for three or four years than any Canadian skilled soldier, for the political pull to get the command, and who would surely stay in command for thirty or forty years would be behind the time most of the time.

If Cap. Sullivan does not "forget some things" he may Cap-size the Government.

The proposition to accept a library from Andrew Carnegie will be voted on by the people of Toronto. If the rank and file have their say there will probably be no Carnegie monument in the Queen City. They're too independent.

The Orange Young Britons are meeting in Hamilton, and one of them, a "colored brother," was refused accommodation at a leading hotel. Queer that Hamilton, one of the most progressive and ambitious cities in Ontario, should be the place where they copy one of the worst features of U. S. intolerance. The authorities permit the Stars and Stripes to be carried in procession in their public streets, yet allow a licensed public house to refuse accommodation to a free-born British subject. Advance, Hamilton!

A Trying Time on Feeble Persons

ALL WHO ARE IN LOW VITALITY HAVE REASON TO DREAD THE COMING WEEKS—FORTIFY YOUR SYSTEM BY USING

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

If you watch the newspapers for the next few days you will find that the death record is a large one, and made up largely of persons in advanced years and of weak constitutions.

Vitality seems to be at low ebb at this time of year, and the sudden changes of temperature and humid atmosphere are more than a weakened system can withstand. A little extra exertion, a little exposure, a little neglect of the body, and health is undermined and break-down inevitable.

If you could but realize the reconstructive and upbuilding influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, it would be easy to convince you of the wisdom of using this preparation at this season of the year. When the blood is thin and weak and watery, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food enriches it by increasing the number of red corpuscles. When the nerves are exhausted, energy gone and strength declining, this great food cure builds up the system, restores and revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and rekindles the spark of life.

No physician can give you a better restorative than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for it is prepared in accordance with the most modern and most scientific principles, and contains in condensed form the most potent restorative known to medical science. By noting the increase of weight while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can prove for a certainty that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body. Catching Fugitive Hats.

On a recent windy Sunday a new and apparently predictable industry was disclosed in up-town New York. It was a day when hats were constantly off the head and trawled a block or two before they alighted, and then rolled or bounded three or four blocks more, like low-driven golf balls. People at Broadway and Forty-second street, says the "Tribune," had just witnessed a panic-stricken race between the owners of hat-rack, Derbies were tucked under tach arm; he held a soggy tall hat in one hand and a white felt crush hat in the other, and on top of his own Derby a black felt hat was jammed securely. He wore a smile from ear to ear.

"What are you doing with all those hats?" someone asked him.

"Well, I'a takin' all dat am a-comin' ma way," and he grinned. "I could a got more, but I ain't got no more place to put um."

"Why don't you give them back to the men who lost them?" he was asked.

"Well, you see," said he, "they was most generally so fah away dat I couldn't wait."

Then he went on up Broadway, with all his hats.

"He proves the old saying," was remarked; "never chase your own hat—someone is always ready to do it for you."

Another Big Fire In Ottawa To-day

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT A QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS.

(Special to The Intelligencer).

Ottawa, Ont., June 4.—Fire broke out at 443 Wellington street this morning and swept away part of the business centre of Ottawa, laying in ashes large portions of Sparks and Queen streets, between Bank and Kent.

The burned places include the big mill factory and lumber yard of Davidson & Thackery, the printing and lithographing establishment of the Mortimer Co., the chemical manufactory of R. J. Smith & Co., the paint works of Peter Stewart, and other small concerns on Sparks St., with Smith's dynamo private residence. The loss is approximately estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

PROPRIETOR—"Well Tom, how did that new furnace work this winter—save any coal?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! put in two tons less than last winter and have about half a ton left—guess it paid you to throw out that old coal-eater and put in this up-to-date SUNSHINE."

PROPRIETOR—"Yes, I think so; and I noticed the house was comfortable in all kinds of weather. Easy to take care of?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! just had to attend it twice a day—never had any trouble with the fire going out, and didn't have to spend half my time sweeping, cleaning, shaking, dumping ashes, and all that sort of thing—with all my customers had SUNSHINES."

In the end you pay more for coal than the furnace in which you burn it—a furnace that will save you

Panama Hats.

According to the hat dealers, Panama hats have decreased in price because the natives who make the material have raised the price of cloth, and this material is sent to New York and made into hats. There are more natives engaged in making it, and the work is done more leisurely and it not quite so good as in the old days. The machines now make the material into hats of every shape and suitable for young men as well as old, the increasing the demand. Even now, however, it is said that a good Panama hat cannot be bought for less than twelve dollars, and the prices range up to twenty-five dollars. The cheaper kinds, selling for eight dollars, six dollars, and as low as three dollars, are known as Porto Rico Panamas. It has been found that the grass from which the hats are made grows in Porto Rico in an inferior form, and the hat-making industry has been taken up in all parts of the island. Some of the hats made are of excellent quality, considering the material, but the greatest business is done in the cheaper kinds from what is known as the "split straw." These split-straw hats look like the real Panama at a distance, will be found comfortable, and to be smooth while the real article resembles canvas, so smoothly is it woven. Still, dealers say, a first-class Porto Rican Panama hat, costing about eight dollars, will wear fully five years and is economical in the long run, compared with the ordinary hat. A real Panama hat, costing from twelve dollars up, will wear from ten to fifteen years, barring accidents.

A Case of Absentmindedness.

The other day a young lady, daughter of a well-known millionaire, drove up to the door of a jeweler's shop, went in and asked to be shown a gold diamond ring valued at $250. She quickly made out her check for that sum and passed it on to the assistant. The alert young man picked up the slip and then looked enquiringly up at the young lady.

"There is some mistake here, I think," said he, with an apologetic smile."

The young lady flushed and demanded to see the check. It was out for the right amount. She was told it was, but—

"But what?" she exclaimed, haughtily. "Do you mean that my check is not acceptable?"

The assistant mildly acknowledged that he meant that, but when the young lady was, but explained that the check was not made out to the right order, and he handed it back.

The girl ran her eyes over it, and then turned a deep crimson.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "I see." And then she proceeded to make out another check.

She had signed the first one, "Your own sweetheart, Jessie."—From the "New Yorker."

An Erratic Temperament.

"A man of artistic temperament never worried about money he owed," said Filipino—Why, after me applying myself, night and day, to learn the Irish English language from the Americans, that bewildered subject of King Edward pretended he didn't know what I meant when I told him that I lost my last lump and right swing at Shamboo, and that I was near locked with joy because the Irish from Kansas City had copped the mainspring of the guess, and thereby made no more mistin' in a cinch."—Judge."

His Favorite—"What is your favorite play?" asked the lady critic. "Ordinarily," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, "it is the bill."—Judge. But what need the money it is 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'"—Washington "Star."

The bride of William A. Clark, Jr., the son of Senator W. A. Clark, the Copper King, has a dress in her trousseau made of hair-like copper wire that was created in Paris especially for her. The effect is said to be unique.

Mrs. O'Brady—Shure Oi want to bank twinty pounds. Can I draw it out quick if I want it? Postmaster—Madam, Mrs. O'Brady, you can draw it out to-morrow, if you make wake's notice!—London "Punch."

A Dearth of "Hold-ups."

PREVIOUS to Mr. McKinley's first Inauguration, his acquaintance with the members of his Cabinet was a very slight one, only Mr. Sherman being at all intimate with the Chief Executive. The getting acquainted was rather of slow progress, as all were engrossed in their new and intricate duties. One evening the conversation chanced to turn upon the youthful ambitions of the members. Each related his early plans for the future, and when Secretary Wilson's turn came, the Iowan said: "My ambition has not yet been realized. I wanted to be worth $1,000,000 and have two good pairs of suspenders at the same time. As yet, I have neither." The Cabinet unofficially laughed at this frank confession, and Secretary Gage, after a minute, confessed that he had never simultaneously possessed two pairs of pantaloons and Secretary Long remarked that when he graduated from Harvard he had but two pairs of new trousers, each with good new galluses, but that the experience had never responded to an encore; while the now Justice McKenna said that, although he came from the Pacific Slope, two pairs of "hold-ups" were unknown to him. Others made similar confessions, and finally Secretary Hiles, the wealthiest man present, said with a laugh: "This seems to be a strange coincidence. Last Saturday evening Mrs. Hiles came in to my study and said: 'Papa, are you going out all this evening?' I replied that I did not so intend, and asked the reason of her question. 'Oh, nothing,' she replied, 'only if you are not, Ed'—our name wants to use your only pair of suspenders.'"

As a sort of final course to this tale, Mr. McKinley tells that Secretary Wilson related this conversation at the Cabinet table the morning following. Three of his children were present. It was in the early holiday season. Most of the children sat interested and observant. Charlie Wilson, aged 11, the stocking of the Secretary of Agriculture were found three pairs of suspenders of a high degree of excellence. The children had remembered the story. At Secretary Wilson's then receded to realize his youthful ambition was the 1903 model.

And this is one of the very few humorous stories the Sage Ir'sdent told repeatedly with gusto.

A Roosevelt Story.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, the new President of the United States, was not always the mighty hunter that he is now. In the early day of being afraid of big game. But that was many years ago, when he was a wee little boy in short trousers and used to play tag in Madison Square in New York.

Opposite the square on the east side stood a Presbyterian church, and the sexton, while airing the building one Saturday, noticed a small boy peering curiously in at the half-open door, but making no move to enter.

"Come in, my little man, if you wish to," said the sexton.

"Thank you," said the boy. "I know what you've got in there."

"I haven't anything that little boys mayn't see. Come in."

The visitor came in. And the juvenile Theodore cast a sweeping and somewhat apprehensive glance around the pews and galleries and bounded off to play again.

Still the lad kept returning once in a while and peeping in. When he went home that day he told his mother of the sexton's invitation and his unwillingness to accept it.

"But why didn't you go in, my dear?" she asked. "It is the house of God, but there is no harm in entering it quietly and looking about."

With some shyness the little fellow confessed that he was afraid to go in because the seat might jump out at him from under a pew or somewhere.

"The seat!" said the puzzled but wise mother enquired.

"Why," explained Theodore, "I suppose it is some big animal like a dragon or an alligator. I went there to the last Sunday and Uncle Tom's boy and I heard the minister read from the Bible about the seat, and it frightened me."

Down came the Concordance from the library shelf, and one after another of the texts containing the word "seat" was read to the child, whose eyes suddenly grew big and his voice excited, as he exclaimed:

"That's it—the last you read!"

It was Psalm 1xxiii. "Or the seat of thine house hath eaten me up."

Dr. MacNamara, in his collection of child stories, tells one concerning that wonderful day when Noah's Ark and the angels going up the ladder to Heaven. "Please, sir," asked one of the boys when the ark to which the story was being rehearsed, "why did the angels want to go up the ladder when they had wings?" The nonplussed teacher, who took a straight movement of the rear by saying, "Ah, yes! Why? Perhaps one of the boys can answer that." And one did. "Please, sir," said he, "because they was s-moking."

Thomas A. Edison is deaf, but like many whose hearing is defective, he sometimes misunderstands what is said when it is least expected. There were visitors one day at his laboratory in Orange, N. J., and, as usual, politics, although busy, and he patiently answered many questionable questions directed at him. Finally, one of the visitors, the humorist of the party, said to another: "I've had seat at Edison's table in heaven." "Yes," said Edison, looking directly at the man and smiling, "I would; but no thank you, not to-day."

The late Lord Dufferin was fond of relating an amusing experience which occurred when he was returning to Ireland from a diplomatic mission to be married, and his engagement to the beautiful Miss Hamilton had just been announced. He landed one evening on the platform of a small country station from the last express of the day. A driver to take him up the four or five miles, but he was not invited up. The driver failed to recognize him. Presently Lord Dufferin asked "any news about here?" "No news," promptly replied the man, "except that the handsome Miss Hamilton is going to marry that ugly fellow, Dufferin!"

"STICKY WEATHER"

Aptly describes these hot days, when comfort is out of the question.

Ill fitting clothes makes matters worse.

The nearest thing to comfort is one of our correctly tailored suits made up in the fashionable loose style.

We guarantee to fit you.

A very cool part of cool clothes is the fit. How hot it makes you if you know your clothes don't fit.

We don't make to order, but we make to fit.

Another cool part is the wear. How hot you become if you have to repair them.

Your money back, here, if anything goes wrong.

TIMELY TOPICS

Our lacrosse team, you will observe, is off to a good start. Now see that the boys get the support they deserve.

The Governor-General could hardly have chosen a better time to come in order to see Belleville at her prettiest. Leafy June is her best month.

It may be the anxious strain or the dread of appearing in a silk hat, but it is an undeniable fact that several of our City Fathers have lately shown symptoms of nervous collapse. It's a good thing these Viceregal functions don't come too often; the wear and tear on nerve tissue is altogether too fierce.

They say that at least five of the Shakespearean can now bow in a manner which would not discredit Alphonse and Gaston. They've been practising hard, it is said.

If Major Maude should happen to ask if Belleville has any titled personages, of course the Mayor will mention Mr. Richard Arnott, C.I.S. and M.L., T.C., Esq., etc. Titles seem to be the rage for anything. Dick should get a carriage to himself in the procession.

Cap. Sullivan swore that Theodore Taylor, a Crown Lands official, owed $4,012 of the swag from the sale of that now celebrated timber limit. Now if Mr. Taylor can do anything to get to court he did with it, the celebrated conundrum, "Where did the Gamey bribe money come from?" may be answered.

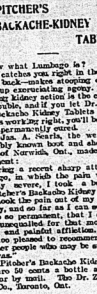

Who says Anglo-Saxon unity is not a living, breathing, pulsating fact? A Philadelphia mob tore down and destroyed a British flag which a citizen ventured to hang out from a window on Decoration Day; and the citizen himself would have been mobbed had not the police put the American flag in his hands and advised him to wave it. The incident is more eloquent and convincing than the most elaborate and glowing speeches delivered at banquets dedicated to the promotion of Anglo-Saxon unity. And it happened, too, in the "City of Brotherly Love!"

The murderer of President Lincoln is dead again, for about the eleventh time. It is to be hoped that this time they will let him R.I.P.

A SEVERE CASE OF LUMBAGO.

MR. JAS. A. SEARLS, NORWICH, ONT., QUICKLY AND PERMANENTLY CURED BY

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS

Know what Lumbago is? Pain either in the back in the small of the back—makes stooping over or rising up excruciating agony.

Wenzy Kidney action is the cause of the trouble, and if you let Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets set the kidneys working right, you will be quickly up and more fully cured.

Mr. Jas. A. Searls, the well and favorably known hotel and shoe merchant of Norwich, Ont., made this statement:

"During a recent sharp attack of lumbago, in which the pain was excruciating, I took a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. After the pain left my back so quickly, and so far as I can see made a cure so permanent, that I consider them unequalled for that most prevalent and painful affliction. I can only too pleased to recommend them to other people who may be suffering as I was."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are for sale at 50 cents a drug-gists or by mail. The Dr. Zins Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Comic Opera Strike.

THERE is, as a rule, little that is humorous in a strike. But a recent strike in Columbus, O., is so humorous and at the same time so extraordinary that it seems almost incredible. It sounds as if it took place in Topsy-turvydom instead of in the United States of America. It would make a good libretto for one of Gilbert and Sullivan's crazy operettas.

This is the story of the Columbus strike: C. M. Jones is editor and proprietor of the Columbus "Press-Post"—that is, he was. The paper is now apparently being edited by almost everybody but the editor. It seems that Mr. Jones got into trouble with his city editor. The city editor is a member of the Newspaper Writers' Union. Now Mr. Jones has been a tyrant among newspaper reporters that they are not so well treated as the printers, because they have no union. On the other hand, the printers have a union which is the most powerful and prosperous trade union in the country, with the possible exception of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The reporters have attempted to form unions. But they are like ropes of sand. So they finally decided to organize under the wing of the printers.

In every union printing-office there is a body called "the chapel," presided over by a "father." The foreman represents the employer, the father of the chapel represents the printers. Whenever there is a question at all, the printers invariably take their orders from the father of the chapel instead of the foreman. So in the office of the "Press-Post," the reporters organized as a newspaper writers' union under the protection of the printers' chapel.

Editor Jones found City Editor Marshall unsatisfactory for various reasons. First, he had criticised some court house officials who were friends of Editor Jones; and, second, he had been "snooping" by the other Columbus papers on a railroad wreck; they had run the wreck with "scare-heads," and City Editor Marshall had not run it at all. Therefore Editor Jones requested Marshall to resign. Marshall refused, and Editor Jones then informed him that he was discharged. Marshall at once ordered a strike, and Newspaper Writers' Union No. 2 walked out. Editor Jones attempted to parley with them, and offered to secure another editor. They refused to return unless Marshall was replaced. Thereupon Editor Jones broke off negotiations, got ten young men from the State University as reporters, edited their copy himself, and it was sent to the composing-room. The father of the chapel walked to the linotype-machine, rapped therewith with a mallet, a chapel meeting was held, and the printers stopped their work. The father of the chapel informed Editor Jones that if the non-union copy was not removed from the hook the printers would strike. Editor Jones took back his non-union copy. That day the "Press-Post" did not come out. The next day Editor Jones sent the copy to press without any local news, filling it up with narratives of the low-necked gowns at Newport, snake stories, accounts of the shocking attire worn by the young women at Long Branch, and other refined and pleasing information of the kind usually found in the Sunday supplements of great daily newspapers. Unfortunately, Editor Jones's feeling somewhat embittered over the situation, wrote with his red right hand a savage editorial on the labor questions and sent it to the printers. Not being local news, and being written by the editor and proprietor, it might be supposed that they would print it. Not so. Again the unfortunate editor was informed that he must withdraw his non-union copy, or the printers would strike. Editor Jones withdrew his editorial.

At last accounts the "Press-Post" is still running without the local news, and Editor Jones is beseeching Samuel Gompers, of the International Typographical Union to devise some means by which he may be allowed to get his paper out.

But the question may be asked, Who is editing the Columbus "Press-Post" during these progressive Editor Jones? Is it the discharged employee, City Editor Marshall? or is it the Newspaper Writers' Union No. 2? or is it the father of the Columbus printers' chapel? or is it the president of the International Typographical Union of North America?

Expenses of Society Life in New York.

Mothers of daughters having social aspirations find it very expensive to meet all the social requirements and demands made upon them, as is shown in proceedings in the Supreme Court of New York brought by Mrs. Kate Shippen Roosevelt to have the property allowance of her daughter, Dorothy Quincy Roosevelt, increased from $1,500 to $5,000. Even the latter sum will not by any means be sufficient to keep the young lady in society properly and meet all the various expenses incidental thereto. Mrs. Roosevelt says she is willing to pay the additional expenses, which will amount to several thousand dollars annually, out of her own pocket. Miss Roosevelt inherited $150,000 from a deceased uncle, which is being held in trust for her until she comes of age next year, inasmuch as her income amounts to $1,000 and Mrs. Roosevelt proved to the satisfaction of William J. A. Mc-Kenna, the referee, that that is only a reasonable amount for a young woman of good social position. The referee's allowance was granted. In giving her testimony, Mrs. Roosevelt said she had six tutors for her daughter, who among other things, was being educated in German, French, and Italian. She was also being instructed in elocution, belongs to several social dancing-classes, is a member of golf, tennis and bathing clubs, is fond of riding, and has an English governess. Mrs. Roosevelt added that the needs of her daughter were increasing year by year, that she found entertaining and traveling abroad added greatly to the cost of living, that one of her daughter's greatest incidental expenses was for attire of cabs going to and from social functions, and that a great deal of the social life which young ladies in New York see is where gentlemen are not invited, such as teas, receptions, etc.

DO YOU KNOW THOMAS HUNTLEY?

PEOPLE WHO KNEW HIM A YEAR AGO, AND SEE HIM NOW, HARDLY RECOGNIZE HIM—HE LOOKS SO WELL AND STRONG.

This is what he says:

Belleville, Ont., May 7th, 1903.
The O. R. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism. My hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered much in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope, when a friend induced me to try the O. R. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Anecdotal.

The following anecdote is told by Andrew Lang in "Longman's:" Mr. M. —— was out in the Forty-five. He was taken, and was being brought to the Tower with Kilmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad carriage, and a lady, looking from a window, cried: "Poor old rebels!" (Mr. M. was six feet four) "you will soon be shorter by a head!" "Does that give you pleasure, madame?" said Mr. M. "Yes, it does." "Then, madame," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."

A writer in the San Francisco "Argonaut" spoils a good story in this wise: Pauline Bonaparte Borghese, Napoleon I.'s younger sister, posed entirely nude to Canova, and it is said that she remarked, when asked if she did not feel cold without drapery: "No, did not feel cold without drapery: "No, the room was kept warm by a stove." The real story, according to the "Critic," is that a friend, who was very much shocked when she heard what Pauline had done, exclaimed, "How could you do such a thing!" To which the Princess replied, with a shrug of her beautiful shoulders, "It was nothing—the room was warm."

One day, just as Pere Monsabre, the celebrated Dominican preacher of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Paris, was preparing to ascend the pulpit, a message came to him that a lady wished to see him who was worried about an affair of conscience. After much waste of time she came to the point. She was given up to vanity. That very morning, she confessed, she had looked in her looking-glass and yielded to the temptation of thinking herself pretty. Pere Monsabre looked at her and said quietly: "Is that all?" "That's all." "Well, my child," he replied, "you can go away in peace, for a mistake is not a sin."

The story is told of three Protestant ladies who walked into a Roman Catholic church in Ireland during high mass. It was raining, and they had gone in for shelter. The priest, on nature's gentlemen, recognized the ladies, and, stooping down, said to an attendant: "Three chairs for the Protestant ladies." It was a kindly thought, but the priest must have wished he had never thought it when the man stood up in the church and shouted: "Three cheers for the Protestant ladies!" It was over in a minute—the cheers were cheered and could not be called back; but it was one of the most uncomfortable moments in the good priest's life.

Herbert Spencer, the great English sociologist and philosopher, is very fond of a game of billiards, and the other day at the Reform Club in London he met an acquaintance whom he invited to play with him. The young member accepted, and Spencer said, jocularly, as he chalked his cue: "Young man, good billiard-playing is the proof of a well-balanced mind." "I believe it is," replied the young man. They played and the great writer was beaten fearfully. He had only scored thirteight when his young antagonist finished his one hundred. Herbert Spencer put the cue away in disgust. "Young man," he said, "such fine billiard-playing as yours is the proof of an ill-spent youth."

General O. O. Howard, who commanded one of the wings of Sherman's army on the famous march to the sea, and who bore Lee's first shock at Gettysburg, was once interviewed on the subject of answers to prayer. In his famous fight with Stonewall Jackson the Union forces were defeated, so he was asked: "You prayed before the battle?" "Yes," he answered. "And Jackson was a praying man. He prayed also?" "Yes," he assented. "Then how was it he gained the victory? Did that mean that the Union cause was wrong?" Very gently the good old general replied: "Both our prayers were answered. Jackson believed in predestination, and I prayed for the ultimate triumph of our cause. We both got what we prayed for."

Mark Twain had a peculiar experience when he attended his first grand banquet. He says: "I was placed between eight hundred and nine hundred guests. I knew not a soul among anybody, read out a list of the chief guests before we began to eat, and says. Then he came to pronounce names the other guests would applaud. I found the names rather a snag, as a talker. Just as we got to an interesting subject there was a tremendous clapping of hands. I had hardly ever heard such applause before. I straightened up and set to clapping with the rest, and I noticed a good many people round about me doing their admiring on me, and some of them laughing in a friendly and encouraging way. I moved about in my chair, and clapped louder than ever. 'Who is it?' I asked the gentleman on my right. 'Samuel Clemens, better known in England as Mark Twain,' he replied. I stopped clapping. The life seemed to go out of me. I never was in such a fix all my days."

Not a Happy Outlook.

Potato Palmist—This line tells me that you will meet with a terrible accident in your old age. You will be skinned alive, your eyes will be dug out, then you will be boiled, and finally mashed to a pulp.

A school inspector, having a few minutes to spare after examining the school, put a few questions to the lower form boys on the common objects in the schoolroom.

"What is the use of that map?" he asked, pointing to one stretched across the corner of the room; and half a dozen shrill voices answered, in unassured articulation:

"It's to hi. the teacher's legs."

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the internal use of Catarrhozone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores hearing and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mrs. Warren, of Toronto, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At druggists, or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Successful Minister.

The Rev. Thomas Hambly, son of the late Ald. Hambly, and son-in-law of the Rev. Alexander Martin, of Belleville, will be the minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church, is another Belleville boy who has made his mark and is being considered an ideal pastor's wife, Mr. Hambly is now the pastor of the Methodist Church at Brantford, Wisconsin, and is making his usual record at that place, having increased the membership increase follow wherever he goes. To accommodate the crowds who want to hear our former townsman, a new church has just been completed, which is up-to-date, in that it has a reading-room, gymnasium, baths, etc.

A Rug for Nothing.

A slight blaze at the residence of Mr. John McIntosh, Perth St., a few o'clock yesterday afternoon, gave the firemen the second run for the day. Some clothing near a stove became ignited, causing a slight alarm. The only damage sustained was the clothing destroyed. The services of the hydrants were not required.

In order to correctly round out the pictures, the characters, costumes, scenery portrayed in Hingling Brothers' unequalled production of Jerusalem and the Crusades, which comes to this city soon, ever constructed is shown in the church settings. This organ is the acme of entertaining volume and richness of tone, and excels instruments of a similar kind found in the famous old cathedrals of Europe. Accompanied by the instrument, a grand chorus of 200 specially selected voices rise and blend in classical selections, filling with wonderfully sweet harmony the vast canvas amphitheatre, capable of comfortably seating twenty thousand people.

Reserved seats at Biggs' on show day.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Great satisfaction was expressed on all sides last night when it became known that the local lacrosse team had been victorious at Hastings. Belleville evidently has a good team, which deserves and no doubt will receive proper support. As our readers know, thirteen players had been picked to go, but yesterday morning two were unable to get away, namely, Messrs. Burke and Patterson. It was decided to get seven men, but when they got to Hastings, the morning being spent in resting and seeing the sights of the village, the game was started for 3 o'clock, but at that hour Mr. Frost, the Peterboro man who was to have acted as referee, had not turned up, and did not do so. At last, after a good deal of discussion, Mr. H. Stephenson, of Marmora, was agreed on as referee. Belleville, of course, had only eleven men, and the Hastings lads showed their sportsmanlike spirit by dropping one of their men, something they were not in the rules, compelled to do. The match began at 4 o'clock, the teams lining up in this way:

Hastings		Belleville
	Goal
Jas. Welsh		J. Diabo
	Point
W. D. Clapper		W. Hitchon
	Cover Point
T. A. Coughlin		M. Cook
	1st Defence
J. Walsh		A. Leaf
	2nd Defence
Clyde Stewart		F. Acton
	3rd Defence
Jas. Welsh		E. Ford
	Centre
Geo. Covey		H. O. McGuire
	1st Home
Chas. Stewart		J. Diabo
	2nd Home
E. Scriver		H. Kennedy
	Outside Home
F. Dodd		W. Whitty
	Inside Home
C. Prest		J. A. Winchester

Umpires—Messrs. J. O'Sullivan and R. Thompson.

Timekeeper—T. Howard.

Hastings got the first goal, which proved a fine one, after 5 min. The first quarter ended 2—1 in favor of Belleville; there was no scoring in the second quarter; in the third quarter Belleville got 2 goals and in the last quarter 3 goals, thus winning the match by 8 to 1.

The Hastings lads played a nice, clean game, and Belleville could not negotiate the Belleville defence, while the combination of the Belleville home, particularly towards the end of the match, completely bewildered the villagers' defence. That, in a nutshell, is the story of the battle. Belleville's Indian players, the "dark horses," were tireless and decidedly hard checkers, while the rest of the team played their positions effectively, played an earnest, unselfish game, and that kind of a game, you can bet your next week's salary, is the one that wins.

The best of good feeling prevailed throughout the match, and the Hastings boys proved themselves gentlemen and good losers. There was only one casualty, Coughlin, of the villagers, getting a nasty cut on the face accidentally, of course. Leaf, Belleville's defence man, was heavily checked and has a few bruises and scratches to show as a result of the attention paid to him by the Hastings home. There was a hitch, post the match, over the gate, being nearly $50. Taken altogether, the trip was a pleasant one for the boys, and they, have nothing but praise for the hospitality and the way they were treated.

And now it may be gently pointed out to the home bunch that, because they have won their first game, it is a good style they have not yet captured the championship. There is a decidedly husky team in Peterboro which, in two weeks' time, will bump them pretty hard, and the score is not likely to be 8—1. Don't gentlemen, get that too common disease, "enlargiensis of the coco," but buckle in and practice regularly. That's the way to win championships, and the Belleville boys have a chance to the strict championship is coming this way, but look out for that Athletics of Peterboro; they'll take a lot of beating. Of course, the lads have made a brilliant start, and here's hoping they keep it up. Good luck to the "Red and White Boys."

HOW A SPRAIN DOES HURT!

But it isn't the pain alone that is disagreeable. The pain is gone in a little time and vages. Sprains without treatment have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back Nerviline will do it, and now that just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only a 25c bottle but that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings. Polson's Nerviline is Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

Proceedings of Ontario Synod

MATTERS AFFECTING THE REV. TONY JANDS OF BELLEVILLE DISCUSSED.

Kingston, June 3.—The fortieth session of the Synod of Ontario opened yesterday for business. Bishop Mills presides. Belleville delegates present were: St. Thomas', Rev. G. R. Beamish, Sam. Wood; Christ Church, Rev. D. Bessey, W. Bashford; St. John's, Rev. D. F. Bogert, Col. S. McGill, Rev. Canon Burke, ex-Rector of Ogdensburg, and Rev. A. L. Geen, were also present.

The roll call showed a rather small attendance, many of the delegates not arriving till afternoon.

The Audit and Accounts Committee's report contained the following recommendation: "In the matter of the Belleville balances appearing in the sustentation fund, the balance about four committee recommends that they be charged back to the rectory of Belleville."

In the matter of the Canada Permanent stock, held by the Synod, it was suggested that the stock be realized, as it was showing a downward tendency.

Lieut-Dean Bogert entered into a lengthy explanation of transactions concerning the Canada Permanent stock. He also advised holding the stock, which would recoup the Synod for the outlay.

Mr. Tighe criticised a property deal affecting the rectory of Belleville. Certain properties had been sold, but no record, save by memory, was now obtainable. There was not a mortgage given or any legal record made. portion of the money had been paid in and the Rector was supposed to collect the balance due. It was a wise decision in determining to transfer the whole matter to the Rector of Belleville.

Rev. Mr. Beamish thought a commission should be appointed to look into the question of these transfers. Lands in Belleville, he thought, were being lost to the church, because of the mismanagement.

Chancellor Walkem replied that he had a complete record of the deals, which were open for inspection.

The statement as presented was adopted.

R. V. Rogers, treasurer, presented the annual report, which was considered so satisfactory that it was adopted without discussion. It showed that the consolidated fund had a grand total of $384,997.90, while last year it stood at $376,310.85, an increase of $8,687.01.

PEN PICTURES OF PEOPLE YOU MEET

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

PRINCIPAL MATHISON.

During his twenty-four years superintendency of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, the above gentleman has grown to be a well-known figure on the streets of this city. He is generally seen behind a nobby little bit of horse flesh, and his turnout is one of the smartest on the road. A keen, strong face, hair and beard plentifully streaked with grey, rather an autocratic manner, which, perhaps, is but natural for one who has to anticipate many difficulties and shoulder many responsibilities; that, we will risk the opinion, is not a bad pen picture of Mr. Mathison, who, in spite of his pluny and exacting duties, has still found time to make a host of friends in Belleville, and, incidentally, perhaps, has also practised the gentle art of making enemies. Mr. Mathison has two hobbies, so his friends say. One of these is a passionate devotion to his profession, and the other a sincere and properly-carried out determination to mind his own business. A most laudable ambition, by the way. Having been a newspaper man in the days gone by, Mr. Mathison acquired a taste for keeping his close touch with current events, a task which still clings to him, and the effects of which are shown when one engages him in conversation. An earnest, practical man, who can probably, as the old saying-has it, see as far through a stone wall as anybody. The excellent standard set and maintained at the Institution over which he presides speaks volumes for this capacity and vigorous zeal. Naturally, like every other member of the present, of the Fourth Estate, Mr. Mathison loves a good story, and does not object to telling it himself. His long association with those deprived of the power of speech has not put him in the category of those unfortunate people who hate the sound of their own voices. Not at all. Mr. Mathison can talk, and talk wittily and to the point, as those who have heard him reply to a toast, at a banquet or, preside at a lecture will testify. And where do you think he was born? In Kingston, as sure as the Government Granary will be, and he is proud of it! This is a record he was born in 1843. His father was a veterinary surgeon in the 43rd Battalion, 1st forces—Canadian, he was. After Mr. Mathison's death the family went to the Old Country, coming out to Canada again about 1857, and when they settled in Woodstock, where the subject of our sketch was educated in the Public and Grammar schools. After his father's death Mr. Mathison entered the office of the Brantford Expositor, afterward working on the staff of the Hamilton Times. After five years in Hamilton he returned to the Brantford Expositor as editor and part proprietor. While acting in this capacity he devoted himself for the profession of teaching, but never followed it up. In 1880 he was appointed to the bursarship of the Hospital for the Insane at Toronto, where he was for six years. He was then promoted to the position of Industrial Master at the Central Prison, Toronto, where he remained till September, 1893, when he was appointed to fill his present position. After assuming his position here Mr. Mathison studied hard with the object of qualifying himself in all branches of his profession. It is interesting to note that Mr. Mathison studied with Prof. Alex. Melville Bell, father of the telephone man, and author of Bell's System of Visible Speech, and to the Deaf part of his tuition takes place in the same house that Prof. Bell's father lived in. Here the telephone was perfected by his famous son. Having committed himself to the principles of the Articulationists and Principals of Institutions for the Deaf, Principal Mathison was one of the examiners for 12 years and afterwards acted as secretary. He read a number of articles on the education of the deaf before the Ontario Medical Society, the faculty of the National College for the Deaf, Washington, D. C., and the Society as a representative to the Supreme Court. He worships at Bridge Street Church.

KILTIES' BAND HOME.

BELLEVILLE'S FAMED TOURING ORGANIZATION—THE PRIDE OF CANADA.

(The Toronto World, June 3, 1903.)

After the longest journey in the line of any musical organization in America, the Kilties Band (Gordon Highlanders, Belleville) returned to their home in this city last night. Fifteen members and Bandmaster William F. Robinson, were met on arrival at that city by a large crowd of their local admirers on the 49th Regiment Band, relatives and friends, and at Toronto, where the majority of the Belleville people joined them a number of enthusiastic friends awaited the band's arrival. The remainder of the musicians, numbering eighteen, are from Montreal and Belleville, proceeded to Belleville today in their private car Biddie. The men seem much pleased down with curios with which they were presented by admiring enthusiasts in old England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Paris, Columbia, etc., and the fact that the forty-eight weeks' tour in the British Canadian, United States and Mexican cities has made the men's collective purse, and bank account, fatter by the year over 300 cities have been visited, and the band has covered close to the guilt, and 32,000 miles have been covered. Bismarck is the only city the band has ever missed not having played in, and the reason for this was a serious accident to the leading drum-major, which delayed by accident or otherwise, Boston, on the fourth appearance in that city. Cameron Brown, owner of the band, and Mr. P. A. Power, director of the tour, are now in Belleville completing arrangements for the next tour, which begins after three weeks' rest, on July, 1. The chief summer engagement will be at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, where the band will appear first week of the greater part of July. The Kilties attendance record of 120,000 at that great exhibition will be the highest ever reached the park management to at present, the "pride of all Canada" for this year.

BOYS' ROBERTS.

You may not be aware of the fact that Quick & Robertson carry a very large range of Steel Roberts, and such is the case. We have them in all sizes, and the prices are very low and no better values are procurable anywhere. See our Black Cat brand of Hosiery.

Alleged Insult.

Mrs. F. Ackerman was charged with using insulting language towards Gordon Sharp, Dundas, drunk and disorderly. Case was adjourned until Monday.

Trenton Man Discharged.

Robert McGregor, at Trenton, was yesterday discharged on a charge of stealing flint on the charge of obtaining by fraud a buggy from a Sherburg seamen. The transaction occurred two years ago, and it was charged by the defendant that the plaintiffs had an opportunity to receive back the buggy on the payment of $10 and refused him. As a result of the investigation Magistrate Anderson discharged the prisoner. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. McMahon the accused.

SUMMER RESORTS.

Tale of The Press Censor.

MR. R. G. HALEN, the war correspondent, tells a funny story about a press censor in the second number of the "Week-End." We had some fun, he says, with some of those haughty gentlemen of the press star. I was working part of the time with a correspondent who had two faults: firstly, he wrote a hand that no one but a telegraph clerk or a compositor could decipher; secondly, he stuttered when he talked, so that no one but an archangel could understand him when excited. We struck a most imperious censor, who was so well informed that I doubt if he could read cold print without the professional stutterer's crowd to "copy." It was an awful hand. If he had written it with the butt-end of a Thatcher hoof I don't think it could have been worse. The censor looked at it and handed it back. "Can't send such sages in cipher," he said. "That ain't cyp-p-p-pher. It's pic-a-a-sin. Suggestion, retorted the correspondent. "Well, then, it that is plain English, just you read it out for me, for I'm blanked if I can read it," said the censor.

So the correspondent commenced to read. He stuttered and stammered through half of it; then the censor stopped him. "Halt," he cried; "you write as if you were an India-rubber ball, but talk ten times worse than you write. Give it to me; I'll skin it. No operator on earth can read it." But the operator did, and the censor's friend got off the smartest bit of news that had left the front for many a day. However, when the censor found out that he had been induced to slip it, he evened matters up by sending the correspondent after his "cobbi" as far as Cape Town, where he is to this day. It is good fun to get him to talk about that censor; he gets so wild and starts so much that he has to finish his story in deaf and dumb language on his fingers.

Working Himself Out of a Job

A collector of bad accounts received a lesson from a delinquent debtor a few days ago that has started him to thinking a bit. The collector had been chasing this delinquent for about six months and had become tired of "Call to-morrow," "I haven't it just now," and other scenes of a similar character nature, and thought it was time to become "nasty."

"See here," he said, the last time he called, "are you ever going to pay this bill?"

"Why, yes," replied the delinquent, "I suppose I will pay it some day or other. But look here yourself, young man; I think I can show you a thing or two. How many bills have you in that bundle?"

"About forty, I guess."

"How long does it take you to visit these people?"

"Generally, I can get over my route in a week."

"Suppose every one of them should pay you?"

"That would be fine!"

"Oh, it would, would it? What would you do for a living if everybody paid promptly?"

The collector turned the thought over in his mind for a moment or two, and looked blank.

"Gracious!" he said, "I'd be out of a job."

That's exactly my point," replied the debtor, "and therefore, as naturally anxious to collect every cent due to your people as they are to have collections a few are enough. As for my account, come around some day next week, and I may help you out of business by paying it. Good-day."

Original "Fake" Advertiser Dead.

John Napoleon Bonaparte Littlie, one of Wheeling's best-known characters, is dead. He was born in Pennsylvania sixty years ago. He went to Wheeling, Va., when a small boy, and has been a resident ever since, except the time he spent in the Union army during the late war.

He was known far and wide as the proprietor of "Pa." Littlie's celebrated Philadelphia cream pop. One of his great fakes was to carry balloons.

Twenty years ago he advertised that on a certain Sunday afternoon he would leap from the suspension bridge into the Ohio River, eighty feet below. The whole town turned out, and as curiosities were run by boat and rail for fifty miles. Littlie's cream pop and confectionery store was at the bridge entrance, and he kept seven clerks going all that day. When the hour arrived, "Pa" appeared wrapped in a cloak and announced that he had decided to postpone the jump till the river rose to within three feet of the bottom of the bridge. He cleared nearly $1,000 on the deal.

Another time he advertised that he would jump from a balloon over a mile from the front of his store. This drew as big a crowd, and when the time came he appeared with a huge paper balloon, tried it and balanced himself in the mail, but it would not rise. He used many other dodges to advertise himself and business, and all were successful.

His wife, who was equally adept in swiping, died ever since, died a year ago. He leaves no relatives, and the U.-B. boat attended to his funeral.

Applied knowledge: "Spell 'ferment and give its definition," recited the teacher. "F-e-r-m-e-n-t, to work,"responded a diminutive maiden. "Correct place it in a sentence, so that I may be sure you understand its meaning," said the teacher. "In the summer I would rather play out-of-doors than ferment in the schoolroom," returned the small scholar.—Wisconsin "Journal of Education."

"My little man," said the visiting pastor, "I am afraid you've been fighting, a black eye! Don't you want me to pray with you?" "Naw," said the good little man; "run home and pray with your own kid. He's got two black eyes."—Philadelphia "Press."

"He thinks he's popular, eh?" "Does he? Why, whenever his name appears at the paper, he fancies the public reads it this way: 'John (cheers), Henry (applause), Maginnis (loud and continuous cheering).'" — Philadelphia "Press."

SATURDAY, JUNE 6, IS CERIOUS DAY.

Ringling Brothers Are Coming With the Biggest Show on Earth.

Saturday, June 6, is Ringling Bros.' circus day. The greatest show in the world will bring its menagerie to Ireland at last. For weeks circus has been in the air and now the dream of day and night is to be realized. The mighty cars and the extra big tents, immense aggregation will draw in here early Saturday morning, and it needs no prophet to foretell the crowds that will greet the splendid caravans. This year the Ringling Brothers' great shows are almost twice as big as ever before, and that's fast going some comparisons with any other show impossible, and indicates tremendous size. The great tent will seat comfortably 18,000 people, and the immense parade is the largest ever made, furnishing commodious room for the arranging of 108 cages, lairs, dens and tanks. There are 500 horses, with the huge show, more than 200 of which are used in the parade and highly educated. The zoological collection is increasingly valuable in existence. It exhibits two giraffes, the last of their tribe; the only chimpanzee in captivity; a genuine baby elephant, Baby Boo, born January 8, 1903, and only 30 inches high, unweaned and as playful as a kitten; and the great herd of sacred elephants in the world, forty in number. Twenty of these bobby beasts perform amazing tricks in the ring. Seven groups of acting seals are another exhibition feature. They are shown in separate stages, and act in unison at the direction of their owner and trainer, Capt. Webb. This is the most instructive exhibition of animal training ever accomplished. The pink and flower of the circus profession in Europe and America appear in the extraordinary ring programme. Many of the acrobats, gymnasts, equestrians, clowns, pantomimists, jugglers, athletes, contortionists, dancers, wire and trapeze artists, aerial star features are introduced by the Ringlings for the first time in this country in the first time. The progressive policy of this famous amusement firm is illustrated this year in the production of a massively ornate and magnificently costumed spectacle, Jerusalem and the Crusades. 1,200 characters, more than twice the number ever used in a spectacle before, are in the cast, and a ballet of 200 beautiful and singing chorus of 250 add to the delightful charm of the entertaining scene. More than $20,000 is annually fashioned and classically correct costumes are worn in the varied and thrilling action, and the stage is larger than the bombined stage room of 100 theatres. A huge grand pipe organ, the only portable one ever made, accompanied by a selected band of 50 soloists render the special and composed music.

This production is beyond comparison the most colossal, artistically pictured in costume and scene display, instructive and exhilaratingly pleasing ever presented to the American public.

Show day will begin with the grand free display at 10 o'clock when the Ringling Brothers is a unique and delightful time for the children, when the procession of any other show, and every man, woman and child with the immense organization takes a noon part. Two performances will be given in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and at night at 8 o'clock. Reserved seat checks and general admission tickets will be on sale at Riggs' music store at same prices as charged on show grounds.

To Discourage Hasty Marriages.

ONE of the Philippine tribes enforces a "widow tax." The law governing it is as undoubtedly founded on more than a superficial knowledge of human nature, and a productive of advantages. "Marriage is hasty" among the Moros, one of Mindanao, therefore, leads to a very prolonged and literal "repenting at leisure." If a man wishes to get rid of his wife, who is perhaps haunted more by a thought of those one hundred pieces than by fear of death in the next life. Divorce they know not, but polygamy is universal, and a man may have as many wives as he can support and desires. Therefore, in case of the death of a husband, the parents of the deceased wife have enough slaves to render future work on their part unnecessary, or else they are in a position to open up a profitable row. A cheap method of life insurance, this payment is called "calabaon" or "the widow tax."

CABINET TO NAME THE ROUTE

If the Government Gives the Grand Trunk Pacific Aid.

It Is Idle, Therefore, to Talk of Route Till the Subsidy Is Settled—Hon. A. G. Blair Thinks Grand Trunk Pacific Cannot Be Financed Without Public Assistance—Announcement by Minister of Railways.

Ottawa, June 4.—There was a rather slim attendance yesterday when the Railway Committee met and took up the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill. The discussion on the question of route was resumed. At the last meeting Mr. Wade moved that work commence on the road near Quebec, and that it be proceeded with east and west simultaneously. To this Mr. Sproule moved an amendment that work commence on all sections simultaneously east of Winnipeg.

When a vote was called on the amendment to the amendment Mr. Blair said that he did not find himself agreeing with the representatives of his own province on this point. The committee in his opinion was making too much of the route. The company would be not be hampered down with provisions in the route as to where it is the question of aid came up.

Q.C.M.G. Must Get Subsidy.

He held the opinion that the company could not finance the undertaking without public assistance. They would require considerable assistance while the question remained unsettled, and the Government had not arrived at any decision, it seemed to him idle to talk about the road was commenced east or west. It would be in the power of the Government when granting aid—no matter how small—to lay down the conditions as to where the line was to be laid. When the Government was going to grant aid they must necessarily assume responsibility, and Parliament would have to deal with the matter. They should pass the bill apart from the question of aid. As to the line to Moncton, he did not look with favor upon paralelling the Intercolonial.

Maritime Sea Port.

The question of reaching a seaport on Canadian soil with the least mileage was what they should all look to. Canada could not afford to deal with the great national problem in a sectional way. They would have to take a broad view of the question. If the road was to reach a maritime seaport it would have to take the shortest route to a seaport. In his opinion neither of the amendments should be adopted. The company put in Moncton rather than St. John route, but they would not do so of their own accord.

Amendments Lost.

After some discussion, Mr. Wade said he was willing to withdraw his amendment.

Mr. Sproule's amendment to the amendment was lost by 26 for to 89 against, a majority of 63.

Mr. Casgrain and his friends insisted on moving the adoption of Mr. Wade's amendment. It was lost by 18 for to 87 against.

Next Its 20 Miles Apart.

Mr. Fraser moved that before the construction of the prairie section be commenced the location of the line shall be approved by Governor-in-Council and that no part of the road be nearer than 80 miles of another railway unless special reasons are given.

This amendment was to be made satisfactory to the Minister of Railways and chairman and was so accepted. Mr. Wilson moved that St. John be substituted as the terminus and another division was insisted upon.

The amendment was lost 27 for to 87 against.

Mr. Prefontaine gave notice of an amendment to the committee that Montreal with the road by the Montreal and Western or to build a branch if the company so desired.

GETTING THROUGH THE BILL.

130 Clauses of Mr. Blair's Measure Covered in the House.

Ottawa, June 4.—When the House adjourned last night it had covered 130 clauses in the Grand Trunk Pacific commission bill. The whole day was spent in examining the clauses of the measure. There are 210 clauses in the bill.

Yesterday were no important amendments to the bill. A wealth of discussion took place over details, but in nearly every instance the clause was allowed to go unchanged.

Hon. James Sutherland introduced a bill to legalize an old practice of the Public Works Department, which enables it to spend $5,000 in excess of its appropriations.

Alien Labor Act.

Mr. Ingram asked how many writs or prosecutions for violation of the Alien Labor Act have been instituted since the coming into force of the act. He was informed that it is not the Government, but individuals that take action, and the Government was therefore not in possession of the desired information. Eight applications were made to the Government through misapprehension, of these the Government took no notice. Fifty-two persons have been deported since the act went into effect, nineteen are left during the course of investigation. The cost of the operation of the act was in 1901, $8,701 and in 1902 $277.

The Collingwood Murder.

Collingwood, June 4.—All the energy of the authorities is now directed to the arrest of a white man and a negro, last seen near Ganaoque, who are apparently heading for the States, for the murder of Glory Whalen. They are the only two suspects now. The inquest has been adjourned till the 15th inst.

Royal Commissioners Judgment of the Hon. Mr. Stratton.

"CAN'T YOU FORGET" IS MINIMIZED.

The Judges Condemn the Career of Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P.

PREMIER WILL NOT EXPEL MR. GAMEY.

"Where the Major Came From" Is Still a Mystery, But the Judges Improved the Money Which Their Judgment Mentioned Was Not Bribe Money — Mr. Stratton to Mr. Gamey—Royal Commissioners Declare That Gamey's Impudence Charges Against the Premier Were Unfounded — Proceedings Approved—The Report of the Judges in the House.

Toronto, June 5—The report of the Gamey royal commission was laid on the table of the House yesterday afternoon by Premier Ross. It covers 100 typewritten folios. It commences by referring to the statement read by Mr. Gamey in the House and refers to it as a document of "extreme importance." It then goes over leading charges as elucidated by the evidence and summarizes them.

The report goes over the evidence in detail, and the judgment, as distinguished from a review of the evidence, is as follows:

Character of Witnesses.

As to the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses generally, the commissioners would remark that most of them seemed to be desirous to tell the truth. Of the more important witnesses the commissioners were impressed by the evidence of Dr. Arthur, Dr. Struthers and Mr. J. F. Boyd.

Collingwood—There has been no arrest in the Cherry Wheatley murder case yet.

Last Thursday evening William Armstrong, who lives two miles south of Elm Dale, died from injuries received by being thrown on a pile of stones by his runaway team.

sued tortuous courses of dealing with self-serving interests much in view. Implicit reliance should not be placed upon their uncorroborated statements in material points, and where these statements conflict with those of independent or disinterested witnesses the latter should be preferred.

Hammond's Evidence.

Whatever comment may be made upon the expression attributed to the Provincial Secretary by Mr. Hammond, when recalled (page 3,105), it seems to the commissioners inappropriate to assign to it such exaggerated import as to overshadow the whole body of substantial evidence in favor of the Minister and against the member. The testimony of Hammond was on a comparatively minor branch of the enquiry, that relative to The Globe interview, which, apart from the payment of money in this or like price, does not long largely in the investigation, and the statements of Hammond are not in conflict with those of the Provincial Secretary save as regards some variation in details which happen very commonly in evidence of different witnesses.

Gamey's Political Faith.

It is a proper thing to take steps to advertise publicly the change in the political attitude of Mr. Gamey, and had greater prominence been vouchsafed the publicity given to the matter it would be outrageous if made earlier. Mr. Sheldon Amos, writing of cases in which corruption was his party on account of independent convictions, says: "The matter of fact very little encouragement is shown at present to defections of this sort, even when they occur the member who is guilty of them is invariably put to the utmost pains to defend his action, and in the opinion of his own party never does succeed in freeing himself from the imputation of disloyalty, not to say treachery." Nevertheless, if the grounds on which an individual departure from the ranks of his party may be thoroughly ascertained and publicly announced, as in this case, it is not only well that would the institution of party government be rid of much of the present suspicion with which it is in some quarters regarded, but its true nature appreciated by the country." (Page 71 and 72, from "Fifty Years of the English Constitution, 1830.")

Mr. Gamey's Version.

Looked at in the large, Mr. Gamey's version is that his purchase originated with Frank Sullivan and the Provincial Secretary; that he was taken to the Minister's office, whom he did not know, that the Minister was to sign was all ready, and put before him for signature; that no information volunteered by the Minister that the protest would be withdrawn, all the paraphernalia given to him, and instated valuable consideration paid merely to be signed, but as the money was not ready, the bargain and sale was not then consummated.

Mr. Aylesworth's evidence alone, to which it was not objected, would vertir ac tached, suffices to show that this version is misleading in the extreme.

Mr. Gamey's Conduct.

The conduct and memory of Mr. Gamey, as to the details of the contract from his credibility. At a momentous point in his life, and within a few months of the occurrence he is uncertain as to the time and the person from whom the $3,000 came. Having conferred with promising men in his party (as he says) and arranged his methods, he comes to the Hon. Mr. Ross, and he tells us it it were a legitimate transaction. He makes no mention in his statement to the House of the $2,000 which came into possession of Mr. Gamey, and which, said to be for the use of Sullivan, and of which he says $900 was paid into the Crossin business. Gamey's bank account on July search in the Crossin books, the two payments of $900 each on the 10th and 11th of September disappear, not by the hand of Mr. Commissioner Mr. Gamey is the only other who had access to them.

Mr. Gamey's Bank Account.

Then follows the procuring of the deposit slip from the bank by Mr. Gamey, and a discussion thereon.

Then the explanation given to the reporters at Sullivan's house, and its publication, that this $600 was collected from Mr. Gamey's friends in Belleville Island.

"And, the final statement under oath, that it was part of a loan of $1,200 from Frank Sullivan.

The evidence, as to the sole pre-clude the conclusion that this $3,000 was not Gamey's money, but came from the Provincial Secretary on or about the 5th September, and if that be so, its true source is not yet disclosed.

And that so, as (a the $500 said to be received on the 25th January, Mr. Gamey, in the House, was apparently to assist Mr. Whitney at this stage of the enquiry, and does assist in correcting The Globe interview, and though he and Mr. Whitney had a conference last night and discuss this matter, yet the money is not exhibited to the House, and is not shown to any one, but carried about continuously in Mr. Gamey's pocket until produced in the House. And then, when Mr. Gamey was finally prepared to make making his statement, and planning to procure all possible corroboration from Sullivan, in the hearing of three hidden witnesses, and though the $500 was then actually in his pocket (as he says), he does not make the slightest reference or allusion to it at the Crossin factory on the night before the House met.

No Bribe or Money.

From these conclusions the inference is most pressing that no bribe or money was received from the Provincial Secretary on the 29th January, but that the money was afterwards acquired; and if that be so, then the real source of this money is not yet disclosed.

This much more may be said about "where the money came from," that Mr. Gamey declined to make any statement under oath to the Commissioners about the "deposit slips and those things" (page 2,982 and page 2,983), ostensibly on the ground that counsel had not been specially contemplated in that regard. But he said, further, that he "cannot undertake to say that it is relevant in his case."

Without pressing against him the maxim "Omnia presumuntur contra spoliatorem," which although apt to spoiling was done pendente lite et secundum furtu, it is the commissioners believe that if the missing pages of the Crossin book could be seen they would disclose the source of the money by would be discovered the genesis of the $900 and of the $1,200. Mr. Gamey coming as Mr. Gamey now swears from only to the $600 interview.

His explanation of the particular source is not so worthy of credence as if the books had been left unmutilated.

Manitoulin Rig Politics.

It is difficult to frame any consistent account of Mr. Gamey's career as member, for he has been wholly inconsistent, as he played a double part. But this much appears by the evidence—His politics was Manitoulin, with Gamey always on the side of any Government in power, to the end that he might serve his constituency, and now of opposition to the "franchises." But, as Mr. Gamey's friend, Frank Sullivan, by his bragging (and not prevarded access to the Minister (page 1,323), fostered the belief that he had more influence, the uncle was superseded, and the Sullivan-Gamey combination began. As the first move, support was assured to the Hon. Mr. Hoyle, who, the letter of the Hon. Mr. Hoyle, and on the same hint have a holiday takes part in Old Louis. Yet in a pas cat Toronto about the 27th (Oct) as occasi of the support the Government when the House meets, if Mr. Ross has a reasonable majority.

Mr. Gamey in North Perth.

Accordingly, in January, 1903, he takes part in the North Perth campaign for the Conservatives, but is sanctioned because he was balloted by the action of the Conservative leader (pages 2,006, 2,209, 2,800 and 2,202). He repairs to the Provincial Secretary and begins discussing antagonistic, but being confronted with his conduct in North Perth, he declares his willingness to advertise publicly his real and true position. This was after the Government majority had increased to five. The Globe interview is published at the end of January. But in his political affiliation is still further reduced below the standard of support promised in the letter of the 27th October, and only extends to support "in all matters he is satisfied with." Nevertheless, this publication brings trouble around his head from the Conservatives, and his resignation threatened to be tabled of. (See letter 10th February, 1903, exhibits 165, and correspondence in that set, at Gore Bay by Mr. Gamey on the 17th February, exhibits, 107). Mr. Whitney, however, is willing to reign at this crisis as he was after the 29th October.

Dr. Struthers's Advice.

Dr. Struthers then advised him, as a friend, knowing his past career and his candidature than a stranger, to resign and run as an independent, but the answer then, and always was the "expense," and the risks of getting to the House without contest. Yet the member is growing in disfavor with both parties; he is getting to be regarded as a treacherous minded man, with all that suggests. The prospects are gloomy. The political patronage appears to be meagre and illusive. Mr. Gamey's hope is the Government, anticipating his resignation, appointing Mr. Jas. Mc Millan, the Socialist candidate, in the field. And, then, it may be, with the patriotic action of deliverance, by letting it leak out that the seat was the price of Mr. Hoyle's parent disloyalty. The people supposed that Mr. Arthur and Dr. Struthers told him that people would not be had been bribed, but let him accept and profit by the bribe, or the assumption of his mercenary defection, but by a desperate effort turn it to the benefit of making his career as set forth in the statement of the House.

The temptation appears chiefly to be the expectation if he could get the confession of his friend that, he would become Minister of Mines in a new Administration.

Gamey's Future Course.

Whether or not this is a correct appraisal of the member's motives course will depend upon the estimate that may be made of this report and his appreciation of exhibits and evidence.

Mr. Gamey had no personal intercourse with any member of the Ministry except the Provincial Secretary. With two or three of the others he had some official correspondence, but with the rest not even that.

With regard to the added charge of conspiracy, the Commissioners are of the opinion that as a matter of law there is no evidence whatever to sustain it, as against the members of the Government and the other persons charged.

And according to the methods of an ordinary trial they would be discharged from the said accusation by the presiding Judicial officer.

Corrupt Charges Stand Disproved.

This being so, the matter of the original charge alone remains, and as to the Provincial Secretary there is no evidence that has been presented upon. In our opinion the charges stand disproved through a great body of evidence which appears to be more accurate and credible than that adduced in support thereof.

The $1,200 mentioned hereinbefore has not been paid into the hands of Mr. Gamey or deposited in the House, and $1,000 represented by the marked cheque of the 3rd April, 1903. These sums have been lodged in the hands of the accountant of the Supreme Court, and the Commissioners advise that the amounts be carried into the general account, to be paid upon the joint order of the Chancellor of Ontario and the Chief Justice of the King's Bench for the time being, upon the latter being satisfactorily to appear that the claimant has legitimate title thereto.

This enquiry occupied 27 days of hearing, 19 public and private sessions, during which 119 witnesses were examined, giving 3,512 pages of evidence, some 92 exhibits filed, giving 206 pages more, as embraced in a volume of exhibits, and 1,000 volumes of evidence. The arguments of counsel appear in another volume numbered nine.

All of which is respectfully submitted to your Honor.

ASKS FOR ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. Whitney Wants a Couple of Days for Members to Digest Report Before Debate—Mr. Ross Refuses.

When Premier Ross laid the report of the Royal Commission on the table he did so, without comment except to say what the document was.

Mr. Whitney recalled the remark of the Premier, made at the time the language was preferred, that it would be improper for the Government to proceed with legislation while it was under grave charges. Now that the report had been laid on the table after being discussed by the Cabinet, it was important that all members should understand it before the business of the House was proceeded with. The House was the tribunal which would pass upon the report and every member should be given an opportunity of acquainting himself with its contents. Mr. Whitney suggested an adjournment for a couple of days.

Refuses an Adjournment.

The Premier said the position was nb worse than it has been, and he saw no necessity for an adjournment as the House could go on with ordinary business before proceeding to a discussion of the report. He agreed that the Legislature was the final court, and had a right to adopt or reject the report. In the Parnell case the report was adopted by the House. The Premier said the report was discussed in the Cabinet after it was received, which was their right. Mr. Whitney said his reason for asking for an adjournment was that the members could inform themselves on the contents of the report. There was a question whether it was competent for the House to deal with the report; because the report of the Parnell Commission was adopted is no reason why this report should be. The duration of the session would be shortened if the Premier agreed to the suggestion and allowed the House to adjourn for a few days.

A Distributed Friday.

The Premier read the procedure in the Parnell investigation, but did not say the House would adopt the same course.

Mr. Whitney did not think it seemly to go on now and discuss the report without knowing the contents of the report.

Mr. Ross said the report would be printed and distributed by Friday.

Mr. Whitney said he would discuss the Ministers of giving out the report, but several gentlemen behind them have professed to understand what it contained.

The matter was then dropped and ordinary business was taken up.

Mr. Whitney Laughs.

Speaking of the damaging deal the report says, Whitney indicate a corrupt bargain or a policy of conciliation?

Mr. Whitney laughed outright when he read the line, and said he is sure of the finding could best be judged by his contempt for a pronouncement of that kind.

Mr. Gamey's Resolve.

Mr. Gamey would not make a statement last night, as he had not read the report. He promised, however, that he would digest it at his earliest opportunity, and make a statement in the House.

The Premier's Opinion.

Mr. Ross said he was satisfied. He accepted the finding, "in a word, and we would have accepted it if it had been in the other way."

Won't Make Gamey a Martyr.

"Will Mr. Gamey be expelled?" Mr. Ross was asked.

"There is no law to warrant such action. I remember a case in Nova Scotia where a man was expelled by the Legislature, and he appealed to the courts and was reinstated. The code of honor is that if a man makes false charges against a fellow member of the House he should resign. But we will not make a martyr of him."

WANTS SHERIFF DISMISSED.

Minister of Crown Lands Interested in a Power Company.

Mr. Gallagher moved for a return of the correspondence touching the request of the County Council of Frontenac for the dismissal of Sheriff Dawson from office.

Mr. Gallagher knew Sheriff Dawson and would say he was not a very desirable official. He took an active part in the last provincial election, and did things that were very very honorable. He issued fifty-two certificates to men who were not entitled to vote in the county. Mr. Gallagher thought the matters complained of by the Council should be investigated.

The Attorney-General, in reply, said that as to the charges that the sheriff had committed unlawful acts, he had not heard of them before. There was machinery in the election courts for the trial of such cases.

The papers will be brought down.

Minister Interested in Grant.

In asking for a return of correspondence relating to the granting of water-powers on the Ottawa River to the Metropolitan Power Company, Col. Matheson charged that Mr. McDougall, the late partner of the Hon. J. R. Latchford, put through the application in respect to the water grant, and received a considerable sum for the transaction. There was no question about the interest of the Minister of Public Works in the grant.

Mr. Davis replied and said Mr. McDougall had acted solely on his own account, and the Minister of Public Works was not affected in his (Davis) on the subject.

Mr. Kidd was questioned, from recent revelations, that a good deal happens, of which the Minister of Crown Lands knows nothing.

The order was granted.

After routine business the House adjourned.

EIGHT LIBERALS VOTED FOR IT.

Principle of Cornwall Would Compel C.P.R. to Tax Canadian Rails.

Ottawa, June 5.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Bill was reported in the Railway Committee yesterday. There was an exciting finish to the controversy that had extended over several days. Mr. Pringle of Cornwall moved that the company be required to use rails, rolling stock and other material in connection with the construction and operation of the road of Canadian manufacture. The clause was identical with that which is inserted in Ontario's railway charters.

Mr. Logan moved an amendment that the question be left to the Government in dealing with the subsidy resolutions.

After a hot discussion the amendment carried on a division of 55 to 53. Eight Liberals voted with Mr. Frederick Borden, voted for Pringle's motion.

The bill was then reported and the committee adjourned.

SOMETHING TO PONDER UPON.

Honest men on both sides of politics may well ask themselves what this province is coming to, when into consideration various events which have recently transpired. Leaving aside the Gamey case, which seems to have been settled to the satisfaction of the Government, what do the electors think of the actions of Capt. John Sullivan, who, after defying a summons from the House as long as he dared, at last appeared and gave an exhibition of insolent contempt for authority which would not be tolerated in any other country under the sun. The following interesting comments on Capt. Sullivan and his conduct appeared in the Toronto News, and were written by a man who for many years edited the leading Liberal organ, The Toronto Globe. Read them, electors, and then ask yourselves, What is this province coming to?

"Sullivan's swaggering defiance, before the Public Accounts Committee, should be resented upon by the people of Ontario. Sullivan is a specimen of the worst kind of product of the ward-boiler—a type of man which the community unfortunately tolerates, but for which it entertains a profound contempt. In theory, the Legislature guides the destinies of the province. In theory, a member of the Legislature occupies a position of high dignity and grave responsibility. In theory, a Committee of the Legislature has important duties, demanding extensive powers. Sullivan, the ward-boiler, has wanted by the Committee, and they heed. Finally he appeared before it and coolly said that he had gone away because he had lost enough time, and thought it time to attend his own affairs.

He answered members of the Committee with the same contempt, finally taking umbrage at a question to which he would not answer. He asked a lawyer in the humblest court in the land to be seated, but the latter, offered to answer one member if all refused to refuse to answer any further questions, and threatened to assault Colonel Matheson. So far as Colonel Matheson was concerned, Sullivan carried his point, for Matheson neither had to take up the work of examination, the office-holders and election workers were diverted the issues from burst into applause. The Chairman and devoted supporters belonging to the Committee, supported Sullivan in his insolence. The election-workers own the Government. They openly own the Legislature and its members. They are supported in their sense by other members. It is well to reflect upon this phenomenon."

TIMELY TOPICS.

Welcome to Belleville, your Excellency. Sorry you can't stay a little longer, but we know the old saw, "Business before pleasure."

If you had only been a day later we might have taken you to the circus—but there, never mind! You're probably seeing a show of this sort every time you go to Ottawa.

We might suggest that if you want to see Ottawa again, you had better tear down there as soon as possible. Some people are talking about every day and the dear old place can't last long at that rate.

You will notice that the streets along which you drive to-day have all been watered. Oh, yes, we always water those streets—whenever the Governor-General drives on them.

We beg to remind Your Excellency that, when you next favor us, some notice of your arrival—say a week in advance—so that we may be in the pretty city in Canada. You will also remember that its beauty is reflected in the girls who dwell in it.

We were delighted to hear that it had pleased the Imperial Government to leave you in Canada for another year, and hope that next year may be a pleasant one, both for you and us. To be sure, things are getting very dry, but you will no doubt be in a position to obtain all the moisture you need.

When you return to London again, kindly convey to King Edward our sincere devotion and heartfelt good wishes. To be sure, His Majesty's indisposition last summer kind of knocked our celebration arrangements into a pocked hat, and the show almost killed Dooley, but we'll get over that in fifteen or twenty years then, perhaps, we will make arrangements for another celebration.

We sincerely trust that Your Excellency will have a pleasant visit and an enjoyable drive. All the bouquets which are tendered will be forwarded to you; all the bricks for the newspaper men in the last carriage, No. 13. N.B.—Newspaper men always take a back seat in Belleville.

And now, Your Excellency, once more we extend to yourself and your gracious wife and daughters a hearty Bay of Quinte cead mille failthe four old friend, Mr. James Cummins will tell you what that means). May your residence in Canada always be looked back on with pleasure. You may, perhaps, have had your bumps, but we all get them. Remember us kindly to the Governor-in-Council, to the boys. Tell them to be virtuous and they will be happy. As our friend Tupper would say, bonheur, also Au Revoir.

Gracious, wasn't there a crush on the park last night. Two things which appeal strongly to Belleville people are music and fresh air.

The late Judge Hinter died without making a will, which was just about the last thing you would expect a lawyer and a judge to do.

Here is something which should be of interest to Belleville veterans: The petition of Klondike veterans have received a favorable reply from the Commissioner of Crown Lands. They asked that the free grant lands available for veterans be not restricted to New Ontario, but that Government lands in Frontenac, Addington and Hastings be thrown open also for choice of locations. The Commissioner has considered them available for settlement, and Klondyn veterans may now choose a homestead in the Midland district near their old home.

In the words of the poet, our heteromed contemporary, the Mail and Empire, gets after our other esteemed contemporary, Sir John Boyd and "rips him up the back" in the most approved style. One of Napoleon's Boasts.

WE who know the last as well as the first of Napoleon, who have read all about Moscow, Leipsic, Elba, Waterloo and St. Helena as studiously as about the campaigns in Italy, and Marengo, Jena and Austerlitz, cannot fully comprehend with that reverence some of his apophthegms were received by the French when he was still unbeaten and apparently unbeatable. One of his boasts was that he was not governed by circumstances; that he made circumstances; that he was superior to them. Whoever uttered that destiny whispered in his ear, replied that destiny would not dare. Even Victor Hugo, half a century after Waterloo, was blinded by the light of Napoleon's genius, and treated him as a Titan, fit to contend, though vainly, with high heaven. It was not Wellington, not Blucher who defeated Napoleon, says Hugo in his beautiful rhapsody on Waterloo; it was God. Napoleon, he declares, with blasphemous brilliancy, embarrassed God. "Waterloo was a change of front on the part of the universe"—the quotation is from memory —"in the main order of facts there was no room for Napoleon. Therefore a second-class commander won a first-class battle."

A good, many believe with Napoleon that genius rises above circumstances. Napoleon's fatalist epigram has been lectured a note of faith by successful men, who scout the idea of village Hampdens and mute, inglorious Miltons. But the epigram is nothing but a boast. It is not true. We are beset in the vise of circumstances and are not complete masters of our fate. Luck enters into every game, even the game of life. No man can escape the buffetings of the gale with destiny, for lasting always deals. It may rain before the hour when the last plans call for blindage, and the plans may be advertised. At Austerlitz, which was bought at dawn, Napoleon said: "We have a rendezvous with the sun, and both parties are on time." The Sun of Austerlitz became a superstition in the Grand Army.

But at Waterloo there was another rendezvous with the sun and the sun was tardy. Waterloo is the convincing answer to Napoleon's boast and to the precept that great men are superior to circumstances. Hugo points out that accidents defeated Napoleon. His plan, he says, was laid with the previous night. But he reckoned without luck. The battle was to have commenced at half past nine, but the ground became soft, and the ground became too muddy for the movement of artillery. Napoleon therefore delayed the assault nearly six hours, until the ground became firmer. That delay gave Blucher time to come up with his wearied and ill-fed men to the side of the fray. The rainfall defeated Napoleon and drove him to St. Helena. A peasant guide led Blucher aright, and he chanced to debouch on the field from the point and at the moment where and when he was supremely effective. Another peasant guide led Grouchy astray and he did not arrive. Had it not rained before the battle, had Blucher had a bad guide and Grouchy a good one, history might have been different. Napoleon was conquered by circumstances.—San Francisco Bulletin.

The Curl

A Love Story of France.

By ETHEL HOSTLER.

We were sitting on the terrace of an old French chateau, sipping coffee and smoking cigarettes. It was a hot, autumn afternoon. The tapestries of the woods were parched in the faded colors of the dying year, rustling with the sentiment of the end. The leaves and the dead flowers gave warm sun had raised a wavering veil of moisture above the land in which all objects in the distance one saw indistinctly, as if reflected in water. The sadness of the season was intensified by the delicate, definite, incident on the sparsely-settled, which showed against the swelling abundance of summer with the first strokes of blanching regeneration, the sharper later into the hard features of winter sacrifice.

Beside us the tobacco smoke my old friend's face showed deeper lines, more wrinkled with age, the delicacy of line, its sentiment of expression that almost vanished with the intellectual which essentially French moment of the year. The sadness was not, but they were more happy than sad: with them it was the time of dreams, and they were haunted by the dream loves of a vanished spring. The sorrow that was in their was plaintive, wistful—almost a tender impersonation: theirs was the sentiment of sorrow, its bitterness and play, unconscious of any depth or darkness of suffering.

It was forty years since I had met Louis-de Brissac. In Paris, as young men, we had been close friends. I had gone over to study in the French capital, and from the letters he had sent me to him by the charming romance of his life. I knew that at this time, during the long years in India, men had grown apart through distance and more through mutual danger and need of the through mutual confidence; I had felt the stir of those distant friendships, the more open manifestation in a firmer handgrip, an intensified warmth of glance. Beside these hidden vital emotions the memories of my youth were more and pale-colored as his autumn woods, but yet in these far-off memories was the more substantial impression which the two latter attachments lacked. Louis had written to me regularly for years; I had whole boxes of letters in his fine, decorative handwriting. He was expansive, and thought no detail too trivial for my interest: not only was I familiar with the administration of his estate down to the minutest particular, but also his whole mental life with all its philosophic doubts and conjectures, was laid open to me. He fitted were written with flow and lucidity; they were full of keen observation and admirable criticism of life and books. But partly because of the distance, partly through difficulty of composition in the French language, and mostly through constant procrastination, my replies were, I fear, somewhat bald and brief. Then, during a period of extended travel, I missed several of his letters, and, by incentive to write to him, I let the correspondence end.

On my return from India the London doctors advised me to try the waters at Vichy, and there I repaired, intending to find out if my old friend still lived in the neighborhood. On the very first evening I came across him unexpectedly as he entered into the Circle Privé to watch the gambling, and amid the grasping and repulsive faces of the crowd his fine distinction was attracted by an old man of great benevolence, and I could not be mistaken. I knew him at once, in spite of his white hair and the wrinkles. The peculiar charm, the dash of melancholy happiness, that I had so delighted in at Louis were there still, more marked than ever. He was playing the game with the nibilistic indifference—making it liberately, but not high. He had evidently lost a little, for he rose and presently—he came over, with a pleasant word to a friend—to stand by the window where I was standing.

"Louis!" I said, holding out my hand.

He looked at me for a moment quite blankly. Then his face grew irradiated. "Richard!" he said, and pronounced the name French fashion, "It is Richard —my friend Richard! Ah! my poor Richard, but how you have changed!"

I smiled. "Forty years," I said, by replied.

"And to meet you here!" he continued. "I always dine here when I come to Vichy on business. And I play a little, for amusement, for the slight excitement; if you lose, more excitement. . . . My friend Richard Wyvill! . . . I am overwhelmed! . . . You must come home with me to-night. Why, I insist—I absolutely insist. My carriage shall wait for you. I will wait for you. It is too great happiness to have you with me at the Chateau de Brissac."

There was no resisting the pressure of his fine, faithful, impulsive love for friendship. I consented, though quiet, sadly, half doubtfully, and he gave me welcome I should receive from Madame or Mademoiselle de Brissac. He supposed, of course, that Louis had married in the long interval since we had ceased to be intimate, but I had not spoken. But I was wrong. I found the Chateau de Brissac full of the spirit and his wife, who superintended the household.

And so, on the next day, looking out on the distant Alps and the valley, still full of vague and lovely regrets, I felt impelled to break our silence with the remark: "You have a very pretty picture in your life?"

A greater sweetness came into my friend's face. "Yes, Richard, there was and is a beautiful child." I will tell you about her when we go in. You will think, I know, that I make it—rather a delightful story. Perhaps you will only laugh at me. . . . And you, my friend, you have never married, either? No, no . . . do not answer me. I know it. Ah, Richard, I would that you have you speak out of a sore wound. Why do you not marry? Why do you forgive me?"

"You are happy in her?" I asked in a low voice.

"I know. You must bear the beginnings—you must see," said Louis. "Tell me, did my last letters make mention of my baby of mine?"

I reflected a moment. "A baby?" I repeated, a little puzzled.

"Why, yes; one must have a hobby—birds' eggs," said Louis. "It is a hobby full of poetry, of romance, of sentiment. When I was young, friend, I went into the fields, into the springtime, out in the sun, exploring. Every specimen I collected made me more proudly aware of the marvels of creation, and when I had a fine one for mantel, stopper, string of color and curves, I felt that I had discovered over a bird's egg. Richard—one the frail brittleness that succeeds the grave of adolescence, the speckled shell is characteristic of the delicate woman—as it is this hour, at this distance, and shaded mainly with the soft, dark red hues of a—Ah! the bird's egg is characteristic of the softer contours of the hand, and caresses of the lines and skies are blended in the greens and blues of its shell."

"That seems a pretty fancy, but a little fanciful," I protested. "But tell me the truth, I have not grown out of fact any attention."

"I will show you my collection presently," said Louis. "I am arranging and classifying them. And the baby—how did you get any more specimens myself, and I fear to employ the village boys, lest they should be lacking in wise discretion. But believe me, Richard, on the most critical days of my birds' eggs are potent to bring the spring vividly before me. Within their fragile cases, I whisper to myself, there lives in essence the whole magic of the egg—its crystal-clear calls, its high and liquid notes, its finals of soft moonlight into the air, and its varieties of faint fluttering among low leaves. I touch my eggs say, my Thrush, finch, wood-dove;' and the pressure of words—most grave words—are under the green-cradled babyhood of things."

"I wonder," I said, "that you ever found the will to take and blow the eggs."

"Ah," Louis replied, "you are too much. I take but one egg of many, with us scientific interest does not necessarily kill sentiment. And the bird that you have lost. They have been kind to me, blind beyond expression. I will show you."

Together we went into the chateau. It seemed to me charged with an atmosphere of old-world sentiment, conventionalized by the dim, cool, and perpendicular wall papers, of panels and bouquets of color, and by the great tapestries reproduced within the rapture of autumnal sun. The furniture had been had grown about the greens and blues of the threads, like an emergent vegetation. He would pause in the transition in the blanched yellows and reddening whites. Everywhere was the pourri of roses reproduced about the corridors the sentiment of the last, the dead, the dead; giving for the passionate beauty of June an attenuated sweetness, a little sickly in heavy contentment. Louis led me up the stairs staircase to a long, low room, arranged as a museum, with a number of cases containing birds' eggs. It was inconceivable to me how anyone could extract a delight in the contemplation of so sordid a spectacle. Louis drew me over to a table upon which stood a case, labeled with small typewriting: this he opened with a key. Within lay a nest of golden hair tied with a piece of faded blue ribbon.

"She is with me always," he said dreamily; "her sunny presence pervades the house. I do not think, Richard, I see her flitting up and down the staircase. Before, I was lonely—and yet there was a subject since she came all has been changed."

"Your dead wife," I said reverently, for the moment forgetting.

"No, no! I was never married. I told you that. But I did not tell you why. There was consumption in our family. I dreaded it for myself after you left Paris. . . . I did not think I was married."

I grasped Louis' hand. "My friend, my friend, have you been alone at so deep a tragedy?" I exclaimed, deeply moved. Here indeed was courage, heroism. "I fancied—forgive me—I fancied you had not known real sorrow, your own and that you have loved, too."

Louis . . . let me finish. I think you mistake. I never loved . . . in that way. . . . I am speaking badly. . . . That would have been terrible, terrible. . . . With his consumption—a great passion. I think I should have killed myself." He touched the curl. "I never saw her," he said. "I found this . . . just as it is now . . . in a box with the eggs. . . . Lie in the nest of a bird. That is my romance, Richard—the only one of my romance."

"I don't understand!" I gasped.

"It gave me something tangible to build upon—a lock of hair, brought me that tender way by the bill of a bird, associated with all that is dear and beautiful and, sometimes, with the blush: this bit of sunshine in the soft gloom of a nest, of golden threads in feathered things. She would be pretty, with golden hair. Blue eyes are of exquisite ways; she has changed a little during the long years she has been with me, but always in the sweet ways she is sweet and lovable, with golden hair, like a sunbeam, and she has grown dearer to me, and dearer; she is like the flowers and the birds, and the lightness of the birds is in her step, and her movements are soft, nestling ways."

"But it is a dream!" I exclaimed.

"Perhaps," he said, there is the curl," he said. Then he put his hand on my arm. "Let me see," he continued, with a whimsical smile. "No Englishman is like that, and a Frenchman must have the substance; you do not understand that a dream may be as real as existence as a reality. We have the better of you, dear Richard, in that we have found one secret of happiness.

"If there had ever really been a woman," I began.

"I know. This could not have happened," he said gravely, "it could never have happened—it has not, and I should have suffered—like you."

I took up the curl, examining it curiously. At one time I had given some study to physiology. "But this is not woman's hair," I said.

Then I realized the mischief I had done. I cursed myself inwardly that in a moment of recklessness I had shattered the whole fabric of his life's dream. "It is, of course, easy enough to tell from a lock of hair the age and sex of the owner when it was cut off, and it was quite evident that this curl

Selling or Peddling Spectacles As a Business

Many use simple mechanical tests for detecting as nearly as they can what glasses the eyes can wear and call themselves opticians or professors. has been taken from the head of a living child. But why had I not had the wit to keep the discovery to myself? Why must I thrust—in with my crude science upon this delicate, incomprehensible romance?

"Dear, unhappy friend," I stated Louis. "It is the hair of a child—of a young child—about seven years old, I should say."

"Oh, Louis, I should not have spoken!"

He looked dazed, bewildered. The statement seemed to him wrong, impossible. There were no doubts in his eyes. "Richard, Richard," he protested, "I never thought of it. The child! We pass the time . . . for loving . . . years, and because I have been . . . lately . . . that an old gray-haired clergyman like myself has no right to let his fancies run forever on subjects forbidden to him. But a child . . . Why, girl-love is never too old to love a child! It is what the shadows waste behind all else—childish laughter, the patter of childish feet. Oh, Richard, I have not given you the child, to be with me always till I die. It is good—it is good that you should tell me."

He leaned on me, almost overborne. "But I . . . I could not be deceived. Only in my heart was a great void—a pitiful cry for that childish laughter, the patter of childish feet. Why, I should perish!"

That night twilight when we reached the staircase. The wind was in the tapestries on the walls. They rustled like a shower of falling leaves. Suddenly Louis touched my arm. And down at the bottom of the stairs, amid the fantastic movings of the hangings, I thought I could discernment I saw the vision of a little golden-haired child.—Atlantic Monthly.

An Acrostic of Gems.

There was formerly a very pretty fashion in the setting of gems which was so quaint that it deserves to be remembered. It consisted in so setting the gems of a wedding ring that the initial letters of the gems read in acrostic style, would give the names of the bride. Sometimes, when the names presented difficulties in gem-type, they were set up so as to form a motto of the same letters. The most interesting example of this peculiar fashion is that discovered in the tomb of Rachel, the famous actress. Someone seems her a present of a diadem in which were six jewels. The stones were so set that when read horizontally they gave not only the actress's name, but also the initial letters of the principal parts she had played. Put in proper form and translated into words, it was as follows:

R uby, R ozana,
A methyst, A menaide,
C rnelian, C amille,
H yacinth, H ermione,
E merald, E sther,

The column on the left gives the letters which spell out the name of the gems, and the column on the right shows her six principal roles, so that the gems indicated not only the names but the occupation also.

The Maxims of Nizam.

There are two kinds of men who, by their personal appearance, instantly attract the attention of women—the very handsome man and the very homely man. The effect of the average appearance seldom counts.

A woman is always instinctively detect insincerity in a man—except when she is in love.

So long as men are men, and women are women, no man will ever meet a woman without both—perhaps unconsciously—speculating on the chances of eventual matrimony.

Women seldom speak from experience the simple reason that they rarely profit from experience. They are much more likely to talk of their experiences.

This idea of "living on a desert isle" with one woman for life is all very well in theory, but when it comes to practice appeals to a certain form of insanity—but a time would always come to any man who made the attempt that he would be glad to sit down and chat with his mother-in-law.

Most men think that women are queer because they never understand like to have them so. This would give the majority of men so much more of an opportunity.

Women get more out of incidents than the men do—because their lives are made up of incidents. They are not hampered by remembering a protracted experience.—Albert Lee in "Smart Set."

Fifteen Laws of Book-Borrowing.

An English magazine reprints some curious laws of book-borrowing, originally found in a copy of the "Letters Familieres," 1678, now in the British Museum. The complete text in ancient law Latin was published in the Gentleman's Magazine of December, 1832. Prescribed some century and a half ago by a certain Abbot Theophilus of Maccluca, to frequenters of his library, the book lover of any day will find little to cavil at in their simple propositions, which are as follows:

"I. Do not steal the book.

"II. Do not cut or stab it.

"III. For Heaven's sake, draw no lines about it, within or without.

"IV. Do not fold, crumple or wrinkle the leaves.

"V. Make no scribble on the margins.

"VI. All the ink required is already on the pages; do not defile them with more.

"VII. Let your book marker be of perfectly plain paper.

"VIII. The volume is not to be lent to anyone else on any consideration.

"IX. Keep mouse, worm, moth and fly away from the book.

"X. Let no oil, fire, dust or filth come near it.

"XI. In a word, use the book, don't abuse it—and return it when you've done with it.

"XII. Read and make what extracts you please, but

"XIII. When read don't keep it an unreasonable time.

"XIV. See that the binding and cover are as they were when you received them.

"XV. Do this, and however unknown you shall be entered in the catalogue of our friends. Omit it, and however well known your name shall be erased."

"Shadowed" in Paris.

WHEN a literary fish of any importance is taken nowadays one may be sure that a good many editors and publishers have been dangling their well-baited hooks before its nose. For two years or more Captain Dreyfus has had offers for what he might ultimately choose to publish. The business of offering advances and royalties to authors is not usually attended with a great amount of personal danger. But there is an American woman, a journalist, living in Paris, who could tell a different tale, says the "Saturday Evening Post." Two summers ago, just as the great trial was drawing to its close, she was in London, and there met an enterprising "American" publisher. Conversation turned, as did all conversation that summer, in either England or France, upon Dreyfus, and the publisher confided to the lady his desire to publish something veritably from the pen of Dreyfus. The lady, it happened, was on terms of most intimate with the inner circle of Dreyfus' friends, and when she left England for Paris she was commissioned to do what she could to get something for the publisher, either from Captain or Madame Dreyfus.

Two days after she left London a man approached the publisher with the positive assurance that he could arrange the whole affair within a fortnight. He guaranteed it may be said that such men were not uncommon that summer.) The publisher remembering the proverb concerning a bird in the hand, rushed to the nearest telegraph office and sent a message to the lady in Paris as follows:

"Suspend Dreyfus negotiations for the present. Will write."

The telegram was delivered, but almost simultaneously the lady was invited upon by a police representative of the police department, with a demand for an explanation. What negotiations, was she carrying on, and with whom? She told her story and said that it was received with the blandest incredibility. She promised to show the police the letter from London, when it came, and reminded her visitor of her "American" citizenship. The official departed. Unfortunately, the press of business sent the publisher scurrying toward Scotland, and he, unrealizing how important it was, neglected to write to the lady in Paris.

She soon discovered that she was being "shadowed," and that her every movement was being watched by mysterious people. At first she laughed, and merely sent a little note of enquiry to London. No answer came, and the watching continued. Her nerves began to give way, and finally she went to the United States ambassador with a "come story. The shadowing ceased. It would be interesting to know by just what diplomatic processes this incident was arranged.

Naked Greeks and Romans

A TRAVELING correspondent of the "Argonaut" writes that one rainy day lately he met Mr. Middle West" in the Louvre. He was seated, looking agrim the statue of that beautiful picture, "La Gioconda."

"Hi! down, I've got something to say," said he. I sat next to him. "I've had a relapse; I've just realized it to-day. I've just come up from the museum downstairs and I've seen the most nakedness that I ever saw in Italy. I don't know whether it is on account of my nervous prostration that I cannot see straight, or have not mental veracity, as you say as a great Englishman named Carlyle called the quality of seeing things correctly—but, however that may be, I saw sick and-tired and-utterly disgusted looking the exposure of naked human figure in Italy and France. In Italy you see these naked Greek and Roman everywhere—in the shops, museums, picture galleries, and I'm sick to death at the bathtub. Do you suppose that I will let my two daughters see these things? I should say for all the riches of the great State of Illinois would do it. I gave a start whenever I saw young American girls going through these museums and not a blush. I never saw Italian, French, German or English girls—only American girls—looking at these statues of Swan and Leda, for instance.

"Now I am sitting here looking at that lovely Joconda, dressed nearly up to the neck, with her charming smile and interesting face. That's all I want to see of a woman, or a man either, for that matter. I have a picture of a woman, not a Madonna, dressed up to the neck. La Fornarina, she was a bakeresse the guide told me. He loved her; think of loving a woman who stood all day in front of a roaring furnace, baking bread, in hot summery Italy. He painted another one of her showing her—well, not dressed up to the neck. But my wife says I must not talk of such things. I have been a thousand such naked ladies in Italy—of course I mean in pictures and statuary—and I'm sick of them. I long for looking at cow or horse pictures. It rests me.

"But isn't that Joconde picture a beauty! That's the way to paint men and women, dressed up to the neck. When I see naked pictures in a man's house, I think there's a cesspool streak running through him. When I see them in a woman's house I think worse me. When I get back to Chicago I am going to send five thousand nightshirts to the Italian Government as a present, to cover the naked statues, and I am going to dress them up in pajamas, too—that new-fangled scheme my wife wears me wear. She says they are fashionable. What's the use of being fashionable when you are in hell—nobody sees you. My father slept in his jeans, and he lived till he was eighty, too. That's a copy of a German joke."

Mrs. Clancy (boastfully)—My husband was wan o' the pall-bearers at Callahan's funeral. Mrs. Casey (spitefully)—Aye! An' well fitted for the job he was. He's used to carryin' the liter that some wan else pays fur.—Philadelphia "Press."

"Why is the Isle of Wight a fraud?" "Because it has Needles you cannot thread, Freshwater you cannot drink, Cowes you cannot milk, and Newport you cannot bottle."—"Tit-Bits."

Cahill—Was the shtrike a success? Cassidy—It was. Aither bein' out or breaks we succeded in gittin' back our jobs.—"Puck."

TIMELY TOPICS

Perhaps it is the burning eloquense of so manly statesmen that causes all those fires in Ottawa.

Of course we feel sorry for the Capital and sorrower still for the possibility that the insurance companies may even order to make up their losses, raise the rates in other places.

And when the Governor-General's train pulls in this afternoon, we'll be right up against the strenuous life till the week closes.

Goodness, don't you feel nervous, now that Major Mende has really arrived in the city?

I wouldn't like to be the Chairman of the Reception Committee, if things don't go off all right!

The judges have reported in the Gamey case, and have given their opinion, which simply amounts to the judgment of two fools who have heard all the evidence. But there are thousands of men in Ontario who have read all the evidence, and they are likely to form a far different opinion of the case to that expressed by Messrs. Boyd and Falconbridge. And that opinion will be firmly and conclusively expressed when the next Provincial election comes round.

In the meantime, the opinion of the two legal gentlemen is entitled to the same respect as would attach to the opinion of any other honest man who has not endowed with infallibility. Happily, this is a free country, and it is no crime for any man to keep in touch with current events and form his own opinions, and though his opinions may not weigh quite so much as those of either Messrs. Boyd or Falconbridge, his vote will go just as far on election day.

And now Hon. Mr. Stratton, having been "exonerated," is, of course, eligible to lay corner-stones, even though the charge of subornation of perjury, laid at his door by The Globe's reporter, Hammond, was never even contradicted. Laigh ho! It's a queer world, and Ontario is about as queer as the rest of it!

Having been treated to a column and a-three-quarters of double-barrelled abuse by the Kingston Freeman, this great family journal is all puffed up to-day. Life is worth living, after all.

As a Spring Medicine

THERE ARE TWO REASONS, WHY THERE IS NO TREATMENT SO THOROUGHLY BATISFACTORY AND LASTINGLY BENEFICIAL AS

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The body of men can no influenced in health or disease only through two channels—the blood and the nerves.

During the winter the blood becomes thin and watery because of the artificial life we lead. We are afraid to leed all doors—the artificial food, the breathless of inspect air, the lack of exercise, and this is why most people find it necessary to use a tonic or blood purifier at the interruption in the spring.

For two reasons Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most satisfactory spring medicine that you can possibly obtain. In the first place, it is gently laxative. Just enough so that when taken with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and for this reason any benefit you feel is lasting and you can be certain that with each dose your blood is getting richer and your system is being built up.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmonson, Bates and Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Libbey, of Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say that I was troubled with Dyspepsia for a long time. I was very weak and run down, had no appetite, life was a burden to me, constipation and sour stomach with debility, I tried many remedies, but got no relief, outwardly and inwardly, as I thought it was past curing. At last I was induced to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I began with small doses, but after taking a few bottles I began to feel like a new man. I continued taking it and in a short time I had entirely regained my health. I am willing to make this statement, hoping it may be the means of others finding relief as I did. I can recommend it to all suffering with Dyspepsia, Constipation, Biliousness or Sour Stomach."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Gaynell," "Little Leafy," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

It was Marie approaching; she saw her stop and again she heard her voice near her; for she wanted to be alone. She felt that the half hour, the last half hour of her life, was all too short. Delay uttered a little cry. At that moment the feeling that she was going to die came over her. It is by far the most horrible feeling in the world to die, so do not kill yourself by altogether.

THE PURBLIND bear is mine that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil has a wonderful power in healing. Advertising class of so-called medicines, but Eclectric oil is not one of them—it relieves pain and cures without leaving pain and suffering as a legacy. Nothing else so instantly and completely subdues burns or bruises. Eclectric oil is an excellent specific for rheumatism, and for all pains it is unsurpassed.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

The Standing Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the mental and bodily energies that reduces landlords and debtors are sure to intervene. The best of remedies brings on nervous prostration if used to excess. Moderation is the ultimate food property. In this respect Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will be found a recuperative of rare excellence. It is a specific for dyspepsia, indigestion, dispelling depression and reviving the flagging energies. Appetite, sleep, regularity of the bowels and avoids by those who use it.

Diarrhoea.—When the nerves are starving and the whole body is given over to debility, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a talisman against pain and evils by those who use it.

Dr. John D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaints. Safe, sure and completely healthful. Always the best of medicines. Children and adults suffering from the effects of indigestion in eating are speedily relieved by it. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to cure the diseases. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this invaluable remedy.

Coral is a talisman against pain and evils by those who use it.

Diarrhoea.—When the nerves are starving and the whole body is given over to debility, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a talisman against pain and evils by those who use it.

Sick Headache.—Those two words are filled with gloom and dismal foreboding. Biliousness, constipation, dyspepsia, dizziness, sleeplessness, are the attendant diseases. If only the subject could know, there would be but little sick headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only indeed sleep, but will relieve that terrible headache and will make refreshed and restored to health.

The average waist represents but a moderate lunch.

These two curative qualifications, prompt to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Worm Exterminator. Relieves like it.

The wildest teeth are close to its lure.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation and headache without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They will cure you.

A long portage makes a heavy load.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, safely, surely and quickly, even of twenty-five years.

It is no economy to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache are very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring and you will feel better. They never fail to do good. Try them.

Don't have any fear of being left behind, quickness the circulation and increases the perspiration, relieves the pressure and headache. The most common and best remedy for all forms of prostration, or what commonly is known by the name of Nervousness, Colds, sore throat, etc., it attended to in time. Be sure and get that if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptive date their first afflictions from a neglected cold, and the disease that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. Now is the time to take effective medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs to prevent a fatal termination. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the system of all morbid matter, thus causing the secretions from a disease to a healthy state.

It was Marie approaching; she saw her stop and again she heard her voice near her; for she wanted to be alone. She felt that the half hour, the last half hour of her life, was all too short. Delay uttered a little cry. At that moment the feeling that she was going to die came over her. It is by far the most horrible feeling in the world to die, so do not kill yourself by altogether.

"Tell me plainly, Marie, and quickly, before I question Delay, what makes you think so?" she gasped. "Oh, my God! speak quickly!"

And in a few brief words Marie told her of the request for chloral and how she had brought it to her.

"I was almost afraid to bring it to her," confessed the girl, "there was a strangeness in her eyes when I did not like, so I— I put but a few drops of chloral in it. She drank and read the rest with writer, coloring it with a few words and then said, before I could help her, though I watched her through the curtains, that she felt I saw her raise the vial to her lips and drain it dry, and that death was sweeter than life."

Hetty had been kneeling down by the prostrate girl, and had placed her hands over Daisy's heart; it beat in measured, full, strong throbs.

"You have saved her life by giving but a few drops, Marie," she sobbed, "this is life, not death— she has fallen into a lethargic sleep under its influence.

"We must get her to bed at once —no one must know. Swear to me that you will keep this night's work a secret deep and silent as the grave, Marie, as you love your poor young mistress— swear it!"

"So one shall ever know it from my lips, Miss Hetty," she answered, "I swear it."

Then she laid by Hetty at her sister's bedside, wondering that terrible moment could be weighing down her heart so heavily that death would be welcome to her— she was to know all too soon.

In the meantime, she took the precaution to send a telegram secretly to Alock.

To him, and to him alone, she would confess what Daisy had tried to do, and in the terrible effect upon him a moment of excitement he might divulge the name of her terrible secret if he knew it.

She felt positively that it was in some way connected with the bitter quarrel they had had in the past.

And this was the telegram Alock received, and which brought him from his hot haste.

But to return to Daisy's desperate foe; for more than an hour he had been watching the villa silent wood, then he had gone direct to the house.

As he stood on the stone porch, the shade in an adjoining belfry toned in solemn strokes the hour of ten.

He smiled grimly to himself. It was late, but it did not shake his purpose, she knew that he was to desperate a man to be trifled with.

Then suddenly he looked to amazement at the handsome stranger who had presented himself at the door of the villa at that hour of the night.

Who was he? Could he be Alexander Hamilton, and a deep imprecation fell from his lips when he was told he was not there.

"I do not believe that," he said curtly, tone suddenly he changed his tactics— remembering the golden key in his hand.

"Get your master to come to the drawing- room— or here on the porch a few moments, and I will give you a five- dollar bill, my good fellow," he said.

"I would be only too pleased to earn the money, sir," replied the man, but I tell you the truth— on my truth— my master is not here— he is in Boston."

"Mr. Gordon is here then — call Squire Gordon down."

"I assure you I might ask, but it would be in vain— he would not see me at this hour— it would be as much as my place is worth to suggest it. If your business is very important, take my advice and come here the first thing in the morning."

Harold St. John was obliged to submit. But very early, while the sun was shining and the birds were shaking the dew from their wings, he presented himself again at the villa.

This time he was informed that Squire Gordon was in the garden. If he wished to see him he should take the paved walk that led around past the fountain and into the rose garden —he was usually to be found there.

Squire Gordon rolled his eyes when he saw the stranger approaching, and greeted him with a very hearty good-morning.

Where had he seen just such a face and form rendered vaguely.

Before Harold St. John had time to answer his mind flashed back to the both saw Alock enter the entrance-gate— he had just alighted from the back of his fast trotting horse and from the depot.

"My business is with Alexander Hamilton as well as yourself," said St. John, slowly; "would you mind calling him here?"

"Certainly not," returned the squire; and in his hearty, cheery voice, he called to Alock, giving him the satchel and travelling toy to one of the servants, came over to the rose-arbor at once.

Alock recognized Harold St. John also. What was this man doing here?

This gentleman seems to have business with us, Alock," began the squire. "Shall we go to the library, or is it your pleasure to discuss it here, Mr.——" turning inquiringly to the stranger.

"Harold St. John," he said, bowing slightly. "Mr. Hamilton may possibly, we have met before."

"Ah!" returned the squire, but he looked slightly bewildered, for there was a plainly perceptible look of anger on Alock's face.

"I do not know dared such a man as this presume upon his acquaintance so far as to call upon him on the sanctuary of his home. The liberty he had taken aroused Alock.

"This place will answer better than the library, perhaps," he responded, with a cold bow, adding, with a slight sneer, "the family are there, no doubt."

"Which means, I am a man too far beyond the pale of society to be admitted into the presence of the fair ladies of your family, I suppose," replied St. John, with a hard, cynical laugh.

Alexander Hamilton flushed with anger.

"If you call for facts, sir, I must state you have taken exactly the right view of the case. You say you have business with me; I should be glad if you would proceed as expeditiously as possible— my time is limited this morning."

Again that low, hard laugh broke from Harold St. John's lips. He turned slowly and faced Alock, eyeing him keenly, saying:

"If I should insist upon saying what I have to say here to my before the ladies of your family, as you express it, what would you do?"

"I should decline to hear anything you might have to say before the presence; for to breathe the same air with you, I hold, would be a contamination to them," returned Alock, hotly. "As I said before, my time is limited; say what you have to say quickly."

"This man," he went on, turning to the squire, who stood looking on and listening to the strange dialogue in utter bewilderment, "is the one who had caused Miss Ruthven so much trouble. His character is so notorious you must know him by reputation."

The eye to recalled to Burter from the bold, handsome stranger, and he mentally answered that his client's man could possibly have with Alock and himself.

"Not favorably impressed with me, I see," sneered Dr. John, "I might safely aver I would not find much favor as a son-in-law in your eyes my good sir."

The remark fairly took the squire's breath away. Alock grew deadly white with rage; this was really too much for a man to endure.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The Test.

"Hold! Before you strike, you will do well to listen to what I have to say, today," said Harold St. John, coolly. "My wife, within these walls, and I have come here to claim her — to claim my daughter by my side by the right I have over her."

Both Alock and the squire had started back in amazement; a thunderbolt falling from a clear sky could not have astounded them more.

The thought flitted through the minds of both that it was some of the servant-maids connected with the house that this villain had wooed and won. But how, when, or where, neither of them could conceive.

His wife! She should not have been under the roof of Alock, he knew, that, Alock thought.

Aloud he said coolly if his visitor would name his wife as she was known to his household, she should be sent to him at once.

"Would you like to hear how I first met her?" asked St. John, delighting to torture his victim slowly, "it could not possibly interest me," returned Alock, drawing haughtily back, "I do not believe I have known the sentiments of Squire Gordon in the matter."

"But it will interest you both, and vitally," sneered St. John, continuing: "I was in the squire's room, which was comparatively a poor man that I met her, and it was while rummaging his farm —close to the brook— that I found her."

His words had been like an electric shock to Alock, and to the squire, poor Hamilton. It was the squire's voice that broke the ominous silence.

A nameless horror had crept over him that he dare not put into words. What was it this villain was trying to insinuate?

Now, he quite well knew that none of the old servants that were at the farmhouse were here —none save Margery.

It could not be she.

"She was fair as the morning," continued Harold St. John, "and I cannot wonder —had myn that I was —that I lost my heart to her at first sight. There was all the freshness and innocence of youth about her. I did not trifle with her as I might have done and left her like a broken flower, to perish and die; I loved me in those days, and —— Well, to make a long story short, I married her, and wedded her in the old gray church that stands on the edge of the hill, just back of the old farmhouse.

"Every one knows of that marriage," he went on, "for it was decided to have more publicity than I had bargained for; but I must confess, I was afraid this pretty girl's name for a little while, I had the marriage license taken out in other name —HA name I also gave the minister who married us; the name was Lillian Ruthven; but I swear to you, I was not Lillian Ruthven, the heiress, whom I wedded; she was Margaret; I simply borrowed that name."

"Well?" said the squire, huskily.

The House of Rothschild.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN is not genuinely regarded as a very important financial center, but for more than a century it has been the headquarters of the foremost banking-house of modern times—the Rothschilds. It was in this city that the great establishment had its origin and beginning, and since rising to affluence and power and extending its operations to all parts of the globe, the ancient seat has never been abandoned. The following facts regarding the origin and development of the Rothschild house are taken from the August issue of the "Bankers' Magazine:"

"The founder of the house was Mayer Anselm (1744-1811), the son of Anselm Moses Bauer, a small Jewish merchant of Frankfort-on-the-Main. He early wished him to become a rabbi, but he preferred business, and ultimately took up as a money-lender at the sign of the 'Red Shield' (Rothschild) in the Frankfort Judengasse. He negotiated the first great government loan with his first great client, the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, who, on succeeding to the throne in 1785, and his transactions, on behalf of William, Elector of Hesse-Cassel, were so profitable that when he died ten years later he was a very wealthy man. He left behind him five sons, and branches of the business were established in Vienna, London, Paris, and Naples, each being in charge of one of the sons.

"The third of these brothers, Nathan Mayer, has generally been regarded as the financial genius of the family and the chief originator of the transactions which have created for the house its unexampled position in the financial world. He came to Manchester about 1800 to accept a purchaser of manufactured goods for his father, but at the end of five years removed to London, where he found full scope for his financial genius. The boldness and skill of his transactions, which caused him at first to be regarded as rash and unsafe by the leading banking firms and financial merchants, latterly awakened their admiration and envy. By the employment of carrier-pigeons and fast-sailing boats of an early form for the transmission of news, he was able to outstrip by at least a day the ordinary official sources of information, while no one was more prompt to adopt in the act of promoting the rise and fall of the stocks.

"The colossal influence of the house dates from an operation of his in 1815. In that year Wellington made large drafts which the English Government could not meet; these were purchased by Rothschild at a liberal discount, and renewed to the Government, which finally redeemed at par. From this time the house became associated with the allied powers in the struggle against Napoleon, it being chiefly through it that they were able to negotiate loans to carry on the war. Rothschild never lost faith in the ultimate overthrow of Napoleon, his all being virtually staked on the issue of the contest. It is said to have been present at the Battle of Waterloo, and to have watched the varying fortunes of the day with feverish eagerness. Being able to transmit to London private information of the allied successes several hours before it reached the public, he secured an immense profit by the purchase of stock, which had been greatly depressed on account of the news of Blucher's defeat the day previous.

"Rothschild was the first to popularize foreign loans in Britain by fixing the rate in sterling money and making the dividends payable in London and not in foreign capitals. Latterly he became the financial agent of nearly every civilized government. It is said that since 1815 the Rothschilds have raised for Great Britain alone more than $1,000,000,000; for Austria, $250,000,000; for Prussia, $200,000,000; for France, $400,000,000; for Italy, $300,000,000; for Russia, $125,000,000; for Brazil, $10,000,000.

"In 1895 they took $15,000,000 of the Rothschild name and for United States through the Belmont-Morgan syndicate.

"There are at present living eleven heads of the Rothschild name. These are Nathaniel, Alfred and Leopold Rothschild, located in London; Gustav, Edmund, Adolphe and James are in Paris, and Nathaniel, a baron of the Austrian Empire, is head of the house in Vienna.

"Maintaining an identity as unchangeable as the Hebrew race to which they belong, and with purposes as inflexible as the ruler of Russia, and a policy as far-seeing as the Church of Rome," says the "Bankers' Magazine," "the Rothschilds have steadily pursued the even tenor of their name until it now outranks that of any other, while their fortune has grown year by year until it has attained to colossal figures. Those who have a talent for guessing have set the actual sum at two, thousand million dollars, but until some member of the firm displays a confidential mood, the correctness of this conjecture must remain unverified. Whatever the amount may be, its vastness is undoubted, and the accumulation of a century and a half are being rolled each hour by innumerable tributes from every quarter of the world."

Why She Quit the 'Phone.

"The young woman employed as a stenographer had a beau named Will to whom she talked some twenty-five times a day," says the Boston "Herald." "The lawyer who labored under the impression that he was paying for the stenographer's time was not pleased that Maggie should drop her work and rush frantically to the telephone every time the bell rang, and stand there for fifteen minutes debating whether or not Will ought to have told Clara that secret which he knew well enough was none of Clara's business. One day the lawyer left his office and, finding another telephone in the building, called up his own office. Of course Maggie rushed frantically to the 'phone, and answered.

"'Hello,' said the lawyer, in a muffled voice. 'This is a lineman testing the wires. Please stand one foot in front of the receiver and say hello.'

"'Maggie obeyed.

"'Thank you. Now stand two feet to one side and say hello.'

"Maggie complied.

"'Thank you. Now stand two feet on the other side and say hello.'

"It was done.

"'Thank you. Now stand on your head and say hello.'

"Maggie seems to be somewhat backward in answering the telephone now."

MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE.

Jerusalem and the Crusades Regally Depicted by Ringling Brothers.

Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Shows lend their huge circus proprietorship to the production of a magnificent dramatic spectacle, Jerusalem and the Crusades, involving a cast of 1,200 characters, a ballet of 200 and a singing chorus of 300. More than 2,000 costumes, jewels and blades by Parisian artists of world-wide fame, are worn, and the music, composed especially for this grand production, is rendered by the largest and only portable grand organ ever made, and a selected band of fifty soloists. The musical embellishment is especially effective and permeates the entire production. Never in the history of the circus has there been offered to the public a spectacle of the magnitude, originality and fascinating features of this stupendous performance. The circus in existence could withstand the fabulous expenditure of money invested by the Ringling Bros. in this radiant and dramatic interpretation of the beautiful and romantic story of the Crusades. The subject portrays life in the sunshiny days of chivalry, when loyalty, bravery, justice and gentleness went hand in hand, and courtesy to women and the weak was a cheerful duty. The men and women of this age are inspiring pictures of devotion to high ideals, and depict in glorious flower the sentiment of chivalry, from which the stirring Crusades sprung. The spectacle opens upon a brilliant court in preparation for the Crusades, multitudes move about the vast space before the great cathedral of Clarmont, France, from whence the immense army started, scanning the tournament notices and instruments to be used by the contesting knights in the tourney, which is to celebrate the departure of the warrior hosts. The jewelled and lance-pointed royalty; obsequious servitors, gaily arrayed; aristocratic, sparkling with precious insignia of rank; mounted knights, with shields and helmets inlaid with gold and precious stones; monks, seminarians and others busily clad in church devotion and work; court ladies in daintily fashioned fabrics of glistening sheen; nobles of blue-blooded bearing and dress; soldiers, grim and glittering in armor of steel; singing maidens, dancing girls with garlands, pilgrims, vassals, pages, sword, shield and helmet bearers, and countless other pictorial types of the period intermingle kaleidoscopically in this massive and enthralling scene of changing splendors. The most exciting of ancient sports, including pageant tilts, sword combats, spearing exercises, equestrian exploits, athletic competitions and other thrilling pastimes are reproduced in the splendid tournament. A horse ballet is introduced to illustrate the wonderful equestrian education of three specimens of the highest bred animals in the world. The marching pageant, when the Crusaders have upon their holy mission, is the most magnificent and bewildering beautiful processional display ever seen under canvas.

All the barbaric radiance and voluptuous luxury of the Egyptian court in the medieval days of the first Crusades are depicted in the environment and action of the Oriental ground scenes. A ballet divertissement is presented for the enjoyment of the Egyptian ruler and his numerous court. The enormous scope of stage room is taxed to the utmost by the brilliant gathering. Dancing girls flood the stage, and gracefully glide through bewitching conceits of terpsichorean invention. The costumes are creations of art, fashioned by Parisian masters and models of exquisite elegance and taste. No spectacle of modern times has been staged with the lavish disregard of expense, and with such overwhelming success, as this production by Ringling Bros. at the Hugo-Receipts, 2660 head; fairly active; 15c to 20c lower; mixed and Texans, $6.25 to $6.30; pigs, $5.25; roughs, $5.30 to $5.75; stags, $4.25 to $4.50. Proceedings of Ontario Synod

BISHOP MILLS ON CORRUPTION IN POLITICS — BELLEVILLE DELEGATES ON COMMITTEES.

Kingston, June 5.—At yesterday's session of the Synod of Ontario the following Belleville delegates were appointed on committees: On the executive committee, Rev. Rural Dean Bogart and Rev. Canon Burke. Audits and Accounts Committee, Rev. C. J. H. Hutton. Clergy Trust Fund Committee, Rev. Rural Dean Bogart. Widows and Orphans Committee, Rev. Rural Dean Bogart. Domestic and Foreign Missions, Rev. Canon Burke, Rev. Rural Dean Bogart. State of the Church, Rev. Rural Dean Bogart and Rev. C. J. H. Hutton. Sunday Schools, Rev. Canon Burke, Rev. G. R. Beamish.

A notion of motion was given to the effect that members of the Synod hereafter speak of the united Church of England and Ireland in Canada as the Canadian church, or the church in Canada. The Synod will give $150 per annum to a theological student; also grants studying at Trinity University, and will loan a further sum if necessary. The clergy trust fund had a balance carried over of $1,762.25. The amount of interest received from the consolidated fund was $5,220.49, making a total of $7,082.75. Disbursements were $5,950, leaving a balance of $1,132.75. The state of the fund will not permit of an additional assistant to the deacons in Christ Church, Belleville.

The report of the Mission Board, which was adopted, provided for the appointment of a missionary agent at a salary of $1,000 a year. This official is, in addition to Rev. C. J. Hutton, at present canvassing for funds for the Widows. The last named has collected $54.80 so far, and will continue his work for another year.

The committee on the state of the church reported a growth of 600 during the last year. Four new schools were erected. The total givings for all purposes for the year were $92,780, an increase of $2,446, and the debt of the diocese decreased $4,879. The total value of church property is $727,737. The clergy superannuation fund has a capital of $12,33.16, and the income for the year was $777.36, and $650 was paid to annuities. Canon Bedford-Jones was placed on the fund at an annuity of $600. Rev. H. H. Bedford-Jones, Brockville, and Col. Hallewell, Stirling, were appointed representatives on the council of Trinity University for the Synod.

In his lengthy charge, Bishop Mills referred to the King's accession, his illness and the sympathy expressed by Canada. The prosperity of the Dominion was referred to, and the fact that the people had been saved from the evils of corruption. As a church man, speaking of politics, His Lordship deplored the existence of corruption in political parties, and scored the man who sold his vote and the one who bought it. "I am not speaking as a politician," said he, "but as a Canadian, and more than one who has blushed as Englishmen and Americans have blushed, at the political life. Honest men of all parties should join together to put an end to the methods which disgrace our land, and especially the methods which exist in Ontario. The question with many a man now is not 'What can I do for my country?' but 'What can I do for myself?' And there is a contagion in it which is more deadly to the country than the smallpox, and equally radical measures should be taken to stamp it out. The very life blood of the country is being polluted by corruption. Good sense, morality, honesty must stand on one side for party purposes. Men and brethren, that sort of thing should end. See that the men you vote for are good and true men—men above reproach, men who can neither be bought nor sold, men who love their country, who love their God, and then the political jockeys who so often make both day and night hideous with their cries, and who have been feeding on whatever they could pick up, will slink away into the obscurity from which they came, and from which they never should have been allowed to emerge; and the confused mass of mean, selfish, unscrupulous rivalries of party conflict, which have been a disgrace to our country and to our legislative halls shall come to an end."

HOW A SPRAIN DOES HURT!

But it isn't the pain alone that it dreaded, but think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the parts of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

SR. OLA MAN IS MINUS HIS LEFT ARM.

CAUGHT IN A BELT YESTERDAY MORNING—HIS ARM AMPUTATED IN LOCAL HOSPITAL.

A distressing accident happened to Mr. Harry Sleeper, of St. Ola, as a result of which he is minus an arm. The unfortunate man was employed in a mill of St. Ola, in the northern part of this county, and yesterday morning was at his work when the accident occurred. He was engaged in adjusting a belt upon a large fly-wheel when the belt became wound around his left arm, pulling him off his feet and revolving him around the shaft at a lively gait. When freed from his perilous position it was seen that poor Sleeper's arm was lacerated in a terrible manner. Medical aid was summoned as speedily as possible and the injured member was temporarily dressed. Sleeper was brought to the hospital here last evening and the physicians who were called in decided that it was necessary to amputate the arm which was taken off at the shoulder. To-day Mr. Sleeper was doing as well as could be expected.

REV. J. P. RICE FOR ALBERTA.

APPOINTED PRINCIPAL OF RED DEER INDIAN INSTITUTION.

A despatch from Toronto says: Rev. J. P. Rice, of the Clinton Street Methodist Church, who came to Toronto from Blenheim a year ago, has been appointed principal of the Red Deer Indian Institution in Alberta by the missionary authorities of the Methodist Church. The Rev. gentleman mentioned above is a son of the Rev. J. J. Rice, formerly of this city.

The Band Concert.

If anybody in this city has an idea that the band concerts given weekly on Victoria Park are not popular, he should have been in the park last evening. The attendance was one of the largest ever seen, and all appeared to be enjoying themselves. It was an ideal evening, the boat leaving off the bay being refreshing. The programme provided by the I.O.O.F. band gave general satisfaction.

TOO GREAT A RISK.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A moment's delay with these diseases is apt to be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

The Farmer Forgot Something.

Deseronto Tribune: A Prince Edward County farmer came to town with his wife to do some shopping the other day. On the way he had thought came to him that he had forgot something. He took out his notebook and went over each item, checking it off, and was sure that he had made all the purchases he intended. As he drove on he could not put aside the feeling that there was something missing. He again took out his note book and rechecked every item, but still found no error. He did this several times, but could not rid himself of the idea that he had forgotten something. When they reached home and drove up to the house his daughter came out to meet them, carrying a look of surprise, asked: "Why, papa, where is mother?"

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to learn that deafness is curable. It probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results from catarrh from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by chronic inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries, as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment for all catarrhal ears. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing, and all noises cease as if placed beyond dispute by the case of Mrs. Warren, of Ottawa, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhozone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At druggists, or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Troublesome Vagrant.

A few minutes before 6 o'clock this morning the police received a message from the G.T.R. station, stating that a troublesome vagrant had been found in a box car. Chief Constable Officer Hayes responded to the call, but the man was allowed to get away before he arrived, and when last seen was making tracks eastward as fast as possible.

WEDDED ON WEDNESDAY.

NUPTIALS OF MR. ROBT. HUGHES AND MISS FANNIE SMITH, OF THIS CITY.

On Wednesday morning of this week a quiet but pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. W. S. Smith, Alexander street, when her second daughter, Miss Fannie, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Hughes, a prosperous young farmer of Marysburg. Rev. Mr. Macleod performed the ceremony. The groom was assisted by Mr. Wm. Buchanan, of Marysburg, while Miss Annie, sister of the bride, performed the duties of bridesmaid. After a dainty breakfast, the happy couple left on the noon train for their future home, carrying with them the best wishes of many friends. The bride, who is a daughter of the late Rev. W. S. Smith, of Middleville, Ont., was the recipient of some handsome and useful gifts from friends in this city and other towns.

Wedding Bells.

On the morning of Wednesday, June 3rd, about 100 guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Foster, Stockdale, to witness the marriage of their daughter, Annie L., to Dr. Chas. F. Walt, of Stirling. Promptly at nine o'clock the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and looking perfectly charming in a dress of white muslin trimmed with silk insertion and sequin and wearing a veil of silk net, entered the drawing-room to the accompaniment of a very pretty wedding march played by her sister Estella, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. S. T. Degewi.

The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Johnston, of Ottawa, a cousin of the bride, while the groom was ably assisted by Dr. W. H. Stilsap, of Napanee. Two little nieces of the groom, Gladys Walt, of Londesboro, and Mabel Walt, of Stockdale, acted as flower girls. An excellent wedding dessert was then served, after which the happy couple left for the West by G.T.R. The bride's going away gown was of fawn coloring, trimmed with white and brown. The many valuable presents indicated the high esteem in which the bride is held by her friends. On returning from their brief tour Dr. and Mrs. Walt will take up their residence in Stirling, where they will be at home to their friends after July 15th.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE.

REV. T. J. EDMISON, A FORMER PASTOR OF HOLLOWAY STREET CHURCH, THIS CITY, ELECTED PRESIDENT.

Oshawa, June 4.—The twentieth session of the Bay of Quinte Conference opened here at 10 o'clock this morning. Rev. Dr. Reynar, retiring President, in resigning to his successor, addressed the Conference. On the second ballot Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.D., was elected President, with Dr. Dyer and Rev. J. F. Wilson receiving a large vote for the same office. The ballot for Secretary resulted in the election of Rev. D. Balfour. A complimentary resolution was tendered Dr. Rayner, noting the great success of the ex-President in educational matters, and in shaping the ministerial life of the young men.

Rev. N. D. Drew and Rev. R. W. Clarke were appointed Assistant Secretaries: Rev. P. V. Mounteer to inscribe the names in the journal, and Rev. W. B. Hanter as Statistical Secretary.

Rev. Dr. Hare addressed the Conference, and was complimented on the excellent work in Principal of the Ontario Ladies' College. Rev. J. G. Seymour read the memorial of the Conference who has died during the past year.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, B.G.L., and Rev. W. Wickett were appointed Conference letter-writers, and it was asked that words of greeting be sent the absentees on distant fields.

After an absence of seven years Rev. Dr. Sanderson returned to the Conference, he earnestly addressing the Conference, and was heartily greeted by many. In going to his far home he left behind his life by drowning. His little child perished. The Conference granted him a new ordination parchment, free of cost, as he had lost all his effects.

The layman last and elected the following reserve delegates to the General Conference: Judge Deroche, J. R. Fraser and John Hull.

McINTOSH BROS.

A RACE for life on a bicycle from a man-eating tiger sounds more like a passage from a novel of adventure than it does like an actual event. Yet Monsieur H. Rosny, the noted French author, traveler and sportsman, claims to have taken part in just such a race in the Malay Peninsula. He says:

A bicycle gleaming under a shed caught my eye that first morning at Nieuwshops plantation. I could not resist the temptation—I had not ridden since leaving France. So I sped along among the rice and coffee-fields for about six miles, until I found myself in the heart of a forest.

While I was enjoying the beauty of the place there was a crunching of branches, and I became conscious that something massive but light-footed was approaching. Thirty yards from where I sat a tiger had issued from the jungle.

I dared not move a finger. To reach my bicycle I must get to the road. This was impossible without attracting the attention of the brute, and in two leaps he would be upon me.

With extreme nonchalance the tiger at length turned toward the depths of the forest. I could bear it no longer. I threw down my riding-place, slackened over intervening obstacles, mounted the bicycle, and ran alongside, my hands on the handlebar.

In a flash, as I was mounting, I caught sight of the great body crouching for the leap. I heard the fatty pads of the beast land not far behind me. In the minute space between the first and second bound I got myself well started and balanced for the struggle.

His fourth bound brought the tiger very near. The next time I felt the wind of his tail. A second later his shoulder or paw touched the tire and made me swerve.

What I, he hoped feared or even thought of now happened—I lost one pedal, that both. I regained them in some trouble, but on account of the delay I was once more greeted by a rear fire.

In this instant we came to a very narrow bridge—two boards side by side over an irrigation canal. The wheels of the bicycle were true as an arrow. The passage must have slightly retarded the awful thing behind me, for although I dared not look behind I felt him to be farther off.

We were now between two fields of bananas. A small tree had been cut and thrown on the road so that it completely barred the way. There was nothing to do but try to go over at top speed. I sailed right in furiously, and although nearly thrown over, I succeeded in recovering my balance—went on, and reached a smart decline, and rolled down like a cannon-ball. At a bend in the road the plantation buildings came in view.

I cannot say when the tiger abandoned the race. But when I shot amid the group of my friends, fell and scrambled to my feet, completely out of breath and my eyes bulging out, my first instinct was to look around in the expectation of finding the brute at my heels, ready to stay us all.

Dr. Crothers says it is a fact that race again in day-dreams and awful nightmares, and every time I passed in front of my mirror I saw myself as haggard as a lunatic.

Reincarnation Defined.

The doctrine of reincarnation, along with Karma and other Orfeulan beliefs, theses relating to the spiritual life, has received much attention in the Occident of late years, and, as now appears, Pelt has even become a subject of discussion among the Dutch Jews. The Bombay "Guardian" gives a dialogue on "reincarnation" of souls, between two gentlemen of this nationality. As the doctrine is often found to be a difficult one for Western comprehension, the following "off reporter" report of conversation, which has the merit of being at least a clear statement: Strauss—O, say, Mishter Isaacs, you new doctrine hin die heart? Dey call it ätrampemkrshnation. Isaacs — O, ätrampemkrshnation, ätrampemkrshnation, you not know vot dot is? Strauss—No, und I hears very much about it. Mishter Isaac—Vell! Vell! I soon dell you vot ätrampemkrshnation is. It is dis way, you are now Strauss. Some day you dies, und den your soul or spirit goes into a monkey, und some mornin' I gets up und I walks out early down ve vay, und I meets dis monkey, und it (you) hangs und brays, und says, "Mishter Isaacs! Mishter Isaacs!" Und I says, "Vot, you Strauss? No! No! Vy you are a condkey." Und you says, "No, no; I am Strauss, but I have just been ätrampemkrshnated." Then I strokes dis monkey, und I says to you but check, und I says: "Vell, vell, now, Strauss; is dis dot? Vy, how little you have changed!" Dot is de ätrampemkrshnation doctrine."

A Scientist's Grim Discovery.

Dr. Casagrandi, in reading a paper before a medical association in Rome, stated that he had employed a number of women wearing long skirts to walk for one hour through the streets of the city, and, after the promenade was ended, had taken these skirts and had them submitted to a very careful bacteriologic examination. He says he found on every skirt large colonies of noxious germs, including those of typhoid fever, consumption, influenza and infective lock-jaw). Numerous other bacilli were likewise well represented on each skirt. Dr. Casagrandi maintained that, in view of these facts women, and especially mothers, should at once discontinue wearing trailing skirts, and other members of the Medical Congress unhesitatingly expressed the same opinion, and passed resolutions to that effect. That women should object themselves to the filth, to say nothing of the possible dangers of trailing gowns, has long been a wonder to those acquainted with bacteriology. Nevertheless, so long as fashion calls for long skirts, no reform can be expected, for the great majority of women are bound to be in the fashion regardless of any ordinary considerations. There is some encouragement, however, in the fact that many of the younger women of the present time, in their golf and bicycle skirts throughout the day, and merely dress for dinner and the evening.

PALL OVER THE ST. LAWRENCE

Bush Fires in Quebec Seem to Be on the Increase.

Ottawa Again Fire-Swept—Half a Million Dollars Damage Done—Many Business Places and Dwellings Destroyed—Busy Part of City Scorched—Sparks Street and Both Sides of Queen Street Now a Mass of Ruins.

Montreal, June 5.—The greatest possible alarm has been felt here over the constantly increasing area of bush fires. It was reported yesterday that St. Agathe was in danger, but reports received up to 9 o'clock say all danger is passed, although a few of the under trestles and bridges have smoked. The Three River district has also suffered badly.

A despatch from Shawinigan Falls says that, although the fire had come to within one hundred feet of the lumber piles at the siding, yet no material damage had been wrought, and the fires in the bush, though large in extent, was in a cutover area, so the financial loss is slight.

The danger is also passed at Three Rivers West.

The Richelieu boats were delayed by the heavy pall of smoke which hung over the St. Lawrence, but managed to go through. All the afternoon the steamships made little progress, owing to a total eclipse, from smoke caused by fires in the woods.

Rumors are causing the insurance people no small amount of loss and consequent uneasiness.

The destruction of property in many cases also brings loss to wholesale merchants who have advanced goods to country merchants. The fire relighting business man's merchant renders him unable to meet his obligation with the wholesalers.

OTTAWA AGAIN FIRE SWEPT.

Half a Million Dollars Damage Done—Many Business Places Destroyed.

Ottawa, June 5.—A fire, which brought damage to the amount of nearly $500,000, raged for two hours in the central part of the city yesterday morning, and in that time some seventeen stores and dwellings were consumed. Thackray & Davidson's planing mill and the Mortimer Company's lithographic establishment are the two largest places burned. This is the third time that Thackray & Davidson's mill has been destroyed.

It started in the rear of either Thackray & Davidson's mill or Mortimer Company's lithographic plant. The whole block soon went, in spite of most determined exertions. The oil, paints and other inflammable materials made the flames leap with tremendous intensity, and the firemen for a time could make no headway.

The following are among the stores or dwellings destroyed:

Sparks Street.—No. 224, Stewart's paint store; Nos. 226-228, the Mortimer Lithographic Company; No. 234, the R. J. Smith Manufacturing Company; Russell's cabinet; No. 240, vacant building; No. 242, office of the Ottawa Planing Company; Nos. 244 to 250, Thackray & Davidson's planing mill and lumber yard.

Queen Street, North Side.—No. 221, Salvation Army Barracks; No. 223, Northwick's fruit auction rooms; No. 227, Whitford Birch's dwelling; rear, Davidson & Thackray's factory.

Queen Street, South Side.—Nos. 229-231, Bryson, Graham & Co.'s workshops; No. 230, Frederick Reynolds' frame dwelling; No. 234, Michael J. McEvoy, frame dwelling, vacant; No. 246, Mrs. Mary V. Curran, frame dwelling; Nos. 248-250, Mrs. A. Edwards, boarding-house; Nos. 252-254, Mrs. Cormack, brick-veneered houses; No. 252, James Baker, brick-veneered dwelling.

Favor the Preference.

Melbourne, Victoria, June 5.—Speaking before the Federal House of Representatives yesterday, Mr. Kingston, Minister for Trade and Customs, said he felt the Commonwealth might give preference to Great Britain without an inexpedient revenue, by adjusting some of the existing duties levied on British products, and raising others against foreigners.

Wellington, N.Z., June 5.—A conference of the New Zealand Chambers of Commerce yesterday adopted a resolution in favor of preferential trade with Great Britain.

Rev. Dr. Caven's Condition.

Toronto, June 5.—The latest report concerning the condition of Principal Caven of Knox College was that he was doing well, and as every day passed without change, adds to the probability of his recovery, the relatives are feeling much encouraged.

In the Home of the Artisan

Malta-Vita makes the Early Breakfast the best meal of the day.

Canada's prosperity is due largely to two classes of her people—her mechanics and her farmers, and there is nothing too good in the way of food for either of them.

The old-fashioned idea that the skilled mechanic, because he labors with his muscles as well as his brain, requires a heavy food has been pretty well exploded. The mechanic, himself, has found out that Malta-Vita, the perfect food, is far more nutritious and digestible than meat, potatoes or baker's bread. It is made from the whole wheat and possesses all its nutritive qualities in the most digestible form. Malta-Vita is the ideal food for a hastily prepared meal for it is cooked ready for immediate use. Served, hot or cold, with cream, milk or fruit it is simply delicious.

No Work—No Heat—Just Cream—Then Eat.

Anecdotal.

It is recorded of Mr. W. S. Gilbert that on hearing of the title of Henry Arthur Jones' new play, "The Princess and the Hoyden," he hoped it may run long."

United States Senator Hoar received word the other day that a friend, who had been supposed to have appendicitis, was suffering not from that ailment, but from acute indigestion. "What good news," said the Senator. "I rejoice that the trouble lies in the solid contents rather than in the appendix."

Samuel Rogers, the poet, told of an Englishman and a Frenchman who had to fight a duel. That they might have a better chance of meeting one another, they were to fight in a dark room. The Englishman fired up the chimney and brought down the Frenchman! "When I got the story to Paris," added Rogers, "I put the Englishman up the chimney."

James G. Blaine used to tell this story: Once in Dublin, toward the end of the opera, Satan was contesting Faust through a trap-door which resounded the cries of Hades. His majesty got through all right—he was used to going below—but Faust, who was quite strong, stuck much lower down, and no squeezing would get him any farther. Suddenly an Irishman in the gallery exclaimed, devoutly, "Thank God, he's full."

When Moses Colt Tyler, the celebrated professor of history at Cornell, left Ann Arbor, where he is University of Michigan, he had charge of a class in English literature at 11 o'clock a.m. One raw February morning at roll-call, he read the name of "Mr. Robbins," a member of the class, without a smile, and, looking over the class, he repeated in a slightly upward tone: "Still no reply. "Ah," said the instructor with a wilful smile, "come to think of it, it is rather early for robbin."

Once during a heated debate between Senator Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, and Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, the question of law in Texas and law in Ohio came up. In the passage became warm. Forsker, by way of a parting shot, said that that is why he would come to Ohio he would learn it was dead. "I am sorry he did not know. "If there is so very much for me to learned in Ohio," remarked Bailey, "I must advise the Senator to spend all his spare time there. He needs it."

A somewhat apocryphal anecdote of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is going the rounds of the United States press. During the last general elections, it is related, a Quebec Liberal, whose acquaintance with Sir Wilfrid was only political, sent him a telegram to Ottawa C. O., was in Ontario on a speech-making tour: "Report in election in this county that your children have not been baptized. Telegraph denial." To which despatch the Premier sent the reply: "Sorry to say report is correct. Have no children."

Mayor Low of New York when "off duty" is a jolly sort of philosopher, and the quick twinkle in his eyes shows it. Talking one day about laughter, which he declared, with a nobel reason has a basis of malice, Mayor Low said: "The more I ponder the more I look at the slinking, double-eyed, sinister villainy of the wretched, laughter-making Mark Twain, who, so far as I know, does not report a single joke in his long career of crime."

LIBERAL CAUCUS AND G.T.P.

Some Oppose Subsidy, Others Favor Government Railway.

Subsidy Resolution Guaranteeing $9,000,000, Sinking Fund at the Rate of 2 Per Cent. and Maturing in 50 Years, Brought Down in the House—Two Tenders Made For Fast Atlantic Service—Mr. Blair's Bill.

Ottawa, June 6.—A caucus of Government supporters yesterday dealt with the question of assisting the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Many members expressed their views. The Grand Trunk's friends demanded assistance to the transcontinental, on the basis that the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern guaranteed Government aid.

A majority of Ontario Liberals opposed a subsidy of any kind. These were the strong followers of Sir William Mulock, who is the most uncompromising enemy of the Grand Trunk Pacific in the Cabinet.

Mr. Archie Campbell advocated Government construction and Government ownership of a line from Winnipeg to Quebec. Hon. R. H. Emmerson, of Westmorland, favored a similar policy. Other advocates of a Government-owned line pressed their views. They were divided only on the question of the Government operating the line or leasing it. The Government ownership men received but scant encouragement. The advocate of a big subsidy appeared to be in a hopeless minority. Many favored a guarantee of the company's bonds.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that he appeared before the caucus with an open mind. He had given absolutely no promise to the Grand Trunk people that would warrant expectations of a subsidy. The Premier's words went to strongly indicate that the Government will not give a cash subsidy to the Grand Trunk Pacific. A guarantee of bonds seem to be the line of policy the Government is likely to adopt.

Despite Mr. Wilfrid's straight words, well-informed members declare that Hon. Geraldine Pacaud, will receive a subsidy for several hundred miles east of Winnipeg, and that this will be complementary to a generous guarantee of bonds.

Marine and Fisheries.

$9,360,000 FOR CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Three Per Cent. Fifty Year Bonds to Be Guaranteed.

Ottawa, June 6.—Subsidy resolutions were brought down in the House yesterday afternoon, granting to the Canadian Northern Railway a guarantee of the principal and the interest, of the first mortgage bonds, debentures and other securities of the company, to the extent of $13,000 per mile on 720 miles of railway, the bonds to be at the rate of 3 per cent., payable half-yearly, and the principal to be paid in fifty years.

This guarantee applies to the extension of the line of the Canadian Northern from Grand View, the point where what is known as the Gilbert Plains branch of the railway ends, to the city of Prince Edmonton, a distance of about 230 miles, and also to the Prince Albert branch of the railway, from a point 100 miles east of Prince Albert, a distance of about 120 miles.

The mortgage is to form a charge upon all the lines of the railway in operation and property franchises of the company. It is to be a first charge only to the extent of $10,000 per mile, but to rank after a first charge for the remainder.

The Governor-in-Council or any authority created by Parliament for these purposes, may also grant running powers over the line to other companies upon equitable terms. The Canadian Northern may not lease or sell the lines.

The rates and tolls to be charged for freight and passengers upon the lines of railway aided and upon the property of the Canadian Northern, shall be under the control of the Governor-in-Council or such authority as is constituted under the act.

END NOT TILL AUGUST.

Unless Parliament Moves More Rapidly Than It Is Doing Now.

Twenty-five clauses of Mr. Blair's railway commission bill were passed by the House yesterday afternoon, making unimportant amendments.

It will take two or three days to put the bill through. Scrutiny of these clauses developed but little argument. The time was taken up in getting finished particulars of clauses in the committee stage. The House is most leisurely in its methods, and unless it stabilizes it itself it will be a long time before Parliament will rise in session.

Marine and Fisheries.

In the evening the estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department were taken up. Mr. McLachlan energetically defended the St. Lawrence route and put the blame for disasters on the pilots and captains.

May Invite Lloyds.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur has agreed with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that accidents on the river and the gulf are the work of inexperienced and inefficient masters, not to say pilots in the route. Those employing gaspé crews went year after year without accident. Mr. Pringle has suggested that the Government invite Lloyds to send out a competent agent at the expense of Canada, go over the whole St. Lawrence route and make recommendations. The representative would at the same time see that the work now being done to improve the route.

The question of control of river pilots was also discussed. The leader of the House agreed that the pilots should be under the control of the Government, instead of subject to the Harbor Boards.

TWO TENDERS FOR FAST LINE.

Dominion Line and Allan Line Have Asked Federal Subsidies.

Ottawa, June 6.—Two tenders have been made for the fast Atlantic service. They were submitted to the Senate by Hon. R. W. Scott yesterday.

The Dominion Line offers a fortnightly service for $200,000 and $200,000 annual subsidy, with six knots speed.

The Allan Line, for the same service, offer to Halifax all the year round, $300,000 yearly, paying half yearly.

The bill to amend the Criminal Code regarding obscene and immoral plays received a third reading and passed.

TIME BRINGS ITS CHANGES.

Mr. Chamberlain's Views Have Altered. Others May Do Same Yet.

London, June 6.—Replying to a correspondent who had appealed to a speech, delivered in 1881, in which Mr. Chamberlain said: "I am no food tax maker, a decline in wages, the Colonial Secretary says circumstances have changed. He thinks experience has shown that the view he expressed in 1881 was erroneous.

Letters were published yesterday morning from Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Lord Hipon would that they would be fruitful cause of disputes between the Mother Country and the Colonies, and of conflict with foreign countries.

O.J.C. Spring Races.

Toronto, June 6.—Twelfty Day. Friday, super closing, track fast.

First Race—5½ furlongs, 3-year-olds, Mrs. Parkhill's Joe Miller, 2, Gold Cocade 3.

Second Race—1 mile, 2-year-olds, Interlude 1, Fetiment 2, Rowland 3.

Third Race—1 mile, Dominion bred 3-year-olds and up, Bank Street 1, Frank Love 2, Sheridan 3.

Fourth Race—1 mile, steeplechases, 3-year-olds and up, Bank Street 1, Andy Williams 2, Benckart 3.

Fifth Race—1 mile, 3-year-olds and up, Baauto 1, Eraicleet 2, Procession 3.

Sixth Race—1 miles, 3-year-olds, Interlude 1, Bellcourt 2, Lady of the West 3.

Successful Reconstitution.

Cape Town, June 6.—The Governor of Cape Colony, Sir Walter Hely-Hutchinson, opened Parliament yesterday. In his speech he said he hoped shortly to be able to deal with remaining restrictions on liberty, in consequence the rebellion having now attended the policy of peace and reconciliation. All the laws were working down to ordinary life. With the continuance of the present buoyancy in the revenue necessary increased expenditure would not involve additional taxation.

Movements of Steamships.

London, June 6.—It is officially announced that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will visit Dublin July 21 on their visit to Ireland.

The German Emperor and the Czar of Russia will visit Vienna simultaneously at the beginning of September. The Czar will then continue his journey to Rome by way of Trieste.

Fire at Stratford.

Stratford, June 6.—Fire broke out between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the warehouse occupied by the Massey-Harris Company agency. The building was totally destroyed. A stock of new and second-hand implements was badly damaged, as well as a couple of Gray & Sons' buggies. Loss probably $2,000.

Big Fire in Toronto.

Toronto, June 6.—This morning between one and two Reid & Brown's foundry was completely destroyed by fire, as was the Esplanade Foundry Co.'s premises. The scale factory of C. Wilson & Son was gutted to the extent of $10,000 damage. Schooners in the slip were towed off before catching fire.

CAP" SULLIVAN AS A LOVER

Gave Mr. Taylor $1,900 Out of Timber Deal For Pure Love.

This Was in Addition to the $4,018.50 Mr. Taylor Got Out of the Shannon Deal—The House Sat Only an Hour Yesterday and Will Adjourn Over the Order Paper Before the Gamey Report Debate Begins Tuesday.

Toronto, June 6.—The Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature shows no signs of coming to an end. The Opposition struck another vein of ore yesterday morning when Mr. Theodore C. Taylor, the suspended timber agent of Sturgeon Falls, protests branch, was examined. It was divulged that in addition to the Shannon deal, Mr. Taylor "stood in on a deal in the Township of Dupuis, in which Captain Sullivan was interested. In this case the Captain gave him $1,900 out of pure love, as he put it.

Legislature Will Come Off Most of the Order Paper Before Fight Begins—Whitney Wants Evidence Printed.

Toronto, June 6.—It is unlikely that the Legislature will reach the debate on the Gamey report before Tuesday. There is no understanding that the ordinary business of the House is to be put forward as far as possible, so that the report may be cleared off before any extraneous matter is allowed to come in.

The last days of the session promise to be of an interesting character. The Gamey report and the report of the Shannon-Sullivan timber deal will provide material for some argument.

On the motion to adjourn yesterday Mr. Whitney asked if it was the intention to delay the publication of the evidence, and the addresses of counsel in the Gamey investigation printed.

The Premier replied that if there was going to be a lengthy debate on the report it might be well to have the evidence printed. That was not the only objection. He promised, however, that the matter would be considered.

The subject then dropped.

Sat Only an Hour.

Little more than an hour was consumed altogether in public business. The bills advanced had already been pretty well discussed, and no matters of importance were left over. The railway legislation will be introduced next week.

Replying to Mr. Preston (Durham) Hon. E. J. Davis furnished the following statement showing when Samuel Johnston was in the employ of the Government at Whitwood as a cattle:

Grants to Hospitals.

Mr. Stratton moved the ratification of Order-in-Council placing the following institutions on the list of those receiving provincial aid: Hospital Alexandra Hospital, Fergus; Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay; Cottage Hospital, Renfrew; Loyal True Blue Orphanage, Picton; County of Ontario House of Refuge; County of Ontario House of Refuge, Whitby.

Toll Roads Legislation.

To amend the Land Titles Act (Gibson); respecting the Town of East Toronto (Geary).

Second readings: To amend the Separate Schools Act (Graham); to amend the Municipal Amendment Act, 1903 (Davis).

Mr. Gibson introduced a bill to amend the Assessment Act.

Mr. Harcourt gives notice of a bill to set aside certain wild lands, in the Township of Dymond, as a park for the use of the University of Toronto.

Succession Duty.

The province will probably benefit to the extent of half a million dollars at the estate of the late Alexander Fraser, which is said to be worth $10,000,000. The succession duty on succession duty is about $15,000 from the Wood estate in London.

The inspector of Factories has issued his report and published it. He says vio'ations of the law are frequently met with, owing to false certificates being furnished the employer, but he has arranged to have the employers witness personally the parents' or guardians' signature.

U.S. Nurses About Canada.

Detroit, June 6.—A Washington special says: Secretary Fairbanks has been asked to come to Washington as soon as possible to attend a conference of the Secretary of State, the President Roosevelt, to discuss the matter of Great Britain's preferential tariff policy on Canadian-American commercial relations, particularly it is desired to talk over the prospects of a reciprocity treaty between Canada and a meeting of the Joint High Commission.

Probably Fatally Burned.

Toronto, June 6.—It is feared that a little daughter of Eleanor French, 99 Grant avenue, will lose her life through an accident yesterday afternoon. She was playing in the street with matches, and in some way set fire to her clothing. She was soon enveloped in flames. Her shrieks of anguish soon brought assistance, but not until she was terribly burned that it was accomplished.

Principal Caven Needs Quietude.

WE STAND ON BORDERLINE

Where Matter and Force Pass Into Each Other Says Crookes.

Great Address by the Eminent London Professor at Berlin—Problems of the Twentieth Century—To Formless Nothing Everything Is Moving and Matter Will Be No More When the Hour Glass of Eternity Has Run Out.

Berlin, June 6.—Professor Sir William Crookes, before the International Chemical Congress yesterday, dwelt with the possibility of reducing all the elements of matter to one and to ultimately find them resolvable into a single form of energy. The subject was "Modern views on matter—the realization of a dream." Sir William cited the utterances of Sir Humphrey Davy and Faraday as anticipating the possibility of reducing the elements to simpler bases, and sketched the significance of the Roentgen Rays and Becquerel Rays and the experiments of Currie and others, and said:

"All these observations find internal connection in the discovery of radium, which is probably the basis of the coarser chemical elements here. Probably masses of molecules dissolve themselves into the gradual waves of the universe, or into electrical energy. Thus, we stand on the border line where matter and force pass into each other. In this borderland lie the greatest mysteries of the future. Here lie the final problems of physics and chemistry. The nineteenth century saw the birth of new views about the nature of atoms, electricity and ether. While our views about the constitution of matter are probably satisfactory to-day, will that be the case at the end of the twentieth century? Do we not again see that our investigations have only a temporary value?

"Will we be content to see the matter dissolving into a multitude of revolving electrodes? Such a mysterious disappearance of matter would be universal. It occurs when a piece of glass is rubbed with silk. It is present in sunshine, in a rain drop, in lightning, in a flame, in a waterfall and in the rosiest dawn through the whole range of human experience is too. Such a form is unstable, for whereby we can foretell the disappearance of matter, particularly it is possible that formless nebulae will again prevail when the hour glass of eternity has run out."

DIED FOR HIS WIFE.

Captain Dean of Avery Crushed While Trying to Save Her.

Saint Joseph, Mich., June 6.—The schooner H. M. Avery was run down at her dock by the steamer Puritan here yesterday. While trying to save his wife, Capt. John B. Dean of the schooner was crushed to death. Capt. Dean was 50 years old and known all over the lakes as Indian Bill, a soubriquet he acquired in his younger days. Mrs. Dean is nearly insane from grief and fright.

Two Arrests at Woodstock.

Woodstock, June 6.—Two men, one colored and the other white, named Porter and Ley, were arrested here this morning on charge of vagrancy and the police propose to send their two victims to the Provincial Reformatories, believing that possibly they might be the parties wanted at Colborne in connection with the Whalen murder case. The colored fellow, in conversation with one of the jailer, stated that he lived in Collingwood till a year ago, and knows the father of Glory Whalen well. They claim that they came here from London. The Magistrate committed the two of them to the Central Prison for four months.

Buried in Her Death.

Hamilton, June 6.—Mrs. Irwin, an aged patient at the Hamilton Asylum for the Insane, was struck by an elevator yesterday morning, and buried down the shaft to her death. It is a double elevator, and the shafts are guarded by a door. She was standing over the bar, and was struck by the descending car. She fell from the second story to the bottom of the shaft, 25 feet below. Her skull was fractured. Her home is in Muskoka. She has been in the asylum several years. An inquest was opened.

Canadian Lacrosse Hurt.

Philadelphia, June 6.—The crosse team of ◆ Toronto University defeated the University of Pennsylvania team yesterday by the score of 9 to 5. J. L. Leopard of the Canadian team was badly cut on the head and had to retire from the game.

Circus Pickpockets Nabbed.

Kingston, June 6.—Detectives yesterday colared pickpockets caught red-handed in telling operations on the Kingston and Pembroke R.R. trains, who were coming to the circus. They give their names as Harvey A. Montreal, and Norton of London.

Deadly Cowboy Battle.

St. Francis, Kan., June 6.—Eight men were killed in a battle yesterday between settlers and cowboys. Friends are rallying to the aid of both sides, and more trouble is feared. The dispute arose over a claim.

A COSILY POLITICAL MACHINERY.

The Interecolonial railway, which, to use an expression of one of its ex-managers, Mr. Russell, "is run like a comic opera," has cost this country $25,000,000 in six years. While the cost of maintenance of all the railways of Canada exclusive of the Intercolonial was equal to 60.1-5 per cent. of their earnings, the road entrusted to Mr. Blair's care devoured 99 per cent. of its earnings to meet its running expenses. This, too, in its the face of the indisputable fact that hundreds of thousands of dollars properly chargeable to maintenance account have been juggled into capital account. By the additions to the debt of the country consequent on Mr. Blair's ideas of business, the whole Intercolonial system has developed into a huge political machine. During the recent provincial elections in New Brunswick, Mr. Blair, by personal threats, forced his employees to vote for Liberal candidates. In Nova Scotia, where Intercolonial employees are prohibited from voting in provincial elections, Intercolonial hands were forced to go to the polls and commit perjury in order to enable them to record their votes for supporters of the Liberal party. These accomplishments, seemingly, are the prime objects of Mr. Blair's ambition. To meet the country millions each year to continue this condition of affairs and it is high time that a change was made in the management of the Government roads.

BOYS ARE HAPPY; CIRCUS IS IN TOWN

Go and See the Animiles, be Happy While You May,

The Tigers and the Elephants and the Clowns so Gay,

'Twill Bring Back Your Boyhood, Ere Your Hair Was Gray,

For the Great Big Circus is in Town To-day.

There's nothing like the circus parade for drawing a crowd. The Veregral parade is not in the same class. We all love the circus parade, with its blaring bands, and glittering cars, its patient camels and elephants with the baggy pants, and painted fairies on top of the big wagons. But there is one thing about the show which all this barbaric splendor appeals to, and civilization and hard work cannot drive it out. That is why thousands of our country cousins are in the city to-day, on pleasure bent, in full of excitement and high spirits, and all forgetting, for the nonce, that the dry weather is threatening to give them something to worry about, this season. They can worry some other time; certainly they don't mean to on circus day.

The crowd on Front St. this morning when the parade passed was probably as large, if not the largest, ever seen in Belleville on a like occasion. And the city folks were not the whit behind their country cousins; the magic influence of the circus parade caught them all, young and old. And by common consent the parade shown by Ringling Brothers this morning was a "Dandy." It was about 10.30 when the big procession hove in sight. A big car drawn by twelve gray horses was first, and with pounding and tearing and yelling the crowd settled in position and gave it right of way.

A couple of big rumbling cars rolled by, and then a smaller one with plate glass sides and a painted lady charmer with three or four yards of boa constrictor coiled around her neck.

Boys who liked boa constrictors followed this car and, jumping to get a better look at his snakeship, and marvelled much.

The horses! Great, big, fat, sleek ones, well fed and strong enough to pull a mountain of debt. There were hundreds of them, drawing all kinds of glittering wagons.

One of the biggest trucks contained "The Biggest Hippopotamus in Captivity," but it was stoned in, and the biggest hippopotamus in captivity went his way down the astreet lost to view, the small boys being considerably disgusted thereat.

Ringling Bros. make much of their cars of all nations.

The British car came first, and the band performed "God Save the King" in rag time. It was a unique rendering of the anthem, and the Orientals the band gave as it wound up pas worth the price of admission.

Painted fairies from Egypt and Persia came along and lolled around on cushions after the fashion of Cleopatra in the picture books. Although the women probably came from Kansas, New York and other centres, the boys overlooked that particular and raged at the sight.

There were some genuine Japs, and also others who were genuine, and particularly the animals.

There were about twenty camels, and they were all right, one being ridden by Princess Goo-Goo Eyes, or something like that.

Scotland was represented by a piper and women in abbreviated plaid skirts. A few more wagons came along and then the elephants.

There were twenty-five elephants of all sizes from a six-ton Jumbo to one weighing about 200 pounds.

They all wore baggy pants and their skins slid around loosely back after the manner of elephants in general.

The elephants, too, were all right and made a great impression among the onlookers.

More wagons came along, more bands, more fine horses and more everything.

Then away down the street the crowd heard the shriek of the steam calliope, playing "Mr. Dooley," and it realized that it was a monster circus parade.

It took about twenty-five minutes to pass a given point, and from the comments of the crowd, it was easily up to all the good things the advance agent said about it.

Judging by the way the crowd started for the circus grounds after the parade there will be a monster attendance this afternoon. The circus is heralded by posters in other places to be "better than the posters," which is certainly a high recommendation. The performances commence sharp at 2 and 8 p.m.

The Sable American Joke.

An American once said to a German who claimed that he had the real New England sense of humor, "Did you ever hear the joke about the guide in Rome who showed some travelers two skulls of St. Paul, one as a boy, and the other as a man?" "No," said the German, beginning to anticipate a good story. "Tell me at once, mein friend, dat joke."

P. A. Minskoff has made an extensive study of the nests of the hand, some of the results of which he regards as of medico-legal importance. Among other things, he asserts that the nails of the right hand of a right-handed person are wider by from one-half to two millimetres than the corresponding nails on the left hand; while in left-handed persons the reverse obtains, and it is the subdexterous hand nails of equal size on the two hands. The thickness of the nails diminishes progressively from the thumb to the little finger.

Mr. Richards, the Popular Train Dispatcher in The Canadian Pacific Railway Windsor Station, Montreal, is Saved from Death by

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets

After Ordinary Medical Treatment Had Failed to Cure a Long Standing Case of Kidney Disease, the Marvellous Tablets Accomplished a Happy and Wonderful Work.

It is a well-known fact that kidney troubles are terribly prevalent in this land, and cut off thousands every year.

The best efforts of physicians thus far have failed to stay the ravages of the deadly disease, and the medicines usually prescribed by practitioners only afford temporary relief. The strong and candid statement that "medical men utterly fail in the curing of Bright's disease and general kidney troubles," is true and incontrovertible.

Are you now experiencing any of the symptoms that mark the various forms of kidney disease? Are you sensible of a growing weakness, backache, lightness and obscure pains in the lumber region, drowsiness, emaciation, dizziness, nausea, dizzy feeling, disturbed sleep? Do you note brick dust deposit, or mucous or milky discharges and gravel in the urine? Has your skin a dry, and harsh feeling, turning at night? Have you unusual thirst and scanty flow of urine? Are you losing in weight and strength?

If you are experiencing any of the symptoms referred to, you cannot afford to hesitate another hour. Be assured of the fact that deadly kidney disease has laid its iron hand on you. To banish the awful disease, you must begin with Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, which immediately arrest the gradual weakening of the kidneys, that goes on from day to day. It is the only medicine that heals and builds up the diseased tissues that now gnaw away, cell by cell, in the urine. One bottle of these tablets will quickly banish every warning symptom of the dread disease, restore strength to all weak organs and tissues, and give you back your former health.

In this, your time of peril and doubt, may heaven direct you to follow the example of A. Richards, a Montreal official of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Richards, who is better known to the thousands who travel than even the honored president of our great transcontinental road, says:

"For many years I have been a victim of kidney trouble, which caused me great suffering and much mental anxiety. Ordinary medical treatment failed to cure the distressing and dangerous malady, and day and night I continued to suffer, and was almost convinced that my cure was impossible. In the midst of despondency and physical sufferings I was advised by a friend to use Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, and I bless the day they were brought to my attention. I have used two bottles of these marvellous tablets and can truly say that I am perfectly cured. I find my kidneys have been healed, strengthened and stimulated to healthy action, and working in perfect harmony with other organs. I now feel as well as ever before, and owe my present healthy condition entirely to Kidney-Wort Tablets. I strongly recommend them to all who suffer from any form of kidney trouble."

A Day's Fishing.

THE fishing season having now positively begun, I think I will go down to the deep waters and try my luck. The great mistake made by so many fishermen is that they are lacking in the necessary patience for success in their hobby. They cast out, after a man has fished for two or three days waiting in vain for a bite, he begins to feel the monotony a little tiring, and wants to throw up the whole enterprise. The successful angler, however, never allows himself to grow weary. He will wait for days weeks for a bite, and when the exciting moment comes, he wrenches his prize from the water, and feels that he has not lived in vain. When you have once had the bread (or whatever you are eating for bait) upon the hook, and your rod is poised to stand by and see the thing through it is takes all patience.

No angler expects to be landing fish all the time. As a matter of fact, the biggest fish are never caught by hand at all. If you have ordinary luck you will land a few average-sized wrigglers, but you can't very well make them any bigger than they are, and your friends can size up their dimensions at a glance; whereas the fish that you hooked out of the water, but couldn't manage to finally land, grows every time you talk about it. This fish is well known to expert anglers. Its dimensions are only limited by the powers of imagination possessed by the operator. Most anglers will let it get with a weight of about twenty to thirty pounds avoirdupois, but the man who insists upon anything bigger than that must choose his subject very carefully in these knowing times. I have no sympathy with the man who has a fish that tries to wrestle him on to his back as it flies out of the water, or that stuns crushing blows at his head with its off-side fin. And when that kind of man tells you that he fought three rounds with his prize by the endowment of nature is that he could bring it away with him, you should not trust yourself to a continuance of the narrative. The good man is wasting his talents on a modest life like angling. He ought to have been a political journalist.

When you have cast your line, you should sit by quietly and wait for the bite. A delightful writer on fishing, Izaak Walton, laid it down as a rule that anglers should avoid swearing, lest they be heard and catch no fish. It is not very clear to me why a man who has settled down to the water's edge for a day's fishing should want to swear. I don't see, as a rule, of the hand-books on the craft, any hints that swearing has ever been considered half as useful as a wriggling worm for fishing purposes. As far as I can see, a man might stand by a stream and profane steadily for several hours without getting any more bites in consequence. If a fish will not bite at a worm, it will not bite at a swear word, much whether it will do so because somebody on the bank is referring in its ancestry in disrespectful terms, and is casting rather red aspersions on its character as to fish. The injunction as to swearing appears quite unnecessary, but dear old Izaak couldn't help preaching a little in between the bites.

After waiting a little while and looking at your float, you will probably see it begin to bob up and down. This either means that something is biting at the hook, or else that an empty sardine tin has got mixed up with your line. You must let the bobbing go on till the float is dragged under water, and then you pull in with both hands, and the upper portion of a dilapidated boot which someone has left in the stream for an overnight. Fishing is called "the contemplative man's recreation," chiefly, I believe, on account of the very weird things that the average angler is called upon to contemplate in the course of a day's skirmishing with the wonders of the deep.

Many anglers, however, do not recommend the practice of sitting down and fishing on the edge of the float. After you have thrown out your line, you open the lunch basket and take out the first bottle. Then you fight a pipe and take a glance or so at your book to make sure that it isn't drowning. By that time you will be ready for the second bottle. When the second bottle has been properly and truly dealt with, the float will bob a good deal oftener than might be expected; but you don't need to take notice of it—not much like that. If a gentleman can't sit down by the water's edge and take a little light refreshment without being gazed at by a mere decorative quill, it's hard luck, that's all.

By the time you have got on to the fourth bottle, you will begin to realise what a thoroughly enjoyable sport this angling business is. You will begin to wonder at first what bounder has been and thrown his line about among the trees as there are two floats to be distinctly seen. You need not, however, bother about that. After all, you didn't come down to the water for what you could catch; but for the jolly sport of fishing. Well, there's the fifth bottle ready now, and it's time you were up and doing on and waiting for a bite.

Of course, there are anglers who can so carried away by the sport so much that they have a float under their eyes or a whole day, with scarcely a drop between. These men will wade waist deep, two feet of water, and carry the spare worms in their mouths on a chance of hooking a whopper that has been hovering about playfully for an hour or two. But this is where the weather for enthusiasm of any kind; and the only thing that you will find a admire in these rabid anglers is that their perspiring activity makes you feel so thirsty that the rest of its bottle can be opened in their sight order. Without waiting. Some anglers reel up their line at the close of the day's sport and take it back home. But after a dozen bottles or so of the best, you won't want to be bothered with any dim nonsense of that kind. Just kick the whole kit into the water, and call for help to enable you to get home again without any reminder. It is a great comfort if you know how to take it.—"Pick-Me-Up."

The Real Difficulty.

Appy Tite—If we only had some lines, now, we might do a little fishin'.

Shady Bowers—Fishin', eh? Who's goin' to dig de bait, bait de hooks, row in de lines, haul out de fish, and take 'em often de hooks?

Appy Tite—Dat's so; we'd have to hire somebody to do dat part of it.—Puck.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

OR THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Gaynell," "Little Lesly," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

"You among save evinced song are the what I have to tell you, Sophie Gordon," said Harold St. John, bitterly; "and that is, that the girl I wedded that night was one of your daughters, my dear sir."

"It is a lie—most infamous, slanderous lie," elevated the squire. "How dare you utter it, you Bastard-ly scoundrel! I have a mind to brain you where you stand! If your object is to extort money from me—I warn you, you have come to the wrong fellow. Not a dollar do you get; in the country, I'll make a public example of you, punishing you to the full limit of the law. As for the lovely daughters I dare as much as to breathe their name, and I'll make you suffer for it."

"I expected to brave a storm of this kind," retorted Sir John, leaning coolly against one of the beach trees, "and I am prepared for it. You see I stat that I have spoken but the simple truth, if you will only make a point. I wonder you do not ask me which daughter I married? Perhaps the one's wife whom I have come here to claim?"

"Aleck, do you hear this villain stand there and coolly utter such a libel upon the sacredness of his own daughters as to ask me which one's wife you have become? Answer me, sir!"

"I expected to brave a storm of this kind," retorted Sir John, leaning coolly against one of the beach trees, "and I am prepared for it. You see I stat that I have spoken but the simple truth, if you will only make a point. I wonder you do not ask me which daughter I married? Perhaps the one's wife whom I have come here to claim?"

"Aleck, do you hear this villain stand there and coolly utter such a libel upon the sacredness of his own daughters as to ask me which one's wife you have become? Answer me, sir!"

"I would see either Olivy or Hetty dead at my feet before I would see either of them to appear before this villain as a sewer in the dock to answer a most subject either of them to such a monstrous insult!"

At that moment they both observed Olive Gordon coming down the path. Her face was cold and white as the snow, but she trembled; the very tone of this awful charge had terrified with it.

Before them, Olive hurried toward them, joining them before they had time to warn her from her.

She looked in wonder at the rage-distorted face of her father; upon Aleck's pale face, then at the dark, sneering face of the handsome stranger with them.

"I am sorry if I have intruded, papa," she said.

Squire Gordon had been in deadly fear.

He told himself it was Olive whom the stranger had come to claim. Only some flash of recognition on her face when she saw him could tell him so.

There was none, and she squire heaved a sigh of unutterable relief. "Seeing you are here, child, I'll put you a question, Olive," he said. "Look at this man and tell me if you have ever seen him before. Say nothing to St. John."

Olive looked at him intently.

"I have a faint recollection of seeing just such a face somewhere, papa," she answered, "but I cannot tell where or when."

The squire smiled grimly.

"I am sure you would not wedded her, it was not likely that she would be in the company of such a scoundrel as this. Now, child, return to the house, my dear," he said.

Olive turned away wonderingly, not uttering a word, but her father woman's curiosity was aroused wonderfully.

"Hold!" cried the squire, as she was walking away. "Tell me where your sister Hetty is—we have at once. But I'll recall this sent to you in the least," he added, turning to Aleck, "for I would not have you beyond a shadow of a doubt what name he has given you."

"Be careful with your accusations until all your facts have been ascertained, Aleck," said St. John. "I have brooked this much from a youngster as you, and am startled at the illusory business will astonishing effect—a gentleman, I presume, expects—is all to come later. Remember the old proverb: 'He laughs best who laughs last.'"

Olive had hurried on to the house and up to her sister's room on her strange errand; but, seeing her not in the room below, Hetty was not there—the pretty, low, French bed had not been slept in. Olive was startled.

Then she remembered she had not seen her after nine o'clock on the previous evening.

A sudden terror filled her heart, making her so faint and dizzy that she was obliged to sink into a nearest chair.

Did this stranger's presence anything to do with Hetty?

She rose up hastily, wonderfully, and Marie, Daisy's maid, answered the summons.

"Have you seen anything of Hetty?" she inquired, anxiously. "See, Marie—I say have you seen her? Are you not interested in her movements?"

"Do you need not look so white, Miss Olive," returned the girl. "Miss Hetty is the best of spirits—is where she has been all night. Mrs. Hamilton, the lady opposite, sent for her last night, so Miss Hetty begged to stay with her. They are both in the little porch now that leads out into the garden."

"Go and tell Hetty that papa wants her, please," said Olive. "He is in the library, please come at once."

"I will see what he wanted of her in the garden," said the girl to Olive. "If I were given to vivid imagination, I might also, I suppose, think handsome young fellow a surgical, and from the looks of the stern, awful face of papa and Aleck, that they were trying to prove his identity. And she laughed heartily at the idea—and it was the last laugh that rippled over Olive Gordon's lips for many a long year after.

The sun shone on Hetty the message, and the obedient girl had started down the garden at once in search of them that parental command.

You doubt it is to show me that some of his favorite blossoms have budded," he thought, smiling as she passed along.

"Such a beautiful morning," she thought, "I will finish it; I must go to bring Daisy with me!—she looks so white, and monthly since that attack of last night. The sunshine and fragrance of the dewy roses would do her good. She must come down to the rose- garden when papa is, with me."

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Do You Know Him, or Do You Not!"

Acting upon the impulse of the moment, Hetty Gordon turned toward the house.

Daisy started up from her chair with a cry of terror as she uncerconsciously recognized Sir John.

Ah, what horrible torture to live over instant that a step—of a voice!

Hetty said not her how heaven had interposed to save her from the crime of suicide, and had pleased with her for having left her, of her own free will.

"You have some terrible secret that I do not know, my dear," said Daisy. Oh, let me share it with you, dear! Some sudden fear has thrown a ray with a horrible shudder.

"You must not go, Hetty," she wailed bitterly. "No, no; you must not leave me—I will—I will—I will not reproving!"

"If it something you have done, dear, that the world might not quite approve of?" asked Hetty, clasping Daisy's hands in her cold hands, looking down into the frightened, tear-filled eyes with a strange, wild terror to here.

"I cannot tell you," answered Daisy, despairingly, her voice sinking to a pitiful whisper. "I do not ask one, Hetty."

She then do me one great favor, Hetty, and let no one know," she continued, hurriedly. "Let me think I one came last night, or—or, this morning—and I will tell you all."

Hetty went quickly, and made rigid inquiries among the servants.

"Is the stranger gone?" and that was the answer she brought back to Daisy, who sank down once back in her chair, the very picture of abject despair.

She had not thought to inquire if a stranger had been with Aleck to her father.

The answer Hetty brought back seemed to give her new life; the color crept into her cheeks, a smile broke in a crimson wave.

"Ah, if I had dared believe it was but an idle threat!" she cried below her breath. "If it should be true—if it be true!"

"I want you to come out into the garden with me, dear," said Hetty. "Now that I have promised to keep last night's visit a secret from papa and Olive, you must, in turn, keep some things for me to reveal, and I do entreat that you will come out into the garden."

"See how the butterflies are coquetting with the honeysuckle!" said by the miniature lake, and the sun is drifting over that blue place. Come out with me, dear, and enjoy it; papa is waiting for me in the garden, and he will not be so, if must hurry away. Come, where is your gardenhat?"

"I do not need one," answered Daisy. "I do not care to go, Hetty. I will come to you down in the rose-garden a little later."

Hetty always liked to remember how Daisy looked as she stood and kissed the lovely Young face before she turned away.

"My fog did not coive; death did not seize me," she whispered to herself, in an awe- stricken voice; then she looked out at the window down upon the walk that led to the gate.

Ah! it was a rare blessing to see that sunlight, and to flood it golden sunshine again.

Then she saw was that she was not lying cold and stiff in death on the white bed there.

She could picture how wildly they would have been looking for her now.

No one but Hetty knew how near she had been to death. But it would be death by her own hand—no later, for, though Harold St. John should keep silent, she could not live with the secret sure as long; better death than that she should go mad, for it would be sure to.

That was Harold St. John's aim and object—to punish her, and that was the vengeance he meant to take on her.

Drying her eyes, she stepped slowly out on the balcony down the spiral stairway that led into the garden. Ah, it was a glorious morning, as Hetty had said—she would go down to the sunshine and thank heaven she still lived.

Hetty then imagined she heard the sound of a shrill, piercing cry.

"It is only my fancy," murmured Daisy vacantly, "or perhaps some bird's shrill note—the old woods back of the house full of cries—they should be driven away from the house."

The sound was not repeated, and she walked on through the sunshine toward the garden hedged in by the tall flowering lilacs that lay beyond.

She was quite sure she heard her father's voice in the distance, but she paid no heed.

She paused beside the fountain she paused for a moment, looking down in its pool—a favorite fancy of hers—and now under the soft, bright light of the sun, she saw her own face mirrored there.

She was not vain, but she could not help but notice the exquisite beauty of that face, framed in the shade of golden hair. It was beauty such as was given to but few women, and it had been a bitter curse to her, for it had lured Harold St. John into fawning her.

She knew her first great grave fault had been in keeping her acquaintance with him and the secret of his attention he professed for her, a secret from her honest old father.

Harold St. John—that night he had been spared her in the after years!

He would have forbidden those clandestine meetings, have forbidden her ever to look upon her face again.

There were but a few tears perhaps, a little heartache, then it would have been all forgotten—they would have gone away—and, girl- fashion, she would have forgotten him; but now—ah how much sorrow had accrued from that act of mercy!

She had done all that to spite Hetty and Olive because they would not take her in the garden party at Briarvale, and now, what would she not give to recall those few fleeting hours!

She would never have trusted a handsome, bold, soft- spoken stranger; but then young girls do not know the rocks that lie in the sea of life, they find out by bitter experience.

Her reverie was interrupted by another pitiful cry.

"Surely it is no fancy," muttered Daisy. "That is Hetty's voice. Now why should she cry out so strangely?" she wondered, and turning from the fountain, she hurried in the path that led from whence the sound appeared.

Hetty had gone out some minutes in advance. She had reached the gate, she entered the rose- garden, seeing a handsome, dark man there, talking with her father. Ah, no doubt Aleck had sent for her to know the reason why she had telegraphed for him so hastily; but she would tell him then and there, that was evident.

"Come forward, my child," said the squire, in a husky voice, seeing you have come in search of me."

Hetty advanced quickly to her father, who looked her arm fondly within his; but the squire drew hastily back, looking at her in a manner as she had never seen on those rugged, stern features before.

"Hetty," he said, in a voice that awed the girl, "have your 'dead mother's face— you have her voice, too. Spread your veil. You would not, I am sure, willfully mislead me; in other words, perjure those lips with a falsehood?"

"Certainly I would not, papa," replied the girl, looking in mystified wonder at the group before her.

"Then, sir, this is the man's face and tell me—remember your dead mother's face—if you know him."

Hetty looked long and earnestly into the handsome, indolent, sneering face.

"It seems To me I have seen him somewhere before, papa; but when or where I cannot just now recollect. I may come to mind if I thank very hard for—"

The squire's face had grown livid. Even Aleck, in his excitement, was not able to keep back a cry from Hetty, whom he had always believed to be the innocent, fair garden of sinfulness.

THE AVERAGE BABY.

The average baby is a good baby—cheerful, smiling and bright. (When he is not—when sick fretful or in pain—and he is unwell and he is taking the only means he has to tell everybody) Baby's Own Tablets cure him. When baby is cross, restless and sleepless with a damp and fiery stomach, which always contains poisons. Baby's Own Tablets are what is needed; to put the little one right. Give a cross baby an occasional Tablet and baby will quickly smile in transformed into a bright, winning, cooing, happy child. He will sleep all night, and the mother will get needed rest. Baby's Own Tablets guarantee that Baby's Own Tablets contain no poisonous opiate or harmful drug. In all the minor ailments from which the first six or twelve years there is nothing to equal the Tablets. Mrs. W. E. Anderson, Goulais River, Ont., says: "My little boy was very weak and fretful and we got no rest with him until we began using Baby's Own Tablets. Since then baby rests well and his is now a fat, healthy boy."

You can get Baby's Tablets from any druggist, or they will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Duke of Norfolk takes pleasure in telling many stories about himself. Here is one of them: A large party of strangers were being shown the castle with an order to go over the Castle. As each group passed the duke he made one of a joke, acted his part, and conducted them personally through the various stately rooms. They pilled him hard with questions, and at last one of the men to the Duke? "Is he good-looking?" "Couldn't we have a peep at him somewhere?" "Is he a bachelor?" "And how long have you been in his employ?" The Duke preserved a perfectly rigid demeanor through all this persecution, replying to each specifically to all their queries, and when the party left was rewarded with a handsome tip of half a crown.

DO YOU KNOW THOMAS HUNTLEY?

PEOPLE WHO KNEW HIM A YEAR AGO, AND SEE HIM NOW, HARDLY RECOGNIZE HIM. HE LOOKS SO WELL AND STRONG.

This is what he says:—

Baltimore, Md., May 7th, 1903.

The O. R. Medicines Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were always terribly sore to the touch, and I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief, but Orange Ruby almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try Dr. O'Neill's Orange Ruby CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. This was in the fall of 1901, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,

Purveyor by Appointment to His Majesty the Cat.

Those of the public who may imagine that there is no room for initiative and originality in the cat's menu trade, leave the London "Chronicle," are vastly mistaken. In Kensington an enterprising caterer has, it is said, to be making a fortune through the happy idea of supplying, on request, fish instead of meat for the cats on his round. The price of the luxurious diet obtain meat at almost any time, and they will not look, for the matter, even at the wares of the cats' meat man. But no cat can resist a tasty bit of fish, so the caterer has, it is said, a huge success in the result of the innovation. Other cats are the carrion purveyors who take trouble to obtain a close knowledge of every single animal on their rounds and its little peculiarities. Having successfully regained, the cats' meat man buys and cuts his portions accordingly, taking care that each cat gets its favorite bit. All chance of rivalry is removed at once by the fish man's round, and, for weeks, unless driven by desperate hunger, touch the strange cuts of a new purveyor.

Curious Bits of News.

Scotland for many years held the record for the highest milk chimney in the world, but now the Silver Wood Company, at Antwerp, has beaten that record with a shaft 610 feet high, surmounted by a lightning conductor 50 feet high.

The substitution of the ravages due to tuberculosis shows that England, with a damp and fiery climate, only loses 50,000 consumptives per annum, while in France, with a much drier climate, the victims, on an equal population, are annually 150,000."

It has yet to be noticed at one time in signaling at sea never exceed four. It is an interesting arithmetical fact that with eight various colored flags, and never more than four at a time, no less than seventy-eight thousand one hundred and forty-two signals can be given.

A singular deed has been filed in Northumberland County, Pa., dated October 9, 1793. In a series of conveyances it traces the ownership of the land conveyed from the Creator of the world, "who by the hands of Adam, of seizin did confer the parents of mankind, to wit, Adam and Eve, of all that certain tract of land, now known in the planetary system as the earth."

Berlin is in possession of a shorthand writer with a unique specialty. Herr Schmidt, a Berlin journalist, composes and takes down verbatim the addresses of the officials at funerals. Then he prepares highly ornamented copies of the speeches and sells them to the friends of the eulogized dead. Apparently the business is good, for he found it necessary to engage a staff of assistants.

The "American Herald" tells of an exciting scene witnessed in the Rosita King district a few days ago on Saturday. Two of the chulos placed the bandelleros, or short stabbing spears, in the back of the bulls. When the second bull entered the ring, Jose Basurto, who had killed the first bull, carefully placed the sticks with great daring. While his companion, reposing in the wheel, which was propped to stand upright in the centre of the ring, the bull paid no attention to him.

In Lower California there is a colony of ancient Mormons, including some of the noted escaped criminals who operated during the latter part of the nineteenth century. They live in a strange, rugged region north of central Lower California on one side and a range of foothills which spread down toward the Mexican border on the other. There are no ports at this point on the coast of California, and the railroads terminating in from the other direction, so the men are pretty well isolated. They have practically prisoners, but as they do no harm, nobody has troubled to interfere with them.

Arrangements are being made by a Mr. Richardson, of New York city, for round-the-world trip on a motor car. The proposed start is from Belleville, on Lake Ontario, May, 1903. Moscow will be taken in via St. Petersburg, the Siberian Railway to Vladivostock, when she will be shipped to Japan. The interesting country will be traversed, before the party set-sails for America. No difficulty is anticipated in crossing the continent, the deserts and the mountains, but the journey through the Siberian forests will be very trying. The run will be to Dover, when the tour will end.

"Fifty casks of a special design and construction were shipped recently," says the "Youth's Companion," "all soon be sent to Behring Sea by the United States Government Marine Service and placed upon the highest hummocks of ice in the sea. It is hoped that by their future courses to test the direction of the currents that cross the polar regions. The casks are twenty-eight inches in length and sixteen inches in diameter, pointed at the ends and painted black, so as to be seen easily. Inside each is a sealed aluminum case of several different languages, asking the finder to send it, when found, to the United States consul, giving the latitude and longitude in which the cask was found, and the date."

POND'S EXTRACT

Soothes tired muscles, improves sore throat, relieves soreness and gives the body a feeling of comfort and strength.

Don't take the weak, watery witch hazel preparations sold as "just the same as" Pond's Extract, which easily sour and frequently contain "wood alcohol," a deadly poison.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled for a long time with a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. My cough had a virulent sore on my face and I was generally run down in my general debility. I tried a number of remedies, but found nothing to do exactly to cure the sore but it in a few months I was completely cured by using Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and I got from it also my general health greatly improved. For years and I carried around a sore that continues it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

If thy friend is honest, do not lick him up altogether.

THE PUTTNER should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil has nothing in common with the impure, adulterated, and dangerous oil-and-lard oil. It is eminently pure and safe, and is recommended for the most lamentable ailments of the joints and muscles, and for all kinds of pain, being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Many a man's self-conceit is the result of his ignorance.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—During the past war was a very busy time, and it has upon the energies, and if there be not the right kind of nourishment the pressure soon begins to tell. Those exposed to the inclemency of the weather should be careful to observe irregularities, and the storehouse of the system should be replenished. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found invaluable. They will purify the blood, and thus give tone to the whole system, restoring the organs to healthful activity, thereby invigorating and reviving the flagging energies.

Coral is a favorite material for "number" and cells by flood and field.

Rheumatism.—Those who suffer from the agonizing and the whole body giving way to the disease, will find that relief is filled with gloom and dismal foreboding, the result of derangement of the digestive organs. Dodd's Kidney Pills comes to add to the distress. If only the sufferer would realize that they would be the cellulose for a while and take Dodd's Kidney Pills, health and happiness Pills will not only induce sleep, but will also refresh and invigorate the body, and will make refreshed and restored to happiness.

Herring Cure Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of 25 cents per bottle.

It takes money to voice the opinion of the people.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache will soon disappear if a few of Carter's Little Liver Pills be used before retiring, and you will find relief, by morning, in most cases.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

They make one feel as though life were worth living. Those are Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; they relieve distress from dyspepsia, indigestion and too hearty eating, and give tone and vigor to the system.

Doing good is the only certainty that makes life worth living.

Nothing so certainly obstructs the perspiration, and causes rheumatism, as from heat to cold. Heat relaxes the skin, and cold shrinks it, and thus suppresses the perspiration, but when these are suddenly changed the cause is neglected it should be had. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration. This is generally accompanied by the name of catching cold. Dodd's Kidney Pills are so put up as to be intended to in time are easily subdued, and if allowed to run their course will generally prove the fore-runner of the most grievous diseases. Nine-tenths of all consumptives die of their afflictions from a neglected cold, which Dodd's Kidney Pills cleanse by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure to the more serious illness they would have supposed. One of the most effective remedies for all throat and lungs is Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by which the cough is relieved from a disease to a healthy state.

"STICKY WEATHER"

Aptly describes these hot days, when comfort is out of the question.

Ill fitting clothes makes matters worse.

The nearest thing to comfort is one of our correctly tailored suits made up in the fashionable loose style.

We guarantee to fit you.

A very cool part of cool clothes is the fit. How hot it makes you if you know your clothes don't fit.

We don't make to order, but we make to fit.

Another cool part is the wear. How hot you become if you have to repair them.

Your money back, here, if anything goes wrong.

Another cool part is the ease with which our kind can be bought. No ten days' delay—perhaps ten minutes will suffice.

TIMELY TOPICS

Well, good-bye, Gov'nor, be kind to yourself. Come again.

That artistic display of "plug hats" was worth the whole price of admission. It was most imposing. As relics of prehistoric days some of those titles must be very valuable.

Tell you what, when Belleville people get their "glad rags" on they don't take a back seat for any set of pilgrims that ever came down the pike.

"My dear Mr. Mayor," said Lord Minto, "will I have time to alight and read the names of the Khaki Boys engraved on those cannon on the park?" And the Mayor coughed gracefully and said he was afraid there would not be time.

Many people wondered why the clergy of the city were not represented in the Viceregal function. Perhaps the Civic Reception Committee were not anxious to tackle the "proceedings" question. Do you blame them?

It is whispered that the Viceregal party did not leave town last night, but pulled out to Stony Lonesome and remained in order to see the circus to-day. Of course they will travel incog. and as you value your life don't mention this to anybody, as it is a dead secret.

"Pretty good fishing out there, Mr. Mayor?" said Lord Minto, as the party were driving along the bay shore.

"Out of sight," said His Worship, diplomatically.

"Well," said the Gov'nor, "you can expect me for a month this summer, but as a plain fisherman, not as the Governor-General."

Well, when all's said and done, it takes the children, bless 'em, to make those functions successful. No wonder the faces of Lord and Lady Minto took on a pleased and thoughtful expression when the childish voices were raised in songs and cheers. You can talk about your grand operas and choruses, but there's nothing, for pure, natural pleasure, to touch the fresh voices of healthy, happy children raised in song.

Come to think of it, you can hardly blame a man for putting a price on his prospect equal to that it was assessed for. That may not be common sense, but it looks like it.

Compliments of the season to Aid. Panter, acting Mayor. He wears a silk hat with dignity, and has many other qualifications besides.

Speaking confidentially, you know, that circus parade was just about the best that ever happened in this vicinity.

Those horses didn't look as though they were stinted for grub.

This would be the day to have Belleville's census taken.

There can't be a corporal's guard left in some of the back townships.

This is where the farmers get even with their city relatives who go and visit them in the good old summer time.

Well, so long! We'll see you at the circus.

BOYS' FINE SUITS.

Yes, the Oak Hall have all the better class of boys' clothing. Fine tweeds and worsteds, both single and double-breasted, and all made to the best firm in Canada, the W. G. Sanford Mfg. Co., of Hamilton. Every suit guaranteed. Make a note of the fact that we don't charge you anything more for the double-breasted coats.

HOW A SPRAIN DOES HURT!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the parts of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back. Just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

CITY COUNCIL'S SPECIAL MEETING.

By-laws Were Not Ready for Consideration Last Night—The Reason Why.

Price for New Drill Shed Site Has Been Boosted Slightly—Option Expired.

Ald. Panter Will be Acting Mayor For the Next Four Weeks

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last evening, at which Mayor Graham and all the Aldermen, with the exception of Ald. Green, were present.

Mayor Graham said the Council had adjourned until this evening in order to consider the proposed by-laws to be submitted to the electors.

He also stated that the Gas Company's by-law was not yet ready.

Mr. Mikel, the City Solicitor, stated that neither the agreement nor the lease had yet been signed, hence the by-law could not be proceeded with. He had received word to that effect.

The New Drill Shed.

Mayor Graham said that there was also some difficulty in reference to the drill shed property. Mr. Arnott had asked if the option he had given upon the skating rink had expired. He now asked $3,825 for the property, which it was now assessed at.

Ald. Pope did not like such action on the part of the Council, in having the appearance of holding up the city. The city should expropriate the property in question. The 1st of April was the date mentioned, but he (Ald. Pope) thought it was not binding. Mr. Arnott only paid $3,100 for the property.

The Mayor suggested that the city offer the Government a stated sum, say $5,000, and let them buy the site.

Ald. Pope stated that he had seen Col. Cotton recently in Toronto, and he was in favor of the site proposed. The Government would rather not deal with individuals, but would rather that the city procure the site. If we got a $75,000 drill shed it would be a good investment for the city to spend $5,000 or $6,000.

The Mayor stated that there was a sum in the supplementary estimates for a drill shed here, and if it passed erected this year the money would not have to be revoted.

After some further discussion the matter was finally referred to a special committee composed of Ald. Sinclair, Pope and Chown.

The West Side Park.

Ald. Panter desired to know why the pipe ordered by the Council was not laid on the western park. It was considered to be done and the grass was dying for want of water. He considered it was almost criminal negligence to neglect this work.

Ald. Galbraith said he understood the pipe was here and he had information to the failure of that fact. He did not know why the pipes had not been put down.

Ald. Panter—"If some one is to blame in this matter we should know who it is."

Mayor Graham—"The official has apparently not done his duty."

Ald. Galbraith said he understood the pipes were here, but Mr. Lewis, who had received the contract for furnishing them, was away.

Ald. Pope stated that he had been informed that piping was very short, and that it would need to be worked up.

Ald. Panter said it was short of pipes and for the part of the committee to be short of piping.

Ald. Sinclair thought the manager was not altogether to blame in this matter. He advocated buying 1,000 feet of piping at the season and the committee only ordered 500 feet, which was not enough. He did not like to have Mr. Hulme censured when he should not be.

Ald. Galbraith promised to attend to the matter immediately; also, at the suggestion of Ald. Panter, promised to have a tap at every 100 feet.

Water Services.

The Mayor said he had been spoken to by parties in reference to a petition being presented to the Council for Harriett street, and nothing had been done about it.

Ald. Galbraith—"I have neither seen or heard anything of the petition in question."

The Drill Shed.

In speaking of this subject again, Ald. Sinclair asked if anything other than that proposed would not be suitable.

Ald. Galbraith thought the hospital lot would be desirable.

Ald. Pope said the hospital lot was not as central as the other place. The Government would rather have a place down town.

Ald. Panter Is Acting Mayor.

Mayor Graham stated that he would be out of the city some three or four weeks, and some one should be appointed to act as Mayor in his absence.

Ald. Chown moved, seconded by Ald. Galbraith, that Ald. Panter act as Mayor during the absence of the Mayor.

The motion was unanimously carried and Ald. Panter thanked the Aldermen for the honor done him. He appreciated the duties to the best of his abilities.

The Viceregal Reception.

Ald. Pope asked if the Council and citizens' committee had completed the arrangement in which the reception to the Viceregal party had been entrusted.

Ald. Sinclair stated that Messrs. Wm. Johnson, G. O'Flynn and A. Barrows were entitled to praise.

Ald. Pope moved, seconded by Ald. McFee, the following resolution:

That this Council hatens their congratulations to Messrs. Johnson, members of the Special Committee, whose duty it was to receive the reception of his Excellency the Governor-General, Lady Minto and party, for the manner in which the duties which the whole procedures was carried out; the kindly and courteous attention paid to the trunnions, principals, teachers and scholars of the Collegiate Institute, the ladies, professors and teachers of the Deaf and Dumb Institution, for the untiring zeal and attention he which their portion of the programme was successfully carried out, and to the citizens generally and to Messrs. Bell Organ and Piano Co. Limited for their participation and assistance in making the visit of their Excellencies so successful.

This was carried unanimously.

Ald. Galbraith stated that Lord and Lady Minto were loud in their praises of the beauty of the city. Lady Minto had taken away up to Queen Victoria School with flowers by the little girls as an especially charming and novel feature to them. Lord Minto said the children were a happy intelligent and attractive lot, the young ladies good looking and the boys manly and the drive through the city one of the pleasantest and prettiest sights he had ever seen.

The motion was unanimously carried.

Some Summer Guests.

Mayor Graham said that this evening he had met Mr. Bowell, who was in can lady and gentleman, who were in quest of a site for a summer residence, and were much impressed with Belleville and its surroundings. He suggested that Ald. Sinclair drive them about and show them the bay shore, as by looking at property values evidence here pitters in gilt-l.ow.

Ald. Sinclair said he would not cost $2 and he would not expend it unless the Council were unanimous. He referred to the fact that several past two years ago in advertising, which was expended in Belleville and its advantages were set forth in 10,000 folders issued by a steamboat company.

If the Council spent judiciously $500 a year in advertising Belleville it would be money well invested. Advertising had brought other places into prominence as summer resorts.

Ald. McFee said he did not like Ald. Sinclair's remarks about the $2 as it sounded like a slur and was unmanned. He did not like Ald. Sinclair bring this matter up before the Council in money for advertising the city. He thought it a good thing but too late this season.

Ald. Pope brought the Ald. Sinclair, as Chairman of the Industrial Committee, should have an appropriation for his department so as to be in a position to spend a few cents if it were necessary.

This ended the discussion and the business and Council adjourned.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Opened Up a New and Happy Life for a Lady who Was Considered to be Incurable.

As summer advances, we are too prone to neglect the little ills and the warning symptoms of disease, simply because we are not suffering acute pain. It is a well-known fact that in summer we too often neglect the necessities of the system. Never forget that sleeplessness, nervousness, poor circulation, rheumatism, back and sideaches are very forcible reminders of fatal diseases. We should, therefore, at this time, grapple with the trivial aches and pains by using Paine's Celery Compound, the great blood purifier, nerve bracer, digestive regular and system builder. To-day, tens of thousands are using Paine's Celery Compound with marvellous success, fortifying the system for the weakening effects of the hot weather.

FIRE SWEEPS OF MOUNTAIN.

Began in Lumber Piles—Rock Still Falls From Turtle Peak.

Frank, N.W.T., June 6.—For the past few days a fierce fire has been sweeping up the west slope of the Livingstone range of mountains. It began in the lumber piles of an old saw mill site between Frank and Turtle Mountain. It threatened what is known as the French Camp, where the Lille collieries are situated. Fortunately, to-day was calm, but when an occasional breeze came the fire line swept through the forest with a roar like Niagara.

The falls of rock from the south peak of Turtle Mountain have been greater and more constant, dense falls just now than at any time since the big slide. Tons of thousands of tons fall every day. The peak does not shape noticeably day by day. This peak is remote from the town, and whether it falls piecemeal or all at once will not likely do much damage.

Not the 31-a Vict 72in's Fault.

A capital story relating to good old times is still told in the Irish district of the eastern counties. As is well known by many, an oven now remembered by some, a beau vial was often permitted to help the choirs in parish churches.

One lovely Sunday morning in the summer, the choir was busy at work singing out his drowsy discourse, and had almost reached the middle, if not the end, of the sermon, when the parish clerk, who had been sauntering about the road, bellowing defiantly as he came, by paying, to a drove of cattle which heard the bull bellow, but, mistaking the origin of the sound, gravely looked toward the singers' gallery, and said, in tones of reproof:

"I would mane the musicians not to tune up during service time—it annoys me very much."

As may well be imagined, the choir stopped greatly surprised, but said nothing.

Very soon, however, the belligerent bull gave another bellow, and then the aggrieved parson became justly indignant.

Tough on Papa.

The correct answer to the charade Kitty's mother had found in the family comic magazine was "Henfy," and as the charade was an easy one it was propounded to the youngster.

"See if you can guess what this is for—

"A motherly fowl and a kind of drink."

Makes a name the boys all know, I think."

"I know what the motherly fowl is," replied Kitty. "That's hen."

"Right," said her mother. "Now the kind of drink."

Kitty went into a brown study.

"Soda? No, there isn't any such name as 'Hensoda.' Henchoo—no, that won't do. Henccoa, henmilk, hen wine—"

"What is it papa's so fond of?" prompted the maternal parent.

"Oh, I know!" exclaimed Kitty. "Hen! Hen-ry!"—Chicago Tribune.

About Iron

In this twentieth century eight people out of ten require more iron in the system than nature has supplied; and of those who require iron, about eight out of ten have found it impossible to assimilate it in the form in which it is ordinarily administered. Consequently thousands of people are suffering for the want of iron. They need not suffer a day longer, because in they will find the iron they need combined with Cod Liver Oil in a scientifically perfect emulsion, as palatable as cream, and in which the iron causes no gastric disturbance. Sample and literature free.

FERROL

(The Iron-Oil Food)

Annexing New Languages.

In the new editions of the dictionaries many thousands of new words are announced. The English-speaking nations are the growing nations, commercially and in exchange, and the English language is the expanding language; it is annexing everything useful from every other language of the world. The difference between the comparatively modest vocabulary which Noah Webster put out and the ponderous unabridged work of to-day, representing the old and the knowledge and the research of hundreds of the ablest scholars of the world, shows the marvelous development. One interesting feature of this expansion is the gradual assimilation of italicising. Not many years ago it was the custom to put any word that had a foreign look about it in italics; now we use this as our own so easily as we vote a naturalized immigrant in a close primary. The effect is rather curious. It has encouraged the use of foreign phrases, and the ambitious one who wants to display his smattering of French in an English article finds his importations supplanted by none prudish. The editor makes the change, unless there are special reasons why it should not be done. The gain to the average reader, who dislikes to stumble against such affectation without knowing what the strange words mean, is great. It is marked, indeed, how much this change that the typesetting machines, by which the newspapers of to-day are now set up, have no italic letters, except where they are especially required.

To get that appetizing, brown appearance and outside crispness on roasts of lamb, beef, etc.—to keep their goodness in them they must be basted. In the old style stove this necessitated reaching into the hot oven and moving the hot, heavy pan and holding it in the front of the oven while it was basted. A disagreeable performance with unsatisfactory results. The draw-out oven rack of the makes basting a simple and successful operation. Draw the handle in the door, pull the door forward and the rack brings the pan and its contents out of the oven where it may be thoroughly basted with the greatest ease. The Imperial Oxford Range heated with coal or wood also insures the most successful results.

Sunshine Furnace

OPEN DAMPERS—BACK TO BED.

The "Sunshine" consumes so little fuel during the night that plenty remains to make an instant and strong fire when the dampers are opened in the morning. The operator may then return to his warm, cozy bed while the house is heated in 15 or 20 minutes.

Self-acting gas damper works automatically so that disagreeable odors always escape through the gas-pipe — never pass through registers into the house.

The "Sunshine" is simple in construction, easy to operate, requires very little attention and will produce more heat from the same amount of fuel than any other heater.

Greeley's Editorial When Lincoln Died

THE following very remarkable story is told in "James Russell Lowell and His Friends," by Edward Everett Hale. He is writing of Sidney H. Gay, then managing editor of the New York "Tribune":

"I have never seen in print Gay's story of that fearful night when Lincoln was killed. But one hears it freely repeated in conversation, and I see no reason why it should not be printed now.

"With the news of the murder of Lincoln, there came to New York every other terrible message. The office of the 'Tribune,' of course, received echoes of all the despatches which showed the alarm at Washington. There were orders for the arrest of this man, there were suspicions of the loyalty of that man. No one knew what the morrow might bring.

"In the midst of the anxiety of such hours, to Mr. Gay, the acting editor of that paper, there entered the foreman of the typesetting-room. He brought with him the proof of Mr. Greeley's leading article, as he had left it before leaving the city for the day. It was a brutal, bitter, sarcastic, personal attack on President Lincoln—the man who, when Gay read the article, was dying in Washington.

"Gay read the article, and asked the foreman if he had any private place where he could lock up the type, to which no one but himself had access. The foreman said he had. Gay bade him tie up the type, lock the galley with this article in his cupboard, and tell no one what he had told him. Of course no such article appeared in the 'Tribune' the next morning.

"But when Gay arrived the next day at the office, he was met with the news that the old man wanted him, and the intimation that 'the old man' was very angry. Gay waited upon Greeley.

"'Are you there, Mr. Gay? I have been looking for you. They tell me you ordered my leader out of this morning's paper. Is it your paper or mine? I should like to know if I cannot print what I choose in my own newspaper!' This in a great rage.

"'The paper is yours, Mr. Greeley. The article is in type upstairs, and you can use it when you choose. Only this. Mr. Greeley, I know New York, and I hope and believe, before God, that there is no such man in New York that if I had let the article go into this morning's paper, there would not be one brick upon another in the 'Tribune' office now. Certainly, I should be sorry if there were.'

"Mr. Greeley was cowed. He said not a word, nor ever alluded to the subject again. I suppose the type is locked up in the cupboard of the 'Tribune' office at this hour.

"It was by this sort of service that Mr. Gay earned the high praise that 'he kept Mr. Greeley up to the war.'"

A Boom Town.

Bridgewater, Ontario, once a boom town of note, was brought into existence by one of the greatest gold finds and crazes in the history of this continent. Nearly thirty years ago a farmer's wife was searching the woods near their farm for a cow that had strayed, and, becoming thirsty, stopped to get a drink from a spring. Slipping, she fell upon a small, loose rock, which rolled to her feet, and which proved to be a twenty-pound nugget of almost pure gold. Bridgewater at that time was nearly forty miles from the nearest railroad, and the present site of the town was nothing but a wilderness, but inside of six months what had been a burned-over, barren wilderness was converted into a substantial city of nearly five thousand.

In digging a shaft about a mile south of the town site, an immense quarry of the purest white marble was found, and the town was practically built of marble, for it has to-day the only hotel, church school, court house, and private dwellings constructed entirely of white marble in the world, and a mile north of the town are an abandoned ore factory and grist mill, whose foundations are built of the same beautiful material. And now comes the strangest part of the story. During the building of the town thousands of men prospected the entire country, and shafts and tunnels were driven—some of them nearly one hundred feet deep—but, strange as it may seem, there was never enough gold found to pay the cost of a single shaft or tunnel sunk or run in the entire district.

A Sensible Bishop.

The Italian Bishop of Fano, reports "La Riforma pour Tous," has sent out to the priests of his diocese the following circular:

"1. In all churches, immediately after feast days on which there have been very large congregations, the floors must be disinfected by means of wood sawdust soaked in one-tenth per cent. solution of corrosive sublimate. On ordinary days they must be frequently swept, after sprinkling them with water so as to raise no dust.

"2. Every week, and even oftener, the pews and confessionals must be cleaned with sponges and cloths moistened with pure water.

"3. Every week, and oftener if necessary, the grills of the confessionals are to be washed and polished.

"4. The floors, pews and confessionals must be emptied every week, or oftener if necessary, and washed with hot water or a solution of corrosive sublimate."

The same journal comments as follows:

"That the provisions of the circular may be carried out, the bishop has instituted a service of inspection, and requires the immediate report to the episcopal tribunal of any of these hygienic rules. It is to be feared that the Bishop of Fano's example should be imitated by church authorities in other countries."

Great Things Probable.

A Chicago professor is lecturing on "How to Lie When Sleeping." The politicians are much interested. In the heat of a campaign, much time has been lost because lying has been limited to waking hours. The effects of the learned professor's discovery upon the next campaign are awaited with interest.—Nebraska City "Conservative."

ALIGNANT LUMPS AND TUMORS Are Readily Cured by Our New Constitutional Treatment Without The Necessity of Operation.

Those who are afflicted with lumps or tumors in various parts of the body. Cancers, I must not be forgotten, are sinkers, and should not be neglected for so-called "ointments," the first place, their growth may involve or impair some vital part of the body, and in the second they locate into a drain on the system, and in the third place they frequently develop into cancers. Few people care to have the knife wielded by the surgeon, as they dread the pain of the operation. With our treatment the discomfort, if it is different. You simply take the remedy internally. It goes through the blood, destroying germs and nourishing and destroying those poisonous cells that tumors and cancers develop. After a time you will notice the tumor lessening in size, and gradually disappearing until it is completely cured. Send two stamps and we will mail you our treatise and testimonials. B. I. A cheap Jack butcher brought his cart to a standstill in Petticoat Lane. He mounted the shafts and, closing the heap of bones and gristle which was exhibited on the counter as joints and steaks. She was evidently very poor indeed, as she hesitated to pay threepence for a scaleful of "selected bits." "Come, I'll 'ave 'em for tuppence," growled the butcher. "Too much," said the woman. "Ave 'em at a penny." Still the woman hesitated. There was a look of pity, mixed with disgust, on his face as he yelled: "Take 'em much I 'Eve, 'ang it! I'll turn me back while you sneak 'em!"—London "Spare Moments."

DEAFNESS IS CURABLE. Sufferers from impaired hearing, will be glad to learn that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear, caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries, as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhozone, are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhozone quickly restores lost hearing and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Hyman Levy, who after two years of deafness, from Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Belleville's Brave Welcome To the Viceregal Party.

Unmistakable Glad Hand Held Out To Lord and Lady Minto and Their Winsome Daughters.

Reception at the Market Square—Pleasing Function at Queen Victoria School—Children Strewed Flowers and Sang Merrily—Many Presented—The Mayor's Address and His Excellency's Reply — The Drive About the City—Unique Ceremony at the Institution—Visitors Left at 6:30 O'Clock.

(Well: the Viceregal party has come and gone, and Bellevillians, one and all, have no reason to be ashamed of either the warmth of the welcome extended to them or the manner in which it was expressed. It would have been queer, indeed, if this old city, with its host of loyalists traditions had not "spread itself" on such an occasion as the visit of a Governor-General and his fair wife and daughters. No wonder, then, that flags and banners flew on every street; fair women were out in transcendent raiment, and such a crop of "plug" hats was never seen for many a long year. The arrangements for welcoming the visitors were on a high perfect, and, if there was a hitch at all it was not visible to the naked eye. To that energetic gentleman, Ald. Sinclair and his fair wife is due credit for the success of the affair. Prior to the arrival of the visiting party Ald. Sinclair wore a worried look and, of course, a silk hat. There was some danger that a few of the arrangements would miscarry, but the affair was over, and "all went merry as a marriage bell."

At 3.50, when the writer arrived at the market square, he found the 43rd Fitteenth's Guard of Honor drawn up, and being put through their facings by Capt. Cooper, who was in command. The other officers were Lieuts. Brown and Hayes. The ladies were arriving fast, and almost in whatever direction one looked there was a silk tile coming, betokening that the wearer had been lucky enough to secure a ticket of admission to one of the thirteen carriages in the procession.

Strange, isn't it, how people differ in their actions when wearing the high hat. Some, when they put it on, also put on a forbidding air; others wear it apologetically, as much as to say, "No offence, I know, really, I'll never wear it again." Others adopt a devil-may-care air, and look as if adding those are the people who wear borrowed hats. (

Well, people gathered from all sides till at last there was quite a big crowd waiting to see the party arrive. The soldiers were drawn up facing the line of carriages ready to play, and all that was needed to set things a-going was for the Viceregal visitors to arrive. Atlast they came, just in the nick of time, for the Mayor Graham had gone up to the station to greet them, and had ridden down Front street in his carriage. The train stopped, the party appeared on the platform, the mayor presented arms, the band played the National Anthem, there were a few introductions to the Mayor and Council and the favored few who were to ride in the carriages, and then the party took the drive to Queen Victoria School en route for Queen's.

Following was the order of the carriages and their occupants:

No. 1—Mayor Graham, Hon. Judge Hagerman and Capt. Bell, A.D.C.

No. 2—His Excellency the Right Hon. Earl Minto, Captain Graham and Mr. Norman Ray.

No. 3—Major Stewart, Mesdames Graham and Northrop.

No. 4—Lieut.-Col. Ponton, Major Elliott, Captain Graham and Mr. Norman Ray, M.P.

No. 5—Ald. Sinclair and McFee, Mr. Graham, Mrs. Meilsom and Miss Jean Sinclair.

No. 6—Ald. Culbraith and Sulman, Mrs. Culbraith and Miss Pringle.

No. 7—Ald. Marsh and Cooper, Mrs. Cooper and Miss Cooper.

No. 9—Ald. Panter and Mr. W. C. Mikel, Mesdames Panter and Mikel.

No. 10—Messrs. R. C. Hulme and David Price, Mesdames W. B. Robinson and (Col.) Halliwell.

No. 11.—Messrs. C. M. Stark and J. W. Johnson, Mesdames W. W. Brown and D. Price, Miss Vera Borbridge.

No. 12—Messrs. J. Fells and Mr. Parker Thomas, E. J. Butler and (Col.) Halliwell.

No. 13.—Messrs. S. Burrows, W. B. Robinson, and the representatives of the press.

The school grounds were fairly well filled when the party arrived, the school children having the post of honor near the platform, while the soldiers and band were on the south side, the veterans being drawn facing west. Lord and Lady Minto left their carriage to go to the platform, and then thirteen sweet little fairies all dressed in white came forward and strewed flowers in front of them as they walked. Those who strewed the flowers were: Julia Burrows, Jean McPherson, Marjorie Watera, Frances Blackburn, Queen Victoria School; Ruth Tenny, Ura Bell, Grier Ski School; Edna Brown, May Macdonald, Canifton Road School; Gladys Symons, May Post, Octavia St. School; Mabel Caton, Pinnacle St. School; Zoe Powers, Flora Patterson, Separate School. And the way the boys and girls waved their flags and cheered. It was inspiriting and delightful. Bless the children, they never do things by halves! The platform was a brilliant sight when the party had gained it, for with the handsome toilettes of the ladies and the scarlet of a few uniforms helped to make it a bright spot to look upon. While looking from the platform upon the sea of upturned, eager childish faces, the effect was an inspiration. That very enthusiastic gentleman, Mr. William Johnson, was in charge of ceremonies, so far as the children were concerned, and if you'd seen him from Dan to Beersheba you couldn't find a better man. The exposure of all eyes on the platform, of course, was Lady Minto and her two daughters, and very sweet and winsome they looked. Three little girls, dressed in white, came up the steps and presented the three ladies in question with bouquets, which they accepted with a gratified air, kissing the cheeks of the little ones, whose names were: Miss Evelyn Mikel, Miss Kathleen Hagerman and Gertrude Alford.

Lieutenant Denmark stepped to the front and blew a note on his cornet, and the children led in the strains of God Save the King, which they sang in a brave accompaniment of waving flags.

Three cheers for the King," said Mr. Johnson, and they were given lustily ones, you may depend.

Another five minutes or so there were presentations to the distinguished visitors, and when that was concluded our Chief Magistrate drew a document and proceeded to read

The Mayor's Address

To Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Minto and party:

On behalf of the citizens of Belleville, it is a pleasure for me, as their representative, to convey to you our appreciation of your visit. With the limited time at our disposal, we are not satisfactorily show you the beauties of our city of Quinte, the maples that shade nearly the entire city, our educational institutions which are second to none, considering the size of population, consisting, not only of the magnificent public, separate and high schools, but boasts, also, to have about a thousand pupils from outside points in attendance at Albert College, two business colleges and the Provincial Normal School, one of the finest in Ontario, also a Ladies' College under construction.

The object lesson before you of our school children will convince you that this is a growing city.

Glad you the time at our disposal, we had all on our drive to admire the scenery, angle for bass and maskinonge, enjoy an extended drive to the Bay, interesting you in the fertility, loyalty, visit our educational and industrial institutions and point out to you the fruit and dairy products, for which Ontario has a world-wide reputation, you would carry away the very favorable impression of our section of our city, which has been so appropriately named Belleville.

We desire to convey, through you, to His Majesty the King, our loyal devotion to our Mother Country, feeling assured that in the near future the Empire will be bound more closely together by bonds not only of filial love, but also of fraternity, commercial as well as military, achievements, believing that if these interests were firmly joined together the vast undeveloped portions of the Empire beyond the seas would soon be populated, and produce all of the necessaries of life, and that the time is near at hand, thereby making our nation entirely independent of any and all foreign countries, and the whole be united against us.

We pray that His Majesty may long be spared to reign over this vast Empire, of which we feel proud to form a part, and hope that Your Excellencies will be able to make us a visit more extended visit in the near future.

R. J. GRAHAM,
Mayor.

His Excellency's Reply.

Lord Minto, in his reply, thanked the Mayor for his cordial address to Lady Minto and himself. He knew their visit was too short, and wished they had time to tarry and enjoy some of the things mentioned in his address. They had many duties, and were very much tied for time. He had heard of Belleville's educational institutions, and knew they were good; certainly he could tell by the appearance of the children present that they were bright and healthy, and he knew by the sound of their voices that they had good lungs. The rising generation was destined to play a great part in the history of Canada, and their teachers must see to it that the children were properly educated in the glorious traditions of this country and taught to honor the memories of the great men who were their ancestors. He hoped that in honor of the visit of Lady Minto and himself, the children would be given a holiday. He thanked the people of Belleville for their welcome to him as the King's representative, and hoped the Colonists and the Empire might soon be drawn even closer together than they were at present. They must keep up their military institutions, which were a necessity to the well-being of Canada and the Empire as a whole.

Three cheers for the Governor-General," said the irrepressible Mr. Johnson, and the boys and girls responded nobly.

Three cheers for Lady Minto," said Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Excellency smiled her acknowledgments to the merry girls and boys.

Rule Britannia."

Bandmaster Denmark blew a strain on his cornet, and Mr. S. Burrows sang three verses of "Rule Britannia," the children and everybody else "coming in" in the chorus. It was "out of sight." The youngsters sang in splendid tune and time, and Mr. Burrows was at his best.

By this time it was getting just about red-hot on the platform, as the sun was beating down like a thousand of bricks. His Excellency stepped down and shook hands with the children, speaking kindly words to many of them, especially Mr. A. G. Petrie, who, as a veteran of 1837, received an extra hand-shake.

Then there was a second long but continued cheers for "Our Jimpsy," and the party once more got into their carriages at the drive around the city began. As the Viceregal party drove away the veterans cheered heartily for Lord Minto. The route of the drive was up Church street to Victoria avenue, up Victoria avenue to Charles street, south to Queen street, down George street to Dundas street, thence to the hospital, where the nurses were drawn up on the porch to meet the Governor-General, who entered the hospital and stayed a minute or two, the nurses being presented. The return trip was up Bleecker to Bridge street, down Bridge street to Front street and to the park, thence up Front street to the Upper bridge, over the Bridge to Moira street, up Moira street to Dillon street, Holmes

R. G. RUTHERFORD KILLED.

Had Been Missing From His Home on Borden Street.

Toronto, June 5.—The dead body of Richard G. Rutherford, one of the oldest employes of Oak Hall, was found yesterday afternoon beside the railway tracks opposite High Park. The head was severed from the body, and it was apparent that Mr. Rutherford had been killed by a passing train. Mr. Rutherford probably met his death on Thursday night. He left Oak Hall about 6 o'clock that evening, but did not go to his house at 20 Borden street. He was not seen again. Deceased, who was about 60 years of age, had been worrying a great deal recently and for some time had suffered from loss of sleep. He spent the past two summers at the Rumbel and intended to move out there again on June 15. It is supposed he was killed on his way out to the house. Deceased leaves a widow and one son. He was a member of Guelph Lodge of the I.O.O.F.

It Is "Toronto Slim."

Rochester, N.Y., June 6.—Detective John G. Hayden left last evening for Detroit to bring back Joseph Halsey arrested in that city. Pinkerton is supposed to be the murderer of George Hickey in this city August 1st last. The alleged murderer was a man said to be "Toronto Slim."

$2,000,000 to Montreal.

Ottawa, June 6.—On Tuesday Mr. Fielding will move the necessary resolutions for loaning three million dollars to the corporation of the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal. The money is to be advanced from time to time.

Jack the Choker Sentenced.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 6.—Swift justice was dealt out to young George W. Wheeler yesterday afternoon by David Farrell, known as Stratford's "Jack-the-Choker." On Sunday evening he attempted to assault Miss Alice Chase of Stamford. He was captured on Tuesday, admitted his guilt yesterday and was sentenced to not less than three or more than six years in the Penitentiary. Farrell has terrorized the women of Stamford for three months.

A Damaging Defence.

Mark Twain, says "Life," has got support from an unexpected quarter in his efforts to demonstrate the impropriety of some things done by missionaries in China. In the "Forum" a missionary named Gilbert Reid has defended looting by missionaries with so much candor and plausibleness, and has so gloried in such looting as he did himself, as not to leave the critics of the looting missionaries much to do to prove their case. Anyone who was sorry for the American missionaries in China, because our Brother Mark found fault with some things that some of them did, will be doubly sorry for them when he reads their defence by the Rev. Gilbert Reid. They may have justly incurred Mark's strictures, but they never deserved the Rev. Reid's defence.

BIG SHIPS IN COLLISION

Off Marseilles Passenger Str. Liban is Run Down at Sea.

Str. Insulaire Cut a Big Rent in the Liban's Side—Her Captain Tried to Run Aground, But the Disabled Steamer Foundered—Several Passengers Were Swept Before Rescuing Land—French Company's Vessels Make Rescues.

Marseilles, June 8.—Over one hundred persons were drowned here yesterday, as the result of a terrible shipping disaster. The Insulaire and the Liban, passenger steamers of the Fraissenet Steamship Company of Marseilles were in collision near this port. The Liban sank, carrying down with her more than 100 of her passengers, as well as her crew.

The Liban left Marseilles yesterday morning with a regular passenger trip to Bastia, Corsica, and was run down and sank by the Insulaire off the Maire Islands. The collision was witnessed by another boat, the Blackamp, which was about two miles distant. The Blackamp immediately went to the spot to render assistance.

The force of the collision cut a wide rent in the Liban's side and she was already taking in water rapidly. Her captain saw their only chance to run the steamer aground before she went down by water, but the Liban was headed full speed for the shore, but within seventeen minutes of the collision, and while still some distance from shallow water, the forward of the steamer plunged beneath the waves, and a few minutes later she had entirely disappeared.

In the meantime the Blackamp, the steamer Balkan, also belonging to the Fraissinet Company, and other vessels had drawn near the sinking ship and were making strenuous efforts to rescue those on board. The Blackamp picked up 40 persons, many of whom were at the point of exhaustion, and were only revived by the attentions they received on board.

The Balkan also rescued thirty-seven passengers, and up to the present it is known that in addition to the passengers, seventeen of the crew were also saved.

Cause of Collision.

It is stated that the collision was due to the following circumstances: The Liban was putting out to sea, just as the steamer Insulaire was making for the harbor. Maire Island, which lies off the entrance to the port, hid the vessels from each other until it was too late to avoid a collision.

The crew of the Balkan describe the scene just before the Liban disappeared as a fearful one. As the vessel was sinking, she was inclined to such an angle that her masts struck the water, causing an eddy, which made the work of rescue most difficult. A mass of human beings were clinging to the foundered ship, and uttered despairing cries as she went down. At the same time the boilers exploded.

For a few minutes the victims were seen struggling in the sea, then the waves closed over them. Of about 200 passengers who were aboard, it is feared at least half were drowned.

The Liban launched three boats, and the other scurrying vessels did all possible to rescue the victims in the short time that elapsed between the time of the collision and the sinking of the Liban.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 100 bodies had been recovered. Many of the passengers were badly injured by the collision. The insulaire sustained considerable damage in the bow, but managed to reach port safely.

RX Liner Aground.

Montreal, June 8.—The S.S. Iberian, general cargo, of the Leyland Line, inward, got aground yesterday at the foot of Peel, about 20 miles below Sorel. Lighters have been sent down, but the vessel has not been received up to three o'clock this morning.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Sunday School Crowd Breaks Through Bridge—Many Narrow Escapes.

Toronto, June 8.—An appalling carcusion horror was what "might have happened" at Lorne Park on Saturday. Half a hundred people, men, women and children, by the collapse of the wharf, were precipitated into the water. Luckily, it was only a few feet deep, but even then the escape from death by drowning or serious injury from the crushing of, at least a few of the imperilled excursionists almost borders on the marvelous.

The Carlaw Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school scholars, officials and friends had picnicked at the park during the day, and taken the early morning trip on the Niagara.

Many women and children suffered severely from shock and surface wounds, and strange to say Mrs. Andrews, Gladstone Avenue, was the only person who received really dangerous injuries. She also was severely bruised and she was struck so severely on the back that serious internal injuries were caused.

The wharf had been condemned, and the church authorities are taking up the question of damages.

Prisoner Suicided on Train.

Winnipeg, June 8.—A young German, named Zoller, who was arrested in Battleford for raising cheques on the Bank of Hamilton, with no funds in bank, and was being brought here this morning, died suddenly at the Central Station on the Battleford train. An inquest will be held, as it is thought he committed suicide.

London, June 8.—Surgeon Furnivall announced yesterday that it was a man's heart last week in the London Hospital.

WILL INCREASE REWARD.

Collingwood People Continue to Manifest Much Interest in Whalen Tragedy.

Collingwood, June 8.—New interest was created here by the announcement Saturday that Commissioner Stupart intended at Smith's Falls answering to the description of the colored man and white man who have been persistently connected with the crime from the beginning. He will also present letter in the neighborhood of the Whalen home, which will be read and done to death. Chief Wilde immediately despatched Detective Black, who left on the tramps when here, to identify them.

Should it, however, prove a false scent and nothing new develops by Monday, the town will meet again to offer a reward of one thousand dollars. Commissioner Stupart intends to leave for England on Thursday, but he has cancelled his berth with the hope of staying here another week by leaving. Chief of Police Wilde is still working hard, and followed up the slightest clue that presents itself.

Another meeting will be held at Cold-water, supposed to be the man who discarded his overcoat and sweater on the lake shore.

BABY BURIED ALIVE IN SANDBANK.

Peculiarly Reactive Assertion of Few Days Old Child.

Toronto Junction, June 8.—An infant, only three or four days old, was discovered by Mr. Johnson kicking out of a sandbank, on his farm, near Keele street, this afternoon yesterday. The child had apparently been there for a long time, as it was completely exhausted, and it is hardly likely to survive. The sandbank where the baby was found is in a spot where few people are liable to pass, and it might have been there for several days without being discovered. The baby was buried to its neck in sand, and could not move. The object of this assertion cannot be known, but Detective Johnson is taking care of the child until it is in charge of the police by the county authorities. High Constable Blenkhorn has been notified.

Ottawa Boy Died a Hero.

Ottawa, June 8.—Lewis Lacelles, a ten-year-old boy, died a heroic death on Saturday afternoon. With three companions he was out swimming in the Ottawa River, near the Bideau Canal locks. A boat capsized, ion got into deep water, and the brave little lad lost his life in the rescue. The remaining two boys raised an outcry, and men working nearby rushed to the scene. They managed to save one boy, but little Lacelles was in the last gone when taken out of the water.

Buoys Out of Place.

Montreal, June 8.—The findings of Commander Spain, who held an investigation into the grounding of the S.S. Carnarvon Castle in the Cross Channel, on April 24, were announced on Saturday. The finding is that the accident was caused by the buoys having been out of place, but blame is attached to no person. Commander Spain recommends that a steam launch be procured, and used for patrolling the river to see that the buoys are in place.

Dundonald Inspected Them.

Montreal, June 8.—Lord Dundonald inspected the Montreal Brigade on Saturday. The brigade, which numbered nearly 2,000 men, were put through a number of evolutions in La Fontaine Park, and were afterwards highly complimented by the Major-General Commanding, who urged that a field day should be held on Labor Day.

Chased Brother With Ax.

Thamesville, June 8.—Mrs. McKay, who lives about half a mile west of here, chased his brother Jim with an ax, and also threw a fire brand at him yesterday. Jim escaped and went for the police, but when they arrived on the scene, Jim had fled, and is still at large. A family dispute caused the trouble.

Sligo, Ireland, June 8.—P. A. McHugh, M.P., was arrested Saturday morning under a warrant for contempt of court, issued in connection with the trial of the political opponents of Mr. McHugh's paper, The Sligo Champion.

RIVER THREATENS DEATH

200 Residents of Black Walnut, Mo., in Peril of Their Lives.

Steam Yacht Sent to the Rescue Found Only Two Feet of Water Standing Over Town—Many Families Have Been Forced to Roofs and Did Not Make 100 Yards Headway—Rivers Are Rising and Waters Are Reaching Past St. Louis Like a Mill Race.

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—Like a mill race, the swollen Mississippi, is rushing past St. Louis, with a stage of 36.9 feet last night, making a rise of 1½ feet in the last six hours.

No word was received yesterday from the 200 people imprisoned at Black Walnut, 35 miles northwest from here, and in peril of their lives from the rising waters of the Missouri River. Word was received Saturday night that a rescue must be effected immediately or they would probably be swept away before morning. The steam yacht Argonaut was sent to the relief with a swift current, and although every effort has been made to reach them, nothing has been published yesterday, as there has been no means of communicating with them.

The Argonaut, moored at Alton, Ill., was hurriedly manned and started for the imperilled colony late Saturday night, but was forced to return back at the Bellefontaine bridge. A private yacht here was manned by a company of policemen, the work of rescue being left to them, as the craft sat low enough in the water to make it safe, while the swift current had to be reckoned with. All steam was turned on, but the boat made no headway against the current, and after vainly fighting for two hours, was forced to return, making 100 yards, the yacht reported, before the attempt was abandoned.

Black Walnut is located in a broad and fertile valley of the Missouri, and the land surrounding it is all under cultivation, wheat and corn being the principal crops. Should the slightest rise that presents itself, another calamity is held at Cold-water, supposed to be the man who discarded his overcoat and sweater on the lake shore.

OTTAWA'S ANXIOUS TIME

Fire Fiend Menaces the Dominion's Capital City.

No Rainfall Worth Noting Since 7th April, and Fire Alarms Ring With Painful Frequency, Throwing Citizens Into a State of Terror—A Chance Badly Damaged by Lightning at Seaforth—Prayers For Rain in Quebec.

Ottawa, June 8.— Ottawa still basks under a blazing sun. Everything is as dry as tinder, and fire alarms ringing with painful frequency, have thrown the citizens into a state of terror. The city has an efficient brigade, but it has to cope with abnormal conditions, and the Council is taking steps to reinforce it. A prolonged and unprecedented drought is responsible for the city's jeopardy from fire. There has been no rainfall worth noting since Tuesday, April 7. A couple of light showers, which were barely equal to a heavy dew, fell early in May. Since that time a fierce sun and hot gale has come to relieve an anxious city. Some conditions prevail all down the Ottawa Valley, and in some districts in Quebec. Ottawa is passing through the most anxious time in its history, and a heavy rain alone can allay the fears which weigh on the public mind.

Later—The drought was the last night's fire, which did duty on the bell, which did duty on the bell, which did duty on the bell

Daily Intelligencer.

CANADA OF CURRENT ...CRIPTION.

The Toronto Globe is, under its clerical editorial guidance, becoming solicitous of the moral standing of political parties in Canada. Were it and the party it so slavishly supports to practise what it preaches more might be done to mitigate, if not entirely eradicate, the evil.

Moralizing upon the events of the past few months, among other things, it says the "canker of corruption" has eaten too deeply into the heart of Canadian politics to have the "malady cured by any judicial pronouncement." This view of the state of the late investigation before a commission of two judges is fully ratified and justified by the findings of the two judges in the now famous and historical Gamey-Stratton case. People are beginning to ask themselves what constitutes "political corruption?" Well may that question be asked when they find that the "personal" element enters it "sufficiently able to assign" to the suggestion of the Provincial Secretary to a witness to "forget some things." Such a suggestion would be overshadowed by the whole body of substantial evidence in favor of the Minister. People would consider such a suggestion verging very closely upon the border of subornation of perjury, if committed to be put in writing with such teachings by the judges of our superior courts, is it not about time that a law was placed upon the statute forbidding the appointment of judges to act as commissioners to try cases of a political character such as that referred to by Mr. Justice Osler, and Britton? If this be not done, the confidence formerly had in the impartiality of those upon the bench of the Province of Ontario will steadily begin to think that the "canker of corruption," so much to be deplored, has invaded the sanctity of our courts. A deplorable condition for it cannot to be but that a contemporary, commenting upon the finding of the judges, pertinently and truthfully says:

"We would like to say that Judge Boyd's volunteered opinion overshadows itself. As a defence of Mr. Stratton and his colleagues, and as an attempt to destroy Mr. Gamey, it goes too far. And thus nullifies the influence with the public mind which it otherwise might be expected to exert. But it will not convince the public of anything, excepting that judges should not be called to interfere in politics. Ontario knows well enough what has happened and a hundred carefully prepared reports from Judge Boyd will not change public opinion, which is formed upon commonsense and an intelligent regard for propriety in the conduct of public affairs.

TIMELY TOPICS.

A lady caught her nose, while fluffy dress on a projecting spike on the side of the Bank the other yesterday. She didn't say a word, but you couldn't put what she looked into a column. Isn't it about time the Public Morals Committee did something to that venerable structure.

The Kingston Whig wants the Revised Version of the Bible used more generally. Any version at all ought to do the Whig man good.

Certain Grit gentlemen throughout the province are very much exercised because the Conservative press has seen fit to criticise the remarkable judgment given in the Gamey case by Messrs. Bell and Falconbridge. Writing to a Peterboro paper a gentleman of that town used the expression: "Our judges are above reproach, and they ought to be so regarded and so treated by all right-thinking men."

Nonsense! The judges are only human like the rest of us. Candid and wholesome criticism harms no man. To claim that men are above criticism is to credit them with infallibility, something which we deny to any judge, lawyer or medical man that ever lived. You might, if you deny newspapers the right of criticism, as well command the public to keep silence on any matter which has been passed upon by a judge. No, no! The press cannot discredit the judiciary; they can only do that themselves. The merits of the case are what count with the public, and rightly so.

So far, rainy days in June have been rare.

Buffalo has another murder mystery. Arson? Very glad that awful place is not in Canada.

Yes, dictation not the decision, but another victory like that would spell ruin for him.

Is there an honest man in the Ontario Civil Service? asks the Hamilton Spectator. That question will probably be right-ish. It has a strong indication of being leading.

The situation in the saltrocks fields appears to grow more threatening. But everybody, concerned better take an extremely protracted think before resorting to extremes. The public has the chief right in the matter, as in all moods to exclorge either operators or minors if unreason on either side shall reside in knother cruition.

Many people think that if the authorities are anxious to have the Gas Company and Drill Shed site by-laws carried, they had better postpone them till next fall. That, ing into consideration the length of time they need to be advertised, only 10 days before the election to the people before the middle of next month, and that it is altogether likely that a large number of our property-owners will be out of town at summer resorts, and, as it is a two-thirds majority of the total vote which has to be polled, it will really be seen that the situation is a critical one. The intelligence would like to see both by-laws carried, but in the meantime the note of warning to the City Fathers is respectfully sounded.

Everything is dreadfully dry down in Ottawa, including, of course, the politicians' speeches.

The fact that many women and children were nearly killed in an accident on a wharf in Toronto on Saturday, reminds one that the Sunday School picnic season is once more upon us.

New York's strike losses amount to 25 millions of dollars and much suffering by a lot of innocent people.

UMBRELLA WEATHER.

At last we have had the much desired rain, and it was about time that we got caught without an umbrella! The Oak Hall will sell you a fine 26 for $2.00 We are going to have a lot of umbrella weather now, so you may as well get it at once.

BOLD BOY BURGLARS.

BROKE INTO MR. KARTH'S CANDY STORE SOME TIME LAST NIGHT.

Some time during last night an entrance was effected into Mr. J. A. Karth's candy store, which is situated in rear of the premises. The police investigated the matter, and found that in three boys being found to be implicated, namely, W. Monahan and two Greenman boys. Another took a considerable quantity of gum and confectionary, portion of which they consumed and hid the remainder, the hiding place being revealed by the boy Monahan. The work of entering the building was by no means an easy task.

Monahan was brought up before the Magistrate this morning and was sentenced to one year for more fun in Industrial School. The two Dalton boys were brought up later this afternoon.

THE WORLD NEEDS NERVE.

Needs it in business, in the study, in the household. Brilliancy, wonderness, lack of strength—the blue feeling—they just tell you that you're sick nerve. You'll use Ferrozone? Why! What an appetite you'll get. How quickly the color will return to your cheeks, how buoyant you will feel! Work? of course you'll work, for you will enjoy it. That is, if you use Ferrozone. It is nerve food, strength, muscular endurance and invigorates the brain splendidly. Sold by all druggists.

On the Right Way.

ALMOST every man who has been interviewed regarding the prices for some magazine on how he did it, has been interviewed by some newspaper, but all this information has been scattered consequently it is hard to find when we want to know what to do, or the first step to take, we cannot lay our hands on the particular species of advice which we want. Now, in this store we have all we stumble along as best we can, and probably all for want of knowing what Caleb Coupon did at this juncture.

The writer hopes herewith to supply the deficiency, as he has kept a record of the principal necessities laid down from time to time by Caleb, and with the benefit of the results of their experience, and lays them before the reader, in full confidence and safety.

To begin with, you should select for a birthplace a dingy cottage, or farmhouse, on the outskirts of a clearing. Large cities have gone out of date. At one time they were quite fashionable, but something a little better is now demanded. As time goes on, who knows? Maybe some of our great men will be born in the "Home of Home, Sweet" three-thousand-dollar country houses. This however, is a matter of contingency.

Be sure to your mother. While the other boys of the neighborhood are playing hookey, and hanging around the mill-pond be piling chores around the house. This, however, does not imply a goodness of any other way. You will, of course, avoid going to Sunday-school, and when you get a little older wood and laying the foundation of the temperance cause by acting as a lieutenants to carry you through life, you will be starting for your future with books, such as the dictionary, the Bible, and one or two good comic papers. You will find these useful later when you are called upon to make after-dinner speeches.

You can then take your choice of "penitentiary" through going or leaving the farm with a dollar in your pocket. Better leave the farm with a dollar, as it teaches you a lot of superfluous things you may regret. After a time you will have accumulated a large fortune has spoiled it all by going through things more than money. The best place to go to New York with a dollar in your pocket. Go at once to the best boarding house in the fashionable centre of the city. Live on the balance until you get work. As soon as you get work, save at least seventy-five per cent. of your wages, if you can't do better still, ninety per cent. You will thus acquire habits of frugality, which will be a source of happiness to you throughout your whole life.

At the end of a few years you will have saved up a few thousands, and proceed to engage in business. Do not gamble. Robbing is not only safer and surer, but it is legal. Proceed by the laws of your country, you can feel entirely safe. Reorganize a railroad, start a small trust, or get nominated in Washington. When you get to be seventy you ought to be worth at least a hundred millions. You can then make a bluff at giving it all away, and be quoted as saying that it is wicked for a rich man to have anything behind him.—Tom Masson.

Mr. Balfour on Illustration.

"There are books," said Mr. Arthur Balfour, at the dinner given to Sir John Tenniel in London the other evening "in which the text is a mere otiose and almost unnecessary appendage to the illustrations. There are other books in which the text is good, but the illustration is an impertinent intrusion upon the attention of the reader, distracting his mind from the literary masterpiece with which he is concerned, and intruding alien and unsympathetic ideas to disturb the current of his thought. Such books are numerous. But there is a third class of book in which the illustration and the text are so intimately connected, in which the marriage between the two is so happy and so complete, that you cannot conceive the text adequately without the illustrations; any more than you could conceive the illustrations unaccompanied by the text. Our guest of this evening is one of the happy creators of this kind of literature. Such are books known to all of us in which it would be as impossible to forget the illustrations as it is impossible—and I hope it will be long impossible—to forget the author. Of course, the books was "Alice in Wonderland."

Stage Asides.

Fanny Kemble once gave a most amusing instance of the extent to which "stage whispering" may be carried on under the guise of an aside. She was in a well-known theater, and was in a well-known theater, and was playing Juliet, the balcony scene, Romeo was at the wings (stage vernacular for prompter's side) at his side. Romeo (to Juliet)—"Ah, sweet, what beams to thy listening ear?" Juliet (to prompter upon her, and lifting her up by the waist)—"Put me on the stage."

"Let me go," she whispered, "you've got me up horribly; let me down," but all in vain. The climax came at the balcony scene. "Tear off my heart-strings thus; they break, they crack, Juliet" (still the wings remained, when—

Juliet (to corpse)—Am I smothering you?

Corpse—Not at all; but could you, do you think, be so kind as to put my wig on again for me?—It is falling off.

Juliet (to corpse)—I am afraid I cannot, but I'll throw my mantilla over it. You have broken the vial, have you?

Corpse—No, indeed.

Juliet—Where's the dagger?

Corpse—Pon my soul, I don't know. All these "asides" went on unknown to the audience in the very crisis of the tragedy.

Just Think of It!

In the last "Derichie," Nencki and Marchiewski decompose the very interesting discovery of the close chemical relationship existing between the red coloring matter of the blood and the green chlorophyl of plants. Haematoporphyrin, a derivative of haemoglobin, and phylloerasin obtained from chlorophyl, both yield on reduction haematoporphyrogen, probably an isobutyl or methyl propyl

Private Marriages of Royal Widows.

WRITING of the alleged morganatic marriage of the late Queen Victoria's daughter, Princess Frederick of Germany, the London correspondent of London "Truth" says: "The Berlin papers' denials only suggest that the Empress Frederick was at the bottom of the match. The wife of Count Seckendorf, her house marshal. The other journals call on the Government to disprove the monstrous assertion." Why should it be a monstrous assertion? The Countess is a good and faithful friend of the Empress. Her husband is her private secretary. Frederick esteemed him highly. It is now some years since her youngest daughter married. Why should she not marry a gentleman so distinguished as Count Seckendorf? It is said that the private marriages of royal and imperial widows are by no means exploded, but the rule, and have been so for centuries. Some august widows were married to their lovers in the first week after the death of their second husbands than the Empress Frederick is said to have done. In France and Italy marriages with a near relative of rank was thought a sign of greater weakness than a friendship." The worship of "what will they say" does not necessarily exclude affection for a second." I had a relative who presented colored glass windows that cost £1,000 apiece to churches in memory of her first love when he was walking about London with his second wife. Years after, as a widow more devoted to the memory of her first husband than the Empress Frederick ever was, she married, she believed to have married her secondborn, consequently married in effect in Catholic countries, to a Protestant. Nobody ever heard of the priest. Who need know about it. 'A conscience marriage' might be considered a contradiction in terms, but publication of banns with a slight change of names, changing every speck of the "de" to Bonaparte to Goedshare. There is one high negotiator, who, when he cannot inflict pain with utter privacy, Scotland is the country for it, and one of his private marriages can best be entered into. No solemnisation is required, and the whole affair stands from a mere exchange of vows is stable."

A Contrast.

CONTRASTING the England of today with the England of forty years ago, R. L. Goodkin says in the New York "Evening Post:" "The English nobleman who had never seen his home then was somewhat of a prodigy; now nearly half of his colleagues in the House of Lords are absentees. A dissenting minister used to be an object of abhorrence and contempt; now he is quoted in Parliament by politicians. A lord used to be an object of dread and reverence; now he is hardly better than a foreign count. In the England that I remember, third-class passengers on the then newly-built railroads stood to their journey's end; they had no cushioned seats, the third-class cars being so like the first-class that the gentry have largely taken to using them. The loveliest parts of the country at this summer season are thronged with commercial men, and it is fair to say that there are no longer secluded spots in England. The famous seat of the Duke poets, Cumberland and Westmoreland, is so overrun with tourists that even through the mountain passes seem to be leading to a fair; the small steamers on the lakes are thronged to their utmost capacity. Unhappy is the place which has some touch of 'Americanism' in its history. The railroads dump on it thousands of our countrymen, who poke their noses everywhere, cut chips off every wooden memorial, and apply the hammer to every stone, and almost compel the inhabitants to move out. The 'American' in England used too often to be regarded as a 'globe-trotting foreigner;' but he is a welcome guest who has a right to have his curiosity gratified, and whose tastes manners and desires are reverenced in almost every paper read before a learned society, so that now hardly anybody achieves fame so readily as an 'American' traveler. The old cabinet, described, confined English hotel, consisting of a private house every room an inn, and kept by an ex-butler or housekeeper, has almost disappeared. New hotels, on the 'American plan,' are springing up everywhere, and English travelers are compelled to dine at their stations, to their great advantage. In fact, it would be difficult to imagine a greater transformation than the England of my youth has undergone."

Temptation.

In our carelessness we may often tempt others without knowing it. Sir Edward Maslet writes in "Shifting Scenes" that he had gone to a hotel in Milan, and eager to see the sights, satisfied forth, leaving his portmanteau standing on a trusting-case sitter, and money on the mantelpiece. "I was I thought of nothing save the sights and seen more in Italy. Still, I locked my door, and took the key with me. When I came back a aged and devoted housemaid followed me into my room. She was wringing her hands.

"Ah, sir, signore," cried she, going up to the dressing-table and opening a little drawer, "Is this yours?"

In the drawer lay ten or a dozen gold pieces.

"Yes," I said, "they are mine."

"Ah, signore, how could you do it? How could you leave this money about? It was all lying on the table."

"Why, I locked my door. I knew it was safe."

"Yes," she cried, "it was not safe! It was cruel to put such temptation in my way!" She sank upon a chair and burst into tears. "Think of me, signore. I am very poor. I have six children to keep and a husband who can do no work. The money would make me rich, and you leave it on the table, the gold pieces all loose to dazzle my eyes and to put the devil into my heart! Through your thoughtlessness I might so to jail, my children might starve, my husband die. Ah, signore mio, never do it again! Think of the poor. Be merciful to us. Do not put temptation in our way."

It does not seem to have occurred to Sir Edward Maslet that possibly the old housemaid was trying to work him for a gift of the gold pieces.

"PLEASANT PLACES"

CHRISTIAN MINISTRY IDEAL PLACE O CONSECRATED USEFULNESS.

NATURE SOOTHES THE LONELY

What the Preacher Learned of Contentment in Apparently Unpleasant Places Even a Sympathetic Reading in the Saddest Tale Brings to Judges by Appeal.

Sole Applied to the Preacher's Calling.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1903, by William Dalby, at Toronto, in the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 7.—In this sermon the preacher sets forth with enthusiasm the delights of the Christian ministry and the opportunities it offers to the graduates of our learned institutions as the ideal life of consecrated usefulness. The text is "Pleasant places have fallen to me; yea, I have a goodly heritage unto me.in pleasant places."

Pleasant occupations often imply different enjoyments. All varieties of pleasure do not look alike, nearly under the same colored glasses. The amusements which would be exhilaration and delight to the young man or physician may be drudgery and irritation for the merchant. The owls and the bats turn their days into nights and their nights into days. The eagles and the hawks do not coincide about in the heavens unless they can best their flight with the flaming fires of the sun. The inhabitant of one house may be quite blind to the pleasures surrounding another dwelling.

As in the backwoods I best learned this interesting lesson. With my family, I was engaged in summer vacation in the country. In a row-boat, far from a railroad station, I was tracing the bendings and windings of a little river. Suddenly, at a turn of the river, there came to me a small house nestling under the projecting branches of tall trees. I found there a woman living practically alone. She had no children. Her day long her husband was off to work. I said to her: "This is an awful place to live. You must be very lonely and heartsick with no companionship." "Oh, no," she answered, "I am never alone. I have hundreds of friends who call and talk to me every day. I am never lonely. The nest just at the end of my porch! Well, last spring the mother bird came here as a bride and asked me if she could build her home there, and I said 'Yes.' Then she talked and chattered on all the time she was building it. She brought in her husband and introduced me to him. She told me when the eggs were hatched. She is one of my friends. I am never lonely." Another that bank a muskrat has his home and is raising his family. He comes out every day and talks to me. He calls me and talks in the sign language. Then there are the flowers that will flowers and my friends the chickens and my friends the cows. They all look at the dock. Then the river itself is a friend of mine. It has a language of murmurs and gurgles which I listen, and when I get tired and weary I am sure the sun gladdens my. Oh, no; do not pity me for leisure. My enjoyments are perhaps your enjoyments, but they are many, very many. I would not exchange my life for that of any one I know." Happy woman that. Happy because she was in the place where she could use the qualities which God had endowed her. Happy because, like a bee, she was able to find every flower filled with nectar for her use. Happy because every tree branch was to her a choir loft in which to accompany birds in singing the sweetest song in all its repertoire.

Well, my friends, as I needlessly pitied that poor woman living in the backwoods with her husband and thousands of people commiserating and supposed misfortune of a great minister. These sympathetic commiserations have become widespread. Many young men who might otherwise be useful workers in the vineyard of Christian pulpits, have been' deterred from consecrating themselves to the gospel ministry. Now I want to speak specially to young men. I want to address those who are graduating from our colleges and universities, and if they have adopted this view of the Christian ministry as being gloomy life, I want to set them right. I want a direct appeal to the young men to enter the ministry. I want them to be, fore the happiest, the most blessed and the most useful life on earth. I am going to make this with autobiographical authority by showing the enjoyments and the sympathies which have surrounded me from my earliest years down to the present time.

The first objection generally made to the occupation of a minister is that it is not a money making profession. That is true. You can not offer something far better in the joy of consecrated service. We have all at some time proved the truth of the promise that he is better to give than to receive. When the bee or bird of love builded her home for the first time in the spring, we immediately tried to manifest that love to many different ways. We had at the fact of our indulgence our wife, as the wise man from the east came to the manger with their presents of gold and frankincense and myrrh. We had our children, and the little attentions we daily gave to them developed our love. We would write. As time passed on we again manifested that love in the engagement ring which we tremblingly placed upon the finger of our future bride. Has any money we have since earned ever given us such joy as that which came in the happiness of her smile, in the welcome of her voice and in the knowledge that we were winning her affections in return for our affections. My young friend, did you ever stop to consider that the Christian minister has such joys as these, which make the acquisition of a fortune appear in comparison low and sordid? Apart from the thought that God gives to the faithful minister, there is a joy in the self surrender, in the consecration of our whole lives to Christ, who laid down his life for us.

The true soldier does not think of money, the mere question of money, when he volunteers his life for the service of his country. In all probability he will never be anything else to live on but a mere pittance of a salary. Yet he willingly does the soldier's work. He willingly does promises to suffer and starve and, if need be, to die for his country's good. While promising to make this sacrifice he finds happy in the resolve. Cannot the minister in this same way feel the exhilaration of a noble consecration? I know that the compensations of the gospel minister cannot be estimated by the standard of mere money. I know there are many young men present who have left in the pulpit who if they had entered the law or a mercantile life would have an annual income of a ten times the income that they receive at present. But the peace and the joy of giving your whole life to the service of Jesus Christ bring some rewards higher than mere money? Does not the thought that you are trying to save souls from perdition, and bring them to the Saviour who died for them, give you a happy deathbed or by the sick bed or on the street or in the pulpit give you transcendent and at times almost overwhelming joys.

Then the spiritual rewards are real and satisfying is demonstrated by the fact that the minister is not the only class of men who, as a body, want their sons to follow in their own footsteps and their daughters to marry men of their own profession. Where do you go as an average lawyer and ask him what he would like his son to be in answering the most anything rather than a lawyer? to a physician, anything but a doctor to a professional man to anything but an editor; to a merchant, and you will often find him struggling and saving so that he can give his boys a college education, with entrance into some professional career. But a consecrated minister invariably wants his son to enter the gospel ministry. If you ask your pastor this question, "What would you like your son to be?" he will in all probability answer: "Well, I would not like to persuade my boy to be a minister. If he becomes a minister I do not want him to be a mere hireling, but a God made, minister, a man in whose heart burns the love of work upon his heart I think the greatest joy I could have would be when I could hear him preach in a Christian pulpit. May God give me this joy."

But the joy of self surrender is not the only reward. The gospel ministry affords more opportunities for usefulness than any other profession. Every true man wants to do the most of his earthly life. If he has any talents in the world he wants where they will be most effective; if he has only one talent he wants to make that one talent useful. Where can a consecrated, educated young man have more influence for good than in the Christian ministry?

Then, I am glad to say graduates from the theological seminary he immediately takes his place at the head of a country or city church. What does that mean? Simply this: The young man infinitely better becomes the leader of a consecrated band of Christian workers, who are ready to work for Christ in any way the young minister directs. It is true that his individual personal influence is doubled, trebled, quadrupled—aye, a hundredfold increased by the consecrated band of workers who willingly obey his every behest. Then it means that by the power of his Christian endeavors he will gather to him and for him he can in time absolutely dominate a whole region for Christ.

The gospel ministry is a profession whose members are treated with respect and universal kindness. How many professions are there lowest, and most depraved are generally treated at their approach. When the minister comes around the saloons are forced to be closed, the lewd story is untold, the evil practice discontinued, and the Catholic priest on an errand of mercy receives the respect of every head uncovers and every cursing tongue is stilled.

How with kindness! Because from the very moment you step into it you are in the midst of Christian people who will do everything in the power to make your life happy. When installed in a charge the cordial reception will show you how many friends you have and how welcome you are. When your baby is sick there are always many sympathizers to come around and bring the howers and, if necessary, nurse in nursing. When the autumnal fruits arrive there are the tokens of love in the gifts of the choicest fruits, and the Christmas presents of chairs and other kindly gifts. These gifts may not have much money value, but they have the finest of the gold of the love of a loving and sympathetic people. The aged reformer of England when dying of old asked what was the greatest want of this world. He answered, "Sympathy." The Christian minister rarely feels the need of this gift, for the whole family of the people in his church work. He finds sympathy, and with sympathy, wherever he goes. I know that there are certain churches which were started in fanaticism and are now contemptible churches and have ill treated their pastors, but generations have left such mean churches are the exceptions—the rare exceptions.

The Christian ministry is a profession in which the members are shielded from many of the temptations that confront men in other walks of life. Richard Baxter once declared that the minister had to face the greatest of all daily temptations. He lived in an exceptional period, and he did not believe he would have said as much if living in this age. Temptations come to the pulpit, but not with the violence and with the allurements as they assail the pew. The gospel minister by his official position is under the influence of good associates. He has surrounding him some of the best men and women in the community in which he lives. These Christians are not only praying for the minister, but also for him. We all believe in the power of prayer. Is there to be no direct result upon the minister's life on account of this spiritual atmosphere? When I entered college two or three different secret societies waited upon me to join their organizations. I was composed of men notorious for their dissipations. They were drinkers, card players, carousers. Another was a poorer society financially, but was composed of the most part of noble Christian boys. I said to myself: "I cannot afford to place myself in a position where I may be surrounded by those who drink and gamble. I will join the society which is poorer financially, but whose spiritual members will lift me up instead of dragging me down." The consecrated gospel preacher in the same way is always surrounded by good men and women and not by bad. He cannot if he would associate with evil companions or go to questionable amusements or desecrate the Sabbath. If he did he would be immediately debarred from his pulpit ministrations. Therefore, my young friend, you should not go to enter the gospel ministry for these purposes and hope you will find that you will lift you up instead of dragging you down.

The gospel minister has the same temptations as other men. Why, that is absurd. I do not believe it. But what I am because I am stronger for my fear that I believe I am. What I am because God has surrounded me by praying men and women and hemmed me in with noble influences that would bend me back and foot with the golden manacles of their petitions. If these holy associates should be taken away from me I feel I would tremble for what the results might be. My young friend, if God calls you to be a lawyer or doctor or legislator or politic captain, or merchant go ahead and be what he thinks you to be. He will give you strength to resist any temptation that may come in your way if you will only ask him. But if he calls you to be a Christian minister and you deliberately turn a deaf ear to that call I tremble in reference to your future. I tremble for your spiritual life when you have cut off the temptations that beset the average man in the outside world. I tremble when you shall not have the preaching, guiding, praying influence of praying men about you, such as surrounds the average life of the Christian minister.

I have preached this sermon, showing the joys, the spiritual safeguards and the infinite usefulness of the gospel ministry, for two distinct reasons: The first, there never was a greater need than at the present time for young men to enter the gospel pulpit. A few years ago the capitalists, the statesmen, the merchant prince and leading lawyer considered it an honor to sit in the aldermanic chairs of our great cities. Now, for the most part, these positions are despised by the intellectual and financial leaders and are filled with professional politicians and men who are weaklings and often dishonest. Once there was a time when the greatest honor that could come to a family was the honor of a son dedicating his life to the gospel ministry. Now the current of popular opinion is flowing counter to the line of noble service. Our strong young men, instead of entering the pulpit, are giving their lives to law, to merchandise, to railroads, to financial schemes. Who are to fill the future pulpits of America? "Give us men!" cries the theological professors. Their classes are growing smaller year by year. "Give us men!" cry the churches. "We cannot get the right kind of men for our pulpits." "Give us men!" cry the synodical missionaries. "The harvest is ripe, but the laborers are few." There is all nonsense for some of our religious leaders to declare that the average of our theological students are becoming less and less in number every year is because we are now getting quality instead of quantity. The reason our seminaries are becoming depleted is because the young men who are fitted to enter the ministry refuse to come. Men! Men! We want men! Men filled with the gospel power! Men of the sinful world.

The second reason for preaching this sermon is that I would appeal to those young men to enter the gospel ministry who are conscious in their heart the call and who have stifled it. I say, my young friend, weary of life. Young men, you have heard this call from the Christian ministry years ago, will you not hear the call now? Will you not be brave enough, noble enough, Christian enough to say that Christ bids you do? The church needs you. The world calls you. Then offer your life and consecrate it at the altar of Christian ministry.

Mr. Sydney Lee's Tribute.

Mr. Sydney Lee, author of that herculean work the Dictionary of National Biography, who is paying a visit to Toronto, said he had felt a great exaltation yesterday morning when by the gateway of a Canadian custom house he had first set foot on Canadian soil. "The Dictionary of Canada's proud historical record of the part the American appeared in its growth. In the United States he had felt himself among cousins, in Canada felt he was among brothers. Canada's contributions to literature and art are most remarkable, and in this connection he mentioned Miss Agnes Machar, Gilbert Parker, Archibald Lampman, whose work would always confer honor upon the country of its birth. Mr. J. Castell Hopkinson's "Life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier," and Mr. Pelham Edgar's Romance of Canadian History from Parkman's works.

TIMELY TOPICS

The circus didn't bring the rain, but there wasn't much of a hiatus.

How people did smile last night when the rain began to fall! It was just like ready money to thousands of people in this district.

Church congregations were small yesterday. People got so tired at the circus that they could not go to church the next day.

That pipe organ yarn in connection with the circus turned out to be a pipe story.

If the churches of this city had the money which was taken away by the circus they'd all be on Easy street.

The Stony Lonesome philosopher sees no interest in the animals that he missed seeing the dancing girls. He said he felt like demanding his money back.

Tough on the County Councillors, wasn't it? Just think what a lot of fun they'd have had if they'd met last week, instead of this!

Rumor says that the editor of the Hamilton Times is to be principal of the Institution for the Blind, at Brantford. If being blind to the faults of the Ross Government is any recommendation, Brother Gardiner is supereminently qualified.

Many people are pondering what it is he done with that bribe money which the judges impounded and took from Mr. Gamey. If they say he was not bribed, how can they keep that money? And if they keep that money, how can they justify their action except by finding that he was bribed.

Perhaps the most natural thing to do with the money would be to give it to Stratton, to help pay the whitewashing bills.

The latest investigation into an Ontario scandal indicates that a clerk can stand in with a Crown timber limit purchaser and make four thousand dollars on a transaction that brings the province in just $250. The business administration of the Ross Government at Toronto seems to be on a par with that of the Laurier Government at Ottawa, where a second-class militia clerk, having nothing to do with the militia, can manage, and get away with $70,000 before being discovered.

POPE'S HEALTH FAILS.

Weakness Marked, But Aged Pontiff Not Considered in Immediate Danger.

Rome, June 8.—The attention of the world has again been centred on the health of the Pope, and again one can say that he is not ill. This has been the case for years, as a real illness would certainly overthrow off on account of the weakness attendant on his old age. His has, however, been a gradual exhaustion which he most obstinately tries to conceal, as he does not wish people to think that he is ill, and insists, in the face of all opposition, upon continuing his daily round of duties as long as it is possible.

In his last audiences it was most painful to see him. He might almost be said not to have seen the people who were before him. When he is obliged to yield to exhaustion he sends word to the doctor not to come near him, so that the physician can truly say that he has not visited the Pontiff, and therefore he must be well.

There is no doubt, however, that these collapses are gradually each one leaves the Pope weaker than it found him, and the fear is being expressed that some day he may not be able to rally.

GOVERNMENT TO RESCUE.

Best Informed Politicians Think Steel Industry Will Be Aided.

Ottawa, June 8.—Mr. L. P. Brodeur's resolution calling for an immediate readjustment of the duties on iron and steel may not be dictated to-day as arranged. A strong deputation visited the capital and submitted their views to the Government, and to the leader of the Opposition. Those representations, it is understood, appealed to the Government, and the question of increasing the duties is still under the consideration of the Cabinet. The Cabinet influences favorable to an increase of duties are strong, but they have opposition. What the result will be admits of some doubt, but the best informed politicians stated last night that the Government has about decided not to the rescue of the steel industry.

IN MEMORY OF SIR JOHN.

Twelfth Anniversary of Conservative Chieftain's Death Commemorated.

Toronto, June 8.—Saturday, the 12th anniversary of the death of Sir John A. Macdonald was duly commemorated here by the decoration of his monument in Queen's Park, and the Conservative Club, the different ward associations and the Central Association of Toronto.

Speeches were delivered by Mr. F. D. Monk, M.P., leader of the Conservative party in Quebec; Mr. Walsh, M.P.P., Messrs. R. Geary, Hilliard Birmingham and C. C. Robinson.

Veterans Honor Their Dead.

In another portion of the park there was a second ceremony under the auspices of the Veterans' Protective Association. The veterans assembled and laid floral tributes on the monument to the memory of the 1866 and 1885. Speeches were made by well-known military men.

Ills That Come With Constipation

EMPHASIZE THE NECESSITY OF KEEPING THE KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS REGULAR AND ACTIVE BY USING

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Did you ever ask a person who has had appendicitis what was the cause of their ailment? He did your questions a process recovering from typhoid fever as to what brought on the disease?

If you have we venture to say that in each case you will find constipation to be at the beginning of the trouble.

And yet you neglect to keep the bowels regular. It may be you have not resorted to proper treatment. This is where we suggest the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is well known that bile is nature's cathartic, and hence it is necessary to keep the liver actively engaged in filtering the bile from the blood and pouring it into the intestines. When the bowels become constipated the kidneys and liver become overtaxed, and in this way appendicitis will afford lasting relief.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills not only regulate the bowels, but also strengthen and invigorate the action of the liver and kidneys so as to ensure a cleansing of the whole system. It is undeniably this direct and combined action of this great medicine on the filtering and excretory organs of the body that makes it so successful where other remedies fail.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively cure kidney disease, liver complaint, biliousness and constipation. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

For Stockmen.

Do not try to make a specialty of wool and mutton at the same time. The best mutton breeds are not the kind of sheep for producing the choice grades of wool. The size of the sheep does not affect the production of wool. The best fleeces come from the merino, which is the smallest breed of sheep now known.

If farmers were as careful and systematic in the management of their herds as the breeders of pure breeds are with their cattle much better results would be secured from ordinary stock. Even the best breed will fail when rightly managed and all classes of stock can be made more productive if extra care is given.

Some Dual-Purpose Facts.

The foundation objection to the dual-purpose idea for dairy purposes is that such cattle are not prepotent in the transmission of dairy capacity to their progeny. The instances of such cows as are so often cited to us as convincing proof of the soundness of the idea, are, in fact, no proof at all that it is a practicable thing to breed such cattle to a profitable average from the dairy standpoint.

Mr. Frank D. Ward of Batavia, N. Y., is writing some very instructive articles to the Tribune Farmer on "Types in Breeding." He cites the following extract from the issue of April 16 to show his experience in this matter. "I secure a cow that shall bring the largest profit both for milk and beef, and I breed true to such mixed purpose.

Mr. Ward says:

"But how does the general or dual-purpose animal compare with those bred for a special purpose, and which will return the greatest profit during their life on the farm? I well remember some animals I owned whose merit impressed me forcibly. One of them was a pure bred Shorthorn cow, Hope VI., which was born in 1884 and which was kept there until she was sold at about ten years of age. She was one of the most perfect types of a beef cow we ever owned, being a large cow, ten hundred pounds, low down and broad, with a back like a table, and at the same time she was a most extraordinary milker. Some idea of her merit as a beef cow may be gained from the fact that she won first prize as aged cow in the Shorthorn class at one of the largest fairs in the state, and at the same fair the next day she won sweepstakes prize as best dairy cow of any age or breed, in both instances having a large list of competitors. But Hope VI. never bred a calf that was even an ordinary milker and as to her dairy qualities, she was simply a "sport," without any power of reproducing the dairy qualities she possessed. In the spring of 1891 I bought two heifers which were typical specimens of dual-purpose cows; they were high grade Shorthorns, and were the choice from two good herds in Livingston county. I have owned a good many cows, and some good ones, but I never owned two cows that would give as many pounds of milk or butter in a year as they did. They were in my herd eleven years, but during that time I was able to breed only one heifer from either of those cows that was even up to the average as a milker, but that was one of the very best cows I ever owned, and she was sired by a pure Shorthorn bull.

"She was kept in my herd until she failed to breed at sixteen years old, but she never bred a calf that was of any value in the dairy. If I am asked to explain as to these cows, I must say they were other instances of "sports"—cows in which aberrant characteristics were developed but they had no power to transmit dairy characteristics to their offspring. It is true that, as individuals, they were good on those cows, and lots of it; but I suppose that in the years of their life them the three cows dropped about thirty-two calves, of which probably fifteen were heifers, and in my desire to secure more cows like the old ones I kept an ever-growing pig heifers which were a failure in the dairy, and were sold as second-class beef. Thus I lost on the dual-purpose cows. I bought on the phenomenal cows that bred them. After balancing my books and doing some hard thinking, I sold all the dual-purpose cows, and bought Jerseys for the dairy.

The true purpose of a dairy cow is twofold: (1) To produce milk to the best possible profit; (2) to contain within her the elements of procreation that shall perpetuate, and if possible, increase dairy quality in her daughter. The dairy sire must have within him the same and indeed more than the potency than the cow, or else he is a costly failure.

Dairy prepotency and beef prepotency are topics which contain two diametrically opposite directions. No man ever developed dairy qualities in the coming offspring by breeding to strong beef heredity, nor vice versa. Yet, there is not a so-called dual-purpose Shorthorn or Red Poll bull in existence which does not show clear and unmistakable beef heredity in both forms and pedigree. If he begets a good milker she is a sport, and in four cases out of five as a rule she will not be a profitable milkers. In turn produce profitable milkers. But even if the cow would breed towards dairy quality, I well stated, where will we go to find a dual-purpose sire who has sufficient dairy heredity in him to reinforce the desired tendency in the cow? Looked at either as a matter of breeding science or for profitable dairy results the breeding for dual-purpose is, we believe, a myth, which no well posted dairy farmer can afford to indulge in, for reasons that he can spend his money and time to much larger purpose and profit.

The Sugar Trade Journal says that at least four by-products can be extracted from sugar beet pulp—alcohol in fine quality; an important acid much in demand for use in the arts; the finest quality of glue, and an excellent grade of charcoal.

Strawberry rust is shown by spots on the leaves. It is not yet decided if it is a disease due to fungus. The remedy tried with the best success is to mow the vines and weeds as soon as the crop is picked and burn them. Mulch that may be applied late in the fall should be shaken up in spring and the mulch and bed burned over.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, De Hill, Que., writes: "For about 15 years I suffered with a severe pain in the chest. Nothing I tried relieved me until I got Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. About two years ago I took very severe cramps, and a violent sore on my lips, was bad with a cough, and my health was very bad indeed. I tried almost every kind of medicine, but got no relief. I was induced to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, and I am happy to say I have taken only a few boxes when I was entirely cured. I have also used many of your Liniments, and find them very beneficial. I am now in the best health I ever enjoyed, and I attribute it entirely to your medicines. I feel confident that if some time after they think they are cured it is by no means the best health restorer I know of, for my friends and myself, and I feel glad to recommend them."

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, adulterating oils so called, and sold by local oils. It is eminently pure and purely medicinal, possessing the soothing, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and relieving pain, whether being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

"The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constantly flagging energies are a serious tax upon the energies, and if there is not prompt relief, nervous prostration or worse, is sure to intervene. These energies are caused by impurities in the blood, and a course of Burdock Blood Bitters will surely restore the nerves from their irregularities, and the stomach regains its natural tone, the liver is aroused to healthful action, and the whole system realizes a new life. Burdock Blood Bitters will be found a most powerful and positive remedy, restoring the organs to healthful activity, building digestion, and reviving the flagging energies.

When one gets flogging and has to stop, he is whipped.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a well known old fashioned family remedy, cholera, summer complaint, and other bowel complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief and never fails in the worst attack of indigestion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts promptly with speedy relief and never fails to conquer the disease. No household should be without it. Only 35 cents a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Ours is a fine country against rain, for and selle by flood and field.

Sleeplessness—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to weakness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal foreboding, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a most welcome assistance to add to the distress. If only once subdued, these symptoms will vanish to the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will aid so beautifully that the body at last will wake refreshed and restored to health.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache, will disappear, if you take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They are good.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

They make one feel as though life were worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve pain, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

Doing good is the only certainly thought, while, and a blessing.

Nothing or nothing obstructs the pernicious habit of constipation from best to cold. Best rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are combined the habit is overcome and must be had. The most common cause of disease is constipation of perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Remove the cause, by the use of Best, and health and vigor to the system, give best

Curious Bits of News.

All princes are not drones. Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria recently performed his four-thousandth operation for cataract at his clinic in Munich. His wife acted as his assistant.

The English stockholders in Marconi's wireless telegraph company have invited Lord Kelvin to be present at this critical period of his experimentation now that they have had him insured for $750,000.

The sale of oleomargarine in the United States is increasing rapidly, and one of the causes of the growing sales is said to be the large amount of free advertising that it has received from the debates in Congress and the State legislatures and the newspapers, in consequence of the efforts made to suppress it.

A much-valued distinction has been conferred upon the proprietors of a large cigar factory at Havana. The firm have received an order from England to furnish the cigars for the royal banquet which is to be held after the coronation of King Edward. The order includes three sizes and amounts to several thousand cigars. A unique feature is that there is no stipulation whatever as to the price, this matter being left entirely to the judgment of the manufacturers.

Court etiquette and religious scruples have had an amusing tussle at The Hague. The trouble arose when the daughters of Dr. Kuyper, the Premier, were invited to the first court ball of the season. Low-necked dresses were commanded, but the Misses Kuyper decided that decollete dresses were inconsistent with their religious principles. They wrote a dispassionate, but received a curt reply from the minister of the ceremonies, who declared that time-honored customs of the Dutch court must be adhered to. Dr. Kuyper made direct representations on the subject to Queen Wilhelmina, with the result that a compromise was arranged. The Misses Kuyper will stay away from the ball, but will take tea with their sovereign in high-necked dresses the same afternoon.

The "Tailor and Cutter," which has been accustomed to describe Joseph Chamberlain as the pink of fashion, has this to say of the Colonial Secretary in a recent issue: "We are sorry to note that Mr. Chamberlain is developing quite a stoop, and fear he is losing some of his old-time smartness. It is true his monocle is still in its old place, but we miss the familiar orchid. And, as we have examined his garments, we could not but feel that consecration was sadly apparent, for there was much in them that was not up to date." Mr. Chamberlain's coat lapels, says the tailor, and cutter, are plain, heavy, and disfigured by a long, gaping breast pocket, like some ugly wound, calling for assistance. The washing vest of Mr. Chamberlain, the paper adds, was quite out of harmony with his coat, while his trousers were wide and unshapely.

The Millionaire and the Pie.

One time a millionaire found himself at nightfall in a small town that was ministered to by no railroad. And he had in his pocket a one-hundred-dollar bill and in his stomach a sense of hunger.

And he went to the only store in the town to buy food for himself. Now the keeper of the store was a man of much caution and narrow mind.

"I am as hungry as my stomach knows how to be," said the millionaire affably. "Sell me that veal pie."

As he spoke he laid down the hundred-dollar bill.

The cautious storekeeper picked it up and looked at it with doubt mingled with distrust and accompanied with dubiety. Then he said: "My veal pie is worth ten cents to me, but I never heard of such a bill as that. Give me one with another picture on it, for this will not worth a veal pie, I am sure."

And the millionaire said:

"My friend, it so happens that this evening finds me with no other picture money than this upon my person. The bill is surely worth a hundred of the ordinary, every-day kind. But that is neither here nor there."

But the storekeeper shook his head sourly.

"Nothing will recompense me for the veal pie but money that I can understand. There may be hundred-dollar bills, but I never saw one before. I know the worth of my veal pie, and if you have ten cents you can eat it, but not otherwise don't you can't."

"But I have not ten cents," said the millionaire; "so let us put it on another basis. Give me the veal pie out of charity, for my stomach is not used to being put off."

"How so on fe-villiar ground," said the storekeeper, as he sliced a piece of cheese and ate it; "I have seen beggars many times, and as I never saw one so well dressed as you are I doubt you. You cannot be a beggar. Your clothes betray you, and even if you were one I would not help you as I do not believe in encouraging mendicancy."

"You are difficult beyond a doubt," said the millionaire, raising his eyebrows and shaking his head. "I have it. Let me work for the veal pie. I am strong. Have you no boxes that need unpacking, no goods that need to be shelved?"

Said the storekeeper, looking at the clock: "It have never insulted the frame that the Lord gave me by calling in others to do that which I can do myself. My boxes are unpacked and my goods are shelved. If you have ten cents you can take the veal pie, but be quick, for it is the hour of closing."

Then the millionaire fell in his vest pockets and found a counterfeit dime which he had received in change the day before. And rendered desperate by his hunger he gave the storekeeper the dime and received in exchange the veal pie. For to the near-sighted storekeeper the coin looked good.

As for the millionaire, he ate the pie like a famished mariner. And the near-sighted storekeeper dropped the counterfeit into his till with contentment.—Charles Battell Loomis in "Saturday Evening Post."

Motor-Intoxication.

The crusaders against intoxicants should turn some of their energy against motorists, observes the Paris correspondent of "Truth." We are told by us that the motor-driving produces an intoxication that may be attended with greater loss of life than the combative violence of inebriates. M. Hachet Souplet, at the last meeting of the Societe Physiologie et de Psychologie, spoke of the intoxicating effect of rapid motor locomotion. The mental and moral state of the driver becomes abnormal. He grows combative, furiously aggressive, and lets himself be carried away by the angry impulse of the moment. The high rate of speed works him up into the same nervous state of mind that makes the habitual drinker of alcohol regardless of consequences. Both cause, sweat, and use up lung-power. In both alcohol has much in the motorist whose pace is checked as in the drunkard in a combative mood. M. Hachet Souplet compiled a number of instances from police reports of trials of automobilists in which self-control and the sense of dignity entirely asserted gentlemen of high education and breeding. Dr. Berillon, an eminent man, corroborated everything M. Hachet Souplet had said. He called attention to the condition of motorists when arrested for excessive speed. In communications received from police commissioners, they were uniformly spoken of as forgetful of all the restraints their social station required, and in a state of dementia. According to Dr. Berillon, they become mad under the effect of the onward rush of the motor-car as the dancing dervishes or the Arabs in a fantasia. A human life appears of no account to a motorist going at high speed, to the dervish moved by a dance, or to the Arab in the intoxication of a fantasia. Dr. Berillon knew a motorist who ran over a peasant and rushed on after he did so as furiously as before. He returned home in the state of depression that follows a long rush forward at the pace of an express train, and never gave a thought to his victim on the road until he read three days after how he had killed him. He then felt very sorry, declared himself guilty of the death of the peasant, and settled an annuity on his family. Dr. Berillon also thinks that the only cure for the manufacturers of motors jointly responsible for the boon now given free taken by purchasers of their cars. Machinery would then be so contrived as to render a high rate of speed impossible.

More Intelligent Anticipation.

According to the "Academy," a Scotch newspaper contains the following: "One is inclined to think that the Persian astronomer-poet Omar Khayyam had been a diligent student of Shakespeare and Burns if not, then the literary coincidences are somewhat remarkable." The writer goes on to observe that Omar should be styled the "Persian Burns."

This fresh field in the domain of the News Criticism, from which we can gather a sample, clearly promises a rich harvest, thinks "Punch." Thus:

There can be little doubt that Milton was a keen student of Marie Corelli. His picture of "Satan the Hero" is only too obviously a feeble imitation of the greater writer's chief character in her novel "The Sorrows of Satan." Shakespeare, too, in Portia's speech, refers to the "quality of temporal power." It is not difficult to guess what suggested the phrase: "Did Homer read Phillips?" This question has been agitating the literary public for some time, and interest in the subject has been revived by the article in one of the reviews, in which the writer discovers a striking parallel resemblance between the story of Phillips' "Ulysses" and that of Homer's less memorable hero. And yet the Greek made no acknowledgment whatever of his indebtedness!

Scott, owed much to Crockett. A great part of "Rob Roy," "Old Mortality," and other novels is strangely reminiscent of the master's work, and some passages seem to have been "lifted" almost entire from the pages of the Wizard of Penicuik.

One of Burns' chief claims to fame is that he wrote "Auld Lang Syne," and yet it seems never to have been pointed out that the refrain of "Auld Lang Syne"—Days of Auld Lang Syne"—is not really his but the glorious Ian Maclaren's. Honor to whom honor is due!

It would be impossible to mention every writer who owes something to Cain. Signs of indebtedness are everywhere. Julius Cæsar openly bore acknowledged Cain's graphic description, and how often has the mighty Manxman's fine phrase, "Throw down the gauntlet," been joined by petty literary thieves! Wolfe, who wrote "The Burial of Sir John Moore," has a line, "We left him alone with his glory." Where could he have derived this idea but from the great scenes in which Storm is left in exactly the same way, "alone with the Glory"? But why go on? Instances of plagiarism such as these could be multiplied indefinitely.

An Aged Scholar.

A peasant woman named Madame Hugot, in the Dix Okonneaux of the Somme Department, has just put herself to school with seven of her grandchildren. Being her illiteracy, the old dame at last summoned courage some months ago to ask the village schoolmaster if he would teach her to read. "There is not a moment to lose," said the worthy father, with tender humor; "we'll begin this evening." And, producing the alphabet, he there and then administered to his aged pupil the first lesson in the mysteries of A, B, C. But Mother Hugot was an apt scholar. By infinite docility and diligence she was able to spell a little at the end of several weeks, could read in a few months, and can now indite a little letter as well as most of her class.

ON BEHALF OF THE COLORED METHODISTS.

REV. MR. HACKETT TELLS OF THE NEEDS OF HIS PEOPLE.

Rev. Mr. Hackett, representing the African Methodist Church in Canada, is in the city. Yesterday he attended Bridge Street Church and assisted in the services. In the evening he gave a short address, outlining the work which is being done amongst the colored people in this country. The churches are progressing as many are out of debt. He made an earnest appeal for assistance in carrying on the work amongst his people, who, he said, were loyal British subjects and proud to be able to live under the protection of the Union Jack.

RINGLING BROS'. CIRCUS DREW LARGE CROWDS.

PERFORMANCE GAVE GENERAL SATISFACTION—EVERYTHING ORDERLY, NEAT AND CLEAN.

Ringling Bros' circus had a record attendance on Saturday afternoon. The attendance at night, while not so large, was still big enough to be satisfactory to the management. The performance given was on the whole better than that of two years ago. Lighters was the same order, decorum, neatness and cleanliness about everything. The only new feature was the Cossacks and the Crusades, which was a splendid spectacle. The performers all appeared everybody the act being a really wonderful one. The show was plentiful and some of them were dummy, while the wonderful work was quite up to the average. The show of animals was a splendid feature of the circus. By common consent, the city contained the largest circus crowd on Saturday which has ever been known. The streets and hotels did a tremendous business, though other stores appears say the trade was only normal.

TOO GREAT A RISK.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Church Chimes Of Yesterday.

NOTES OF SERVICES IN BELLEVILLE'S DIFFERENT PLACES OF WORSHIP.

Bridge St. Church.

The Pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers, was absent yesterday, attending Conference at Oshawa. Rev. Wm. Limbert, of Greenbank, occupied the pulpit, and his discourses were much appreciated. In the evening his text was taken from Proverbs, 3rd chapter and 17th verse:

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace."

During the service Mr. F. J. Sprott, of Albert College, sang a solo, entitled, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," in an impressive way.

Christ Church.

Holy Communion was celebrated at the morning service, there being a large number of communicants. Rev. Prof. Howard was the preacher at both services. In the evening his subject was "Rejoicing in Hope." The text was from Romans, 12th chapter and 12th verse:

"Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer."

In the evening Miss Mabel Vermilyea sang, with fine effect, a Solomon, entitled, "God's Slumberland."

Emmanuel M. E. Church.

Yesterday was Trinity Sunday, and at the above church yesterday morning the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Gilliland, preached a sermon in relation to the day, his text being:

"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all."

Preparations are being made for the visit of Bishop Hoffman, who is to come on the 21st inst., this being his first visit to this city.

John Street.

"Peter Following After Off" was the subject discussed by Rev. Mr. Drumm at the John Street Church last evening. The text was from St. Luke, 22nd chapter, 54th verse:

"Then took they Him and led Him and brought Him into the High Priest's house. And Peter followed afar off."

During the service Miss Mayel Stork sang a solo, which was much appreciated.

St. Andrew's Church.

The Pastor, Rev. Mr. W. Maclean, preached at both services yesterday, his sermons being of a high literature. In the evening his subject was based on the words found in St. Luke, 7th chapter and 21st verse. In the evening the choir sang, an anthem, "Saviour, When Night Involves the Skies," the solo being taken by Mr. W. J. Reid. At the morning service Mr. Jessop, of Montreal, assisted the choir.

Bethel Hall.

There was a good attendance at the above place last night to listen to the first of a series of Sunday evening addresses on Man's Intermediate State. Scripture was brought forward, showing clearly that it is a conscious state of existence for believers, as to hades was given, showing it to be the abode for all of our sins departments, with a great gulf between them, separating tried and true from that now the saved go to be with Christ, while the lost still go down to hades, and from there to be taken through Christ's work on the cross was set forth.

Other Churches.

At the Tabernacle yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Ferguson preached, and in the evening Rev. Mr. Symington.

Rev. Mr. Tomblin occupied the pulpit at Bridge St. Church yesterday morning, his discourse being comforting and helpful.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

The June session of the County Council will commence here to-morrow.

On Saturday the police made five arrests, three for drunkenness.

The License Inspector on Saturday visited places making the rounds, caught some places doing business after hours.

Three young men who were arrested on Saturday, charged with keenness, were allowed their liberty yesterday.

Mr. J. D. A. Tripp, Canada's leading pianist, is to give a Recital on Friday evening next, in a magnificent performance that will be a most artistic event. Tickets at Riggs'.

County Court and General Sessions will open to-morrow before Judge Lazier. Only one criminal list is upon the docket, in charge of theft.

On Saturday evening the police answered two calls to quell fights which were reported. No arrests were made.

A little boy, four years old, strayed away from his home on Pinnacle street on Saturday morning, and his relatives, after scouring the city, found him asleep alongside of big wagon at the circus grounds, tired but and on the verge of starvation.

Janice Britton arrived in the city this afternoon and will bear evidence in the case of the Deseronto Iron Company vs. the Belleville Conveyor and the Standard Chemical Company by Recorder.

A Bright Child Gone.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. L. W. Yeomans received a telegram informing her of the death of Marion Sawyer, eldest daughter of Mr. W. H. Holden, of Detroit. Much sympathy will be felt here for Mr. Holden and for Mrs. Holden, who is Mrs. Yeomans' sister. Marion was a particularly intelligent child, and her untimely death and her death is the cause of much grief to her many Belleville friends. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Yeomans, Bridge St., on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

MR. JOHN BELL, K.C.

WHAT A TORONTO PAPER HAS TO SAY OF A PROMINENT CITIZEN OF BELLEVILLE.

The Toronto Globe of Saturday contained an excellent bust of Mr. John Bell, K.C., with the following biographical sketch:

"Sons of thousands of the people of Ontario would recognize this strong, aigent grip, fast in the gallery of notable men of Canada, given Tuesday as same attached. Fifty years ago, in 1853, the first prospectus of the Grand Trunk Railway was issued. The document announced that the solicitors in Canada of the proposed railway were, G. R. Cartier, Montreal, and John Bell, Esq., Belleville. Sir George Cartier has long been numbered to his rest, but John Bell is to-day as he has been for fifty years, solicitor of the Grand Trunk in Canada. There is probably no other record on Canadian law to be matched. Mr. Bell is of the 79th year. He was born near Perth, the son of a farmer, and was educated at Victoria College. He entered into partnership with the Hon. John Ross, one of the promoters of the G.T.R., and thus his fifty years was gleaned. Among the many eminent lawyers who were students in Mr. Bell's office were the late Judge Rose and Judge MacMahon. One word interprets Mr. Bell's success: Thoroughness."

Sports and astimes

Peterboro Review: There is no doubt but that the Belleville team which plays here a week from Wednesday is a strong English and will undoubtedly give the local team a warm argument and the homesters should make every effort to be in the best shape possible.

Lacrosse results on Saturday:

Toronto 4, Shamrocks 0.
Montreal 8, Nationals 6.
Ottawa 4, Port Hope 0.
Brantford 5, Tecumseths 3.

Athletics of St. Catharines 6, Niagara Falls 0.

The Toronto Baseball Club seems to have struck the toboggan for fair. They have been beaten three straight by one of the fall-enders, and unless they take a brace, must soon drop into the second division.

Fittsburg has made a record this season, having played against all opponents in the last four games played.

There must have been deep gloom in Port Hope after their get lacrosse team was white-washed by the bated Oshawans. The O.L.A. senior class seems a little too swift for Port Hope.

Peterboro has a very healthy respect for Belleville's lacrosse team, and will put a strong bunch on the field a week from Wednesday. The home club must practise hard and take no chances.

The Considerate Dog.

A yellow dog who had bayed the moon ever since sunset was finally awakened from his repose at about 3 o'clock in the morning.

"See here, friend," said the mastiff, "will you be so good as to explain why it is you can't enjoy yourself without barking all night at the moon?"

"Well, it's this way," explained the yellow dog. "You see, I am afflicted with insomnia, and it takes an acute form which makes me feel obliged to bark at something; so I, being a common dog, bark at the moon, knowing that it cannot be disturbed, and it is not annoyed in the least, and I am relieved of insomnia."

"So you are actuated purely by considerations for others and a sincere desire to spare anyone annoyance?"

"Exactly," said the yellow dog wagged his tail proudly.

"But did it never occur to you to consider your neighbors?" demanded the mastiff.

The yellow dog was overwhelmed with confusion. He listened for a moment to the hitherto unnoticed profanity and tearing of hair that were going on all over the neighborhood. Then he tucked his tail beneath him and slunk under the house.

Moral: Begin barking at an enemy be sure you have no friends within range.

McINTOSH BROS.

Music in the Dark.

Musical Germany has recently been discussing in all seriousness the question whether it is true that a peculiar stress effect is produced upon music-lovers, at public concerts by flendless, tantry, the total delightful accessories, as seen in a blaze of artificial light, reflected by crystal, gold and glittering diamonds? Germany is not a country, as yet, that in future lights can be turned down; in fact, some of the lights there its have already put them out and left the audience in darkness.

One leading critic suggested to a concert reformer in Darmstadt, who took to reading and dancing sometimes a chapter in William Meister," in which an excellent theory of music is described: "He could not live without music, more especially singing, and he paid a good deal to it, without seeing the singers." This quaint individual used to say that music is really intended for the ear only, whereas in concert halls it is the minister seizing to the eye, to accompany movements, not sensations. The gentleman from Darmstadt thereupon concluded that the first step in the way of rational reform would be to lower the lights and shut his eyes to the consequences, and as many people followed the idea, it has already been realized, first in Darmstadt, and then in Frankfort-on-the-Main. Experiments are about to be conducted elsewhere.

A man goes to a concert to hear music. But when he gets there he sees a fine fellow in a white tie, hears a fellow's attention is distracted. The pillars, the lights, the fasters, all these thoughts away from the strains meant to soothe or incite. That is not as it should be, and yet it is not by any means the worst. He looks around at the audience, of whom coins to be looked at. He sees the luxuriant tresses or an old dame before him, and how can he cannot catch a glimpse of her neighbor's dress, or get a guess at the features. His neighbor, a rich tradesman, is engaged in estimating the value of the riviera of diamonds round her shapely neck. A third worshiper of Terpsichore, after hinsinging the most sweetest thing in hats, and must be content with hearing, since he can't see anything because of the beautiful obstruction. Now, all these things were brought to the concert for the purpose of being seen, whereas people come to primarily to hear. Suddenly a burst of applause reminds them of this fact—that of the other, that they have not been listening to the sonata.

Kissing the Baby.

There are many mothers who give themselves infinite trouble about the big and obvious things connected with nursery management—who strive bravely to be up to date in the matter of plumbing, ventilation, and infectious diseases—who yet fail woefully when it comes to certain details. One of the most important of these is the disgusting and dangerous habit of allowing every comer to kiss and maul the baby, says the "Youth's Companion."

There is, no doubt, is a delightful object and almost irresistible, but that is no reason why indulgence should be taken of his helpless condition to offer him countless opportunities.

Here is a speech a well-meaning friend of a young mother made to the father of her child on his return from business: "Mrs. Smith called to-day, and she has a fearful cold and sore throat. She thought the baby was just too sweet for anything, and wanted to let him out or her arms. He took to her wonderfully, too." Naturally the baby developed a bad case of the snuffles in a day or two, and then it was: "The baby has a dreadful cold. We cannot think where he got it, we are always so careful."

This mother and the hundreds like her should be taught the lesson this promiscuous kissing is a bad and vulgar habit, productive of much danger to adults as well as children. Adults can protect themselves if they like, but infants cannot, and so it is the duty of the mothers to protect them.

Even if they mercifully escape actual infection in babyhood; there still remains the fact that a baby with a clean habit is formed, resulting in schools full of kissing children, and by and by in ridiculous communities of kissing accquaintances. We may learn a useful lesson from the Japanese in this regard. They are not a kissing race, and the little children do not know what it means, except perhaps from their mothers. It is generally acknowledged that the Japanese babies are the healthiest and happiest of youngsters. Can we not shall say how much wholesome restraint from the kissing habit would have to do with the unfortunate state of affairs?

To make too much of children is to spoil them, but in one respect they should be treated like royalty—if they must be kissed it should be only the back of the hand.

For the Stockman

The value of shelter and comfort for cattle is demonstrated in an experiment made by the Arizona station. A herd of milch cows was exposed for three days to a cold rain at the end of which time the flow of milk had decreased just one half, notwithstanding that the cattle were properly fed. It was a month before the cows gave as much milk as before the exposure.

Most of the sickness of horses is caused by poor food, by overfeeding or watering. The utmost regularity should be exercised in giving horses their several meals. Only the sweet, sound oats, corn or hay should be given them. Wheat bran two or three times a week or every day is excellent for them. Water them four or five times a day. A change in ration is always helpful and vegetables will add materially in keeping in condition.

In "The Experiment Station Record," United States Department of Agriculture, A. C. True, director, an abstract is published of Prof. Henry, Shaw's report of three experiments in fattening lambs for market made at the Minnesota experiment station. In the first experiment the relative merits of feeding range lambs and range wethers were tested with seventy-five, 100 head; good, steady; common, slow and twenty wethers and four lots containing thirty lambs each. The wethers (lot No. 1) were Merino grades. The lambs in lots Nos. 2 and 3 were respectively Cotswold, Oxford, Down and Shropshire grades. Those in lot No. 5 were essentially of Merino blood. The test began on October 31 and covered eighteen weeks, being divided into five periods, the last covering the fattening period of the last four weeks each. Uncut hay, cut sorghum fed different mixtures of corn, ground corn and oil cake were fed. Considering the test as a whole, the wethers consumed two pounds of grain and 1.5 pounds of coarse fodder per head a day, and the lambs on an average 1.5 pounds of grain and 1 pound of coarse fodder. At the beginning of the trial the wethers weighed on an average 103.8 pounds and the lambs 66.4 pounds. The average daily gain of the wethers was .29 pound, and of the lambs .23 pound, in the latter case the amounts ranging from .2 with lot No. 5 to .24 with lots 2, 3 and 4. In the case of the wethers the cost of a pound of grain was 4.09 cents, and in the case of the lambs the amount varied from 3.6 cents with Oxford grades to 4.07 with the Merino grades, averaging 3.81 cents. The average profit per lamb was 26 cents and per wether 2 cents. The fact is pointed out that though the wethers consumed 40 per cent. more feed than the lambs, their increase in weight was but 24 per cent greater. According to the author, while the difference in relative adaptability for fattening of the lambs of the different lots "was not very great, it was the best as will be seen that of the Merino grades."

The second test the value of a ration of corn and bran with and without oil cake was tested with sixteen Dorset lambs, divided into two lots. One the lambs in the two lots weighing respectively 60 pounds and 88 pounds each. The test covered three periods of four weeks each. The ration fed in test lot No. 1 was fed bran and corn in proportion of seven parts of No. 2 bran, corn and oats, both lots receiving clover hay in addition. The average amount of grain eaten a head daily by all the lambs in both lots was 1.5 pounds, and the hay .8 pound. The average daily gain a head of all the lambs in both lots and corn was .1, and of those fed oats in addition .2 pounds, the cost of a pound of gain in the two cases being 5.62 and 5.63 cents. At the close of the test the lambs were sold, those receiving oil cake and corn in the two lots being $7.85 and $7.97 respectively. As pointed out by the author, the lambs fed oats in addition to corn and bran gained 36 per cent. more in weight during the same time as others, although they consumed practically the same amount of feed. The therefore drawn that "with prices in reasonable balance, bran, corn and oats may make a more satisfactory ration for lambs that are being fattened than bran, corn and hay."

Sixteen Dorset grade lambs, divided into two equal lots, were used in a third test, which was undertaken to study the comparative economy of well balanced and badly-balanced rations. The test was divided into three periods of four weeks each. The grain ration of lot No. 1 consisted of unground corn and bran, and that of lot No. 2 of unground corn, oats and barley and bran, the proportion in each case varying in the different periods. Both lots were fed corn fodder, and in addition lot No. 2 was fed sliced mangel wurzels and carrots on alternate days. At the beginning of the trial the average weight of the lambs in the two lots was 93 and 91 pounds, respectively. The average daily gain of the lambs in lot No. 2 was 14.8 pounds, and of those in lot No. 1 (fed the best balanced ration) 20.5 pounds, the cost of a pound of gain being 5.7 cents and 5.62 cents respectively. On an average the lambs in lot No. 2 ate 1.9 pounds of grain and 1.8 pounds of corn fodder per head a day, while those in lot No. 2 ate 2.1 pounds of grain, 1.7 pounds of corn fodder and 4.9 pounds of roots. Shortly after the test the lambs were fattened and sold, notwithstanding its greater cost, may be more economical when fattening lambs than a diet more restricted as to the grain factors composing it, in spite of the greater relative cheapness of the latter.

"In this experiment the ration composed of corn, corn oats and barley, field roots and corn fodder was more satisfactory than one composed of bran, corn and corn fodder only."

UNAPPRECIATED FAVOR.

Woggles Don't Know Exactly What Gold Cure Claims to Be.

"Say, Toggles," said Mr. Woggles, "Jorgles tells me you're going to run down to the city tomorrow. Will you have time to drop into Wheels & Fluxions and get that bicycle for me? If it there to be fixed the last time I was down."

"Sure, old man," agreed Mr. Toggles cheerfully.

"Well, here's the money to pay for it, and I'll be everlastingly obliged," said Mr. Woggles.

"Oh, that's all right; glad accommodate," responded Mr. Toggles.

"Say, Toggles," asked Mr. Woggles, a couple of weeks later, "haven't you got my watch down in the city for me?"

"Sure, old man," replied Mr. Toggles.

"Well, where is it?" asked Mr. Woggles.

"Why, the fact is," explained Mr. Toggles, elaborately, "I ran into a pretty sad game down there, went broke, and had to pawn it."

"My watch!" gasped Mr. Woggles.

"Sure," certified Mr. Toggles. "But it was for only $15, and I'll send the ticket around to you in the morning."

"But it was my watch," insisted Mr. Woggles, pathetically.

"Of course," assented Mr. Toggles. "Say, you didn't suppose I'd pawn mine with yours in my pocket, did you?"

"But how about the fifteen dollars?" queried Mr. Woggles, with a puzzled frown. "Why should I pay that?"

"Why, you don't mean to say you'd sacrifice a hundred and fifty dollar watch for fifteen dollars?" asked Mr. Toggles, lifting his eyebrows in surprise.

"I mean it seems to me you ought to 'fly that,'" asserted Mr. Woggles, with a perplexed hesitancy.

"Why should I?" demanded Mr. Toggles. "It's your watch, isn't it?"

"Yes," acknowledged Mr. Woggles, doubtfully. "Yes—I suppose it is but—er—oh, confound you!"

"Now, Woggles, listen," said Mr. Toggles, decisively, "you claimed you'd be obliged if I'd get your darned old watch for you, and I went to a lot of trouble to do it, but if I'd known you were going to lose your temper and kick up all this fuss about it I'd never have consented to accommodate you for the world. The next time you get a favor done you go to somebody else, and Mr. Woggles walked off with a highly indignant swing.

Mr. Woggles has hired a lawyer to find out exactly what obligation he is under.

The Lawyer Gave Her Up.

It is not an easy matter for the lawyer who an overcome a woman's reluctance to give up. There is no record of his failures in that line of effort.

"And what is your age, madam?" was the attorney's question.

"My own," she answered promptly, "and nobody else's, madam, but how old are you?"

"I am not old, sir," with indignation.

"I beg your pardon, madam. I mean how many years have you passed?"

"Those the years have passed matter. How many of them have passed you?"

"Well, I never heard of them stopping.

"Madam, you must answer my question. I want to know your age."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side."

"I don't see why you stut upon refusing to answer my question," said the attorney coaxingly. "I can't see what it is you are afraid of. I was asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for everybody knows you are old enough to know better than to ask any woman her age, so there."

And the lawyer passed on to the next question.—From an Exchange.

PENNY SAVINGS BANKS BILL

Hon. Mr. Fielding Introduces a Measure to Encourage Thrift.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick Explains the Provisions of the Printing Bureau Bill as Outside Job Printing—No Word of Corruption in Britton's Commission—Surprising Document That Refers to Investigation of Treadgold Concessions.

Ottawa, June 9.—Yesterday Hon. W. S. Fielding introduced in the House his bill to authorize the establishment of penny savings banks. Mr. Fielding explained that the object of the institution was the cultivation of thrift in small matters and the encouragement of the habit of saving among a class not reached by the Government savings banks. A year ago, a Toronto gentleman applied to the Government for power to establish a penny savings bank in that city. It was thought better to pass a general act, which would cover all cases of a similar character throughout the country.

There is to be a statute, under which, by letters patent, penny savings banks may be established. They will not be money-making establishments, nor profit-sharing establishments, but rather collecting agencies for the Government savings banks. They are to hold a small sum, say five per cent. of deposits, but the balance must be paid into the Government savings banks, and only withdrawn to pay depositors.

While the banks are required to have no capital, they must have a guarantee fund of $10,000, as a guarantee of good faith, as they will be chiefly dependent for connection with benevolent and charitable institutions. The Government will allow the banks one-half of one per cent. above the ordinary rate of interest allowed to depositors in the Government savings banks. This, it is expected, will pay for the management. The deposits of the bank may not be withdrawn till they are deposited in the Government savings banks. The maximum limit of a deposit will be $300. The management would be allowed to invest the guarantee fund, but could not invest deposits in any shape or form.

Printing Bureau Bill.

Hon. Charles A. Fitzpatrick explained in Committee of the House, the bill amending the act respecting the Department of Public Printing and Stationery. One of the clauses in the act provides that printing and stationery for the Intercolonial Railway may be done outside of the Printing Bureau, providing the cost does not exceed the usual rates. This clause has been in force since 1893, but the Auditor-General not long ago found that the certificate for outside printing did not satisfy the statute. The Justice Department upheld him, and the present amendment overcomes the difficulty by providing that outside work shall be done at customary and fair commercial rates for similar works or supplies in similar quantities.

Another clause empowers the superintendent of printing to employ apprentices, journeymen workmen, assistants or others, "with the approval of the Minister."

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that higher wages prevailed in the printing business than in Toronto or Montreal. Employes in the Bureau were also particularly fortunate in the matter of holidays.

The bill was reported without amendment.

New an Open Offer.

Replying to Mr. E. F. Clarke, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that there never had been any obligation on the part of the Government to employ more than only the Printing Bureau. It was now an open office. The Government, consisting of Ottawa, composed of about 80 per cent. of printing, contemplated granting a new increased scale of wages, to come into operation on June 1, without combination or conference. The scale was declared to be binding on all contractors. The Government declined to adopt the new scale.

The Yukon Waters Commission.

The scope of the commission under which Judge Britton is to investigate the Treadgold concessions, referred in a report submitted to the House, by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is a surprising document, since there is no hint of fraud or corruption in connection with the concessions, nor is the commission empowered to enquire into this phase of the question.

The commission is asked to take evidence as to the relation of water power in the Yukon to the carrying on of placer mining. Inquiry is to be made into the powers and privileges conferred upon Treadgold, Wing and Barwick, which are said to constitute a monopoly.

If it be declared important that information be obtained, showing to what extent that concession is likely to be beneficial or injurious to the mining interests of the Yukon. Similar hydraulic concessions are also to be investigated.

The report does not mention the names of the commissioners.

Yankee Fishing Rights.

Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick introduced a bill placing the Good Shepherd Reformatory in St. John, N. B., on the same footing as the Mercer Reformatory in Ontario.

Mr. Bell of Pictou told of a recent case of illegal fishing within the three-mile limit by Yankee fishermen in Guysboro Bay, while Government protection cruisers lay in the harbor. The Americans not only caught fish illegally, but destroyed the nets of Canadian fishermen.

Mr. Prefontaine said he had no official knowledge of these circumstances.

Government Is Responsible.

Hon. A. G. Blair gave official notice of the guarantee of bonds, amounting to $2,000,000, to the Canadian Northern Railway. The Government made Bills for the principal and interest to the extent of the guarantee.

Another Bank Boyd's Boss.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replying to Mr. Johnston of Cardwell said he did not know if the $27 or relative of Chief Justice Boyd is the employ of the Bank of Ottawa.

To Stamp Out Disease.

Hon. Mr. Fisher's bill respecting infectious and contagious diseases affecting animals provoked a long discussion. The bill provides for strengthen the old act, in excluding disease from foreign countries, and improving the law for dealing with out disease among domestic herds. Mr. Fisher's bill provides for a compensation of one-third the value of the effected animals slaughtered, the amount in no case to exceed $20. Messrs. Cargill, Gilmour, McIntyre, Bell, Pictou, Sanderson, Bell, Lochrane, Pope, and the leader of the Opposition took part in the debate.

FELL OUT OF THE CANOE.

Charles F. Yellowe of Ottawa Drowned in McGregor's Lake.

Ottawa, June 9.—Charles F. Yallowe of Ottawa, a civil engineer, was accidentally drowned while canoeing in company with two companions on McGregor's Lake, about eight miles from Hull, Sunday evening about 7:30. The others, Frederick Beaubien and Alex. Rogers of Ottawa and Mr. Brouseau of Pembroke Mills, went out on a fishing trip. The young men had been provided and discovered an old canoe in which they were paddling about when Yallowe fell overboard and capsized the craft. Valleau started for the shore, but when about 100 feet out of it screamed and sank. The body has not been recovered.

A Double Drowning.

Port Arthur, June 9.—A double drowning is reported from Whitefish River, about thirty miles east of Grand Marais. Two men, James Tinkerton and M. Anderson, had an altercation in a boat while under the influence of liquor, and fell into the water. Tinkerton's body was located in 20 feet of water.

Two Drowned.

Severn Bridge, June 9.—A twelve-year-old boy was drowned and the drowned while fooling on a log, and Ken. Jackson, aged 19, was drowned cramps while bathing, also met death. Neither body has been recovered.

Found Drowned.

Thorold, June 9. — The body of Matthew McKenzie, an old resident of Thorold, was found in the old canal bed at Allanburg. It is supposed that he fell in last Saturday night on his way home from town.

Death Followed Kicks.

Collingwood, June 9.—William Hayden died at the 3, and St. Hospital Sunday from the result of injuries received in what appears to have been a drunken brawl. About midnight on May 31, Hayden and his partner, Cook, were passing the Dominion Hotel, when they noticed that they attempted to get through the window, and in doing so got in to a quarrel with two drunken men, who knocked Hayden down and kicked him over the heart and fractured the fourth rib on the left side.

Coroner Stephen will open an inquest into the case on Tuesday next, when several witnesses will be examined, and the inquest was adjourned until Monday evening next.

Civil Servant Suicides.

Ottawa, June 9.—Joseph Charette, an employe of the Public Works Department, shot himself dead in the Marchand Hotel, Hull, at 11 o'clock last night. Charette had threatened to shoot himself several times and at last tempted to borrow a pistol. Last night he secured a revolver and, entering his room and locking the door, he fired two shots. One bullet lodged in his heart and the other in his left breast. Charette came from Montreal and has no relatives known to his friends in Ottawa.

LAST DAYS OF THE SESSION

Leaders Seem to Think Legislature Can Finish Saturday.

Legislators Clearing the Decks For Final Debate on the Ganong Bribery Case Report—Mr. Joseph Downey Following Up Certain Clauses of Loan Companies Bill—Big Profits Made Out of People's Failure to Borrow.

Toronto, June 9.—At yesterday's session of the Legislature, the Premier asked the pleasure of the House regarding morning session, and the leader of the Opposition expressed a strong dislike to morning sessions. The order paper was short and there was no need for a morning session; he thought business could be wound up this week if a session were held on Saturday. Mr. Whitney renewed his request that the evidence in the Ganong investigation be printed.

Mr. Ross said the expense was small and did not think it would be necessary unless the House was going to sit for some time.

That Lorne Park Wharf.

Before the orders of the day were called Mr. Downey called attention to the statement in the Toronto World of Saturday, by which Ontario day school picknickers were precipitated into the water. He wanted to know if the statement was true, if provision in the statutes for the inspection of wharves in order to prevent such an occurrence in the future.

Mr. Ross replied that the inspection of wharves came under the purview of the Dominion Government.

Mr. Downey then moved for leave for a return of copies of contracts or correspondence with loan companies doing business in the province, under which weekly or monthly collections are made on the plan of deposits.

After Certain Companies.

Mr. Downey said that many of the latenees of the session would preclude any legislation in respect to companies doing business on the accumulating plan. Those companies, he said, should be under the same restrictions as the companies to which reference was made in the House the other day.

Dr. Neshitt attacked the methods of the Canada Permanent, as the Attorney-General replied that these companies were doing business on principles laid down half a century ago.

Mr. Foy said many persons were induced to deposit moneys with companies on the belief that they were depositing their savings, whereas they were paying on shares.

Big Profits Made.

Mr. Downey said one company had profits of $75,000 of money borrowed by depositors who were unable to continue their obligations. He asked the Attorney-General to apply some remedy at once. Was there anything that the Attorney-General's bill to prevent loan companies from taking money on subscription for shares.

A number of bills were given their third readings and private bills were reported from committee.

Mr. Harcourt introduced his bill to set aside vold lands in New Ontario for the benefit of the university.

Fight Concession Witnesses.

Col. Matheson moved the following resolution:

That the grant of timber limits on islands in the Georgian Bay to Messrs. Cane Bros., and of timber limits in the Township of Caprcol to Messrs. Chew Bros., and all matters in any way connected with the said limits and the consideration given therefor be referred to the Committee on Public Accounts for investigation, and that Messrs. Thomas Chew, George Chew, Manly Chew and Edwin Leatherby or Edward Leatherby of Midland be summoned to appear before the said Committee on Wednesday, next, at 10 a.m. with all books and papers relating to the said limits, including the books of the former firm of Chew Bros., relating to the limits in the Township of Caprcol.

The Premier objected under the rule, but consented to Mr. Matheson's motion coming up to-day.

The committee on Home Bank the damage due Markham from the town of Aurora for getting away the Markham Bank, and many local matters.

The Government will investigate a charge that a discharged employe of one of the lumber camps in Parry Sound has been selling fire in timber limits in the neighborhood of Algonquin Park.

Hotel Kings in Toronto.

Toronto, June 9.—The men who manage the great hotels all over the United States and Canada met in the Toronto yesterday. The twenty-fourth annual convention of the International Mutual Benefit Association opened yesterday morning, and, after a business session of a couple of hours, adjourned so that the members could enjoy the remainder of their stay in Toronto sightseeing. There are several hundred members present altogether, and many of them have brought their wives and families with them.

Suing For Divorce.

Cloyeland, June 9.—After eight years of married life together, Mrs. Gloria Marie Calcutt of this city has commenced divorce proceedings against her husband, James Fletcher Calcutt of Toronto Canada. The grounds stated in the action are gross neglect of duty and failure to provide.

CHAMPERLAIN MAY RESIGN

Political Situation Is Very Tense and Rumors Are Many.

Colonial Secretary's Letter to Workingmen Commits Him to His Propaganda Speech and Goes Further Than the Premier's Academic Adherence For the Purpose of Diminishing Labor Men.

Offers to Run Birmingham With Him.

London, June 9.—The interest in this week's session of Parliament last night was entirely secondary to that shown in the lobby discussions regarding the prospects of the financial debate, which takes place to-day.

Rumor was busy in the lobbies, as usual on the eve of an important crisis, though there was little tangible as to the attitude of the numerous silent members of the Cabinet towards the Colonial Secretary's daring proposals. Mr. Chamberlain has certainly succeeded in arousing a strong opposition among the ranks of the workingmen. W. J. Davis, a prominent trades union leader, speaking at Birmingham last night, offered to contest the district on the labor platform.

A Cabinet council was summoned yesterday afternoon to consider the situation. Mr. Chamberlain and the Ministers take exception to Mr. Chamberlain's letter to workingmen, published Sunday, which is regarded as definitely committing the Colonial Secretary to the policy announced, and thus going far beyond the limits of colonial defence revealed in his speech prior to the adjournment of the House, which only committed him to an academic discussion on the subject of preferential duties.

Chamberlain May Resign.

There is no doubt that the situation is extremely tense, and all kinds of rumors are afloat, one which many even believe is that Mr. Chamberlain contemplates immediate resignation. It is said that he does not know how the Irish Land Bill, and would willingly precipitate a crisis before the Liberals have had time to organize their election platform and free trade propaganda. Further, his health is not the best; he needs rest, and is said not to be averse to allowing the Liberals to form a Government, being confident that it would be short-lived and that he would be able the Conservatives to return to power immediately after.

Although there is a balance of opinion inclined to the belief that there will not be a dissolution of Parliament till the autumn, both the Liberals and the Nationalists are apprehensive, neither wanting a general election for the former because they are not ready and the latter because they want to secure the adoption of the Irish Land Bill.

FRENCH FIRE ON FIGUIG.

Destroy a Venerated Moorish Mosque and Kill Several Arabs.

Fort-Ouali, Algeria, June 9. —The French artillery opened a preliminary fire early yesterday morning on Figuig, the stronghold of the rebellious Zenaga tribesmen, who recently defeated and killed to ambush General Lyautey and his escort, of whom thirteen were seriously killed. Many houses were hit by shells, the mosque destroyed, 11 Arabs killed, a great number of natives killed.

Later the French troops occupied Jule Hill and another eminence, both strategic positions, by a comparatively movement. Their fire was finally concentrated on the mosque which was venerated, and the edifice was blown to pieces.

Finally the French guns were withdrawn to Djennaned-Bar, where General Lyautey was awaiting orders. submission when this despatch left.

Ottawa Man's Peculiar Will.

Ottawa, June 9.—The obsequies of the late S. J. Major, wholesale grocer and liquor dealer, who died on Friday, takes place to-day and will be conducted in certain quarters. The will sets forth deceased's request that his remains shall be conveyed to the Basilica for the high requiem mass, and, afterwards, to the cemetery, a special car, to be built for the purpose. Afterwards, the car and any floral tributes which may be received are to be destroyed by fire. The body is to be taken through the streets attended by a hearse, and the will also directs that the usual mutes, ostriches and banners place shall be draped in mourning, and all newspaper paper, enclosed in papers which may be sent out during that time, is to have crepe attached.

One Dispute Ended.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 9.—The sixth convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union opened here yesterday under the presidency of Mrs. Lillias W. S. Stevens of Portland, Maine, vice-president-at-large, in the absence of Lady Henry Somerset.

The Executive Committee announced an important change in the constitution, whereby officers will be elected by the convention, thus ending a dispute which has lasted for years.

Not the Whitby Perey Case.

New York, June 9.—Percy Cole, who was charged with forgery here, died of Bright's disease, and was not Percy Cole of Whitby, as stated yesterday, but a son of Rev. Mr. Cole, one time a curate in Toronto. The young man was 23 years of age, and had been for 13 years with the Metropolitan Bank of this city.

Street Railway Men Ask For More.

Quebec, June 9.—The conductors and motormen of the Q., H. L. & P. Co. have asked for an increase of from 15 to 17½ cents an hour, amounting to 25c a day each.

MIRACLE OF SCIENCE.

Demonstration of the New Element Polonium Discovered by Madame Curie.

Berlin, June 9.—At yesterday's session of the Chemical Congress Professor W. Markwald, of Berlin, showed the electric chemical and physical section a smudge of dark powder. This, he explained, was the first time that any of those substances, known as Radium and Polonium, discovered by Professor and Mme. Curie of Paris.

The latter modified another polonium was a primary element or relative of Bismuth. Professor Markwald demonstrated that it was indeed a primary element.

Professor Markwald proceeded to give a marvelous exhibition of the properties of polonium. He first intercepted a strong current of electricity from the dynamo, then from the generator to the receiver, the air ceasing to be a conductor. Then he placed pieces of barium, platinum, lead, bismuth, and then darkened and pieces of barium, platinum, lead, bismuth, and then darkened and pieces of barium, platinum, lead, bismuth, and then darkened and pieces of barium, platinum, lead, bismuth, glowed with a bright green light. The audience, utterly amazed, was dumbfounded that it was indeed a primary element.

Professor Markwald proceeded to give a marvelous exhibition of the properties of polonium. He first intercepted a strong current of electricity from the dynamo, then from the generator to the receiver, the air ceasing to be a conductor. Then he placed

Patent and Enamelled Leather Shoes
The Slater Guarantee.

No shoe manufacturer would have the temerity to guarantee ordinary Patent or Enamelled leather—certainly the makers of the famous "Slater Shoe" would not guarantee ordinary Patent or Enamelled leathers because with them a guarantee is a guarantee, not a pleasant sounding but meaningless play of words.

But the "Slater Shoe" makers use a standard of Enamelled leather which they can and do guarantee—every Enamelled shoe which bears the "Slater Shoe" trademark is guaranteed—The "Slater Shoe" makers use no Enamelled leather which they cannot guarantee.

And the "Slater Shoe" people have a patent leather made of Colt skin, pliable, flexible, as brilliant as the best patent leather and tough and durable enough to carry with it the responsible guarantee of the "Slater Shoe" makers.

Every pair of "Slater Shoes" bearing their guarantee has with it a Guarantee Bond Scrip lithographed like a bank note and as good a guarantee as one.

It says:—

"We (the makers) warrant the leather in this pair of shoes not to break through within three months from date of purchase."

The bond also bears the registered factory number of the pair of shoes to which it belongs.

THE TREADGOLD INVESTIGATION.

The Gamey investigation, resulting in the special pleading finding of the judge, is doing much to destroy that high opinion which the people of Canada have in the past had of the Superior Court Bench. Just such another finding may be expected by Judge Britton, who has been appointed to investigate and report upon the effect which the Treadgold concessions in the Yukon will have upon the mining interests of that country. If the past record, politically, of the learned judge is indicative of what may be accepted from him in the future, it is for difficult to foresee what his report will be.

Mr. Justice Britton has already prejudged the merit of the issue, having accorded the Government from all blame in the Yukon scandals, while a member of the Commons, by the stifled investigation in the West Huron and Brockville election frauds, and in the dog-biscuit investigation proved himself a violent political partisan and cannot, therefore, it is much to be feared, satisfy the public as to his impartiality. The Liberal Government have proved capable white-washers in the past, and they are standing true to their record.

The Toronto News, a thoroughly independent journal, commenting upon this appointment, says:—

"Mr. Justice Britton can in no way serve the cause of good Government in the Yukon better than by declining to act on the Yukon Commission. His presence can only weaken the standing of the Commission in the estimation of the public.

To say this is not at all to impugn Mr. Britton's qualifications as a judge. The circumstances being what they are, it will be unspeakably unfortunate for the Yukon Commission even if he proved to be the most impartial and judicious magistrate that ever wore Canadian ermine. For whether he possesses such qualities or not, he has not yet been on the Bench sufficiently long to demonstrate them. It is too short a time since he left the ranks of active politics; and he was too earnest a partizan for the memory of his partizanship to be forgotten. A Commission such as that to which he has been appointed needs half its power and effectiveness in the degree of public confidence it has at command. A misplaced appointment may change it from a great inquisition into a mere gubernatorial farce. And no appointment can be more misplaced than a supposedly even unjustly partizan judge.

The real subject of the Yukon Commission's investigation are the polite and handsome lords of Liberal administration in the far north district. Judge Britton has been so closely related by party ties to the defendant in the case, the present Dominion Government, that to expect that defendant a private party, it would be indecent of him to sit in judgment. In public matters the line is less strict, but the principle is the same.

It has of late become unfashionable for high judicial appointments to refuse their services when called on by Government. No one sees her anomalous the position in which the Government of the day may place them, they usually face it with resigned complacency. But the public will find no lack of admirable precedents further back in history for the judicious step which he will take in declining to serve on the Yukon Commission. He will moreover find that, even in the present day, the judges who shirk such duties, touching all political questions, and who are never offered Government portfolios by the Government, occupy quite as high a position in the public regard as their confreres.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Port Hope society people got up a concert in the drill shed, and the best talent in town gave their services. The proceeds are going to help along the Lacrosse Club. Of course, the only reason why something of that kind was not done in Belleville is because we have no drill shed at present.

A yellow Buffalo paper pictures Brockville, Ont., as surrounded by fire. As Brockville is built on one side by the St. Lawrence, it is fair to assume that it was one of The Recorder's editorials which set Canada's great archery ablaze.

The weather man in Toronto prophecies plenty of rain before long, but what this great and growing district needs is less prophecy and more moisture.

A large crop of strawberries is predicted. The recent rain, it is said, should make them exceptionally plentiful. We ought to be long on shortcake pretty soon.

Radium, scientists now say, will enable the blind to see. What a pity some of it was not available for the use of the Judges who presided over the Gamey investigation.

Hamilton Methodists unanimously called on Hon. G. W. Ross to introduce the temperance question at session and then sang "Hold the Fort." (If they hold their breath till Ross stops laughing at them there will be a lot of dead Methodists in Hamilton.

A colored school teacher in Belleville, Illinois, shot the county superintendent because he was refused a certificate. Then he was hanged. A school teacher. There are worse Bellevilles than this to live in.

NO TRUTH IN THE RUMOR.

MR. JUSTICE BRITTON HAS NOT DECLINED TO ACT ON THE TREADGOLD COMMISSION.

A telegram from Toronto to-day said the report was current in Ottawa and Toronto that Mr. Justice Britton, who has been appointed by the Government to investigate the alleged scandals, in connection with the Treadgold Yukon concessions, had declined to act. A representative of The Intelligencer this morning had interviewed by telephone at his home in Toronto, asking him if there was any truth in the report.

"Certainly not," said His Lordship, "no truth in it at all."

"Would you care to say anything in connection with the matter," he was asked.

"Nothing at all, nothing at all," was the Judge's reply.

MERRY WEDDING BELLS

HAVE BEEN RINGING ON HUFFS ISLAND RECENTLY.

On the evening of Wednesday, June 3rd, about one hundred and twenty guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Haile, Huff's Island, to witness the marriage of their daughter, Edith Alice, to Arthur Dalton, of Trenton. At 8 o'clock the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and looking very pretty in a white silk voile trimmed with applique and wearing a veil of silk, entered the parlor, where the ceremony took place. Miss May Haile, aunt of the bride, played the wedding march.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Johnson. The bridesmaid was Miss Cora Watkis, of Belleville. Little Miss Adams, of Hillier, acted as flower girl, while the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Fred Dalton. Master Harry Pine acted as page.

An excellent dejeuner was then served, after which the happy couple left on the midnight train for Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester. Their many friends wish the happy couple every happiness in their wedded life.

Malt Breakfast Food

Has Taken First Place and Will Continue to Hold it.

Amongst the ever increasing brands of breakfast foods sold by the grocery trade of Canada, Malt Breakfast Food has taken first place, and will continue to be the favorite grain breakfast food in tens of thousands of homes. Not only does Malt Breakfast Food furnish the most palatable breakfast dish for young and old for the strengthening of body and brain, but many choice and palate-tickling dishes can be made from this popular cereal food that will add digestive vigor.

Malt Breakfast Food is now recommended by wise physicians as the best food for the strong and weak, for the young and old. It possesses health virtues unknown to other brands of foods. All grocers.

Weak and Diseased Kidneys Mean Suffering and Death.

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

RAPIDLY ARREST KIDNEY DECAY AND RESTORE HEALTH.

It is estimated, and correctly, too, that one person out of three has some form of kidney trouble.

Sound kidneys mean life and health. Weak kidneys mean suffering and death.

The majority of kidney troubles though they begin mildly, soon give persistent and sinful warnings of dangers and pain.

Pains in back, drowsiness, emaciation, loss of agelite, swelling of limbs, scanty urine, brick dust deposit, and unnatural thirst are noted, as without delay Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets. They immediately arrest the ravages of kidney disease and restore the affected organs to health.

Kidney-Wort Tablets have a solid reputation for stopping the formation of gravel, which produces stone or calculi.

Be wise! act to-day, if you would be rid of the deadly perils of kidney and urinary troubles. Give Kidney-Wort Tablets an immediate trial; they positively cure. Druggists everywhere.

Hamlet's Island.

WILLIAM E. CURTIS has been visiting the Island of Elsinore, the scene of the tragedy of Hamlet, which stands at the northern point of the Danish peninsula. He says that although the Shakespearean drama was not built for five hundred years after the time of Hamlet, the numerous guides will point out the platforms where Hamlet played before the king, and the ramparts upon which the ghost walked. The fact that Ophelia does not appear in the account of the monk named Saxo-Grammaticus, who first told the story of Hamlet, and from which Shakespeare took his plot, does not interfere with the imagination of the gents and guide-book writers. They point out the place in the moat where the castle where she was drowned, and on the park there is a spring which is christened in her honor. Near by is another spring that bears the name of Hamlet, and in a beautiful wooded glade is his burial place, marked by a cairn of stones, partially concealed, and a rude shaft of granite which bears the inscription, "Hamlet's Grave." It is the favorite joke of scoffers to ask the guides "where he is now used to be," because, according to traditions that are said to be well founded, it has occupied at present site less than a century, and was originally in the private grounds of a merchant at the other end of the town. This gentleman became so annoyed by the pilgrims who came to the place that he sold the town council he would put up a satire expense of fixing up a more appropriate grave for Hamlet if they would designate a proper location for one of the parks. He did as he proposed. The result had been satisfactory all around. He is not annoyed by ghost-seers, and the monument is much more convenient to the public than it was before. As a matter of fact the guides will point out the original grave. However, Hamlet's tomb, Ophelia's drowning place, the rampart where the ghost walked, and the grassy plain which Hamlet used as a stage for his celebrated outdoor performance, are a great attraction to tourists and students several hotels. They have brought much money to Elsinore, and much interest in them still continues. Notwithstanding the doubt that has been cast upon their authenticity, one of the great tragedians have been there, including Bernhardt, Irving, Forrest and Booth, and largely through contributions from the dramatic profession a statue has been erected by Nielsine Petersen, a Danish artist. Everything about the town is named after Hamlet or Ophelia, just as everything at Stratford-on-Avon is named after Shakespeare. There is a Hamlet bicycle and a Hamlet hotel, a Hamlet tobacco and a Hamlet cigar, Hamlet perfumery and Hamlet bams, Hamlet butter and Hamlet dressing-cases and toilet-bags. Ophelia does not fare so well, although there are several places named in her honor. The ghost has his prominence, but the king and queen are entirely ignored. They have a very bad reputation.

Diary of an American Abroad.

Monday, 10 a.m.—Reached Noigland. Country half asleep.

2 p.m.—Reached London. Village awake, but not really spry.

4.30—Reached Hotel. Magnificent.

4.45—Went all over it. Nice house. Do as a pied-a-terre for our directors when over here.

5—Bought it.

5.15—Dinner. Arranged to turn dining-room into anteroom for callers. Tried. Counted checks. Bed.

Tuesday, 9 a.m. — Read "Times" at breakfast. Leader disgusting our company. Muss see to this.

10—Saw proprietors of "Times."

11—Bought "Times."

12—Heard of difficulty with staff. Settled.

1 p.m.—Bought some editors.

1.30—Lunch.

2 to 6—Interviewed the company's competitors; three minutes each.

6 to 7—Wrote checks.

8.30—Theater. Play, the Ironmaster. Rich young heir, struggle between capital and labor, capitalist rivalry; must see if rights are to be had.

Wednesday — Curiously unlucky morning. Admiralty wouldn't sell fleet. We offer almost to name a price. Colonial secretary declined to let me have Jamaica at a big figure for coaling station. Will do to run on the canals inside our fitting shop.

Thursday, 7 p.m.—Things have been humming a-day. Steamboat deal evidently fell out. Bought the Cunard & O. Cunar, White Star, Ostent, Union Castle, Inman and North German Lloyd. Also the Liverpool docks. Bought the Bodega and Northwestern. Cabled the company that they might begin making.

Friday, 10 a.m.—Cable from company telling me to buy less and sell more. Nonsense. Plenty of time for selling. Much best policy to buy up all our customers first; sell to ourselves then and make sure of orders.

4 p.m.—Bought Holyhead harbor. Made an offer for St. George's Channel.

Saturday, 9 a.m.—Cable from home, "Rival trust formed. Underselling. Return at once."

10 a.m.—Returning.—London "Punch."

Once during a heated debate between Senator Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, and Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, the question of law in Texas and law in Ohio came up. The passages became warm. Foraker, by way of a parting shot, told Bailey that if he would come to Ohio he would learn a great deal of law that he did not know. "If there is so very much law to be learned in Ohio," remarked Bailey, "I must advise the Senator to spend all his spare time there. He needs it."

A somewhat apocryphal anecdote of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is going the rounds of the United States press. During the last general elections, it is related, a Quebec Liberal, whose acquaintance with Sir Wilfrid was only political, sent this telegram to his leader, who was in Ontario on a speech-making tour: "Report in circulation in this county that your children have not been baptized. Telegraph denial." To which despatch the Premier sent the reply: "Report in error. Twins."

SMILES.

"You have been scribbling me, John," said the old man, "that you've a writin' of a poem or something like that—on Fairies, remember."

"Yes, father—a sublime ode."

"But it's my opinion," continued the old man, "that a real, live, industrious Injun would take a tomahawk an' shirl in an' scalp some o' them trees into firewood, an' not jest char spinnerin' ink over white paper with blue lines on it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

"There's nothing in my name, no matter what Shakespeare says," commented the new boarder.

"How's that?" asked the landlady.

"My name is Naughton," answered the new boarder. By diligently explaining the meaning of "naughts" he managed to draw non-committal smiles from a few of those present.—Baltimore American.

"Sir," said the young man, "I ask for your daughter's hand."

"Young man," replied the father, "I am not disposing of her in sections."

"O need to, ma'am. The pump always freezes up in cold weather."—From Fun.

"We might just as well come to an understanding at once," said the angry husband. "It's hard for you to see the truth, especially from me, but—"

"Indeed it is," interrupted the patient wife. "I hear it so seldom."

"My dear, why don't you hit the nail on the head sometimes?"

"I do. Look at my thumb."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Actor—Hurry, or we'll miss the train.

Actress—I can't find my diamonds or my purse.

Actor—Oh, well, never mind.

Actress—Yes, but the purse has a dollar in it.

"He is awfully nice," she sobbed, "but I can't—I can't."

"Can't what?" queries her mother.

"Give up my name of Willoughby for his of Sashkina," was the tearful answer.

We saw a young man with two heads on his shoulders the other day, but did not consider it much of a curiosity. One belonged to his girl.

Dabber—Here's my latest picture, "The Battle." I tell you it's a terrible thing.

Friend—Oh, I don't think it's as bad as it's painted.

Mistress—Did you tell the lady I was out?

Servant Girl—Yes, ma'am.

Mistress—Did she seem to have any doubts about it?

Servant Girl—No, ma'am; she said she knew you wasn't.

First Varsity Man—What was the result of the football match today?

Second Ditto—Oh, we beat them easily. We had only one collarbone fractured, while they had three broken legs and a couple of sprained ankles. They can't play football.

"How's this? You're already advertising again a dog lost. Didn't the third one you've lost in a month?"

"Oh, it's just my luck! Since my daughter took to bicycling she's become so fond of dogs that she's always bringing home some I can't keep an animal in the place!"

"I'm sure we shall be on good terms," said the man who had just moved into the neighborhood to the grocer at the corner.

"No doubt of it, sir. Especially," he added, as an afterthought, "if the terms are cash."

"William, go up to my room. Back of my wardrobe there are"—

"Cigars, sir?"

"Yes. How did you find them?"

"Oh, very good, indeed, sir!"

This, in short, is the story of every house heated with a

"Sunshine" Furnace.

The Regulators that divide the warm air are so constructed, and the pipes which carry it to the different registers so arranged, that any quantity of heat desired can be forced to the different rooms or flats of a house.

The "Sunshine" is the only furnace made in which hot-air pipes to first floor do not rob second and third floor pipes.

Burns coal, coke and wood equally well.

Sold by all enterprising dealers.

TIMELY TOPICS

"A Reader" wants to know if the Judge Britton who is at present holding court in this city is the same gentleman who has been asked by the Dominion Government to investigate the Treadgold scandal in the Yukon district. The same, friend; the same. And did you know, that a party named Walter Harwick is one of the three Treadgold concessionaires? And did you know that young Moir—Barwick's partner—is Judge Britton's son-in-law? You didn't? Well—that's all.

A gentleman who has made a deep study of the Gamey-Stratton affair, hands me the following, which he thinks would have been the only fair and equitable finding the judges could have made:

"Your Commissioners beg to report that, in accordance with instructions, they have heard all the available evidence in the matter;

"That the more important part of said evidence was such as no court could or should properly make the basis of a decision affecting character or property, and would have to rule everything unproven:

"Your Commissioners very much regret the circumstances, but believe the matter must be left to the moral or immoral sense of the people and their representatives to say properly or improperly dealt with."

They say that a woman on the west side sat up till one o'clock one night recently, watching for her husband to come home. Then she got tired and went upstairs, to find him in bed, asleep. Now she won't speak to him on account of what she calls "his deception."

Belleville, Ont., May 7th, 1903.

The O. B. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and painful so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope, when a friend handed me a box of the O. B. Pastile CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, so have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have left my body, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,

THOMAS HUNTLEY.

CROPS GENERALLY GOOD.

Northwest Promises Record Yield and It Looks Like Average in Ontario—

One-Tenth Only Dry.

Montreal, Que., June 9.—The Star published yesterday a crop report from all over the Dominion, which, being boiled down, reads as follows: The indications all point to the fact that the weather conditions prevailing in Montreal have prevailed in the district of Montreal, but not generally in Canada.

About one-tenth in area of the whole Dominion has been affected by drouth, making it certain that hay will be light in the Province of Quebec. Northwestern Canada promises a record crop. It looks like an average in Ontario. With the exception of local districts in the Maritime Provinces, the crops will be fair. Most people need, perhaps, to be reminded that this is one of the earliest seasons on record in Canada, as far as the ending of the winter is concerned, the spring having really commenced early in March.

If weather conditions become favorable, much of the apparent loss will be recovered, even in the worst districts, as far as the usual Montreal sources of supply are concerned, there will be a scarcity of hay and vegetables in particular, while average pasturage will affect the quality, and, probably, the price of butter and cheese.

HOW DO YOU STAND,

Queer Ways Different Nationalities Greet Each Other.

The Germans greet each other by saying: "How do you find yourself?"

The Chinese inquire of equals: "Have you eaten your rice?" The reply is "Thanks to your abundant felicity."

The Japanese, when they meet a superior, remove their sandals and exclaim: "Hurt me not!"

"How do you stand?" asks the Italian when he meets a friend.

Arabs of eminence kiss each others cheeks, and exclaim: "God grant the His favor, and give health to thy family."

The Dutch greet each other by asking: "Have you had a good dinner?"

A Moor rides at full speed toward a friend or stranger, stops suddenly, fires a pistol into the air over his own head then considers that he has been quite courteous.

In Egypt the usual words of greeting are: "How do you perspire?"

In Lapland friends salute by pressing their noses together.

The Polish greeting is: "How do you have yourself?"

Persian friends cross necks, rub cheeks, and say: "May thy shadow never grow less."

"Go with God, senor," is the Spanish greeting.

The French ask: "How do you carry yourself?"

Russian friends greet by asking "How do you live on?"

In Siam a man prostrates himself on the ground when he meets a stranger and waits to see whether he will be raised and welcomed or kicked away.—Exchange.

Fond of an Amateur.

"Yep, looking for a saddle horse," admitted the wholesaler who was just back from his vacation. "He is raised among horses, you might say. I never boast, but I guess that I can tell anything that ever looked through a bridle. Just back from visiting an old chum that grew up next door to me. Has a great stock farm. Broke in a three-year-old colt for him while I was there.

"Any trouble?"

"Not a bit. Tied up his front legs and he fell as he threw me through a corn crib. Didn't hurt. Old man came along and said I ought to be ashamed to cripple a horse in order to ride him. So I let the leg down. I scrambled on and he jumped before I was ready. That time I went through the top of a peach tree. Never left it. Next trip me and the colt went down the road as though there were fire works on his tail.

"He stopped unexpectedly and I went over a wire fence into a ploughed field. I tore my trousers and ripped the top of my shoes, but never broke the skin. I guess there isn't another amateur rider in the country could do that. My head plunged through three furrows, but I didn't mind it any more than a dive into the Detroit river."

"Got right back on the colt, I suppose?"

"No, my chum said I was a little over weight, so he put a young fellow on and he stuck as if he had to. I like to see a colt have some sort of a show. They bred the critter out and I insisted on one more mount. You can bet that colt knew his master. He was tame as a sheep. I'd have ridden him, you know, if he'd broke my neck. Now what I want is something quick and devilish. Is horseflesh. I'll tame him."—Detroit Free Press.

OUT OF BABIES MOUTHS.

"The ladies in our congregation are pretty fond of me," said the minister's mischievous little boy. "Nearly all of them gave pa some slippers on his birthday.

"I thought your pa always uses a slipper to spank you with."

"So he does, but then he got are the soft kind that's all made out of wool."—Philadelphia Press.

"What kind of a present shall I bring you, Mabel?" asked the father of a three-year-old when he was about to start on a short journey.

"Bring me some beer for my ears, so I can wear earrings," replied his daughter.

"Won't you give me your new baby brother, Nellie?" asked the visitor of a little four-year-old girl.

"No, indeed!" replied Nellie. "I want him to play with. But I'll tell you a piece of paper, and you can cut a pattern of him."

"Say," remarked the first boy on the way to school, "I just heard the minister tell another man 'at my pa was a 'horrible example.' Wonder what 'at is?"

"I guess," replied the other, "he must have a lot o' fractions in him."—Philadelphia Press.

PRIDE'S FALL.

She was a maid of honor
And I was his best man,
And in the aisles we loitered while
The wedding march began.
My heart was wildly beating,
My breast was full of pride,
For fairest of the fair ones there
Was that one at my side!

The people turned and whispered
And turned again to see,
And for awhile there in the aisle
The gods were good to me!
I saw the maiden blushing,
We two outshone the rest,
I heard her sigh up high
And joy was in my breast!

She was maid of honor
And I was his best man,
And there my pride quickly died,
And there my shame began!
Her train was long and goodish,
And suddenly somehow
My feet and it got hitched
And we are strangers now!

HOW DYSPEPSIA RAVAGES.

A Case Narrated with Startling Frankness—Dyspepsia Tablets Relieve Quickly when all Enough Have Failed.

Dyspepsia is the only ordinary disease which should long abuse be permitted. Other ailments may be serious, but performing their functions in the healthy way from day to day, the victim may be sure that the blood purifying, Nerve Vitalizing, Heart Strengthening Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and beautiful, while the eyes will be heather witnesses to their excellence.

Good is the only certainly happy way to make it.

MRS. RALPH GRIFFIN, who Makes one, formerly Dutton, writes: "Last year, Mr. Griffin and I left me with a severe pain in the small of my back, which I thought was a cold. Before evening I tried to alleviate it by taking a dose of Pain-Killer. The next morning, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it freely, and actually, my morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was entirely relieved."

Last chances never leave any kind.

Their gentle action and good effect on the grateful make them a perfect little pill. They purify the whole system. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection." They are guaranteed to relieve the worst of it, however.

AN EARTHLY DOOR—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen:—My wife had suffered for years, she said, me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop's Vegetable Dyspepsia Discovery for Dyspepsia. By the time I had used two bottles of the medicine she was out of the kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my wife's condition was the same. All the food I took for thirteen months I was taking the Discovery. Dyspepsia consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have gained 40 pounds in weight. I can eat anything with a hearty relish and feel like a new man. I have taken over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I would recommend it. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life and I consented to recover when first I commenced to use it. I had no appetite, nothing tasting, but feel glad to be able to recommend it. Do not hesitate and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as well as I do. Yours for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURE.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Very many persons die annually from consumption who, whenever complaints, who ought have been saved if proper remedies had been used at first. Do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, and keep it handy. A little will effect a cure. Those who have used it, safe promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and your child is safe. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The average waist represents not all its share of human labor.

Have you tried Hollaway's Dandruff Cure? It has no equal for removing dandruff, scurf, and unsightliness, and may be certified who have tried it.

Coral is a talisman against pneumonia and all throat troubles.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides purifying the blood, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has come to our notice by actual recommendation from those who were afflicted with this disease, and we found a cure in the pills. They acted on the nerve centre and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is already known.

Some people keep hopping and hiring on goes on a cruise.

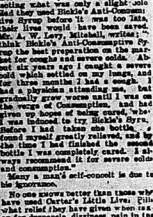

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of health, needlessly have died who, by a few timely doses, have been saved to enjoy life. Had they used Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writing, says: Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and colds. I was sick but six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs and for three months I had a cough, and a physician said I was in the first stages of severe and I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hope. I tried Hickle's, and was induced to try Hickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had taken the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when suffering from dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, headaches, and all disordered stomach.

If thy friend is honey, do not lick him up altogether.

Do not be afraid of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and natural.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Gaynell," "Little Leafy," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

...hut at the church door he deserted me, Hetty; it appears that he had telephoned for me from the office. Miss Ruthven, the hebress. That was how the mistake occurred in making out the marriage license he had brought with him, and by the time the clergyman called me when he asked me if I would take the man by my side for better or for worse.

"When we had left the church and were out in the starlight I asked him why I had been called Lillian Ruthven. Then the whole terrible truth came out. I fainted away from the shock, and he deserted me then and there—left me lying face downward in the long grass to live or to die, as heaven saw fit."

CHAPTER XLI.

"Father, I am the one!"

"When I awoke to consciousness, Hetty, it was the starlight I found myself at home, with papa bending over me. He had started in search of me, and had found me lying there.

"I dared not tell him what had happened, for the thought I suffered a terror of torture, expecting Harold St. John to return and claim me.

"You know the rest, Hetty, how papa and Olive nursed me back from the startling story you told of the man who had been married to me, and that he was an escaped forger whom papa had imprisoned. How I had to Sing Sing to pay the penalty of his crime by his long years' imprisonment.

"How I lived through the months that followed I never well remember; they seem like so fast you thought I was going to die. It was not for love of Harold St. John that I mourned, but despise him at the church door—it was for fear, for shame, for the thought of what I had done—it was a rash marriage, and I could have no one whose life to repent for it.

"My only solace was—for ten long years he could not claim me—that was a great weight off of my lifetime.

"Then Alick came," pursued Daisy, "and you know Tull well, Hetty, not knowing my terrible secret how he pressed me, and how God help me, I turned to love him with all the strength of my heart. Then came what I have really meant.

"And when he asked me to marry him, Hetty, I stood face to face with and remorse. I knew Alick must be nothing to me, that I must tell him—too late.

"Then, in the stillness of my room one night a bitter temptation came to me; I had almost taken one step in the wrong path, could another matter much if I had already wrecked my life—why not take a few years' happiness—life is a very short thing, and when the dreaded ten years were up, I could creep away somewhere and die. I was not strong enough to resist the temptation, Hetty; love urged me on. So I took my own death in this.

"You have heard how Harold St. John was murdered," Daisy went on with bitter sobs; "he hunted me out and found me, and Alick, Hetty, within the hour he is coming here to claim and expose me."

"Oh, Hetty, by the love you bore me when we were happy, when we were little children together, I pray you to save me, think of me, act for me tell me what I must do to still keep Alick's love, for I will die if he, too, leave Hetty, better death than that."

Daisy had slipped from her arm to the long grass again, and lay sobbing there as though her very heart would break.

"An hour," murmured Hetty, "not long to think, to decide the fate of a lifetime, but I will do the pitying angels to help me, devise some plan to aid, poor, beautiful, hapless Daisy. It was a terrible fate—but even as God was merciful he would show her some way of escape—she was so young then hardly more than a child now—only eighteen—surely heaven would have pity."

"Daisy!" cried poor Hetty, raising her arms up to the white clouds that floated in the starlight; "I am looking down upon Daisy's woe, tell me—put it into my heart what I must do for her, for I know not how."

From over the waving blue-grass fields, Hetty could hear the hour was up; she could hear Alick's voice and the sheriff's. Olive was with them, and looking through the green leaves she saw the budding lilacs. She saw Harold St. John join them. The sardonic smile on his face was terrible to see.

They walked in silence to the fountain, where they had left Hetty, and as they approached it Hetty's sister, the wife of Hetty's side, clinging desperately to her neck, crying in wild despair:

"Save me, Hetty! Oh, for the love you bore me, save me, Hetty!"

"I will!" whispered the noble girl standing like a champion over her beautiful, cowering, terror-stricken sister.

"Now, my children," said the sly squire, laughing, "you are all together. You all know this man's claim—that one of you is his wedded wife."

"Sneer!" thundered the squire, facing his three daughter. "If either which is the one? This man prefers he says, that he's wife should step forward and acknowledge it; if not, he will end the controversy by doing so."

Unclasping slowly the clinging arms, Hetty Gordon stepped forward, one so death answering in a clear steady voice that did not falter or tremble:

"Father, I am the one!"

CHAPTER XLII.

Which is His Wife!

A silence as terrible as death fell over the group assembled there as those startling words fell from Hetty Gordon's lips.

"And I declare that you are not!" Harold St. John cried, "I see through it all; it's a game put up between you to throw people off the right track, but that shall not the case me all, I solemnly swear that Alick girl is my wife, but her sister Daisy is."

The announcement fell like a thunderbolt upon the amazed, speechless group; in an instant Alexander Hamilton had sprung forward while as Hetty, but a kiter cry from Daisy arrested the blow that would have fallen from the uprised arm, causing him to turn quickly about.

"Do not strike him, Alick," she cried, piteously, "the man is mad, quite mad!"

"Mad as you would have me appear," cried St. John angrily; "it is you who are mad in having this thing out so audaciously.

"You will see all right if I should force that girl who is declaring herself my wife to come and live with me," he added, with a harsh laugh horrible to hear.

Hetty drew back in the greatest horror. "No, no, no," she cried. "I would face death sooner than that!"

"I say that is the position I could put her in," retorted St. John, coolly, "but I do not so choose; I want my lawfully wedded wife, and I will have her if I have to go through all the courts to get her, that I swear to you."

It was quite as much as both Hetty and Alick with their combined strength, could do to hold Alick back, his rage was so intense.

"Let go your hold!" he cried, "and I'll win the squire in the house, all of you; I will settle with this dastardly scoundrel to be deserter to settled with," but they clung to him all the more.

"A few words will settle this matter, Alexander Hamilton," said St. John. "We will send for the minister, the wedded us that night and abide by his decision. Come now, is that not fair?"

"You might bride the man to swear falsely for you," cried Hetty, but Alick's sense of justice rather appeased Alick.

"And I," he said, "will pay him three the sum offered by you, St. John, to tell the truth, and nothing but the truth."

"I am willing, certainly," declared St. John.

"It will put this affair at an end," declared Alick, with sparkling eyes on Daisy's ear. "This man is such a fiend incarnate, he would otherwise twist the matter before the courts, simply for the sake of extorting money from us, as well as making this disgraceful marriage of yours matter Hetty—Daisy, dearest, dear, I know it is the greatest kind of an outrage to have you in this affair still, for Hetty's sake, be who—"

No word, no cry broke from Daisy's lips; she threw up her white hands, and fell at her sister's feet dead.

Alick stooped quickly to raise her, but in a flash Harold St. John had sprung between them.

"She is mine," he cried. "Do not dare to touch her until our relative position are settled. Let the squire and her sisters attend her. Fortunately the minister who performed the ceremony is in the city; believing she would persist in denying this marriage, I made the appointment with him to meet me here and identify her. Ah, here he is now; we will await his decision."

They all turned toward the entrance gate, and behold a tall, thin, clerical-looking gentleman coming up the paved walk.

St. John called to him, and he came hastily forward.

"You have been as accident?" he queried, looking at St. John, then at the group of the group.

"There would have been had it not been for your timely assistance in the matter to decide a very important matter," responded St. John, "which, in few words be explained to the Reverend Mr. Tee the fact that I had married one of these ladies as his wife, and that another one persists in claiming me in order to mix affairs up.

"Look around and pick three," he continued; "and kindly settle the matter. Select the one I demand them to whom you married me on the night of the 25th of June, 1900."

The old minister looked greatly bewildered.

"You will abide by his decision, I presume?" said St. John, turning to Alick.

"How am I to know that th—is not a plot concocted between you?" cried Alick.

But the Reverend Mr. Tee interrupted him with a grave shake of the head.

"Sir," he said, "I am a minister of the Lord. Should I allow myself to be deceived?" he added, eagerly, seeing the squire for the first time. Indeed is my privilege to serve my God; he has known me from my boyhood; he will tell you I am a man who would not lend myself to a scheme. I will speak the truth, and nothing but the truth."

Then the squire spoke.

"Not even for all the gold this man could obtain would the Reverend Mr. Tee utter that which is false," he said, hoarsely; "let him look upon Hetty's face—and upon—" Daisy's, if he really persists in it, and say which is the—his wife—his wife."

Slowly, while they were speaking, Daisy had regained consciousness, and turned to Hetty in despair too horrible for words to describe.

The Sufferings of Women

MANY IRREGULARITIES AND WEAKNESSES, MUCH PAIN AND MISERY WHICH CAN BE PERMANENTLY OVERCOME BY USING

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

No women can expect to have good health unless the monthly uterine action is regular, and any breaking of this law of nature will only cause much pain and suffering, but may make her an invalid for the rest of life.

Nearly all derangements of the feminine organism are due to thin, watery blood, a poor circulation, or to lack of nerve force. Whether the menses are irregular, insufficient, profuse or painful the cause of trouble rests with the condition of the blood and nerves, and no one who uses Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can fail to benefit and regain health and vigor.

The dull, aching pain in the back and thighs, the cramps in the abdomen, the distressing headaches, the irritability and feelings of utter weariness will disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used to put the blood and nerves in proper condition.

It is useful in girlhood that these irregularities have their beginning, and hence, realizing the necessity of looking to the health of your daughters during the period of change, few words of advice at this point may save them from a life of ill-health and misery.

From girlhood to the change in life, during the nursing comfort, and at every time in woman's life, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of inestimable value, because it forms new, red blood, restores good circulation, and revitalizes the wasted and depleted nerve cells. It gives health, strength, and energy, rounds out the form, increases flesh and weight, and builds up the system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of nature's most powerful restoratives, and cannot fail to benefit you. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

Sour Stomach —Bad Breath.

The body depends on the bowels to carry off all waste and poisonous matters from the system—it is Nature's drainage. If the bowels don't perform their functions properly and become clogged up, the system gradually absorbs this poison. It is this which causes sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath, inactive liver, lack of energy, heartburn, etc.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt will cure you by clearing away the obstruction and thoroughly cleansing the bowels. This brings healthy action to all the organs of the body and rids the system of the cause of illness.

In this way Abbey's Effervescent Salt permanently cures. A teaspoonful in half a glass of tepid water every morning.

NOT WHAT HE WANTED.

He Would Prefer to Have a Patent Steel Jaw Baby.

"I perceive," began the peddler, suavely, "that there are children in the house."

"Have I the honor of speaking to Mr. Sherlock Holmes?" inquired Mrs Poply, ironically.

"Not exactly, but—"

"I presume you arrived at that astonishing correct conclusion by a process of scientific deduction," continued Mr. Poply in the same sarcastic tone. "Let me see if I can follow your line of reasoning. No doubt you noticed Tuesser, who has just fitted from the back door with a milk can attached to his canal appendage. That round hole in the stained glass of this door would at once convey the word 'toy gun' to your acute mind. That dull social which we now hear can only be produced by hammering a high chair with a hand mirror or a cream jug am I right?"

"Probably," answered the peddler; "but I drew my inference from the fact that you came to the front door with, and are still inadvertently holding a rattle in your hand. And unless my eyes deceive me, there is a jumping-jack attached by means of a bent pin and a string to the rear of your morning jacket. However, all this is immaterial. I called to show you the greatest invention of the age. The Patent Noiseless Baby Jumper and Child Amuser.' By its use a child may be left alone for hours and need no attention. Place the infant in the swinging seat, and—"

"Pardon me," interrupted Poply, "does that invention have an attachment for picking up playthings which have been violently thrown on the floor?"

"No, but—"

"Does it have hair to be pulled?"

"No—"

"Does it have an arrangement which, when the child cries, tells whether its screams express cholera morbus, hunger, a pin, temper, or general depravity?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'm afraid I can't buy it. Between ourselves, I don't think I need a 'Patent Noiseless Baby Jumper,' but I should like a patent noiseless baby."

WHO'S AFRAID?

Who's afraid in the dark?
"Oh, not I, said the owl,
And he gave a great scowl,
And he wiped his eye
And ruffled his feathers and "Too wool
Said the dog: "I bark
Out loud in the dark. Boo cool
Said the cat: "Mieow!
I'll scratch any one who Dare say that I do
Feel afraid Mieow!"
"Afraid! said the mouse,
"Of the dark in the house!
Hear me scatter,
Whatever's the matter
Squeak!"
Then the toad in the hole,
And the bug in the ground,
They both shook their heads
And passed the word 'round;

And the bird in the tree,
And the fish and the bee,
They declared all three
That you never did see
One of them afraid
In the dark!

But the little boy
Who had gone to bed
Just raised the bedclothes
And covered his head!

Little Harry Got It.

AMONG the passengers to Chicago recently was a woman very much overdressed, accompanied by a bright looking nurse girl and a self willed, tyrannical boy of about three years.

The boy aroused the indignation of the passengers by his continued fretfulness, and loud screams, and by his viciousness toward the patient nurse. He tore her dress and scratched her hands without a word of remonstrance from the mother.

Whenever the nurse manifested annoyance the mother would chide her sharply.

Finally the mother composed herself for a nap, and about the time the boy had slapped the nurse for the fiftieth time a wasp came sailing in and flew on the window. The boy at once set to catch it.

The nurse caught his hand and said, coaxingly:

"Harry mustn't touch! Big fly will bite Harry!"

Harry screamed savagely, and began to kick and pound the nurse.

The mother, without opening her eyes or lifting her head, cried out angrily:

"Why will you tease that child so, Harry? Let him have what he wants at once."

"But, ma'am, it's a—"

"Let him have it, I say."

They encouraged, Harry clutched at the wasp and caught it. Then all that followed brought tears of joy to the passengers.

The mother awoke again.

"Harry!" she cried, "let him have it!"

Mary turned in her seat and said confusedly:

"He's got it, ma'am!"

The Man With a Paper.

The man with a paper during the morning and evening hours in New York city is legion. There are about four hundred thousand of him. He is never without a newspaper on an elevated train, in a street car, aboard a ferryboat, or in a railway coach, morning or evening, going to or from business, is conspicuous.

He is a rare bird indeed, and looks as though he were wrecked and floating alone on acres of tossing papers. He is sure to feel lonesome and almost outside the pale of civilization, for his fellow men, with their faces buried in regular diet of daily news, hardly notice him.

If you have time to spare a moment from your morning journal, just look about you in car or boat, observe and listen. You will see every mortal man—with often hundreds in view at one time—religiously bowing at the altar of the news in silence that is only broken by a continuous rustle as the leaves of leaves are turned. There is no more devout newspaper reading community than is found in the metropolis.

Embassy Moved to Newport.

Washington, June 9.—Sir Michael H. Herbert, the British Ambassador, left Washington yesterday for Newport, where the British Embassy will be located this summer.

Lost a Finger.

A young man named Embury, employed by Mr. Cook Lock factory, yesterday afternoon had this misfortune to lose the top joint of the first finger of the left hand. He was operating a machine when the finger got caught, crushing the bone and lacerating the flesh in such an extent that it had to be amputated.

FEMALE WEAKNESSES in Summer Time

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Tones and Strengthens Every Weak Organ and Invigorates the Whole System.

Paine's Celery Compound has been specially prepared to relieve the suffering of the many ailments that afflict women, and it gives the ills to spring new and healthy lease to the female organism. It clears the complexion, and unhealthy secretions; it purifies the blood and establishes a perfect and vigorous health. Mrs. Percy B. Browning, of Provencher, Man., writes as follows:—

"After deriving such wonderful good from the use of Paine's Celery Compound, I consider it my duty to let suffering women know something about the only medicine in the world that can banish female troubles and give to women that health and strength that makes it a pleasure to live. I suffered for a long time from failing of the female organization, nervousness and headache. My doctor said I could do much for me, and my relatives thought I would become a confirmed invalid. My sister induced me at last to try Paine's Celery Compound, and, I thank God it was brought to my notice. After the use of seven bottles I am a well woman and as healthy as any of my friends. Paine's Celery Compound is surely the medicine for every sick and suffering woman, and I recommend it with all my heart."

TO-DAY'S DEATH LIST IN CITY AND VICINITY, IS A LONG ONE.

HERMAN TRUMPOUR.

Word has been received here of the death of Mr. Herman Trumpour, which occurred at Winnipeg on Saturday, deceased was a former resident of Hillier, Prince Edward County, and has built known here last fall he went to Montreal to reside with his daughter. Mr. Trumpour was 67 years of age and nearly all his life was spent in Prince Edward County. Four sons and two daughters survive, one of the daughters being Mrs. D. E Grass, Front of Thurlow. The remains are en route for interment at Hillier.

R. SHAW.

Mr Russell Shaw died last evening at the residence of his sister, Mrs. A. McDonald, Point Ann. Deceased was in his 65th year and unmarried. His came from Toronto originally and was employed at Point Ann in connection with the cement works.

MRS. MARY E. HALE.

Death came very suddenly last evening to Mrs. Mary E. Hale, relict of the late Mr. Wm. Hale, who resided on Church street. Deceased was yesterday about the house attending to her duties and about 8 o'clock her daughter, who lives next door, called in to see her mother. Not finding her in the house, she went out into the garden and found her lying on the ground. At first it was thought that she had fainted, but death had claimed her as a victim. Heart disease being the cause. Mrs. Hale was born at Wrighting, Eng., 64 years ago, and had resided in Belleville some 50 years. She was a lady who was well known and respected by all who knew her. She was a member of the Reformed Episcopal Church. Two sons, George, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Thompson, of Ottawa, are surviving members of the family.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

WARDEN DOUGLAS PRESIDED AT THE OPENING SESSION TO-DAY.

The June session of the County Council was commenced in the Council Chamber, Shire Hall, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Warden Douglas presiding. The various representatives were:

No. 1 Division.—Messrs. R. Mallory and Geo. Nicholson.

No. 2 Division.—Mr. H. K. Dennis and Mr. Fred. Wallbridge.

No 3 Division.—Messrs. A. McFarlane and D. Hanley.

No. 4 Division.—Messrs. A. Kirk and J. Fleming.

No. 5 Division.—Messrs. T. V. Thompson and F. H. Parker.

No. 6 Division.—Messrs. A. Nicholson and P. P. Clark.

No. 7 Division.—Messrs. W. Dougan and R. Leacock.

After the Council had been called to order, at 2 o'clock, the Clerk read Saturday morning session in January last read. The Warden addressed the Council as follows:

Gentlemen,—Since our January session one of our members, Mr. E. T. Porter, has died, and Mr. John Fleming has been elected to fill his place for the remainder of the term. Mr. Porter was a man who seemed to place on record a resolution showing the high esteem in which he was held by members of this body of the Council.

I am much pleased to meet all of you present, looking able to take hold of the work of the session with your wonted energy.

I have the Clerk will, as always heretofore, give us any assistance we may need whenever he is in position. The superintendent of Gravel Roads and the Chairman of the Committee on Roads and Bridges will report to the County system of roads, and will give us their report on the general condition of the same, with an estimate of the sum that will be required, and this year to keep the roads and bridges in a good and safe state for travel.

The Executive Committee have been looking after matters in the past year as a report of what they have done will be submitted to you.

I am sorry to have to say that there seems no prospect in the front of the County for an abundant harvest. Our Treasurer, on account of poor health, did not have the accounts for 1902 ready for audit in time to get them printed for this session, but the auditors are now about through with their work, and we may expect their report before the session closes. Our indebtedness is not as large as I know, will be only the ordinary current bills, and Jail maintenance, equalization of assessments, estimates for all expenditures of the year, etc.

Our Clerk informed me that the health officer of the Belleville Hospital wish to visit us on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in hope of meeting with the Board of Health of the County to aid in paying off the indebtedness of the Isolation Hospital. I bespeak for them a hearty welcome and a careful consideration of their wants.

I trust the same harmony will prevail at this session that has characterized our meetings for the past, and that each and every one will do all he can to promote the interest of the matters we have to deal with.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Lovers of lacrosse are promised a treat on Dominion Day afternoon, when the swift local team will play Campbellford on the old Cricket field down by the rolling hills. The Campbellford team used to cut quite a wide swath in the Trent Valley League, and will probably give the locals a good game. Go and see a good game of lacrosse and help the boys along. They say it's worth the whole price of admission to see the Indians play.

They must have a hot time at lacrosse matches in Winnipeg. On Victoria Day the Shamrocks and Winnipegs played a match. It was started and the players and some of the spectators interfered. Four of the players were arrested and fined in the police court for participating in the fight.

Twenty-four balls were used in a recent baseball match between the Athletics and Washingtons, at Philadelphia. When a ball strikes in either of the bleachers it is never returned.

Ottawa Citizen: Ten thousand people cheered a Granford lacrosse team that hadn't a game of Beantown's member. What would the 10,000 do if the team were made up of Brantford boys. The Telephone City's line-up comes from the ends of the earth.

The Montreal Sunday Sun has this item in answer to a correspondent: "Pitcher Sullivan is at present at his home in Kingston, where he is warden in the penitentiary."

Pittsburg shut out Philadelphia yesterday, making a record of six successive games without a run made by their opponents. The Pirates are surely playing wonderful ball.

TRAP SHOOTING.

Dominion of Canada Trap Shooting and Game Protective Association.

The annual tournament of the above association will be held at Toronto on August 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st, and bids fair to rival in point of attendance the recent "Grand Canadian Handicap" shoot at Kansas City, Mo. A large number of valuable and several individual cups have already paid their affiliation fee. The cash fee is $5.00, individual $2.00, and must be in the hands of Mr. A. W. Throop, Secy-Treas., Ottawa, Ont., not later than June 18th. The tournament is open to Canadian amateurs only, and includes members of the clubs and individuals who affiliate will be eligible to compete. The President of the association, Mr. Thomas A. Duff, of Toronto, is hard at work securing valuable trophies for competition, and hopes to out-do his efforts of last year.

The "Grand Canadian Handicap" representing the individual championship and "Mail" Trophy, representing the five man team championship will be decided at the same shoot, besides many other interesting individual and team events. Valuable assistance in game and fish protection has also been rendered to the Provincial Governments. Every gun and game club should affiliate.

METHODISTS WERE DEEPLY DISAPPOINTED.

BECAUSE OF THE GOVERNMENT'S FAILURE TO INTRODUCE TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION.

Oshawa, Ont., June 5.—The Rev. Dr. Crosby's motion, a resolution at the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference to-day, expressing dissent from the present dealing with the Chinese question by the Dominion. The matter was put into the hands of a committee of five to report upon it.

The report on temperance and moral reform threatened to precipitate a long debate, but all direct reference to either party was eliminated, and the main resolution in it reads as follows:

"We regard the referendum as a splendid triumph, and a mandate on the part of the people for the abolition of the bar from the liquor system, and the drinking of liquor in public rooms. We desire to express deep and bitter disappointment and regret that further temperance legislation has been postponed during the present session of the House of Commons, that the vote was such as to warrant immediate legislation to carry out the will of the people."

It is expected that the conference will close a little after noon to-morrow.

AN NEW SILK HAT

The Story Goes Up to a Little Plot to Have Joy With the Purchaser.

The young man who prides himself upon his swell and dapper appearance had just bought a new silk hat, and it had been sent to the office from the hat store. It arrived while he was at luncheon, and one of the boys remembered it, and after the messenger had gone handed out the prize for general inspection. It was certainly a beauty, but the man who cannot afford to wear a silk hat never sees anything in any other person wearing one. So the gang got a little plot to have joy with the sporty purchaser.

The new hat was taken away in the clothes closet, and the office boy was sent to the County Democracy headquarters to borrow the worst old plug hat that could be found in the rooms—one that had been through all the parades for years and had been kicked from pillar to post. The boy got it all right, and it was carefully stowed in the hat box and placed on the swell youth's desk. He came bursting in soon afterward and jumped toward the package.

"Oh, my new hat came, did it?" he asked beginning to unwrap the package. "Well, say, you fellows can 'kid' a silk hat all you want to, but here's one that's a——"

He got that far before he opened the box and took out the ancient plug, which looked like a vain regret. Then he made some remarks which are unfit for publication.

"Oh, show 'em," he shouted, while the crowd kept up the roar of laughter to relieve him. "I'll let 'em know that they're playing jokes on!" and he jammed the old hat back in the box preparatory to going back to the hat store with it. It was time to make the switch again, and one of the boys called him into the private office a moment on something very important, while another shifted the hats and put the new one back in the box.

Returning from the momentary conference, the indignant young man tied up the hat box and stamped away to the hat store.

"What do you mean," he demanded, slamming the box down and nervously pulling at the string, "by sending me an old wreck of a hat like—this?" and he pulled out the ancient plug. "I never had bought a few hours before."

What the salesman said and thought and what the young man said and realized are not necessary to the story. It ought to and right here.—From the Chicago Chronicle.

A New Copleston.

The heir of the gilded household had just proposed to the pretty kitchen maid. She regarded him with a steady glance as she polished off her rounded arms with a coarse towel.

"I must have time," Thursday out," she said.

"Yes," he murmured.

"And every Sunday afternoon."

"Yes."

"And every night as soon as the dishes are done up."

"Yes."

"How many in family?"

"Only you and me."

"Any children?"

"No-no-no."

"Much company?"

"Very little."

"Any furnace to tend?"

"No."

"Hired man to do all the outside work?"

"Yes."

"What make of piano do you use?"

"Don't own one."

"Let me think. Ah, yes. I shall insist upon having the breakfast room to receive my beaux in."

"Well by thunder, you don't get it!" cried the gilded heir as he turned and stalked away.

So the maid haughtily rolled up her sleeves again and went back to her work.

Proved the Bishop a Liar.

A clergyman desirous of a living went to the Bishop of London and asked him for an introduction to the Lord Chancellor Thurlow. The bishop said he should be willing to give it, but an introduction from me would defeat the very end you have in view. However, the clergyman persisted in the request and the introduction was given.

The Lord Chancellor received him with surly. "So that awful scoundrel, the Bishop of London, has given you an introduction; as it is he who has introduced you, you will certainly not get the living."

"Well, so the bishop said, my lord," said the clergyman.

"Did the bishop say so?" thundered Lord Thurlow. "Then he's a convicted liar, and I'll prove him so; you shall have the living." And the man got it.

Strange Customs.

"Mother," said a thoughtful Boston child, to his maternal relative.

"What is it, Waldo?"

"Is Philadelphia older than Boston, mother?"

"Why, no, dear, no, my son. The first settlement was made in Charleston in 1670, while William Penn did not arrive on the site of Philadelphia until fifty-two years later."

"That was always my impression, mother. But how is it that Philadelphia is mentioned in the Bible, while Boston is not?"—Exchange.

"One of George Washington's slaves recently died at the age of 123."

"That's very interesting."

"Because they are usually body servants or coachmen."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Great Man and a Child.

In his reminiscences of Horace Greeley in the "Youth's Companion" series of Recollections of Famous Editors, Edward Brooks says that Greeley could bear a great sorrow or a great disappointment with the fortitude of a stoic, but trifling annoyances would provoke him to an outburst of wrath that was simply ridiculous. The death of his little daughter Ida, and Abolished son, was to him an awful blow. No man can know by what the typos did one of his editors endured, his grief coloring the drops of his heart's blood. But a typographical blunder, especially if it were in one of his leading articles, drove him to spasms; then his maledictions on the head of the printer and proofreader were something blood-curdling to hear.

One morning he went swiftly down to the "Tribune" office to find the compositor who had made a bad error in setting the types for one of his editorial articles in the paper. Bounding upstairs into the composing-room, with blue fire in his eyes and shaking the paper folded across the page to show the offence, he shrieked, "Show me the man! Show me the man that did this!" The error had already been made a topic of discussion in the office, and the culprit, a very old man who had been with Mr. Greeley on the "New Yorker" and on the "Tribune" ever after, came out from behind his case and trembling, pleaded guilty. The editor standing there in the full height and strength of his manhood, looked down on the little old man with a startled air, and then, turning away, invited Brooks into the office to talk him (Greeley) downstairs.

On his education, Mr. Greeley said it "was picked up by the way." It is natural that one who knew him should wonder what manner of man he might have been if he had been trained and disciplined in an institution of learning. He might have been a very much greater man, Edward Mr. Brooks; but then, too, his raw resources might not have been so strong and stimulating under a scholastic rule.

"When he was a child of nine years he was offered free tuition in the academy at Exeter, New Hampshire. His parents declined the offer, partly through pride, Mr. Greeley thought, although sometimes because his mother was unwilling to part with him at that tender age. Later in life, speaking of his own failure to secure an academic course of instruction, he said: "I suppose it ought to be sorry, but I am not much."

Mr. Greeley affected contempt for college-educated men, and was accustomed to say, with great emphasis, "Of all cattle, the most useless is a newspaper office is a college-bred man!" This seemed to be an affectation intended to justify his own lack of scholarship, as if he were shining example of what a great editor could be without special training. As a matter of fact, adds Mr. Brooks, during my term of service on the "Tribune" a majority of the men on the staff were college-bred men.

Some Epigrams on Growing Old.

Max O'Rell, in an article on "Old Women," says, among other things:

"A woman who knows how to grow old gracefully is a delight; but an old woman, whose wrinkled grimaces try to be inviting, voluptuous smiles, whose skeleton, loaded with diamonds, seems to crack as it sits on the point of crumbling to dust, who has a painted face, dyed hair, and false teeth—that woman should be veiled. It is the most horrible sight in the world.

"For a man, love is an expectation at twenty, an irresistible desire at thirty, a habit at forty, an indulgence at fifty, a bestiality at sixty, and a profanation at seventy. For a woman love is a dream at twenty, an experience at thirty, and a reminiscence after forty.

"Balzac, the greatest authority on love and women, and the most worldly-wise observer of the human heart who ever lived, says that the best and most artistic effect of a dress or coiffure made for a woman is at fifty-two, and that a woman is perfect only at thirty-five. There is hope for some of us.

"Happy the woman who knows how to grow old! Happy the husband especially!

"I have heard it said that few women know how to get old. However true this may be, the old woman to whom believes that she is still attractive is much less ridiculous than the old man who believes that he is still irresistible."

Stuck to It.

In a school for colored children there was a little boy who would persist in saying "have went." The teacher kept him in one day after school. "Now, while I am out of the room you may write have went fifty times." When the teacher came back he looked at the boy's paper, and there was "have gone fifty times. On the other side was written: "I have went home."

EVIDENCE TO BE PRINTED

Mr. Whitney Heckled Premier Until He at Last Consented.

Debate Will in Meantime Go on With Nine Typewritten Copies During the Night—Delay, on Printing Evidence of Conboy Trial, Mr. St. John Said the Judges Had Rejected Evidence in Making Their Report.

Toronto, June 10.—Mr. Whitney again questioned the Premier as to the intention of the Government in respect to the printing of the evidence taken in the Gamey investigation yesterday afternoon. Mr. Ross said there was some objection to it owing to the cost, and they would have to let it go at that.

The Leader replied that his objections to printing a mass of stuff that would never be perused. There were several copies of the evidence in existence, and the gentlemen opposite could get all the material they required from them.

Mr. Whitney declared that he had been unable to get a copy of the evidence. The Premier informed him that if he had applied to him he could have got one.

Judges Rejected Evidence.

Mr. St. John argued that the judges were not judges in that capacity, but were merely commissioners to collect and report the evidence. The only judges were the Legislature and the people, and they should be furnished with the evidence. He charged that in many instances the summary of the commissioners was misleading, and were many misstatements and misquotations, and the Legislature would not be able to agree with the question if they had not the evidence. Mr. St. John was about to proceed when Mr. Ross and the Attorney-General called out simultaneously, "Question!"

"If you desire me to stop talking I will do it," remarked Mr. St. John, and collapsed into his seat.

Col. Matheson moved the resolution re the Cane Spring and Chew Bros'. timber limits, of which he gave notice on Monday, and it was passed without discussion.

Statute Law Amendment.

The House went into committee on "The Statute Law Amendment Act, 1903." "This is an omnibus bill and covers a lot of changes in the statute law.

The Toronto bill went through as reported by the Private Bills Committee.

Speed of Autos.

When Mr. Preston's bill to regulate the speed of motor vehicles came up for its third reading Mr. Stratton moved an amendment providing for the appointment of officials to issue permits to automobilists. He assured the leader of the Opposition, who feared that the bill merely opened the way for a new class of officials, that the appointments would be given where possible to officers having other duties under the Government.

Third Readings.

The third reading of the bill respecting the assessment of the property of James Playfair in the Town of Midland, was, after some discussion, declared carried on division.

These bills were passed: Third readings—To amend the Consolidated Railway Act (Latchford); to amend the Act to permit municipalities to use voting machines (Pettypiece); respecting Boards of Education in cities and cities (Harcourt); to incorporate the Midland Terminal Railway Co. (Matheson); respecting the Town of Aurora (Davis); respecting the City of Toronto (Crawford); to regulate the speed of motor vehicles (Preston); to amend the Municipal Drainage Act (Brown); respecting the Town of Rat Portage (Cameron, Port Arthur); respecting the Town of Port Arthur (Conmee); respecting the Southwestern Traction Co. (Taylor.)

Evening Session.

In the evening, the Municipal Amendment Act, 1903, which is the result of the year's work of the Municipal Committee, was taken up in committee. After a discussion on the clause which provided that the bill to return to the old system of electors and to give representative voting power, according to the assessment of their districts, on matters involving the expenditure of more than $1,000, the vote was taken on it. The chairman declared it carried out. The vote was 29 to 32, but several members professed that they did not understand the question put. After a dozen members had expressed their views, the chairman again called for the ayes and nays, the motion finally being declared carried on the overwhelming vote. Mr. Whitney stood with the Premier for yea.

The bill occupied almost the whole of the evening session.

Evidence Will Be Printed.

Just before adjournment Mr. Whitney asked for to-day's program, and the Premier informed him that supply would be taken up, and probably the interprovincial conference. Mr. Whitney again urged that the Gamey evidence be printed. It would be in the judgment, and he was willing to take the major portion of the responsibility.

Mr. Ross said the work would probably require 10 days, and it might be necessary to adjourn for a few days. However, if the Opposition would accept copies of the typewritten evidence for the purpose of the debate the Government would undertake to have the evidence printed.

This was satisfactory.

The House adjourned at 11.20.

A STRAIGHT DIVISION.

Party Lines Were Drawn in the Public Accounts Committee.

In the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature yesterday morning Mr. J. M. Gibson, chairman of the savings department of the Dominion Bank, was called as to T. C. Tayfair's account, but threw no further light on the matter.

Col. Matheson then moved that the committee report to the House this (yesterday) afternoon that T. C. Taylor, Esq., Auditor of the Legislature, had testified as to obtaining $1,000 from a Mr. Gamey in connection with the sale of a lot in the Township of Cramahe, transferred by the Government to Chew Bros., with the request that the committee be instructed to call Mr. Gamey forthwith.

For the motion—Carscallen, Elliott, Graham, Matheson and Preston—5.

Against the motion—Bowman, Caldwell, Davis, James, Latchford, Little (Norfolk), Michaud, Pettypiece and Taylor—9.

Mr. St. John then moved the original motion in the following terms, viz.: That the committee having been informed by Mr. Taylor that Messrs. Smythe and Tucker, Conservatives, the division was 9 to 9. By the casting vote of the chairman against the motion.

Later in the morning Mr. Matheson moved that Messrs. Manly Chew, Geo. Chew and Edwin Lazenby, of Midland, be summoned to appear before the Public Accounts Committee at ..... (this) morning. Mr. Graham ruled it out of order, because the committee could not report to the departmental business of 1901 London, June 10.—The annual London, June 10.—The annual camp of instruction for the London Military district commenced yesterday in Carlings' Height. All the troops were under canvas by 5 p.m. Drill begins this morning at 8.30. Lord Dundonald and staff are expected here in a couple of days.

TARIFF RESOLUTION LOST

Mr. Borden's Proposal Declared to Be Inopportune.

More Protection to the Iron and Steel Industry Denied—The Government's Equivocal Reply to the Leader of the Opposition—Mr. Tarte With Opposition and Would Accept Copies of the Typewritten Evidence for the Purpose of the Debate in the Government—Work Undertaken to have the Evidence Printed.

Ottawa, June 10.—Mr. R. L. Borden's resolution calling for an immediate adjustment of the duties on iron and steel was debated in the House yesterday.

Mr. Borden, in moving his resolution, stated that it was introduced in pursuance of a policy decided upon several weeks previously, and was one of several resolutions that the Opposition proposed to bring forward. The Iron Industry was a very important one to any country possessing the proper resources and material for developing it. And every country possessing these resources had either first or last given the industry such protection as had rendered its full development. Take England the iron and steel industry had obtained a firm footing under protection. Take the introduction of free trade in 1847. The iron industry was transformed. Then it afforded the materials useful and necessary to the manufacturing of any country in the world, because of the large number of men it employed, and because it was the foundation for many other industries.

Canada, possessing the necessary resources and raw material, should give it such protection as would enable us to utilize to the fullest possible extent those raw materials and resources. Then the prosperity of the industry should not be made a success.

Give It Protection.

"I believe," said Mr. Borden in conclusion, "that the time has come for this Government to take this matter into consideration. The time has already done so. I would have been glad had the Government so desired to let this matter stand over until a later day on that ground, but as in request of the hon. Minister of Finance, I feel it my duty to proceed with my amendment. It is not made with any idea of staying the hand of the Government or hampering the Government, but with the profound conviction that it is necessary in the interests of Canada to-day, in the interest of the iron industry, upon which the houses and furniture of so many of our people depend. But we should have some greater measure of protecting that industry.

Revise the Tariff.

"I recognize the fact that in dealing with the duties upon iron and steel, the Government would be obliged to give consideration to other industries in this country, and probably to revise our tariff in respect of many articles into which the manufacture of iron and steel enter. So far as we on this side of the House are concerned, we are not afraid of the situation. We believe that there should be such a revision of the tariff generally, and not limited to iron and steel, and if the Government in deciding to give some measure of increased protection to the iron and steel industry, finds it necessary to make some alteration of the tariff in connection with articles into which the manufacture of iron and steel enter, on this side of the House will be glad to lend them a helping hand, and support them in the increase of protection to these industries, which we think is in the interests of the country demand. The Parliament of Canada could do no better work than pay attention to that revision at once."

Mr. Borden then moved his resolution for an immediate adjustment of the duties on iron and steel.

The Government's Reply.

The Government gave an equivocal reply, which, however, is not without hope to the industry in whose behalf the demand for increased protection is made. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. W. S. Fielding both argued that the industry was not depressed and that the present is not an opportune moment for aiding the iron and steel industry. The Minister of Finance made it fairly clear that there will be no change in duties. If the Government decided to act it would be along the line of increased protection. The Minister's words were to strongly indicate that the iron and steel industry will be assisted in this way, but not until further information has been obtained concerning the operation of the company at Sydney.

Most Give Statement.

The Premier told the House that the company in question had been asked to give the Government a statement explaining its affairs and showing how much of the $2,000,000 responsible for the unsatisfactory order is to be in a very favorable condition. The various standing com-

McKenzie Got the Money.

The Markstay and Warren road question was taken up. Hon. A. S. McMaster, to whom $180 had been voted for road work on July 30th, three days before the election, gave evidence that he was a Conservative, anyway; it had not influenced his vote, and that he had done the road work. He said he was from a Gaelic community and did not understand English very well. He didn't execute a mortgage, and could not give a reason. He testified that W. J. Cockburn of Sudbury was the prominent Liberal worker, had delivered the money to him. There is no statutory declaration read in the House he said he got the money himself.

A. Ledoire, of Markstay, was also called. He said he was the local post office, and sent Mr. McMaster his name. He got no registered letters in the office. He denied that Cockburn took him the registered letter, and said Mr. McMaster delivered it, although he did not remember giving it to him personally.

VICTORY OVER THE TRAFFIC.

Lady Henry Somerset's Prediction For the W.C.T.U.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 10.—At yesterday's session of the convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union the presiding officer, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., read Lady Henry Somerset's Presidential address in which she predicted with confidence that the eventual outcome of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's fight would be a complete victory over the liquor traffic. She said permit were alive to the danger and referred to the fact that France and Sweden were strenuously fighting the evil. Lady Somerset concluded with an appeal for the exaltation of the home, asserting that the work of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union could best be summed up in the words of a tired founder, the late Miss Frances Willard; "to make the world safer for women, and more homelike for humanity."

A Boom For Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 10.—It was settled yesterday that Hamilton is to have another immense factory that will employ several thousand hands. It will be an extension of the present factory of the Westinghouse Company, which now manufactures air brakes. Electrical apparatus of all kinds will be manufactured in addition to the plant. The capital will be $1,500,000.

announced when the resolution on ways and means is taken up by the House.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Bell (Pictou), Kendall (C. B.), Osler (Toronto), Clancy (Bothwell), Lennox (Ont.), supported Mr. Borden's resolution), Pringle (Cornwall), Oliver (Alberta), Rubus Pope, and Hegri Bourassa, whose speech was the feature of the night debate.

Mr. Bourassa made a vicious onslaught on Hon. George Cox and James Tarte. These men, Bourassa said, boomed the stock of the Dominion Steel Company at the very time that they were begging the Government to come to the rescue of the industry. Mr. Bourassa denounced the conduct of Messrs. Cox and Tarte in vigorous language, and amid long applause demanded the investigation of the books of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company. Mr. Hoyd of South Brant manifested similar views.

The division the resolution found 47 supporters, while 91 voted against it. Mr. Tarte voted with the Opposition, Calvin of Kingston, Jaelet-Robinson, and MacEwan of North Wellington voted with the Government.

ARTILLERY HORSES KILLED.

Seven of 11th and 18th R.C.F.A.: Damaged in a Train Ditching.

Enterprise, June 10.—Train No. 5, Grand Trunk Railway, running from Tweed to Deseronto, was ditched this morning, moving mountain guns into a spread frog in a switch. The 11th and 16th Field Batteries were on the train, with guns and horses, etc., en route for camp at Deseronto. The engine left the track, smashing the guns badly. Six horses were also killed, killing five horses. The baggage car coaches did not leave the track and no one was hurt.

The Militia Camps.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 10.—The weather yesterday was perfect. The regiments continued to arrive from early forenoon till dark. At 6 o'clock all were under canvas, the last of the arrivals being the Dufferin Foresters, and C. and D. Companies of the O.G.D. They were welcomed by the Corona.. The camp consists of the second division, consisting of the 2nd Dragoons and the 3rd Cavalry Brigade. Every regiment is somewhat under strength. Lt.-Col. Gunn is assigned as the reason by the officers. It has been definitely announced that Lord Dundonald, C.-in-C., will arrive from London on Monday.

London, June 10.—The annual camp of instruction for the London military district commenced yesterday in Carlings' Height. All the troops were under canvas by 5 p.m. Drill begins this morning at 8.30. Lord Dundonald and staff are expected here in a couple of days.

GREAT FIRE AT PEKIN.

Boards of Revenue and Rites Buildings in Flames.

Pekin, June 10. — The extensive buildings occupied by the Boards of Revenue and Rites are in flames from end to end. The revenue building contains four million taels. The burning buildings adjoin the legations, and the foreign military guards are doing effective work. The Chinese fire department, equipped chiefly with banners and gongs, is helpless.

Atlas Co. Liabilities.

Toronto, June 10.—A statement of the liabilities of the Atlas Loan and Saving Company of St. Thomas was filed yesterday, the amount being stated at $687,000. The company was incorporated in 1887 with capital stock of $2,000,000 in 20,000 shares of $100 each. About 10,000 of these are said to have been subscribed, and $300,000 paid up. The company is indebted to its depositors in $225,000, and to debenture holders $332,000. The statement of the assets has been given.

St. Thomas, June 10.—A. E. Wallace, president of the Atlas Loan Co., writes a letter to the shareholders in which he says: "When I left Toronto I had $162,100 in the capital account of the A. E. Ames Company, and in Toronto and $50,000 of cash in cash in stock in the Atlas Loan Company, together with a certain interest between both of $125,000 or $237,000 in all, and in addition to this all the moneys of relatives very close to me, you can realize the confidence I had in the management of both." He winds up by saying that he has only his health to contribute on, but he hopes to pay everyone in full.

Orangemen in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, June 10.—The Supreme Grand Orange Lodge opened here yesterday. Dr. Sproule, Supreme Grand Master, arrived from Ottawa. The Grand Black Chapter of British American Royal Black Knights of Ireland met in session yesterday. There was a large and representative delegation present. The Grand Master's report, the Grand Secretary's report and Grand Treasurer's report were presented, showing the society to be in a very flourishing condition. The various standing committees of the Grand Chapter were appointed, after which an adjournment was made until this morning. The Grand Orange Lodge of British America will meet this afternoon.

Heintzman Went to Manitoba.

Toronto, June 10.—Up through the Highlands of Ontario in one of the most comfortable trains that the G. T. R. could put at their service, 300 members of the visiting Editorial Association had a glorious time yesterday on the Muskoka lines. The beautiful scenery of which viewed from the Medora of the Muskoka Navigation Company's fleet, elicited the warmest of eulogistic and envious expressions from the visitors.

Anglican Synod Has Convened.

Toronto, June 10.—The annual meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto commenced its Sunday school-house yesterday morning with a large attendance of clerical and lay representatives. The sermon of the opening session was the address of the Bishop of Toronto, who, summarizing the work of the past year, and pointing out some of the needs of the present situation from the ecclesiastical standpoint.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The Annie Lake proved her seaworthiness yesterday, afternoon by carrying, with ease, the heavy men from all over the County.

The Ontario Legislature will progress this week. Let's see, will they call this the "scandalous session?"

Brockville Times: The political atmosphere in Ontario is putrid with cracked work. It is a disgrace to Canada and to British subjects.

Strong words, those. But who, taking recent events into consideration, will say they are too strong?

AN OMINOUS CHANGE.

(Huntingdon Gleaner, Grit.)

Unless it can be explained as due to accidental conditions, the fact that Canada's exports dropped by four million dollars in value in April is ominous of a change in the Dominion's prosperity. It is the first check in the pace that has prevailed for over 5 years.

The Ringlings are in Hamilton, and oh! how the thirsty newspaper men in that city will carry the giraffes "their long necks!"

Mr. Brown, of Rawdon, if his story, as told to the County Council, is true, surely deserves sympathy. Mr. Brown says he had a team, wagon, etc., stolen from his premises, and it cost him $60 to get his property back. But the most serious part of Mr. Brown's story is that, as alleged by him, the county officials, who are paid to do such things, did not render him the assistance in the matter which he, as a taxpayer in the County of Hastings, had a right to expect. It is surely up to the County Fathers to investigate Mr. Brown's story. If it is correct; then there is a bump coming to some official. Whatever way it turns out, it is certainly the duty of the County Council, under the circumstances, to look into the matter.

Only four more days, and the fish story season will open.

These are the days when the average man is counting the days to the time when his wife can commence to count that he'll be counting his money to see how long it will last.

A Front street merchant drew attention to the case of young William Sinclair, a hardened young reprobate, who has just been sent to the Industrial School for an indefinite period. This city, the complainant pertinently says, will have to pay the cost of young Monahan's maintenance while he is in the Industrial School, while the complainant says, will amount to $2 per week. Why was this boy not sent to the Reformatory, where the cost of his maintenance and safe-keeping would be defrayed by the Government? This appears to be a highly pertinent question. Surely the official who sent young Monahan to the Industrial School would like to answer it.

The annual picnic of all the people of the County of Prince Edward will be held at the famous Grand Banks on Saturday next, the 13th instant. There is a good deal of intelligence among our neighbors, and on occasions of this kind they combine "intellectual" improvement with the usual al fresco pleasures of a picnic. Public questions will be discussed, and the terms "Equalization of Taxation" and the "Transportation Problem." In the list of speakers announced for the occasion we notice the name of ex-Mayor J. W. Johnson, of Belleville.

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Peterboro Examiner: A lacrosse match that is creating considerable interest in local sporting circles is the O.L.A. game here on June 27th between the Athletics and Belleville. The Bay City team is credited with having a strong aggregation with to play a swift combination from goal to goal. They will have to travel a swift pace, however, to keep up with the Athletics, and the game ought to draw a big crowd. Whitty, who played goal for Copper Cliff, is playing on the home of the Belleville team, and Boyd, of Toronto Junction Shamrocks, is also on the line-up. Belleville's "dark horse" is figured out to be three real men, who are said to be speedy.

The Peterboro people evidently have a healthy respect for Belleville's team, which is quite justifiable.

Don't forget the exhibition game between Campbellford and the locals to-morrow afternoon. Turn out and encourage the boys.

Following is the team which will oppose Campbellford to-morrow;

Goal, MacFee; Point, Hitchon; Cover Point, Dan'l; 1st Defence, Cook; 2nd Defence, W. Ford; 3rd Defence, F. Kirby; Centre, McGuire; 3rd Home, D. Diabo; 2nd Home, H. Kennedy; 1st Home, W. Whitty; Outside Home, Burke; Inside Home, J. Diabo; Field Captain, B. Ford.

FERROL

(The Iron-Oil Food)

An Ideal Combination

Everybody knows that iron and Cod Liver Oil are the greatest system-builders known to medical science. Nearly everybody knows, too, that most people find it very difficult and sometimes impossible to take and digest Cod Liver Oil or Iron. This trouble is completely removed by the introduction of FERROL, which combines Iron with Cod Liver Oil and a modicum of Phosphorus in an emulsion pleasant to take and so easy to assimilate that infants digest it without difficulty.

The County Council.

Tuesday, June 9.

After His Honor had addressed the Council, a number of communications, petitions, etc., were read.

An invitation was read from the Belleville Portland Cement Company, asking the Council to visit the works at Point Ann this afternoon at 3.30. A motion the invitation was accepted.

From the Laura Secord Memorial Association asking the Council to assist in erecting a suitable national memorial to the late Laura Secord.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

From the Agricultural Department at Toronto, stating that the system of County Councils nominating and selecting a pupil from the County to receive free tuition at the Agricultural College would henceforth be abolished.—Received and filed.

A petition was presented from a number of ratepayers of Thomasburg and vicinity, asking for a grant of $15 towards erecting a drinking trough for horses on the gravel road leading from Belleville to Tweed.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

A petition was presented asking for a grant of $50 to assist in placing Lower Crook bridge in a proper state of repair.—Referred to the Gravel Roads Committee.

A communication was read from the County Clerk of Northumberland County, asking the County Council of Hastings to consider favorably the rebuilding of a bridge over Squire's Creek, on the boundary line between the Townships of Seymour and Rawdon.—Referred to Roads and Bridges Committee.

Mr. McKinnon, who resides in the Township of Marmora, appeared before the Council in reference to cutting down some trees in front of his premises on the County road. He had received the sanction of the Township Council before he cut the trees.

Mr. McFarlane asked how many trees were cut.

Mr. McKinnon said there were 54 spruce, elm trees, cut.

Mr. Thompson thought the Township Council should assume all responsibility in the matter.

Mr. McFarlane protested against trees being cut in this manner along the County roads.

On motion the matter was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Mr. H. Brown, of Rawdon, addressed the Council. He said that on the 20th of May a team of horses, wagon, harness, robes, etc., were stolen from his premises, and it had cost him about $60 to get back his property. He asked the Council to bear a portion of the expense. He claimed he had not got the help from the County officials in this matter that he should have received. The County Constable to whom the matter was reported, Mr. Brown alleged, made no effort to recover the property.

Mr. McFarlane, whilst sympathizing with Mr. Brown, thought it would be a bad precedent for the County to pay out any money. If the proper authorities had not done their duty the matter should be investigated.

The matter was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

Council adjourned.

WEDNESDAY MORNING SESSION.

Council resumed at 10 a.m., Warden Douglas presiding.

Mr. McClam, chairman of the special committee appointed to look with making necessary improvements to County jail and County buildings, reported that the total expenditure of the work done was $312.78.

The County Clerk stated that he had advertised for tenders for building a steel bridge over the Scout River, at Bridgewater, and also one at Madoc. He expected to have tenders ready by Friday.

A report was presented showing that $209 had been expended in purchasing wood for County buildings for the past winter.

Mr. McFarlane, chairman of the special committee appointed to deal with the matter of arranging a lump sum per annum to be paid to Mr. D. J. M. Anderson as County Auditor, reported that Mr. Anderson had agreed to take $1,050 per annum as his salary from the County, instead of fees as heretofore.

On motion the report was adopted, after Messrs. McFarlane and Hanley had spoken in favor of it. Both contended that it would be better to pay a stated sum per annum than fees.

On motion the Council went into Committee of the Whole on equalization, Mr. Mallory in the chair.

Mr. McFarlane moved, seconded by Mr. Geo. Nicholson, that the equalization for 1903 be the same as that of 1902.

The Warden thought that there was an injustice done to the Townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure. The equalization was considerably in advance of the assessment, which was also very high.

Mr. McFarlane was of the opinion that there might be some changes made in some of the Townships of the northern portion of the County.

Mr. Clarke said that the assessment of the Township of Madoc was $401,262 and the equalization $475,000. This, he considered, was not a fair equalization. The assessment was high. He could not support the motion made.

Mr. A. Nicholson thought Madoc Township was unfairly dealt with in this matter. Last year $75,000 was added to the equalization, although the assessment did not warrant it. There should be a reduction.

Mr. McFarlane said this was a knotty question. The price of land, he claimed, had increased in the northern part of the County, whilst in the south it had decreased.

Mr. Geo. Nicholson was not in favor of reducing the equalization of Madoc Township. He had lived there and had had a large portion of good land.

Mr. Deroche said that this matter had been thoroughly discussed two years ago. He did not think Madoc Township was assessed at what it should be.

THE BEST LINIMENT.

"I have derived great benefit from the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and lumbago," says Mrs. Annie Hagerman, of Tuckahoe, N. J. "My husband used it for a spraind back and was also quickly relieved.

THE MELROSE OIL WELL.

RUMOR THAT THE LONG-EXPECTED STRIKE HAS BEEN MADE.

Rumors were rife on the streets today that oil had been struck at the Melrose well, but none of the parties in this city who are financially interested in the enterprise knew anything about it. One party told us that the good news was brought in by a man on a coal cart. The story was that gas was struck first, and immediately afterwards the oil came. Three barrels had already been secured, and a couple of teams were in the city. Up to the hour of going to press, however, neither the bottle nor the man could be located. It looks as though the story came by truthless telegraphy.

The Wife of Potiphar.

The country of the Nile was beautiful with verdure. The sky was a dream of light and changeable glory; the long avenues of the sphinx led through cities to the city of the Pharaohs, bearing the purple glory of the Tyrian dye, rare gems and metal work from Damascus and carved ebony and ivory from beyond the fates of the Sea.

A train of dusky men and dusty camels wound up in silhouette over a ridge, and for a few moments formed a huge picture of Egypt, with one dimension horizon. On one of the camels was a magnificent canopied litter, thick curtains of silk, and within the curtains sat unseen by all eyes a beautiful woman. She had all the beauty of the young Semite, large and soft dark eyes, an oval face, aquiline nose, over-full lips of deep red, and nostrils sensitive and distended.

From time to time she plucked aside the curtains with a jeweled hand and looked anxiously out. "God of Abraham, thy handmaid sitteth there," she said softly in a voice broken with sadness and utter misery pitched. "Let no help come not soon from above, may death release me!"

Two of the Egyptian traders looked up as some murmur of her whimsical tones reached them. One was a young man, tall, erect, over-full lips of deep red, and nostrils sensitive and distended.

From time to time she plucked aside the curtains with a jeweled hand and looked anxiously out. "God of Abraham, thy handmaid sitteth there," she said softly in a voice broken with sadness and utter misery pitched. "Let no help come not soon from above, may death release me!"

Two of the Egyptian traders looked up as some murmur of her whimsical tones reached them. One was a young man, tall, erect, over-full lips of deep red, and nostrils sensitive and distended.

The other was older, with a heavy beard and a face of the Semitic type. The younger, glancing at the parting of the curtains and the face that thrust there, touched the arm of the other captive who speaks her tongue and let him enjoin, "Look, Ahab!"

The younger man stood still, and one by one the others gathered with camels laden and men walking. Near the end of the line marched a beautiful girl, just emerging into manhood. The young trader looked at her with cold eyes. She was the same to his side.

"I fear for the health of the maiden," he said briefly, "Ahab!" and then aid question her."

The eyes of the youth flashed a proud glance at the trader, and then he drew away from him, and with the quick look of one who sees something enthralling in the distance, crept into the litter beside her.

"The Jewish maiden travels to high honor. Wherefore should she sicken before it meets her? It is her mind that prevails in fear of the birth of some new horror," he said, briefly. "The lamb cries for the lion, the young for the dam, the mother and its nest. What need for questions? When the maid sits among the mighty ones in a strange land she will learn to forget her sorrow."

"You say wisely, boy," said the trader. "The day of the maid is much gold to a noble captain of Pharaoh's guard. He has lost his wife, and there is no woman in progress. In times of peace warriors are prone to look upon such fair women."

The two had hastened and were now at the head of the caravan, the canopy which swayed to the rolling gait of the camel.

"Speak to the maid," commanded the trader.

"Daughter of my people, is all well with thee?" called the youth, his young cheek reddening with shame, before the curtains parted.

"Art thou, too, a Hebrew?" cried the girl, with amazement and delight in every tone.

"I am, and, like thee, a captive, fought and lost bondage by my brethren," said the youth, with deep, hoarse anguish.

"Alas! then can you tell what is to be our fate?" asked the girl with great fear in her eyes.

"Slavery for me, for thee high honor, riches, luxury, and the captain of Pharaoh's Guard to be thy husband," said the youth, with a sad, proud smile.

"I have told her that she is to be the wife of the captain of Pharaoh's Guard, and she will not say saying," he said, meekly.

The trader laughed. "She liketh not!" he said scornfully, quoting the maiden's words. "When she knows she will fall at his feet. That is our finest chief wheat crop, and by her what I say." The youth obeyed.

"That I am a Hebrew and may not mate with a heathen and idolatrous man!" gasped the girl wildly.

"Thou shalt worship the hand of our God be upon thee," he said, and fell back to his place in the rear.

The captain of the Guard sat in his chamber, and for many hours his slaves carried stand a heap of exquisite gems. There were rings of gold, studded with amets and anklets, long pear-shaped pearls, strings of rubies, and necklets set with great royal rubies, and emeralds deeply cut and graved in green. He suddenly sat up and smote his palms together, and a Nubian parted a curtain and stood.

"Take these gifts to the Hebrew maiden, and let her prepare herself for my coming," said the warrior, pushing aside the heap of gifting, flashing ornaments. The Nubian gathered an end of the curtain in his hand and softly placed the selected jewels within the improvised bag, and, with speechless, backed out between the curtains. The warrior leaned back with a smile.

"Hatchi will not know pain with me," he said, softly stroking his short beard and crooning over it. "I have given her only the new ornaments and the jewels of my own country, and my wife wore would bring her misfortune, but I am not a coward, to fear such a talk thus! This comes of loitering at home, when one should be abroad conquering and receiving the fighting over-way about."

A great yawn heaved the warrior's deep chest. He swept the remaining gems into a coffer, of which he drew a small golden key from his bosom. Then he rose and left the room, and again the curtains parted and forth between them appeared the Hebrew youth. He was dressed in rich and costly garb, and his bearing was distinctly distinguished. He bowed ceremoniously and stood before the warrior. Potiphar laughed easily and good-naturedly.

"Hast thou word, Joseph?" he enquired.

"All words are good, noble captain. They know is well ordered, thy goods are well cared. The land hath peace."

"That last word is not good for fighting men, Hebrew. I would we came with the coming sun, even prospect, even battle.

"The thy wedding eve, noble captain," said the lit brave quickly.

"Yea, said I, 'tis well, my friend," assented Potiphar. "Send a slave for the Hebrew maid, pull the curtains, the stars-place. It contains precious jew-

The Hebrew bowed and turned away. Just as he lifted the curtains to enter the chamber a terrible stop was heard. A messenger mat him on the threshold and handed him a rolled papyrus. "Pharaoh desires the captain of the Guard," whispered the messenger, as he deferentially presented the roll, and the reverent turned back to his master and repeated the message.

"My chariot!" cried the captain, leaping from his seat. "Hebrew, I have my wish. It is war, and in the battle where there are fighting fighters, Pharaoh's the king, desires me take men his day and night. Ahab, my chariot! This stirs my sleeping blood! This suits me better than bridal and bridal-ale! But, stay! the Hebrew maiden. Go to her, tell her, privately of this, that for the king must be the first to tell the people. I do not think many days will be called because the nuptials must be delayed. Tell the maiden, who is also a lady-in-waiting, that for the appointment I will, when I return, give to her freedom. And signed her, Hebrew, till that day, be it far or near!"

The captain bowed and went upon his errand. On his proud face was a look of awe and triumph.

"All the God of the Hebrew hath encompassed the maiden!" he said slowly and low. "And the slaves and soldiers of Pharaoh as he stroke away, and whispered: "The Hebrew has gone to his office! The light of the unknown is upon his face."

The war dragged slowly, news came fitfully, and week by week the bride of Potiphar and the overseer of his household were drawn by the triple cord of mentality, religion and the common border and nearer. The Hebrew maiden lived secluded from the city and the palace, and for many weary hours in converse day by day with the overseer, and together they sat beneath the portion of their fathers in their hearts. The maiden lifted her beautiful head in hope as she listened to the voice of Joseph, encouraging and inspiring the frightened soul. The inevitable happened at last, and an unguarded look and a lost too much confessed the love that was as natural as it was pure, and the two faced the great temptation test, terror and rapture. Escape from Egypt was impossible; a hopeless separation of their love was equally out of the question. The city was given over being decked for the triumphant return of the captain of the Guard.

The day was entry dawned, and the heart of the overseer was of lead, while the anguished face of the young victorious warrior had now added to the horror of mine with an idiotroal man the torture of love for another.

While the house of the captain of the Guard was being wreathed with flowers, and the city decked and canopy seating at the gates with lotus crowns and stringed instruments garlanded with wreaths of green, the overseer, in his sumptuous festival garments, sought the Hebrew girl, the set and pale her maidens in silent despair. The overseer bowed low before her.

"Dismiss the maidens," he said, in low, deep speech, and, made curious by her extremity, she rose hurriedly. "Is it indeed true that the lord of the house is near?" she said in Egyptian, misleading them. "Then to the first of my maidens who sees the shining of his armor will I give this ring of rubies. Run, now, to the upper windows and watch."

The Egyptian girls dropped their work and hurried up the short stair to the flat roof, round which was a high wall to prevent any small accident. The overseer stood moodily looking upon the ground. The Hebrew girl drew near timidly and clasping her hands upon her fluttering bosom, where jewels flashed with her panting breath, looked up into his young and clouded face.

"Is there no escape for me?" she said in trembling tones. "Must it be either the knife or the marriage-bed with the Minister of Pharaoh?" she said violently.

"I have said it, and I am not afraid," said the girl, her great eyes darkening and her nostrils expanding with fear.

The overseer paused a moment. "There is no escape," he said slowly. "Fear not, for I love thee, and I will die. "It will not be so very bad," she said, trying to feel how she could live safely, and thou, some day, will tell the people of me? That I love thee? And then, before the overseer could anticipate her movement she drew herself, she threw herself into his arms, clinging about him and sobbing farewell!"

There was a burst of song from the city, a flare of torches, and the overseer wrenched the thin, clinging arms from his neck and flung the girl from his rich garment. They had a whole life, they knew, to part.

There was a rush of the maidens, a tramp of a heavy foot beyond the curtain, and the overseer was whispering. "The captain of the Guard is here."

With one frenzied movement he slipped from the gorgeous robe and dashed behind the curtains, just as the maidens scurried laughing down the stair, and the captain of the Guard with the parted curtains gave admission to the captain of the Guard.

The girl stood in the center of the chamber, her face white and drawn, her big dark brilliant robe of the overseer, in her eyes a horror unspeakable. The captain of the Guard advanced with a quick glance about him.

"He was not here?" he said in his rebe?"

The girl suddenly dropped it with a faint cry. She began to see horror and danger ahead.

"You are not hurt?" said the captain of the Guard, gently, touching her shoulder. She shook her head. Then he turned to the maidens.

"Go to the bazaars," he said, sternly, "and send me here four of my soldiers and the wait without."

The moment the curtain fell the Hebrew girl broke into a paroxysm of terror. In few and stumbling Egyptian phrases she tried to tell the truth, making for swift death, and handing her pitiful little dagger to the captain of the Guard. He pushed it aside.

"Peace, girl!" he said shortly. "I'll have pleasant and joyous home-coming." Then, as the soldiers noisely entered, he said grimly: "Take this robe to him who was overseer. 'Tis well he fled before I entered to slay him! Tell him that the maiden is brave and strong; but 'tis best of all that the Hebrew is ready far away, so that his affright may not prevail to his hurt." He bade with terror the bride of your captain. Therefore by him make his little prize, and your lives be forfeit if might befall him. Hasten! and you, girl, be ready quickly and quietly, so that the rejoicings be not interrupted."

The soldiers gathered up the rich robe and fretted, and the captain of the Guard turned to the Hebrew maiden. "Come, let us go to the feast," he said simply. But she made no response.

She looked blankly at him one instant with a curious furrow across her brow and an audible sucking in of her breath. Then she swayed and fell. Then he lifted her up very gently and without concern, only the little golden belt of the dagger showed outside the pile of drapery just below the girl's breast. The blade was piercing the point of her startled heart!

The wailing and chanting of passing mourners pierced the dungeon window-place, where the overseer sat with his head in his hands. "What is the wailing?" he asked his jailer. "They mourn the dead, that was to have been the bride of Potiphar, the warrior whom Pharaoh honored," said the jailer.

"At the hour of thy coming here," replied the jailer. Then he stared with amaze, for she intended kept in his feet, his despair vanishing in a cloud.

"Praise and glory and honor and power to Jehovah, the God of my fathers!" he cried, reverently, in Hebrew, and with fixed eyes he stood as if in a trance. Suddenly he shook his head and went softly to his window. "I hear him not, I see him not, I see the unseen," he muttered. "His God is mine and He is powerful, who smote Osiris and the gods of the Egyptians cannot comprehend him."

The years were many and the captain of the Guard and the jailer had long been dead when the Hebrew captive was free, but never from the darkness and misery, and again such as was upon it during the first hour of his captivity, before he knew that the wife of Potiphar had sealed her faith with her heart's blood.

An old settler.—From U. S. "Life."

Testing It For Herself.

He watched her arranging the violets in the big Kaklit bowl.

She looked so very pretty, and yet she was so cold.

Lighting a cigarette, he braced himself. He felt cold. As he tossed the match in the direction of the blazing fire, he came toward her, holding in her hand a few of the purple flowers.

"For you," she said, simply, and proceeded to his side as she put them in his buttonhole.

Then she bent and kissed him, slowly and deliberately. He sat transfixed. Then all their pleasure he had never before touched his.

"You could recover himself she kissed him again.

Not a word nor a caress accompanied her action. She stood out against a background of utter incomprehensible.

Then she walked over by the fire. He looked anxiously after her.

She faced about, and he saw that her face was moving slightly, while her eyes had a far-off gaze.

At last she spoke.

"You can marry her!"

There was a pause—she seemed to be fighting for further utterance—and then—

"You can marry her. I don't care at all. You see, I kissed you on purpose. I did it twice to make sure, and I didn't feel even the faintest quiver either time. I was very careful. You can marry her, I repeat, and I know now that—that you can marry her."

He rose, his form and his rage towering above her. What mean could she on learning that his lips possess no power to thrill?

"Good-bye," he said, putting out his hand.

"Good-bye," she answered, smiling.

He went out, and the door closed behind him.

She stood where he left her, banding her clasped fingers across her eyes. The sunlight streamed in between the window arches and shot its ray of glory over the violets, the woman and the woman's yellow hair. It struck the diamonds on her hand, to sparkle brilliantly, and something on her sheet to glitter.

"Dear heaven!" she murmured, softly. "What must it be to have him do the kissing!

Literary Success.

"The main element o literary success," said the publisher, "is originality."

"Not at all," replied the author. "Life."

Pains in the Back For Twenty Years

COULD NOT TURN OVER IN BED—KIDNEYS AND BLADDER AFFECTED — TERRIBLE GREAT SUFFERING—CURED BY.....

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

The old people especially appreciate the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because the kidneys are usually the first of the bodily organs to give out, and then result in backache, lumbago, pains in the side and groins, dropsy, nervousness and constipation.

Old people learn to trust in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, for when all other treatments fail this great medicine seems to go right to the seat of disease part, and promptly affords relief and cure.

Mr. David Misener, farmer, an old and respected resident of Port Robinson, Welland county, Ont., writes: "I wish to state to you that I had pain in my back and left side for over twenty years. At times I could not turn over in bed, I was so badly drawn up. I had cramps in my feet and legs, and my hands were so entirely useless that I could scarcely lift anything.

"Kidney disease was, no doubt, the cause of all my suffering, and sometimes the urinary trouble would be so bad that I would have to get up five or six times during the night. Fortunately, I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they cured me completely. I am 69 years old, and quite well now, but still occasionally use these pills to keep my system in good order. Several persons to whom I have recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been very much benefitted."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the comfort of old age, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

The London Express of April 30 says: "The War Office has decided, as the result of a prolonged inquiry, to try by court-martial the officers concerned in the 'rag-ging' of a civilian, Mr. Hardwicke Rawnsley, at the Mount Nelson Hotel, in Cape Town, on Christmas Eve, 1901. It will be remembered that, in answer to a question on the subject put by Mr. Swift MacNeill in the House of Commons at the beginning of last month, Mr. Brodrick replied that he could say nothing until the inquiry was completed. He did not mention that Mr. Stanford would have preferred to let the matter drop, but that the War Office was determined, and after much correspondence between Lord Roberts, whose strong views on "ragging" are well known, and Lord Kitchener, the decision of the officers implicated in the affair to submit to a court-martial was arrived at. The cases are briefly as follows: A party of officers staying at the Mount Nelson Hotel gave a dinner on Christmas Eve, 1901. Mr. Stanford's name was on the dance committee, and the dinner was planned—reason certain persons declared Mr. Rawnsley was not to be invited. Unless Mr. Rawnsley was invited, the committee declared, they would not attend. They were informed that Mr. Stanford was a pro-lieor, but there was no ground whatever for the belief, and Mr. Stanford, being innocent of any offence implied against him, attended. Late in the early hours of the morning, about 2 o'clock, Mr. Rawnsley was carried into a room where they shaved half of his moustache, stripped him, and afterwards twice threw him into a pond in the garden. He was released at 4 a.m. after being compelled to sign a paper stating that the affair was a joke, and that he bore no malice against anyone. The incident became known to the police, and, in the civil courts Mr. Stanford was awarded £1,200 damages and full costs, but it is believed that the money has yet to be paid in full.

Falls of the Zambesi.

Within a very few weeks the Cape-to-Cairo Railway will have reached the famous falls of the Zambesi, says The Tablet. In some respects these tremendous falls quite throw Niagara into the shade. The Victoria Falls are double the width and more than twice the height of the Niagara Falls, as will be seen in the following table:—

	Width.	Height.	Estimated average.
Niagara Falls	¾ mile	158 to 167 ft.	7,000,000 cubic ft. per min.
Victoria Falls	1 mile	400 ft.	20,000,000 cubic ft. per min.

It was one of the favorite projects of Cecil Rhodes to utilize the power that has here been running to waste for ages, for the good of all Africa. At the present moment plans are being prepared in an office in Johannesburg, and likely to go far towards converting Rhodes's dream into a reality. The engineer in charge at this office has been staying to utilize the power from the Victoria Falls for working railways, for pumping towns—including Bulawayo, 20 miles away—supplying currents to the mines in northern and southern Rhodesia, and generally for the use of the whole continent. Experts state that in the whole of Mr. Francis Fox's any amount of power required could be obtained, and that an available head of at least 400 feet could be utilized. Each of the tube eight feet in diameter would drive a turbine of 10,000 horse power. Three tubes would be sufficient to drive the entire machinery of the Victoria Falls Power Company, and the remaining tubes would be held in reserve. The question of voltage is not yet determined, but there will be no difficulty in distributing current over an area of 30 miles radius. At the present moment the tension is being successfully carried over 60 miles in California, and by the use of very high voltages the distance may be increased even further. Making use of the power from the falls, power thus harnessed can be applied to the various industries which will spring up under authority granted by the Chartered Company. Coal is found in the district, and timber will serve for manufacturing on the spot all the various products which can be obtained by electrical energy in at once apparent what a great future lies before us. At the present time large areas of land are being taken up in Rhodesia and Nyasaland, thousands of miles by sea and land to the numerous points of consumption within a few hundred miles of the falls. In other words, both the natural raw materials and the power are at the door of the Rhodesian population and need only to be rightly developed.

A Real Gentleman.

Judge—And you say you were a good story is told of Tom Reed. The Telegraph—A driver had the reputation of having a fine foot-terrier, so" at once pulling up, he went back, expressed his regret at the

Then he drove off, while the man observed to Tuffle: "What a real gentleman! I wonder what the dog that was?"

Tuffle—Why, Sir Sidney Sharpe, of course, with the accompanying illustration.

A Hot Spot to Work In.

The engineers digging the wonderful tunnel that runs through the great Simplon Mountain to connect Switzerland with Italy are experiencing great difficulties because of the presence of boiling water in the mountain. The water comes from the top of the mountain, and is heated almost to boiling point by the friction and pressure of its progress through the limestone beds of the mountain. Before the tunnel was half finished the heat was so great that it was impossible to live in it. The water was piped, and does flow in huge volume of steaming hot water was flowing out of the south end of the tunnel every minute of the day and night. The immense flow naturally hampered the men who drive rapid progress through the rock. Now, however, a new feature of the tunnel has been reduced from a height that would have re-sted a man in a minute or two, and the atmosphere now has the pleasant warmth of a June day. The hot water also drives pneumatic drills and boring machines, so that it helps to work its own way out. The Simplon tunnel will be the biggest in the world—fourteen miles long, with a cost of nearly $3,000,000 a mile.

THEY SHOOK FIRECRACKERS AT ME

I was born with a weak stomach. It was a constant struggle with me from infancy. It fails at intervals of regularity. Sulfur would help some but not permanently. Then I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. They set me right and kept me right. I am now 21 years old, and will have the skin of a healthy girl. I am sure Burdock Blood Bitters will be another witness to their success.

Doing good is the only secretary that pays a dividend to the giver.

MAD LA GRIPPE—Mr. A. Nielson, Mt. Forest, Ont., writes: "I had a bad cold, or La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back. I got a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil which one spoonful relieved me of my pain. I rubbed it on well and it did me all the good in the world. I would say that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best medicine in the world for pain."

Truth never leaves any trail.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really makes them a perfect little pill. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets or Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Sugar Coated." It takes away the sting to take the pellets, so to speak, and the effect is lasting.

A DEAFNESS DOOR—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED—A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY. Dr. Sheridan, the eminent adviser and others told me I could not succeed in when I recommended Dr. Hartman & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. I have used it myself and many of his kind. For three years I could not eat a meal of any consequence without suffering ills. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking this vegetable Discovery consisted of a cup of beef tea daily and one cracker. I have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it came out, and all the people in this section know how long I suffered, and how completely I am cured. They are eager to buy it. Many have said it has certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover first. I most gratefully endorse it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute to the public good and trust it may be the means of conferring the same great benefit on others in care for Dyspepsia.

Yours truly, JEAN VALCOURT, Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant.

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Slowly the minister stepped forward and, adjusting his spectacles, eagerly scanned the three dejected little figures before him in the same old attitude. At last the old minister turned to the father whose white face was burried in his hands, and to him he addressed his reply:

"I have been looked upon these three young ladies, and I am firmly convinced that one of them is Harold St. John's wife—lawfully wedded in him at the time and place to whom I speak—but, in the same sentence doubly sure, I would test my memory that I may serve as guide to the proper one. Then two"—rousing to Hetty and Daisy—"stand in the middle and step before the altar in the same old church, as the couple stood when I first married that man, and then I will answer you which of these two is the wife."

"Courage, darling," whispered poor Hetty. "The minister cannot decide, and when there is doubt there is hope that all can be well yet."

"Hush, hush," interrupted Daisy. "Listen to what Alexis is saying; he can be agreeable to the proposition. Oh, Hetty—Hetty, the sight of that old church gives me a chill. I cannot stand."

"Put it must be, darling," responded Hetty; "we must brave it out to the last."

"Then I cannot see your life wrecked for me—even to save me," replied Daisy, pitcously; "oh, how I wish I had not stayed my hand when I wanted to take my life that night. You certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover first. I most gratefully thank you. The Story of the Black Dog.

By C. K. BURROW.

The following mysterious story is taken from Mr. Burrow's new book, "Patrick, Priest and Parricide." The narrator is an elderly lady, Mrs. Charteris, who relates the legend as an example of Irish folk-lore tale, but who more than half believes it.

MY grandfather, Patrick Gavan, of Formoy, was a quiet man to look at—slight, neither tall nor short, with a face that was always pale, dead pale, and eyes that never flinched from man or devil. But, though he looked quiet, he was as wild a roystering fellow as ever stepped on two feet, ready to do the first thing that came into his head, good or bad; it was his misfortune that the bad came the easiest. He had a way with him that made him welcome wherever he went, and many a man, and many a woman, too, rued the day that Patrick Gavan's black eyes first crossed theirs. Well, he married at last, and took his bride to the house on the banks of the Inishwater. She was a lovely young creature, gentle and timid, as you may see from her portrait there; they were as badly matched as tiger and fawn, and she soon began to drood. He was not united to her; my grandfather never ill-used a woman; but after a time he took to his old ways, and she just sat down and watched and wondered where it would end. He was a terribly hard drinker, but his head was so strong that he himself seldom got drunk, and one of his delights was to get together a dozen of his wildest neighbors at a great dinner, and see them go under the table one by one. When this kind of thing went on, his wife would sit in her own room and listen and tremble; once she had tried to get in, but the door was locked, which frightened her more, for she had seen the poor fools soaking their brains within. She crept back to her little oratory and prayed the night on her knees, praying for herself, husband and the child that was to call him father.

When the child was born, and for a month after, my grandfather was quiet as a lamb; that was the happiest time of the woman's life, for he would carry the boy up and down, and up and down, never tiring, while she watched them from the bed she was too weak to leave. She thought to herself that her prayers were answered, and that Patrick was a changed man; and he saw what was in her mind and kept a tight hold on himself; but after a time the devil got hold of him by the throat again, and he must needs be at the old tricks.

The fancy that took him was to have one of his dinners, and he arranged it all without letting a word reach his wife; but, in case she should hear, he invited Father Coghlan, the priest who had christened the boy, with the rest. When the night came the poor sick lady was lying up in her room, and he went to her, before the guests arrived —I dare say feeling remorseful at heart—and sat down with the boy on his knees.

"A cold!" she asked.

"Yes, and with snow on the ground," said he.

"I'm sorry for that."

"Why, mo chroidhe?" he said, and stretched a thin hand to him across the bed. He took it in his and kissed it. "It's a cold little hand," he said.

"As cold as a snowflake," said she, and smiled softly, and asked for the boy. He laid him on her breast, the child that was to be my father, and she closed her eyes and seemed to sleep. Then he went down to receive the dead guests.

After the eating was over and the wine carried in (those were the claret-drinking days you must remember), my grandfather locked the door, as usual, and clapped a brace of loaded pistols on the table. "The man who stirs from this room," said he, "before the bottle is empty, knows what to expect."

There, except Father Coghlan, was used to this business of the pistols. The priest looked from them to the locked door and back at Gavan with a queer light in his eyes, but he said nothing; only rubbed the side of his chin and drew his under lip back over his teeth.

Well, the drinking began, and went on hour after hour. My grandfather sat pale and upright at the head of the table, while the air grew hotter and the fumes of the liquor reeked around him; one by one the table was all splashed and dabbled with wine, many of the guests were wet with it; some of them fell forward with spread arms and slept; others slipped to the ground and lay there like logs.

I know this is not a pretty story for a woman to tell, but it's true, and I can see it all. God help the men, I say, who do such things!

There Patrick Gavan sat, and not his own glass was ever empty, neither was the priest's, but when the raised it it was only to moisten his lips. At the time he watched my grandfather, and ever his face grew harder, more gray with a kind of bitter sadness. At last Gavan saw that he was not drinking at all, and cried:

"Father Coghlan," he said, "drink." "A host does not command his guests," said the priest.

"I command mine," cried the other. "I shall not drink, and I bid you open that door and let me go."

My grandfather caught and balanced one of the pistols in his hand.

"You can't frighten me," said the priest. "I command you, in God's name, to open that door, and let me leave this hell's kitchen!"

"Drink!" said Gavan, setting a hair-trigger.

At that moment Father Coghlan lifted a warning hand.

"Hush!" he said, "I hear a cry!"

"It's the wind."

"It's no wind, but a child or a woman."

"I hear nothing. Drink!"

As the last word left his lips, there came a hurried scratching at the door; a minute later it sounded under the window. The two men looked at each other, the priest had gone as pale as death, but he stood ready, with the fingers of one hand clasped tightly round a cross which he wore. The scratching went on, and my grandfather moved to the window and opened it, still carrying the pistol in his hand. A black dog leaped into the room, and a breath of cold air followed him. The dog's coat was dry, and his feet were wet, but he made no marks upon the polished floor.

The children and servants and waiting-maids and drunken sleepers, turned aside from the priest, and then paused before Gavan, with his eyes shining like coals, and his tongue lolling out at the side of his mouth. It was no dog of my grandfather's, nor had he ever seen it before.

"Go to hell!" he cried, and fired full at his head. The dog snapped, and there the dog still stood, watching, with his wicked eyes fixed on Gavan, and his red tongue quivering. Just then they both heard a cry, clear and shrill as the call of a pewit; the dog lifted his black head, and in a second had jumped through the open window without a sound.

There was no need for the priest to speak again in a flash my grandfather had the door open, and they both ran upstairs to the wife's room. She was lying dead, with the child asleep on her breast, and on her hand, as plain as letters in a book, was a red mark in the shape of a dog's tongue.

You might have supposed that this would change my grandfather's life. Well, it did, for some years. He looked after the boy, taught him to ride as soon as he could walk, and all the freedom that was good for him, and perhaps more; and saw him grow up into a fine healthy lad who could hold his own in any company. But he was a changed man, and a sound brain as well. But I think it must be the hardest thing in the world for a man who has once led the kind of life my grandfather was used to to leave it altogether behind him. When the boy no longer needed his personal protection, and the duties of teaching him had passed to other hands, he began to go back to the old ways, and if these had been bad in the young man they were ten times worse in the old. He took a curious delicacy in everything that affected my father, gave him good counsel from the depth of his own experience, and concealed from him the darkest places in his own life. But the lad heard stories and kept his eyes open, and knew many things which his father would have given his heart's blood to conceal. The boy, however, had a clean upright soul, and his mother's strain to the good, and no sediment.

And Patrick Gavan reached home. It was already evening; he had ridden hard and far, and was in no condition to enter upon the night's work, but that fact made him the more determined to see it through. He dressed hurriedly, and by the time the guests were in sight he was ready. But the hour struck and passed, and no guests came; and then, turning to the cellar, he found that he had made a mistake in the date, and that the feast preparations should have been made for the morrow. However, he sat down to table, where all the covers were laid, and had every course served, and the wine brought in; and when the time came, he sent the servants away, locked the door, and laid the pistols beside him.

It was winter again, and the night was still and cold. The house was as quiet as an empty room, so that the noise of the Blackwater running at the foot of the garden could be heard where my grandfather sat. He shivered, and threw more logs on the fire, which already blazed like a furnace; then he began to drink.

The hours passed by until it was past midnight, at which time Gavan rose and addressed each empty place in turn, as though his friends were there, asking them to drink with him; but there were only the places laid, and he called twelve names, and the last that he called was Father Coghlan's.

"Father Coghlan," he cried, "drink;" He stood with his glass raised, and his gaze fixed at the level of a man's eyes, his pale face set in a grim smile. He saw the priest before him as plainly as I see you, and he must have heard him speak as well, for after a time he said:

"I hear nothing. Drink!"

And then, on a sudden, there came a scratching at the door. He stood there slanted in his hand and some wine splashed upon the floor, but he steadied himself with an oath, drank, and sat down; still looking toward the door, where the priest had sat. Presently the scratching ceased, but a moment later it sounded from beneath the window. At that Gavan's jaw dropped, and a sweat broke out upon his white face, but he did not stir. The scratching now ran all round the house, louder and fiercer, until it seemed like a voice calling to him to open; after a time it drew back to his feet and a few paces toward the window, and as it increased it drew him fairly. Then, still at last his hand was on the bar of the shutter, and next

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson labe' they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the taiors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so a. to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them count, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

STROKE PROVED FATAL

MRS. THOMAS EARLE PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

In the death of Mrs. Thomas Earle, which occurred yesterday afternoon at the family residence, Grove St., a well-known and much respected lady passed away. On Friday last she was seized while stricken with paralysis, followed by another stroke on Sunday, which proved fatal. Mrs. Earle, whose maiden name was Miss Rhoda Reed, was born in the township of Thurlow, near Corbyville, in April of 1826, being this in her 78th year. For some time after her marriage deceases resided with her late husband in Thurlow and at Shannonville, but the greater portion of her life has been spent in this city. Mr. Earle died some few years ago. Mrs. Earle was a member of the Reformed Episcopal Church. She was in very poor state of the word a true christian lady, a devoted wife and a loving mother. The surviving members of the family are five sons and three daughters, the sons being S. R., of Toronto; Thos. and John, of Picton; W. H., at present in South Africa and Nathaniel, of this city; the daughters are Mrs. Chas. Anderson, of Melrose; Mikes Minnie and Ida, at home. Deceased will be extended the sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends.

WHY CATARRHOZONE CURES CATARRH.

It goes to every affected part and kills the germs that keep up the diseased condition. Catarrhozone never irritates, but stimulates the nauseous lining of the nose, throat and lungs to normal action, and keeps the nasal passages free from offensive discharges. Catarrhozone contains no dangerous drugs or opiates and is delightfully pleasant and simple to use. Catarrhozone is an absolutely certain cure for any form of Catarrh and sells for one dollar. Complete, of small size 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHATTERTON.

The dry weather has made many long faces in this vicinity.

Quite a number from this place attended the garden party at Foxboro in aid of the church.

The many friends of Mr. J. Waddell congratulate him on taking such a popular young lady of Marsh Hill for a companion for life. Mr. and Mrs. Waddell will take up their residence near Chatterton.

Mrs. Morden, who has been ill, is slowly recovering.

Another wedding is soon to take place among our young people of Marsh Hill.

TRENTVILLE.

On Friday the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Minto, and his staff, passed through our village. His train stopped some minutes at the station. Several were there to see him.

The residence of Albert Prest, in the 9th concession of Thurlow, was destroyed by fire on the 25th of May. All the contents were burned up.

Our village is improving in looks. Mr. Albert Eggleton and Mr. Wm. French have added new verandahs to their dwellings, and Mrs. Jas. Clarke a fresh coat of paint.

MARRIED IN LEAFY JUNE.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING ON NORTH FRONT STREET THIS MORNING.

Rev. Dr. Creighton was the officiating clergyman at a pretty home wedding at the residence of Mr. Chas. Elvins, North Front St., at 11 o'clock this morning, when his daughter, Miss Alice Maud, became the bonny bride of Mr. Russell Clarence Chown, second son of Mr. W. H. Chown, and second vice-president of the W. H. Chown Company, Limited. The bridesmaid was Miss Ida Pringle, and Alf. Salmon filled the role of groomsman. The bride looked charming in a gown of white French organdie, the bridesmaid being attired in an artistic creation of blaque poupinette. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. W. H. Chown, and the brother of the groom, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the happy couple entered the drawing-room, where the ceremony took place. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaid a gold brooch. Presents were received from Toronto, Montreal, Picton and Kingston. The bride, who has been prominent in church work, was also remembered with presents from the members of the Sunday-School Church choir, Junior League and her Sunday school class. Mr. and Mrs. Chown left for the east on a wedding tour, which will embrace visits to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Buffalo. On their return they will reside on Ann St., and will be at home on the 20th inst. The bride's going-away gown was of navy blue cheviot serge, with hat to match. The good wishes of many friends are recorded to Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Chown.

STRONG PRAISE.

FROM ONE WHO HAS PROVED THE VALUE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

"We have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in our home for the past eight years for various troubles, and have found them very successful." Thus writes Mrs. H. Hayward, of West Gravenhurst, Ont., to the newspapers. "At the age of eight years my little boy was afflicted with St. Vitus' dance, the trouble developed into St. Vitus' dance, from which he suffered for a severe form. He was under several doctors at different times, but none of them helped him. We were induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they restored him to perfect health, and there has not since been any return of the trouble. More recently I have used the pills myself for muscular rheumatism, and they were equally successful in effecting a cure. The pills have saved me many a dollar in doctor's bills, and I would like every one who is sick to try them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a positive cure for all troubles depending from poor watery blood, or weak nerves, and that is the reason why they have the most popular medicine in the world, and have a larger sale than any other remedy. They cure such troubles as St. Vitus' dance, partial paralysis, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, indigestion, nervousness, nervous exhaustion, all forms of weakness, such as those arising from the after effects of la grippe, and the ailments common to women, such as those arising from the after effects of la grippe, and the ailments common to women, such as suppressed or irregular menstruation, and all diseases depending upon a vitiated condition of the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. These pills are sold by all dealers or may be had by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, but you should be careful to avoid imitations and substitutes said to be "just as good" and "will give you more." Remember the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, is printed on the wrapper around every box.

Prof. Howard's Lecture.

"THE REFORMATION IN ENGLAND" HANDLED IN A MASTERLY WAY LAST NIGHT.

There was rather a small audience in Christ Church last night to hear Rev. Oswald H. Howard, B.A., B.D., Professor of Church History in the Provincial Diocesan College, lecture on "The Reformation in England." As might be expected, from the Rev. Professor's standing, it contained fact after fact on this subject in a masterly way. Logical conclusions, epigramatic sentences, pure and elegant diction, and an earnestness there was no mistaking were his chief characteristics. One could hardly look for better ones. The reformation in England, he said, was the chief cause of Anglo-Saxon superiority, and should be of deep interest to every English-speaking man and woman. St. Augustine first brought Christianity to England, and he was the first Archbishop of Canterbury. With the coming of the Normans to England the Church of England first began to lose its autonomy and to look more to Rome. King Stephen first allowed the right of appeal from English ecclesiastical courts to the courts of Rome, and King John placed his crown at the feet of the Pope's representative. The result of this was that the Church of England lost the pure doctrines of the Church of Rome, including the monstrous doctrine of transubstantiation, which was instilled into the mind of Henry VIII., who was a strongly intellectual man, and to him the nation looked for great things. The capture of Constantinople by the Turks did more to spread Christianity in Europe than anything else, for the Christians who fled from that city carried with them into Europe the precious manuscripts of the early teachings of the church. Then people saw with amazement that there was a vast difference between the teachings of the Papacy and the teachings of the Apostles. Luther, the great leader of Christianity. From that time dated the awakening and great things that led to the Reformation. Luther was a man who, by his writings, showed that man was justified by faith in Jesus Christ, which he promulgated in the 95 propositions nailing to the indulgences by the Pope's representative. This was the state of affairs on the continent when Henry VIII. came to the throne of England. It was that the amours of Henry VIII. opened the way for the Reformation in England. He had married Katherine of Arragon, his brother's widow, and, not living with her (she was seven years, he became enamored of Anne Boleyn, and then arose the question of conscience began to trouble him and he felt that he had been wrong in marrying his brother's widow. He wanted a divorce, which the Pope refused, and the culminating quarrel between Henry VIII. and the Pope opened the way for the Reformation in England. The lecturer then dwelt on many matters well known to the student of English history, touching the acts of Henry, Cranmer, Latimer et al. The reign of Henry VIII. ended with England a Catholic nation, but denying the supremacy of the Pope. Edward VI., who followed him, was both by inclination and tradition a friend of the reformation, and in 1549 the first Book of Common Prayer was issued. That book was printed almost entirely in English. Then came the second English Prayer Book—printed entirely in English—was published, and that book brought the reformation to England. Edward VI. only reigned six years. He was followed by Queen Mary, who undid all the former ruler had done. Under her reign, which there were many martyrs for the faith, not less than 300 being burned at the stake, but, as had been said, every one who died at the stake strengthened the faith for which he died for Christianity. Mary reigned five years. Then came Elizabeth, who established Protestantism in England, and the reformation was complete.

During the entertainment tuneful sacred solos were rendered by Mrs. A. W. Parker, Master Russell Bell and Mr. Ed. Henthorne, Prof. Willmott playing some appropriate voluntaries.

Resolution of Condolence.

To Mrs. R. T. Porter and family:

In accordance with the directions of the Huntingdon Agricultural Society Board, we take this opportunity on behalf of ourselves, as well as the Township, to extend to you and your family our most heartfelt sympathy in your bereavement, by the departure from this life of a loving husband and kind father. We know that anything we can convey to you by these few lines will not lessen your great grief, but we feel that as a Township Huntingdon has also sustained the sad loss of a useful Councillor, and the united Township, which he represented in County Councillor, a wise legislator, and his pleasing countenance and executive ability will also be greatly missed in the many important positions he held in church and school. Our combined sympathies, prayers and during the sad hours which seem to be in store for you and family, we feel only faintly as less than the strong arm of Him who does all things well.

Dated at Huntingdon this 20th day of May, 1903.

Plumber's Philosophy.

"Captain Stultz," the new tenant by Charles Hubert Clark; ["Max Adeler"] is a plumber who makes a fortune in a short time. When called to account for a blunder of one of his workmen, he explained as follows:

"You see, things is built, quick as Mary Ann can manage 'em. There ain't nothing that was arranged to go exactly right. You know your father, doctor, that if we went sailing along through life smooth and pleasant, like drifting with the tide, we'd never amount to nothing, nor would we?"

"No."

"Very well, then; there's big troubles and there's little troubles. You may lose your money or your health or your reputation, as we see you have, but it'll rain on the day you fix for a picnic, or your train'll be late the day you particularly want to make a connection with, or, in fact, anything you'll annoy you. Now, why do you worry about it?"

"What is your theory, Darius?"

"Why, the way I see we have, as the books say, evidence of design. The world is made, and made, on purpose. And why? Doctor, you know more about it. It was made for our good."

"I have heard something like that before, I think," said the doctor.

"Of course!" it stands to reason. That's right. Trouble is too easy. We need discipline—discipline of adversity. We make a fuss about little things. One patience is tried, and so we know we have patience. Then we have confidence and so forth. You know all about it."

"And you think the man who chokes a flue is appointed to help this discipline?"

"Certainly. Probably he never quite means to choke the flue. Some overpowering outside agency directs him, and he has no choice. He's only the safeguard. He plays his part in the great drama of life. Then you see, he chokes the flue or fixes a pipe to leak in work that he supposes better. You might call him the Angel of Discipline."

"You think, then, that the whole matter is supernatural?"

"Well, I don't know as I quite call it that. It's all natural, as far as I'm fixed. You try to toss a book on the table and it'll take on the floor. If you start to throw it on the floor it would have fell on the table. You go through your house in the dark and hold your arms out straight, and you'll run into a door or door goes between your arms and you hit your nose. You could go through that door a thousand times, broad daylight to get the door into the space between your arms, and you'll hit the post in the dark. Out in the ocean you sail along and there's a rock that you don't see. Slap. Let a fog come up and it's five chances to one you'll run aground in two hours! No, I don't exactly say supernatural, but it's the way things is which the world is built. There isn't no intention that things'll go straight."

"Then you have brought the accident power compelled you to fix the pipe to by inclination?"

"Well, I don't want to shirk no responsibility. I can't say as I was glad. But the fact is I did my very best. I thought it was all right when I left. But there had to be a hitch somewhere for discipline's sake, and I'm glad it come, and so I s'pose my attention was called off, by some mysterious influence, from the job. I've brought the thing to the benefit. You learned something more about your business, and in the case of life when the water came through on the floor, I'll bet a dollar you are the very minute neatest hearthstone—I mean fireplace—in the whole London place in the joint. It ought to have been added to my bill."

"What precisely are his prospects?" "Then you're a fool." "One of the worst climates in England."

McINTOSH BROS.

How He Learned to Count.

The New York Sun has the following: "The expert accountant said, as he carefully shuffled the cards: "If it had not been by a frazzled old pack of cheap playing cards which I kept elaborately hidden in the bottom drawer of the kitchen table and in my little room in my boyhood days on the farm, my services would not now be in such demand by confused financiers. The old-time prejudice against the devil's picture books was strong in my family, but I held on to that pack of cards with determination and many is the caudle I have sneaked out of the pantry to the light of the kitchen fire that I might study the cards when I should have been sound asleep in bed. I was not playing cards, you understand, but I was counting from one to ten in spots, and from eleven to thirteen in words. I used to deal out face cards the remaining value above ten; that is, the jack is eleven, the queen is twelve and the king thirteen. Now, the second part of the thirteen cards of each suit is 14. It can be no more or no less, and I used to add the spots on the face of each one. The constant sum of four units, therefore, must be just four times 14, or 56. Now, with this in mind I evolved my own peculiar system at sight counting. The practice of a fortnight made me so expert at it in comparison with the old method that I was able to do the whole thing without the slightest hesitation for quickness at figures. On examination day the teacher would invariably trot me out, and have me go through the performance until the close of one of the curiosity's of the village academy. But to return to the cards. I do not know what started me first to count them by 14's. I think it was the fact that ranging the ten in regular order, ace to ace, and all 10 cards of each suit in regular sequence from ace up, I started in to add them as they fell. If the sum of the bottom card was 14, that no matter what had been made. If the total was some multiple of 14, that was right, and I worked on it until the number of the formal preparation completed, I took the cards back, arranged them in regular order, and was able to reach the correct total of 364 without error. Then I studied each suit and went at adding the cards as they fell in succession, and in a few months more I perfected myself in that to such an extent that I could run through the pack of 52 adding the fifty-two cards, all shuffled together as this pack is. I had many a hard knock in that, but at last I got so that I could deal the shuffled cards from the top of my hand rapidly, and get through to the total of the fifty-two cards in from two minutes to two minutes and a half. I practiced on this of mine, and never a wor. did I say to anybody about it. I, my old teacher's living yet I would like to tell her how it came to be so quick at the 8, 9, 10 after leaving school' I went to work in a bank, and I used to add up the long rows of figures on the ledger sheets. I stood me in good stead for with a little practice a formidable settlement of any problem in the four rules would be attacked and captured without much trouble."

Curious Bits of News.

An egg-laying contest will be the next international event. Twenty-one of the best hens in the United States have been sailed from San Francisco to compete for a year with an equal number of Australian hens. The Australian Government paid the traveling expenses of the Yankee poultry, and at the end of the year will buy six of the hens at twenty-five dollars apiece. The others will be disposed of by public auction.

A salesman in a Paris dressmaker's establishment, whose salary was twenty-five hundred dollars a year, accepted an offer of three thousand dollars from a rival firm, and promised to forfeit two thousand if she broke the new contract. Thereupon her employer addvanced her yearly to thirty-seven hundred dollars, and agreed to pay the forfeit provided she would make no change. These figures have recently been brought out in a French court of law.

Much interest has lately been aroused in London by two surgical operations which have resulted in a marked change of character in the patients. One was that of a boy of good family who had developed strangely brutal instincts. A clever surgeon examined him with care, and what he considered the seat of the trouble, removed a piece of the skull. All this pitied to be symptomless cure. The lad was restored to his parents a normal and lovable child. The other case was that of a soldier who, after an injury in a skirmish, developed a propensity for theft. An operation on the brain cured him.

Lord Wemyss has the unique distinction of being the only man who ever struck the present King of England. It happened during a debate in the House of Lords, when the King, then Prince of Wales, occupied a seat in front of Lord Wemyss, who was speaking with a great deal of animation. While emphasizing one point he brought his fist down on top of the Prince's silk hat with such force that the hat was smashed in and pitched down over the eyes of the royal listener. Apologies followed. The Prince remarked that he appreciated the force of Lord Wemyss' remarks, and then proved out of range of the lord's energetic arm.

Marie Corelli is out on the warpath again, the object of her wrath this time being Andrew Carnegie. She tried to see his multi-millionaire host in London, the other day, to protest against his alleged vandalism of demolishing two cottages in the homes Henley street, Stratford-on-Avon, to erect a Carnegie free library. But the steel king declined to see the cheery little novelist, who has recently written some slighting things about him for the press. Mr. Carnegie explains his position thus: "The fact is the owner of the property of the local authorities for a free library my responsibility ceases. I have no right and do not wish to interfere with the action of the local authorities in selecting a site. I am quite sure they are as anxious as Miss Corelli to destroy no relic of Shakespeare."

The Annoyance of Trousers.

WOMAN'S ever-changing fashions in dress have afforded the humorist many amusing and have given the satirical writers any amount of material for their work. It is clearly a case of dressing in glass houses and throwing stones. Many fashions have come through quite as many changes, and it is doubtful if the petticoat trouble has had a more varied history than have the garments sometimes known as "the eye of vulgar Logic," said Ruskin, "what is many" An omnivorous bird that would eat anything. Where he never been a Petticoat Bible, yet in the year 1891, a copy of the first portion was printed at Geneva known as the "Trousers Bible." The name arose from an unusual rendering of Genesis iii. 7, Adam, and Eve, after the fall, became aware of fig-leaves, made themselves "breeches." There is no record of the wearing petticoats, yet the first man is reported to have worn breeches. The ancient Greeks wore—divided skirts probably—on horseback only, resuming their flowing draperies when they dismounted. Among the Roman lessons, which were called braccae, were worn only by the soldiers who were exposed to cold and wet climates. They were homemade, to judge from the pictures, and not in the least stylish. Among the Greeks such garments were confined to slaves, the gentlemen reserving the clothes for themselves. The first faint foreshadowing of trousers in the form they took in the time of Richard I. of England, in Spain, as well as in the Low Countries, trunk hose, accidently stashed, stuffed and decorated, were the favorite things among the dandies. The story is related of a luckless courtier who, being seated in the royal box chair upon which was a projecting point, was accidently obliged to let it pay his devoirs to his sovereign. Instantly several pecks of dry wheat dust issued out of his breeches, and the unhappy courtier stood there dinbounded by a spindle and cutting a sorry figure. During the reign of Charles II. of England, when Vandyke's influence was being felt, breeches became of uniform width, and were fringed with lace and were fringed or bordered with lace and fastened with ribbons. Volumes came from the Netherlands, a kind of hose, from trousse, to pack, implement were in origin to St. Pantaleone, a patron saint of the Greek Church. His name was commonly received at baptism by the Venetians, and was by them transferred to this order of garments, which much affected. The term "nanacultotz" originated in the days when sansculottism was raging, a fellow without breeches, and was applied in a term of defiance to the aristocratical party for the popular party. The latter adopted the name of sansculottism, but was later assumed by the patriots as a title of honor. Another term, this which has offended our ears and our sensibilities, is pants. But good old Dr. Johnson defined them as "breeches," with short shrift: "the things named pants—a word not made for gentlemen, but gents." Even among the poets trousers have been considered too prosaic to be put into song. The genial Tom Moore leaves behind him a fragment in the Inspector inspired by a pair of breeches. It seems that the poet was obliged upon one occasion to leave a very pleasant party on account of not having a pair of evening trousers in which to dress for dinner. He scratched upon a fly-leaf the following:

Between Adam and me the great difference
Seems to be
That he wanted a fig
And I wanted a pair of breeches.

Yet when these breeches till turn'd out of his,
While, for want of my breeches, I'm banished from mine.

A Toast to the Bachelor.

A TOAST is offered to the bachelor.
Not to every bachelor, of course, for not all are unworthy. There are plenty who ought to have married, but were too timid, distrustful, lazy, self-indulgent, or incessant. Some of are those who were dazzled in their youth by the splendor and extravagance of life, and stretched out for them hands that could not grasp the possibilities of what they got. There are those who were not to marry. Some of them in moderation, because they didn't, provided they will give bonds to continue single. Others of them broke their hearts, partly from faithlessness, partly from over-much satisfaction, partly from mere lack of grit. No, we may not toast all bachelors. We may not more toast those whom we may! Maintenance of the sanctified, the burdens dropped by other men, providers for the unprovided for, succorers of the frail, defenders of the defenseless, bulwarks of the widow! Oh, what a good, indispensable thing is that bachelor who can make a bigger hole in his income than he can hope to him! The trouble with Benedict is that his hostages are given. There are claims upon his heart, his time, his income. He must consider other people and proprieties. He is a mortgaged man, though he may be ever so good a one. There is no end of his money and affection on Benedict, for he can get it at home, and he can't make a large investment in kind without incurring domestic displeasure. But the bachelor, what a great property he is, and how inestimable a valuable to those who own him! It is a great calling to be a good bachelor, about one bachelor in a hundred makes a fairly satisfactory demonstration that it is his.—Harper's Weekly.

Gambling on the Atlantic.

An English paper charges that the big Atlantic liners are hotbeds of gambling, and supply an easy prey in the shape of foolish young men to the card-sharpers who travel to and fro. Probably there is not a steward on board who does not know the faces of half a dozen of these men, and shipowners the detectives of Liverpool and New York know every one of them. Liners also carry a detective as they carry a surgeon and liftboats; and a quiet hint to the prey that is walking into the snare should be easy and effective.

NEED NOT FEAR DEFEAT

British Finance Debate Develops a Peculiar Situation.

Ministers Secure Irish and Liberal Support Against Their Own Followers—Mr. Balfour's Announcement Before Debate Began—Chaplin's Amendment to the Budget—Free Trade and Protection Advocates Contesting Their Forces.

London, June 10.—The approach of the first serious parliamentary brush in the free trade-protection fight filled every seat in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Before facing the situation, which must largely place them at the mercy of the Liberal and Irish votes, the members of the Government attended an important Cabinet meeting, at which all the Ministers were present except Gerald Balfour, the President of the Board of Trade, who was ill.

Nationalists With Government.

Before the debate opened Premier Balfour was cheered from John Redmond, the Irish leader, that the Nationalist members of Parliament would support the Government against Mr. Chaplin. The Liberal leader, Henry Campbell-Bannerman, had already announced that his party would also uphold the proposal of Chancellor of the Exchequer Ritchie to remit the grain tax. This practically ensured the Government from possible defeat at the hands of its own supporters.

The curious situation created the keenest interest.

Mr. Chaplin's Amendment.

Henry Chaplin (Conservative), former President of the Board of Agriculture, and the unicontent Unionists were actively engaged early in the day in arranging their master in rallying the supporters of Mr. Chaplin's amendment to the budget bill, which declares that the removal of the tax on corn "involves a needless and injurious disturbance of trade and a serious loss of revenue, without advantage to the consumer," and that if any taxes are removed it should be those levied on tea and other articles of general consumption.

Mr. Chaplin referred to the extraordinary position in which the followers of the Government had been placed by the indecision of the Ministers. It was useless, he added, to seek guidance or leadership from them. He concluded with formally moving his amendment, on which, he said, he meant to divide the House.

Stake-Board Supports.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach (Conservative), invited the Chancellor of the Exchequer to say whether the opportunity could be taken for debate on Mr. Chamberlain's proposals. The Speaker replied that it was not relevant to the Budget Bill, as the question of preferential tariff rates between Great Britain and her colonies was not raised in the bill. The scope of the debate was thus largely curtailed at the outset.

The motion was seconded, and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach followed. He began by saying that his view of the general fiscal and political situation was different from the view of Mr. Chaplin.

Sir Michael said his colleagues were perfectly aware that the grain duty might be unpopular when it was imposed. But it had been a success and he had heard the proposal to repeal the duty with surprise and regret. He considered that the duty was necessary because of the growth of expenditure against which he had protested. It was impossible for the Chancellor of the Exchequer to reduce expenditure without the hearty and continuous support of the Premier.

Sir Michael said he was opposed to Mr. Chaplin's amendment, although he sympathized with the latter's objection to the repeal of the grain duty, but believed that the alternative policy to be a greater evil.

World Wrek Empire.

Referring to the suggested preferential tariff, the former Chancellor of the Exchequer declared he yielded to no one in sympathizing with the splendid work of Mr. Chamberlain. The repeal of the grain duty appealed to the speaker to be a direct bar to the adoption of preference principles. A continuance of the Premier's attitude of suspended judgment was impossible.

Mr. Chamberlain's proposals would wreck more than one Ministry in the Empire, and if he persisted in them they would destroy the Unionist party.

Mr. Ritchie Is Firm.

Mr. Ritchie, who made a general reply, read a carefully-prepared statement. The Government, he said, thought there should be an enquiry into the matter of preferential tariffs, but he would be surprised if the inquiry showed any practical means of securing a close policy of preferential duties. He avowed himself to be a convinced free trader, and added that with his present knowledge he could not be a party to a policy which he believed would be detrimental to the interests both of the country and her colonies, and he believed that the enquiry, from which he would not shrink, would confirm his present views.

Mr. Ritchie's outspoken repudiation of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals caused an immense sensation in the lobbies of the House. No such situation had arisen in the parliamentary world since the memorable split on Home rule bill and the keenest interest was manifested in regard to the possible developments.

It was freely predicted yesterday afternoon that the Government will relegate the thorny question of tariff preference to a royal commission, which will insure time for a full consideration of the matter and for testing the growth of popular opinion.

The debate was adjourned after several criticism on Premier Balfour's absence.

BUT ONE STATE UNIVERSITY

Premier Ross Says There Will Be No Duplication of Aid.

Bill to Incorporate Western University Introduced by Premier—Mr. Whitney Secures the Second Reading of His.

Anti-Vaccination Bill, Though It Was Opposed, Gave the People Just Not Controlled.

Toronto, June 11. — University matters and the relationship existing between the Government and the School of Mines at Kingston were discussed in the Legislature yesterday, the matter occupying the attention of the House up till 6 o'clock. Mr. Ferris precipitated the discussion, and got from the leaders of both sides clear-cut declarations as to the assistance that might be expected from the Province towards the Kingston University. Premier Ross said there would be no duplicating Provincial aid to universities, and expressed the strong hope that the western Provincial institutions would affiliate with the State University. Mr. Whitney emphatically stated that greater concessions be placed at the disposal of Toronto University, and until that had been done he would not be in favor of any further grants. Mr. Ross promised to ensure the permanency, so attempt should be made to divide the aid the Province can afford to give.

Mr. Pense's motion which asked for the closer connection between the Government and the School of Mines, Kingston, regarding public control of the school, was then carried.

Anti-Vaccination Bill.

Mr. Kribs, in the Legislature last night, moved the second reading of his anti-vaccination bill. He said the object was to remove the compulsory clauses of the Public Health Act, and read several letters from persons who claimed to be permanently injured by vaccination. Mr. Kribs said it was impossible to tell whether the vaccine used was pure, until it was used, and then the vaccination would be a candidate for the cemetery. He had a petition, signed by 1,271 residents of Galt, which stated that had a smallpox epidemic there no one was fully in accord, and said he believed the leading physicians were opposed to compulsory vaccination. It was as impossible to cure by lymph as it was to have a wholesale disease. Mr. St. John read the opinions of some emiment physicians against the efficacy of vaccination.

Mr. Currie said the trouble was that there was too much dirty vaccination, and, as a rule, where fatal results followed, tetanus was due to the patient scratching the affected arm.

Dr. Reaume, who said he had been vaccinating for 20 years, had yet to see the first evil result. He quoted a bolt of statistics, all favorable to vaccination.

Dr. James continued the discussion, claiming that the subject was more properly one for a medical association than the Legislature.

There were cries of "Withdraw!" and Mr. Kribs summed up by saying that, if the Bill had done nothing else it had shown that doctors were not always careful in vaccinating patients.

The bill was read a second time.

Won't Consult the People.

The House went into committee on Mr. Gross' bill, to confirm a by-law and agreement between the Town of Niagara Falls, fixing the assessment of the Canadian Power Company for ten years.

Mr. Stock moved an amendment that the assent of the electors be gained.

The amendment of Mr. Stock was beaten by a large majority. Messrs. Rose and Gilmour and Whitney and Foy voted in its favor.

Dr. Pyne's bill, to prevent the overcrowding of boarding and apartment houses, by allowing the health officer to put it under inspection after 8 o'clock at night, was read a second time.

Street Railway Arbitration.

Mr. Powell asked for the second reading of his bill, to compel street railway companies to arbitrate when the municipalities wanted to buy them out. He introduced the bill as a private measure, but it was thrown out on a point of order, and Mr. Powell brought it back as a public bill. The bill was then put on division.

Mr. Beck's bill, to allow street railway companies to adopt a fender on the approval of the City Council, without reference to the Railway Commissioner, was put through committee with the amendment that it should only apply to cities over 20,000.

Other bills taken up in committee were to amend the Municipal Drainage Act (McCart); to amend the Central Road Companies Act (Pense); to amend the act respecting mortgages on real estate (Lucas); to amend the act respecting conditional sales of chattels (Hoyle).

Mr. Sutherland moved for a return of correspondence relating to the establishment of a reformatory in Oxford County.

Mr. Latchford said he would bring down the papers.

Here's to the Fay of Gotatoe.

Mr. Macdiarmid asked if there were any of the sons of Sir John Boyd in the pay of the Province.

The Attorney-General replied that David G. Boyd, a graduate of the School of Practical Science, is in the employment of the Bureau of Mines as an inspector, receiving a salary of $1,000 a year, and he is the only son of Chancellor Boyd directly in the service of the Province. Two other sons, Lawrence and Philip, are employed in the office of the Surveyor-general, and the latter $700 a year. The amount of money paid Sir John Boyd's family by the Province would be found in the public accounts.

Division at 1 O'clock.

At 1 o'clock this morning a division of the House took place upon the question of ratifying an agreement between the Crown Lands Department and Mr. Ellis Baker, Bailey and Paper Company. The result was 52 to 29—Government majority of four.

Premier Ross laid the supplementary estimates on the table at 1.30 this morning. The sum asked for is $40,000. The total for the items is $40,000 for an extra indemnity of $400 for the Speaker, making $1,000 in all. The Gamey investigation cost the Province $35,000.

Just before the House adjourned this morning the Premier said he would lay on the table to-day paper to-day, when the question of admitting the evidence taken in the Gamey report could be considered. He said the evidence would probably be printed by that time.

ELECTRICAL CONVENTION.

Municipalities Come Mad," Is the Phrase of the President About Municipal Ownership—Convention Favors.

Toronto, June 11.- The Canadian Electrical Association, who, with delegates from Montreal, St. Louis, Madison, Chicago, Cincinnati and other large cities, number in attendance some 300 persons, is in session here. After being welcomed by the city, President Gzowski delivered an address was read. This paragraph occurred in the course of his remarks:

Against Municipal Ownership.

"Municipal ownership," said Mr. Hooper, "has taken quite a hold up on a number of people. With some it is really a craze, and might be termed municipal ownership mania. In this country there were millions of money being invested in power companies and franchises were being negotiated. The vested rights of these companies should always be considered. In many cases the very municipalities that have been most excited in bringing these corporations to locate with them were the most ardent advocates of public ownership.

The speaker felt that the value and file of the association were not doing all they might for the power to support the movement in opposition to public ownership. The association's committee was working hard, but individual work was what was needed most after all. Everybody was interested and all should share alike in bearing the burden of expense and labor.

The speech met with a great deal of favor from all present.

Secretary-Treasurer C. H. Morris' report showed a membership of 344, an increase for the year of 38. Receipts had been $1,398.11 and disbursements $488.94.

Fevers Common Act.

The report of the Legislative Committee showed that the Canadian Association was in favor of the Conmee Act. The principle of the act could be considered reasonable protection to those whose lands were invested in the development of power, light, etc. Future legislation, however, had to be watched carefully, as some amendments might be made which would alter the effect of the act.

The clause must to be feared at present was that giving municipalities power to sell power, or the right of expropriation.

In the afternoon interesting technical papers were read.

For Transfer Arrested.

Kingston, June 11.—A. J. Campbell, a traveller for the Rosalan Tar Company, has been apprehended at Perth, and the necessary papers to bring him to Kingston were issued and an officer went west to bring the man back. He is accused of theft. Campbell suddenly left Kingston on Thursday, as a member of the firm reached the city to make enquiries about stray furs.

White Winged Dove of Peace.

New York, June 11.—The great building tie-up practically ended yesterday, where the lumber and brick yards throughout Greater New York and Brooklyn, which had been closed at the end of the week, it is expected that about 100,000 and 150,000 men, idle since May 5, will be at work.

FIFTEEN MILLIONS IN CASH

Besides Government Guarantee of Bonds For 20 Years.

Dominion Government's Policy Maturing Respecting the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway — Plan Practically Agreed Upon—Is the Home Rule Bugbear Said Me Was Only Dreaming of a State-Owned Railway.

Ottawa, June 11.—It was said last night that the Government's policy in the matter of aid to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has taken definite form, and that it will practically be interest on the bonds of the company for twenty years at 3 per cent., on the basis of $30,000 a mile between Quebec and Winnipeg. The Government's obligation is limited to the company's ability to pay the interest on its bonds. If the company pays 1 per cent. the Government becomes liable for 2 per cent., if the company pays 2 per cent. the Government becomes liable for only 1 per cent., if the company pays 3 per cent. the Government's liability ceases altogether. No aid is granted to the prairie section of the road.

In the best of security, it is also said that the straight subsidy of fifteen million dollars is to be voted by the Government to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

In return for these generous concessions, the Government reserves the right to alter the proposed route of the railway, to control the distribution of all Canadian traffic to a Canadian port, to require the manufacture of all steel material in Canada, and retains a certain control of rates.

BLAIR WAS ONLY DREAMING.

When He Said He Thought of Building a State Railway.

Ottawa, June 11.— Yesterday afternoon the House went into Mr. Blair's resolution to aid the Canadian Northern Railway to the extent of bonds.

The aid to be given is a guarantee of bonds to the extent of $13,000 per mile, bearing interest at 3 per cent. and running for 20 years on the property. Mr. Illair explained that the Canadian Northern, now open to Edmonton passed through a country of which 90 per cent. was capable of growing the best of wheat. The same is true, though perhaps, not to quite the same extent, of the other section. He was satisfied that in the course of time these roads would meet any reasonable obligation, principal and interest. Under the circumstances the Government thought it would be fair to settlers to have to wait until the company could build these lines from the main reserve.

Mr. Bell of Pictou asked if the company would be able to sell their 3 per cent. bonds at par.

Mr. Blair replied that the company was very hopeful of doing so. "What will it cost to build the road?" asked E. F. Clarke.

"My information is that it will cost more than the $13,000 a mile," replied Mr. Blair. He added that there were varying estimates running up to $17,000 a mile.

Mr. Borden said it was important that the Government should inform the House if this was part of any comprehensive scheme which the Government had in view for the development of a scheme of transportation. The improvement of our lake harbors and utilization of our ocean ports and harbors. Last year, he was part of a scheme to extend to the Pacific coast. It was important to know also. Mr. Blair if he had abandoned the scheme he had announced in the Yukon, of a government owned railway across the continent.

Was Only Dreaming.

"I only had a dream about that," said Mr. Blair.

Mr. Borden said another matter was that of capitalization, in connection with which he trusted the Government had taken steps to ensure that it would not be so overloaded as to prevent the Government having control of rates which was so essential in Canada. Mr. Borden expressed the hope that the Government would provide for supervision of the construction and cost of the subsidized portion of the line.

Mr. Blair said he would be happy to bring down any possible information on the subject, and had no objection to the final passage of the resolution being delayed until the paper had been perused. But Mr. Blair did not think the introduction of this resolution should be made the occasion of any declaration of general policy on the whole transportation question. This railway stood by itself. The company evidently intended to extend to the Pacific Coast, and had taken charter powers to do so, but all there was to consider at present was the proposed connection with Edmonton, which was a scheme which quite justified itself as a proposition. In connection, his view accorded with Mr. Borden's, that Parliament should keep a close eye on this matter, which could best be dealt with in the Railway Committee, which passed upon the power of capitalization asked for in railway charters.

Mr. Maclean said a general plan should have been communicated to the House. Mr. Maclean argued that the Government was creating a precedent for assisting other railways.

"If the country's money is to be put in a railway, the country should own the railway," declared Mr. Maclean. "The only solution of the question is a Government-owned road from coast to coast, carrying with it Government control of rates."

Messrs. Douglas, Scott (Assiniboia), McCreary (Selkirk), and Oliver (Alberta) also went into the whole transportation question.

In the evening Mr. Fisher's estimates were taken up in supply.

Having passed the items for arts, agriculture and statistics, the committee reported progress and the House adjourned at 2.30 p.m.

Mighty Steel Trust in Canada.

Ottawa, June 11.—The United States Steel Trust is about to organize an important branch in Canada. Fort Colborne has been selected as the site for the works, which will employ at least 2,000 men. The plans of the big steel trust have been all through negotiations which were recently begun with the Dominion Government.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE.

In Session at Winnipeg—Address of Grand Master Speaks and the Secretary's Yearly to Order's Progress.

Winnipeg, June 11.—The seventy-fourth annual session of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America is now in progress in the Grand Opera House. Owing to the distance, the representation from Eastern Canada is small. Sir Henry Pellatt did not attend but West is very large. The gathering was opened this morning by the last Grand Lodge was held in Winnipeg fifteen years ago. Included in the Grand Lodge includes Ireland, Canada and Irish members, the membership of which is 1,000. Chaplin's amendment, were almost all following the style of address, while many others of the Conservative party in Canada.

Version of Corn Tax.

In a whimsical vein, Mr. Balfour explained that the Government, when the corn tax was put on, was because the Government wanted money, and the only reason it was taken off was because the Government wanted more money.

Mr. Balfour made an impassioned plea, enforcing the precedents at friction in Mr. Gladstone's Ministries, for allowing the Unionist party to remain of an open mind upon a question so difficult and so superior to all party considerations.

Liberal Leader Lost.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, briefly replied, appealing for an opinion for the House to more fully discuss the passage raised.

The Chancellor Secretary, himself, jubilant, said: "Our friend, the enemy is completely disorganized."

With the exception of some irreconcilable malcontents, the Unionist party is greatly relieved by the outcome of the debate, all the members expressing a distinct Dal. The debate was passed though, at the same time, Balfour's promise that he would not could not long continue to embrace such opposition on the final policy and Great Britain as Chancellor Secretary Chamberlain and Chancellor of the Exchequer Hicks.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 11.— The weather yesterday was superb. It was warm, however, in the afternoon, and the men were permitted to shed their heavy clothing for the drill. Over in the trenches, where, with the sods and earth, they work in the hardpan, the men labored and nearly sweated to do the soil job, and many heaved a sigh of regret, as they received the easy-times they had had on the farm, where they enlisted in His Majesty's militia, and went out to camp. There are on the ground a total of 2,444 men and 642 horses, considerably under the strength of men in companies. The cavalry brigade numbers 630 men and 577 horses. The wounded men in hospital continue to improve. There were several cases of heat prostration.

ANOTHER GUN ACCIDENT.

A Twelve-Year-Old Boy Instantly Killed in Collingwood.

Collingwood, June 11.—A twelve-year-old son of G. W. Brown met with a tragic death about 6 o'clock last evening. He was playing with two or three other boys in one of his father's rigs, and when about a mile from home, one of the boys had carrying a gun. This boy attempted to get in the rig with the shotgun in his hand, when it accidentally exploded, the entire charge penetrating young Brown's left side and causing almost instant death.

BALFOUR CLEARS CRISIS

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Won't Resign Just Now.

Premier Balfour Has Open Mind Upon Question Is Unionist and Is Superior to Party Issues at the Final Policy of the Country—Chamberlain Pleases the Liberal Leader, Campbell-Bannerman.

London, June 11.—By a dexterous and extraordinary speech, Premier Balfour has at night descended and smoothed over the differences in the Cabinet, between Colonial Secretary Chamberlain of any modernity of assigning, and, for the moment averted the resignation of the Unionist party. This, Mr. Balfour accomplished before the opening of the Government either to protection or free trade, failing to effect a compromise will generally be taken to mean that the tariff issue is to be the issue of the election.

Henry Chaplin's amendment, which gave rise to the most interesting debate of the present Parliament, was defeated by the overwhelming majority of 396 votes, composed of Unionists, Liberals and Irish members. The minority of 102 was made up of Chaplin's amendment, were almost all following the style of address, while many others of the Conservative party in Canada.

AN OUTRAGEOUS PROPOSITION.

How do the taxpayers like this? A despatch from Toronto says: "It is understood that the Government will give Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge $500 a day each for their services on the Royal Commission. They sit 4 days, so that they will receive altogether $13,500 apiece. It is also understood that the Government intends to pay one lawyer on each side, Mr. Johnston and Mr. Blake, and their fees will likely be about $5,000 each. The entire cost of the investigation will amount to between $40,000 and $45,000."

Query? Had the Judges reported against Stratton, how much would Ross propose to give? The Opposition should fight this proposition to reward the exponents of crime till doomsday.

THE TREADGOLD CONCESSION.

Some of the Government supporters in the press are declaring that the objection taken to the appointment of Judge Britton as Commissioner to investigate and report upon the effect which the concessions granted to the Treadgold Company in the Yukon district, is an attack upon the Judge as a Judge. The News, of Toronto, replies to this view of the case in no offensive manner as to set that question at rest in the minds of all fair-minded men. It says:—

"There is no attack, so far as we are aware, upon Mr. Justice Britton as a Judge. Not a word has been said in derogation of his impartiality. But it is a thoroughly recognized principle that the best and most impartial Judge on the Bench should not sit upon a case in which he has had, at any time, a private interest. British practice assumes that in such a case there is a possibility of the most upright men being swayed by an unconscious bias. British jurisprudence has implicit faith in Judges to decline the embarrassment of cases in which they may have more or remote than Judge Britton's in the Yukon concessions.

"Mr. Britton, as M.P. for Kingston, was the Government's principal man in the Yukon scandals debate of 1900. There is a clear, historic connection between those scandals and the Treadgold concession charged of to-day. The Administration which Mr. Britton defended in 1900 is the same Administration which he is to judge to-day. By declining to act, he will admit something save that he has the same diffidence and the same objection to anonymous gossip that as has distinguished the highest members of the British Bench."

ROUGH ON LADY HENRY.
(Montreal Gazette.)

In her annual address to the World's W.C.T.U. convention Lady Somerset prophesied as an outcome of the W.C.T.U. fight a complete victory over the liquor traffic. The lady's attempt to claim credit for her organization is amusing. The victory for temperance is being won by business men who know that in all these days of fierce competition sobriety is essential to success. The W.C.T.U. and some of its kindred organizations are, if anything, brakes on the wheels of progress.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY MORNING SESSION.
(Concluded)

Mr. Thompson thought that Rawdon Township had been unjustly dealt with in this matter, and if the matter was opened up he hoped a reduction would be made.

Mr. Fanning spoke in support of Huntingdon getting a reduction if the matter was opened up.

Mr. Parker suggested that this matter be laid over for a day in order that the members might consider it more thoroughly.

Mr. Clarke moved, seconded by Mr. A. Nicholson, that the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again. Carried.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on roads and bridges. Mr. Clark in the chair.

A communication was read in reference to having a steel bridge built over Green's Creek, between Seymour and Rawdon townships. Referred.

A communication was read to the effect that a bonyvoyage of the Good Roads Association would be held at Toronto during the week of Industrial Exhibition, and asking the Council to send delegates to the same; also asking for a small grant to the association.

Mr. Geo. Nicholson was neither in favor of giving a grant or sending a delegate. Our roads are good roads and we can show them how to make good roads.

Mr. A. Nicholson moved, seconded by Mr. Denyes, that no action be taken. Carried.

On motion the Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Granted.

It being the four of noon the Warden left the chair.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

Council resumed and on motion went into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means. Mr. Geo. Nicholson in the chair.

A communication was read from Mr. D. Wallace, of Ivanhoe, stating that his horse ran away and came in contact with a gap, post, from a hitching post. His loss was $25, and he claimed damages to this amount from the county.

On motion no action was taken in the matter, Messrs. McFarlane and Hanley speaking against it.

The Case of Mr. Brown.

The matter of Mr. H. Brown, of Rawdon, who had a team, wagon, harness, etc., stolen from him, was next considered. He claimed that the County should reimburse him for the outfit he had made.

Mr. Thompson thought the Council should assist Mr. Brown in this matter as he was at considerable loss in securing his property.

Mr. Denyes was loth in favor of giving Mr. Brown anything, as it would establish a bad precedent, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that no action be taken.

Mr. Thompson said the officials did not do their duty in this matter. He moved in amendment that $20 be given to Mr. Brown.

Mr. McFarlane said similar cases had occurred in this County and the County had not been asked to pay any of the expenses. If a County constable had not done his duty that was another matter to be considered.

Mr. Parker seconded the amendment proposed by Mr. Thompson and spoke in support of it.

For a vote being taken the amendment was lost, but two voting for it, namely, Messrs. Thompson and Parker.

W.C.A. Ladies Received.

A deputation of ladies from the Women's Christian Association waited upon the Council. Those present were Mesdames Dr. Clarke, J. H. Bell, J. J. Flint, L. W. Yeomans and E. G. Sills.

The Clerk in introducing the deputation spoke of the good work the ladies were doing, much better work, he thought, than a similar body of men could do.

Mrs. (Dr.) Clarke addressed the Council. She stated that an addition had been added to the hospital which cost $1600. This amount had been reduced in April to $204.75 and since then $800 had been raised by subscriptions in the city. There was still a debt of $700 and they appeared before the Council to ask them to assist in removing this debt.

Mr. Nicholson said the ladies were doing a grand work and they should be assisted by the County.

Mr. Thompson asked if the City Council had been asked to contribute towards this fund.

Mrs. Clarke said the city contributed $1800 annually towards the maintaining of the Hospital and Home.

Mr. McFarlane said the Hospital was a grand institution. They did a great deal of good work in this city and the Council should, and would, no doubt, assist the ladies.

In answer to a question Mrs. Bell stated that a County patient was admitted to the Hospital on the same terms as a city patient.

Mr. Thompson spoke in support of the noble work done by the ladies, and he would favor a grant.

Mr. Hanley said there were no two opinions as to the work which was being done by the ladies in connection with the hospital. The County should assist the work, which was, in this matter.

Mr. A. Nicholson moved, seconded by Mr. Kirk, that the matter be referred to the Ways and Means Committee. Carried.

The Warden informed the ladies that their request would be considered by the Council, and he would assure them that the Council would deal liberally with them.

The ladies, after thanking the Council for allowing them the privilege to present their case, withdrew.

Report on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. Cairk, as Chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, presented a lengthy report, recommending that various roads and bridges in the County be repaired. It was estimated that $1200 would be expended on roads.

The report was referred to the Committee of the Whole on Roads and Bridges.

Ways and Means Again.

On motion the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means resumed.

A petition was presented from a number of ratepayers of St. Ola, asking for a grant of $60 towards rebuilding a bridge over Beaver Creek.

Mr. McFarlane moved, seconded by Mr. A. Nicholson, that the prayer of the petition be granted. Carried.

A petition was presented asking the Council to grant $50 towards the new watering trough on the County gravel road near Thomasburg, as $150 was enough to have one.

On motion a grant of $50 was made for the erection of a new trough.

The following accounts were passed:

J. W. Lundon..... $ 2.00
Rathbun Company..... 268.14

The committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Granted.

Council adjourned.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

Council resumed at 10 a.m.

Communications.

From the Good Roads Association, asking the Council to pass a resolution requesting the Dominion Government to take up the Good Roads matter and make districts.

Letter from the judicial members of the County of Hastings, requesting that Miss Lillian M. McRae be appointed official stenographer (at Belleville), at a salary of $250 per annum.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

A petition was presented asking for a grant of $60 towards repairing a bridge in Carlow Township, near Fraser Lake.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

A petition was presented asking for a grant of $60 for rebuilding a bridge near Maynooth, known as Bridge.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Notices of By-laws.

Mr. McFarlane gave notice of a by-law to equalize the assessment for 1903.

Mr. Denyes gave notice of a bylaw to levy certain sums of money on the minor municipalities of the County.

On motion the Committee of the Whole on equalization resumed Mr. Mallory in the chair.

The Same Equalization.

The motion of Mr. McFarlane that the equalization for 1902 be the same for 1903 was carried without discussion, the vote being 7 to 5.

The 7:45 Express

An Adventure in an English Compartment Car.

By FRANCIS CHURCHILL WILLIAMS.

Two men were sitting in the smoking-room of a London club. One, a tall, athletic looking fellow with black hair and clean-cut features, was absently blowing rings of smoke in the air as he lay back in the big arm-chair. The other man, slight and clean-shaven, with a singularly mobile face and twinkling gray eyes, was looking over a daily paper. Between them was a small table furnished with a couple of stands of club soda and a decanter of brandy which, apart of half having been well used.

"Gerald," said the small man all at once, dropping the paper into his lap, "what do you think of train robbers?"

"The tall man looked up in lazy surprise.

"Topsy Russel," he drawled, "now, what in the name of all that's wonderful ever put such a question as that into your head?"

"The paper," explained the other; "and according to it they're the only ones that think of train robbers!"

"And just as seriously I reply," returned the tall man, "that I think the fellows who strip you of your watch and valuables, and depart with your Gladstone or portmanteau, are a crime against all the best. And the people they rob—well, they are a shade less admirable; for in every case I have heard of they appear to have acted like cowards or fools, and a coward always was preferable to either of these, to my mind. And now that you have my candid and, doubtless, authoritative opinion on train robbers, suppose you put it to me and let me try one of these cigars; they are worth trying, if I say so myself."

"Only one more question," said Russel, as he took the proffered cigar with a laugh at the way railway travelers set in these little affairs. "Now, how would you act? Suppose a fellow were suddenly to put a pistol to your cheek and intimate a desire for your money? No one is near. You are alone in the carriage. What would you do?"

"If I knock the pistol out of his hand, while pretending to comply with his demand, and throw him out the window after it."

Carruthers said this quietly and determinedly, and Russel knew him too well to suspect braggadocio, so he only laughed lightly at his companion's emphatic reply and proceeded to envelop himself in clouds of smoke.

"Well," said the tall man, looking at his watch, and starting to his feet, "I'm going. The express starts at seven-forty-five, and I've to stop at a couple of places before making the station." And he sang for his hat and overcoat.

"Now, Gerald Caruthers," said his companion, as Gerald was being helped into his coat, "remember what you have told me. If I hear of any attempt at train robbery on the seven-forty-five express I shall not write to you, but shall at once have the track examined, and the body of the robber discovered and interred. I'm quite sure you'll be willing to do that much for your victim, won't you?"

"Oh, certainly," laughed Caruthers, and the next moment he had swung Russel's hand and had gone.

At the station he secured a first-class ticket, and then set about to find an empty compartment if possible. As luck would have it, the second one he looked into was unoccupied, and he quickly stowed his portmanteau away and, settling himself luxuriously in the corner, uttered a silent prayer that no one would come in to disturb him, for the usual traveler's commonplaces and platitudes, the nap he had in prospect. He looked at his watch: only one minute remained to the start, and already he heard the doors being banged to as the guard went his rounds.

And then—lots, just as he was putting his watch back into his pocket with a breath of relief, the door of the compartment suddenly was jerked open and, framed in the narrow opening, appeared the form of a man of slight stature, with gray hair and bent shoulders. He peered indifferently into the coach, and his eyes traveled quickly and with apparent indifference over the big frame of Caruthers. Then he stepped in and, with a slight nod to Caruthers, d. pped a small handbag on the cushioned seat, pulled his soft wool hat over his eyes, sank down in one corner of the compartment, and thrust his hands into his trousers pockets.

Caruthers witnessed these movements with some satisfaction, and, after a glance or two at the newcomer, and an instant's look outside at the yellow lights which were flying by as the express gathered speed, he settled down again, pulled his coat up about his ears, and proceeded to make himself comfortable for the hundred and twenty-mile ride before him. Five minutes later he was sound asleep and making that fact unmistakable by the most tremendous snores.

But if Caruthers snored loudly, his brain was fully as active as were his lungs, and, for a time, he passed through a series of extraordinary and disconnected dreams, which were anything but unpleasant. Then, suddenly, he was transported into a delightful fantasy into what seemed to him to be an immense banqueting-hall, where he found himself unceremoniously set down before a little old man, who insisted upon fitting around his neck a most prodigiously high and stiff collar.

Now, if there was anything against which Caruthers was for all time and most vehemently opposed, it was high collars, therefore he struggled hard to push away his tormentor and remove the objectionable neckpiece. But all to no purpose. To his surprise he found his arms weighted down as if with lead. His persecutor coolly continued to fit on the collar, and finally, to crown this to his satisfaction, pushed over his head until the top edge of the collar cut into his neck and was choking him.

Carruthers used every endeavor to raise his arms, but in vain. Great drops of sweat, seemed to drain down his face as he tugged at his invisible bonds, and all the time he felt the little old man passing his hands, which were plump and smooth, over his body, and thrusting them into his pockets, now inside his vest, and again pulling at his fingers.

All at once, however, when the agony for restraint was at its height, the sensations became dull, and he slept again into unbroken sleep.

His next sensation was when he was began to feel the light, and he slowly became aware of a dull, dead feeling in his arms, a fulness of the head, and a dry constriction of the throat. For a while he was sensible of the motion of the fast-rushing train, and at last his eyes took in enough of what was about him to show him that he was in the wholesale's shop, but the inside of a railway carriage traveling rapidly, and that there was no slight collar about his neck, and that no little old man stood opposite him. But it was some time, nevertheless, before his brain became clear enough to appreciate that it he seemed to have gone through with lately was not a dream, and that he now was in the seven-forty-five express from London, and probably—how many hours go in his journey?

He slipped his fingers into his waistcoat pocket for his watch. Then, with an exclamation of surprise, he raised himself quickly to his feet and somewhat weakly stood there, feeling for the handsome leather case which he could find nowhere. It took him but a minute to realize this, and also that the gold cut-buttons he had worn and his diamond scarf-pin were gone, and that a curious stone-studded ring had disappeared from the little finger of his left hand.

They all had gone; but where? A confused recollection of the little, neat man who had been his traveling companion made him peer closely into the corner in which that figure had been seated when he last saw him. But the corner was empty now.

As Caruthers' glance moved quickly over the opposite seat, however, one object caught his eye. He picked it up. It was a handkerchief, innocent of any markings, but smelling strongly, to his instantly noticed, of chloroform. The pungent odor told Caruthers all he needed. It was a complete confirmation of the theory which had flashed upon him at the first. He had been robbed, and in all likelihood by the little old man who had been his companion.

Caruthers pressed his face against the window. He was familiar with the country through which the train was heading, and he soon saw where he was. The express was fifty miles out of the metropolis, and by schedule must have made a stop at R——, fifteen miles back. It was there, he decided, that the thief had got out. The next stop would be made some twenty-five miles farther on, and he would have to wait until then to communicate with the police of his loss. So he arranged himself as comfortably as possible and began to consider how he would most quickly recover the property which had been taken by the robber. He had not thrown out of the window, and whether he could prevent the news of the robbery from spreading so that he should not receive the taunts of Topsy Russel, by telegram or otherwise, upon this doubly trying experience.

As soon as the guard had opened the door of his carriage at the next station, half an hour later, Caruthers jumped down, and, dashing into the station-master's office, quickly despatched a statement of the facts to the chief of police at R——. His message offered a generous reward for the apprehension of the rascal and the recovery of the stolen articles, with the least possible publicity.

Two hours later, arrived at his destination, he left the train, took a hansom to police headquarters, and quickly fished them that a despatch addressed in his name might be received there from R——. If such a despatch did come it was to be sent to the Y. M. C. A. rooms, ordered. Then he was driven to the hotel, and, having engaged a room, washed, dressed and quickly fell asleep.

It was seven o'clock in the morning when he was awakened by a knock on the door of his room, and a telegram was handed him. It was from the police at R——, and ran as follows:

"Have got thief, and recovered all articles except diamond ring. Come. Think he is old hand at business. Communicate at once."

Caruthers sent the servant double quick for a morning paper, and, hurriedly dressed himself and, at the news of the robbery and of the capture of the thief, at least not gained circumstance outside of R——, he dressed himself hurriedly. Then he ordered a substantial breakfast, lit a cigar with the utmost satisfaction, and strolled down to the police headquarters.

To his surprise he found another despatch from R——, awaiting him there. He read:

"Escaped and got out of this. I was the old man who traveled with you and stole your things. I wanted to see the throne me out of the window to acknowledge the corn. Come quickly, before I get into confounded place in Canada, and they won't believe my story.

"TOPPY."

In amazement, which rapidly gave way to laughter he could not restrain, Caruthers read the message a second time, and then he telegraphed to the chief of police at R——:

"Hold thief. Dangerous man. Pay no attention to his story. He will try to escape. CARUTHERS."

It was a woebegone and irate specimen which Caruthers saw when the "dangerous man" was led forth from a cell at the police station at R—— next day. But Caruthers smothered his laughter at the sight, smoothed Russel's wrath as far as possible by apologies, and, having paid the costs and fines which the police demanded that someone should pay, after his explanation, he walked out of the station with his friend.

To this day, however, Topsy Russel has serious doubts as to Caruthers' statement that he did not "deliberately telegram a forgery," and he awaits a chance to turn the tables on the man he "robbed."

Which?

"What's worrying you?" they asked of the convalescent invalid. "I am trying," she answered thoughtfully, "to make up my mind whether I am at a sanitarium or a sanatorium."—Chicago Post.

Wife—You haven't used any of those cigars I bought for you, Husband—No; I'm saving them for Tommy when he wants to learn to smoke.

Two meetings and a concert in the City Hall to-morrow night. - As Professor Hunt might say: Wouldn't that Tripp you?

Don't laugh at that Tellow in the soldier coat, young man. Though he is clothed in red, he is not so much of a lobster as anyone who sneers at him.

Can it be that Sir William Mulock's anti-military speeches have made it so hard for the regiments which go to camp to get recruits this year?

A woman in England, who was hypnotised, insisted when the surgeons were cutting her leg off. Perhaps, if they were hypnotised, some people in this city might laugh when they were paying their taxes.

Covering up crime! The Public Accounts Committee in Toronto refused to allow an investigation into the sale of certain timber limits, in which clerks in the departments of the Ontario Government acknowledged receiving "rake offs." The drit policy is now supreme further investigation.

A member of the Toronto House of Assembly has asked how many sons Judge Boyd has in the employment of the Ontario Government, how much they receive for the work done and how much money Judge Boyd has received from the Ontario Government as Commissioner and for other services. This, a Government organ declares, is "impertinent." Of course. What right have the people to know how their money is spent by a Grit Government to keep themselves in power?

THE STONY LONESOME PHILOSOPHER THINKS

That the coal bill for the city's steam roller this summer will not be so large that it will have to be paid out of the elevator fund.

That the sale of fashionable bathing suits will go up by leaps and bounds when the city gets a public bath.

That a white hat, vest and spats does not always indicate a lily white character.

That, judging by their treatment of the deputation from the W. C. A., the County Councillors are great admirers of the fair sex.

Put Your System in Perfect Order,

AND YOU WILL ESCAPE THE LANGUID, DEPRESSING ILLS OF SPRING TIME—THE GREATEST SPRING MEDICINE IS

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Any trustworthy physician will tell you that what ninety-nine people out of a hundred need at this time of year is a tonic and restorative, something to put strength and richness into the thin, watery blood.

The action of the heart is sure to get slow and irregular if it is not supplied with rich, life-sustaining blood in order to restore the waste by the unsteady use. Then the whole system feels out of sorts, irregularities and derangements appear here and another come, and first thing you know you are down sick.

It is so easy to neglect the health; that is why there is nothing more sadly unable to you in the whole world. It is also easy to prevent it, and how much spring if you but take prompt action. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is different to any medicine you ever took. It first builds up instead of tearing down and, moreover, it cures. This food is composed of nature's most powerful restorative and blood creators.

Mrs. Brown, 167 Sherbourne street, Toronto, states:—

"I was all run down in health, had languid, depressed feelings, could not sleep and did not have any appetite. After having used several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I find my nervous system strengthened, my appetite is good, I sleep well, and my health generally is very much better than it has been for years. I can heartily recommend this food very highly."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food adds new, firm tissue to the body and increases the weight. Test this for yourself when using this preparation. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Beware of you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Forger Bill Record Caught.

Port Perry, June 11.—The notorious "Bill" Ross, probably one of the cleverest forgers in Canada, is again in the arms of the law, having been captured by Chief Douglas here Tuesday evening. Ross has been out of prison only a year or so, having served a term for forgery before. In the last nineteen months he has forged five cheques, totalling $413.

Charged With Indecent Assault.

Toronto, June 11.—On a warrant charging him with indecent assault, and before out by Emily Alcolice, of Milton, Ont., Charles Christie, of 7 Carr Howell street, was arrested yesterday by Detective Harrison. He was taken to Milton last night.

Only $60 Saved.

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 11.—It is reported that the village of Enidge, in the district of Adrianople, consisting of 500 houses, was attacked on June 3 by Bashi-Bazouks, and the entire population, with the exception of 200 men, massacred.

The Kaiser as He Is.

RAY STANNARD BAKER, in his volume, "Seen in Germany," gives this picture of the Emperor of William:

"He is a heavy-faced man, the brown of wind and weather, of fierce riding on land and of a glaring sun on the sea. His face is thinner than one has pictured, and there is a hint of weariness about the eyes. His figure gives the impression of being thin, and his famous moustaches is not so long nor so painfully fierce as one has imagined. There is many a dry-goods clerk in Berlin who has out-Kaisered the Kaiser in growing a moustache. But, even to the art of retouching, there is one thing that few of William's photographs show to advantage, and it is the most impressive characteristic of his face. And that is its singular sternness in repose. Square, iron jaws, thin, firm lips, a certain sharpness and keenness of visage, a penetrating eye, all speak of invincible determination, pride, dignity. Indeed, herein lies the force of personal majesty—for William, however much pains and may smile at his passion for royal display, has many of those splendid attributes of character which would make a man great in any sphere of life. It would be a large company of Germans, indeed, among whom one would fail to select him instinctively as the leader. A first impression, therefore, may thus be summed up: The Kaiser is less a great king than one has imagined, and more a great man. His kingship does not remain in Germany, and the more he learns of William and his extraordinary activities, the more he grows this impression. We Americans have been quite overcome our first prejudices against the Kaiser, bred during the early days of his reign when the mantle of royalty—and the Hohenzollern mantle at that—seem to hide his qualities, and he and did strange things; but in Europe—where they have grown accustomed to his vagaries, they, indeed, much less pronounced in their disapproval. Indeed, I have heard one down as the expressions of a strong and original individuality—the Kaiser occupies a place of high and genuine esteem. An American who remains long in Germany feels this change in sentiment strongly, and, when the Kaiser comes, he makes his bow with all the others, not merely because this is proper, but because it is character and strength of purpose."

As might be expected, the Kaiser is most popular in his capital:

"One hears a commission on Unter den Linden, with a flash of white plumes in the distance, and the sweet, full throat of boots, may well crowd up to see. A pair of splendid horses, traveling like the wind, two richly uniformed men on the box, and the Kaiser, the Kaiserin, and perhaps one of the children within. You observe that the Kaiser sits with his back to the horses, giving the place of honor to the Kaiserin, and that he has set the example in open carriage behind

Giant Tortoises.

FOUR giant tortoises have recently been added to the reptile collection of the Zoological Gardens in Bronx Park, New York. They are from the Galapagos Islands, in the Southern Pacific Ocean, and differ from any tortoises native to Europe, Asia, Africa, or America.

These enormous tortoises are living wonders of the world. In one respect they represent the sole survivors of the gigantic land-inhabiting creatures whose massive bones in the different scientific museums of America, are wonders of the Pliocene Age. In that age lizards attained a length of forty feet and more, and had proportionate strength enough to tear down small trees in order to form nests for their young. The reptilian life was gigantic in proportions, and a comparison of the ordinary tortoise of the present day with one of Mesozoic fourteen shows the decadence of the reptile race. The average land tortoise of the Galapagos Islands, for instance, weighs five pounds, while the largest tortoise at Bronx Park weighs 319 pounds.

There are fourteen distinct species of the giant tortoise. Of these, but one inhabit the Galapagos Islands, four the Aldabra Islands and four the Mauritius-Rodriguez group. All the species mentioned, however, remaining extant, reputable scientific authorities have declared several species to be existing in the Galapagos Islands. On the continents of Europe, Asia and Africa these creatures are represented only by fossil remains; the living individuals are confined entirely to the islands mentioned.

To procure these reptiles a number of expeditions have been sent to the islands of these residing in the arrival of the United States ship "Albatross." The specimens procured were placed in the National Museum at Washington. In 1813, long before the visit of the "Albatross," the then all-powerful "Holy see" had explored the islands of the Galapagos group, and in 1832 the Spanish government sent a special expedition to the islands. The land tortoises were captured and presented to Queen Isabella of Spain. In 1835 the same reptiles were obtained by Mr. Rothschild, and were shipped to him in London.

In 1897 Mr. Rothschild dispatched an expedition to the islands of the Galapagos Islands. The total expenses of this expedition were $15,000. Fifty-five tortoises were procured, but none but females. The largest weighed 500 pounds. All the islands were visited. In Duncan Island twenty-seven specimens were captured, representing a species accidentally known as Testudo elephantopus. The tortoises collected the first expedition were taken to London in 1898 by Frank H. Webster of Boston. As a special exhibit in a zoological convention in London, they excited great interest, and their owner finally presented them to the London Zoological gardens of Europe.

The twenty tortoises from the Galapagos Islands were landed in San Francisco by a Captain Noyes. Mr. Webster, whose home is in Boston, and Mr. Rothschild, purchased all the reptiles. They were sent by shipment from San Francisco to Boston, but six reached Boston alive. These, when promised specimens of Testudo vicina and Myrosaurus. The specimens were then shipped to London, where they arrived in good condition.

The child and by far the largest lot of these reptiles arrived in San Francisco early this summer. This lot consisted of twenty-four specimens. They had been brought in a schooner from the Galapagos Islands by Captain William Johnson of San Francisco. Three of the tortoises in this lot are the largest ever captured, weighing more than three hundred pounds each.

Mr. Webster purchased the best lot of tortoises, and shipped them to his place in Hyde Park. On the way three of them died. One of the three remaining specimens was purchased by the New York Zoological Society, together with four smaller ones. Six specimens have been purchased by Mr. Nicholas Pike to go to Count Perocco, in Italy, and the remainder will go to the city museum of some zoological institutions.

The five giant tortoises at the New York Zoological Gardens are the company a plot of long grass opposite the reptile house. In the warm weather they are let out of their enclosure to browse about at will. In the heat of the day they stop in the shadow of a piece of lumpailin that has been spread for them for them from the sun.

The peculiarity of the diet with these strange creatures is the cactus, but they feed on all sorts of vegetation, and are no fastidious.

These tortoises live to a great age. There is one in captivity known to be 137 years old, and it was full grown when caught. The largest of the collection at Fordham is supposed to have attained the great age of one hundred years.

The dimensions of this enormous tortoise are: Length of shell, on curve, 4 feet 3 inches; width of shell, on curve, 4 feet 1 inch; height, 2 feet 9 inches; weight, 310 pounds. This giant was caught in the crater of an extinct volcano. To carry it thence to the shore were required the efforts of fourteen men for twelve days. A stretcherlike carrier was improvised, and the reptile placed upon it.

Next winter a special tortoise house will be ready at the east end of the present reptile house. There the giant tortoises will be given more room to roam about, and a grass roof will give them the full benefit of the sun.

Shuffle and Cut.

Perceiving now that the block was unavailable, the noble prisoner in thought him of cuticle.

"Shall I shuffle off the mortal coil?" mused he, hah.

But the executioner, being a man of some wit, withal, divined his thought.

"You shuffle after I cut!" quoth this functionary, briefly.

The duke was silent at this. It was but his grace's wont to take words with one from the commonalty.—Detroit "Journal."

"Harry," she said, thoughtfully, "what is it?" responded the worried business man, rather shortly. "I wish you could rearrange your business a little bit." "How?" "So as to be a bear on the Stock Exchange instead of at home."—Exchange.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

THE WORLD LOST FOR LOVE'S SAKE

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY,

Author of "The Crime of Hallow-E'en," "The Flirtations of a Beauty," "Willful Gaynell," "Little Leafy," "Only a Mechanic's Daughter," etc.

Harold St. John was found beside her, dead—crushed and mangled beneath one of the wheels.

"Listen, darling," continued Hetty in the most startling part of the story which I have to tell you, is yet to come. You are not Harold St. John's wife, nor have you ever been. The villain's marriage to you was but a farce—a mockery—for at that time he had a living wife in England, whom he had wilfully deserted—coming over here for the avowed purpose of capturing an heiress, who had plenty of gold.

"His wife searched long and patiently for him, meeting him at last, face to face, but he did not know her —he had but expected she would cross the seas to hunt him down. That woman is Mrs. Carrisourt, the lady whom you brought home from the yacht day.

"She heard with horror too great for words your full confession to me in the rose garden, Daisy, dear, and started for my office to talk St. John's design; but they arrived at the church too late, I mean."

"I do not quite get you, comprehend, Daisy, darling," the horrible as you believed yourself guilty of having fallen from you—you arose you have been from first to last, Alexis's wife!"

The gladdest cry that ever was heard fell from Daisy's lips—a cry that reached Alexis, who was pacing up and down the corridor without while Hetty broke the startling news to Daisy in her own sweet, sympathetic, gradual way, and that glad cry brought him to her side at once.

"Oh, I cannot vow to her, and in an instant she was in them, her golden head pillowed on his breast, and then was little Hetty tip-toed quietly from the room, in the hall no her company could be conveniently dispensed with just then.

Out on the porch she met the old nurse.

"This affair has nearly killed me, Betty," he said; "but I thank God everything has turned out so famously. Not a soul save the immediate parties concerned with it knows anything of it, and we are saved the $1,000 reward the papers were going hold of, my dear.

"And do you know, I am so much indebted to that little widow, Mrs. Carrisourt, for bringing Daisy's visit to me, and happiness about that I—I have been tempted to tie a very knot in my handkerchief—in fact, I have done a very foolish thing."

"What is it, papa?" gasped Hetty.

"I have engaged to her, my dear," returned the squire, adding complacently, "and she has accepted me. That St. John was a scoundrel to the poor girl; you have not lived together for years; she has had a hard enough life of it, and needs to be happy at last."

"But, papa," sobbed both of the girls, "we never thought of anything like this of —of —you! it is really too awful."

He turned on them sharply.

"Daisy and Alexis are happy —two young ones have asked me for the hand of you two girls; and do you suppose I can look on and see all the happiness without the thought of the happiness in my heart that I may as well be happy too, as to sit a desolate old man alone by myself in the chimney corner?"

Both Hetty and Olive looked up and smiled through their tears.

"Ah, this was the secret then, of the old squire's growing so copious of late. They remembered the old saying: "When a person has matters still and when an interesting and beautiful young widow is brought into a widower's household."

So in all due time Mrs. Carrisourt became the old squire's bride, and soon after there was a double wedding at the Fifth Avenue Mansion, and both Olive and Hetty on that day became the happy mistresses of Bordentower.

And they were not more happy than Daisy and Alexis, who fairly worship the lovely bride who was to wed Harold.

Five years have passed on golden wings since then, and now a winsome little maid of four, and her sturdy little brother, who is a year younger call Daisy mamma. They are Daisy's girl and father's pride.

Laying her white arms around Alexis's neck, Daisy often whispers to her husband:

"When darling Maud is grown to maidenhood I will tell her the story of my folly—dear, that it may be a grave warning to her to avoid the rock which came so near wrecking our lives. Then I will tell her over—over—how I love her, and from the depths of my heart I am grateful for the sweet lesson when they repeat to her the story of 'Daisy Gordon's folly.'"

Sunshine Furnace.

LARGE, CLEAN ASH-PAN.

"In most furnaces the ash-pan is considered a minor detail —in its "Sunshine" it is given as much care as the most important feature.

And the ash-pit is constructed so that all the ashes must fall into the ash-pan which is large and roomy—no scraping, shovelling and sweeping up ashes in taking care of this heater.

In no other furnace are the latest, but really important little features given so much thought and care.

"Sunshine" furnaces make house-warming easy, cheap and sure.

SHE DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.

Mrs. Hetty Green will tell you how to do it. It tells of internal treatment. Others should know about her wonderful discovery. Pimples, blotches and the like are "not permitting" their presence for her. She tells how to get rid of these pimples are to go. You know that Mrs. Hetty Green's Wonderful Pimple Pill will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear as a bell. That's what she says, and there will be another witness to their cures.

The best way to get rest is to forget.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr A. Hicken son, farmer, Dudley, writes: "I was laid up with La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back. I could get no relief from any whatever. I tried to eliminate the poison from my system by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I bought a bottle of Hood's Pills I took Dr. Oil and used it internally and externally, morning and evening. In three days I was able to work, at which time I was entirely cured."

Life has a tendency to like a product that is good.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really makes them a perfect little pill. They are sugar coated. Carter's Little Liver Pills are small and easy to take. One pill a dose. They make the complexion clear as a bell.

A DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY.—Many of my friends, neighbors and others told me I could not possibly be cured of Dyspepsia and Heartburn & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspepsia Cure. I was at death's door, sick most of the time, for three years I could not eat more than a few mouthfuls of food. I gave up my business. All the food I took for three months was Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I consisted of it. I am now strong and hearty, and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen appetite, and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery and Dyspepsia Cure, and I am well known and people in this section know how I was before taking the Discovery and how I am now. They are eager to buy it. I am willing that anybody should write me. My address is Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, Wolfville, N.S. I never recommend to customers any medicine I have not used myself. I am not exaggerating anything, but glad to tell you what I have done for this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others that there is a sure cure for Dyspepsia.

Yours truly, JEAN VALODURE, Wolfville, N.S., Grocer. Merchant

The O. K. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. K. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,

Schoolboy Humor.

Foi the Lost Misdoppitting From the Fact That it is Unconscious.

To the majority of people, perhaps, a schoolmaster's life appears monotonous and uneventful, remarks Chambers' Journal, but to one who is apt to look upon the humorous side of things this is far from being the fact. Most boys are careless, impossible creatures, certainly, but there is a fund of genuine, unadulterated humor in the average boy. A schoolmaster of fifteen years' standing writes: "I have corrected, I might say, a few thousand examination papers in my time. Some of the answers to questions set are wonderfully funny and original—unconsciously funny." The following are specimens:

A boy, aged ten, thus answers a question as to the cause of the Transvaal disturbances: "Krugger and Kamberlium is one. He is a man of blud. Mr. Chamberlaing has wrote to him saying come out and fite or else give up the blud of the English you have took. he is a boacutchman and wicked beethin, lord Kitchener has sent for his geary blud and to bring back his scandertous hed dead or alive."

An essay on Gladstone by a boy of eleven states: "Mr. Gladstone loved everybody, he loved publicans and cinners and Irishmen. he wanted the Irish to come to England and have home rool, but Mr. Chamberlin says, no, no. so slars he got his blud up and killed Mr. Parnel. Mr. Gladstone died with great respect and is buried in Westminster with pleceful ashes."

Rather ambiguous is this description of Queen Elizabeth by another boy: "Queen Elizabeth was a virgin queen and she was never married. she was so fond of dresses that she was never seen without one on. she was beautiful and clever, with a red hed and freckles."

The boy writer of the following is decidedly backward in his Tennyson. Concerning the late poet laureate he writes: "Tenyson wrote boteiful poims with long hair and studid so much that he sed mother will you call me Alfry dear? his most gratlist poim is called the Idls king. he was made a lord but he was a good man, and wrote many books. he lovd our dear Queen so much that he made a poim to her called the fairy Queen."

Another boy wishes to become an editor. In an essay on "The Choice of a Profession," he gives his reasons in these words: "A editur is alwaw a happy man, because he can read lavly tales and artikels all day and page 4 sevel lite poems. A good editur has branes, but it must be very and for him having to read melankolic stories of luv so as to make him almost weep with tears from his eyes. a editur is a rich man because he never pays for artikels and so has all this interest for nothing."

One could hardly put the following ideas of a certain youth on "Honesty" to a practical use: "It is a nobel thing to be a honist man. If you are a honist man you can look the world in its face and never be ashamed of the devil. it is good to be honist when sum one is looking because you may get a reward... I know a chimdwarding who is a honist man who collects money on Sunday in his black clothes. if you are honist when you are young you may grow to be rich and be lord mare and then of caws it dusn't matter."

"This is from an essay on "My Hero:" "My hero is my father because he is a Christyun clergyman. my father says o my son gro up like your father and respect yourself because nobody else will respect you. I am goin' to be a clergyman because my father says I am a ass in school and have no branes to get a lyin' in dimise."

Shakespeare is hardly appreciated by the young hopeful who writes:—"Shakespeare was a famus poit and poachur. he wrote luvly plase called the tame shrew, hamblet and a scotch piece called Macdougal. In Shakespeares time some of the plase were very rude but now everything is so polyshed that a anercent father or son take his bate and it wont disgust it. Shakespeary was so ill when he died that he died with on his cursit bones."

One youth, who is a poet in embryo, is a great admirer of Longfellow. "Longfellow," he says, "wrote a grats deel of poims, he rite, he is beutifully poemiess in this way—I stood on a brig at midnight and gazed at the clock for an hour."

A boy, mourning the loss of an uncle, writes the following letter to his master: "Dear Reverend Sir,—I am injoying the holidays and have been ill twice. my unkel died with being old in three days last week, and we have had a pleasnt fewneral. I want to work in my arithmetic sir as you set but it would be wicked if I did it with a ded unkel, my father says if I first get a prise next term sumthing will happen.—I am Your rispectabul pupil,

"JOHN."

New Stories Are Scarce.

Tim Murphy, the actor, and Henry Watterson, the editor, met in the corridor of a Washington hotel the other day.

"What is your latest story?" the actor asked.

"No such thing as a new story now," growled Watterson. "It is impossible to keep a story good for two days. What's the use of thinking up new stories when they get spread all over the country between daylight and dawn? Why, sir, do you know that it is impossible to keep a good story as your own property. It's these blank telegraph operators who like good stories better than anybody. Suppose Chauncey Depew has a good story in New York. He tells it. Some telegraph operator hears it, and that night when things are quiet on the wire he asks the fellow at San Francisco or Denver or Timbuctoo if he has heard the latest, and he has the ticks it off. Every man along the line hears it and tells it off to the fellow he is working with, and by daylight the new story is the property of the wide, wide world. New story? Faugh!

"William," said the lady of the house, "will you mail these invitations for me the first thing this morning?" "Going to give a party?" "I have engaged a new kitchen girl for the first of next week, and I thought I would show her that we start with no illfeeling by giving a pink tea for her Monday afternoon."

ABOUT STYLISH CLOTHING

It takes different things to suit different ages.

The completeness of our clothing stock enables us to suit all—from the youngest to the oldest.

Just now we are thinking of the young man. He wants STYLE, and the perfection of our garments in this way is the reason we have pleased so many.

Probably their moderate price too has something to do with their popularity. Whether you get a $5 or $15 suit you will find the style right in either case and the value the best our money or yours can buy.

Many young men have been satisfied to leave their money here for a summer suit. Have you been in to see why?

We will be pleased to show you the many points of excellence in our garments—they are evident.

—Young Men's stylish Tweed and Worsted Suits—styles you cannot anywhere but in our assortment—sack and double breasted—see our window display ..... $5.00 to $16.50

Under Priced Summer Corsets

Here is a bargain in Summer Corsets which should win appreciation from every lady coming as it does just when you most need them.

Nothing neglected or out of date in there make up. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in everyway.

Just another example of what advantages there are in being the big store and able to handle large quantities.

This has been a regular stock corset with us and we have not heard an unsatisfactory remark about it.

By a recent deal made with the manufacturer, we are enabled to sell it at just one-third less than the regular price.

Which price you would pay in any other store. Here it is.

—Ladies' Fine Percale Corset, erect form, straight front, full steel filled and bias gored—lace and ribbon trimmed, as good a Corset as ever sells for 75c, our price 50c

Children's Washable Suits and Dresses.

In no way is the advance in the manufacture of ready to wear garments more marked than in our display of children's dresses.

Prettily made from the newest materials and marked at prices which are minute beside the home dressmaker's and but little more than you would pay for the material alone.

We are selling large quantities of these—we would sell double as many did every mother know what neat garments we have.

Come in and inspect these, that will give you a better idea of their practical economical advantages.

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have that same knack as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

STYLISH WEDDING IN KINGSTON.

IN WHICH SEVERAL BELLEVILLE PEOPLE WERE INTERESTED.

Mr. C. H. Vermilyea and family, of this city, were in Kingston yesterday, attending the wedding of Mr. Vermilyea's cousin, Miss Edna Wilson, a young lady known to many in this city. The Kingston papers give the following particulars of the happy event:

This morning at eleven o'clock a very quiet but exceedingly pretty home wedding took place, when Miss Edna, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilson, Queen street, was united in marriage to Mr. Hussey, of Brooklyn, N.Y. The Rev. Canon Macmorine performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very sweet and girlish in a beautiful gown of rose-de-voile over taffeta, with a bridal veil, caught by orange blossoms. Little Miss Marjorie Vermilyea, of Belleville, a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl, wearing a dainty white silk frock with a wreath of flowers to match in her hair.

The bridesmaid was Miss Lena Wilson, who was very becomingly costumed of delicate blue collan. The duties of best man were ably performed by Mr. Fowers, of Houlton, Maine. Many friends and relatives from a distance were present. A particularly pleasing incident was the rendering of "O, Promise Me," by Miss Mabel Vermilyea, Miss Edna Browne playing a wedding accompaniment. Both these talented young ladies are cousins of the bride and reside in Belleville.

Dr. and Mrs. Hussey left for the east on their wedding trip, carrying with them many heartfelt wishes for their life's future happiness.

HOME WEDDING THIS MORNING.

AND THE HAPPY COUPLE LEFT FOR THEIR HOME IN THE PHILIPPINES THIS AFTERNOON.

A very pretty home wedding took place this morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Peter Ferguson, Dunbar street, when his daughter, Miss Helen Mary, became the wife of Mr. Sydney Austin Camp-bell, late of the Philippine Islands. Rev. A. H. Drumm, of the John Street Church, performed the ceremony. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Kate Ferguson, whilst Mr. Steven Campbell, of Montreal, a brother of the groom, did honors for him. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party and guests were handsomely entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left this afternoon for the west, after spending a few days in Canada, they will leave for their home in the Philippine Islands, where they will make their destination about the first of August.

County Court.

Nicholds vs. O'Brien.—This case occupied the attention of the court all day yesterday, a large number of witnesses being examined on both sides. The case of slander $100 damages for loss of a horse, whose death, it was claimed, the defendant caused by neglect. The jury, after being out for some time, rendered a verdict for $60 for the plaintiff. Mr. E. J. Butler for plaintiff. Mr. D. O'Connell for the defendant.

King vs. McCaw. — This criminal case was taken up this morning. The defendant is Wesley McCaw, a hotel-keeper at Millbridge. He is charged with theft. It appears that a few peddlar was a guest at Mc-Caw's hotel about the middle of the month of May, and he states that McCaw took two watches from him, but afterwards returned them. The accused denies the allegation and says the story as narrated is cooked to extract money from him. Mr. Anderson prosecutes for the Crown, and Messrs. Porter & Carnew the accused.

THIS WORLD NEEDS NERVE.

It Needs it in business, in the study, in the household. Irritability, weakness, lack of strength—the blue feeling—why they just tell you that you lack nerve. You'll use Ferrozone? Why? What an appetite you'll get. How quickly the color will return to your cheeks, how buoyant you will feel! Work! of course you'll work, for you will enjoy it. That is if you will use Ferrozone. It gives nerve strength, muscular endurance and increases the brain splendidly. Sold by all druggists.

Excitement Runs High at Melrose.

HALF A BARREL OF REAL OIL TAKEN FROM THE WELL ON TUESDAY EVENING.

A gentleman who lives near Melrose, and came for town there this morning, tells us that there was truth in the rumor which was current in this city yesterday, namely, that oil had been struck at Melrose.

It seems that on Tuesday evening a showing of oil was made, half a barrel of the genuine thing being secured.

When our informant left Melrose this morning there was a great deal of expressed and suppressed excitement in the village, and everybody firmly believed that oil in paying quantities would be found before long.

MORE SHIRT WAISTS.

The Oak Hall was fortunate to secure another small lot of boys' shirt waists to sell at the odd price, 50 cents. These will be cleared out very quick. If you can use one or two you had better come at once.

GLORY WHALEN'S MURDERER KNOWN.

CRIME SAID TO HAVE BEEN COMMITTED BY A PEDLAR.

Owen Sound, Ont., June 10.—Chief of Police Mackley, of the Owen Sound police force, effected an arrest last night at Hanover that may lead to the solution of the mystery surrounding the murder of Glory Whalen at Collingwood. William Mulheron is the name of the man under arrest, and while he is not charged with the murder he has made a written statement in which he confesses to a pedlar of stove polish in the vicinity of Collingwood, whose name he knows as Mulheron claims that the pedlar told him he escaped with several hundred dollars in greenbacks at Collingwood, where they milked down and stole provisions. In consulting his statement Mulheron said that he believed the pedlar guilty, and that he ought to hang for the crime.

Marmora Jewellery Case.

Toronto, June 11.—Annie Lavine, of Marmora, near Belleville, secured an injunction yesterday from Judge Street restraining John Dobensky, also of Marmora, from disposing of certain jewellery which Miss Lavine claims to have purchased. According to Dobensky's statement, he is only safeguarding his own interests and will await the final orders of the court before disposing of the valuables. The plaintiff states that Samuel Frankel, of Toronto, has a chattel mortgage on the jewellery.

SERVIA'S KING AND QUEEN MURDERED.

Shot and Killed in Palace Last Night by Members of the Army.

The Premier and Other Cabinet Ministers and Officials Assassinated.

Prince Kare Georgevitch Named as King in Place of Murdered Alexander.

(Special to The Intelligencer.)

Belgrade, Servia, June 11.—A military revolution broke out here last night.

The troops, who revolted under the leadership of Major Angkovics, surrounded the palace, assassinated King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the Queen's brother, Nikodem; Premier Markovitch, Ministers Petrovitch and Todorovitch, General Tarkovitch, the former Minister of War, and some of the members of the Royal Guard.

A new Government, with Jovan Avakmmovics as Premier, was formed and a proclamation was issued announcing that the former constitution of April 6, 1901, comes in force, and a meeting of the National Representatives, dissolved by the proclamation of March 24, is to meet at Belgrade on June 15.

The troops are thronged with people, whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat.

Prince Kara Georgevitch was this morning declared King of Servia by the revolutionists.

The people received the news of the assassinations, which were perpetrated last night, quietly.

The bodies of the King and Queen remain in the palace.

All entry to the palace is prohibited, and a strong cordon of troops surround the Royal residence.

Right Way to Rescue.

It happened at one of the seaside resorts one afternoon last week or so ago. The day was rough, and several bathers were enjoying the still, cool water. Suddenly there was a cry from the crowd of spectators on the wharf, and a cleaving of necks. Some distance away in the Sound, a swimmer who had been doing "stunts" for half an hour had suddenly begun splashing and shouting:

"Help! H-e-l-p!" he cried in a frightened shriek when he came to the surface after sinking once.

"A shark must be after him," said a frightened woman.

"He has no Sound," corrected a man of the crowd. "He's got a cramp and is frightened to death."

"Why does not someone save him?" cried the woman, as there came another agonizing cry from the struggling man.

Even as she spoke a strong-limbed youth threw off his coat and tore with the fastenings at his shoes. One more glance to assure himself some of the men in bathing suits were going to the rescue, and he plunged into the water.

"Get a boat!" one man shouted, as is usual in such cases, at that particular moment there was no boat around.

The rescuer was swimming out, and the drowning man still splashed. The crowd cheered, and cheered again. It was plain that he would reach him first.

"That young chap is a hero," said an elderly woman.

"He ought to have a medal for it," cried another.

"Where is he?" demanded a girl who just worshipped heroes on or off the stage.

Then a change came over the crowd. The rescuer was beside the struggler, and while he could have grasped the drowning man, he held back. What was he up to, the crowd asked after all? The man with the cramp struggled and fought his way toward the rescuer, who gave his outstretched arm.

The rescuer struck out with his clenched fist, hit the man in the face. It was a left-hander, and the struggler could not sink like a shot.

"Brute!" cried the crowd. "Murderer! He's trying to kill the poor fellow! He ought to be hanged." Just wait until he gets back to shore!" These and other exclamations came from the frenzied crowd.

Then came another change. The head of the drowning man disappeared. He had ceased to struggle. The rescuer was double-fisted, and evidently brought his left reach of the sinking head. He grasped the hair, rolled over on his back and began for the shore.

The crowd which a moment before had been reviling him began to cheer again. They made for the point of land to which he was heading, that they might receive him with open arms. Some of them worried because the head of the unconscious man occasionally went under the water, and they were afraid it did not surface. They were told that it did not matter.

"That was the cleanest, most skillful rescue I've ever seen," said a man who seemed to know what he was talking about. "The big fellow is a master of life saving. He first rendered his cramp struggler unconscious by striking him, and then he got behind him and had him under with him had he not held off. He did just the right thing in bringing him ashore in the best possible way. He'll have to be resuscitated anyway, and a little more water in his lungs at this stage of the game will not hurt him."

The celebrated physician, Zimmerman, attended Frederick the Great in his last illness one day he said to him: "You have, I presume, helped many a man to a peaceful death." This was rather an unexpected thrust for the physician, but he done he gave the King in return was a better one. "Sire," part of truth and flattery: "Not so many as you, for I never had such a much honor to myself."

The late Lord Beaconsfield, of Macintosh, who, it may be well to explain, was the chief of a Scotch clan, was once at a dinner party where the host at whom he got into a dispute with his cabinet over the term. "Perhaps you do not know who I am," he said, at last, almost all other arguments had failed, "I am the Macintosh." "I don't care if you're the bumbersla, too," returned the unimpressed cabby. "Your head's one and six, and that's what I wants."

Doctor Hugh Miller was a great collector of himself. One of his intimates called at his house and found him walking in his garden, apparently thinking deeply. The visitor asked the doctor what was the matter. "I am meditating upon, "I was wondering," replied the poet, "what I should say to the Creator when I meet Him. Can you help imagine?" "Why, certainly," "Yes," answered the poet's friend; "you would say, 'My dear Contriver.'"

There are times when differences of rank do not count, and an Irish soldier is said to have shown great courage at one of them during the late war in Cuba. He was discovered in the trenches with a companion in a hole, well out of the way of even a stray shot, when he should have been engaged in active service. "Get out of that hole!" commanded the sergeant, angrily. "Get out of it this minute!" The broad Irish face looked up at him with stubborn assurance written on every feature. "You may be my superior officer," he said boldly, "but all the same, Oi'm the man that found this hole fir-rst!"

CHAS. S. CLAPP

He Said "No."

THE great Young Men's Christian Association Convention recently held in Boston brought delegates from all parts of the world to testify to the value of the Christian religion as the highest rule of conduct for a practical life. It was natural, as the delegates met each other, for them to exchange vital experiences. The following was told by one who had traveled eight thousand miles to attend the meetings:

"My father was a rancher on a small scale in Australia. He had a few thousand sheep or so, and a couple of square miles of run for pasture. He was a typical, English emigrant of small means, rough stock, and while the free life on the ranch had taught him tolerance and kindness, he remained true in principle to the strict lessons of his early years.

"The nearest neighbor or station was ten miles away, but the distance used to think nothing of riding twenty or forty miles to a recently located farm on Saturdays to spend the night in carousal, and ride back on Sunday.

"The isolation was so depressing and the heat so exhausting that when the men came together once a week in this way, drinking and gambling seemed inevitable. In the unbridled passion and excitement of these coarse pleasures they thought they might forget for a few hours the suffering and privation of their lot.

"At last it was my father's turn to entertain. He must invite the farmers from all the ranches within a radius of nearly fifty miles.

"Hope,' he said, 'is not two sons, my brother and myself, 'it's the parting of the ways. We either live as we have lived, simply, in the fear of God, minding our business, paying our debts if we can, saving our money if possible, and being cut by every man round here, or we fall into the ways of our neighbors, and drink and gamble ourselves into perdition. I am not going to break your mother's heart, and I will not, even if they turn us down.'

"It was the critical moment of our lives. I could have fallen at my father's feet and worshipped him when he made that decision. He looked like a Christian and not invincible.

"So it came about that my brother and I divided the circuit between us and I rode to the north and he to the south. To every ranchman this message went: 'Father invites you for Saturday and Sunday as usual. There will be no cards or liquor—merely a quiet talk about old England and the welfare of the colony.'

"We waited that Saturday afternoon with trembling, not expecting a single guest. But suddenly one rode up, and then another, and another, until the whole section was represented. There never had been so large a gathering. They came in curiosity and with respect.

"With mother opposite him, father said grace at table, and we boys saw tears flow from rugged cheeks. That night the men talked long about bushmen and rabbits and fences and drought, and how to stand by each other.

"The next morning, as he did every Sunday morning, father conducted prayers, but time before fifty of the roughest men I had ever seen assembled—and there was singing of hymns broken here and there by sobs and tears. When they parted, my father, although a recent comer, was the acknowledged leader of the community. That station became the most prosperous section in all the country round. And I believe that if Christian courage could accomplish that, it was good enough for me to live and die by.' My father's 'No' was the one thing needed to save the community, and it saved it."

Willie Pa, "practical" means "crooked," doesn't it?

Pa—Certainly not. What makes you think that?

Willie—Well, what do the papers mean then when they talk about "practical politics"?—Philadelphia Press.

SERVIAN DYNASTY WIPED OUT

King, Queen, Premier and Other Ministers Murdered.

The Army Has Announced Alexander's Sworn Persons of High Rank, Previously Unknown, Have Overthrown Him, and Instituted a New Ministry—The Coup Approved and the New Ministers Cheered in the Streets.

Belgrade, June 12.—A military revolution broke out here Wednesday night. The troops, who revolted under the leadership of Major Anghkovics, surrounded the Palace unsuspected King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the Queen's brother, Nikodeo, Premier Markovitch, Ministers Petrovitch and Protovitch, Gen. Pavolitch, the former Minister of War, and some of the members of the Royal Guard.

How King Frustrated.

Prince Karageorgevitch was proclaimed King.

A new Government was formed, form a new Government. While the Government makes this announcement to the people, it is convinced that the Servian people will gather round it and lend it their aid; it demands order and security throughout the land.

"The Government hereby makes known that from to-day the constitution of April 6th, 1901, comes in force. A meeting of the National representatives, directed by the proclamation of March 24, is summoned to meet at Belgrade, June 15.

People Seem to Approve.

The streets are thronged with people, whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat. M. Protics, the new Minister of the Interior, was loudly cheered as he drove to the Ministry.

Avakumovics, the new Premier, belongs to the Independent Liberal party.

A Better Future.

The newspapers forecast a better future for Servia, and the new state of things is heartily welcomed by the masses. The Servian parliament will confirm the new King in his office. The army rules.

KING ALEXANDER.

IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT.

Dramatic Story of How King and Queen Were Killed.

Vienna, June 12.—Despatches from Servia say that since the late King Alexander's suspension of the Servian constitution, the army had been animated by the hostile feelings toward both the King and Queen.

The revolution was planned weeks ago. Secret committees were organized in the country, and worked in co-operation with army. The leaders of the plot decided to kill the King and Queen, and the Premier, Dr. Schukovics, and the Sixth Regiment of Infantry, garrisoning Belgrade, was designated to carry out the plot. It was originally intended that the plot should be executed later, but fears that the new Servian parliament would settle the question of the succession to the throne hastened matters.

Dr. Schukovics, the adjutant of the King, was entrusted with the execution of the plans. While on duty at 11 o'clock Wednesday night Naumovics learned that the sleeping apartments of the royal couple with a band and then entered, accompanied by Mischics and a number of junior officers. Previously the guard had been overpowered, and its commander, Captain Pausanovitch, was killed.

King Killed Col Naumovics.

Naumovics presented to the King a form of abdication for his signature. The document contained the statement that by marrying a "public prostitute" the King had disgraced Servia, and that therefore he must abdicate. The King refused, and tried to draw a revolver and kill Naumovics on the spot.

Mischics then picked up the document and presented it again to the King, who perceiving the futility, fled with Queen Draga to the palace. Both had on their night attire under clothes. The officers followed, continuously firing, until they finally reached the royal couple. Major Lukatchevitch killed the King.

Lazarovics, who has been under the King's displeasure for two years, is said to have fired the shot which actually killed the King.

Ministers Later Shot.

At about 2 o'clock yesterday morning Queen Draga's two brothers were shot at their homes, as well as Premier Markovitch and his brother-in-law, M. Milkovitz, the Minister of the Interior, M. Todorovitch, and his daughter, and the War Minister, M. Pavolitch.

While these events were proceeding at the palace the streets of the city were already occupied by officers, and an armed force surrounded the royal residence. The horses and guns of the batteries of artillery were all accoutred with overgrowns as a sign that they were ready, erected the badge of King Alexander from their bridles.

An attempt was made to support the dynasty by the Commander of the Danube division, who tried to march the light regiment of infantry into the city to defend the late King Alexander, but he was opposed by a body of regular cavalry. The Royalists in the fight which ensued both the officers mentioned were killed.

WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE?

The organ of the Ontario Government in Toronto has, in its attempts to shield the members of the Government, been throwing the blame for the corruption existing upon the people generally. The Mail and Empire, dealing with this phase of the subject, very properly says:

If we look over the uniting range of political crime as recently developed, we cannot find one form of evil that has not originated with the politician rather than with the elector. It may be true that some voters are purchasable.

But who taught them that their votes were commodities that can be sold on the open market?

For an answer it is only necessary to read the evidence in the North Waterloo case.

There we are introduced to the Government agent, sitting with a pile of bills before him, and explaining to his employees that there is a regular schedule of rates—$5 for each vote transferred to the Ministerial side, but not more than $100, or the price of twenty votes, for each separator.

Sin in the hearts of the people did not devise this expedient.

It responded to the invitation and for the bad morals appertaining to it the Government alone provided the money.

Let us ask, who would find fault whereswithal but the politicians who profit by the expenditure? If the sin of bribery originates with the political leader, so, also, does that of fraud in the handling of votes.

No honest West Elgin elector proposed or aided in the crimes that disgraced that constituency.

The system of wrong was devised by the expert campaigner, and, instead of being directed by the people, was aimed against them.

No North Grey elector asked that the little crosses be added to the ballots in order that they might be spoiled.

The North Waterloo voter proposed that ballots be switched and misounted.

These operations were suggested and directed and all for by the representatives of the Rose Government.

When we come to the culminating offence—the intrigue with the legislature, having for its object treason to the electorate—are the people in the slightest degree blameworthy?

The idea did not come from the voters who were so cheated, but from the Ministers who were to receive the illegitimate gain.

Finally, the improper transaction with the banker—the sale of a $9,000 property for $250—was the act of the public trustees, and not of the people.

If we say that these wrongs must be chalked up against the voter who suffer them on the ground that the men who commit them are merely the exponents of the prevailing sentiment, we abolish the doctrine of responsibility and invite a continuance and repetition of the crime.

It is quite true that the prevailing of good morals is needed. But those who "prevail" by means of the doors, and not the victims, of wrong.

TIMELY TOPICS

The month of roses—and rot noses.

After to-day's beautiful rain the burdock crop is out of danger.

While the Willie Boys with coffin foils in their faces and fish hook curls on their foreheads will see to it that the wild cat crop is a plentiful one.

People who have to drive along County roads will commend the action of the County Council in taking steps to punish the illegal butchering down of shade trees, which are all too scarce on many roads in this municipality.

The late King of Belgium suspended the nation's Constitution, and now his own constitution is gone.

Mr. Bear, the leading coat baron, told the U. S. Interstate Commerce Commission that if the present popular scheme of "attacking the great industries" is continued, there is no telling at what price coal will be sold. That sounds very much like cynical defiance.

It is to be hoped the ladies and gentlemen who are attending the Summer School at Point au Baril Point have their rain coats and umbrellas with them.

What do you suppose the people of Servia would do if they had a corrupt Government such as Ontario has?

It is a pretty safe bet that Spotlessjimstrattenovitch and Geewashingtonosnovitch would have started for the tall timber before this.

Those Servians follows do appear to have an "itch" for office.

A PRETTY GOOD LIST.
(Hamilton Spectator.)

Kingston will have to be satisfied with what Government money it gets for the penitentiary, the military college, the artillery establishment and the school of mines—the latter, perhaps, temporarily. And that is a pretty good list for one unprogressive town.

An evangelist up west says only the wicked are afraid of lightning. Now we know what makes some people so nervous in a thunderstorm.

Two of Toronto's leading sporting writers are fighting, and if they will only follow the example set by Sir Earl-Japet Kilkenny, sats there will be barrels of joy in Hogtown.

There was a real wild bear hunt in Bancroft recently. With live bears and the editor of the Bancroft Reporter at large with his flying limits things should be quite lively.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?
(New York Press.)

The best thing for a girl's complexion is for a man to catch her climbing an apple tree.

Hon. Mr. Davis said the record of his department (Crown Lands) had been as clean as the record of any private concern. What an unblushing falsehood! Would any private concern allow one of its employees to enter into a job to bonco it out of over $8,000? Hardly. And this poor little man Davis can find no better or more truthful argument to defend himself with than that!

It must be some satisfaction to the shade of the late King Alexander, of Servia, to know that, before he yielded up his life, he "got" the man who engineered the trouble.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, speaking yesterday on the Chinese Immigration Bill, asked whether "well-behaved Chinese were not preferable to Doukhobors, who ran naked around the country, and when the Government had imported them, "got" the Doukhobors and the Chinks the latter certainly have the call.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

THURSDAY MORNING SESSION.

Ways and Means Again.

On motion the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means resumed, Mr. G. Nicholson in the chair.

A communication was read from Mr. W. C. Mikel, City Solicitor, calling his attention of the County Council to water running down Chapel street, the same coming from the county property.

The Clerk said that it was pure water that went down Campbell-st.

Mr. McFarlane moved, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee. Carried.

A lengthy communication was read asking for aid for the Consumptive sanitarium at Gravenhurst.

Mr. McFarlane thought that the Provincial Government should assume management of such institutions.

On motion no action was taken.

Moved by Mr. McFarlane, seconded by Mr. Fleming, that 25 copies of the new Municipal Manual be procured by the Clerk.

A claim was presented to the Council for $40 for damages sustained to a sleigh and furniture, which were upset on account of ditch holes last March in the road between Marlbank and Ivanhoe. Mr. F. Nichols and Miss Mary Colville were the claimants.

After some discussion a motion prevailed that no action be taken.

The committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Granted.

It being 12 o'clock the Warden left the chair.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council met at 2 p.m. and went into Committee of the Whole on Roads and Bridges, Mr. Clarke in the chair.

The report of the Superintendent of Roads and Bridges, and that of the Chairman, Mr. Clarke, was considered. It was a lengthy document, setting forth that $4,161.40 had been expended so far this year. It was estimated that $12,000 would be required for roads this year, and $5,000 for bridges.

On motion the Superintendent and the Clerk were instructed to confer with the authorities of Northumberland and Durham Counties in reference to having a bridge built on the boundary line between Rawdon and Seymour Townships.

The Superintendent's report recommended that an increase in wages be given to the teamsters, men and foremen at work on the County roads.

It recommended that teams have an increase of 25c per day, men 10c per day and foremen 15c per day.

Mr. McFarlane stated that wages were going up this year, and it might be possible for the County to increase wages for this year, especially if they have good men. He moved in amendment that foremen and men get an increase of 10c per day and teams 15c per day.

Mr. Mallory seconded the amendment, which prevailed. The raise does not apply to teams and men who work on bridges.

The recommendation that another roller be purchased for the County was also caused considerable discussion.

Mr. Faulkner was opposed to purchasing a crusher this year, as the expenses in other directions this year would be great. He moved that the matter be laid over.

Mr. G. Nicholson said a new crusher was probably needed, but he was in favor of waiting another year.

It was decided not to purchase a roller this year.

Mr. A. Nicholson asked if the Council intended to purchase any gravel pits from a Mr. McKinnon, in Madoc Township. The price asked for the pits, he believed, was reasonable.

The matter was referred to a committee composed of the Superintendent, Messrs. Clarke and A. Nicholson, with power to act.

The committee rose and reported progress.

Mr. R. Snell, of Marmora, addressed the Council in reference to the Copper road. He asked the Council to assume some four miles of this road as a County gravel road. The Village of Marmora and the Township of Marmora together would give the County Council $700 towards placing the same in a proper state of repair.

Mr. Warren spoke in support of the County assuming this portion of the road, and he asked the Council to concede to the request. A sum of $700 on hand to the credit of the County towards placing the road in a proper state of repair.

Mr. J. F. Wills said that Mr. Kerr, Manager of the Cordova Mines, would be willing to give the Council stone for use upon the road. The letter given by the Village and Township of Marmora would go a long way towards placing the road in good condition. The Township of Marmora would give in exchange four miles of a road in the northern part of the Township, if this piece of road was assumed by the County it would be of great benefit to Marmora and the County generally.

On motion the matter was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

The Forty-ninth Regiment.

A memorial was presented from the officers of the Forty-ninth Regiment asking the Council for a grant to assist in maintaining the regiment at camp in the near future. They asked for a grant to procure necessaries not provided by the Government. The officers desired to procure a tent and utensils for providing meals to the men.

A deputation consisting of Major Orr, Capt. McGee and other officers of the Regiment, spoke in support of the memorial and asked the Council to assist them in this matter.

On motion the matter was referred to the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

The Committee of the Whole on Roads and Bridges resumed.

The matter of Mr. J. R. McKinnon, who cut down a number of shade trees on the County road in Marmora Township, was discussed at some length.

Messrs. McFarlane and Denyes thought that Mr. McKinnon should be made to pay for the trees, as an example to others that they cannot cut trees down indiscriminately.

Mr. A. Nicholson thought that as Mr. McKinnon received permission from the Township Council to cut the trees he should not be censured or fined.

Mr. Geo. Nicholson moved, seconded by Mr. McFarlane, that Mr. McKinnon be taxed $5.

Mr. Thompson moved, seconded by Mr. Hanley, that Mr. McKinnon be taxed $2.

Mr. Mallory moved in amendment, seconded by Dr. Faulkner, that Mr. McKinnon be taxed $10.

The motion that Mr. McKinnon be taxed $5 prevailed.

Some other minor matters in regard to repairing roads were considered and passed, and the report of the Superintendent was finally adopted.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock Friday morning.

FRIDAY MORNING SESSION.

A petition was presented from a number of ratepayers in Monteagle and Herschell, asking assistance for rebuilding a bridge. A grant of $200 was asked.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

A petition was presented asking for aid for the construction of a new bridge in the 12th concession of Monteagle.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. McFarlane introduced a by-law to equalize the assessment of the minor municipalities.—Referred to Committee.

Mr. Denyes introduced a by-law to levy certain sums of money on the minor municipalities for the year 1903.—Referred to By-laws Committee.

On motion the Committee on Ways and Means resumed, Mr. G. Nicholson in the chair.

Mr. Ward said he desired to bring a matter up before the Council, namely, the petition of Mr. A. Harryett, Police Magistrate of Marmora, for an increase of salary.

On motion the matter was referred to a special committee, composed of Mr. Warden, Messrs. McFarlane and G. Nicholson, to examine Mr. Harryett's petition.

Forty-ninth Turned Down.

The memorial from the Forty-ninth regiment, asking for a grant, was discussed.

Mr. Denyes said he had sympathy with the officers of the regiment, and would like to assist them, but he did not think the finances of the County this year warranted a grant being made. The Government should provide all outfits. He moved that no grant be taken in the matter.

Mr. Denyes.—The Militia Department should provide the necessaries for the men going to camp. All things considered, he would second the motion.

Dr. Faulkner said the County was in debt and we should first pay off the debt before making any such grants. As soon as our finances warrant it, we should assist the regiment.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

Died in Thurlow.

Very sad, indeed, was the death of Mrs. Minnie F. Moss, which occurred yesterday at the residence of her father, Mr. John Brokes, 4th concession of Thurlow. Deceased was in the first flush of womanhood, being only 21 years and three months old. She leaves a father, mother and husband to mourn her loss.

Sister Shoe Advertising

Art in Shoe Making

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 7.

Mere wear in a shoe is comparatively easy—plowman's hobnailed brogans to wit.

Foot comfort, as exemplified in your easy going house slippers, does not imply either beauty, shape retention or street-wear durability!

Yet wear in a brogan and comfort in a slipper are secured by a modicum of shoe making skill.

But to produce a shoe of wear, of comfort, of beauty and then to challenge public criticism under the limelight rays of advertising requires art, shoe making art—not the art which hides by cleverly concealing defects but the art which assembles in the shoe all the elements of wear, of foot comfort, of shape retention and shoe beauty.

Such shoe art is the "Slater Shoe" makers are compelled, by advertising, to impart to the "Slater Shoe."

That's why the man or woman who buys and wears a "Slater Shoe" is assured of all he or she has right to expect in a high-grade shoe bearing upon it the stamp of the maker's responsibility as does

The Saving of Mrs. Maglyll.

PERSONALLY, I never liked Mrs. Merrine. It may have been that she was too pretty for her own good, or it may have been something else, but I never could analyze my sentiments. I like and I dislike. That's enough for me. Some people can't wear a bustle without looking in what-d'ye-call-it evolution a taste for humps was evolved, but for the life of me I never could discover it became the style. And when Mrs. Merrine married Mr. Merrine, I did a little quiet rejoicing all privately of course. You see, George and Miss Merry had had an affair, and, by the way, I don't thought of it before, but maybe that is why I never connected according to that, I shouldn't have liked George, either. I've been known to act that way—equal to themselves, isn't it? Or something like that, but I never thought it to me. I couldn't understand in a week, and, besides, I want to tell you of princips. I think I ought to be like the magazines, as a man's club or the ladies' aid, to get up and send up and secreted by one; any more than one would let the other see it, and around him, so no one else should see it.

Mixed? No, I'm not. The metaphor? Oh, well, I'm not writing for the Mrs. Merrine. But about his principles. They were a good concrete sort, you know. They were like Mr. Merrine's Kanitan about them. A babe in arms could take them and digest them, and all things I loathe it's a man or woman of principle. I think I've always th

No, Clarence, "The Revelstoke Millions," is the first instalment of which appears in to-day's issue, have nothing to do with the thirty odd millions per year which the Grits spend more than the Tories used to.

If the ancient party who wrote the proverb "It never rains but it pours" only knows it, he is a long way from being in Solomon's class.

The Winnipeg Telegram has the audacity to say that a certain sentence in the Judges' report on the Gamey investigation is "clearly fiction." If the Toronto Globe will kindly call the police the Hamilton Times will move that the rules be suspended while the Telegram's editor is hanged, drawn and quartered.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle emits this mournful moan: "What with droughts and floods and forest fires and strikes this country's prosperity needs a robust constitution to keep alive at all." A trial is now pending in Philadelphia that possesses unusual interest. The widow of Leonard Nax is suing an insurance company for the $5,000 policy held by her husband. The late Mr. Nax had a corn which bothered him. He used it with a razor, drew blood and blood poisoning set in from which he died. The insurance company claims that a man who has his own corns voluntarily exposes himself to danger, and on this ground declines to pay.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, June 11.—The arrivals of cattle, sheep and calves at the local city yesterday and to-day were unusually large, and altho the receipts for the two days were about 200 cattle, 1,000 sheep and 300 lambs and calves, there were still 200 cattle, 500 sheep and 200 lambs offered to-day. A few choice cattle were sold yesterday at 3½c, but some were sold at as low as 2½c per lb. to-day, and the market is very dull, with the prospects of a large number of the cattle remaining unsold. Medium cattle sold at from 3½c to 3¾c per lb., and common at from 2½c to 3c per lb. Sheep sold at from 3½c to 3¾c per lb., and the young pigs at from $1.25 to $2.25 each.

The Final Stages of Locomotor Ataxia

ARE ABSOLUTE HELPLESSNESS, LOSS OF ALL POWER AND COMPLETE PARALYSIS — PREVENTED AND CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Locomotor ataxia is a form of paralysis which is very common. It is fatally common these days, because of the ever increasing hustle of the present age.

Probably you have seen victims of this ailment, walking with a jerking motion, and putting their feet down at an awkward angle, and wondered what ailed them. It was locomotor ataxia, or paralysis of the nerves which controls motion.

There is a peculiar numbness of the feet and legs, an uncertain feeling when going up stairs or walk, when you go up or down stairs or around corners. The limbs no longer obey the commands of the brain, and the victim feet seem to have lost their feeling, and you feel as though you were stepping over or move backwards instead of going ahead.

The final stages of locomotor ataxia are absolute helplessness, loss of all power, and complete paralysis of the nervous system.

The best time to begin treatment is when the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion become apparent. When you find that you do not sleep well, start up suddenly, have difficulty in concentrating your thoughts, suffer from headache, indigestion, or irritability, it is time to take prompt action to restore the vitality of the blood and nerves. For this purpose there is no more satisfactory treatment than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Nervous diseases never get well of themselves, nor can they be cured in a few days, but Dr. Chase's Nerve Food assists nature in restoring vitality to wasted nerves, acts in accordance with nature's laws, and is certain to do you good, because it forms new, rich blood and nerve cells. Fifty cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

A Mummy as Hostess.

M. GOUIMET, the celebrated Orientalist, who has founded in Paris a museum which bears his name, gave the other day a five o'clock tea, "to meet the beautiful Thais," relates a correspondent in Paris. Thais, as one knows, was the famous courtesan who lived in the third century, and was so blonde and lovely that all the gentlemen of Alexandria lost their appetites and sleep on her account. The smartest people were invited, and, to begin with, an exceedingly handsome man arrived with a wise precaution, for—who knows!—that night not have been the night of the rarer Oriental guests of M. Guimet. After they had duly greeted Thais, in her sarcophagus, for Thais was a mummy.

The once beautiful lady received her visitors lying down on her stone couch of white marble. A gossamer veil of gold was on her face, which is somewhat damaged, was in her dainty slippers of scarlet cloth embroidered with real pearls very little can be seen. But she still wore her superb hair, once like liquid copper, now somewhat faded and of a vague color, though abundant and silky. Round her neck was a necklace formed by two rows of unpolished pearls. Her voluptuous yellowish gown is of a texture so fine that nothing of the kind could be found nowadays, and she wears a bodice of orange striped silk, which is tied round her waist by a sash of the most delicate salmon-pink hue.

Besides her were many pretty things, such as a bread-basket in silver-dilgree, two mugs of chased gold, two bronze statuettes for Thais became a Christian while she was still young and lovely—and a sort of perfume-box in light laths of pale wood. A few other mummies keep her company, some of them being also surrounded by quaint and curious things when visitors come to look at. One of the most clever lady mummies was so struck by those that she is going to write a series of articles on the subject, beseeching the friends and relations of our modern dead to imitate the people of antiquity and fill their tombs with articles like were once beloved by them, so that some 3,000 years hence scholars and artists may form an idea of the Parisian civilization in the twentieth century.

Some Scotch Examination Papers.

London "Chronicle."

A correspondent proposes as the following questions for the next matriculation examination at the Scotch universities: First-Geography.—Draw a map of the United States, marking London, Glasgow and Birmingham. Second—Medium rattle sold at from 2½c to 2¾c per lb., and common at from 2c to 2½c per lb. Sheep sold at from 2½c to 2¾c per lb., and the young pigs at from $1.25 to $2.25 each.

Rule of Three—If a man does a piece of work in four days, how much quicker will an American do it at half the salary? Third—Political Economy—The Yankee millionaries over here state they "feel as if this were their own country." The German Emperor, when last visiting us, declared he felt "perfectly at home." Account for this. Fourth—History—Write a note on the invasions of Great Britain and the rebellion and subsequent subjugation of the Angles, Clive dictated the Treaties of Yerkes &., Sloan, Morgan the Contractor, and the other conquerors; also of the beatification of St. Carnegie. Say what you know of any of these. Fifth —Trade Problem—You are an English manufacturer. An extensive order is received for locomotives for a trans-African railway. Which would you demand as an extra alteration of the railway to fit the six locomotives you have in stock, or manufacture for American rival? Sixth—Travel—You are an American millionaire traveling for recreation. Which would you take back with you as souvenir—London or Paris? State your reasons for preferring one of those trinkets.

Le Gallienne as Satirist.

IN the "Rambler," Numb. 210, Richard Le Gallienne, Esquire, has what he himself would no doubt call a "little paper" on "The Desire of the Star for the Moth." We help ourselves to the following excerpts:

"Of course, there are very big successful Stars who affect that little three-worshipper Moth as a Nuisance, and build themselves about with Bastions of Privacy, through which no Ray of their Shining can reach the most perseverating Moth—but then, you see, they are so sure of their Moths. I wonder if the Stars should come when the Flocks of little Pigmies up to their dizzy Radiance begin to slacken, and the Flood of Moth-Wings outside their guarded Country-seats to grow faint—and they has happened so with some very great Stars indeed!—if they would not become a little insecure in their Privacy of Glarriness, and perhaps even at last unbuilt a Window, and let in the Beam of their celestial Selves; lest the Moths should grow discouraged, and perhaps cease coming at all.

"I have heard that some Stars of this Magnitude charge the Moth Half a Guinea for their Autographs—strictly, of course, for the Service of the Public. Such Stars are, you can imagine, very sure of their Moths. But there is another Kind of big Star that makes quite as fine a Blaze as those of which I have been speaking, yet is by no means so unmoved on the Contrary is smilingly, even eagerly, accessible to every Moth that is of Kith and Kin speculative as to take the Trouble to call with its Homage. It often indeed calls the Moth to stay for Lunch, and makes it promise to be sure to come again."

It is somewhat unusual to find Mr. Le Gallienne playing literary satirist in this rather obvious manner. But at the moment he is living in New York, which possibly accounts for it. Possibly, too, suggests the "Outlook," the falling-off in the revenue of necks which formerly drifted in a certain direction has filled his soul with revolt.

For the Revelsworth Millions, —or— AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

CHAPTER I.

"Revelsworth is dead this most the era of any direct descendant of Dudley Sir Samuel Revelsworth, who left the Revelsworth millions. Who are the people? Who is to be found abroad between the ages of 18 and 25, or who is at present requested to immediately communicate with Messrs. Simpson & Watt, solicitors, at their offices, 69, Lincoln's Inn Fields, where they may hear of something to their advantage."

Dudley Revelsworth, the younger, had to one of his friends read this advertisement, had had his attention drawn to the notice in question on the first appearance that morning at the Paris office of the London Morning News, to the daily "Times" letter of which he was an occasional contributor of social and artistic gossip.

It was a bitterly cold day in the latter part of March, 1886. Dudley Revelsworth suffered but little from changes in temperature, but even he turned up the collar of his fur-lined overcoat as he sallied forth into the keen east wind that was blowing over the Place de la Concorde. At the office he had received his letters, and had opened the advertisement in the Morning News, which merely related to himself, since he had but little time to spare before he was by no means a common one, and that Dudley had but a single relative, Harold had died between the dates mentioned in the announcement in question.

Dudley Revelsworth decided that he must think further over a little it connection with this advertisement before he answered it, and therefore he therefore turned into a restaurant close at hand, and, having ordered a cup of tea, spread out his paper before him on the marble-topped table, and, forgetting all his cares, for the time, proceeded to devote his whole mind to a study of the advertisement.

Speedily his cup of hot coffee stood before him. The waiter knew him well, and "le grand anglais" was never kept waiting. Although more than the twenty-seven years of life had been spent in France, although he adopted himself to French habits, lifted the French as a native, and spoke the language with perfect fluency, no one ever mistook Dudley Revelsworth for a Frenchman. As he sipped from time to tee, Reginald in his bright-colored cravat, in his broad shoulders and massively-built figure, in his deep tanned visage, and, more especially, in clear blue eyes, wavy light brown hair, and moustache innocent of cosmetic on each side of his face, he was English.

Dudley, as he read and re-read the notice with increasing interest, was by no means a rich man. Although he was too well interested in the Revelsworth millions to take offence, and his boil-dog tenacity of character would not allow him to give up the chase, he was not in the position of many of the Revelsworth claimants, who, when they heard of something to their advantage."

It probably was some modified little agony from some of the Manchester Revelsworth's to told that the Queen and the Little One will be constructing castels in the air on the strength of it, and from which poor old dad will be about his relations and the abominable way in which they treat him, if he isn't likely to be anything much. Of course I must write to Simpson & Watt, and I will, I will remember how my dad, on his death-bed, told me to starve rather than to ask for money or help from any one of the name of Revelsworth. For all I care a fig about the would come in very useful just now—and the Little One could look that spring costume she has set her heart upon.

There upon he finished his coffee, and, comfortably fortified against the bitter weather, he lighted a fragrant cigarette, rais'd his score, left the res a rant, and proceeded on his journey homewards.

The tiny flat in which the young Dudley, inheriting a household gods were modestly housed was situated as the Rue de Rivoli, on the fifth house of a dingy old-fashioned street on the cheaper side of the river. Dudley rented the polished uncarpeted shallow stairs two steps at a time, and passed outside his entrance door with a flat to listen, smiling, to a woman's voice murmuring a French love-song within. It was the Little One, singing as usual over her task of arranging the breakfast-things.

"Let's hope this paper may bring us luck to-day," he said to himself as the young man's mind as he let himself in with his key.

A day had led into the sale-a-man-ner from which no other connection nothing at all, just who the winter, with its cold and its fuel and lamp-oil, was coming to an end, and her sons had been in fairly lucrative employment.

The soft-hearted Victor was on his feet by her side in a moment, caressing her and laughing at her by turns.

It was Mlle. Mallory, he declared, because a few evenings before he had accompanied her to the portals of a pretty cafe-chantant singer and stuck it upon his mantelpiece.

"But you know quite well, little mother, she is not nearly so pretty as you. Now don't shake your head! You know how every one admires you—is not Captain Gerault and Monsieur Rostin and le Docteur Gilles. What—more tears! There, Dudley," the young man cried, turning to his step-brother with a comic expression of despair, "that is quite this news of yours; it may serve to divert her."

Thus adjured, Dudley proceeded to unfold his paper and to read aloud the advertisement from the "Agony Column," headed by the name of "Revelsworth."

Long before he had finished Madame Victoire had dried her tears, and sat upright in her chair listening with all her ears. As he put the paper down she sprang from her seat, snatched it up, and read the advertisement again and again, then flushed and her eyes bright with excitement. Then she fairly danced around the room, finally falling into a chair aloft, and finished by effusively hugging each of her companions.

"Enfin," she cried—"it has come—the fortune I so hoped would be yours some day! Oh, assuredly it is the Revelsworth money which was first made by your grandmother one hundred years ago, and which now will some of it come to my good boy, who have worked so hard and been so good—my poor they sometimes have had to live for days and weeks on bread-and-cheese and a little salad! But, even when we were poorest, they would go without anything—their cigarettes, their coffee—anything, so that I should not suffer. Ah, you must never think that I am ungrateful, or that I have forgotten! But, voyons, there will be no more struggles, no more starving for us! Those Revelsworths, they are rich—oh, but enormously rich! Your father, he would scarcely speak of your wicked grandfather, but I turned him out of his house because he would not join him in his business, and turned over a new leaf, I think, but I know how rich your grandfather was, and how he had vast to your uncle John, who married his rich cousin Margaret, and became the guardian of his father. Allons—listen to me! I know what has happened. You and Sir John are at the point of death. They are perhaps in an accident, and they are by themselves. We will make restitution. We have taken all, now we will give it back to our brother and our brother's children." Then they send for their lawyer, and he advertises for you two see it and go in triumph to England to take possession of your property!"

Dudley, having talked herself out of breath, Madame Victoire sank back upon her seat, trembling still with excitement and with tears.

Her little outburst was received in characteristically different ways by the two auditors. Victor applauded enthusiastically, laughing easily carried away by her hopefulness and excitement; but his elder brother was not so readily elated.

"In the first place," he began, "we are not certain who it was that caused this advertisement to be inserted. Then again, our cousins, the Revelsworths, are the family of sons, and grandsons, one, by this time. And in any case, the Revelsworths are not all—also so to the descendants of our uncle Harold, who, as we know, was married to an Italian lady of rank some years before he died, and who may, very well have left a family of children when he was killed in that accident involving the first generation ago."

"He will have left a daughter," cried fitful Madame Victoire—"one daughter, an beautiful as an angel. And you will fall in love with her and marry her, and divide the fortune between you."

"Which of us?"

"Ah-ha! I do not know. You must arrange that between you. Or there may be two daughters—"

"Or four," said the boys soms, or even six! Oh, Little One, how your hopes carry you away! Now, then, let us remember that in any case Victor and I are bound to stick to business and to looking after you!"

The young man shook laughingly, but there was an undercurrent of deep tenderness in his tone. Rather than to Victor, who was inclined to be volatile and laugh, she was standing just behind fitful mother, as he patted the shoulder affectionately without speaking. Presently she resumed her seat, and perhaps leaded in with her breakfast, but her hands shook, and in a few moments Victor saw them, and put his fork and asked Victor to open the wine.

"I feel all parched and thirsty," she explained. "It is without doubt hope and excitement. And then I want to drink to your healths, both of you, to your new life in England."

"Our," saw life, you mean," said Victor, pouring out the wine for Victoire, and pausing to look at her as he rose from the table, corkscrew in hand. "And what we were going to say to England!"

"Assuredly you will have to go, to grove to the lawyer-gentleman whose name you gave me. And then you will have nothing to live in his father's country; and, too, my son—you are so fond of England."

"But you are not!" cried Victor, "Why, little mother, you hate the English climate, the English fogs; and then you could not live in Paris. Do not suppose that Dudley and I would go to England and leave you here alone! Why, it is absurd, the very suggestion.

"Ah, bien," his mother began hurriedly, "I might not be alone, you see! I might—I might—Victor, you will marry, later, both of you—Oh, I am sure there will be a cousin, or perhaps two cousins, for English — Victor, I fine complexions and as tall as Dudley. Of what use is the little mother now that we have our wishes? Ah, you will see, Victor, if I did not mean that! But remember I am growing old, and perhaps I may not be here to see it, and you would have any of the Revelsworth money, and perhaps I say to myself, 'Here is a chance of ranging myself, of having a home and a garden upon my brave sons, and of having a pretty home of my own—a little flat in Paris or a little villa out in the country, and thirty thousand francs a year of rents.' Voyez vous, it is not every woman who has a chance like that of the kind, she has no do, and when she will be forty in May!"

Both Victor and Dudley were on their feet by this time, staring down upon her with wonder and consternation in their eyes.

"Allons, petite mere!" broke from the former. "Is it possible that you

An Historic Spanking.

THE law does not take account of trifles—"de minimis non curat lex"—but, the spanking of a small boy nearly two centuries ago is mentioned in the records of New Amsterdam, as New York was then known, and to that fact are we indebted for the telling of the story in that grave and gay legal magazine, the "Green Bag."

June 24, 1658, on a beautiful bright day, little Jacob Claesen and his schoolmates were dismissed early, for it was Saturday, and started from school to Schreyer's Hook—now Battery Park—for a swim in the river. On their way, when in the pleasant rural vicinity—as it was then—of Maiden lane and Wall street, a pair of gray squirrels trotted across their path, and the boys gave chase, hurrying and scolding; the quarry fled toward a grove near by, and dashed into the interesting precinct of a peppery-tempered innkeeper, by name Jan Vinje, who was working in it at the time. Despite his shortness of wearing, the boys followed. They all got safely across at top speed, and unrecognized, with the exception of Jacob, the smallest and least active, whom the wrathful Jan pounced upon and caught, and then and there flung over his knee and soundly spanked.

When he was allowed to go, little Jacob no longer cared to go in bathing with the other boys at Schreyer's Hook. He soberly picked up his fallen lunch-basket and went home, where his quiet mien and lack of appetite soon produced a parental enquiry. His offence and his black and blue results were revealed, and the family indignation was aroused on his behalf. The Claesen dominies, shared the partiality of the time for corporal punishment, but they strongly disapproved its infliction by casual outsiders. It was no business of Jan Vinje's to speak their Jacob.

Jan, however, had not yet cooled in his resentment, and presently instituted a suit against Mr. Claesen for damages to the violated pea-patch by Jacob and his companions. The Worshipful Court of Burgomasters and Schepens met, considered, appointed an arbitrator, and adjourned for a fortnight. They then reassembled, and heard a condemnatory report, from which Mr. Claesen made a spirited appeal, "since the children have not taken or injured anything to the value of a pea's pod," and, moreover, Jacob had been already spanked by Jan. The latter point was new to the court. They questioned Jan, who admitted the spanking; then, on this evidence, they decided that Jan Vinje, having taken legal and formal satisfaction at the time of the trespass, had thereby forfeited his right to further satisfaction under the law, and the case was dismissed.

Surprised.

"Are railroad employees unaccustomed to common civility from passengers?" asked a young woman passenger, and to the expected "Why?" she answered: "Last Saturday evening I rode from the Reading Terminal to Girard avenue, and as I was the only passenger who alighted there I thanked the brakeman for getting out especially to assist me, and incidentally also remarked: 'It's too bad to trouble you.' He just, a look of exquisite surprise, when I repeated my remark he seemed again to be overcome, and said:

"It's a wonder he did not fall dead," was the feminine of her masculine friend.—Philadelphia "Record."

The name of nine
With a tail of LL.D.—
Did he.
Or a Ph.D., or a plain A.B.,
Or any old letters would give me size."
All he gave away
Was a tail to his name
To a school and a college and a libraree.

Thomas Henry Biggerson
Looked for his degree—
Watched the mail
Till hope would fail.
For a note to give me size,
He fully expected he would be
At once crowned an X.Y.Z.

Or a plain A.B.;
But the poor man wasn't even I-3-2.

An Infallible Barometer.

Here is a new use for brass bands, discovered by "The Corset," which I presume is the "organ" of the bandsmen. To pipe upon a brass instrument in the open, it seems, is much harder when wet weather is impending, than in fine weather. Consequently the bandsman is an infallible barometer. There seems quite an appropriate absence of fitness in the theory. A bandsman ought to be at all times conversant with his air; a corset player who could not name the wind would make a poor show; and I never met a bandsman yet who was not prepared to swear to the possibility of the outlook being dry. So taking him all round, the fitness of brass ought to be facile princeps at the meteorological game.—"Pick-me-up."

His Probable Yearn.

Mrs. Kidder—Dear me! I wonder what the baby is crying for now? Mr. Kidder—Oh! For something to cry for, I presume!—"Puck."

When Brown first wed he told of what "I" did or was to do;
The "I" was altered to a "We" in just a year or two;
And after that throughout the rest of his poor henpecked life
Brown took his own identity, and talked about "My wife."

Mamma—Now, Freddy, mind what I say. I don't want you to go over into the next garden to play with that Binks boy; he's very rude.
Freddy (heard a few moments after, over) calling over the wall)—I say, Binks, ma says I'm not to go in your garden because you're rude; but you come into my garden—I ain't rude.

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

Child Drowned at Bancroft.

North Hastings Reporter: Master Sidney Wood, the five year old son of Mr. T. Pelham Wood, barrister, was playing on the dam on Saturday forenoon having followed his elder brother, who was fishing. The child at not coming home at dinner time as was his usual custom. Some anxiety was felt as to his fate, and during the afternoon search parties were made around, and then a search of the river instituted resulting in finding first his hat and then the dead body in the mill flume about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. A deep gloom was cast over the village and much sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents.

Their Sin Found Them Out.

Rev. H. A. Johnson, pastor of a church in Clayton, N.Y., who some time ago deserted his wife and family and skipped with a lady member of the choir of his church, has been located at Norfolk, Va., where he and his paramour were engaged in the grocery business, and gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Foss. Sensation was aroused by the receipt of pictures of the missing couple in town, and the woman left suddenly. Johnson, alias Foss, is under arrest.

THE WORLD NEEDS NERVE.

Needs it in business, in the study, in the household. Irritability, weakness, lack of strength—the blue feeling—why just tell us you feel that you lack nerve. You'll use Ferrozone? Why? Well, because it's good. You'll get, for you will enjoy it. That is, if you will use Ferrozone. It gives nerve strength, muscular endurance and invigorates the brain splendidly. Sold by all druggists.

County Court.

Kingston. The case was not concluded until a late hour last night. The accused was charged with the murder of Constable Smith and other articles from a New pedlar in Kingston. Considerable evidence in the case was very conflicting, especially that of the accused and the Crown. The jury retired at 9 o'clock and did not return into court until 10.30. Their verdict was "not guilty," giving the accused the benefit of the doubt. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. R. G. Porter appeared for the defence.

NOTHING LIKE EXPERIENCE.

One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, he will not likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him actually suffer from an attack of the disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY OF Y.M.C.A. ENTERTAINED.

AT THE RESIDENCE OF MRS. H. C. HUNT YESTERDAY AFTERNOON —ADDRESS TO MRS. LOCKE.

Yesterday afternoon twenty-two ladies assembled at the beautiful home of Mrs. H. Hunt, Adelaide, in response to her kind invitation to hold the June meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. there. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. W. W. Chown, when, after devotional exercises, the following programme was given:—Reading—Dr. Cuyler's Tribute to the Y.M.C.A." Mrs. (Rev.) Locke. Reading—"The Street Boy at Welcome Hall," Miss Hampton.

Solo—"Shall the World be Made Better" Mrs. Nicholson.

Reading—"Foreign Y.M.C.A. Work," Mrs. Asselstine.

Reading—"The New Theology," Mrs. (Rev.) Lockhart.

Duet—"Never Alone," Mrs. W. W. Chown and Mrs. Mark Sprague.

A resolution expressing the deep regret of the Auxiliary upon the departure of Mrs. Locke, one of its most valued members, was read by Mrs. Young and seconded by Mrs. Salmon. It was as follows:—That our Auxiliary regrets the departure of Mrs. Locke, one of our most valued members, and desires to express our high appreciation of her labors. While we sympathize with us she has endeared herself to each member, and has been an inspiration to us that will be lasting things. She will be kindly remembered by the Belleville Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., who wishes her all their best wishes for the future, and hopes she may be long spared in the life of usefulness.

Mrs. Locke responded most feelingly in her own inimitable manner. A standing vote of thanks was given Mrs. Hunt for her very kind hospitality. The meeting was closed by singing and prayer, led by Mrs. Locke.

After the meeting the time was passed in social intercourse until tea was served. When the needs of the inner man had been amply satisfied, a number of ladies took advantage of the offer of a boat ride. The ladies returned home full of praise for their kind host and hostess.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in the City Hall on the second Tuesday in September, when new members will be heartily welcomed.

WILLISHIRE'S FOR JUNE.

Willshire's Magazine for June has a tempting array of good things in purely literary discussions, profound economic and historical articles, quaint poems, numerous illustrations, and philosophic and practical comment on current events. Some of the titles are: Poetry and the Gospel, the Evolution of Tools, A Canse of the Merger Decision, The Mails of the Gods, The People of the Abyss, The Higher Catechism, Child Labor vs. Education, The Social Unrest Proven, Letters to California, Current Events, New Books.

MIDSUMMER COOKERY.

The Delineator for July offers a number of features of interest in the culinary department of the household. Miss Parloa's entertaining paper in the "Curiosta and I" series, An Emergency Luncheon, includes some delightful suggestions for the utilising of left-overs. A feature of especial timeliness is the two papers portraying hot weather beverages, Midsummer Drinks, and Cups for Evening and with the recipes for the same. Fruit salads is the subject of a paper; tempting ways of serving tomatoes are given in another, and the preparation of fish, both plain and sweet, is also explained.

THE JULY DESIGNER.

The well-known home and fashion magazine, The July Designer, issued by the Standard Fashion Company of New York City, has been received. The leading feature of the July number is a paper, "The Great Idea of The Designer is to help women along all practical and beautiful lines, by gathering for them and giving to them in the fullest information on all fashion and domestic matters).

Bosnia Without the Turk.

How much better off Macedonia might be without Turkish rule is illustrated by William E. Curtis, the newspaper correspondent, in his new book on "The Turk and His Lost Provinces," from the Literary Digest. One of these lost provinces is Bosnia, which, thirty years ago was the most barbarous spot in the empire, but which is now peaceful and prosperous. Since the Berlin Conference placed Bosnia under the protection of Austria, which is a year ago Mr. Curtis visited the province. Here is what he says of it:—

"Every visits that country to-day and scarcely believe that such civilization could have existed under Turkish rule. The people are so peaceful, contented and prosperous. Although the Mohammedan religion prevails, Bosnia has a Christian archbishop, a Jewish chief rabbi and a Roman Catholic bishop, and they are all treated with equal consideration, regardless of the religious differences that have caused so much trouble and disturbance in other parts of the empire. The Turkish officials, however, are withdrawn, and wherever it has been possible Austrians have been appointed. The people have learned for the first time what it means to have their complaints will be patiently listened to and their wrongs redressed. The introduction of free trade has also had a wonderful effect. Under the Turkish rule the duties were so high that the natives are still ignorant, backward and poor. Under the Austrian rule the duties are light and uniform, and the people are enterprising and prosperous. The most convincing proof of the benefits of Austrian rule is the increase in the taxable property. Thirty years ago the total taxable property was valued at $2,000,000. To-day it is $20,000,000. There were no railways and few roads when the Austrians took possession. Now there are 1,000 miles completed to travel they want in large numbers, and 1,000 miles more are under way. Only a few years ago there was not an acre of cultivated land in the country, and

McINTOSH BROS.

Caressing in Public.

"IT'S a woman who bestows her caresses in public," says Mrs. Wheeler Wilcox, in dealing with a letter from a husband who considers his wife too demonstrative, "is like the woman who wears diamonds at breakfast, or goes shopping in an evening gown. A demonstrative nature, coupled with loyalty, is a jewel of rarest price for a man to possess in a wife, but he wants it set in the gold of good sense, and clasped with good taste. I do not believe in a love which hides itself from all observers, nor do I approve of a love which displays itself to crowds in public places.

"I think when the heart is full of genuine emotion it must express itself at times in a look, a word, an act, irrespective of place or surroundings, which indicates the source from which it came. The man or woman who is always cold or indifferent to another before people cannot be an ardent or genuine lover in private. Something is lacking in the nature that never reveals itself in the least degree in the presence of a third party. But men are exceedingly sensitive to public opinion, in these matters particularly, and the wife who continually offends good taste and her husband in such a case must lack tact and refinement. It is a peculiar difference in the masculine and feminine mentality that a man resents having the public share in the least his domestic happiness, while a woman says, 'How in love with you she is!' a man's affection for a woman lessens; while a woman's increases when the world says, 'How he adores you!'"

Some Unique Advice.

In these nervous modern days, when "depression," "prostration," "melancholia," "rest-cures," and "Weir Mitchell" are household words in so many families, this concise bit of advice concerning depression and low spirits will interest many. It is from the letters of Emily Sinclair Georgiana, noted philosopher and wit:

"Paxton, February 16, 1830.

"Dear Lady Georgiana—Nobody has suffered from low spirits more than I have done—so I feel for you.

"1st—Live as well as you dare.

"2nd—Go into the shower-bath with a small quantity of water at a temperature low enough to give you a slight sensation of cold, 75 degrees or 80 degrees.

"3rd—Amusing books.

"4th—Short views of human life—not further than dinner or tea.

"5th—Be as busy as you can.

"6th—See as much as you can of those friends who respect and like you.

"7th—And of those acquaintances who amuse you.

"8th—Make no secret of low spirits to your friends, but talk of them freely—they are always worse for dignified concealment.

"9th—Attend to the effects tea and coffee produce upon you.

"10th—Consult your lot with that of other people.

"11th—Don't expect too much from human life—a sorry business at the best.

"12th—Avoid poetry, dramatic representations (except comedy), novels, romances, melancholy, sentimental people, and everything likely to excite feeling or make out ending in active benevolence.

"13th—Do good, and endeavor to please everybody of every degree.

"14th—Be as much as you can in the open air without fatigue.

"15th—Make the room where you commonly sit gay and pleasant.

"16th—Struggle by little and little against idleness.

"17th—Don't be too severe upon yourself, or underrate yourself, but do yourself justice.

"18th—Keep good hinging fires.

"19th—Be firm and constant in the exercise of rational religion.

"20th—Believe me, dear Lady Georgiana,

"Very truly yours,
"SYDNEY SMITH."

This mixture of gastric, psychic, social, hygienic, philosophic and religious advice is most striking.

Slips of Authors.

Even experienced writers sometimes make their characters do astounding things. When Anthony Trollope pictured Andy Scott as "coming whistling up the street with a cigar in his mouth" he proved that he had never made personal experiment of the double feat of smoking a cigar and whistling a tune. Robinson Crusoe also performed a most wonderful feat. When he decided to abandon the wreck and try to swim ashore he took the precaution to remove all his clothes, and yet by some strange process of which the secret has been lost, the author makes him, when in this condition of Nature, fill his pockets with biscuits.

The great Shakespeare had a trick of introducing the most glaring anachronisms. For instance, he makes a clock strike in ancient Rome at a time, more than a thousand years before clocks were invented, when such an event would certainly have been the sighth wonder of the world.

Quite regardless of the evidence of geography, he transports Bohemia to the seacoast, and he introduces a privateering-press long before the days of Gutenberg. He calmly introduces a billiard table into Cleopatra's palace, and makes cannon familiar to King John and his Barons.

Thackeray was no mean rival to Shakespeare in vagaries of this kind; but in his case they appear to have been the result of pure carelessness and forgetfulness. The most flagrant case, perhaps, is where, after burying Lady Kew and effectively dismissing her from the stage, he brings her to life again to help him out with his plot; and in other cases his capacity for mixing up the names of his characters is confusing, considering the manner he introduces.

Emily Bronte, in spite of his carefulness, makes the astonishing statement in one of his novels ("Lourdes") that the deaf and dumb recovered their hearing and sight, an event which assures very much of the miraculous.

Teacher—If you can get a bus for a halfpenny, what will you get for a penny? Johnny (eagerly)—A tan-cake?—

WOULD HURT ONE MINISTER

Bitter Debate and Division Over the Treadgold Inquiry.

Mr. Cargrain Returns to the Attack—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Declares There Was Nothing in the Rumors About Minister of Interior—A Grant of $1,000,000 Granted Montreal After a Long Debate.

Ottawa, June 12.—Hon. Sydney Fisher introduced in the House yesterday a bill respecting inspection and sale of seeds. The object of the bill is to protect purchasers of agricultural seeds, who, through carelessness or otherwise, are sometimes imposed upon.

Mr. Hyman moved that the bill respecting the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway be referred back to the Railway Committee for further consideration. This motion was carried.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed Mr. Clarke that all the compositors and typesetting machine operators in the Printing Bureau were members of the Typographical Union. He said that the Typographical Union adopted the scale of wages recently proposed without any conference with the Government, and announced that it would be in operation on and after June 1. Under the circumstances the Government declined to recognize the scale, and the subject was not referred to the fair wage officer of the Department of Labor.

Mr. Blair stated that the gross earnings of the I.C.R. up to April 30 amounted to $2,392,650, and the working expenses to $5,288,793. These had been expended on capital account during the ten months $910,576.

Montreal's $3,000,000 Loan.

A resolution, authorizing the Government advance to the Montreal Harbor Commissioners a loan of $3,000,000 provoked a long debate in the House.

Mr. Fielding explained the advance and said the Montreal Harbor Commissioners had always met their obligations promptly, and that no risk was involved in the present advance.

The Opposition.

The Opposition began with Mr. Monk, who declared that justice was not being done to the port of Montreal, and that the public policy of loans would soon land the Harbor Commissioners in bankruptcy. Hon. Mr. Tarte also vigorously assailed the Government. He accused Hon. W. S. Fielding of taking a narrow view of the question, and charged Mr. Blair with unduly favoring St. John and Halifax. Three hours were consumed in the passage of a resolution that ordinarily would be discussed with a few words.

Would Hurt One Minister.

Mr. Cargrain moved for a Parliamentary commission, or a Royal Commission, to investigate alleged frauds in connection with the Treadgold concession in the Yukon. In the course of his speech he said that if the reports alluded to by Mr. Monk the other day were correct someone in the Government benches felt that if there was a full enquiry he would have to leave the House.

Sir William Mulock challenged Mr. Cargrain to make, on his own name and responsibility, the charges outlined. He held that the commission lately issued went further than Mr. Cargrain's resolution of June 12. He characterized Mr. Cargrain's course as cowardly.

Mr. Monk argued that the Commission did not cover the matter. The Opposition would not give names. Everybody knew that the department which engineered this nefarious transaction was the department of Interior, and it seemed strange that Mr. Sifton should not have been absent throughout the whole of this session, although these reports had been long in circulation outside the House me. He did not believe Mr. Sifton's duties in connection with the Alaska Boundary Commission necessitated his absence until this day.

Was it not a fact, Mr. Monk asked, that the scandals had been brought to the ears of the Governor-General and His Excellency referred to the notic of the leader of the Government.

"I deny that in the most absolute terms," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Monk accepted the denial, but reminded the House of the currency of the rumors.

Mr. Borden said he wanted the investigation promised by Mr. Hyman, Liberal member for the Yukon, and by Sir William Mulock on May 12.

Mr. Blair said the Opposition was seeking by the violence of their language to make up for their lack of facts and material. He said that the charges made by the Dawson Liberal Club and Board of Trade were not against members of the Government, and the committee refused was sufficient.

Messrs. Tarte, Northrup, Fitzpatrick, and Davis (Saskatchewan) continued the debate.

On a straight party division, Mr. Cargrain's amendment was negatived by a vote of 80 to 57.

A National Game and A National Food

Lacrosse is Canada's national game. Malta-Vita should be Canada's national food. It is made by Canadian Workmen from Canadian grown wheat—wheat for which Canada is famous the world over. No other cereal is so rich in nutriment nor so thoroughly adapted to the requirements of mankind. In Malta-Vita, the perfect food, all the good properties of the wheat are retained so that it comes to the table a thoroughly appetizing, healthful, easily digested food. It is cooked ready for instant use and can be served hot or cold with cream or fruit for any meal of the day.

THE NEWEST GRIT WRINKLE

Government Subsidizes Fish Monopoly's Railway Scheme.

Mr. Connee Unknowingly Admits His Company Is Bankrupt — Fish Deal — Wants Fish Company to Get St. Joe Money Grant of $3,000 Per Mile, and 5,000 Acres of Land Per Mile, Although They Had Undertaken to Build the Road Under Terms of Their Monopoly Charter — Legislature Got $1,000 Each.

Toronto, June 13.—When the House convened at 11.20 yesterday morning, Hon. Mr. Latchford moved a resolution empowering the Government by Order-in-Council to transfer the subsidy of the Thunder Bay, Nepigon & St. Joe Railway to any company which would build a line from Lake Nepigon to the main line of the C.P.R. The road was about 40 miles long. The St. Joe grant was $3,000 per mile and 5,000 acres of land per mile.

Mr. Whitney's Objections.

Mr. Whitney said the proposal was part of a scheme to enable the Government, without going ratified out of the House, to hand over the subsidy to the Lake Nepigon Fish Company, which was already pledged to build a railway in return for the vast fishing monopoly granted to it by the Government. The scheme was to be carried out in this underhand and circuitous way because the Government felt it would be too much for a fence to ask the House to give the company $3,000 per mile in the part of Algoma it pleased, when that company was compelled to build the line for nothing for the vast concessions it had already obtained. He declared that influential members of the Opposition had been approached with offers to let them in on the ground floor if they would not oppose it. They had been told that it was the richest proposition which was ever promulgated, and had received the kind of offers that would form part of a deputation to ask for a subsidy.

Mr. Connee Admits Interest.

Mr. Connee, of Port Arthur and Rainy River, in reply, said that it was untrue that the fish company had undertaken to build the railroad without aid, and declared that the company should not be "estopped" from coming to the Government for aid.

Mr. Whitney said he did not maintain that the company was prevented from asking aid, but that it would be iniquitous for the Government to grant such aid.

Mr. Connee maintained that aid to the fish company was justified on public grounds.

Mr. Whitney—May I ask if the honorable gentleman is not an interested applicant?

Mr. Connee—I want to frankly tell the hon. gentleman that I am.

Mr. Connee said he was not prohibited from engaging in any business enterprise he chose.

Mr. Whitney—I suppose the honorable gentleman will vote in support of the measure.

"Yes, I intend to vote for it," said Mr. Connee, and then declared that his interest was as a railroad contractor.

Mr. Whitney—Will the honorable gentleman say that he had no interest except as a contractor? Is he not a stockholder in the fish company?

Connee Is a Stockholder.

Mr. Connee—Oh! If it's the fish company you're talking about, I am a stockholder in that! I have no interest in the railway, except as contractor.

Mr. Connee, continuing, said that he had been attacked some years ago for supporting a grant to the Port Arthur and Western Railway, in which he was interested, and had put in the possession letter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat justifying his conduct in so doing. In conclusion, he declared that the subsidy was justified on public grounds.

Premier's Defence.

Premier Ross said that by the construction of this branch of road there would be opened up 150 miles of rich, arable land. The general railway policy of the Government, he declared, in the matter of opening up Northern Ontario, had been a wise and progressive one. As for the road in question, the practical advantages that would accrue from its construction were apparent to all. The road would be a connecting link for Western Ontario to the new transcontinental line that would pass to the north of Lake Nepigon, just as the Government road to Temiskaming would be the connecting link in the East. And this Lake Nepigon link would not cost a cent more than had already been provided for in the statutes. Moreover, its prompt construction, by connecting, in order to serve as a route for carrying building supplies to the G.T.P. road, and it would open up rich pulp districts of many thousands of acres and of great areas of good agricultural lands.

The transaction was, he concluded, transparently honest and fair, and it was significant that the rate of wages per development of that section of New Ontario, involved as it did no extra expenditure, that the Opposition should, on reconsideration, withdraw their objections.

Whitney's Warm Congratulations.

"I warmly congratulate the Premier on his masterly and masterfully conducted Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Foy said the House should refuse to vote for the resolution, because but a few weeks ago the House had ratified a vast concession to the Lake Nepigon Fish Company, on the grounds, first, of the rental promised, and second, that the company was to build a railway at its own expense. He further denounced the policy of transferring the subsidy from the proposed railroad to a railway not yet even incorporated.

The Premier at once announced that the railroad would be incorporated before the House prorogued.

Mr. Foy said that the matter was a worse light. It was disgraceful that such a thing as the Premier's promise a proposition should be announced.

Mr. Miller, Gloucester, Portland, made "a build-up Ontario" speech, and spoke of the necessity of connecting Northern Railway, in which he was interested, and had put in the possession letter of the late Sir Oliver Mowat justifying his conduct in so doing. In conclusion, he declared that the subsidy was justified on public grounds.

THE SERVIAN SITUATION

New King Appears to Have Been Accepted by the People.

Royal Victims Laid to Rest at Night — Narrative of the Tragedy — Queen Draga's Body Absolutely Torn by Bullets After a Frenzy Fight—Cabinet Told Crowd of Getting Rid of the King's Evil Spirit.

Belgrade, June 13.—The assassination of King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's two brothers, the Servian Premier, Ministers of War, and former Minister of War, and the proclamation by the army of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as King of Servia has apparently, it may be said, now that fortyeight hours have passed, been accepted by the capital and the Servian people without a murmur. The meeting of the Skupschina next Monday is now looked forward to, to confirm the proclamation as King of Prince Peter and to legalize the new situation.

Peter a Republic.

The only new element in the situation is a feeling among the intelligent classes in favor of the abolition of a Servian monarchy and the creation of a republic, and this sentiment is shared by at least a number of the provisional Government. The majority of the Ministers, however, declared themselves in favor of a new King in Prince Peter.

Narrative of Revolt.

The following is a narrative of the revolution given by men who took part in it.

Army officers, to the number of 60, having formed a project of a revolution, met at the Officers' Club from almost every garrison in Servia. By the majority of the officers of the 6th Regiment, Lieut.-Col. Nitschitsch invited his comrades on the occasion of the visit of the Queen's brother, Lieut.-Col. Nik

LITTLE LESS THAN ROBBERY.

The management of affairs by the members of the Ross Government is truly alarming. In the course of the evidence in the Gamey investigation it transpired that a deal had been conducted by which Hon. R. R. Davis, Commissioner of Crown Lands in the Ross Government, handed over to the notorious "Cap." Sullivan for $250, timber lands which were (said Immediately for $9,000. This money was divided with Theodore Taylor, a clerk in Davis' Department, who received as his share $4,000. This is not all. Other deals, in which lumber grants worth $35,000 and $30,000 were secured for $2,500 and $4,749 respectively, show that the "Cap's" little haul was not the only one which was manipulated through the office of Mr. Davis. The upon of the different departments in Parliament are evidently wide open to all kinds of criminals and grafters, who rob the people right and left and then appeal to the electors to endorse the outrages. The latest chapter in the history of the Ontario Liberal party excels its predecessors in infamy. Every time the Ross Government should be numbered.

(The Iron-Oil Food)

An Ideal Combination

Everybody knows that Iron and Cod Liver Oil are the greatest system-builders known to medical science. Nearly everybody knows, too, that most people find it very difficult and sometimes impossible to take and digest Cod Liver Oil or Iron. This trouble is completely removed by the introduction of FERROL, which combines Iron with Cod Liver Oil and a modicum of Phosphorus in an emulsion pleasant to take and so easy to assimilate that infants digest it without difficulty.

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

COL. W. N. PONTON.

A very well-known figure on our streets is that of Col. William Ponton. He is not so much in the public eye now as he was a few years ago, when he commanded the Fifteenth, and the same token, for a military man in Canada (who did not go to South Africa) deserved the thanks of those who have the Empire interest at heart, it was the gentleman whose name appears above. And we'll tell you why: When the boys of the old Fifteenth were called across the stormy ocean for the Land of the Southern Cross they took with them many memories of the untiring ardor and good comradeship of the Fifteenth's Commanding Officer, who, by every means in his power, had assisted them in preparing for the momentous step they took when they offered their services in defense of Queen and Empire, and when, by the anxious relatives left behind, was, in the words of the Good Book, "A Very present help in time of trouble." The days following Paardeberg were anxious ones for many people in this city, and they made a practise of looking for Punch and Judy in the formation and consolation, and never in vain. He always had a word of hope and cheer. A red-hot militia man was the Colonel, rather too impulsive and enthusiastic to suit some cold-blooded people, perhaps, but whose zeal, whatever they may say, were not those of omission. His six years' tenure of office as Colonel of the Fifteenth was marked by very less energy and a continual striving to infect others with the enthusiasm he felt himself. Rather a thankless task, sometimes. Speaking confidentially, the Colonel's birth was something of an anachronism. He should have lived in Peninsular times, when his military instincts and leanings could have had full away. And those broad shoulders and square jaw would have well become one of the men who fought under the grim old Iron Duke. But it is not in military matters alone that the Colonel is enthusiastic. He carries his enthusiasm into his love for his native city and into everything else. Beautiful Belleville, or the Bay of Quinte district, will never want a champion while the subject of our little sketch is able to talk or write. An optimist he, truly, seeing the silver lining where other men see nothing but inky blackness. Always ready to wield a pen or break a lance in defence of anything or anybody, so long as it or they bear the hall mark of Belleville; always looking for an opportunity to boom his native place and make it more prosperous or more respected in the eyes of men. A good citizen, a fluent speaker, a graceful and scholarly writer, a man who does things with all his might, and who, in doing them, makes many friends and, naturally, more than a few enemies. An enthusiastic antiquary, combining the sentimental with the practical in a manner which surely tells of Irish and Scotch blood in his veins; fond of a good story, and probably when generally ready to tell somebody else tell it! His faults? Well, a disposition, when writing, to see the whole, somehow, bruise like a bludgeon, and a fashion of standing on his feet, sometimes, a little too long at a banquet. And who, it may be asked, among the after-dinner speakers that dwell in this fair city, can afford to throw a stone at him? Marry, come up! Not one. But that's a digression. The Colonel was born in Belleville in 1856, and was educated at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto (B.A. 1877, M.A. 1878); was called to the Bar in 1880, and has practised ever since in this city. He has been an Alderman, and connected with nearly every scheme ever put forward for civic advancement. He entered the Fifteenth as lieutenant in 1885, and retired as lieutenant-colonel in 1901. He is independent in politics, a Free Mason, and a pillar of St. Andrew's Church.

Had Eczema From Childhood.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Works a Marvellous Cure For a Lady in Clayton, B.C.

Eczema is one of the most common of all blood and skin diseases. The skin is inflamed and irritated, with vesicles or fissures from which serous fluid exudes. When the disease is extensive, there is fever, a pallid appearance, headache and loss of appetite. Paine's Celery Compound is nature's unfailing cure for the disease. It purifies and gives fresh vitality to the blood, and supplies it with the elements for the repair of the whole body. Annie L. Forman, Clayton, B.C., says:—

"Since childhood I have been troubled with a serious eczema, and, up to two years ago I gave up all hope of ever being cured, as the best doctors could not help me. While greatly discouraged, my attention was drawn to the wonderful cure of Mr. R. McMahon, of Peterboro, Ont., by Paine's Celery Compound. A newspaper story of this cure gave me faith enough to try one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of one bottle did not cure me, but it was doing me good, and I continued the medicine day after day, until I had used seven bottles, when I was perfectly cured. Now I feel the slightest trace of the disease on my face or any part of my body, and my skin is soft and clear. Paine's Celery Compound is a wonderful remedy, and I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from eczema or other skin troubles."

Cheap Meals.

"About the cheapest restaurant I ever visited or read about," said a man lately returned from England, "was a dining saloon in the Whitechapel district of London, where a relishing and fairly substantial meal may be had for a halfpenny, or count it four cents. This cheap repast is not served up in the shape of a cut from a joint and two vegetables. It is a big brown pie, very juicy and very hot. The absence of beefsteak is evident from the crust of the pie, but you find inside a liberal sprinkling of gravy, onions and turnips, and a plentiful supply of gravy. For a halfpenny extra two slices of bread and a cup of tea are supplied. Between the hours of twelve and two the poor and hungry from all parts of the East End of the city flock to the dining-room. Most of the patrons are shoeblacks, penny toy men, costermongers and now and then a young clerks whose salaries will not permit them to indulge in a more costly dinner."

BOYS' HOSIERY.

Words Coined in Boston.

When Boston was three years old, the word "coasting," in the sense of gliding down an inclined plane, was used for the first time by the Court of Assistance. The term "lumber" appeared first in the town records in 1641, being employed to designate the embarrassment caused by the "lumbering" up of the streets at a time when the settlers were doing a great business in forest products. Schooner, sleigh, harness, chaise, carry-all, barge, currency, under, sinking-fund, depreciation, appreciation, caucus (1760), labor trust (1741), gerrymander, gerrymandering, warden, unconstitutional, immigrant, and chrome, are all Yankee words that have been imitated.

The Historic Black Hole of Calcutta.

THE historic site of the Calcutta Black Hole is being actively dealt with by Lord Curzon. The upright Master gave the leading from Dalhousie Square into the Post-office precincts is, it is understood, being demolished, immediately in front of the historical spot. A gate of light and elegant ironwork is being erected in its place. Immediately behind this gateway (which even when all and anyone can see, His Excellency has had the square site of the Black Hole paved with polished black marble, specially ordered from Italy. This space is to be rounded by a low iron railing on a slight stone plinth. On the red brick wall of the Post-office building above there is an inscription, in gilt letters on black marble, visible from the street, describing the site and its restoration. Lord Curzon has had the entire outlines of the old Fort William—the bastions, the curtain, the gate, and the ravelin—marked out by brass lines let into a hard stone. At intervals white marble tablets affixed into the walls above inform the public what has been unearthed, also to the building containing the still surviving brick arches of the famous old fort. Next week, moreover, a new monument of white marble will be erected on the site of the old obelisk raised by Holwell, the survivor and historian of the Black Hole tragedy. Lord Curzon will rewrite the inscriptions upon it, inasmuch as the many names of the victims that have recently been recovered, and ultimately the somewhat turgulent reference to the Nawab Surajud Dowlah, the author of the atrocity. Excavations have been made to see if there were any remains of the suffers, but nothing has been discovered. By all this, by his magnificent scheme of the Victoria Memorial Hall at the base of the Outchterlony, and by his purchase of the Metcalfe Hall and its fine library, to which an imperial library is being added under an expert from the British Museum, the present Viceroy is doing a work too long neglected, and worthy of our Indian Empire. A special journal of the Victoria Memorial is to be brought out during the three or four years while it is being built, to bring in suggestions and help.

Domestic Ethics.

FULLY realizing how difficult it is for the ordinary man to manage his domestic ordinary affairs, O'Rell comes forward with some carefully-considered advice. "If your wife loses her temper, keep cool as a cucumber and enjoy the scene. If you are jealous, do not let her see it, for it will make her proud. If she is flirting, don't scold. Tell her it is much better to have her into than not at all. Next time go without her. The result is infallible." On the virtue of industry M. Blouet is equally emphatic. His advice practically is to assume this virtue if you have it not. "If you have nothing to do," he writes, "tell her you have to be very busy all the morning. It will she be kind enough to see you are not disturbed? Then lock the door, light a cigar, and take a paper or a book, and be fearfully busy all the time." Next in this charming code of ethics comes the advice to never remind your wife of a favor done, for gratitude, like love, is not to be had for the asking. Never ask your wife for the return of a loan. She would think it shabby of you. If she should repay, as there are some extraordinary women, give it back to her in the shape of a jewel. This will cost you nothing, as you had made up your mind to the loss of that loan." A hint to notice a woman's new clothes, and to treat her with the same respect and politeness everywhere as accorded to any other well-dressed woman, is followed by a few emphatic remarks on the "ethics of deshabille." "Shame her by the irreproachableness of your own appearance" is the prescription for dealing with the woman who appears in curls. "If she is intelligent she will take the hint at once. Let your neglige at home be as carefully put on as your best dress coat. Love feeds on even such trifles as these in the case of people of a refined and artistic temperament."

COOL CLOTHES

Would your suit look any cooler if you saved a few dollars on it? If so, look at the men's suits we are selling for $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $6.00, and $7.50.

In weather like this you want everything to count for coolness, and hence the fit is an important part. You can't very well keep cool when you're raging mad at that bad-fitting coat that pulls down on your favorite shoulder bone.

For the Revelsworth Millions.

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

CHAPTER I.

"Revelsworth! Should the most famous of the direct descendant of Dudley or Harold Revelsworth, who left England in the year 1207, not be supposed to have died childless? Revelsworth Manor is 1278 entailed, its or she is earnest. If requested, I will gladly consult my solicitors with Messrs. Simpson & Watt, solicitors, 43, Lincoln's Inn Fields, where they may hear of something to their advantage."

Dudley Revelsworth, the youngest son to one of the men named in the advertisement, had his attention thus drawn to the notice in question on its first appearance that morning at the Paris office of the London Morning News, by one of the "Paris letters" of which he was an occasional contributor of social and artistic gossip.

It was a blustery cold day in the latter part of March, 1896. Dudley Revelsworth suffered, but little, from the inclemency of temperature, but even he turned up the collar of his well-worn overcoat as he sallied forth into the keen east wind on his way home across the Seine for breakfast, through the Jardin des Tuileries and Rue Rivoli, and as he walked he had time to ponder over that strange notice in the Morning News, which closely related to himself, since he was the only man, Dudley Revelsworth, was by no means certain, and certainly since both his father and his uncle Harold had died between the dates mentioned in the announcement in question.

Dudley Revelsworth decided that he must think things over a little in connection with this advertisement before making it known to his home-circle. He therefore turned into a restaurant near the bridge, and, ordering a cafe au lait, spread out the Paris paper before him on the marble-topped table, and, supporting his face with his hands, proceeded to read the whole of such a study of the advertisement.

Happily for him, of hot coffee was before him. The waiters in the Rue Rivoli and "le grand anglais" was never kept waiting. Although fifteen out of his twenty-seven years of life had been spent in France, although he adopted himself to French habits, had not a French as a native, and spoke their language with perfect fluency, no one ever mistook Dudley Revelsworth for a Frenchman. He was English from top to bottom. A big, high-coloured, red complexion, in his broad shoulders and massive limbs, in his brave, in his deep musical voice and slow speech, his clear blue eyes, and his light brown hair and mustache innocent of cosmetic or curl. English, too, he was in his slowness to form friends and his hold-fast tenacity and courage against any odds when once he had established them. He was thoroughly aroused within him—although a keen, highly intelligent, naturally speedmen of all that a typical Englishman ought to be.

It twenty-seven he was the head of his little household, and had been its sole support for five years—for ten years—a fact which lent him a certain dignity and gravity in the eyes of his wife. Already he was too well inured to disappointment to build great hopes upon his present discovery, notwithstanding its pregnant ins, "they may hear of something to their advantage."

"Probably it's some wretched little legacy from one of the Miss Revelsworth," he told himself. "Victor and the Little One will be constructing castles in the air on the strength of it. But from what poor old dad told me about the whole affair and the absolute way in which they treated him, it isn't likely that they'll send me much. Of course I must write to Simpson & Watt at the address. I will remember how my dad, on his deathbed, told me to enquire rather than apply for monetary help from any of the name of Revelsworth. For all that a few pounds would come in very handy just now, and the Little One could have that spring costume she has set her heart upon."

There upon he finished his coffee, and, comforting himself against the inclement weather by its fragrant warmth, he lighted a cigarette and, so sat, and proceeded on his journey homewards.

The two flat in which the young English journalist's household gods were established was situated on the quatrieme in one of the tall houses of a dingy old-fashioned street on the other south side of the Seine. Dudley pretended the polished uncarpeted shallow stone stairs with a line, and mounted outside the entrance-door of the flat to listen, and, as he did so, a voice was scrolling a French ch-t-toonette within. It was his wife's voice singing as usual over her task of arranging breakfast-table.

"Let's hope this paper may bring some luck to her!" was the thought in the young man's mind as he let himself in with his key.

Victor ran to the salle-a-manger, from which the other rooms opened and at a table in the middle of it a very pretty, fair-haired, blue-eyed girl in black hair, into the coils of which a red anemone flower was coquettishly thrust, was bending her head over a bowl of salad, and singing while she mixed it.

At the sound of Dudley's step she raised a pretty, round, and colourless Parisian face, round and pale, with a little retrousse nose, a flower-like red mouth, and bright dark eyes with an exclamation of pleased surprise.

"C'est donc tot dejà!" she exclaimed said, running to meet him, she kissed the young man affectionately upon each cheek, standing on tiptoe to reach his lowered head. "Victor and I we let not expect you quite so early," she continued in French; "but I long to see you for before the two of you together I have to make a little contestion—to discuss a little history—eh, Victor?"

She spoke hurriedly, laughing and flushing and looking excited. With the color coming and going in her cheeks, she looked very bright-and-twenty, though her face in repose appeared a little older.

"Has somebody been pestering you again with offers or marriage?" Dudley inquired, "and do you want me to punch his head?"

"Mais, non, Dudley! What an idea! And, after all, why should they not ask me to marry them? I ought to be flattered—ought I not?"

That isn't the way you generally talk," said Dudley, as he took two pieces of news, I have also something to tell you," said Dudley, as he took from his pocket the copy of the Morning News. "Now who is going to begin—you or I?"

"Here is Victor! He shall decide!" cried the Little One, as the third member of the small household on the fourth floor entered the room.

Victor Revelsworth, step-brother to Dudley and his junior by four years, resembled him scarcely at all in appearance. A man of medium height and lightly built, he had intelligent and sympathetic face was marred by an overlarge nose, by a pair of small, pig-like mouth, markedly gratuitsant even weather outline, and a retreating chin, the effects of which had latterly been partly concealed by a small pointed beard. Which, with his hair and moustache, was trimmed in military fashion. He was, however, of a kind, feeling and kindliness, lent charm to a face which possessed but little of the beauty of the mouth. A little Parisian belle, who had now, during ten years of widowhood, been the presiding genius and household fairy of her son and heroes, and who was regarded by both young men with a tender and protective love.

"The little mother has a marvellous secret she is longing to tell," Victor declared, as he put down his palette and brushe he was carrying. "I have not had time to question her, and she would tell me nothing until you came. It is my idea that Monsieur the President has promised her, and that she is afraid of what may happen to us if she refuses to be after."

"Your brother has also something to tell," said the hostess. "Allons, Dudley, mon fils, we must first hear your news. I have prepared for you both an delicious a breakfast—potage, omelettes, a cold chicken, a salade, a Camembert cheese, and the whole of an excellent Medoc—"

"Petite one you must have spent the entire week's housekeeping money! And these flowers and oranges and grapes! Then there is something unusual about you—you look younger and prettier than ever—"

"Forty the next first of May!" exclaimed little Madame Victor, complisoft—putting her finger to her lips —"we will not talk of that! 'What is it to you and England? A woman is as old as she looks! I do not look forty—hein?"

"Twenty-five!" Dudley stoutly declared, and Victor supported him.

"But what, after all, is the meaning of this grand breakfast?" the latter apparently forgot. "It is not like you, little mother, to be extravagant without cause."

"I have managed well always with the money you give me dear boys have given me—have I not?" she asked sagacity as she helped Victor to more chicken.

"No better manager exists in Paris." "And I have looked after you both—have I not? And, if you have both much to be grateful for and to thank me into the night, you have been happy in your little home—have you not? And glad to come back to it? And it is not my fault that you would not spend all your savings on little treats for me, little Jeanne and myself on dress and clothes, and little presents for me? I have always said, 'No—put them by! You will need help being poor! You could if—"

"You have always been perfectly good and sweet, petite mere," said Dudley, laying his hand upon hers on the table and speaking affectionately, "our guardian angel, our household fairy. I don't know that in the world we should do without you!"

"Ah, don't say that!" exclaimed little Madame Victoire, and promptly began to cry.

The two young men looked at each other in some bewilderment. Such a breakdown was utterly foreign to little mother, than whom a gayer and more sunny-tempered creature never existed. Even when work was very slack and francs few from pleasure, she had always contrived to be cheerful, and to fabricate excellent potages and delicious dishes out of materials. And here she was crying about nothing at all, just over the winter, with its extra charges for fuel and lamp-oil, was coming to an end, and her purse was both fairly full of certain employment.

The soft-hearted Victor was on his knees by her side in a moment, caressing her and comforting at her by turns.

It was all her jealousy, he declared, because a few evenings before he had brought home a portrait of a pretty cafe-chantant singer and stuck it upon his mantelpiece.

"But you know quite well, little mother, she is not nearly so pretty as you. Now don't shake your head! You are jealous, you know you are jealous!" the young man cried, turning to his step-brother with a comic expression of despair; "tell la petite this news of yours; it may serve to divert her."

Then Dudley proceeded to publish his paper and to read aloud the advertisement from the "Agony Column," to the no small astonishment and delight of—

Long before he had finished Madame Victoire had dried her tears, and sat upright in her chair, leaning forward about, her face flushed and her eyes sparkling with excitement. She had fairly danced around the room, downstairs into the street, and back again by effusively hugging each of her companions.

"Mais," she cried—"it has come—the fortune I so hoped would be yours some day! Ah, my poor dear boys, the elsworth money! which was first made by the Revelsworth who came to England years ago, and which now will some of it come to you, my good brave boys, who have been like sons to me! Ah, poor—so poor they sometimes have been! How often and often have I pinched in his business, and turned out his meals—you, Victor, and Dudley, too, know how rich your grandfather was, and how all was left to your uncle Harold, and how he left it to your aunts Margaret, and went into the business with them, and how it was left to them! I know what has happened. Your uncle Harold died, and his two sisters died at the point of death. They have perhaps no children, and they say to themselves, 'Where is our brother's son?' We have taken all, now we will give back to him, and he shall be rich, and he's children.' Then they send for you, Dudley, or else they write to you two and it and go in triumph to England to take possession of your inheritance."

And here, having talked herself out of breath, Madame Victoire sat down upon her seat, trembling still with excitement, and fanned herself.

Her little outburst was received in characteristically different ways by her three hearers. Victor was delighted and elastically, being easily carried away by his feelings—and certainly fond of his elder brother who not so readily elated.

"In the first place," he began, "we are not certain who it was that caused the advertisement to be inserted. And again, our uncle John may have a very large family, and—and—Dudley knows, too, by this time. And in any case the message is not to us alone, but also to the descendant of our uncle Harold, who, as we know, was murdered by his own valet or coachman years before he died, and who may have left children. And the children when he was killed in that Alpine accident twelve or thirteen years ago."

"His will have left a daughter," cried little Madame Victoire, "and a daughter, se beautiful as an angel! And then, Victor, you are only her half uncle by her, and divide the fortune between you—"

"Which of us?"

"Ah—bah! I do not know. You both, perhaps, or neither of you. Yet there may be two daughters—"

"Or three, or four, or none, or even six! Oh, Little One, how your hopes run away with you! Don't you remember that in any case Victor and I are bound to single blessedness and to the Revelsworth?"

The young man spoke laughingly, yet there was unmistakable pain and tenderness in his tone. Rather to his surprise, his step-mother did not laugh with him, but pushed back from his chair, and she gazed his shoulder over which she had spoken, and apparently she resumed her seat, and proceeded to eat her salad in silence, but her hands shook, and in a few moments she put down her knife and fork, and, resting her head on them, wept.

"I feel all parched and thirsty," she explained. "It is without doubt because we ate cold meat. I will go to drink to your health, both of you, in your new life in England!"

"Not in wine, I implore," said Victor, struck by something in her voice and manner, as she rose from the table, corkscrew in hand. "And who said we were going to England?"

"Assuredly you will have to go, to claim to the large gentleman whom I see sons you are. And then Dudley is already married, and he will remain in country; and you, too, my son—you are so fond of England."

"But I am not!" cried Victor. "Why, little mother, you hate the English—you have said so a dozen times! Besides, I am not going to desert you and France. Dudley may go to England and you and I will go to Enland and leave you here alone!"—laughing merrily at the idea.

"Ah, bien," his mother began hurriedly, "I am glad to know that you and I might have friends. And you will not desert me, Victor, because I am sure there will be a cousin, or perhaps two—lovely English 'meenses,' with large incomes and—and—Revelsworth ley! When you will say, 'Or what use is my fortune to me, since I have not our wives?' Ah, so—do not look so astonished, Victor! Some day you will remember I am growing old, and perhaps lazy too. I did not know that you were going to be forty in May!"

"Not forty in May!" exclaimed Victor. "Why, little mother, you hate the English—you have said so a dozen times! Besides, I am not going to desert you and France. Dudley may go to England and leave you here alone!"—laughing merrily at the idea.

"Ah, bien," his mother began hurriedly, "I am glad to know that you and I might have friends. And you will not desert me, Victor, because I am sure there will be a cousin, or perhaps two—lovely English 'meenses,' with large incomes and—and—Revelsworth ley! When you will say, 'Or what use is my fortune to me, since I have not our wives?' Ah, so—do not look so astonished, Victor! Some day you will remember I am growing old, and perhaps lazy too. I did not know that you were going to be forty in May!"

Both Victor and Dudley were on their feet by this time, staring down upon her with wonder and consternation in their eyes.

"Forty in May, mere!" broke from the former. "Is it possible that you are going to desert us and get married?"

"But you must not say 'desert you!'" cried the little lady, while tears coursed rapidly down her cheeks and she clasped her hands appealingly. "I would not have him suppose he young lead that our home should be sooned and that you should be with us also in the meantime. Revelsworth ley is a rabbits. I know how you, Victor, love to shoot rabbits! And then the riding horses, and a tennis-lawn, and an excellent library—you, my dear Dudley, you like the tennis so well—"

"But who is he, petite? You have very bold in me! I will know his slightest idea. And, if you have realized the mind to marry, I will know when it is going to be!"

"It is the Revelsworth Gilles," sobbed his step-mother, brushing down altogether and dropping her head on her hands upon the table, "and I am not going to tell him this morning!"

A fond pause followed this startling announcement. Again the young men looked at each other, and were evidently stunded by quick resentment. Dudley's full of wonder, shadowed by regret.

"Is it possible that you, mother, the younger man, "or is she laughing at us?"

"She means it." Dudley whispered back. "After all, it isn't surprising that she is still a young and pretty! We oughtn't to be selfish; and she has a right to her own life, I suppose."

Neither of the young men had ever contemplated life without the constant and saturated industrious little friend and protector, and the thought that she was lost to them and about to confide her future to a comparative stranger was a shock to their feelings.

Dudley, the less emotional and more self-restrained of the two, was the first to recover his equanimity.

"We must drink to your health and happiness in a little wine, as you have suggested, mother," he said, with a forced laugh. "But why did not Monsieur Gilles come to see us, and—and—"

"I thought you would rather have me to commence with you alone," said his step-mother answered, as she sat up and wiped her eyes. "And then I had to tell you—I didn't know how you might take it. I assure you I thought of it for a long time before-hand, lest you should think me weak and fickle, and that I was sorry I time I said to myself, Monsieur Gilles is only forty-five, big and handsome, and kind and generous, and has a good seat and sainable, and our house will be yours, and then I will say to him, I shall have another offer! He believes me to be thirty-seven, clearly the good Providence does not think I am growing older, and so I will say 'yes' and have some of the Revelsworth fortune, and how dear boys will you not forgive me; and will you be very angry if I go and put my traveling-things on?"

"Already, little mother! At what time is he then coming, this Doctor Gilles?"

A half-past two we are by the train into the country. Give me each a kiss, my dear good boys! And you will not be angry with me, Victor, and jealous or cruel for leaving you, will you? I have engaged an excellent old woman who will cook and look after you, and—"

"Run away and dress, dear, or you will be late!"

Thus admonished, she disappeared, laughing through her tears. By this time Victor had come to his senses, and was utterly unfit for work or food or conversation, and, after lighting a smoking is melancholy fashion by the stove, Dudley hurried out and returned before the ladies with a bouquet of lovely white blooms, a bag of bonbons, and a dozen pairs of gloves. "five" and a half" enclosed in a hand-painted satin case. Since fraces of his handsome and money had been expended on purchasing these trifles, but it was necessary to make "peace with the send-off," and he knew that such attentions pleased them.

Pleased she was indeed when she entered a few minutes later, dressed in her best gown and hat and fur, still half-apologetic in her attitude towards her "boys," and ready to drop tears at the sight of Victor's distress, and tenderly to caress Dudley's head in measure by Dudley's pretty presents.

They must take great care of themselves, and "not get thin" during her ley day, and they must tell her all about the Revelsworth Gilles, and their English relations, and above all, they must not think her unkind.

At the last moment, just as the omnibuses, a coupe was driven up to the door of the house, and a tall, stout, good-humored-looking Belgian gentleman with a face of the colour of a lobster overcoat and an expansive smile, ascended to the fourth floor to claim his bride. Monsieur Gilles, in fact, for he was disposed to look kindly upon his future wife's step-sons, shared their grief at parting from his mother as altogether natural and proper, and was evidently deferred bl. bridal tour by some hours in deference to Victoire's distress, and to the necessity for taking advice at his watch during the Little Ones journey to the country.

"Allons, ma petite angel—the train will not wait for us!"

And down the four flights of narrow, slipper, uncarpeted stairs the Little One accompanied by her husband and master, casting wistful glances back at the house which shouldered her out, some Englishman and the plain Revelsworth money, which would now grow from boyhood to manhood during the ten years they three had spent together in the small flat on the quatrieme.

A few moments later she was waving a small pearl-gray gloved hand out of the coupe, and Dudley and Victor Revelsworth were left standing bareheaded on the pavement in the keen east wind.

"She has gone," said Dudley in English, as the coupe drove off. "Well, we shall miss her! Now, Victor, old boy, pull yourself together. You have done enough crying for the French side of you; remember you are half English, and give the other side a turn. Living on here without her would be too deadly dull. Gilles seems a good sort, and then of course we would break in his house. No, I don't mean that the Little One properly. I vote we write at once to the lawyer chaps, and—if they give us the slightest encouragement in that direction, that we pack up our traps, and have an early run for England, home, and beaut—in other words, the Revelsworth Millions!"

CHAPTER II.

A fortnight later Dudley and Victor Revelsworth were seated in the office of Messrs. Simpson & Watt, solicitors, Lincoln's Inn Fields, listening attentively while the senior partner of the firm, a pale, thin, over-dressed, white-haired gentleman of huge appearance and undeniable polite manners, to whom they had been in active correspondence for several days past, put before them in parenthesis of certain facts connected with their own family which they had previously known.

Before this point was reached however the two young men themselves had to submit to a searching cross-examination, although most courteously-worded, from Mr. Simpson. They had arrived in London, at Mr. Simpson's request, armed with indubitable proofs of their identity, and of their father Dudley, and Dudley's movements during the departure from England, forty-three years before, to his first marriage with Miss Revelsworth, and the birth of his son, Dudley the younger, in 1863, his wife's death two years later, finally, the death of Dudley Revelsworth the elder in the year 1894, in the Hotel Dieu, Paris.

On one point the young men's answers seemed to puzzle Mr. Simpson. It appeared incomprehensible to the man of law that the great-grandfather of the famous cotton-spinner Isaac Revelsworth, should have left apparently care so little about the monetary position of their surviving relatives in England.

"You say," Mr. Simpson observed, looking at Victor and Dudley over his spectacles at Dudley, "that you were both a boarding-school in England for several years?"

"Five years, sir."

"Your holidays were spent in Paris, where your father, as I understand, lived as a 'rentier' on his private means. But surely, during your residence in England, he must have said something of your family? The firm of Revelsworth is so well known in the North—"

"We were at a college at Brighton where both of my step-brothers and myself we joined—and by our father's special wish we never asked questions about his family."

"That he must have explained to you how it was that he left his home?"

"You must remember, Mr. Simpson, that I was a lad of seventeen when my brother a child of thirteen when they came to live with us, and that I observed man, and he hardly ever, to my remembrance, alluded to his early life in England. Except to mention most emphatically upon me that I was to work my own way in the world, and never to apply for help to any one of the name of Revelsworth, I received the subject of his relations, and I am under the impression that he despised them. Indeed, the whole of his life his father's treatment of him was of a very unjust kind."

"I presume, then, that your father was a younger son, and therefore, at first or the second Mrs. Revelsworth had money—"

"The first Mrs. Revelsworth was an English governess, and the second was the governess of a family named Gilles. Neither had any money; and I shall always believe that Dudley added, with a touch of regret which verged upon bitterness in his voice, "that my poor father's life was shortened by the struggles to earn a sufficient living by his art. At this time we were in great interest you, Mr. Simpson."

Mr. Simpson looked very dear sir, but it does interest me, and puzzles me too greatly. By the disinheriting of his brother-in-law Isaac Revelsworth, and his income into possession of the entire Revelsworth property. Then he married a rich man through his marriage with the Lincolnshire Miss Revelsworth. He has now been dead for twenty years; but I have reason to know that long before his death he would gladly have met either of his brothers halfway, had they shown the slightest desire to be reconciled with him. For I suppose that you have been in touch with your grandfather in the family quarrel?"

"It was to his interest to do so," said Dudley simply.

"Exactly so. And my late client, Mr. John Revelsworth, was always a shrewd man of business. But he and his wife had no children, and in the latter years of their life they had suffered from the painful affection of the heart and dropsy which was the cause of his death, than one occasion before his death he consulted me on the subject of his will. He would never authorize me to find out their whereabouts or communicate with them in any way, as he asserted, that they would repulse his advances."

"I believe my father would have done so," Dudley observed thoughtfully.

"And your uncle Harold?"

"I know very little about him. My father was deeply grieved when he heard of his uncle's murder, and mentioned in my uncle's death; but as boys my brother and I had scarcely ever seen him. He lived wholly for his work, and was absorbed in scientific investigations."

"You know nothing of his family?"

Nothing at all. He was married to a child being shown a very beautiful woman's portrait, and told that it was that of a Roman lady, and that was all I remember."

Dudley should know if he left any children?"

Dudley shook his head.

"We only learned of his death by accident in the newspapers several years after the event. Previous to that I believe my father had not heard from him for a considerable time."

The lawyer leaned back in his chair, tapped the tips of his long, wrinkled fingers together, and, gazed at the young man with quite benevolence.

"May I ask if either of you is married?" he inquired suavely.

Victor burst out laughing and Dudley smiled.

"We haven't been able to afford it even if we had been so minded," the elder brother replied.

WEAKLY CHILDREN.

Stunted, weakly children are those whose food does them no good. Their digestive organs do not digest it properly. Keep the child's digestive organs right and it will grow up strong and healthy, and it will not cause mother any worry. Baby's Own Tablets will do it is the weak children—the puny children—that worry the mother all the time. Baby's Own Tablets will do this is changed when Baby's Own Tablets are used. They promote digestion, they give sound, natural sleep, they keep baby well and cheerful. They are good for older children, too, and cure all their ailments—guaranteed. Mrs. Thos. Wilson proves the truth of the statement—and more to it. She says: "I have used Mrs. Archibald Downey, Carleton, Que., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Don't Get Caught

Keep your eyes open when buying your new spring suit. When you want to buy an article, don't be governed too much by the price—look to the value, the worth, the texture, trimmings and make of the goods themselves. A comparison thus made will show conclusively that prices we quote are lower than goods of equal worth or quality can be bought for at any other store in Belleville.

TIMELY TOPICS.

It it's all the same to the weather man, we'd like a little warm, dry weather, for a change.

Of course, the only reason the County Councillors didn't attend the piano recital last night was because they had to hold an evening session.

Matters seem to be approaching a climax in the Gas Company.

It seems to us that it's rather late in the day now for people to kick about the way the Viceregal function was conducted. The gentlemen who gave their services, free, gratis, for nothing, to make it a success, are only human. His Excellency's time in the city was short, and, under the circumstances, we fail to see how anybody could have done better than the special committee did. If any of their plans miscarried it was not because Ald. Sinclair and his fellow-laborers did not work hard enough.

Come to think of it, though, the newspaper men were not presented to His Excellency. What ho! slave! Get the axe. We'll go down and see that committee.

The motion made by Mr. W. P. Hudson at last night's meeting of the Board of Education, namely, that the Fifth Book be taught in the Public Schools of the city, appears to have considerable to recommend it, especially as in the opinion of many experienced members of the Board, it would not be likely to interfere with the High School. The plan is said to work well in other places, and would, if feasible, undoubtedly be a good thing for Belleville.

There are many parents in this city who, for various reasons, aspire to nothing but a good common school education for their children. And those citizens are entitled to, and should receive, the very best that the law allows, without unnecessary trouble or expense. Judging by what we have heard of the matter, so far, Mr. Hudson's motion is a move in the right direction.

Experts say the Reliance is the fastest yacht ever launched on this side of the Atlantic. She beat the Constitution by six minutes and the Columbia by thirteen minutes. It looks as though Sir Thomas might as well give orders for the building of Shamrock IV. However, here's hoping.

We sympathize with the Forty-ninth in that jolt the County Council gave them, though from there is undoubtedly a lot of truth in the opinion expressed by certain Councillors, that the Government should supply rural regiments with whatever they need.

One thing the dry spell seems to have done, namely, make potato bugs scarce. It's an ill wind, etc.

And the Service army will probably say to their new king: "Condemn the fate of Alick. That's the way we'll serve it you don't suit us."

The way the Laurier Government is going ahead with the investigation into the Tweedsmuir scandal reminds one of the progress of a boy who draws a cat by tits tail across a carpet.

The Globe called Gamey "A moral monstrosity." What about the other fellow? Is he an immoral monstrosity?

A negro employed on the flood threatened levee at St. Louis threatened that he would cut the levee if not paid his wages at once. He was, the despatch says, promptly shot. The incident should be cabled to Russia.

RAINY WEATHER WANTS.

The Oak Hall can supply you with a nice umbrella for $1.00, No need to get wet. When a waterproof would be handy. You can get it. Also good coat at $3.00 and from that up to $15. At $5 and $10 we give those swell ones that you can use for a light overcoat.

Kidney-Wort Tablets

A POSITIVE CURE.

THE ONLY KIDNEY MEDICINE ENTIRELY FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

The mortality reports from the large centres of population show that kidney troubles are as fatal, and carry off as many victims as consumption.

Few men and women have perfectly sound kidneys. When an honest personal interest is awakened, it is found that there exists danger. There is a pain in the small of the back, too frequent urination, cloudy urine, deposit of sediment, swelling of limbs, loss of strength, and in many cases, bladder difficulties add to the gravity of the situation.

When you realize your danger, be wise; make Kidney-Wort Tablets your choice medicine; they will give you the results you seek for—freedom from a deadly disease.

Whatever you do, we would warn you against the use of liquid medicines with alcohol in their composition. Alcohol will harden and inflame the kidneys and hasten death.

Kidney-Wort Tablets stand so high in the estimation of physicians that they are used in hospitals and the poor dispensaries. Kidney-Wort Tablets are a positive cure; give them a trial. All druggists.

Mrs. Horatio Carsdale.

I have suffered with Rheumatism for fourteen years, principally in the arms and shoulders. I was particularly tortured during the changes of the weather, and my hands would swell so that I could not close them. I tried many different remedies, but it did not seem to do me any good. One vial of Morgan's Rheumatism Cure is all I have taken, and the pains are completely gone.—Mrs. Horatio Carsdale, 344 Dundas street, London, Ont.

Your druggist will recommend Morgan's Rheumatism Cure; ask him about it. Only 50c a vial.

THE GAS COMPANY.

IMPORTANT ACTION TAKEN AT A MEETING OF DIRECTORS HELD LAST NIGHT.

A meeting of the directors of the Belleville Gas Company was held last night in the Police Court room. Mr. J. W. Johnson, president, occupied the chair, and those also present were: Messrs. Gillen, Webster, Clark, Dolan, Wood, Robt. Thomson, W. J. Thomson, S. Mason. Acting Mayor Panter and Ald. Galbraith.

A long discussion, which at times became somewhat heated, took place as to the advisability of offering the plant for sale, a proposition which was opposed by acting Mayor Panter.

It was at last decided to advertise the works for sale, but their action of the directors must be ratified at a meeting of the shareholders to be held two weeks hence.

In the meantime Mr. Frank Dolan, of this city, has a three months lease of the works.

CIVIC COMMITTEES MET LAST NIGHT.

BUSINESS MOSTLY OF A ROUTINE CHARACTER.

The Civic Committees met last night.

The members present were Ald. Casbarilla, Cooper, Pantor Marsh, Green, Sinclair, McFee and Salman.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Pay sheet, No. 12, amounting to $178.14, was passed.

It was recommended that the sidewalk on the west side of Front street, from Dundas to Wharf street, and that on the east side of Foster Ave, from Dundas street to the bay be removed and gravel walks substituted.

It was recommended that a two plank walk be constructed on George street, opposite Mrs. Parker's residence.

FIRE.

The Chairman, Ald. Sinclair and Salman, were appointed a committee to look into the requirements of the men's rooms at the fire halls and report.

It was also recommended that an additional horse be provided for No. 1 hose cart, and the matter of arranging with Mr. Ward, the contractor, will be left in the hands of a committee composed of the Chairman, Ald. Marsh and Green. They will also look into the matter of necessary changes to be made to accommodate the extra horse.

PARKS.

An account from Wm. McDonald, of $1.80, was passed.

Some other accounts were referred.

LIGHT.

The committee recommended that a light be placed on Pinnacle street, its location to be left in the hands of the Chairman.

MARKET.

The Chairman was instructed to ask for tenders for coal.

WATERWORKS.

The only account passed was the pay sheet, $143.85.

Very many persons rise annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who would have died but for the prompt remedies that have been found. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the standard remedy in general use. Sold in every village. Price 35 cents a bottle or Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the famous 1-day cure. Sold by all druggists. Those who have used it vote it worth $5 a bottle. Those who have not, will vote it worth nothing if they try it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Have you tried Dr. Fowler's Ginger Cure? It has no equal for removing those troublesome disorders which so many have so justified who have tried it.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by land and field.

CATARRH, INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder possesses, besides regulating the digestive organs, it relieves in each case the inflammation of the eyes. It has received the highest letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with inflammation of the eyes, caused by catarrh in the pills. They attest the severe nature and the benefit to be a surprising one. Easy, and the result is almost immediately seen.

"What gets broke, gets mended" as the son goes on a crutch.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it. Procure at once a free of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive cough. It is a fact worth knowing that a slight cold can be cured by Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry Syrup before it was too late. Their first trial may have been saved. Mrs. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Hoskie's Anti-Consumptive is the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About this present season I had a very cold which settled on my lungs, and I was threatened. I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured when I was induced to try Hickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was entirely cured. I will always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

Harness Broke—Horse Ran Away

Mr. George Ostrom, wife and daughter, of the front of Sidney, were this morning driving down Murney's Hill when a portion of the harness broke, causing the horse to run away. The animal was fortunately stopped before any damage was done, or before any person was injured.

About Drainage

You know the deadly consequences if a house is badly drained. Only a madman or a criminal would himself incur the risk, or subject others to it, for one unnecessary minute.

But do you really realize the danger of a badly drained body? Are you aware that it poisons the blood, the very fountain of life?

Too Long a Journey.

The Canadian visitor to Europe tells the following story, which smacks of a well-known type of Old Country man:

Before the train for the West had fairly pulled out of the depot at Jersey City, all the passengers in the day coach knew the elderly gentleman in the front seat was bound for Chicago. Also that he had left his home in Limerick two weeks before to "ship his son Tommy," whom he had not seen in twenty years. Sundry bags, boxes and packages that completely filled the aisle around his seat proved he was well prepared for the journey. He seemed as happy as a child when he spoke of meeting his boy in Chicago. As the first movement of the train denoted that the long ride had begun he was bubbling over with the delightful anticipation of the pleasure in store for him. Again and again he told how "Tommy" had left home for "America" when sixteen years old, settled in Chicago, earned lots of money and finally sent transportation to his old dad to join him in the "Western metropolis."

When the train was out a half-hour or more the old gentleman became anxious, peering out of the window and changing from one seat to another. Finally the conductor came through for tickets, and the Chicago passenger enquired of him if they were near his station yet. The conductor smiled and shook his head. The train stopped at a small town in Western New Jersey and the man's face brightened up as he asked a young woman standing by if it was Chicago. He became more and more nervous as the train started up again. Passengers who had been interesting him in newspapers and magazines laid them aside to watch the antics of the old man. Whenever the train slowed up he would look out of his seat to know if they had finally reached the big city. Tommy's father was waiting for him.

Finally, as the train pulled into the beautiful Broad Street Station at Philadelphia, a crowd of fifty people in the coach prepared to leave the train and, with them the man from Limerick. The conductor, who was to get off, walked up to him and said: "This isn't your station. Your ticket calls for Chicago. You have a long ride ahead of you yet." "Ain't this Chicago?" "No. You must travel all the rest of the afternoon, all night and most the whole of all day to-morrow before you reach Chicago." The face of the man from the Green Isle was a study. He looked at the man in uniform for fully a minute, apparently trying to grasp the meaning of the words he had just heard. Then he said: "Conductor, you—all—the—rest—of—the—day, all—night—to-morrow—all—day—to-morrow—before—I—reach—Chicago?" "Of course you must," said the conductor. "Well," said he, "I never intended if I go." And he didn't. Nothing the conductor could say to him would make him get aboard the train again. The last seen of him was when he surrounded the curve outside the station, he was making his way toward the waiting-room.

A Man's Way of Bathing a Baby.

In learning to properly bathe a baby it is always well to start with a small quantity of water and increase the size until thoroughly proficient.

Have the water in the tub at a temperature of about 98 degrees. This will preclude all possibility of the sudden chill so dangerous to childhood, besides insuring absolute cleanliness. Before going further I cannot impress too strongly in the minds of young mothers one thing;

Never, under any circumstances, use cheap soap!

Cheap soaps tend to shrink babies. Many an otherwise happy woman is plunged ever with a feeling of unknown children about her that could have been brought to full size by the application of a few extra pence.

Don't economize in this way. If you do you'll regret it.

Have all the articles to be used in the bath placed near the tub so that they can be reached without rising:

A bottle of ammonia.
A pony currycomb.
One sheet of coarse sandpaper.
A file.
Also have handy a bottle of napatha or benzine to remove any stain that will not yield to the more delicate methods.

Place the child to be washed face downwards on the knees and remover. Then his stockings, then his shoes, then his trousers, and finally his coat and vest, leaving these until the last, as they help to keep the baby warm. Next fess the child into the tub and allow him to remain there about two minutes. This is the first step.

Then wash him thoroughly and, taking the file in the left hand and the sandpaper in the right, rub the entire body, beginning at the neck and working down from the feet, finishing with the currycomb.

Dry with an old square of carpet.

Kissing and Non-kissing Families.

The New York "Sun" says that kissing among relatives goes by families, and it is quite true that certain households are known to all their friends as great kissers. The members of men, women and children, kiss each other on the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night, and on any other occasion that they consider sufficiently occasional.

Still one may go too far the other way. A newspaper tells of a family married a nun who came of non-kissing stock. At one time the husband went to the railway station to meet a son who had been absent from home for two years, and on his return the wife said:

"What did you do when you first saw Jack? Did you kiss him?"

"No," faltered the husband and father, "of course I didn't kiss him." "I'll tell you what he said to me," volunteered the son. "He said: 'Well, Jack, was your train on time?'"

Just The Same.

Bobby—Mamma, if God is as good as you say he is, why doesn't He always answer our prayers? "He does, Bobby, when they deserve to be answered." "Well, I prayed that I might not steal any more jam out of the butler's pantry, but it didn't make any difference." —"Life."

The oven of an Imperial Oxford Range and the old-fashioned Range are the same in everything but one—the heating. In every other cooking apparatus invented, the spit had to be kept turning to get all sides of a roast cooked. It is much the same with the ordinary cook-stove. The heat of the oven is focused on the fire side—roasts, bread, pies, cakes, etc., have to be turned and twisted to get them cooked at all. The result is uneven, unsatisfactory cooking—good food ruined. The diffusive fire construction of the draws fresh air into the fire chamber, super-heats it and diffuses it evenly over the oven, thus heating it quickly, thoroughly and uniformly—back, front and sides are at the same equal temperature. The result is juicy, tender roasts, light, delicious pastry, and perfect cooking—no guess work.

When you buy an Imperial Oxford Range you get the result of over sixty years' thought and experience in scientific construction of cooking apparatus.

Sunshine Furnace.

REGULATED LIKE A WATCH.

"Sunshine" dampers are so ingeniously arranged and control the fire so perfectly that the consumption of fuel can be regulated almost as accurately as a watch—the operator knows just what time a certain quantity of coal will retain fire and the degree of heat it will produce.

All parts of "Sunshine" furnaces are mechanically correct—the castings are clean and extra heavy, while the steel used in the dome is of the finest quality and is specially made for the "Sunshine" furnace.

Every detailed feature in the "Sunshine" has its purpose, and all combine to produce the most heat from the fuel consumed and distribute it most evenly.

A Spider's Genius.

"I HAVE considerable respect for the female spider, notwithstanding the fact that she does not treat the male very considerately," says a correspondent. "I had an opportunity last summer to watch a large one that had a web in the top of a decaying peach tree with no few leaves that it was in plain view. I caught sight of her first when watching some birds with my glass. She seemed to be climbing from the top of the tree on nothing to a telephone wire some fifteen feet away and somewhat higher than her web. When she reached the wire she went around it and then back. In studying the situation, I found that she was so located that it required a cable to hold it up, and the spider had in some way got one over the wire so far away. This cable was, of course, a slender silken thread which evidently she had thrown out, and on account of its lightness it had floated to the right place and become attached there by its glutinous properties. It seems remarkable that it should have adhered to the wire firmly enough to allow so large an insect to climb over it, which she did every day as long as I watched her, evidently to mend or strengthen it. The spider must have brains in which the ability to construct its web and adapt it to conditions is highly developed."

In an article in "Chambers' Journal" the following account of how the spider forms its silken threads is given:

"One of the most interesting features in the economy of spiders is their power of emitting slender threads of a silk-like substance called gossamer, with which most of them construct mesh-like nets, and a few long, hanging cables, by which they are buoyed through the air with nearly as much facility as though they had been furnished with wings. The apparatus provided by nature for elaborating and emitting this gossamer is a beautiful piece of mechanism. Within the animal there are two minute bags or vesicles of a gummy matter; and these vesicles are connected with a circular series situated at the abdomen. Within this orifice are five little teats or spinnerets, through which the gossamer is drawn. It must not be concluded, however, that there is only one film of gossamer produced by each spinneret, for each of these teats are studded with thousands of minute tubes too small for the naked eye to perceive, and each of these, emits a thread of inconceivable fineness. These minute tubes are known as spinnerules, and the films which proceed from them unite into as many strands of a rope to form the thread of gossamer by which a spider suspends itself. The finest thread which human mechanism can produce is like a ship's cable compared with the delicate films which flow from the spinnerules of the largest spider. The films are all distinctly separate on coming from the spinneret, but unite, not by any twisting process, but merely by their own glutinous or gummy nature. Thus the spinning apparatus of the disclosed spider, when viewed by the eye of science, becomes one of the most wonderful pieces of animated mechanism known to man. The animal has perfect command over this apparatus, and can apply it at will as long as the receptacles within are replenished with the gummy fluid, but as soon as this gum is exhausted all its efforts to spin are fruitless, and it must wait till nature, by her inscrutable chemistry, has secreted it from the food which is devoured."—Waverley Magazine."

Life is Too Short!

An evening contemporary has been informing its readers that they can use the same calendars every twenty years —when the dates of the months fall on the same days of the week—thereby avoiding the expense of five almanacs for the present century. But here is something even better than that. Those persons who have the double advantage of ancient fatility and modern forethought, by turning up the calendars—unfortunately, they are not printed ones—for the twelfth century, by Solomon Jarchus, will find the days and dates coincident with the present century. Such persons can save the expense of buying for one hundred years. Again, those with a frugal mind who have preserved the almanacs of the nineteenth century will avoid an outlay for calendars of the century commencing January 1, 2201, as the dates for the hundred years following will be coincident with those of the last century. But life, remarks the London "Chronicle," is scarcely long enough for such economies.

Tommy's Poser.

A lady was recently reading to her young son the story of a little boy whose father was taken ill and died, after which he set himself diligently to work to assist in supporting himself and his mother. When she had finished the story, she said:

"Now, Tommy, if pa were to die, wouldn't you work to keep mamma?"

"Why, no," said the little chap, not wishing the day of his death to come too soon; "for? Ain't we got a good house to live in?"

"Oh, yes, my dear," said the mother, "but we can't eat the house, you know."

"Well, ain't we got plenty of things in the pantry?" continued the young hopeful.

"Certainly, dear," replied the mother, "but they would not last long, and what then?"

"Well, ma," said the young incorrigible, after thinking a moment, "ain't there enough to last till you get another husband?"

Ma gave it up.

Wealth's Millstones.

"Spring has came," mused Mr. Gotrichwick, as he stood before the window with his hands thrust deep into his pockets.

"Aw, now, how kind you tell, pap?" gurgled his diamond-bedecked daughter.

"Because—and the father, as he clinked the coins in his pocket, "because the snow has went."

"Stop that noise, Jimmie, or we will send you to bed." "Pa, you don't act like I was your real child at all; you act like I was jes' somebody else's ol' orphan."

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

CANCER OPERATIONS A FAILURE

The Constitutional Method, the Only Rational Successful Treatment.

Carefully compiled statistics of operations for cancer, show that fully eight-five per cent. of those operated on have a recurrence of the disease, usually within a year after the operation is performed, and that few of these cases are rapidly fatal.

By the new method of Constitutional Treatment, the bourgons and dangers of the knife and plaster are avoided, and the cancer completely cured. Our simple, vegetable remedy catches out the cancerous poisons and germs, eliminates them from the system, and cures the disease in the quiet of your home without pain or inconvenience. Send for pamphlet to Dr. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., for full particulars.

What She Said.

It wasn't a smoking compartment, but they were using it for that purpose in the same, and she was too modest to object. By and by the two men got into a discussion over the woman question, and at last one of them, an unregenerate bachelor, appealed to the lady thus:

"Do you think there will be men in heaven, madam?"

She blushed.

Then she said, "They will want to go somewhere where they can smoke."

The discussion stopped; so did the smoking.

To be acceptable to the aristocracy one must be an ass or a millionaire.

WHY CATARRHOZONE CURES CATARRH.

It goes to every affected part and kills the germs that keep up the diseased conditions. Catarrhozone does not irritates, but stimulates the mucous membranes of nose, throat and lungs to normal action, and keeps the nasal passages free from offensive discharges. Catarrhozone contains no dangerous drugs or opiates and is delightfully pleasant and simple to use. Catarrhozone is an absolutely certain cure for any form of Catarrh and sells for one dollar at druggists, small size, 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Month after Month a cold sticks, and seems to tear holes in your throat. Are you aware that even a stubborn and long-neglected cold is cured with Allen's Lung Balsam? Cough and worry no longer.

SHALL THE FIFTH FORM BE TAUGHT

In the Various Public Schools of This City?—Motion to that Effect

Discussed Last Night by the Belleville Board of Education—Matter Referred.

Some Members Have a Grievance. Growing Out of the Vice-regal Function.

At the meeting of the Board of Education last evening the following members were present: Messrs. J. H. Anderson, W. A. Carson, Geo. A. Bennett, I. Diamond, W. P. Hudson, W. S. Morden, Al. McGinnis, W. Fenwick, W. Walker, U. F. Wills, Rev. A. L. Geen and W. G. Reid.

In the absence of the Chairman, Mr. W. S. Morden was voted to preside.

Communications.

From Miss Maud Clapp, applying for position of teacher if a vacancy occurs.

From Miss Hagar, teacher of domestic science at Albert College, detailing the lessons which have been given to the pupils of the city public schools attending the Institute.

From St. Andrew's Church, asking the privilege of tapping the drain in front of Queen street School, in order that the waste water from the motor which runs the organ may drain into the same.

From Mr. Hinton, asking the Board to lay over for further consideration the matter of establishing a Cadet Corps.

From the Cherry Press, asking that they have an opportunity of tendering for the Board's printing.

Reports.

The Finance Committee reported, recommending the payment of the following accounts:

W. J. Wright, Jr.	$ 54
N. Allen	2.65
W. P. Clarke	1.05
McCoy Bros.	2.50
J. Thompson & Co.	2.31
C. B. Foster	21.60
C. B. Foster	9.00
Mulford Bros.	2.35
J. D. Collip	1.25

The committee recommended that the same arrangements with the County as to paying the caretaker as has been heretofore carried out be continued this year.

The committee also recommended that Mr. Wm. McKeown be appointed the examiner from the Board.

The Printing and Supplies Committee submitted the following estimates for the year:

Post	$1,175
Stationery supplies	175
Printing	75
Library, maps, etc.	50
Total	$1,475

The Cadet Corps.

The special committee re Cadet Corps reported as follows:

That the committee met and communicated with the Deputy Minister, Halliwell and from Col. Edwards, Inspector of Cadet Corps.

That Col. Fonton read to committee a copy of a circular now issued to places where Cadet Corps existed, and the answers received were from Napanee, Brantford, Stanley and St. Catharines.

After full discussion the committee recommended that a corps be established in connection with the Belleville High School, under the High School Act.

That an pupil of said school shall be permitted to be enrolled without the consent in writing of his or her legal guardian.

The School Management Committee's report stated that in view of Inspector Hall's visit, no additional teacher is recommended to be engaged at present.

The grounds had procured close blinds for the chemistry room, in accordance with the Inspector's report.

The committee was pleased to note an improvement in writing.

The Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee recommended that the amounts to be expended for repairs in the various schools be as follows:

No. 1 School	$100
No. 2 School	25
No. 3 School	75
Queen Victoria School	25
Grier Street School	75
High School	25
Total	$311

The committee also recommended that $139 additional be provided for the janitor's repairs.

The committee recommended that $200 be expended in painting the outside of Queen Victoria School.

The committee recommended that no action be taken in reference to changing the time of opening the janitors to that of steam or hot water, but that false ceilings be placed in the rooms and see what effect will be.

Mr. John Johnston, inspector, presented a lengthy report in reference to his visit and inspection of the schools during the month of June.

Mr. E. F. Milburn, Principal of the High School, presented his report for the month of May. The average attendance for the month was 120—no change on register 169. The punctuality of the scholars shows an improvement. The report dealt with the recent visit of the Vicergeal party to the school, and the part the children took in the demonstration.

Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Wills was Chairman.

The Finance Committee's report was first taken up and passed without discussion, as were also the various other reports.

When the report of the Special Committee re Cadet Corps was taken up Mr. W. S. Morden moved that the consideration of the report be laid over.

Mr. Hudson seconded the motion.

Mr. J. R. Wills said that there were but 19 pupils in the High School who were 16 years old and over and who according to the statute, were eligible to join a Cadet Corps.

The motion of Mr. Morden prevailed.

Rev. Mr. Geen moved seconded by Mr. Carson, that Miss Hagar's report be referred to the School Management Committee.—Carried.

Motions.

Mr. Hudson moved, seconded by Mr. McGinnis, that the Board take into consideration the advisability of having the Fifth Form taught in the Public Schools of the city.

The mover said it was the Board's duty to see that the best education possible be given to pupils attending the public schools. The Public School Law provides that the fifth form may be taught in the public school where it is required. Many children commence and end their education in the public school, and we should give to those children the best education we possibly can. This can be accomplished if the fifth form is taught in the public schools. He considered the public schools in Ontario are not as good as they should be in reference to grants from the Provincial Government. The public schools are increasing in numbers in the Province, whilst the grant is not as large as it was some years ago. In Toronto and other cities the fifth form is taught in the public school. If it was introduced here it would not interfere with the High School. He considered the motion a step in the right direction and he hoped it would prevail.

Mr McGinnis endorsed all that Mr. Hudson had stated. He understood that the examination of the fifth form would be revised in the near future, and the fifth form is considered the junior matriculation. He would consider this matter thoroughly in all of its details.

Mr. Walker said he would be a mistake to have this form taught in the public schools but it would no doubt be profitable if it was taught in one school, such as the High School. He did not consider that it would in any way be an injury to the High School.

Rev. Mr. Geen moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. J. F. Wills, that this matter be referred to the School Management and Finance Committees, to report upon at the next meeting.

Mr. Bennett was in favor of the original motion.

Mr. I. Diamond said this was an important matter and he was in favor of having the matter referred to the committee named.

Mr. W. S. Morden said that when the Legislature passed this section of the School Act it was intended more for the rural schools. The examination in order to get into the fifth form is the same as that for entrance examination. They were in a unique position in Belleville, as we had 3 business colleges and Albert College which fitted boys for a commercial life. He would support the amendment if the first part of it were eliminated. If the fifth form was taught, it proposed, another teacher would have to be procured.

Mr. J. F. Wills said that he spoke on this subject was needed. He thought the motion was a move in the right direction. We have not the statistics or information at hand to the amendment proposed by Rev. Mr. Geen he gouna support.

The amendment proposed by Rev. Mr. Geen was adopted after some further discussion.

The notice of Motion of Mr. Wm. Johnson, in reference to all printing of the Board being done by the city newspapers, was allowed to remain over, owing to the absence of Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Walker moved, seconded by Mr. Bennett, that the thanks of the Board be extended to the Principal of the High School and the teachers of the public schools, for the efficient and pleasing manner in which the children were drilled for the reception to the Vicergeal party.—In this City.

Thinks They Were Badly Treated.

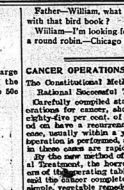

Mr. McGinnis, in speaking of the motion, referred to the fact that the principals of other educational institutions in the city were introduced to the distinguished visitors, whilst the Principal and Head Masters of the High and Public Schools were ignored.

Rev. Mr. L. Geen thought it was a disgrace the way the Board was treated in this matter. The children of the schools took an active part in making the reception a success and he thought that Mr. Milburn, Principal of the High School should have been selected to lead the children in singing, as he was perfectly capable of doing so, and they have looked as confident to do so.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

This completed the business and the Board adjourned.

THE TORTURE OF BACKACHE.

It ages the young—cripples and enfeebles the old—incapacitates a man for work—unfits him for pleasure.

There is no need to endure the agony of an aching back—to be crippled with a sore, stiff, lame back.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS

Take away every bit of pain, stiffness and soreness—quickly and completely. Here is some convincing evidence:

FREE FROM PAIN.

Mr. Wm. Smith, Pinnacle St., Belleville, says:—"Before using Dr. Pitcher's Backache Tablets I was much afflicted with lumbago. Since I used a bottle, I am not only free from pain, but feel much better. The nervous restlessness has ceased. The dull aching in the small of my back has disappeared. I can vouch for Dr. Pitcher's Tablets being a reliable remedy for pain and lameness in the back."

IT HURT TO WALK.

John Hiltz, 21 Barton St., Hamilton, Ont., says:—"Just after a bout of pneumonia years ago, a severe pain started in the small of my back, and grew worse. At last it bothered me badly to walk. I was induced to try Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. I got a bottle and they gave just the thing I there need the pain and soreness completely.

There is no remedy in the world to equal Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets for curing, not only backache, but also Bright's disease, kidney disease, smarting or irritation of the urine, frequent calls during the day or night, blood impurities, skin eruptions, rheumatism, neuralgia, dragging pain in the loins and all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles of young or old.

Mr. Tripp's Recital.

SMALL ATTENDANCE, BUT MOST ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT.

There was a small audience in the City Hall last night to listen to Mr. J. D. A. Tripp's piano recital. The sparse attendance, of course, was caused by the dreadful weather, which made people sing "there's no place like home." This is very much to be regretted, for very seldom, indeed, do Belleville people have an opportunity to hear an artist like Mr. Tripp, and then, again, it is not pleasant to see Prof. Hunt, who has performed many favors on the musical people of Belleville, receive such poor support for one of his undertakings.

Mr. J. D. A. Tripp, the virtuoso who performed last night, is not a stranger to Belleville, and he probably needs no introduction. The fact that people in this city had an opportunity of hearing him at a low rate of admission, and failed to take advantage of it, on account of disagreeable weather conditions, speaks more for their prudence than their artistic appreciation. And that, it may be remarked, is no idle fairy tale. However, the enthusiasts were there in spite of the weather, and when a few of the raindrops had been as big as the fragments of tombstones in the old d—l.

"And what of Mr. Tripp? Well, he had the same marvellous technique, delightfully smooth legato, brilliant touch and dainty lightness as when he last appeared in this city. There seemed to be a more mature expression about his playing that night, but this impression was hardly so much in evidence. To be sure, that would hardly be wondered at, considering the awful weather and utter audience. In fact, on his first appearance, Mr. Tripp did not play in his true form at all. The warm applause of the audience, however, and the consciousness which dawned on him that he should not punish those present for the faults of the absent, thawed him out, and on his next appearance he was in a more sunny mood. He played the Paganini-Schumann "Caprice Celebre" in a perfectly ideal way, and the same three gems of Chopin and the way the talented Toronto gentleman played them, plainly "Barcarolle" was in the highest degree delightful. It was the very poetry of sound. As an interpreter of Chopin's dreamy and dainty music Mr. Tripp has few superiors. All his numbers, of course, were given in a masterly and unusual manner, but the last, and crowning, effort, being Rubenstein's "Staccato Caprice," was a veritable revelation. How many years of study and practice were necessary to bring a piece of that composition to its perfection is problematical. It is safe to say that the pianist that night will not soon forget either the work or the player. The encore, of course, was demanded still ring in one's ears! Mr. Tripp gave a selection of the "Moonlight" Sonata, Rubenstein, Paganini-Schuman, Chopin, Strauss and Liszt-Horowski—certainly a classical feast.

Those assisting in the recital were Miss Cassidy, Mrs. Hunt and Kipling's "Wee Willie Winkie" in a highly pleasing way; Miss Mary Vermilyea, whose fresh, dulcet voice was heard to advantage in the "Bird's Nest's pretty song," A Dream Boat," and Mrs. A. G. Farlow, who rendered Gounod's "Ave Maria" most delightfully. Prof. Hunt was a sympathetic and pleasing accompanist. The whole entertainment was one to which nothing but delightful memories.

Saint's Premier Here.

Ottawa, June 12.—Sir Paul G. Adams, Premier of Natal, was here during the past few days, and left for Guelph yesterday. He is travelling quietly, getting information about Canada.

Our Friend From Jamaica.

Ottawa, June 13.—Hon. Sydney Oliver, the Colonial Secretary of Jamaica, has arrived in the city. His mission here is to interview the Government with a view of getting an improved steamship service between Canada and Jamaica. The Island has a subsidy of $3,000. Mr. Oliver wants Canada to assist. In the meantime Quebec asks $15,000 a year to Montreal, Fickford & Black of Halifax, for 4 months to Jamaica.

Threatened an Emperor.

Vienna, June 13.—While Emperor Francis Joseph was out driving here yesterday afternoon, Jacob Reich, a commercial agent, holding a stick in a threatening manner, rushed at His Majesty's carriage. The man was arrested. It is thought he was insane.

The meaning of the word "humph" was recently the subject of judicial decision in the High Court of Appeal. Mr. Justice Madden and Mr. Justice Boyd held that "humph," as used by Sir Walter Scott and Miss Austen in their novels, was an expression of dissent, while the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Burton inclined to the conclusion that "humph" only meant a "dissatisfied condition of the mind." The Court of Appeal has now decided that the word is "an expression of doubt or dissatisfaction," or, as the Lord Justice Walker put it, in the words of the "Century Dictionary," "a grunt of dissatisfaction."

The Sultan's decree that Turkish children shall not be educated in "European way" any longer and that Turkish women shall not be allowed to have Christian companions has been received with different feelings, it is said. Several high officials are deeply displeased by the order; but one highly educated woman of rank, wife of a dignitary, is quoted as saying that her husband's order had convinced her that it was much better to have no education than to learn what His might be, yet have to spend it in a harem. She had refused, therefore, to allow her two daughters to be educated as she had been, and regards the Sultan's decree as a wise one.

A curious phenomenon was observed at the village of La Ghasil, in the French Alps, recently. One day, towards evening, the inhabitants were disturbed by a loud rumbling in the vicinity of Mont Farand which increased in intensity. Looking toward the scene of the disturbance, the villagers were further startled by seeing bright flashes of fire. At first the unusual spectacle was attributed to volcanic agencies, and a party of civil engineers set out to examine the cause of the phenomenon. They discovered that the intense dry heat had caused the chalk rocks on the summit of the mountain to crack and to break away in all directions. These rocks had descended the mountain like an avalanche, and being thickly veined with silex, in descending they had struck one another terrific forces, scattering a brilliant showers of sparks in all directions, with such rapidity that they resembled one single sheet of flame.

The Mysterious Power of Nature.

AND HOW NATURE IS ASSISTED IN HER WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The human body is composed of certain elements, such as iron, potash, lime, soda, magnesia, etc., and nature replaces wasted cells and tissues by extracting these elements from the food we eat. Consequently errors in diet, unsufficiency of food or failure of the digestive organs to properly perform their work are among the most usual causes of disease.

Once the system is weak, run down or exhausted the natural process of reconstruction is tediously slow, usually slower than the wasting process, and the end can only be physical bankruptcy and collapse.

Just at this point, that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves its wonderful power as a sustainer to nature. This great food cure contains in concentrated form the very elements required by nature to revitalize and build up the system. These elements immediately enter the blood stream, and through the medium of the circulation of the blood and the nervous system carry strength and vigor to each and every organ of the body.

Mrs. John Hogan, Streahm street, Belleville, Ont., states:—"I have used several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and as a result I have been restored to good health. I used to suffer a great deal with headaches, dizziness, nervousness and weak, fainting spells. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food these ills have been entirely overcome and I am a well and healthy person. My nerves are steady, I have no headaches and the dizziness and fainting spells have entirely left me. I can speak most highly of this medicine as an excellent tonic."

Nervous prostration and exhaustion, headaches, dyspepsia, dizzy and fainting spells, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, feelings of weakness, depression and despondency are readily overcome by this treatment, working, as it does, hand in hand with nature. Though gradual, the results are all the more permanent and lasting, and by noting your increase in weight you can prove to your satisfaction that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added. Fifty cents a box, six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Two Deaths Near St. John.

St. John, N. B., June 13.—Edward Oldenburg, brother, was killed while coupling cars on the Canadian Eastern Railway at Marysville, York county, this morning. Harry Lang, who was not an employe of the road, but had been in the habit of coupling cars in the yard as a sort of recreation, was thrown above a culvert, at St. Mary's, York County, while working with a derrick on the railway bridge at Boundary Creek, Salisbury, N. B., on I.C.R., was killed yesterday by hoisting gear falling.

Steel Industry in Canada.

Montreal, June 13.—William Jessop, the great steel manufacturer of Sheffield, England, yesterday announced that on his return he will recommend that his company found a branch in Canada.

Ottawa Valley Drought Broke.

Toronto, June 13.—The storm of which Toronto yesterday was the tail end arose over the middle Atlantic coast the night before and developed energy as it moved northward. There was a rainfall of from one to two inches in Eastern Ontario, including Ottawa and the Upper St. Lawrence. In Ottawa one and one-half inches fell, and at Kingston over two inches. This is the first heavy rain that has blessed that parched valley since April 20. Every appearance is that the worst will clear up.

Dr. Sproule Grand Master.

Winnipeg, June 13.—The election of officers in the Orange Grand Lodge yesterday resulted as follows: T. S. Sproule, Grand Master, Markdale, Ont.; William Gillespie, Deputy Grand Master, Montreal, Que.; Rev. William Walsh, Grand Chaplain, Lockport, Ont.; Wm. Hall, Grand Secretary, Alliston, Ont.; W. J. Parkhill, Grand Treasurer; Jas. F. Harper, Grand Lecturer, Hamilton, Ont.; W. H. Cole, Grand Director of Ceremonies, Smith's Falls, Ont.

Crop Prospects Promising.

Winnipeg, Man., June 13.—The C. P. R. crop report for the central division was issued yesterday morning, and is summed up: thus: Weather favorable, acreage all, prospects very promising. Without a single exception in the 118 stations heard from this is the answer to the inquiries sent out to the agents' superintendents. Crop conditions were never better than at present in Western Canada."

The O. K. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and my shoulders were stiff. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. K. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and feel that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different person.

Sincerely yours,

COAL MINERS' CONVENTION

Refusal to Recognize Miners' Conciliators the Cause.

President Mitchell Says the Convention Will Approve the Settlement of the Difficulties in a Liberal Way—Sliding Scale Commissioner Dr. C. F. Rice of Washington is Shot Dead in His Own Post Office.

Two Favorable Adjustment.

Scranton, Pa., June 15.—National President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers arrived here yesterday to attend the convention of mine workers, which will, to-day, take up the matter of the operators' representatives on the Board of Conciliation, refusing to recognize the credentials of District Presidents Nicholls, Dettrey and Fahey, who were selected as the miners' conciliators by vote of the joint executive committee boards of the three districts.

Mr. Mitchell would make no statement as to what the convention was likely to do. He would only say that the miners would approach the question in dispute in a liberal way, and be trusted the operators would do the same. "It is not expected the convention will do much of anything to-day," said Mr. Mitchell, "further than to receive credentials. The real convention business will not be taken up at any event before Tuesday."

Dr. Charles P. Nell of Washington, D. C., who was appointed commissioner to make the final scale computations, arrived yesterday. It is understood he is here at the request of Commissioner of Labor Wright and Judge Gray, to use his good offices in bringing about an early and peaceable adjustment of the conciliation difficulty. Before the convention adjourns it will appoint representatives of the operators in New York and Philadelphia.

The Tie-Up Complete.

New York, June 15.—The members of the Building Trades Employers' Association announced yesterday that not only would the present lockout continue, but that other work would be stopped, thus completely tying up all building work in the city, unless the labor unions should consent to adopt the plan of arbitration, to prevent future strikes, which has been proposed by the employers.

The new condition of affairs came as a thunderbolt to the majority of the big delegates, who had expected that about 50,000 of the 120,000 men who had been out of employment since May 4, would be able to resume work this morning.

Strike Situation Unchanged.

Vancouver, B. C., June 15.—The Labor Commission has concluded its sittings, and will meet in Victoria and draw up their report, which will be forwarded to Ottawa by the end of the month.

FIRE HORROR AT GLASGOW.

Explosion Among Whiskey Kills Seven and Injures Many.

Glasgow, June 15.—A great fire broke out in the distillery here Saturday. A million gallons of whiskey was destroyed. The burning of the whiskey is due to the flour mills adjoining the distillery and there is a terrific explosion, in which seven persons were killed.

Delay in Educational Scheme.

Guelph, June 15.—Lieut.-Col. D. McCrae says that, on account of Prof. Robertson's serious illness, it had been decided not to go on with the Consolidated School, which was to have been built this summer in connection with the Macdonald Institute. Prof. Robertson has been very seriously ill, and no one is allowed to see him; he has been ordered to Europe for a rest.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson Sails.

New York, June 15.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk Railway, sailed for England on Saturday. In a report he said the project of the Grand Trunk Pacific was practically assured of success. Under the charter there will be built a line 2,800 miles long, extending from Quebec to Port Simpson, on the Pacific Ocean, with several branches.

Fails to Cross Ocean.

Gloucester, Mass., June 15.—Lidsay Eisenbaum, who left Boston last week in a small open dory to cross the Atlantic, has returned and given up the trip. He went 1000 miles to the eastward, but he became so still with the conviction that he was afraid he could not navigate the boat.

Fatal Accident.

Toronto, June 15.—Hev. Dr. Carven was reported last night to be out of danger, although he is still very ill, and will be confined to his bed for some time.

RAINS FLOOD MINES.

Three in the St. Etienne District Flooded and Work Suspended.

St. Etienne, France, June 15.—Violent rainstorms have flooded many mines in the region, necessitating a suspension of work. Wash-outs have also interrupted railway traffic. The Rivers Loire, Ondes and Glen are in flood, while the Loire is 16 feet above its usual level at Balbigny. The damage caused by inundations is already estimated at millions of francs.

Trench Yards Still Flooded.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—The river has fallen of a foot during the last 24 hours. It is expected that early this week the embargo caused by the high water will be lifted from the stock yards, where business has been entirely suspended for the last few days.

Bo'ster Killed in Hint.

St. Louis, June 15.—Word was received in East St. Louis that a mob was cutting the levee at Winstanley Park in Madison Co., to the north, and a riot followed, which resulted in a company of militia being sent to the scene of the spot. More than 100 shots were fired, and after quiet had been restored it was found that Clifford Stanley, a member of the Naval Reserves, had been killed.

COAL IN NEW ONTARIO.

First-Class Quality of Bituminous Fuel in Michipicoten District.

Toronto, June 15.—Coal mining in New Ontario is almost an assured fact. For some time rumors of the discovery of coal in Michipicoten district have been current around Trunk Pacific was practically assured of success. Under the charter there will be built a line 2,800 miles long, extending from Quebec to Port Simpson, on the Pacific Ocean, with several branches.

As to the quality of the coal, Mr. Grundy said there is no doubt. He suggested by coal experts, and there was some difference of opinion. One was of the opinion that it equal to the English cannel coal. Another claimed that it was a bituminous coal, while another said it looked and burned like a mixture of anthracite and bituminous. "I have burned plenty of it," said Mr. Grundy, "and have got a good fire. So ash is as fine as a wood ash."

The application is in, and there are only two of us in the property, J. A. Osborne and myself."

A TOTAL WRECK.

Allan Line Steamer Norwegian, Which Went Ashore at Straits Has Proved a Total Loss.

St. John's, N. F., June 15.—The Allan Line steamer Norwegian, Capt. White, from Montreal for Liverpool, with a general cargo and cattle, went ashore at Cape Bay Saturday morning. It is likely that she will be a total wreck. Her crew threw her cargo and cattle overboard.

Toronto Men Lose $28,000.

Toronto, June 15.—Firms here directly interested in the wreck are: Wm. Levack, 100 head of cattle; Lundy & Halligan, 130 head, and T. Halligan, 50 head. The cattle are worth about $100 a head and are insured for that amount. The vessel is one of the oldest on the Allan Line and of 5,320 tons burden. She passed Quebec June 10 at 7.30 p. m.

Cargo May Be Saved.

Quebec, June 15.—News was received here yesterday that the Allan Liner Norwegian, aground bound, had gone ashore on Saturday morning off Cape Ray. The steamer has on board a cargo of live stock, is about forty feet, and it is hoped here she will be floated. Over 200 head of cattle have been got ashore, and it is expected the entire cargo will be saved.

THE KISHENEFF MASSACRE.

Representations to President Roosevelt Refused to Consider Force.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The massacre of Jews at Kishenef and the representations to be made to President Roosevelt by the United States Secretary of State May, in connection therewith, occupied a greater portion of the time of the annual meeting here yesterday of the Executive Board of the Independent Order of B'Nai B'Rith. The statements to be made to the President and Mr. May were reduced to concrete form under the heads of propositions, but the members of the committee declined to reveal their character to the presentation. The committee will meet Mr. May this morning, when they will be escorted to the White House, where the conference will follow their conference with the President.

REIGN OF TERROR EXISTS.

Bulgarian Refugees Report Fearful Outrages by Marauders.

Sofia, June 15.—Fully 1,500 Bulgarian refugees arrived at the Dragas District Saturday from Pirogu, Kilik, Kovatchas and neighboring villages. They report that a reign of terror exists in the Vilayet of Adrianople. Turkish regulars and Bashi-Bazouks are said to be pillaging the whole country. The police are searching for arms, and are arresting and maltreating the residents of the countryside. The panic-stricken people are fleeing in a body, men, women and children, taking with them their carts, cattle and all their movables. The refugees say the populations of whole villages further from the frontier are following their wake.

SEARS A BIGAMIST.

Married to Wife No. 2 in Toronto, Two Months Ago.

Rochester, N.Y., June 15.—George B. Sears, a manufacturing jeweler for the Rochester Bridge Company, was arrested here yesterday on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Dorothy, charging him with non-support. The fact developed yesterday, however, that Sears was married two months ago to Georgie Hicks, at Toronto.

When officers went to the home of wife No. 2 yesterday to arrest Sears he met them at the door with a revolver. The officers were lured to the front door for two hours, until Sears gave himself up. He was then released on bail.

Killed by His Friend.

Little Current, June 15.—On June 15.—A sad shooting accident occurred at Silver Water last week. George Stuart and Edward Thornton went out to see a bear trap which had been set by Thornton's father; they over the trap examining it when a bear suddenly sprang at Stuart, who was just behind him, received the full charge through the head, killing him instantly. The two young men were great friends.

One Body Found.

Port Colborne, June 15.—The fishermen fishing off Sugar Loaf Point, one mile west of here, yesterday morning, found one of the bodies of the young men who were drowned off the yacht Emma, which foundered outside of the breakwater on the night of May 24. Mr. Smith of Lockport has been notified and he will arrive this morning to identify the body.

Destructive Typhoon.

Saigon, French Cochin China, June 15.—A typhoon of extraordinary violence swept over Hanoi, Namdinh and Thaibinh Saturday, causing much damage. Many natives perished and several Europeans were injured. Three trains were overturned between Hanoi and Namdinh. The telegraph lines and railroads are interrupted.

C.P.R. Reaches Out.

Tacoma, Wash., June 15.—The Canadian Pacific Railroad has absorbed the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, with headquarters at Vancouver, and has placed on the fourteen steamers plying between Victoria, Skagway and other points.

WILL ELECT PETER KING

Servian Senators and Deputies Have So Already Resolved.

Vienna States That Prince Peter Will Find a Hard Task Before Him If He Is Elected King—Servians Say He Is Also That All Officers Concerned in the Murder of Late King and Queen Leave Belgrade Immediately on Election.

Belgrade, June 16.— At a conference of Senators and deputies held here last night it was unanimously resolved that the constitution vested by the National Assembly, 188, should be put in force, and that Prince Peter should unanimously elected King at to-day's joint meeting of the Skupetchina and Senate. After the election a deputation of the assembly will be sent to wait upon Prince Peter and communicate to him the decision of the assembly.

Will He Accept?

London, June 15.—The Geneva correspondent of the Daily Mail says he has that Prince Peter Karageorgevitch in an interview declared emphatically that His nation ought to avenge the crime of the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga, via. "A King," he said, "who could receive a crown from the hands of assassins would be their accomplice."

Asked if he would punish the assassins, he replied: "I will punish murderers."

That's the question. "But when you are King?" Prince Peter gave answer: "That may never be."

Vienna Not Pleased.

Vienna, June 15.—It is believed here that Prince Peter Karageorgevitch will find himself confronted with a hard task if elected King of Servia. In the first place he is nearly 60 years old, and has spent his life abroad, and therefore has little knowledge of the Servian people; further he will have no party behind him. The Radicals are decidedly supported any Servian monarch, and when the excitement has cooled down it is not unlikely that they will prove restless. It is pointed out among those here who have lived in Prince Peter's favor there is not a single prominent Russophile name. Russia's silence causes a certain amount of uneasiness here.

Prince Peter's Ultimatum.

There is a rumor here late last night that Prince Peter insists that all the officers concerned in the murders must leave Belgrade before he enters the city, and that the leader of the Servian Radicals, M. Radovitch, has gone to Vienna to negotiate with him concerning the conditions that the latter places on his acceptance of the Servian throne.

WHAT AUTOPSY REVEALED.

The Late King Alexander Had an Abscess and Brain—His Estate.

Belgrade, June 15.—The report of the autopsy upon King Alexander's body says, according to advices to the International Correspondence, that the King's brain was abnormal, the membrane thickened and partially developed, as in a certain type of idiots. The backbone was also out of straight and showed a knotty formation in three places.

The commission appointed to make an inventory of the late King's estate reports that it found only 30,000 francs in the King's private treasury. A Servian paper published the story that when King Alexander married Draga he gave her 2,000,000 francs; this sum, it is now discovered, had been taken from the national war fund.

The provisional Government has received reports from all parts of the country stating that order prevails.

The Powers Satisfied.

Congratulatory addresses have been received by the Ministry from a large number of country districts, approving in the warmest terms thanks for its patriotic action at such a critical moment, and hoping that it will carry matters to a successful ending. The Foreign Ministry has also received satisfactory despatches from London, Paris, Berlin and Rome, all saying that the Governments there have not the slightest intention of interfering in Servian internal affairs, and expressing the hope that peace and order in the political situation will soon be restored. An official statement of Russia's position has not yet been received, but, according to assurances from reliable sources that country has no desire to intervene, and will not object to the election of Prince Karageorgevitch.

ASSASSINS JUSTIFY MURDERS.

The Powers Will Exact the Punishment of the Regicides.

London, June 15.—A special despatch from Belgrade says the draft of a bill, with marginal notes, writ-

There is more nourishment in one package of

Malta-Vita

The Perfect Food,

than in many pounds of prime Beef.

It makes the most delicious dish for any meal of the day.

Served hot or cold, with cream, milk or fruit.

No Work—No Heat; Just Cream—Then Eat.

ten by the late King Alexander, and has been found in the palace. It provides for the proclamation of Queen Draga's brother as heir to the throne. On the despatch adds, is held by the conspirators to be complete justification for their actions.

A special despatch from Rome says a semi-official note, published there, declares that whoever is made King of Servia, the powers will insist on punishment of the murderers of King Alexander and Queen Draga, as will United States, and declares that high administratives and military positions in any country should be occupied by assassins.

King's Last Words.

Semlin, June 15.—The report of the King's last words were: "Vitzar Mititch, why have you done this to me?"

King Alexander believed Mavitzara was the head of the conspiracy against him.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Presbyterians Against Making Queen's University Undenominational—The Church's Solicitors.

Vancouver, B. C., June 15.—The General Assembly met this morning. Saturday decided not to sanction the bill now before Parliament to remove denominational restrictions from Queen's University. The committee to which the matter was referred reported adversely to the proposed change and recommended that a movement be inaugurated to secure endowment for the undenominational portion of the University. The committee recommended that the consideration of Rev. John Carmichael's motion, to consolidate various colleges into an eastern and western university and divinity school, be deferred. The report of the committee was adopted by almost unanimous vote.

The assembly took up the question of reopening the case of Dr. Bilkie of Lindsay. The Presbytery had been practically relieved last year owing to irreconcilable obstacles in the membership of the case. The matter was finally referred to a living Committee for consideration.

The report of the Committee on Statistics was presented in the afternoon. It showed that 118,687 families and 24,611 single persons belonged to the church, an increase of 1,573 families and 2,685 single individuals over 1902. The number of communicants is 223,031, an increase of 3,482. The total giving, amounting to $1,057,819 had been paid by congregations less $19,000 arrears. The income for all purposes was $2,098,230, an increase of $21,196. The number of ministers has increased from 1,198 to 1,218, and foreign missionaries from 37 to 40. Five hundred and thirty students were enrolled in 1902-03 and 69 graduated.

The Pope Not Ill.

Rome, June 15.—The rumor that the Pope was dead seems not to reach the 7sr of Leo himself, and waked him out of his usual tranquility. He exclaimed with much vigor of heart:

"I am well. I begin to be old, they are determined to shorten my days. I am not the oldest of Popes. There is even centenarian Pope."

Fire in Parliament Buildings.

Ottawa, June 15.—An incipient blaze was discovered yesterday in the basement of the Parliamentary building, under the rooms occupied by the Inland Revenue Department. It was necessary to batter in the door to reach the fire, which was extinguished without serious damage. The blaze was started by a defective electrical appliance.

Killed by a Train.

Montreal, June 15.—A shocking death came to Mrs. P. W. Hall of 69 Osborne street, Saturday evening, when her life was crushed out by a C.P.R. western express at Lachine. Husband and three men-in-law were unable to assume the terrible taking off.

During the past year, and will come to Korea in person to visit further studies of Buddhist and Christian institutions. His family name is Otani, and he succeeded to the headship of the Honganji sect after his father died. He is now 29 years of age, and he will own any rule over thousands of temples in the country.

The capitals of an ocean steamer is about the height of the proximity of Isaberg by the men in the engine-room. When a ship enters water considerably deeper than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster. As soon as she emerges from the vicinity of icebergs for many miles the reverse happens and then the power of the engines is greatly accelerated without any increase in the head. Power tobacco may be expected. Of course, the captain of the vessel should indicator or footpace.

Peterboro papers complain that their money are being taken out of the river. Down this way it is the girls who are in demand.

"There has been a great change in the treatment of a witness during the last few years. It is go now and cross-examine, good policy to brow-beat or bulldoze.

Now, isn't that plain, just after Mr. Johnston's treatment of Gamey was the wonder had scandal of all Ontario? Well, those Grits surely do take the cake for the brass.

The neighbors of an estimable family which resides on well never mind what street—in this city, are smiling the smile that won't come off these days. The other morning one of the family, which consists of very estimable maiden ladies, arose and shortly afterwards heard a noise at the front door. She went to see what was the matter. The outside door is of lattice-work, and there is quite a space between it and the other door. When the inside door was opened it was seen that the open space contained a bag, from which suspicious sounds came, something like "Hiss" made by a baby in need of refreshment. "Did you ever," said the finder of the bag, "some heartless monster has deserted its offspring! Oh! the wickedness of the human heart! Sister, come here quick!" Sister did, and was hardly carried the bag inside, untied it, and drew forth—six kittens. And now a lot of people are laughing at what they call a joke.)

The Snakes' Paradise.

The Borongo Islands lie about halfway between Calcutta and Rangoon, on the smaller of the two islands, Borongoo. That is their paradise. Once they hold high carnival. Every three years among them, and know of these things. From the giant python down to the deadly karait they are all there, and the ophidian. Even the salt water snakes that are all poisonous they, too, are there. Two Europeans and a couple of natives constituted all there was considerable natural history on the island when the party first acquired more. One can't live among snakes without studying them, and I studied upon it.

Much evening I killed an hour or so of the monotony by walking up and down the path in front of the bungalow. What I did not walk on my companion. His method of introducing himself to my native was generally abrupt. He would lie in wait, and, as I came along, spring out upon me, alight full against one of my legs. At other times he would be on the back in the path and claw at my feet as I passed. One evening, just after turning into the path from the bungalow, I felt something soft and yielding against my leg. Thinking it was Tiger, I gave the man a gentle push. As I shifted the something I saw a twisting gleam of white, not at all like the soft paw of Billy's fur. Of course I knew what that meant. Jumping back I stopped my walking-stick down on the twisting thing, and yelled for a light. The servants came running from the bungalow with a lantern, and I saw that I had laid out a most villainous cobra. One touch from the stick had fangs on my cotton-based instep, and within an hour I would have been dead.

One of our party had occasion to visit a Mr. Savage, a half-caste landowner on the other side of the island. He went in a boat, and while he and his men were bringing up his traps went up to the bungalow. He was sitting in a big chair on the veranda, talking to Savage, when he felt something fall from the leaf rest on to his shoulder. Instantly he started to his feet, and what had fallen, when the other man called out: "Don't!" asks don't move—keep perfectly still!" Dunlop knew what that meant. Stealthily the old man took a Burmese dah (sword) from the wall, and, catlike, crept toward the white man with the thing on his shoulder. Within striking distance he paused, and raised the dah high in the air to cut the thing in two with one swift downward stroke. Then his nerve, rattled and tugged at for many years until it was weak, failed him, and the sword clattered from his numbed fingers to the floor. "My God! I can't do it," he wailed in a broken voice, and reeled back against the wall, while the thing on his shoulder moved at the sahib and his burden.

Dunlop neither moved nor spoke; his only safety lay in keeping perfectly still—motionless. It might be minutes, or a thousand years; they seemed to him to wait till the boatmen came. What would happen then he could not say. He could feel the clinging, pulling thing on his right shoulder. There was an undulating pressure that told him the head of the snake was swaying back and forth just above his neck. Then the song of the Madrassi boatmen as they came swinging along with the luggage broke upon his ear. Those high-pitched voices, carrying the coarse refrain to the time of the measured trot, were angel voices. What would the muddle-brained coolies do, he wondered. If Emir Ally, his trusted servant, saw the thing, it might be well; he had nerve and judgment even close to that of a sahib. Emir Ally was in the lead. When he came to the steps Savage looked out an expression that called his attention to the tableau. Instantly the loose sight about his loins, he slipped along the veranda like a shadow, grasped the fallen dah, and, poising his black thin body for swift, strong stroke, brought the sword down with the air of a striking cat that laid a full-grown cobra in two at his feet almost at the feet of the man who had waited.—W. Stories of the Bar.

An able Southern lawyer, still living, has a good story about his examination by Reverdy Johnson, one of the greatest lawyers of the last century, says the Philadelphia "Times." When the examination began Mr. Johnson, apparently, he did not allow his facetiousness to influence the case. He asked him one or two questions as many as the alcohol or the multiplication table, and then very severely demanded:

"Young man, can you mix a good brandy Julep?"

"I think I can, sir," was the reply.

"There," pointing to the sideboard, "are the ingredients. Now, let me see what you can do."

The candidate approached and used his finest touch and sense of selection in compounding the tonic. Then, topping it off artistically with a fresh mint, he presented it to his examiner. Mr. Johnson gave the julep his keenest and palatest, and finally, when the bottom of the generous glass had been reached, he looked at the young man quizzingly and announced that he had passed.

Another story is told of a Judicial district in Florida where, before the era of railroads and owing to the numerous creeks and rivers, there had to be frequent fording of streams in order to make good headway between the country towns. The candidate presented himself before the judge, who, after looking at the young man a few moments and taking in his measure, asked:

"Can you ride?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you own a horse?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can he swim?"

"Yes, sir."

Whereupon the judge bowed gravely and remarked:

"I am very glad, sir, to welcome you to the practice of law in my district."

Angry Wife—What do you mean by coming home at this time of night? Husband—Every other place was shut, my dear.

Baker—Old Baldy is getting ready for the fly season.

Baker—Having his head tattooed with a design of a spider's web."

History Falsified on the Stage.

REFERRING to Irving's revival of Charles I., the dramatic critic of "The Times" says:

"The play itself is, of course, full of misconceptions in construction, of violence done to history, of turgid rhetoric. Enlivened, it must be added, by some of the lines with a savor of the Elizabethan mastery, but, on the whole, far from the standard we fix Henry Irving's personality it will hold a place in the repertory of the stage so long as we have intelligent playgoers among us. It is, I think a pity that we do not possess an historical drama based upon the certainties of investigation, and not upon the fallacies of dogma of documents so much more elucidative, for example, than the plausible stuff which mark such plays as Charles I. With the modern 'wide, fair and a little warmer, Tuesday moderate variable winds, fair.'

SUFFER THE LITTLE ONES.

A MESSAGE TO EVERY HEART THAT BEATS TRUCY ON EARTH.

BLOSSOMS OF HUMAN JOY.

Duties of Parents and Teachers Lovingly Pointed Out in Eloquent Words by the Rev. Dr. Talmage—Children Are Blessings.

Selected and Specially Arranged for Publication in The Daily Intelligencer, Belleville, Ont., from Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon Preached in the Tabernacle, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Chicago, June 15.—In this sermon to-day Dr. Talmage, appropriate to the City, there is a message to the poor, and ills of every boy and girl in the land. His text was taken from St. Matthew xix. 14, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me."

The second Sabbath of June is here. This is Children's day. This is the morning after the Sunday previous in America, headed by their superintendents and teachers, have made a grand charge and captured the public heart and pocket from the Sea to the Protestant churches for their own sacred service. This is the day when the Church's gardens bring forth the most part fragrant with top kinds of flowers. Where are they, flowers? Why, they are here, these human flowers, in clusters of many classes. Why, my brethren, there are many beautiful flowers abloom all in God's garden! We know not which to admire most—the lily, the rose, the hollyhock, the red roses in the lips, the colored daughters among the dark-eyed Ethiopians or the roguish glances of these little ones from the Emerald Isle. We should ask me what I considered the most important day in the church year, which institution I should not answer, Children's day. This is the Sabbath morning when parents not only bring their children to the tabernacle where Christ is worshiped, but when their own thoughts, I believe, are immediately drawn toward the Saviour's teachings. If a father does not feel his affections stirred with tenderness when his little boy or girl is singing her Saviour's praise in the Sabbath school, his heart must be as dead as a stone.

The Sabbath of the day I would talk to the children for a little while about one of the sweetest scenes in all the Bible. I mean the scene of crowd jostling and pushing about Christ's chair. It was the time of the Saviour's earthly popularity. Among others there were in that crowd surrounding Christ a great lumber of fathers and mothers who had children by the hand, and wanted them to bless them, so that their boys and girls might grow up to be good as Christ was good.

But in the crowd surrounding Christ there were also a lot of unbaptized children. They were children belonged to that great class of people who think that children are a born nuisance and that they should not be seen and never heard in public places. They think, if they go to visit a married friend, that friend should put the children out in the kitchen while they are there, or else have the children wait until the older folks are through with the tea and go to a second table. Now, I do not believe that is the right way to bring up boys and girls. If my friends who visit my house are not willing to sit at the same table with my babies they need not come and visit me at all. I am just as much afraid of a man who is good enough for children as I am afraid of a man who is not good enough for children.

There were some men that day, too, who followed Jesus wherever he went and were very docile disciples. They knew how precious every word he uttered was and how many sick and afflicted people he had cured of woes, and they did not want his time taken up with children. So they said to the disciples told the fathers and mothers not to come and vex Christ at all. I am just as much afraid of a man who is afraid of children as I am afraid of a bear. Behold, children are a heritage of the Lord!

The second Sabbath of June is here. This is Children's day. This is the morning after the Sunday previous in America, headed by their superintendents and teachers, have made a grand charge and captured the public heart and pocket from the Sea to the Protestant churches for their own sacred service. This is the day when the Church's gardens bring forth the most part fragrant with top kinds of flowers. Where are they, flowers? Why, they are here, these human flowers, in clusters of many classes. Why, my brethren, there are many beautiful flowers abloom all in God's garden! We know not which to admire most—the lily, the rose, the hollyhock, the red roses in the lips, the colored daughters among the dark-eyed Ethiopians or the roguish glances of these little ones from the Emerald Isle. We should ask me what I considered the most important day in the church year, which institution I should not answer, Children's day. This is the Sabbath morning when parents not only bring their children to the tabernacle where Christ is worshiped, but when their own thoughts, I believe, are immediately drawn toward the Saviour's teachings. If a father does not feel his affections stirred with tenderness when his little boy or girl is singing her Saviour's praise in the Sabbath school, his heart must be as dead as a stone.

The Sabbath of the day I would talk to the children for a little while about one of the sweetest scenes in all the Bible. I mean the scene of crowd jostling and pushing about Christ's chair. It was the time of the Saviour's earthly popularity. Among others there were in that crowd surrounding Christ a great lumber of fathers and mothers who had children by the hand, and wanted Christ to bless them, so that their boys and girls might grow up to be good as Christ was good.

But in the crowd surrounding Christ there were also a lot of unbaptized children. They were children belonged to that great class of people who think that children are a born nuisance and that they should not be seen and never heard in public places. They think, if they go to visit a married friend, that friend should put the children out in the kitchen while they are there, or else have the children wait until the older folks are through with the tea and go to a second table. Now, I do not believe that is the right way to bring up boys and girls. If my friends who visit my house are not willing to sit at the same table with my babies they need not come and visit me at all. I am just as much afraid of a man who is afraid of children as I am afraid of a bear. Behold, children are a heritage of the Lord

Don't Get Caught

Keep your eyes open when buying your new spring suit. When you want to buy an article, don't be governed too much by the price—look to the value, the worth, the texture, trimmings and make of the goods themselves. A comparison thus made will show conclusively that prices we quote are lower than goods of equal worth or quality can be bought for at any other store in Belleville.

PLAIN TRUTH

We believe in the SUBLIMITY OF PLAIN TRUTH. We are not in business for purely philanthropic motives, but for the purpose of keeping our capital active, our mind and body employed and making a few dollars for the benefit of ourselves, but we exercise a just consideration of our customers.

TIMELY TOPICS.

And the Lord's Day Alliance will hasten to point out that if that man who was hurt on the railway bridge yesterday had not been working on Sunday he would not now be in the Hospital with broken bones.

* * *

The License Inspector should at once take steps to have the water in the city fountain analyzed. It is said that several people on Front St. yesterday gave evidence of having indulged in something that caused their legs to wobble, and, as the fountain was, of course, the only public drinking place doing business, why, the inference is clear.

* * *

Belleville is to lose two of its much-respected city pilots in the near future, Messrs. Locke and Bates, having resigned and tis form, implement recorded and The Intelligencer heartily joins in the universal wish that, wherever they go, their lines may fall in pleasant places.

The City Council will to-night wrestle with the momentous question, "To bathe or not to bathe?" Very few people in the city will grudge the $250 invested in a public bath will be money well spent.

* * *

The County's assessment is only 3 7-10 mills, which speaks well for the economy of the gentlemen who compose the Council. We can't help thinking, though, that they might have put on another 10th of a mill and given a little more to the Hospital. However, it is quite likely they know their own business best.

* * *

Will the City Council interest itself in the case of dib boy, William Monahan, to-night? If, as alleged, the city will have to pay for his maintenance while in the House of Industry, it might be well to try and have his address changed to the Reformatory, where he would get his board and clothes free. The City Fathers might well look into this.

Down Brockville way they had ten inches of rain in 6 hours. That ought to cut the bush fires and give the lawn mower slaves something to do.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that if the late ruler of Servia wore as many different kinds of whisker as are attributed to him by the Canadian papers he deserved his fate.

Stone in the Bladder or Gravel.

SERIOUS URINARY TROUBLES IN-CURRED PAIN THAT CAN SCARCELY BE DESCRIBED AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

If you could only read a few of the letters of commendation which are received each day from those who have cause to wonder why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have become so popular and attained such an enormous sale. The following is but a fair sample, and is guaranteed to be sure that it came from a responsible person we wrote to the postmaster at once, which is also quoted.

Mr. Daniel Brown, English River, Ont., writes: "For years I was a great sufferer from urinary troubles, partaking of the nature of stone in the bladder or gravel, and the pain which I endured can scarcely be described. I was unable to do any work, and frequently discharged blood. I spent hundreds of dollars in doctors bills I received no relief, and at last decided that I would never be able to work again.

"While in this condition I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and, though I had no faith in them or in anything else, I decided to give them a fair trial. I would only use box I felt a decided change for the better, and after taking five boxes I feel like a new man. I am entirely out of pain, and have no more discharge of blood. I can honestly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to any fellow-sufferer, and will cheerfully verify this statement to anyone writing me."

Mr. Brown, postmaster and station agent at English River, Ont., writes: "I have interviewed Mr. Daniel Brown of this place in regard to his long illness and cure, and is hereby certify that the testimonial as given by him is correct."

There is probably no ailment more dreadfully painful than stone in the kidneys or bladder, and thousands of persons have been cured of this terrible disease, just as Mr. Brown has been by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Heraldry of the Indians.

PEOPLES in general have been content to look upon the Indian's adornment of his head with eagle feathers and his face with paint as marks of personal decoration inspired by vanity and a savage taste, different enough in degree from what is sometimes witnessed among highly-civilized peoples. But the fact is that, in preference to the latter custom, for instance, every paint mark on an Indian's face has a sort of heraldic meaning; implying not only the honors won by the brave in person, but representing also the clan of which he is chief and his distinction. In other words, what is shown among more cultured communities by the wearing of orders and decorations is depicted by the Indian on his face by means of pigments.

Scientists are now engaged, among other novel investigations concerning the North American Indian, in compiling a record of the armorial, or rather facial, bearings of certain celebrated chiefs, and it is said to be a fascinating work. One renowned warrior, for instance, will have his pigments a coat-of-arms, while his brother will have a totem, implying that he is descended from the moon, in the sense that the goddess of night is one of his ancestors.

The fact that the Indian has no conception of perspective seriously handicaps the success of his efforts at pictorial art. Thus, when he wishes merely alone to show the most characteristic portion of the object he depicts, it is not attempted to design the whole form of an animal, but only the distinctive and typical parts, as for instance, its peculiar tail, which is painted in criss-cross lines, extending from the chin to the nose, as though standing upright. The Indian's best service as the beaver's body.

The arbitrary symbols of the Indian artist render it difficult, if not impossible, for any but an expert to interpret the meanings of the pictorial representations. Thus an animal's ears are invariably depicted above the eyes on the human subject, the ears of the beaver being just above the eyebrows. On the cheeks are painted the paws in the position as though they were raised to the mouth in the manner conventional in Indian carvings.

The dogfish painted in red on the face designates the members of an entire tribe. On the forehead of the members of this tribe is painted the long, thin snout; the gills are represented by two curved lines below the eyes, while the tail is shown as cut in two and hanging from each nostril. Only one or two parts of an animal painted on an Indian's face indicates that he is of inferior position; the entire symbol, no matter in what form presented, is significant of lofty station and high honor.

The facial heraldry of the Indian may be said to be unique, not alone in the method of representation employed, but in the subjects chosen. The latter include fish, flesh and fowl of all descriptions—dog salmon, deviled starfish, woodpeckers, ravens, eagles, bears, wolves, frogs, are comprised in the armorial gallery.

Every object represented has its own particular significance, and one of the most peculiar phases of face painting relates to the wearing of the forms other than animal—tools, implements of the chase or war, denoting the occupation of the individual or tribe.—Washington "Times."

A Lawyer's Wit.

The New York "Commercial Advertiser" says that not long before his death, Henry W. Paine, one of the most brilliant American lawyers of his generation, became interested, as a matter of charity, in a case in which a lad of some fifteen years was charged with arson. Paine defended the boy, and offered conclusive evidence that the prisoner was, in all practical purposes, an idiot and totally irresponsible. Nevertheless, the jury, after listening to the charge from the court, which was virtually an order for acquittal, brought in a verdict of guilty.

The presiding judge then addressed Paine.

"You will move for a new trial, I presume, Mr. Paine?"

Paine rose with an air that was fruitful in his experience.

"I thank your honor, for your suggestion," he said, "but I am oppressed with the greatest doubts as to whether I have the right to move for a new trial in this case. Your honor will have already asked for and have received for my client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers."

The judge then ordered the verdict to be set aside.

An Unfortunate Inquiry.

A New York man, who has written a book, was telling about it the other day to a friend who had once done him a favor, and who, to show his thanks, asked whether he would be delighted to give you a copy of my work if you care for it." "I should be more than delighted, sir," replied the friend, "but I shall have to wait until I can get it." In the bookstore the author, pushing his chest out very far, asked for the novel that he had written. "Yes, sir," the clerk said. "We have it around here somewhere, I believe, but you are the first one who has ever asked for a copy, and it may take me some time to find it. Wouldn't something else do just as well? We have a great many better books at the same price."

Not an Everyday Affair.

Hamilton, June 15.—The Hamilton Cataract Power, Light and Traction Company have given a chattel mortgage for the immense sum of $5,000,000 to the National Trust Company. This action was decided upon at the company's meeting last February, and the document was given to secure the bondholders.

SHE THROWS PHYSICIANS AWAY.

Mrs. Jane Simpson, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "It fails of interest in regard to the above complaint, to say that I have been cured of Kidney Trouble by Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first and the greatest improvement that followed the use of these pills was the healthy way they acted, and then the pain in the back left me. Following this, profuse perspiration, which always left me weak, ceased, and I felt well. Try them and see if you will be benefited. I am sure you will be. In this way we get cured in the right way."

HAY FEVER AND LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Hickes, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and left me with a cough that ran all the spring of my back and hip that made me feel miserable. I was also troubled with a fever. This lasted for about five months. I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills and found it took hold of the disease in my system almost immediately. In a few days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

Lent has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Tasty gentle action and good effect make Dr. Hamilton's Pills the favorite little pill. They clear the system, cure Constipation, Biliousness, Piles. Only 25 cents. Carter's Little Liver Pills will be turned over to you for 25 cents. It takes money to make the world go round.

FAT DEATHS DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser ordered me to take Cascarets, not possibly live where Cascarets cannot be had. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My wife was one of the first to use it. She found it not only soothed and relieved her, but in a few weeks entirely cured her. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Ten months previous to taking the Cascarets I was completely run down in health. I was now entirely cured, and have since had perfect well-being. Not a day of anything with a head which could feel like a new one. I have found Dr. Hamilton's Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, and I am well-known and respected by many friends. I have been 1 year, and thought I could not do better. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Try them. It can do no harm. It certainly will help you. I am pleased to recover when first I commenced using it. I am now entirely well, feeling myself, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial, and trust that the use of some of our remedies of its merit as a cure may be brought to the notice of others. Signed, JEAN VALCOURT, Notre Dame de Lourdes, Manitoba.

A long portage makes a busy canoe.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and diarrhoea which are completely curable. Had they been accompanied at proper remedies had been used. Among the best is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Keeping a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial in the house will be found safe to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

The wildest taste can close to its pure.

For the pale, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Extminator is pathing to equal it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The average watch represents but little of human labor.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry (Non-Secret) It has no equal for removing those troublesome complaints from which many have suffered who have tried in vain.

Coral is a talisman against the teether and will be found a friend indeed in DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY. It has no equal for removing those troublesome complaints from which many have suffered who have tried in vain.

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

Anecdotal.

According to "Harper's Magazine," a certain teacher of English in a school of high rank in her native State, Mississippi, who in spite of her vivacity in conversation, is perhaps, of anything, too fastidious in her choice of words, was spending the summer at the New York Chautauqua. Her force of spirits made her the delight of the dining-table at which she was first seated, but at the end of a fortnight she was moved by her landlady to another place. A lady from Boston who had been sitting opposite the Southerner expressed her regret at the change. "I am so sorry you are going to leave us," she said, with warmth; "we have all enjoyed your dialect so much."

Mr. Baring Gould tells a story about the Vicar of Helland, Cornwall, and his neighbor, the Vicar of Blisland. The former was going to London, and hoped that the Archdeacon of Cornwall could be induced to take his service on the Sunday following so that he might stay away a few extra days. He left it to his neighbor at Blisland to negotiate the little arrangement, and asked to be informed how things went by telegram. All went well, and the Vicar of Blisland gave in a telegram at the nearest office: "The Archdeacon of Cornwall is going to Holland. You need not return." But when delivered in London the words were thus divided: "The Archdeacon of Cornwall is going to Hell; and you need not return."

A story of a "joke" played in Vienna on Mascagni, the composer, who is soon to visit the United States, is going the round of the newspapers in Italy, where it has created an extraordinary bad impression. The distinguished Italian was the guest of honor at a soiree given by the theatrical artists of the Austrian capital, and expressed regret that he was unable to either to speak or understand German, whereupon an actor of eccentric tendencies, who is a musical freak." At this point Mascagni also rose, and warmly shook the orator's hand. "You have no other talent than that of self-advertisement." Another effusion on the part of the composer. "In a word, you are merely a genial sausage." Prolonged applause, at which Mascagni could scarcely master his emotion.

Adelina Patti is, as all the world knows, one of the most amiable women in the world, and nothing pleases her more than to do a good turn "on the quiet," as she herself laughingly puts it. Last winter she was staying for a few days in an isolated village in the extreme end of Yorkshire. To kill the monotony of the place, the great singer went one night to a concert got up in aid of a certain village institution. Not half the performers turned up. Seeing the difficulty in which the chairman and committee were placed, Madame Patti (incognito, of course) offered to oblige them with a song or two if they cared about it. After she had rendered, in her own glorious way, three of her sweetest ballads, the chairman approached her, and, in solemn tones, thanked her: "Well, Miss, you've done uncommon well; and, although 'Arry 'Ock, the Juggler, who thinks nowt of takin' 'old of 'ot pokers and a-swallowin' necktie, couldn't turn up, yet you've pleased us very considerable, Miss!"

Colonel Colo was the present King of Italy's "governor" for very many years, when, as Prince of Naples, his charge was a delicate lad. Colonel Colo's strict regime has been very severely criticized, but that the King remembers him with respect, if not with affection, is proved by his having conferred the hereditary title of count upon him on the occasion of the birth of the Princess Yolanda. One day a request came from a well-known personage for the young prince's autograph, to be added to a collection containing that of his grandfather and his father. The prince was about to comply, when the colonel said, sharply: "Certainly not; you have had the signature of an insignificant boy who does not even know how to write properly!" For some act of disobedience a little later the prince was brought before his "governor," who exclaimed: "If I were the King I would cut off your head." "And I will cut off yours when I am king," defiantly replied the lad. His punishment is unrecorded, but, instead of cutting off his tyrant's head when that day came, he has ennobled him.

During the famous Douglas and Lincoln debates and subsequent campaigns the point was frequently brought out by the supporters of "the Little Giant" that Mr. Lincoln had served only a single term in Congress, but that Senator Douglas had enjoyed for years a national reputation. This point, says a writer in "Lippincott's," was made in a heated discussion between an ardent supporter of Douglas and a German voter who favored Lincoln. Finally the former, thinking to overwhelm his opponent, said: "Who is this Lincoln, anyhow? Nobody ever heard of him until Senator Douglas brought him into notice by holding a joint debate with him." Some one spoke up on the other hand, is a great statesman. Why, he has had his name for Presidential chair for the last ten years!" "I don't you say?" was the reply. "You say Senator Douglas have has his eye on der Presidient chair for ten years!" "Yes, that is just what I said." "Well, you shoost tell Senator Douglas if he vill keep his eye on dot chair shoost a leedle vile longer he will see old Abe Lincoln sitting down in it." This closed the debate, amid a roar of laughter from the bystanders.

His Impression.

"Do you believe that college-bred women make good wives?"

"I don't think going to college makes the slightest difference," answered Mr. Meekton. "You couldn't tell up a woman from assuming a position of superior knowledge by merely her having been to school."—Washington "Star."

The Definition.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me what is meant by "steward" Johnny—A steward is a man who doesn't mind his own business, Teacher—Where did you get that idea? Johnny—Well, I heard it in the village, pa said, pa said, "A man who attends to the affairs of others."—Cape "Register."

Richard Bryan's Very Close Call.

GOT A STUNNING BLOW ON THE HEAD, AND FELL INTO THE RAILWAY BRIDGE INTO THE RIVER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Richard Bryan, who was cut to bridge gang of the Grand Trunk Railway Company employed in rebuilding the railway bridge here which spans the river, on Saturday afternoon met with painful injuries which might easily have proved fatal. He was assisting in operating a large timber, some portion slipped and Bryan received a stunning blow upon the head, causing him to lose his balance and fall into the river below. He fell head first, a distance of about 30 feet. One of his fellow-employes immediately dove into the river to render the unfortunate man assistance as it was seen that he was senseless. Bryan was removed to the hospital as soon as possible, when his injuries were attended to. They consisted of the right arm being fractured near the elbow, a severe scalp wound and cuts about the face. He is doing as well as could be expected.

Bryan is a middle age man, his home is in Trenton. He has been at work with the gang for some time.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. ROBERT ARNOTT.

HEART DISEASE CARRIED HER OFF ON SUNDAY MORNING.

At 11 o'clock on Saturday night Mrs. Robert Arnott, who lived at the family residence, Wharf street, retired to bed, apparently in her usual health, and five hours later she was a corpse. Heart disease was the dread disease. Deceased was a lady who was well-known in the city and much respected. She was born in Ireland 61 years ago. For the past 44 years Mrs. Arnott had been a resident of this city. During that time had made many friends, who will regret to learn of her decease. She was a member of St. Thomas' Church. In addition to her husband, a family of six sons survive, namely, Richard, John, Robert, Fred and Thomas, of this city, and Albert, of Peterboro. To the bereaved family will be extended the sympathy of all friends.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

NOTES OF SERVICES IN DIFFERENT CHURCHES OF WORSHIP YESTERDAY.

St. Andrew's Church.

At the evening service a male quartette composed of Messrs. J. McMahan, G. Brown, G. Mintosh and Prof. Lambart, rendered a selection in a very acceptable manner. Rev. R. W. Mackay's text was taken from the 119th Psalm, 59th and 60th verses :

I thought on my ways and turned my feet unto my testimonies. I made haste and delayed not to keep thy commandments."

Baptist.

At this place of worship yesterday there were good congregations in attendance at the services, which were conducted by the Pastor, Rev. C. C. Elliott, who gave two excellent discourses. In the evening his text was from Isaiah, 57th chapter, 20th and 21st verses :

"But the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt.

"There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked."

Emmanuel R. M. Church.

The Rector, Rev. Mr. Clifland, yesterday preached two excellent and thought-compelling sermons, which made a deep impression on the congregation. In the morning the text was, "For every man must bear his own burden," and in the evening, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Preparations are being made for the visit of the Bishop, which occurs on the 24th inst.

John Street.

Rev. A. H. Drumm, pastor, gave two able discourses yesterday, in the evening his subject was "God's Call to Abraham." The text was from Genesis, 12th chapter and 1st verse.

St. Thomas'.

The rector, Rev. Mr. Beamish, officiated at both services yesterday, his sermon being intently listened to by large congregations. The text of the morning sermon was taken from the First Epistle General of John, 5th chapter, 7th and 8th verses :

"For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one.

"And there are three that bear witness on earth, the Spirit and the Water and the Blood, and these three agree in one."

The sermon was a scholarly dissertation on the doctrine of the Trinity. His Lordship the Bishop of the Diocese will hold confirmation at this church next Sunday evening.

Tabernacle.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. Hodgley, of Victoria College, preached, and his discourse was much appreciated. In the evening Rev. F. St. Stratton occupied the pulpit. At the latter service Miss Wiltse, of Albert College, rendered very sweetly a solo entitled "One sweetly solemn thought" and in the evening Mr. Erwin Gordon gave a solo.

Christ Church.

Rev. Prof. Howard, of Montreal, has been filling the pulpit at Christ Church temporarily, yesterday delivered two able sermons. In the morning his text was taken from the verse to "Christ purging the Temple." The text was from St. John 2nd chapter, 16th, 17th and 18th verses :

Bridge Street.

"The Country in Which There is no Sea" was the subject of Rev. Dr. Carman's discourse on Sunday, which was ably treated. A large congregation was present. The text was from Revelations, 21st chapter and 1st verse :

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea."

During the service the choir rendered two anthems, the solos being sung by Miss Grace Mabel Vermilyea and Lucy Holton.

Bethel Hall.

At Bethel Hall last night, there was an increased attendance to listen to the services conducted by the interested state of man. The brought forward a number of scriptures, showing that previous to the entrance of sin into the world, Adam and Eve had communion with God, but after the fall, they were driven out of Eden with Him. Hades, or hell, was shown from scripture to be in the heart of the earth. God's way of escape through a simple confession of sin, and faith in the Savior, was also brought out. The speaker intends the continuance of the subject for next Sunday evening.

SPEAKER'S SORE THROAT.

Public speakers and singers know how useless and sickening are coughing, sneezing, hoarseness, &c., for irritable or sore throats and states that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhozone, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use. Catarrhozone, like Catarrh, loosens relieves congestion, allays irritation, and forms a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and Catarrh it has no equal. Rev. Mr. McKay, Cederholt, says: "Catarrhozone is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from long speaking." Physicians, barristers and singers recommend Catarrhozone, druggists sell it for $1, small size 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

FRIDAY MORNING SESSION.

(Concluded.)

The application to appoint Miss Lillian McRae as official stenographer of the County, at a salary of $500 per annum, was declined.

The County Clerk stated that Miss McRae had been offered a position at a salary of $60. She was a good reporter and competent to do the work. It costs the County now about $100 per year to do the reporting for the same.

Mr. R. P. Clarke thought that the Council should not pay $250 for work which was being done for $100 which was carried.

The petition from ratepayers in Montague and Rear of Elzevir, for a grant to assist in rebuilding Grant's bridge, was taken up.

Mr. Lancaster said the bridge was a necessity, and so many of the ratepayers had been burned out by bush fires that many would have to have their taxes remitted.

Messrs. Clarke and Stanley sympathized with the northern municipalities on account of the bush fires. Many homes had been swept away and assistance should be given.

On motion the petition, with a number of others, after considerable discussion, was laid over for consideration.

Mr. T. H. Purdy, of Sidney, addressed the Council. He complained that the outlay on his house in flooding in the spring, owing to the bad fence drain.

The petition was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid :

The Committee rose and reported.

Mr. Farlane moved, seconded by Mr. Clarke, that a committee be appointed to fix the salaries of the clerks of the County Solicitor, and Treasurer, to the Finance Committee, to report to the next session.

It being the hour of noon the Warden left the chair.

"I YOUR NERVES ARE WEAK

You sleep badly, appetite variable. You eat but gain no strength. Morning tiredness makes good work if you get it. Then night comes, refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. You're worn down, your blood is thin, and watery, your nerves have grown weak, the foundation of all diseases you. You need Parmelee's Pills make blood—red, strong blood. An appetite! You'll eat everything and digest it, too. Strength! That's what Parmelee's Pills gives. Parmelee's gives hope, vigor, vim, endurance. Take Parmelee's and get strong. Sold by all druggists.

Curious Bits of News.

It is said that there is now little hope of discovering an unknown First Folio Shakespeare, as all the most likely places would have been searched. Nevertheless whenever a First Folio comes on the market it is sold at auction after search begins anew. No wonder! The copy sold in London the other day brought $4,600.

McINTOSH BROS.

He Testified in Song.

COLONEL C. C. POOLE, attorney-at-law, of Lancaster, Mo., related the following legal incident: "One of the most original lawyers ever known in my life was 'Sam' Dysart, who some twenty years ago was a resident of our county. He is some kin to Major 'Dee' Dysart, of your town. 'Sam' was a born humorist, and could have made his fortune by the lecture field. When he lived up our way he was called on one occasion to defend a lot of boys and girls charged with, disturbing a religious assembly out in the country, by 'laughing and giggling' in the way the International rules. The case was tried before Squire A. C. Bailey, a good old hardshell Baptist, since dead, to his final reward. Like all cases of the sort, it created much commotion among the people in the vicinity of the alleged outrage. T. C. Tadlock prosecuted, and he was instructed by the church people to spare no pains to convict the disturbers, who were very much frightened by being dragged into court. All the defendants were children of good families, and it was their first offence. They candidly admitted they laughed out in church, and the State insisted that by their laughing they 'were condemned.' Brother Tice Spears, a righteous man of Puritanic type, was the main prosecuting witness. He had conducted the services, and he insisted that his hearers were sadly disturbed by the unseemly behavior of the 'rioters.' After he told his story he had 'se set down.' He declared hands waiting for the defendants' attorney to begin on him, but he didn't have long to wait. The examination began this:

"'Brother Spears, you led the meeting last night?'

"'I did, sir.'

"'You prayed?'

"'I did, sir.'

"'And preached?'

"'I tried to.'

"'And sung?'

"'I sang.'

"'What did you sing?'

"'There is a Fountain Filled with Blood,'" sir.

"Here, Mr. Dysart pulled a hymn-book from his pocket and handed it to the witness, with the remark:

"'Please turn to that song, Brother Spears.'

"The witness did so.

"'That's what you sang that night?'

"'It is, sir.'

"'Well, stand up and sing it now, if you please.'

"'What!'

"'You heard what I said, Brother Spears.'

"'But I can't sing before this sort of crowd.'

"'Brother Spears,' with much apparent indignation, 'do I understand that you refuse to furnish legitimate evidence to this jury?'

"'N—no—but, you see——'

"'Your Honor,' said Mr. Dysart, 'I insist that the witness shall sing the song referred to just as he did on the night of alleged disturbance. It is a part of our evidence, and very important. The reason for it will be disclosed later on.'

"There was a long jangle between the lawyers, and the court finally ordered the witness to get up and sing.

"'And, mind you, Brother Spears,' said Dysart, seriously, 'you must sing it just as you did that night; if you change a note you will have to go back and do it all over again.'

"The witness got up and opened the book. There is a vast difference between singing to a congregation in sympathy with you and a crowd of court room habitues. Brother Spears was painfully conscious of the fact. You know how those oldtime hymns are sung in the backwoods settlements? You begin in the basement and work up to the roof, and then leap from the dizzy heights and finally finish the line in the basement. That's the way the witness sang. He had a good voice—that is, it was strong. It seemed to threaten the window lights in the court room at times. Just rolled with laughter. The jurymen bent double and shook the benches from their seats. The court bit his cob-pipe harder and looked solemn, but wasn't mad. There were only two straight faces in the crowd. One belonged to a deaf mute, and the other to 'Sam' Dysart. The singer finished at last, and looked tired. 'Sam' immediately excused him. When the time for speechmaking came 'Sam' marched to the jury: 'If you gentlemen think you could go to one of Brother Spears' meetings and behave better than you have here, why, you may be justified in convicting these boys and girls.' That was all he said, and the jury lets to thinkin about. They brought in a verdict of not guilty, with the request that Brother Spears sing another song. But that gentleman had gone home and court adjourned."—Magic "Republican."

Pearls of Great Price.

To-day some of the finest pearls of the world go to China. There is a big demand for them among the mandarins there. Many go to India for sale to the rajahs, and a large number to Persia, where they are highly esteemed.

Fine pearls are still of great value, but not so much so as they were in the days when a single pearl was worth more than now. Julius Cæsar once presented to the mother of Marcus Brutus a pearl valued at $240,000. Cleopatra is said to have swallowed one worth $300,000, and she had another equally valuable. Philip II. of Spain received a present of a Panama pearl worth $10,000, and a Spanish monarch of Madrid owned one worth 30,000 ducats. During a visit to Constantinople I was shown the Sultan's pearl collection. He has about a peck of pearls of different sizes, some as big as a pigeon's egg, and some no larger than the head of a pin. He has quilts embroidered with pearls, saddle cloths decorated with them, and a great number of mirrors with pearl-studded handles, which are probably used by the ladies of his harem.—Buffalo "Express."

Every Little Helps.

"Here's another letter from that new tenant," said the secretary.

"What's he want now?" acquired the proprietor of the Highpupe Apartment House.

"Says he's got to have more room in his flat. Says it'll help some if you'll let him scrape the paper off the walls."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Unraveling a Mystery.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER is an enthusiastic lover of the delightful Berkshire region of Western Massachusetts, says the Philadelphia "Post," and has a summer home there. He loves to climb the hills, to drive about the charming roads, to fish in the waters.

With a close friend, a well-known New York artist, he set out one day for an all-day drive. Both were entranced by the scenery, and delighted by the succession of fine homes, old and new, that they passed.

Suddenly, the artist and Mr. Gilder uttered an involuntary cry of surprise, for there right in front of them, as they rounded a bend, was a delightful old house. The old doorway, with its fan-shaped window, its gimbrel roof, its clapboarded walls, its quaint, old-fashioned air, were very charming, and Mr. Gilder was a sign, "For sale."

The two men left the buggy and stepped toward the house. It was empty, but through the narrow slitted windows at either side of the door the two men could see furniture. They saw a big grandfather's clock at the turn of the broad stairway; they saw an antique chair in the hall.

"What a delightful find!" cried the artist.

"What a charming mystery!" exclaimed Mr. Gilder.

A man sauntered up from the field. He was the caretaker.

"Would you like to look through the house?" he asked.

Nothing would please the two men better, and the door was forthwith unlocked.

Through room after room they walked. In one place stood an ample corner cupboard, in which antique china and glass were. In here was a great carved clawfoot sofa; there was a table with claw-and-ball legs; upstairs was a huge canopied four-post bed with other old-fashioned furniture. In short, the entire house was furnished in colonial style.

"A dream of beauty," said the artist.

How strange it seemed. What mystery, what romance, perhaps even what tragedy, lay beyond it all! Here in this ancient house were all the ancient furnishings untouched, in spite of the keen search for such things by the myriad lovers of old-fashioned furniture and the dealers whose agents go everywhere. Undoubtedly there must be some strange and striking story to explain it all.

They sought out the caretaker.

"What old family has lived here for all these generations?" How does it happen that everything has remained untouched? Why is the old house left without a tenant, and why is it offered so strangely?"

The questions of the two men came upon the caretaker so suddenly as to puzzled for a few moments, and then said:

"Oh, I see what you mean. Why, this house was bought by Mr. E., a well-to-do manufacturer, who lives in New York, and he has fixed it up here, just to rest in, with things he sent up from his shop."

The caretaker and the artist slowly retreated to their vehicle and drove away without a word.

Oriental Compliments.

An amusing trait in human nature is the mutual contempt with which races regard each other. It is a trait which can be traced back as far as history extends. The Greeks called the outside world barbarians; the Romans scoffed at the Greeks, and the Egyptians regarded other people as no better than beasts.

In our days the contempt we exhibit for Oriental nations is mild compared with that which prevails in the East. It is not little behind the Chinese in this respect, they call every foreigner a Christian being a "dog."

When the first Turkish ambassador was sent to the Porte, he visited the Sultan.

"What does the dog want?" asked the Sultan.

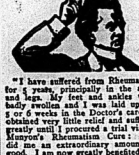

This was translated in a speech full of ornate Oriental compliments, and the ambassador was received in audience.

"Let the dog few," answered the Sultan; "and when he had kissed, let the dog out."

The ambassador was delighted with the Sultan's compliments. The Sultan left that he had told his own, and the treaty was signed next day.

COMMONS SAT TILL 6 A.M.

Weary Hours Spent Discussing a Census Bureau Item.

Opposition Carried Point and the Estimates Will Stand For a Time—An Appropriation of $250,000 Passed Further.

Dairy Service—Three Ministers, Messrs. Fielding, Fisher and Sutherland, Resolved Will Remain.

Ottawa, June 15.—The House of Commons did not rise until 6.20 Saturday morning. The trouble was over the item of $35,000 for the Census Bureau for the coming year. Small items were passed without debate for a time and then asked that it should stand.

The item for $150,000 for exhibitions was then passed after some explanation by Hon. Sydney Fisher as to the Government's plans for the St. Louis Exposition.

Then the Opposition reverted to the census item and kept up the debate upon it until long after dawn. The item failed to pass, but before adjourning an appropriation of $220,000 for the dairy service was agreed to. Mr. Clancy did most of the talking on behalf of the Opposition.

Three Ministers stayed out the night, Messrs. Fielding, Fisher and Sutherland. It was a very tired sleepy-looking house that separated when Dr. Sproule, Mr. Speaker, declared the proceedings adjourned.

Chignecto Claim May Be Settled.

The claim of the Chignecto Marine Transpo. t. Railw y Co. against the Government for failure to renew the charter and the subsidy granted by the late Conservative administration is in a fair way of settlement. Mr. A. D. Provand, who has been in Ottawa on and off for the pabt seven years endeavoring to obtain consideration from the Government, announces that he has been offered $80,000 and is willing to accept that sum. The original amount was something like $4,000,000.

QUESTION OF RIGHT OF WAY

Protection For Rights of Municipalities is Asked.

The Clause of Mr. Blair's Bill Permitting the Raising of Highways by Railways Stands Until Mr. Clarke Gets Lawyer to Draw a Suitable Clause For Substitution—Compensation for Slaughtered Animals From Infection.

Ottawa, Ont., June 16.—The Toronto and Hamilton Railway Bill, which was on the order paper yesterday afternoon, stands over at the instance of the Government till Wednesday night.

Compensation to Cattle Men.

Hon. Sydney Fisher moved an amendment to the bill respecting infectious and contagious diseases of animals. The amendment provides that in the case of the slaughter of infected animals, the owner shall be entitled to one-third of the value of the animal, which compensation must not exceed $20 for a grade, or $50 for a pure bred animal. For non-infected animals in contact with diseased animals, the owner shall be entitled to three-fourths of the value of the animal which, in the case of a grade, must not exceed $50, or, for a pure bred, $150. If the animal is slaughtered on insufficient grounds the owner will be entitled to full compensation, the value to be determined by the Minister. The amendment carried.

Special Records Building.

The Commissioners, who inquired into the Dawson defalcation point out in their report that there was danger of fire in the Eastern block. As there are valuable records in this building, the Commissioners recommended that precautions be taken at once. The question was brought to the attention of the House yesterday by Mr. Holmes of West Huron. The reply of the Minister showed the theory that there is danger of fire. There was, the Minister stated, no authentic instance known of a steam pipe setting fire to wood. It was announced that the Government propose to erect a special building for the storage of documents.

Who Drew the Bill?

The reply given to a question by Mr. Maclaren, Magn. Bay, indicated that Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill is largely the work of Robert S. White, Attorney-General of New Brunswick, who received $25 a day for attorney-duty work in preparing the measure, a total of $2,375, and $441 traveling expenses.

Subsidy For Dry Docks.

The bill increasing the Government's subsidy to dry docks to a maximum of $30,000 per annum met with some opposition. In Committee of the House, Mr. Fielding promised that on the third reading of the bill he would have full information for the House.

Mr. Blair's Bill.

Mr. Blair's Railway Commission bill was again taken up in committee of the House. The Minister went half way in meeting an amendment proposed the other day by Mr. Lancaster of Lincoln. Mr. Lancaster contended that there should be no appeal from awards for land damages where the award did not exceed $1,000. On this proposal, which was embodied in an amendment, Mr. Blair refused to accept. He consented, however, to a limit of $600, and with this amendment the clause passed.

Rights of Municipalities.

Mr. Lancaster protested against the provision in the act enabling the Commission to empower a railway company to take a highway free of right of way. He said that it was not fair that a company should be enabled in defiance of the wishes of the municipality to take possession of a highway by building on another highway instead of purchasing buildings on the property or a right of way adjacent to the highway.

Mr. Clarke said that every year Parliament was chartering railways as works for the general advantage of Canada, but which were in reality one horse tramways, enabling them to set municipal rights at defiance. He doubted if such legislation was not ultra vires of this Parliament.

Mind Be of Some Authority.

Mr. Blair said he doubted if any court would rule that Parliament did not have power to legislate along those lines. There must be some authority to determine if a highway cannot be used for railway purposes for the public convenience; that is, to decide whether the charter powers granted by Parliament should be exercised or not. So long as this deciding authority is Western Ontario Outside Lands Board will be no trouble, he said. There was seen no trouble with the municipalities; the Railway Committee of the Privy Council had always found reasonable men.

"If," said Mr. Clarke, "the hon. Minister will put that clause in, I stand, I'll try, and get a lawyer to draft a sub-section to meet the objection to this clause."

The clause was then allowed to stand.

Levels at Crossings.

On the next clause, which allows a railway to maintain its rails an inch above, or an inch below the road crossing without the latter being held to be an obstruction was also allowed to stand.

Next was taken up the clause providing that railways in connection with highways shall not be less than 20 feet wide and not less than 12 feet high. After protest the height was increased to 14 feet.

The question of municipal rights came up again in connection with the clause providing for the construction of telegraph and telephone lines on railways, but before the subject was finally refused to accept. He consented, however, to a limit of $600, and with this amendment the clause passed.

He said that it was not fair that a company should be enabled in defiance of the wishes of the municipality to take possession of a highway by building on another highway instead of purchasing buildings on the property or a right of way adjacent to the highway.

Levels at Crossings.

On the next clause, which allows a railway to maintain its rails an inch above, or an inch below the road crossing without the latter being held to be an obstruction was also allowed to stand.

Next was taken up the clause providing that railways in connection with highways shall not be less than 20 feet wide and not less than 12 feet high. After protest the height was increased to 14 feet.

The question of municipal rights came up again in connection with the clause providing for the construction of telegraph and telephone lines on railways, but before the subject was finally refused to accept. He consented, however, to a limit of $600, and with this amendment the clause passed.

Rights of Municipalities.

Mr. Lancaster protested against the provision in the act enabling the Commission to empower a railway company to take a highway free of right of way. He said that it was not fair that a company should be enabled in defiance of the wishes of the municipality to take possession of a highway by building on another highway instead of purchasing buildings on the property or a right of way adjacent to the highway.

Mr. Clarke said that every year Parliament was chartering railways as works for the general advantage of Canada, but which were in reality one horse tramways, enabling them to set municipal rights at defiance. He doubted if such legislation was not ultra vires of this Parliament.

Mind Be of Some Authority.

Mr. Blair said he doubted if any court would rule that Parliament did not have power to legislate along those lines. There must be some authority to determine if a highway cannot be used for railway purposes for the public convenience; that is, to decide whether the charter powers granted by Parliament should be exercised or not. So long as this deciding authority is Western Ontario Outside Lands Board will be no trouble, he said. There

HEPPNER DESTROYED.

One Town Wiped Out by a Column of Water and 300 of Its Inhabitants Perish in the Flood.

Spokane, Wash., June 16.—Telegrams from Heppner received here from Arlington, Oregon, state that the town of Heppner was entirely destroyed by a flood that rushed down Williams Creek between 6 and 7 o'clock last evening. Reports from Lone state that from 250 to 500 people were killed in the flood, drowned. Early yesterday it was reported that 139 bodies had been found, but only meagre reports of the disaster have been received. Heppner is a town of about 1,250 inhabitants.

A later despatch says: All the telegraph and telephone wires are down, and no accurate estimate can be obtained, but the climate of the loss of life is placed at 300. More reliable reports received up to last night. A report from Ione, seven miles east of Heppner, says that effect that 300 bodies have been recovered.

A message that arrived at Ione said that a wall of water 20 feet high swept down into the gulch in which Heppner is situated, carrying all in its path.

The flood came so suddenly that the inhabitants had no time to get to places of safety and were carried down to death by the awful rush of water.

Huge boulders, weighing a ton, were rolled down by the current, and many people were killed by being struck against the rocky bluffs.

Early in the afternoon a thunderstorm occurred, covering a wide region of country with heavy rain. A storm set in, many of the small streams overflowed their banks in short time. Bridges were swept away like straws.

Conductorette Stops Traffic.

Butte, Montana, June 16.—Traffic throughout the Butte district on the Northern Pacific is almost at a standstill as a result of severe cloudbursts Sunday. Near Dixon, 30 miles, a cloudburst sent a wall of water about 20 feet in height, and about the same number of feet in width, crashing down the valley.

To Prison For Long Term.

Montreal, June 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Barber, found guilty of "receiving the badger game," were sentenced to seven and three years imprisonment respectively yesterday morning. Motion for a reserved case was denied. Sentence was pronounced on Mrs. Barber addressed the court admitting her own guilt, but declaring that her husband was innocent and that the charges of wrong-doing preferred by his partner were false.

Mr. Horace Duval, for committing an abortion, was sentenced to three years.

HOW GLORY WHALEN DIED

Women Saw Her Seized, and Heard Screams and Shot.

Another Witness Saw Two Trumps One White the Other Colored, One of Whom Wore a Handkerchief Such as Feared Accused Glory's Friend—Counsel-Attorney Says There Are Like Murderers—Verdict of the Jury.

Collingwood, June 16.—The inquest touching the death of Glory Whalen on the 27th May was opened last night by Mrs. Whalen telling of her murdered child's last preparations for and departure for school. She saw no strangers, nor had she nor her child an enemy that she knew of.

Mrs. William Findlay told how on the morning of the murder, between 11 and 12 o'clock, she was sitting near the stile that crosses into the bush where Glory was killed. Directly behind them she saw a little girl walking towards Kendall road. On the west of the same, the taller of the two, a fast back towards the approaching girl, who turned and ran across the track as if dodging. The girl ran across the track twice and turned back towards the Kendall residence. The girl gave a loud scream, and witness saw the man catch her and half-drag, half-walk her up the path to the bush. The woman stood. They disappeared over the embankment. Witness heard a shot in the swamp where the girl was found dead next day. She told her husband, and did not know why she did not suspect that murder was being done. She, with the man, went later to two neighbors when they heard that Glory was dead, that the murder was committed. The next morning Findlay went to the scene, testified that she heard the child scream and heard a pistol shot. The screams continued so long that she thought the girl had fainted. She proceeded from children screaming at horses or cattle, and that the pistol shot was by some of the town boys. The pistol shot came about 15 minutes after the screaming ceased. She did not connect these sounds until after three days after the murder, when she began to tell her neighbors.

The one man who saw and is able to identify the two trumps is Wm. Felch, a young man of about twenty-three, who works in the shipping office of the Rolling Mills Co. On the Sunday before the murder Felch was passing through the swamp when he almost stumbled on the negro and the white man lying in the grass asleep. The latter woke up. He stopped and spoke to them for a couple of minutes. The colored man was the larger of the two, and had on dark striped pants and a long, light checked coat. His companion had black or dark clothes, with a black undershirt, and both attracted particularly that he had tied around his neck a white handkerchief. On the following Tuesday, the day previous to the crime, Felch again saw the negro near the station, and a few minutes later met the white man near the Rolling Mills Hotel. They went and had a drink together, and Felch noticed that the white man still had around his neck the white handkerchief.

Attorney Cotter explained to the jury that the handkerchief tied around the neck of the little girl had folds in it as if it had been worn around the neck.

"I believe those are the two men who committed the crime," remarked the Crown Attorney.

After the Crown Attorney's address to the jury, the following verdict was returned:

"We find that Glory Whalen was foully murdered at the town of Collingwood on or about May 27th, 1903, at the hands of some person or persons unknown, but the evidence points strongly towards a tall man, a white and colored one, who were seen in the neighborhood about that time. We strongly recommend that the authorities commit to the Central all transfer found in future who are unable to give a proper account of themselves, and that the Provincial authorities leave no stone unturned to discover the murderers, and that a liberal reward be offered by them as an extra inducement to such discovery, and further, that the town of Collingwood offer a reward."

Murdered in the Court.

New York, June 16.—Charles McFarlane, President of the Anti-Policy Society, was shot and killed yesterday on the General Session floor of the Criminal Court Building by William Spencer, a negro, who is said to have been placed on trial yesterday on the charge of violating the Anti-Policy Law. McFarlane was shot just as he left the elevator. Five shots in all were fired. In less than two hours, Spencer was indicted for murder in the first degree by the grand jury. He will plead to-day.

Arrested For Whiskey Smuggling.

Quebec, June 16.—For whiskey smuggling on the Gaspe coast last November, George Doggett, a foreman at Mr. Macdonald's fishing industry, has been arrested by the provincial police, and the schooner Gloaming which was used for the smuggling, has been seized.

MORE GLOOM AT ST. THOMAS

Elgin Loan Co. Closed Its Doors and Suspended Payment.

Manager Rowley Has Disappeared—His Action Precipitated Crisis in the Loan Company's Affairs—Directors Have Declared That Depositors Will Be Protected, and That the Securities Are Intact.

St. Thomas, June 16.—This city was stirred to its depths yesterday morning by the closing of the old-established Elgin Loan and Savings Co., which had been looked upon as secure as any of the kind.

The crisis was precipitated by the sudden departure Sunday night of Geo. Rowley, the manager.

Promised to Return.

John Baird, the president of the Elgin Company is nonplussed at the situation. "We know Mr. Rowley has gone," he said, "but have no knowledge of why he left. The directors a placed implicit confidence in him and he did practically all the office work himself. It will require some time to find out the position, and in the meantime we decided to suspend payment."

The Notice on the Door.

The following notice posted on the door of the company yesterday morning was the first intimation the general public had of the condition of affairs:—

"Owing to the absence of the manager, the directors have decided to close the payment for the present for the purpose of investigating the affairs of the company."

The directors would tell nothing pending an investigation of the books. The officers of the company are John Baird, president; D. K. Anderson, vice-president; Thomas Augus Murray, John McCausland, A. W. Graham, L. Millington and Albert Ermatinger.

$180,000 on Deposit.

The amount on deposit at present is about $180,000. President Baird states that no securities have been hypothecated, all the mortgages and other securities remaining in the vault.

The company completed 24 years of existence last December and had the full confidence of the public.

Last Annual Statement.

The last annual statement of the Elgin Loan Company showed profits for the year of $15,249, to which the balance brought forward from previous year of $6,353 was added, making total profits of $21,614. One thousand dollars was added to the reserve, and $11,917 was paid in dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, paid half-yearly. The balance to credit of profit and loss was $7,416.

The total assets of the company amount to $1,460,203. Liabilities on stock to $240,000, and the reserve is $20,000.

Missing Man a Leader.

Mr. Rowley has been one of the leading citizens of the place and was looked upon as a wealthy man. He has been an official of the Y.M.C.A. Dodds Church for many years, and he and his family stand high in social circles. His intimate friends have been doubted, and his friends cannot understand why he left the city.

It is said he transferred all his property to the company before leaving. A report to that effect was to be involved in Atlas Loan to the extent of $40,000, and that is the only rumor about which there are some unfavorable remarks. It is thought that he may have been personally speculating in stocks and overstepped the bounds of prudence. Mr. Baird states that in all probability the appointment of a liquidator will be asked for, Mr. Baird also said positively that the depositors were intact and that depositors would certainly be paid dollar for dollar.

CROP REPORTS.

All Over Central Canada Crops Are in Splendid Condition.

Toronto, June 16.—Reports from all over Central Ontario are to be effect that the crops are in splendid condition. The hay and wheat are two extremes—two little rain and too much rain. Between Woodstock and Ingersoll there is nothing the farmers can complain of, and the happy medium between drought and deluge seems to have been struck.

Throughout this portion of the province and in the Niagara district there promises to be a bumper yield of fruit, nearly everything that grows on tree or vine being in an advance state.

Fire at Thorold.

Thorold, June 16.—The residence of Dr. D. H. Lemon, with nearly all its contents, was destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Loss about $4,000; insurance, $1,000.

This Man Confesses.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 16.—Robert Sinclair, arrested for the murder of Timothy Sullivan in a saloon here, has confessed that he struck Sullivan, Sullivan's skull was fractured, Handled Revolver, Is Dead.

Lindsay, June 16.—George Boodher, aged about 15 years, an Assyrian, accidentally shot himself in the stomach Sunday in his bedroom, while handling a revolver.

KING PETER OF SERVIA.

Elected According to Progress—He Accepts the Position—Issues a Statement—Col. Mamula Popular.

Belgrade, June 16.—Prince Peter Karageovitch at 12.15 p. m. was unanimously elected King of Servia by the Senate and Skupschtina in joint session. He has accepted. He will take a special train from Geneva for Belgrade Thursday evening by way of Vienna.

King Peter has issued a statement from Geneva. In it he thanks the Servians who have shown a desire to return to the traditions of their ancestors. He promises to be faithful to those traditions, drawing special inspiration from the memories of his predecessor Stephen. The king promises to ignore all that has happened during the past forty years and not to bear ill will to those who opposed him.

He concludes with promising to respect the right of all employes of the State, whether he belongs to the positions to which they are legally entitled, and to resume the normal condition of their duties.

King Peter will go to Belgrade, accompanied by Swiss attendants. His residence at Geneva is watched by private detectives.

The day's proceedings on the whole have been characterized by singular impressiveness. Only in the unreserved admiration shown for Col. Mamula and other conspicuous persons could it be seen that the events were genuinely popular. It was evident during the ceremony, where Col. Mamula stood conspicuously among the numerous brilliant uniforms and decorations, how proud he is of his work.

MITCHELL ON THE AWARD.

Not a Financial But a Moral Victory For United Mine Workers.

Scranton, Pa., June 16.—The United Mine Workers convention called to take action on the refusal of the operators to recognize the Presidents Fahey, Nicholls and Detrey as the miners' representatives on the Conciliation Board, was called to order at 10.20 o'clock yesterday morning. President Mitchell was unanimously chosen chairman. There were 450 delegates present.

At the opening of the afternoon session, President Mitchell addressed the convention. "He said in part:

"Gentlemen,—It is needless to say that the miners' representatives were instructed by the convention to live up to the award of the strike commission and to uphold that agreement to me. I was hopeful. After our long strike and after the commission had made its award that each side would accept it. I desire to say that if the United Mine Workers should refuse to comply with the award I believe that it would be first to condemn them. We must do nothing we cannot defend. I might say for myself that I am hopeful we may find an honorable way out of the calamity. The Commission's award was not a great financial victory for us that it was a great moral victory. We can afford to bear our disappointment and live up to the award."

After the transaction of some routine business, the convention at 5.30 adjourned to give the Resolutions Committee an opportunity to frame its report.

HOW DO CANADIANS LIKE THIS?

The so-called Liberal party was given an opening the other day in the House of Commons, when the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill was up for consideration, to make it imperative upon the company to purchase all possible supplies in Canada. Mr. R. A. Pringle, Conservative M.P. for Cornwall and Stormont, submitted an amendment to the bill, by which he sought to add a clause making it binding upon the Grand Trunk Pacific Company to use Canadian made supplies. He called attention to the fact that while the Canadian Pacific bought all it could in Canadian markets, the Grand Trunk dealt with foreigners. Every Conservative member of the railway committee voted for Mr. Pringle's proposal, but a large section of the Liberal party, headed by Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals, voted against it. Thus a chance of striking a vigorous blow for Canadian industries was lost. With such a clause in their charter, the Grand Trunk Pacific would have been compelled to spend millions among our manufacturers of Canada, and this would mean employment for thousands of artizans, who would consume the product of the farm, and thus add to the home markets and value of agricultural products.

TIMELY TOPICS

As the fishing season opens to-day it may be safe to point out that there were at least 200,000 whopping big fish lost last summer by jerking too soon.

Excuse these tears, which are shed for the Public Bath proposition, which the same went down and out last night.

We must confess that we didn't expect the motion for the six months' rink to pass unanimously. Still, as the phrenologist said when he felt of the Stony Lonesome philosopher's head, there may be something in it.

The six months' hoist takes the matter up to the 15th of December, and if the Council build the bath then they might use it for a curling rink.

Speaking seriously, though, it is hard to understand the illogical and unreasoning animosity displayed by some people towards the idea of a public bath. Of course, nobody would be compelled to take one unless he wanted to. Really, it looks as though certain highly estimable people took the proposition as a personal affront.

Of course, if the expense is too great for the city to afford, that settles it. Four hundred dollars is a lot of money, though not if it were to be weighed in comparison with such things as cleanliness and public safety as exemplified in a knowledge of the useful accomplishment of swimming.

However, the proposition has received a knock-out blow, but before the matter sinks out of sight, it may not be out of place to mention the case of the poor fellow who was drowned at Shannonville last night. Such cases as that are the best kind of arguments for swimming baths. And before we drop the subject we would respectfully appeal to Ald. Sinclair, Panter, Pope and Gulman the gratitude of many parents and children in this city, for their non-Fish, though unsuccessful efforts to inaugurate a useful and beneficial institution.

Hurrah! for Mr. Edward Harris, who this morning gallantly saved a child from drowning. It was a precious good thing for little Ruby Williams and her mother that Mr. Harris knew how to swim!

Ald. Green's opinion, that the Council should see any document before the Mayor and Chairman of the Executive are authorized to sign it, seems to be fortified with good sense.

At the same time it may be respectfully pointed out that there was more truth than poetry in the remark by Ald. Sinclair that it would place the Council in a queer position if, after notifying Mr. Kirkwood that they would take certain action, they turned right around and did something which would make that action impossible.

Perhaps Ald. Cooper was afraid that if the bath was built near Victoria Park, the boys might stir up the sea serpent.

It is reported on the street that instructions have been received from the Government to the effect that it is now unnecessary for the Drill Shed Site by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers. The question is, if it is illegal, has now the power to take the necessary action on its own responsibility. Rumor, however, says it is illegal, but that it will not accept such responsibility, and will insist on the by-law in question being submitted to the ratepayers.

Stylish Wedding This Afternoon.

NUPTIALS OF MR. HENRY RANSFORD, OF ORILLIA, AND MISS GRACE J. PONTON, OF THIS CITY.

At 2.30 this afternoon the John St. Presbyterian Church was the scene of an event which has for some time been looked forward to with interest by many. It was the marriage of Miss Grace J. Ponton, second daughter of Mrs. (Wm. H.) Ponton, who resides on Albert street, to Mr. Henry Ransford, teller of the Dominion Bank at Orillia, and who was for some time connected with the Dominion Bank in this city. There were a large number present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by the Pastor, Rev. A. H. Drumm. At the hour above named the bride entered the church leaning upon the arm of her cousin, Col. W. N. Ponton, who gave her away. The sweet strains of a wedding march filled the air, played by Mrs. Howe, organist of the church, and that the interior of the sacred edifice was tastefully decorated with daisies and white peonies.

The bride looked very pretty in a gown of white mousseline de soie, over white liberty satin. She wore the traditional bridal veil, with orange blossoms, and carried a handsome bouquet of white roses, mixed with Scotch bridal roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Nina Kingborn, of Rochester, N.Y. Her gown was of embroidered muslin, trimmed with ecrue lace. Miss Julia Ponton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress was of Pongee silk, appropriately trimmed. The attendants' bouquets consisted of white peonies. The groomsman was Mr. James D. Ponton, of Toronto.

The ushers sat the church were Messrs. E. Caldwell, R. Tannahill, jr., A. S. Madden and A. F. Northrop.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's mother, where a beautiful spread awaited partaken of. Mr. and Mrs. Ransford left on the evening train for the east, and will visit Kingston, Montreal and Quebec before proceeding to their home at Orillia. That the bride was a popular young lady was evidenced by the large number of handsome and costly presents which she received.

The hearty good wishes of a host of friends will follow Mr. and Mrs. Ransford to their new home.

Anecdotal.

When the friends of the rival dailies of discovery of Cleopatra's Needle were speaking mementoes for each other, Oliver Wendell Holmes suggested that the publishers exchange a single memorial, with a central group symbolic, say, of Cleopatra's Needle, a shield on one side, a statue of Morton on the other, and the inscription beneath: "To Ether."

In the days of Louis XIV. even warriors handled cognacs with consummate. The Marechal de Grammont had withdrawn was that he had no more powder." "And, secret for secret," returned the marshal bravely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more ball."

Chartrau, who painted, during his visit to America, the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Alice Roosevelt, was once day interviewed in Washington on the subject of his work. Chartrau talked about his work in a strange way, ignoring his important pieces, and leading to the skies those that were of comparative insignificance. "Why," he said, "do you prefer said finally, "that you only praise to your worst paintings?" "Because," was the reply "they need it."

My best ones praise themselves."

Here is a story, the truth of which is vouched for by an English lady resident in Florence, the lady in question that overhears a street in which a cigar shops, and a few days ago an American mother and daughter paused to look in at the window, and fatherchanged the following remarks: "Mamie, are you quite sure that this is Venice?" "Why, yes, mamma, I'm quite sure." "Now, don't let us be sure in our itinerary that we are to be in Venice on April 15, and to-day is April 16, dear!"

SPEAKERS SORE THROAT.

Public speakers and singers know how useless and sickening are cough-mixtures, sprays, lozenges, &c., for irritable sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhozone, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use in public places. Catarrhozone relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and is a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and Catarrh it has no equal. Rev. Mr. McKay, Goderich, says "Catarrhozone is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from long speaking." Physicians, ministers and singers recommend Catarrhozone, druggists sell it for $1. THE CONFESSION OF A WIFE.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Was The Medicine That Saved My Life.

This is the closing sentence of a thankful and grateful letter of testimony written by Mrs. Jolyes of Westmore, of Windsor, Ont. She suffered from kidney disease and heart trouble, which resisted the best treatment of her physicians. When all seemed dark and gloomy for the suffering woman, Paine's Celery Compound was brought to her attention. Mrs. Westmore used the compound with faith and was happily cured. Mrs. Westmore writes to Jolyes:—

"A year ago I was in such a low condition of health that my life was despaired of. Medical treatment failed to do me good, and my friends were greatly alarmed. The doctors said I was suffering from kidney disease and heart trouble, and might drop off at any time. My aunt procured a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound for me and I used it. After taking the second bottle, I felt stronger, and had hopes of getting well again. Six bottles of Paine's Celery Compound made me a new woman. I am now strong and well, good appetite, splendid digestion and sleep like a child. Paine's Celery Compound was the medicine that saved my life."

The highest telegraph poles in the United States have just been erected in Beaumont, Tex. So far as known they are the highest in the world, their tops being 156 feet from the ground. They carry a Western Union cable across the Neches River—a span 146 feet in length.

The pheasant, everybody knows, is a non-acautic bird; therefore Professor Lloyd Morgan's observation that newly hatched birds of the age of thirty hours swim easily and can spl ept where and exhibit few signs of distress, is of singular interest. Is this swimming habit a throw back or reversion to an antecedent state in the history of this land-living species. Or is it to be regarded as an example of a direct and sudden adaptation to a new environment? Doubtless Professor Lloyd Morgan will debate this question at length. It certainly has an important bearing on certain obvious biological theories.

A discovery of great interest to antiquaries was made recently by workmen engaged in excavating one of the two reservoirs now being constructed for the East London Waterworks Company along the course of the Lea. On a bed of sand silts in the "Lock-wood" Reservoir, a "dug-out" boat or canoe was brought to light. In the north-eastern corner of the reservoir, also, were found, on what may fairly be called the grand scale, Scottish, German and Arctic expeditions. For all present practical purposes it will be found that the Arctic is such a way that the Antarctic. The latest undertaking organised by the Royal Geographical Society is the Scottish Antarctic Expedition of the Ross Sea, while the South expedition of Germany is under the command of Herr Drygalski, and the Swedish expedition to the Antarctic West by Capo. Hovgaard, Lieut. Ekelof, Dr. Ekholm and Dr. Gunar Isachsen. "The main object," says Dr. Nansen, "of the Norwegian Antarctic exploration before the Fram sailed was to drift across the Polar Sea, from New Zealand. A little was known about the conditions and nature of the south polar land, to ascertain the nature of the interior and the condition of the ice-cap, to observe the character of underlying rocks, and to make a magnetic survey south of the 70th parallel of latitude. It was also to be a meteorological observatory, and especially to meteorological observations in depth of 0 to 1,000 fathoms, with temperatures, are also to be made." Here was work enough for the Fram, and the Fram has done it.

FATAL BULLET FROM SOMEWHERE.

Alex. Chambers of Islington Shot in the Head—Is Dead.

Toronto Junction, June 16.—Word has just been received here of a mysterious shooting accident which occurred at Islington yesterday morning. William Hawkins, who lives on the Appleby farm, and two hired men were repairing a fence, when one of the men, named Alex. Chambers, was struck on the head by a rifle bullet, which penetrated the skull, and it is thought will result fatally. The source from which the bullet came is unknown, although it is supposed to have been the gun of a man who was shooting meadow larks in the neighborhood yesterday morning. Chambers is a middle-aged Englishman who has laborcd on farmer about Islington some time.

Died in a Few Minutes.

Later.—The ball entered Chambers' left temple, passed through the brain, and was found in a flattened condition in the flesh of the right temple. He died a few minutes afterwards. Dr. Snowdon, coroner for the district, was notified, and opened an inquest at the farmhouse of Mr. Hawkins, where Mr. Chambers lived last evening.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Members of the Ontario Legislature now get $1,000 a year. That's a good deal of money, but it's worth a good deal of money to have to associate with certain members of the house.

Time was when the Grits had no warmer friend than the Huntingdon Gleaner, but that was when they were making their promises when they attained power and began breaking those same promises the staunch old Gleaner could not stay in line. Commenting on the Gamey affair, our contemporary points out that until it is shown where the money Gamey received came from, and with what intent it was paid, it is vain to pretend no suspicion hangs about the Government.

"Knowing as the public do that the Government had an interest in securing Gamey's vote," says the Gleaner, "the conclusion is natural that it will be held guilty until other light is thrown on the case." This is the way the electors of Prince Edward Island look upon the report. The coat of whitewash put on by the commission is too thin to cover up the real facts.

People will remember the case of little Lolita Armour, who was treated for congenital hip disease by a great Austrian surgeon some time ago. Arrangements are now made of her daughter: "Lolita plays out of doors every day now, runs up and down stairs without help and is a perfectly well child."

Veterans of the Union army are lying at the rate of one every thirteen minutes, which should cause the pension list to fade away considerably before long.

During the month of April twenty-six men and fourteen women disappeared mysteriously in London. Less year at least 2,000 persons disappeared. Many of these were victims of foul play; others were suicides; but the police think that 60 per cent. were criminals or persons in financial difficulties.

A Lasting Cure Of Itching Piles

A CHRONIC CASE OF UNUSUAL SEVERITY AND LONG STANDING CURED BY DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mr. Alex. McLaughlin, for 30 years a resident of Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"For twenty long years I suffered from itching piles, and only persons who have been troubled with this annoying disease can imagine what I endured at times. About seven years ago I asked a druggist if he had anything that was sure, and he said that Dr. Chase's Ointment was most favorably spoken of, and on his recommendation I got a box.

"After three applications I felt better, at the time I had used only one box I was on a fair way to recovery. I continued the treatment until thoroughly cured, and I have not suffered any since. I am firmly convinced that the ointment is a perfect cure.

"I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment an invaluable treatment for piles. In my case I think the cure was remarkable, when you consider that I am getting up in years, and had been a great sufferer from this disease."

Mr. H. Bull, Belleville, Ont., says: "I take pleasure in stating that after thirty years of suffering with itching piles, Dr. Chase's Ointment has perfectly cured me. I tried everything I could hear of, and with little or no benefit, but as I have told different persons attracted as I was by Dr. Chase's Ointment made a perfect cure."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

CAPSIZED AT SEA.

Captain, Mate and Six Men of the Steamer Rubens Drowned.

Christiansand, Norway, June 16.—The Belgian steamer Rubens, bound from Sunderland, England, for Port au Jau, East Prussia, capsized and sank June 10. The captain, mate and six men were drowned. Seven other members of the crew drifted in a small boat for seventy-four hours during which time three of them died from exposure. The others were picked up.

Stuck to It.

In a school for colored children there was a little boy who would persist in saying "have went." The teacher kept him in one night and said: "Now, while I am out of the room you may write 'have gone' fifty times." When the teacher came back he looked at the boy's paper, and there was "have went" fifty times." On the other side was written: "I have went home."

AN ARIZONA WILD MAN.

Many strange stories have been told of the "wild man" of the Grand Canon of the Colorado, and while some persons have credited these weird tales, they have for the most part been regarded as the ingenious inventions of imaginative travellers, and have passed into tradition as such. But according to H. W. Stevens of Cedar, Col., says the Albuquerque, New Mexico, Democrat, the "wild man" is not a myth, and he gives a thrilling account of an encounter he had with the creature.

"Two years ago," says Mr. Stevens, "I had business in the northwestern part of Arizona that took me in the neighborhood of the extreme lower end of the Grand Canon of the Colorado River, in Mohave County, Arizona. Having the misfortune of getting my arm broken, I took a trip to the river to kill time and catch a few beaver. I constructed a skiff, with the aid of a friend, and when my arm got strong enough I took a trip up the canon as far as I could go with a boat. A few miles above the entrance I hauled my boat upon the sand and got ready to examine the rock walls.

"The first thing that attracted my attention was the imprint of bare feet in the sand. Thinking the tracks had been made by some Indian, perhaps a Hute or a Hualipi, I kept looking up the gorge over with much interest. Going down stream a short distance, I found more tracks.

"The third day on my stay I saw the head of a man on a bench of rocks on the north side of the river. Evidently he was seated on the edge of a cliff some distance above my camp. I rowed up stream a little above the point where I saw the man's head and part of his shoulders above the grease wood brush. Climbing up to the bench I had some difficulty finding a place that I could get over the ledge and be on a level with my strange neighbor.

"I finally succeeded in approaching closer to the point. I saw sitting on a large boulder a man with long white hair and a matted beard that reached to his knees. The creature was unaware of my approach, and I gazed upon him for some moments unobserved. He was about fifty years of age and in full view. He wore no clothing, and upon his talon-like fingers were claws at least two inches long. A coat of grey hair nearly covered his body, with here and there a spot of dirty skin showing. I had found the 'wild man' of the rocks!

"At that moment a rock loosened by some animal came rolling down. The creature turned his face towards me. Horrors! What a face—it was scared and burned brown by the sun, with fiery green eyes. With a wild whoop and a leap he was off up among rocks and cliffs like a mountain sheep in about seventy-five yards. Then he stopped. He was armed with a queer-shaped club, large enough to fell an ox. Brandishing this bludgeon, he shrieked and chattered for a moment, then started towards me, roaring and still flourishing his weapon. Faster and faster he came, and my hair began to stiffen.

"I am a poor runner, so I stood my ground. When the creature was within about fifteen yards of me I raised my rifle to fire, thinking to cripple him. As I glanced along the barrel I heard a deep growl just above the wild man. Looking up I saw a she-cougar on a rock half-way down. The mother cougar crouched, with tail lashing, ready to spring upon the wild man. He also had heard the growl and he leaned himself for the attack.

"I drew a hasty bead on the cougar and pressed the trigger. When the smoke had cleared away the mother cougar lay dead where the wild man had been. The man himself had disappeared. The two young cougars were still on the rock, apparently greatly frightened by the report and the death of my old dad's rifle.

"Reaching hastily for a cartridge I found I had neglected to load on my belt when leaving camp, so I hastily retreated to the boat, where I found everything as I had left it. I shoved the boat off and drifted toward camp, which was near the cougar. There lay the old cougar where she had fallen. The wild man was standing over the two cubs, which were also dead. He was beating his fists on them with his club. He stood for a moment gazing at the carcasses, then got down on his hands and knees and drank the warm blood as it flowed from the death wounds. The sight sickened me.

"I stood up in the boat and yelled. The man sprang to his feet, took a long look at me, then flew up from ledge to ledge until he reached the fourth ledge, where he stopped. Here he flourished his club again and screamed the wildest most unearthly screech I ever heard; then turned and sprang coward the cougar's body and the canon.

"Not fancying my wild neighbor, I packed my outfit into the boat and drifted down and out of the canon before I made camp for the night. That was the strangest adventure of my life.

"Tradition records that years ago hostile Indians captured three men bound them to logs far up the canon, and set them adrift upon the swollen river. It may be that this wild creature is one of those unfortunate men who, by chance, freed himself and escaped death, but was made insane by his awful experience."

The school lunch he went slowly back to the woods.

"His visits became of daily regularity, and, it being evident that he came with no evil intent, the teacher, and now and then a pupil, took to tossing him an apple or other bit of luncheon, and finally to feeding him out of hand, until now, as it is reported, that bear has almost quartered himself in that school district and lunches regularly with the Sander's Mill school children and teacher."

and it's a fair one:—

Why should you buy "Queen Quality"? Shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale?

In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality." Thousands of women do just this thing, so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it?

It is this:—Queen Quality gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more—that is—an accurate fit.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation so immediately effective as Piso's with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It relieves at once, and gives prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting easy expectoration, loosens the mucous which stops up the air tubes and passages in the throat. Nothing else gives relief to that depressing tightness across the chest. Public speakers and singers find Piso's Cure for Anti-Consumptive Syrup a inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation. Whooping cough, throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the voice. For hoarseness, loss of voice clear and sonorous. Five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver Trouble. I suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walker Woods & Co., Toronto, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to get worse, and finally I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup and Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon found I was getting relief from taking the medicine and when the thirty bottle was finished I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I would say, procure Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Kidney Cure the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

black veil. But he could distinguish nothing of her features through the thickness of the lace, and with a gesture he put his head to himself he was glad at least that no other man could feast his eyes upon that perfect face.

He could no longer give the slightest attention to the entertainment, or even move his gaze from the fair unknown. Her companion was clearly something in the nature of a "sheep-dog," a short and apparently elderly woman, muffled in a circular furred cloak, a large bejewlimmed bonnet, and a voluminous black lace veil, tied at the back in so large a bow that no hair was visible above the black for boa she wore about her neck.

As the evening wore on the beautiful blue-eyed woman appeared to grow restless. She did not again lift her veil, but she constantly turned her head to right and left, and scanned the other occupants of the seats and the crowd at the back of the circle. At first Dudley could not help hoping that some slight interest in himself might prompt these glances, or that the intensity of his regard and his keen consciousness of her presence might have attracted her notice. But, if he had laid any such flattering unction to his soul,he was speedily taught his mistake as he saw the veiled head before him hastily shiver, and heard her whisper to her companion:

"He is here! Follow me!"

The words were unmistakable! or than spoken. Immediately she rose and made her way swiftly out to the back of the arena, and at a little distance by the shorter woman. Turning to watch them with an intrarest he could not possibly have suppressed, that fat tall woman was directing her steps towards a group of young men and the big-form of the "man-about-town" type, popularly known at different times as "swells" and "johnnies"—the rapid-looking youths, who haunt burlesque shows and music halls, and live in houses in bands during the London season.

These young men were talking and laughing loudly, as is their wont, and paying no attention to the performance on the stage. They had come for the ballet, and they and a number of other patrons of the house should enjoy what did not appeal to them pending its arrival. They had been to a race-meet that afternoon, as was made clear by this talk, backing horses and in a few cases losing their money, and a champagne dinner had been the prelude to the ballet, which was to be followed by a champagne supper.

The noisiest among them was also the handsomest—a tall, lightly-built, curly-haired youth of about twenty-two or four and twenty years of age, cleanshaven, with regular features, in which a trained observer might detect a considerable trace of the great Duke of Wellington.

"Look at the odds," he was exclaiming—"record time, dead cert! But my goes always manage to come in last."

"Tell us what you're not going to back at Newmarket, Devereux, and we will save something on it."

A roar of laughter followed this sally. In the middle of it the tall veiled woman came to the back of the group. Dudley Revelsworth's interest grew so absorbing that scarcely knowing what he did, he left his seat. Something in the woman's deliberate movements had attracted his attention. It was clear to him that this was the man for whom she had been sent, and on that single account she had come to the theatre. Dudley, at the moment when she stepped up close behind the fair man and laid her hand upon his arm, standing as he was behind him, she seemed even taller than he; and, although her long circular cloak and bonnet concealed the outlines of her figure, there was something distinguished and noble in her movements and in her whole bearing. At her touch the young man started, and turned to face her with an insolent smile, while his companions fell back, laughing. He said a few words from her, uttered in tones so low that only those to whom they were addressed could catch their import, a sudden and remarkable change came over the fair fellow's features.

The red flush faded from his face and gave place for a few moments to an ashen pallor, and a spasm of intense emotion contorted his naturally vapid face. Her hand was still upon his arm, and the blood rushed to it again, and for a moment the rough violence with which the young man shook himself free from her gentle detaining touch.

"You are making a mistake," he said lowly. "I don't know you—I never saw you before!"

Also there was black her veil. Her face was nearly as pale as his, but paler only accentuated its loveliness,and her blue eyes shone like stars.

"Surely you know me now!" she answered, in low tones full of tender sweetness, which struck at once an echoing chord in Dudley's heart.

"I swear I never saw you before!" the young scrapegrace shouted, hurriedly ignoring the stares, the whispers, and the suppressed laughter around her. Dudley's heart ached for her in her humiliation and in the proudly-resigned manner in which she had accepted the insulting rebuff just offered to her. For a few moments she stood as if irresolute, with the woman who had accompanied her watching at a little distance. Then, making a gesture to the latter to follow her she moved away.

Had his life depended upon it, it seemed to Dudley that he could not choose but see this little drama played out, in so far at least as this act was concerned. He strolled therefore slowly in the direction taken by the two women, and watched them descend the stairs towards the enterance. A few seconds later the fair-haired youth to whom the younger had spoken flung open the swing glass doors at the top of the steps and descended them alone at a prodigious pace, with his evercoat on his arm, glancing again and again over his shoulder to see if he were being followed.

Scarcely had he reached the foot of the stairs when Dudley who came on immediately after him, perceived the tall woman in black glide forth from the shadow where she had clearly been lying in wait to waylay his escape, and again the fair lad kept on his way.

This time the man seemed to lose all self-control. Livid with fury, he raised his cane and struck her a violent blow on the shoulder, for a moment the woman fell back with a little cry of pain; but even before two of the other spectators could hurry up to prevent a fracas within the building the young man had passed through the front enterance and hailed a hansom outside.

Before he could enter it the woman had followed him into the street, with Dudley and two other visitors to the theatre who had w' nessed the scene in the hall close behind her.

"Bertie," she cried in pitious accents that Dudley's ears could scarcely overhear, "you hold him back as he was springing into the cab.

"If you touch me, by Heaven I'll kill you!"

Dudley heard him utter the words between his clenched teeth, and saw his arm quiver as he spoke. But there was more than flesh and blood could bear, and, with a swinging well-directed blow, Dudley Revelsworth knocked his arm up and sent his hat off his head and his waiting-cab flying down the street.

"You wretched coward, to strike a woman!"

The young man looked at him curtly.

"Sharp, sometimes fear and hitted in his eyes.

"Do you know her?" he asked hoarsely, "if you did, you wouldn't stop me! Drive on, cabby; drive anywhere, but drive like the devil!"

In a moment the cab was tearing through the crowded streets, and Dudley, turning again towards the theatre, found the beautiful woman in black standing with her companion close behind him.

Her veil was raised and her cheeks were flushed, her eyes glittering with excitement.

"Did that brute hurt you?" he asked her gently, as his little crowd began to gather around them.

"No—not much. I can't feel it! It won't think of it! But, oh, if I could follow him! And I have no money!"

It was pitiful to Dudley to resist such an appeal. Hailing a passing hansom, he helped her into it and forced a sovereign into the hand of the small stout woman who had scrambled into the cab by her companion's side.

"Follow that hansom! Quick!" "Thank you with all my heart!" a sweet voice cried; and, as the second hansom drove from the street in hot pursuit, Dudley found himself standing outside the theatre alone, over head and ears in love with a beautiful woman, of whose name, position, character, and history he knew absolutely nothing at all.

CHAPTER IV.

Twilight the figure of a beautiful blue-eyed woman haunted Dudley Revelsworth's dreams.

Not for one moment, waking or sleep he could he banish the thought of her from his mind; and yet, with a reserve which he himself could hardly have explained, he did not speak of his adventure to his brother.

The feeling that by discussing it he might be doing the fair unknown an injustice by giving his volatile brother the chance of joking at her expense restrained him as much as anything. He could well imagine Victor's astonishment and amusement over the whole ludicrous incident of the evening.

But he had seen the fact! In the balcony of a variety theatre he had seen a woman of remarkable beauty, recorded more and no less conspicuous by her sombre black garments and thick black veil. This woman had by a few moments glanced at him with unmistakable interest, and had subsequently claimed acquaintance with a man who had vehemently disowned all knowledge of her, and had hurriedly left the theatre, for the purpose, as it would appear, of avoiding her. She had followed him and had struck at her in a fit of passion, aggravated by the very evident fact that he had been dining freely.

And then, he—Dudley—had actually been so mad as to interfere in what, when told, would seem to be a vulgar, brutal, and commonplace entanglement for the woman's sake, and had insisted upon presenting her companion with a sovereign for a cab fare!

Such were the bald facts; and how could he relate them to his brother without creating in the latter's mind an impression of astonishment and amusement?

Yet in his heart Dudley remained, even by the coldly disillusioning process of next morning's reasoning, obstinately convinced that the beautiful heroine of last night's adventure was a lady, refined and high-minded, and that her visit to the theatre with her companion was made solely for the purpose of meeting the fair young man and, further, that her motive for so meeting him was a thoroughly honorable one.

He had not arrived at these conclusions entirely by the incident of falling in love with her. For he had been under the influence of that delightful illusion long before he had seen her features distinctly without any special interest which she had cast around the building on the occasion of her visit to the entertainment, good as it was of its kind, efficient as the band, and the artistes interested her little more; for although she did not fail to light several cigarettes, her eyes never rested for more than the briefest glance upon the stage proper. Now, on the occasion of Dudley, until the coming of the man for whom she was waiting.

As to her connection with this latter personage, Dudley could find no clue to it, and she were tall, fair, and blue-eyed, with exceptionally regular features. Could she be the man's sister? But, had she been so, would she have addressed him as "Bertie"?

He could think no ill of her. In his code evil could not exist with those sad shining eyes, that queenly bearing, that perfect face. Perhaps she was a widow, and the man she called her husband, a young man's fancy, for the latter had been drinking heavily, and was not responsible either for his words or actions. Else how could he, a gentleman apparently by education and by birth, have attempted to strike a woman who pleaded to him? Nevertheless, Dudley felt ill at ease and troubled. A presentiment so strong that he could not shake it off, whispered to him that he and this woman would meet again, and that in some way or other she was to be a powerful influence of some sort upon his future life. His scarcely formed fancy he thought made him glad or sorry. His life had been a little troubled by romance even for at least five years. He had known he was too poor to marry, and had given his whole heart a tender sentiment for the little girl-cousin Edgitha Revelsworth, who had been left with three years ago, telling himself that, although unacknowledged by her, she indeed was a woman whom he could have loved.

From ephemeral love-affairs or flirtations the influence of the "little black maiden" kept Dudley brothers exceptionally free. Madame Victoire Revelsworth was so young, so pretty, so kind and sympathetic, she worked so hard to please them, and made their meals and home, and she enjoyed herself so thoroughly and did so much credit to every social appearance when she went out on fete days with her "two men" that it was only natural that the longing for a feminine influence about the place and for a settled

"Sharp, sometimes," fear and hitted in his eyes.

"Do you know her?" he asked hoarsely, "if you did, you wouldn't stop me! Drive on, cabby; drive anywhere, but drive like the devil!"

In a moment the cab was tearing through the crowded streets, and Dudley, turning again towards the theatre, found the beautiful woman in black standing with her companion close behind him.

Her veil was raised and her cheeks were flushed, her eyes glittering with excitement.

"Did that brute hurt you?" he asked her gently, as his little crowd began to gather around them.

"No—not much. I can't feel it! It won't think of it! But, oh, if I could follow him! And I have no money!"

It was pitiful to Dudley to resist such an appeal. Hailing a passing hansom, he helped her into it and forced a sovereign into the hand of the small stout woman who had scrambled into the cab by her companion's side.

"Follow that hansom! Quick!"

"Thank you with all my heart!" a sweet voice cried; and, as the second hansom drove from the street in hot pursuit, Dudley found himself standing outside the theatre alone, over head and ears in love with a beautiful woman, of whose name, position, character, and history he knew absolutely nothing at all.

CHAPTER IV.

Twilight the figure of a beautiful blue-eyed woman haunted Dudley Revelsworth's dreams.

Not for one moment, waking or sleep he could he banish the thought of her from his mind; and yet, with a reserve which he himself could hardly have explained, he did not speak of his adventure to his brother.

The feeling that by discussing it he might be doing the fair unknown an injustice by giving his volatile brother the chance of joking at her expense restrained him as much as anything. He could well imagine Victor's astonishment and amusement over the whole ludicrous incident of the evening.

But he had seen the fact! In the balcony of a variety theatre he had seen a woman of remarkable beauty, recorded more and no less conspicuous by her sombre black garments and thick black veil. This woman had by a few moments glanced at him with unmistakable interest, and had subsequently claimed acquaintance with

Anecdotal.

A certain wealthy benefactor of Harvard University complained of President Eliot's treatment. "He comes to me," he said, "for my money and my advice; and, like the women in the Scripture, the one is taken and the other left."

Nothing verbal could be much more delicious than Joseph H. Choate's definition of the dinners of the New England Society of New York as "Those gatherings of an unhappy company of pilgrims who meet annually at Delmonico's to drown the sorrows and sufferings of their ancestors in the flowing bowl, and to contemplate their own virtues in the mirror of history."

"That was an excellent discourse you delivered last Sunday," remarked a veteran minister of the gospel to a rising young preacher, "but I would hardly call it a sermon." "Why not, doctor?" demanded the other, "Because you had no text." "Don't you call such a discourse a sermon unless it has a text?" "Certainly not." "You have read the Sermon on the Mount, have you not?" "Many, many times." "Well, it has no text." "Oh the contrary, my dear young friend," said the veteran, "it is composed entirely of texts."

The speech in the House of Lords of the Bishop of Hereford on the subject of gambling recalls a story told of Bishop Potter, of New York. The bishop, traveling through Louisiana some years ago, addressed inquiries to his fellow-passengers with a view to obtaining information regarding the orchards and fruit interests of the State. "Do you raise pears in Louisiana?" inquired the bishop. "We do," replied the Louisianian, who was a better authority on poker than on horticulture, "if we have threes or better."

A woman, who is of high social distinction in America, was presented to the Kaiser at some dinner that was not attended with royal state. She was talking to him when she was offered a famous German salad. It was handed on her right and the Kaiser was on her left, which put her in a predicament. She did not dare turn her face from the emperor to help herself to the salad. The situation was too much for her. The emperor, seeing the condition at a glance, looked at her for an instant and laughed, as he said: "A Kaiser can wait, but a salad can not."

George Moore, the author and dramatist, once had a play accepted at the Odeon in Paris. At the same time an adaptation of "Othello" was being rehearsed there. One day Mr. Moore called to see the manager of the Odeon. The door-keeper did not know him, and asked for his name and business. "I am the English author whose play has been accepted here," said Mr. Moore; "I wish to see the manager." The door-keeper went into the manager's room and said: "There's an English gentleman at the door who says that you have just accepted his play, and wants to see you." "Quite right," said the manager; "show him in. M. Shakspeare, without doubt."

It is said that once, when the late Dr. Tanner, the Irish M.P., had asked in the House whether it was true that the Duke of Cambridge had resigned his position as commander-in-chief, a Major Jones of Penzance, was so outraged that he challenged Dr. Tanner to a duel, and the following telegraphic correspondence took place: "In reply to your despicable question about the Duke of Cambridge, I designate you a coward. Delighted to give you satisfaction across the water. Pistols." To which Dr. Tanner at once replied: "Wire received. Will meet you to-morrow in Constantinople, under the Tower of Galata, midnight. Being challenged, prefer torpedoes. Bring another ass.—Tanner."

A conjurer was performing before a rough-and-ready audience in one of the prohibition States of America (according to an English paper). "I am now about to undertake a feat," said he, "in which I shall need the use of a pint flask of whiskey." There was a dead silence. "Will some gentleman in the audience favor me with a pint of whiskey?" There was no response and the conjurer began to look blank. "Surely," he continued, "in a South-Eastern prohibition town it ought not to have to ask a second time for such a thing. I give my word I will return it intact. Is there no—" "Stranger," said a tall, gaunt man, as he rose slowly from a front seat, "wouldn't a quart flask do as well?" "Why, certainly! I merely——" But before he could finish, the generous, open-handed audience had risen like one man, and were on their way to the platform in a body.

The Refinement of Irony.

Magistrate: "What is your name prisoner?"

Prisoner: "John De-Jones."

Magistrate: "John D. Jones? H'm! What does the D stand for?"

Prisoner: "I beg your worship's pardon. I would have you to know I am not of the common Joneses. I come of very refined antecedents, and my family name is De-Jones—spelled with a D-e and a hyphen."

Magistrate: "I see. Have you ever been here before?"

Prisoner: "Yes, once. I was fined forty shillings through a mistake on the part of the police."

Magistrate: "Just so. Well, taking into account your antecedents, and seeing that you come of a refined family, you may now consider yourself re-fined—spelling with an r-e and a hyphen."—"Pick-me-up."

A Clerical Wit.

After a church conference held a few days ago, two brother ministers had a friendly tilt, regarding the meaning of a certain passage in one of Shakespeare's plays. They could not come to an understanding, and one of them remarked jokingly: "Oh, well, brother, I will ask Shakespeare when I meet him in heaven!" But supposing Shakespeare did not get to heaven?" retorted the other. "Then you can ask him about it." Was the quick reply.

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

The same in ready for service clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so a to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

Address and Presentation.

A pleasing event took place last Friday evening, being the presentation of a gold watch and address to Miss Ellen Watson by representatives of the Ladies' Aid, Choir, League and Sunday School of Bleecker Ave. Methodist Church. The address was read by Miss Rattan, and the presentation was made by Mrs. R. Forrester. The watch bore the following inscription: "Presented to Miss E. Watson, Superintendent S. S., by Bleecker Ave. Methodist Church, for devotion to G. S. and E. L. work, June 1903." Signed on behalf of Bleecker Ave. Church and Christian workers, M. J. Bates, pastor. The address was as follows:

"Dear Miss Watson,—We, as representatives of the Ladies' Aid, the Choir, the Leagues and the Sunday School of the Bleecker Ave. Methodist Church in the City of Belleville, take delight in this expression of our high regard for, and in our midst, well-known to us all—as Miss Watson. Words are too feeble to properly express our very great appreciation of your services to our church. In every department of our church work you have been active and most helpful. Your influence has been felt among both young and old, but more especially among the young people of our church, in the League, as Superintendent, and the Sunday School, as Superintendent, we have found you most devoted in lifting up Christ. Your punctuality, your patience, your perseverance have all in a marked degree been an inspiration to the School, the League and the church. In all labor you have been abundantly successful. Your loyalty to Christ and your loyalty to the Bleecker Ave. Church and young people will be long remembered and prove a means of great good in time to come. Your self-denial and great sacrifices for Christ and the young people of this part of our city cannot fail to be of unspeakable good. In consideration of your excellencies of character and work, we do here now present to you this gold watch as a token of our appreciation of your work. May its purity and precision ever be a emblematic of the heart and worth of character you represent. Be assured, dear Miss Watson, that we have our prayers, our sympathy and our co-operation in your future work. May you ever have a good time, and we all have a happy eternity."

ALLEGED SHOOTING WITH INTENT.

HUDSON COOK IN CUSTODY ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A man named Hudson Cook was placed under arrest yesterday and brought to Belleville. He resides near Shannonville, and it is alleged that he shot at Walter Kellar and fired on Hudson Stinton with intent to do bodily harm. It appears that Cook had a night line set in the Shannonville river and the two men were kept going to interfere with the line. They drew a gun and fired at them but fortunately they escaped injury. The affair was investigated before the Magistrate this afternoon.

DIABETES,

A Long, Slow and Suffering Decay of the Kidneys.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets

A Non-Alcoholic Medicine Rapidly Cures the Disease.

Diabetes is a wasting and terrible form of kidney disease. In its advanced stage it is marked by the passage of a large amount of urine containing an excess of sugar. The pronounced signs of Diabetes are, great thirst, loss of flesh, loss of strength, constipation, harsh, dry skin, drogical tendencies and great physical weakness.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets will almost immediately stop the wasting away of strength and rebuild the whole system. The Tablets begin their good work by revitalizing the kidneys, bringing them back to activity and strength.

Kidney-Wort Tablets have performed miracles for sufferers from Diabetes and have restored thousands to robust health.

As soon as you note any of the threatening symptoms mentioned above, do not fail to use Kidney-Wort Tablets; they will do their work so well that you will experience cheering results in a few days. Kidney-Wort Tablets are widely recommended by the medical profession because they contain no alcohol. All druggists sell them.

CITY COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION.

Ald. McFee's Motion, re Kirkwood Forfeit Money, Again Turned Down.

Ald. Galbraith Moves Six Months Hoist for Public Bath Scheme.

Police Magistrate Flint Writes in Explanation of the Monahan Case.

It was just about 8 o'clock when Acting-Mayor Panter, escorted by the Drum and Bugle Band, made his way to the City Hall last night. There were enough Aldermen present to make a quorum, and the proceedings began. There present were Acting-Mayor Panter, Ald. McFee, Coopp, Salmon, Green, Chown, Marsh, Sinclair and Bowen.

Communications.

From Police Magistrate Flint, complaining that sewer gas was escaping in the basement of the City Hall—Tabled.

From Mr. T. Gorman, dealing to purchase 2 loads of loam.—Tabled.

From a number of ratepayers on Church St., asking that the water service be laid on that street.—Referred.

From Police Magistrate Flint, stating that the boy Monahan, who had been sent to the Industrial School, was not old enough to be sent to the Reformatory.—Tabled.

From Street Surveyor Hulme, reporting on the following sidewalks are beyond repair:

Foster Avenue, east side, Dundas to Bay.

Evans street south side, Grier to St. Charles.

Ridley street, south side, Grier to Geddes.

Bridge street west, Commercial to Wellington.

Henry street, south side, Murney to Octavia.

Yeomans street, east side, Moira to Elsmer.

Elm street, north side, Moira to Baldwin.

Dunbar street, east side, Catherine to Holloway.

Pinnacle street, west side, Dundas to Victoria.

From residents of the south side of Church St., asking that gravel on the sidewalk be built there on the north side.—Referred.

From Mr. Eastwood, of Peterborough, that the Council had yet entertained any proposition for the purchase of the rails on Front St., and stating that he had entered an action against the city if they were not withdrawn.—Referred to Solicitor.

This caused a hilarious demonstration among the City Fathers.

From the secretary of the W.C.T.U. re the case of Michael Kelleher, stating that he was still drinking.—Filed.

From the Bell Telephone Co., re certain charges which the new agreement just made do their assessment.—Referred.

From the same corporation, asking that the city appoint a valuator to sit on trim trees, the same to be done under the supervision of the Street Surveyor, and at the expense of the Bell Telephone Co.—Laid on table.

The following accounts were presented and eventually passed:

Trenton Electric Company	$335.27
Trenton Electric Company	25.00
J. W. Walker	28.83
Belleville Gas Co.	29.25
A. Sheehan	6.50
W. Stevens	9.27

Reports of Committees.

The reports of the various standing committees, as already published, were adopted.

The special committee re Public Bath Scheme, recommending that one be erected at a point southwest of the Grammar School, at a cost not to exceed $400.

Committee of the Whole.

Ald. McFee was chairman, and the reports of the Executive, Public Works, Fire, Light and Water Committees were passed without change, though there was a lot of conversation about the Pinnacle St. water tank and the placing of the tank in front of Mr. McMahon's livery. Eventually the committee's recommendation passed without any change.

The Public Bath.

When the report of the special committee re the proposed Public Bath came up, Ald. Panter said the committee had visited different locations and found that the place suggested by the Committee was the best. Zwicke's island was too far. Ald. Sinclair had a plan showing that the committee's recommendation was feasible.

Ald. McFee said he was sorry he was in the chair. Otherwise he would move the six months hoist.

Ald. Panter.—"Well, you are in the chair."

Ald. Chown was dubious about the expense. Where was the money to come from?

Ald. McFee said it would be a waste of money.

Ald. Panter retorted, "That's only your opinion."

Ald. Sinclair said it was simply a question of expenditure. He thought the Council fool justified in expending the money recommended by the committee!

Ald. Marsh wanted to know whose instigation this matter was taken up. Was there a petition for the bath an instituted? He thought that if a public bath were built, and people could bathe for nothing, many of those who had bath tubs in their houses at present might have them removed, and thus the city would lose revenue.

Ald. Panter said there was no petition in, but he maintained that a public swimming bath was a necessity and a good thing for any municipality to have. Swimming was a useful accomplishment, and was the knowledge of which had saved many lives.

Ald. Sinclair asked if there had ever been a petition for the establishment of a public park in the city.

Ald. Panter—"No."

Ald. Sinclair said the idea of a public park was opposed at first, but everybody now admitted it was a necessity and a blessing. As to the public bath, why all knew that cleanliness was next to godliness. He did not believe that people would abuse it.

McFee—was opposed to the idea of a bath, it was simply a question of finance.

Ald. Green was opposed to the location, and thought that it was useless the bath, if built, was surrounded by the same conditions as privileges would be grossly abused.

Ald. Sinclair said the idea was to put Mr. Marsh's mind at rest. It was a park, in charge of the Bath.

Ald. Cooper did not think the city had a suitable place for a public swimming bath. He was opposed to the whole idea, in fact he thought it was a proper thing, but knew of no place on the water front where a suitable location could be found. If one were built off the park he, for one, might stir up snakes.—

Ald. Sinclair—"And alligators." (Laughter.)

The Chairman asked—"Well, what's to be done with this committee's report."

Ald. Galbraith—"Well, I move that it be laid on the table."

Ald. Marsh—"For six months?"

Ald. Galbraith—"Yes, if you like."

"All in favor of this motion," said the chairman.

There was a show of hands.

"Carried," said Ald. Sinclair.

"Oh, hold on," said Ald. Sinclair, "not so fast!"

Ald. Panter—"You're not running this whole thing, Ald. McFee."

The vote was then taken and Ald. Galbraith's motion was carried, Ald. Panter and Salmon voting against it.

Trimming the Trees.

On motion of Ald. Chown, Mr. Stephen Burton was appointed to trim the trees for the Bell Telephone Co., in accordance with their request.

Sewer Gas in the City Hall.

The letter of Mr. Flint, re sewer gas in the basement of the City Hall, was discussed, and left in the hands of the chairman of the Water Com.

Mr. Gorman was given permission to purchase seven loads of loam at 25 cents per load.

The Monahan Case.

The letter from the Police Magistrate re the Monahan case, was referred to the City Solicitor.

Incidentally it came out that young Tommy Purcell, who was sent to the Industrial school, had escaped from that institution.

Enquiries.

Ald. McFee asked if the pit on the corner of Bracey and Bettes St. had been filled in, as ordered by the Council.

Street Surveyor Hulme answered in the negative.

Ald. McFee objected to Mr. Hulme being given remuneration for the Council.

Mr. Hulme said he had been very busy with the crusher, but would see that the pit was filled in "to-morrow."

Ald. Chown asked if the crusher was ready to operate.

Mr. Hulme said it would begin "to-morrow."

Ald. McFee asked when the "pew things would be built.

Mr. Hulme said just as soon as he got the gravel from the crusher.

Ald. Sinclair asked if the certain special committee appointed by the Council to enquire into the Kirkwood matter had met.

Ald. Panter and Chown gave the desired information in the affirmative.

Ald. McFee spoke of certain plank piles in the bay, which, he said, were a menace to property.

He was advised to make a motion to that effect.

Ald. Galbraith spoke of the pipe in the West Belleville park. He had been mistaken in blaming Mr. Holmes for dereliction of duty, and desired to make the amends honorable.

Motions.

Ald. McFee moved that the City Solicitor be instructed to report on the matter of the lumber piles in the bay of Quinte, and report to the Council what the city's rights were in the matter.—Carried.

The Forfeit Money Again.

Ald. McFee brought up his notice of motion given at last meeting, declaring that the forfeit by Mr. Kirkwood, re rolling mills by-law, be transferred to the city's sinking fund, and that the Mayor and the Chairman of the Executive Committee be authorized to sign the document that the Manager of the Bank of Montreal deemed necessary.

The mover and seconder, Ald. Chown, reiterated their former arguments in regard to the money in question.

Ald. Green thought the document in question should be submitted to the Council before the Mayor and Chairman signed it.

Ald. Sinclair said the Mayor had been instructed by the Council to write Mr. Kirkwood, stating that if the mills were started the city would not demand the forfeit money, but repayment of the forfeit money. Under the circumstances he did not think it would be wise to tie the money up in the sinking fund.

Ald. Galbraith concurred.

After some further discussion, in which nothing new was brought out, Ald. McFee's motion was lost, only himself and Ald. Chown voting for it.

The Front St. Rails.

Mr. McNab, of the Cement Company, was heard in reference to the proposed purchase of the rails on Front St. The cement people did not want the rails if there was any prospect of the street railway being operated, but he thought the city had not reason to look for anything tangible with respect to any negotiations at present on foot. The Cement Company, if allowed to purchase the rails, would medium at once, and would at once provide communication between Front and end of the city. They would give $10 per ton for the rails, and would agree to forfeit them to the city in case the Cement works ceased operations for a year.

All the Aldermen spoke favorably of Mr. McNab's proposition, and Ald. Cooper said that there was beautiful-dallying with this matter long enough. He thought they should give Mr. McNab an answer at once.

Ald. Chown brought the matter to a head by moving that the Clerk notify the Trenton Electric Company that the city looks for a definite proposition from them by the 26th inst., failing which something definite is not received from them—and it was understood by that time, the Council will be prepared to consider the Belleville Portland Cement Company's proposition.

This was carried, and the Council adjourned.

Malt Breakfast Food

The Proper Summer Health Food

THE Cereal that Affords Ease, Comfort and Health

Malt Breakfast Food, rich in Malt, Gluten, and Phosphates, and predigested, has no equal in the world for a summer breakfast. It is a food and nourisher in its most concentrated form. Nothing sane, comfort and health when these blessings are most needed. Malt Breakfast Food is delicious to the taste and easily digested. It is the only sensible food for the hot days, and old in summer time. All grocers heartily recommend it.

A Large Funeral.

A large number of citizens were in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. Robert Arnott, sr., which took place this afternoon from the family residence, Wharf street. Services were held at St. Thomas' Church, conducted by the Rector, Rev. G. R. Beanish, after which the remains proceeded to the cemetery, where the interment took place. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The bearers were:—Messrs. D. M. Waters, J. W. Walker, J. W. Johnson, J. McGowan, S. B. Fielding and Wm. Black.

YOUR NERVES ARE WEAK.

You sleep badly, appetite variable. You eat but are not strengthened. Morning tiredness makes you wish it were night. When night comes refreshful sleep is hard to obtain. You can digest your blood is thin and watery, your nerves are grown weak, the thought of effort wearies you. You need Ferrozone to make blood—red, strong blood. An appetite! You'll eat everything and digest it, too. Strength! Ferrozone is plenty of food gives. Ferrozone makes "new" vim, endurance. Use Ferrozone and get strong. Sold by all druggists.

Soldier Drowned at Shannonville.

SAD DEATH OF A YOUNG ENGLISH ARTILLERYMAN LAST EVENING.

A drowning accident occurred at Shannonville between the hours of 6 and 7 o'clock last evening. A member of artillerymen in connection with the camp near Deseronto came to Shannonville last evening, and while there being Gunner Reed, who belonged to the Kingston artillery, put in a number of comrades, went down to the river for a bath, and they had been in the water but a short time when Reed was missed. The place where the men were bathing the water is deep and there is a powerful eddy under current. As the men were much attached to Reed, and went into the water, it is supposed that Reed was seized with cramps. From the time he was missed until his body was recovered it was but a few hours, and life was certainly extinct.

The unfortunate young man was an Englishman, about 22 years of age. From what could be learned, he has no relatives in this country. It was feared his mother resided in England, whom he received a letter yesterday.

The remains, after being prepared for burial, were sent to Kingston for interment.

SAVED LITTLE GIRL FROM DROWNING.

HEROIC ACTION OF MR. EDWARD HARRIS OF THIS CITY, THIS MORNING.

Owing to the prompt action of Mr. Edward Harris, who resides on Front street, a drowning accident was averted this morning. Little Miss Williams, five years old, daughter of Mrs. Williams, a domestic employed at Mr. Harris', was playing about the edge of the river at the rear of Mr. Harris' premises when she accidentally fell into the water. Another child, who was with her, ran into the house and raised an alarm. Mr. Harris rushed upon the scene, but could see no trace of the little one. He ran to the edge of the dock, and jumping in and in an instant Boyd and brought the child to the surface, apparently lifeless. At first it was feared that Ruby was dead but Mr. Harris soon discovered that the child was in a few minutes she was revived by a warm bath and restoratives and placed in the fond embrace of her mother. It was a narrow escape.

McINTOSH BROS.

They Knew About It.

The Chicago Tribune is responsible for the following, which is applicable to others than those who live in that city:

"Say, boys," he broke in, "poor Jimmy Turner's dead."

Jimmy Turner was a jockey and trainer well known on western tracks, and the information was received with more than passing interest by the group of men to whom it was imparted. Not all, quite in the dumps. Every one of them had foreseen and predicted it.

"Well, I'm not a bit surprised," said the first. "I've seen it coming for a long time. He was getting slightly heavy for his age, or packed some, like a retired sport, and was always trying to get down. Breaking in, 'and he's had that bootle flesh on his shoulders for more than a year."

"I was telling my wife yesterday," went on the second, "that Jimmy was living on sanction. That's how Jimmy went to work. Sanction. Now there was a man for you."

"About a minute," said the newcomer. "He was run over and killed by a passenger train."

Religions in India.

Correspondence from India that appears in The London Spectator furnishes interesting information on the growth of Mohamedanism. The figures given are as follows:—Between the years 1891 and 1901 the number of Mohammedans in British India increased from 57.1-3 millions to 62½ millions. In the same period the Hindus increased from 207,731,000 to 221,172,000. The Mohammedan increase is not a native, but a foreign, relation in India. During this same decade the Christian population has grown to 2,923,241, an increase of 30.7 per cent. The Christian increase is not a foreign, but a native one. It argues that much money and vast energy are being spent in the propagation of Christianity, while Mohammedanism lacks these auxiliaries. The Christian population in India is quite fluctuating, but it is within bounds to say that in British India, including Burmese, it does not number more than 3,000,000. The Hindus have increased in twenty years by twelve million souls.

Where Cats Are Valuable.

Cats in Warsaw have not a very easy time at present, and for the reason that their skins are in greater demand than they have ever been before. Some enterprising furriers of that city, it is said, recently discovered that the skins of cats could be made to look like the most expensive ermine coats, and, being determined to profit by the discovery, they waged a campaign against cats, and soon secured a large number of skins. The market price of a cat's skin ranges now from ten to fifteen cents, but it will soon be higher, as there is a growing demand for more of them. A prominent lady of Warsaw, in regard to the fad, said, a "Since furs were the fashion I have always palmed off on many persons as valuable fur."

Will Send Delegates.

Upwards of 200 Chambers of Commerce throughout the empire, says The London Times, have already notified their intention to send delegates to the congress which is to be held at Montreal in August. In a preliminary circular concerning the arrangements for the gathering, the London Chamber of Commerce points out that the question of the Canadian programme has assumed greater importance since the congress was convened. First, because this is the first congress outside the United Kingdom and, secondly, because Canada has taken the lead amongst the self-governing colonies in the matter of her preferential treatment of the mother country, whilst the South African Customs Union is about to follow in the same direction. The council of the Chamber have therefore decided, with a view to officially instructing their delegates to the congress, to circulate the existing tariffs and other memoranda on which opinions may differ, to hold on February 4 next meeting of the Chamber, of the Organizing Committee of the congress, and the joint Sub New Zealand delegation, for the purpose of considering the matter.

Army Manoeuvres in Winter.

Every winter the Swiss army executes manoeuvres to ascertain the troops' conditions of war during cold and snow. In these exercises the infantry are provided with skis with this curious footgear the men are able to progress at the rate of eight to six miles an hour. When it is desired to make a rapid advance, a battalion is ordered to attack and uses their reindeer as a means of traction. The first battalion adopted the idea and substituted the horse for the reindeer. Instead of the latter being led by a rope, as originally, they were harnessed to sledges. The men's skis strap a rope, which is fastened to the sledge, and this rope is made easily detachable in case of an accident. The idea is now practiced with good deal in Switzerland, where cross country skiing is becoming a sport independent of the army.

A MAIL CARRIER'S EXPERIENCE.

CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE AND PAIN IN THE BACK, FROM WHICH HE SUFFERED MANY YEARS, BY

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS.

Mr. JAMES TAGGART, mail carrier for the past eight years, Palmerston, Ont., gives the history of his case as follows: "For a good many years I have had kidney trouble and pain in the back. It is so many years ago that I can hardly say what it came from, but think it came from a heavy lift; after that the back grew weaker and weaker. I tried everything and never got a bit of relief until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets. They cleared up the pain, soreness and kidney trouble, and strengthened the back."

The action of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets is rapid and positive, curing backache, eruptions, blood humors, dropsical swellings, gravel, smarting and scalding of the urine, frequent rising at night, rheumatic pains, and all kidney troubles of young and old. Price 50c. a box at druggists, or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

Pope Leo Operated on.

Rome, June 16.—Pope Leo Sunday submitted to an operation for tumor under the arm. The Pope would not take any anaesthetic and watched the operation with interest. There was a slight bloodshed and surgical shock, but the Pope recovered immediately from the latter, and lasting ening is as well as ever.

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, rector of St. George's, New York, told in Philadelphia, on the 10th, he dreaded the sermon that caused him to be charged with larceny, of a small tea old lady once gave him. "I had the habit in my youth," said Dr. Rainsford, "of conditioning all my proposed sermons with the phrase, 'God, volente,' or 'God willing,' or something of that sort. So I preached, at the head of an aristocratic family, invited me one morning to dine with her the following night. 'I shall be delighted to dine with you, madam,' I said, 'if I am spared.' The terminal phrase amused the ladies so much that they thought she gratified cast in it. She frowned and said: 'Oh, if you're dead I'm not expect you.'"

Joseph Erkiston, the Philadelphia sailor, belongs to the Society of Friends. His converse as tersely as he writes, and never is his society more engaging than when he consents to narrate some-thing from his store of incidents. "The story goes," he said the other day, "that loud spoken man in a congregation once interrupted a certain Friends' meeting. The worship at this meeting sat on one side of the room, the men on the other. The speaker, when all he talking became intolerable, stopped and looked at the audience reproachfully. 'I wonder,' he said to him, 'if among thee to take notice that the talking rus object to comes not from cuns, but from the men's side of the house.' The speaker smiled and said, 'Why, not the latter, good woman; so much the better,' he said. 'It will be the sooner over.'"

A Good Example.

Little Alice always said her prayers regularly before going to bed. One night, however, as she rested her head on the pillow, she remarked, in a questioning way:

"Mamma, my prayers are so much longer than the one nurse says in the morning. Ca'n I say here when I'm tired?"

"Does the nurse pray in the morning?" asked the mother, with a puzzled look.

"Yes," said Alice, sagely, "She says, 'Lord, have I got to get up?'"

DO YOU KNOW THOMAS HUNTLEY?

PEOPLE WHO KNEW HIM A YEAR AGO, AND SEE HIM NOW, HARDLY RECOGNIZE HIM—HE LOOKS SO WELL AND STRONG.

This is what he says:—

Belleville, May 7th, 1903.

The O. B. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and weak, so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. B. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS HUNTLEY.

Legislature of Ontario Alarmed—Strong Protest Against the Unwarrantable Usurpation of the Federal Administration

—The Dominion Asked by Unanimous Resolution to Leave Alone Legislation of Purely Local Concern—Reuse Notes

Toronto, June 17.—In the Legislature yesterday, Mr. Pattullo moved the following resolution:

"That this House protests against the tendency, of late years, on the part of the Dominion Parliament, in the matter of legislation, whereby companies are being incorporated by special acts, though such companies have purely Provincial objects, and come within the purview of Sub-sections 10 and 16 of Section 92 of the British North America Act.

"That the expedient which it has become customary to adopt, of inserting in the Act a mere assertion that the works of the company, being incorporated, are declared to be 'for the general advantage of Canada,' affords no reasonable protection against the encroachments upon Provincial jurisdiction, the bills being entertained and passed, apparently, in ordinary routine, and without reference to any serious consideration of the question of jurisdiction.

"That there is involved in this growing tendency towards encroachment on the Provincial field of legislation, an invasion of the rights of municipalities which this House regards as of serious importance.

"That the Provincial laws relating to property and civil rights, developed to safeguard, in many respects, the rights and interests of the municipalities through which these railways run, or are chartered to be constructed, and the protection to municipalities thus afforded will be practically annulled, as to these anti-vaccinationists and class them in with the followers of Christian Science, the Dowieites, Theosophists, Osteopathists, etc., were they not such a menace by reason of their position as guardians of the public health," the members of this many doctors present at the opening session. In the evening a smoking concert was held.

In their nature, are matters of purely local concern.

Premier Whitney's Speech.

Mr. Pattullo, in speaking to his motion, said the Province of Ontario generally got the worst of it, and he instanced the coal duties where the people of Ontario paid two or three million dollars to the Dominion because one of the eastern provinces wanted the duty kept on coal. In several respects the Dominion Government was invading the field of the province, and he mentioned that the Atlas Loan Company, one of the defunct St. Thomas companies, had gone to Ottawa and secured legislation allowing it to go into stock speculation after the province had refused it such legislation. This was a case of invading the legislative sphere of the province, and the danger of it had been shown recently.

There should be no Dominion legislation in matters of purely local interest, but there had been an inclination in the Dominion Parliament to invade the rights of the provinces. In the matter of electric railway charters there had been a disposition to ignore the province. There was purely local work.

Speaking of the Toronto and Hamilton Electric Railway Bill, Mr. Pattullo said that he had understood that the city of Toronto was taking strong opposition to it. If the bill was allowed to go through when the present electric railway charter came out the people of Toronto would be at the mercy of the combination that the bill proposed to form.

He protested against the granting by a Dominion charter to the Mackenzie-Pellatt syndicate, and instanced several electric railways that had received Dominion charters, though they were entirely local affairs.

Government Must Protect.

The Attorney-General said the Ontario Government had protested time and again against the practice of the Dominion in infringing the right of the province. Companies applying for Dominion charters had, but to make a declaration that the proposed work was for the general advantage of Canada, and it would be hard to find an undertaking that would not come under the declaration. A number of electric railway companies were seeking incorporation by the Dominion power by-law, and the protested against any assumption of jurisdiction on the part of the Dominion.

Power Scale Provisions.

Mr. Foy said it was quite clear the proposed electric railway between Toronto and Hamilton was a work of purely a local character, and the Attorney-General was right in protesting against the assumption of jurisdiction by the Dominion. The greatest care should be made by the Dominion in making a declaration that the line for which a charter is being applied for was for the general advantage of the Dominion. There ought to be home rule in the province. He thought that if the Dominion incorporated the Toronto and Hamilton Company or any similar companies the Legislature should go a little further and have them vetoed by the Governor-General or by the Dominion Parliament.

Invasion of Municipal Rights.

"It is a clear invasion of municipal rights," said Mr. St. John, referring to the Toronto and Hamilton bill. It gave the company the power to run through highways in defiance of the rights of municipalities.

Mr. Preston (Grant), Whitney, Guelph), thought the bill should be the approval of the resolution.

Mr. Lennox Preston said the Dominion Government had been encroaching upon the jurisdiction of the provincial Legislature, and there was a good deal of money to fight them.

The Toronto and Hamilton Electric Railway Company knew where they wanted from this province, and so should the province. It should be thought the protest of this House would do some good.

The resolution was then unanimously carried.

Reports Ordered For Papers.

Mr. Whitney Wants Mackenzie-Pellatt Bargain Submitted to the Legislature.

The following notice of motion by Mr. Whitney has been given:

"That this House approves of the action of the Government in entering into the agreement with William Mackenzie, Henry Mill Pellatt and Frederick Nicholls, bearing date of the 29th of January, 1903, for empowering them to take water from the Niagara River for the development of electrical or pneumatic horsepower for commercial use under the terms mentioned in the agreement, and declares that all such agreements should have been submitted to this House for ratification."

Premier Refuses Judges.

The Premier's motion to adopt the Judges' report in the Gamey case, which will be moved this afternoon when the House meets at 11 o'clock, reads as follows:

"That His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, having appointed a Commission, on the address of the Legislative Assembly, to enquire into and investigate the charges of bribery set forth in the statement made to the Assembly on the 4th day of May, 1903, last by Robert H. Gamey, member-elect of the District of Manitoulin, and the said Commissioners having made their report to the Assembly on the 4th day of June, instant, this House adopts the said report, and thanks the Commissioners for their just and impartial conduct in the matters referred to them."

PEACE AMONG MINERS.

All Talk of Strike Among Hard Coal Miners Silenced.

Scranton, Pa., June 17.—President Mitchell has just prevailed over all talk of strike in the anthracite coal fields has issued a circular to convention of mine workers yesterday unanimously adopted, and resolutions providing that each district should vote separately on the election of the representatives on the Conciliation Board. The three district presidents were named as the miner's representatives on the board. Mother resolution provided for settling that all grievances, instead of being thrashed out in debate, should be left to the Conciliation Board for consideration.

Fatalists Used Hammer.

Windsor, June 17.—Mrs. Gregory Langlois, about 45 years old, living on the Naiscoutin Road, near Walkerville, made a desperate attempt to kill herself by deliberately committing her skull with a hammer. She will die.

CANADIANS WERE VICTIMS

Mr. A. M. Gunn and Family, Formerly of London in Disaster.

Hugh Clark, M.P.P., Fears His Brother Has Been Drowned in the Hopped Steamboat Flood — Five Hundred People Dead—The Visitation Was So Swift That Nothing Could Be Done to Save Anybody.

Toronto, June 17.—It is feared that a brother of Hugh Clark, M. P. P., may have been one of the victims of the water-spout horror in the west. Mr. Clark was in the general store business of Miner & Co., and has been in Heppner for seven or eight years. The home of Dean Miner, one of the firm, is mentioned as having been demolished by the flood, and Mrs. Miner killed.

London People Lost.

London, June 17.—Among the hundreds of people who lost their lives in the cloudburst at Heppner, Oregon, on the 14th inst., were the family of A. M. Gunn, and son of Mrs. Catharine Gunn, Oxford street. He lived in the town of Heppner, and it is feared he and his family, consisting of his wife and four children, may have been lost. Reports say that Mr. Boyd and family, who lived next door to the Gunns', are lost. Later reports state that Mr. and Mrs. Gunn were drowned.

Five Hundred Dead.

The Dalles, Ore., June 17.—A telegram this morning from Heppner says that the latest find in the ruins of Heppner indicates that the loss of life will be much greater than at first supposed. The casualty list will foot up 500, and many more bodies will never be recovered. One hundred and fifty of the bodies have been found from the earth.

Among the incidents of the catastrophe was the saving of three lives by Julius Keitley, five years old, who rode a mile and a half and saved three people. James Kornan, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company agent, met his death at his telegraph key trying to call Portland, to inform the outside world of the impending calamity.

Flood Was at Supper.

Portland, Oregon, June 17.—N. I. Tooker of Portland, survivor of the Heppner disaster, says the cloudburst struck the town at 5:30 p.m., when everyone was at supper.

"All were taken so suddenly," says Mr. Tooker, "that nothing could be done to save them. Houses, stores and buildings in the main portion of the town were torn loose and swept onward. Those who were on the streets shouted for help, but the rush made it to the hills for their lives."

Families Washed Away.

David McAtee, an eye-witness of the disaster, says: "Hundreds of persons were demolished, and Mrs. Miner drowned, the rest of the family succeeded in saving themselves by clinging to the roof. The house of Mr. Boyd, and Mrs. Allingham are also destroyed, and both families lost. The two houses of Benjamin Patterson, Mr. Gunn and Mr. Noble were entirely demolished, and all persons in the three families drowned, as were the families of James Jones and Henry Blair."

Land Under Water.

Vancouver, B. C., June 17.—The water in the Peace River is higher than it has been since 1894. Fitt Modow dyke has broken down, and as a result over a thousand acres of land is under water. At Upper Summit, William Mulhodley is also thinking the current so swift, waded in and was swept away and drowned. Fifty families are deserting their farms on Nicoman Island.

BRITISH BARQUE MISSING.

The MacDuff and Her Crew of Thirty Men Lost.

New York, June 17.—The British barque MacDuff, Capt. Jones, left April 28, in ballast, for Pensacola, Fla., and was reported yesterday as missing by her agents. She had a crew of about 30 men.

Socialists Lead in Germany.

Berlin, June 17.—The leading feature in the Reichstag elections, which were held yesterday, was the success of the Social Democrats, who have probably increased their representation by 15 seats and their total vote to 2,500,000, or 400,000 more than in 1898. Next to the Socialists the success of the Socialists, which has been at the expense of them, all.

New Grand Masonic Secretary.

Hamilton, June 17.—The new Grand Secretary of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Canada was yesterday morning appointed by Mr. J. E. Harding, Grand Master, to succeed him from Lindsay for the purpose. Mr. Hugh Murray, P.G.M., of Hamilton, received the appointment, succeeding Major J. J. Mason, of this city, who died Monday.

First Spike Driven.

North Bay, June 17.—An event of more than local interest took place on Monday, when the first spike in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was driven by Mayor McKenzie. Already about one mile of track is laid, and a work train on it.

WANT OF CONFIDENCE VOTE

Government's Answer to Needs of the Market Gardeners.

Mr. Leonard's Motion Asking For More Protection on Garden Produce, Not Discussed on Its Merits, But Voted Down —Mr. Blair's Railway Bill—Mrs. R. M. Meyers Moves Resolution re. Drainage and Compels Attention.

Ottawa, June 17.—Mr. Blair's railway commission bill encountered considerable opposition yesterday in the clauses affecting drainage. Mr. M. K. Cowan, who has taken a keen interest on the farmer's side of this question, led the fight, and found many sympathizers on both sides of the House. He moved six amendments, all of which applied at the publication of the methods by which the farmer may obtain fair play from the railways in respect of drainage. Mr. Blair at first was loth to be indifferent, but as member after member, many of them Government supporters, arose to speak for Cowan's amendment, the Minister of Railways modified his tone and finally consented to give the provisions of the Ontario and South Essex his most earnest attention.

More Protection Asked.

The interests of the market gardeners were discussed in the House last night. J. E. Leonard moved for a duty of 3 cents per pound on lettuce, 2 cents per pound on radishes, 25 cents a dozen on cauliflowers, cucumbers and lettuce, 50 cents per bushel on potatoes, onions, green beans and tomatoes. He, apparently, feared that the motion would not be reached, and he, therefore, precipitated a debate on the policy of going into Committee of Supply. The Government and its followers treated the motion as a vote of want of confidence in the Government. They refused to discuss it on its merits, arguing that this was no time to discuss tariffs. When up to amendment was defeated by 100, to 51.

Neither Under Accepted.

Sir Richard Cartwright stated that neither of the two tenders for the fast Atlantic service had been accepted. One of them, however, was the basis for future negotiations.

Mr. Tim Hon. of $35,000 for expenses engaged the House until 1.30 o'clock a.m. Before adjournment, it was announced that on the morrow protection resolution would be debated to-day.

NO 10-HOUR LIMIT.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Amendment Endorsed by Railway Committee.

Ottawa, Ont., June 17.—At the meeting of the Railway Committee yesterday the Grand Trunk bill was taken up for consideration.

The Railway Committee passed an order that before the construction of any railway section was commenced the location should be approved by the Governor-in-Council, and no part of such location shall be nearer than 30 miles to any constructed or located main line of railway unless for special reasons to be named by the Governor-in-Council.

In lieu of this the Grand Trunk Company proposed the following: Provided always that before the construction of any portion of the "Prairie section" in the Northwest Territories is commenced, the location thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, having regard to the principle that except for the purpose of reaching important points, or other special or satisfactory reasons, such location shall, as far as practicable, be so made that each main line of railway shall be constructed at such distance, generally, not less than thirty miles from any other main line of railway constructed or the same location already constructed, or located by plans sanctioned by the Minister of Railways and Canals prior to the passing of this act, as the Governor-in-Council may deem reasonable."

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company provided instead, as follows:—"Provided always that before the construction of any portion of the "prairie section" is commenced the location thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, having regard to the principle that except for the purpose of approaching Winnipeg, Battleford and Edmonton, or for other satisfactory reasons, such location shall, as far as practicable, be so made that each main line of railway shall be constructed at such distance generally not less than 30 miles from any line of railway running in the same general direction constructed, under construction, or located by plans sanctioned by the Minister of Railways and Canals, prior to the application for such approval, as the Governor-in-Council may deem reasonable."

The original proposition was moved at the Railway Committee by Mr.

Made of Petroleum, rendered tasteless and odorless, and combined with glycerine and hypophosphites. Pleasant to take, and agrees with the stomach.

H. C. Fraser. Mr. McCarthy moved the amendment of the Grand Trunk Company, which was supported by Mr. Blair. Finally, the amendment, as proposed by the Grand Trunk and supported by the Government, was adopted, and the bill was reported.

THE PANIC SUBSIDES.

No Startling News From St. Thomas Liquidators For Eight Appointed.

St. Thomas, June 17.—The panic here has subsided, and the people whose money is tied up in the Atlas and Elgin Loan companies are simply awaiting the developments of the liquidators. The affairs of the Atlas Co., it is feared, are hopelessly involved.

The London & Western Co., which was appointed liquidators of the Elgin Co., have not yet taken charge, but take temporary charge of the office. The impression is that the Elgin will pay, while the shareholders will be returned 75 or 80 per cent. The depositors and other loan companies have had a fair withdrawal of deposits this morning, and the postoffice received about $10,000 on deposit from the Atlas company.

Bowley, the defaulting and absconding manager of the Elgin Loan Co., has not been heard from.

IRISH LAND BILL.

Mr Wyndham Declines to Accept Amendments of Mr. Redmond.

London, June 17.—In the House of Commons yesterday John Redmond, Nationalist, moved to go into Committee on the Irish Land Bill asking for the abolition of the minimum price at which the landlord may sell, even though the landlord and tenant might agree that a lower price was discussed. Mr. Wyndham was unable to accept the amendment. He agreed to the minimum reduction to 15 per cent. in the case of a second term sale and to 25 per cent. in the case of term rents. John Redmond, T. Healy, and John Muley complained of Mr. Wyndham's attitude.

Mr. Wyndham said he realized the gravity of the situation, but the minimum reductions must remain 10 and 20 per cent. respectively.

Mr. Redmond's amendment was rejected by a vote of 317 to 276.

James Smith Shoots Himself.

London, June 17.—About 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon James Smith, a pensioner, living at 24 Ann street, committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver. He was visiting friends at Carling's Heights with a couple of friends. Without any warning he walked into a tent and placed a revolver to his forehead and fired. He was taken to the hospital, where the bullet extracted by Dr. Piper. Up till 11 o'clock last evening he was still unconscious. The doctor in attendance says that his chances of recovery were very good.

Toronto Man Drowned.

Orangeville, June 17.—J. B. Grant of Toronto, clerk of the firm of Gray & Co., wholesale dealers in hides and leather, was drowned in Caledon Lake, about three miles from sort about two miles from here, shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday evening. With two others he was taking some fish out of a net which was in the second lake, when their boat capsized, throwing them all into the lake. A few moments after striking the bottom of the overturned boat, but Grant, slipped off and was drowned.

8,886 Killed by Railways.

Washington, June 17.—During 1902 the number of casualties on U. S. railways on account of accidents was 87,330, including 8,386 killed and 54,652 injured. Of railway employes 2,960 were killed and 50,524 were injured. The number of passengers killed was 345 and the number injured, 6,688.

A YANKEE'S SHORT MEMORY.
(Ottawa Citizen.)

The Detroit Journal indulges in a long editorial soliloquy on the Servian murderers and felicitates its own country thus:—

It is all news now to us. It is a drama not on our stage. We are detached from any and all responsibility for the bloody scene enacted, the flow down to the end of dynasties and kings from this perfectly successful and neatly executed conspiracy to do wholesale murder for cause.

The inference of the article is that the big republic is exempt from these turmoils. The journal says editorially:

"The last political plot which at all resembled the Servian business was hatched in Washington, U. S. A. Just as soon as it succeeded after four years of internecine war, a band of conspirators murdered the President and tried to exterminate the Cabinet, but only succeeded in badly mutilating a couple of Ministers. Since that two more Presidents have been murdered. Republics cannot afford to contrast their alleged exemption from such crimes as compared with monarchies."

Canadian papers are talking about King Edward's overthrow as if Canadians Karamazovitch whether he is king or not.

New York is to have a building forty feet long, twenty-six feet wide and seventeen stories high. It is to be used for offices. We would it not be better to utilize it as a chimney for adjoining buildings, or convert it into a dove-cote or something of that kind?

This is how Hon. Joe Chamberlain's proposition is viewed by the Chicago Live Stock World:

"On the one hand this will revive in the almost lost art of agriculture in the Mother Country and stimulate at the same time the agricultural production of British dependencies so far removed as Australia, Egypt and India. It will secure a home market for British manufactures to the Mother Country and create a greater and more natural market in every British dependency, free in both cases from inroads of American and German competition. On the other hand, it will strike a heavy and bitter blow to every manufacturing country now exporting to England—manufacturing

In a Chariot of Fire.

"Morning, Lije. Didn't expect it was you here, Sunday. Don't you be a pirin' fellow's pretty wide berth. When it's pirin' out to start sich on the ordinary business?" It was the hankering smell and friendly face of Jerry Hallis of the Mansion House bar-room.

"Oh, no, Jerry. Are you all right, us?" said the straggling six-footer, who had just come in from the stable yard, with a pair of beautifully arranged bull-terriers at his heels.

"Right, so am I, Lije. Don't you give the men to the poor?" continued the bar-keeper, with a view to the intellect party of habitues seated near the window.

"Bell Bitzker and Beefer"—not while I have the price of a drink in my pocket—"Dick Tobhunter, Polish Tod hunter, stopping and patting both his dogs affectionately the while—"and this has been a pretty fair season—yes, sir, pretty fair—in the bread business. I don't reckon on reaching my last shekel for a day or two yet. But, say, Jerry, what's the meaning of this chariot thing they're all getting at?"

"Black?" said Jerry. "Why, old fellow, it's reported you got religion last night. Elder Burns—Elijah Todd hunter, stopping and patting both his dogs affectionately the while—"and this has been a pretty fair season—yes, sir, pretty fair—in the bread business. I don't reckon on reaching my last shekel for a day or two yet. But, say, Jerry, what's the meaning of this chariot thing they're all getting at?"

"Black?" said Jerry. "Why, old fellow, it's reported you got religion last night. Elder Burns—Elijah Todd—at these revival meetin's. The boys say you've been there every night hand-runnin'—they seen you goin' in."

"Religion!" was the exclamation of disgust and denial—but one sharp, summarizing exclamation. "Religion! Why

TIMELY TOPICS.

Now, there's the City Hall clock. It keeps good time, of course; nobody can deny that, and so long as you don't get too far away from it in daylight—you can tell the time of day with neatness and despatch. But when the lovely Queen of Night spreads her mantle o'er the scene there is quite a different story to tell. The fallow candle—or whatever it is—inside the venerable timepiece does not begin to give the illumination necessary. The "dim, religious light" is just about strong enough to enable people who are close to the City Hall to tell the time. Up by the upper bridge, on Murney's hill, on the east hill or at the wharf a fellow would need a spyglass in order to be able to tell whether he was looking at the hour hand or a crack in the face of the dial.

The Council should make a bold plunge, appropriate fifteen or twenty cents from the elevator fund and have the old clock re-wired and washed. If they could muster up courage enough—without submitting a by-law to the people—they have a two-candle power electric light installed inside the clock tower they would receive a robust vote of thanks from many people in this city.

And, by the way: Quite a few parties would like to see the light in the clock tower do business all night.

They think it looks plesyunish and countrified to see a city clock hide its face in darkness after the witching hour of night has struck. It might, possibly, cost thirty cents a year more to keep the clock illuminated all night, but what of that—this is an age of progress.

That fellow who proclaimed a cold, rainy and disagreeable June didn't make such a bad guess, after all.

Band concerts sound nicer in September, anyhow.

The worst of this weather is that it keeps back work on the gravelitik sidewalks.

The Solar Plexus and Indigestion.

HOW WORRY AND MENTAL EXCITION CAUSE DYSPEPSIA—CURE FOUND IN

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The solar plexis is the largest nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system, and by it is described the storehouse of nervous energy. It is situated in the back of the stomach, and supplies the motive power which controls the machinery of digestive system.

If an excessive amount of nerve force is consumed in the brain by worry, anxiety, mental strain or disease, the supply of energy in the solar plexus is correspondingly deficient, and hence lacking nerve force the vital organs only feebly perform their functions. The stomach thinks first slowly; the muscular walls of the stomach lose their power which gives the machinery of digestion.

Mr. Joseph Brosseau, carter, 89 South John street, Belleville, Ont., states:—"My trouble was nervous dyspepsia, which resulted from mental exhaustion of the nervous system, and I also suffered from sleeplessness and was afflicted with nervous headache. After having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I am glad to say that the headaches have disappeared, I rest and sleep well, my digestion is good and my general health better than it has been for years."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new red corpuscles in the blood, creates nerve force and gives one effectual lasting cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and resulting headaches, dizzy spells and irritability by supplying the necessary energy to the solar plexus. By using your increase of weight from week to week while using this great food cure you can prove that your system is being built up and new flesh and tissue being added to the body. 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box.

A ROYAL CAPTIVE.

"Queen Lize the Head That Wears a Crown," Likely to Prove True to Servia's New Ruler.

Belgrade, June 17.—The position of King Peter I. promises to be little more than that of a royal captive. The real head of the country will be a military dictatorship, under the leaders of the revolution, Col. Maschin and Col. Mitchitsch. The new King is almost without any personal authority, and the ruling spirits of the army, it is thought probable, would not hesitate to rid him as they did his predecessor, should he oppose their aims.

At the present moment, the whole country is under military rule, and although no prefects in the country districts have been removed, each is accompanied by an army officer who attends the prefect wherever he goes. There has been no disorder, however. Extremely forcible arguments were found necessary to suppress the Radical aspirations for a republic.

The foremost advocate of a republican form of Government was Ljubomir Stokkovitch, Minister of War Belgrade Odjek. Finding him impervious to arguments, the conspirators invited him to a dinner at the Officers' Club. The hosts told him that unless he agreed to support King Peter there would be one head less in Belgrade. Stokkovitch yielded to the force of this reasoning, and accepted the situation as new Minister of Justice in the new Government.

Conspirators Were Paid.

Berlin, June 17.—The Berliner Tageblatt's correspondent at Rome asserts that Colonel Maschin and his fellow conspirators received a large sum of money for their deed.

Czar Congratulates Him.

Geneva, June 17.—The Czar has telegraphed to King Peter as follows: "Learning that the Senate and Skupschtina had formally proclaimed you King of Servia, I venture to express to Your Majesty sincere wishes for the prosperity of your country, and the hope that God may come to your assistance in the enterprise you have undertaken for the happiness of your people. (Signed) "Nicholas."

BIG FIRE IN WINNIPEG.

Premier Balfour's Block in the Canadian City Ablaze.

Winnipeg, June 17.—The old Balfour block at the corner of McDermott avenue and Main street was gutted by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. The business premises located in the block were: Read & Clark, manufacturing jewellers; H. Jacobs, cigar manufacturer; Ford Stationery Co., printers; McAllister & Watt, smallwares and notions; Toms & Davidson, and the Ross tea agency. The block was a three-story brick structure, and was owned by Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, leader of the British House of Commons. The total loss will be $80,000.

ONE QUESTION

and it's a fair one:—
Why should you buy "Queen Quality" Shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale?

In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality?" Thousands of women do just this thing, so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it?

It is this:—Queen Quality gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more—that is—an accurate fit.

EPITOLE HERBIN — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED. — Some months ago, five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia. For three years I suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint, and at that time consulting the Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by them, but without success. At that time I was confined to the house in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to be very much troubled. I was induced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to feel relief. I continued to use this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found it was entirely cured; and as I have had no need since then, I feel confident that the cure was permanent. I can recommend it to all afflicted with this distressing complaint, and I would advise them to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the best medicine of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

astonishing stock of anecdotes regarding Lincoln's early days, when he was rich, the lobsters and little difficulty in recognizing their aunt.

"Harry, a boy living on that there Green," the driver said, jerking his whip forward, "he is the most astonishing old character you ever seen. He's got a fortune runnin' into three millions if she was a pound, as I've heard say—and yet do you think he'd live a decent life? Not him. He's a regular nuisance and forfeitures for getting 'ores! Not also! Only the other afternoon, I says to 'Arry, 'Ere 'ad her way she'd shut them out of the front and the back door. With, 'er money she might 'ave in 'er stables as pretty a bit of 'orseflesh as there is at little compassion worter person, and a cook wot ain't got a c'ill word for and my constant custom. I'd call at once a month, an' a mo' servant would be created creati' pride, and an important boy of his not runs errands 'and takes the 6 pence. Which I must say they'd 'ard brass, every inch of 'em blood 'and bone—a bull an' a staff and a boarhound—also lady's pets, I must say! A friend of mine and I 'ave the mastiff, an' a mo' sear. 'I want something murderous, says she—something that will kill at sight.' And 'ere's 'Arold of ghosts. My friend 'e says he could warrant a dog could pin down anything living but, as for dead meat, 'e couldn't give no guarantee—not, 'e'd. But, take 'er for all it all, she's a stag'ar old customer to old Mrs. Revelsworth. 'Ow do you do, my dear? You are, sir; an' over the 'istorical Palace, where 'Enry the Eighth cut his wives' 'eads off. You'll you'll find all about that in the catalogue. I ain't much of a one for 'istory myself. Good day,sir, and thanks!' Ah, 'ere's a fare!"

Revelsworth House was a long, low red-brick residence, mellowed by time into a porphin tint, and covered in summer by wistaria and Virginia-creeper trained upon trellis-work over the entire front of the building.

Behind the back of the house was a stone-paved yard hemmed in by stables; in the front, a small garden, bordered by a wall and a row of limes, and divided it from the footpath, the roadway, and the Green. Above the doors of the two windows, by craning one's neck, a good view of the Palace gates, by the north side and the interstice to the first court could be obtained.

Tradition, and that Revelsworth House was as old as the Palace itself—for he the oldest house on the Green; but in George the Third's reign the then owner had replaced the red bricks with slates,put up new chimneys, and built out a large and lumpy room, which, with the two Spanish-like wings on slender iron pillars over the dining-room on the back overlooking the flat, apartment to be enveloped, winter and summer, in chimneys of glass. The entire appearance of the house having been changed, and the old-fashioned sash frames, it retained little, if any, of its Tudor character. The heavy gateway of painted red-brick pillars surmounted by discolored stone globes belonged to a much later period, and the railing here and on the days of Good Queen Anne, and the door, with its brass knocker, a very old, very solid timber, providentially left to its own natural color, was surmounted by a fanlight of thick-set, set portion, printed white, and wholly out of harmony with the rest of the building.

The spike of the tulips, hyacinths, and daffodils making gray the little shaped beds in the front-garden and the variegated box-borad round them, and the projection on the first-floor level, there was something forthcoming in the aspect of the house, which, at all not by any stretch of imagination coujtes up the thought of little fair-haired children toddling in and out of gloomy worm-eaten old door, or chasing each other along the narrow stone-paved red mouth, a figure of girlish grace and loveliness, and dressed in the mode and garbs of the prim garden. A sober and austere impressive, and yet withal quiet and comfortable, was the appearance of the house, and the old-fashioned garden in harmony with it.

A sober and austere impressive, and yet withal quiet and comfortable, was the appearance of the house, and the old-fashioned garden in harmony with it.

"Is Mrs. Revelsworth in, if you please?" Victor inquired, driving with unwarrantable recklessness the girl was not a servant, in spite of the plainness of her dress and the white cotton apron she wore.

He raised his hat as he spoke, and the little maid blushed all over her face and shyly smiled.

"Mrs. Revelsworth is in; and—it is Mr. Revelsworth, is it not?"

Victor answered in the affirmative, smiling back at her.

She was a neat, trim, tiny creature, withal so friendly, that it was difficult to avoid smiling at her. Barely five feet in height; with silky dark hair cut short by a boy's, hazel eyes that were full of light, a short childish nose, a curved and extremely kissable little mouth, a figure of girlish grace and slimness, and diminutive hands and feet, it was not easy at first sight to divine her age, which might have been anything between fifteen and twenty.

The spirit of both young men rose at sight of her. Whatever might be the impression (disagreeable or not) the "stag'ar old customer" Mrs. Revelsworth, it was satisfactory to know, in the eyes of her neighbors, that the frequent presence, that here in the house, was a sunny and feminine personality, who in height and build and cheery voice and smile recalled to them their post "Petite."

The hall across which she led them was narrow, hardly any wider, in fact, than the so-called "hall" supplied to modern semi-detached villas. Later on Dudley ascertained that it was the Vandyck and George the Third's taste who had subdivided the wide Tudor hall with oak partitions, which as even the most casual observer, in the early days of Queen Victoria had liberally coated it with glaring whitewash. Some stags' heads and antlers were fastened at intervals along the panelled woodwork, which led to a staircase of shallow oak steps and massive bulbed balusters. Altogether out of keeping, reason of its width and importance, with the cramped condition of the hall.

On the first floor was a very long narrow passage, lighted by three windows overlooking the court-yard, and furnished with a set of doors. Of these little guide passed before the door on her left hand at the top of its stairs.s, and turned in a heal-ating manner to the right hand.

"Perhaps I oughtn't to have shown you right up at first," she said ingenuously, "but I've been watching for you from the dining-room window ever since luncheon, and I was so excited that I forgot. Would you mind waiting here in the drawing-room a moment while I go and prepare Mrs. Revelsworth to receive you?"

She had disappeared through the door on the left, whence she emerged after a short interval, brimming over with suppressed laughter.

"Her ma made me decre,be you both," she whispered. "She will see you now. And don't be hurt by anything she may say," she added hurriedly, with her hand on the door; "she doesn't mean to be disagreeable."

The room into which she ushered them was a very large one, extending as it did right through the house, from the bay in front to the wall at the back, in which were two large modern windows overlooking the court-yard and the garden. Evidently belonged to two generations back, ottomans, settees, arm-chairs and sofas, solidly made and upholstered in amber damask, covered with washed-out cretonnes and stiff birds and wax-work flowers in glass cases, a chandelier and candelabra, also with cut-glass pendants, old-fashioned water-colors in ormolu frames, and a grand piano—all these, not carefully veiled in brown holland, but chairs and tables covered with white crochet work flowers, spoke as clearly as did the marble mantelpiece and the Brussels carpet—harmony it of the conservative tastes and strict economy of the lady of the house.

Mrs. Revelsworth was seated in the bay-window, shielded from the spring sunshine by a partially-lowered Venetian blind and by an old-fashioned parasol which fan as a pivot fixed upon a table beside her chair. A very large and very handsome sewing basket, and another smaller cage for a pair of love-birds completed favorable pose-tions in the bay, and a ferocious-looking white bull-dog, with crimson eyes, a curly tail and a bark hardly the semblance of a nose, lay stretched upon a white fur rug at her feet.

Margaret Revelsworth bore her secretary-son and a half years Well, She was a tall woman, wonderfully erect for her age, with well-marked features, large dark, eyebrows over keen blue-eyes, gray hair brushed back from down on either side of her face, and a remarkably good complexion. Her dress of purple silk, white lace cap with purpl- bows, and white cashmere shawl but clearly became her, and for the occasion; but the young men were afterwards to learn that the diamond crescent which gleamed among the lace on the collar of her gown, the diamond star on her fingers, and the long drop-earrings of pearls and diamonds in her ears were part of her ordinary and habitual costume for every day.

As the lady scrutinized the two young men attentively as they approached her before proffering to them a hand, yellow and wrinkled, but still possessing power of grip that many a younger woman might have envied.

"Sit down!" she said imperatively. "Betty, bring two chairs up! It isn't any good to stand. Sit down—don't be afraid. It's simply that with the sun's rays so strong and direct, it isn't easy to make out anything clearly. So you're Dudley's boy—not much doubt about that, I should say," she added, addressing herself to Dudley. "You're a Revelsworth all over, if you—all traces of big shoulders, bright color, blue eyes and curly hair. I was a good woman, I'd sooner have married your father than anybody else, though I was a good bit older than either of them. And that's the French boy! Not much look of a Revelsworth about him. What were Dudley and Harold about, marrying foreigners? You're like your mother, I suppose?" she asked Victor abruptly.

"No, madame. I regret to say I do not resemble my mother, who is very fayre."

"Humph! Makes up, I suppose, like most Frenchwomen!"

"She does not need to," interposed Dudley hastily, noting the angry color which rose to his brother's brow. "Victor's mother, Mrs. Revelsworth, has been a mother to me, is so extremely pretty that she does not require art to enhance her attractions."

"So she has got round you too!" observed the disagreeable old lady. "And why hasn't the paragon come to England with you?"

"Unfortunately, madame, she does not like England or the manners of the English."

"Mine, I suppose you mean!" Mrs. Revelsworth said, with a short laugh. "But I'm too old to have them French-fied now. They've served me for nearly eighty years."

"You're a—a!" shrieked the grey parrot, suddenly awakening from its quiet repose, and little Betty ducked her head behind the sofa-cushion she was dusting to hide her laughing face.

"Quiet from Simpson," Mrs. Revelsworth went on, ignoring the interruption, "that you two have been earning your living in Paris, teaching or fiddling, scribbling, or something. Have you any money, either of you?"

"Enough at least to make us independent," answered Dudley.

"Nobody's indepen- ent who hasn't a fig balance at the be.k," said the lady, "Independence is nothing to envy. Simply a relief from debts."

The parrot screamed the parrot again.

"Betty, put polly's cover on. Why can't you applied to your relatives in England all these years? And why didn't you and George the Third's boy come to me for help any time these twenty years instead of letting themselves to ora.n.n a foreign country and marrying heathens?"

"Because I knew that Victor could endure. Springing from his seat, and disregarding the dog, which rose at last at him by the little Betty from behind the lady's chair, he addressed his aunt in tones which vibrated with emotion, "I will permit no disparagement, madame, if I must—pardon me, madame, if I can no more listen. I beg to say I have the honor to wish you leave!"

"Bless my heart! Here are heroics!" murmured Mrs. Revelsworth. "And pray are you going to fight the dog with the sword you've risen also.

"My brother rep:ised my testimonials to servitude," interposed Dudley stiffly.

"Are you sure are a pair of fools!" cried Mrs. Revelsworth, sitting up and vigorously slapping the arm of her chair-cushion. "Sit down, both of you! I tell you that there is a million at stake, and that I don't leave it to any Frenchmen's nieces! And, if you two boys prefer making fools of yourselves, I will be odd if I cannot somewhere unearth a Revelsworth to make my heiress. I'll be bothered by no sophisticated young prigs! Betty, there's the postman—very good; send bring a the barrister to my secretament—run down and fetch the letters! And you two sit down—sit down with as an old woman bids you—asks you to do, in her own House!"

The two young men resumed their seats, feeling somewhat foolish, and extremely angry and ashamed of their anger.

"You're both Revelsworths in temper, I see," the old lady observed, presently after a pause. "Pig-headed, like all the rest of us and firing up at a word. Well, I don't like you less for being rude to me in spite of my money, if, and as to the French boy, I'll not discuss her while you are staying with me. Now, then, question number five," she asked, as both young men looked up hurriedly. "And will it surprise you still more to learn that you'll have to take up your abods here, in this dull old house, for a time, at least—for a month at least a year? You won't find it unendurable after Paris, I'll be bound. I want to learn something of you, and there's no way so good as having you under my own eyes all day long for all the time.

Before the brothers could comment upon this unexpected suggestion little Betty interposed with a letter. Mrs. Revelsworth at once opened and proceeded to read through, laughing in a little disagreeable way at eyes but disdaining the use of spectacles. Clearly the boys saw the letter contained for her an interesting nature, for the old lady looked a little disappointed at having put it down with a short laugh and glanced keenly across at her nephews.

"So another Revelsworth has appeared upon the scene!" she said. "My lawyer Simpson writes me word by half-past ten o'clock this morning a baby girl was born on the preceding day, and had seen, quite by accident, the identity-card of the child's mother. Being only child of Harold Revelsworth, and Signorina Bianca Bianchi, and was apparently able to prove her identity to the satisfaction of Simpson. More than he is coming down here to-night. So that I shall have," the old lady counted on her fingers, "exactly an arm-chair with an air of antipathetic empowerment, "the satisfaction of having all the claimants to the Revelsworth name and fortune gathered together under the same roof."

A pause followed this startling announcement. Then Dudley spoke, not without trepidation, for this outspoken domineering old lady was about to be consulted to have her own way in everything.

"Do I understand," he said,"that you wish us—my brother and myself—to spend the night here?"

"Why not?" asked Margaret Revelsworth. "You are not like girls to be missing your powder-puffs and dressing-gowns. The shops close early in the evening. We dine at seven. You have plenty of time to go out and get a tooth-brush! Betty, my dear, you can take the cover off Polly now. Neuralgia and Chronic Rheumatism Plans young man are going for a walk and dinner. And understand, boys, I'm not 'Madame' or anything foreign, and simply 'aunt Margaret.' Oh, and before you go you must know my mother was a Revelsworth who married a Manningtonn? Betty here isn't a Revelsworth; but she is, I think you'll find how you can go. First dinner-bell is ten minutes to seven, and I have never been kept waiting in my life."

"You wouldn't be such an ass!" he said quietly. "After all, setting aside her rudeness an her, prejudices, what she said was quite right. If she's got to leave the money we've been just miserably hurt our laughing.

"But she is importable, the old scut!" exclaimed Victor; while Dudley took up his hat and ran his fingers through his short curly hair in a manner habitual to him when disturbed in mind. "If she speaks one word to me more about my mother, I shall bow, and say, 'Madame, you may have my property, but

PROBABLY no human invention has added the course of justice to a greater extent, says London "Tit-Bits," than the snapshot camera. It has been instrumental in condemning criminals, and has also been the means before now of saving innocent lives.

A case in point is that of Alfred Grayson, an Englishman who was living a few years ago at Rio de Janeiro. He was accused of the murder of a Brazilian named Linares, a clerk in the same office with himself. The two were known to have quarreled some days previous to the Sunday on which Linares met his death. Apparently, however, they had made up their difference, for they went out sailing that day on a small yacht which Grayson had hired.

In the evening Grayson brought the dead body of Linares home. His story was that the latter had fallen from the mast and fractured his skull. But medical evidence was of opinion the wound on the head had been made with a stick or oar. An oar was missing from the yacht's dinghy. The mast-climbing story, too, sounded improbable, for the rigging was all worked from deck. Talking this over in counsel with consideration, and Grayson's well-known violent temper, the case was black, indeed, against the Englishman. The coroner's jury had already found him guilty of murder, when a passenger on a Marseilles steamer, which had arrived in Rio on the Sunday afternoon, came forward with a new piece of evidence.

"This was a snap-shot photograph taken as the vessel entered the harbor, Far away, under the cliffs, is the vessel was sailing, and against the white sail was a dark mark, which a powerful magnifier proved to be a falling man. By an almost miraculous coincidence the camera had been snapped just as Linares fell. The photograph turned the scale in Grayson's favor.

Almost equally curious is the way in which a photograph aided justice in the Cooper murder case. Cooper was assistant to a young blacksmith named McKenna in a Lanarkshire village. Both men were known to be fond of the same girl. One day Cooper was found dead on the floor of the smithy. He had been poisoned with carbolic acid. McKenna was suspected, but there was no proof whatever of his having ever bought or owned any carbolic acid, while Cooper was known to have purchased, as a toothache remedy, the phial found beside his dead body, "Death from misadventure" was the verdict.

Shortly afterwards McKenna was arrested. It appeared that an enthusiastic tourist provided with a kodak had passed through the village on the very morning of the murder. Attracted by the quaintness of the old forge, he had taken several snap-shots of it. The photographer went on to stay in an out-of-the-way part of the Highlands, and did not hear of Cooper's death for some days. Then he hastened to develop his plates. Plain in one of the pictures were three bottles on a shelf. Two were beer bottles, the third was unmistakably one of those fluted blue glass bottles in which poisons are sold. It had also a label on it, and though the wording in this could not be read, yet on the strength of this evidence the police made a thorough search of McKenna's premises. They found the remains of the bottle in question in an old well, and proved that it had contained carbolic acid. Then McKenna confessed his guilt.

The more recent developments of scientific photography must make the criminal feel less secure than he used to. One of those thieves who make a living by van-robbing got an unpleasant shock one day in March last. He had safely got off with a tub of butter which he had stolen from the tail of a wagon as it was crossing a bridge in Rochester, N.Y. The deadly witness against him was a photograph taken by telephotography from the top of a neighboring high building.

A biograph picture of the Grand Trunk Railway bridge over the Niagara Gorge was recently taken, and, when developed, thrown upon the screen at a music hall at Toronto. It was then noticed for the first time by the audience that a human body was tossing and spinning in the whirling waters. Search was at once made, and the body of a missing and much-advertised suicide was discovered, still caught in the furious suction of the whirlpool.

Hindu criminals succeed by long practice in forming a little bag for their throats into which they can guide jewels when they steal them. Last September a man was arrested for stealing a diamond worth 12,000 rupees from a jeweler's window in Calcutta. But as the evidence was only circumstantial, and possession unproved, he would have been liberated had it not occurred to the police that an X-ray photograph taken of his throat. That showed them safely hidden in the little sac. The thief was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, but he still refuses to give up the diamond.

The Roentgen-ray photography has also been instrumental in aiding several thousand pounds to the customs revenue of France alone within the last year. Valuable jewelry on which no duty was being paid was known to be coming into the country in letters. It is, however, illegal to open letters or stamped packages, so the lawbreakers were unchecked. At last, in June, 1900, several registered letters and packages were examined under X-rays in the presence of the Argentine Postmaster-General. Sixty-six suspected packages contained £1,000 worth of jewelry, and were, of course, all confiscated.

Valuable Man.

"I say," said the business man to the detective, "some fellow has been representing himself as a collector of ours. He has been taking in more money than any two of the men we have, and I want him collared as quickly as you can."

"All right; I'll have him in jail in less than a week."

"Great Scott, man! I don't want to put him in jail; I want to engage him."

BETTER CLOTHING VALUES

Although neglecting no part of our assortment we have made special effort to secure an extra fine grade in Ready-to-Wear goods.

Realizing that many men would take advantage of the saving that can be accomplished by the purchase of the "already garments," if they could get them fine enough, our aim has been to meet that demand and in our "20th Century" clothing we have an article which is in every way superior to the usual grades.

A garment which is now being worn by many of the best dressed men in this city.

The makers of these goods are expert tailors and we can if you prefer have your garments made from your measure at a trifle more.

We would like every man to see the extra quality of these —not only outside but throughout the whole suit.

A little more cost—a great deal more value.

If you want the best, come in and see our 20th Century clothing.

—Fine Tweed and worsted suits with best linings and trimmings, guaranteed to give satisfaction in every way ..... $10.00 to $25.00

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

A Prince Edward Boy's Success.

Mr. Loree K. Fike, son of Dr. Fike, Ameliasburg, has obtained his degree of Bachelor of Arts at Toronto University, and carried off the Ghasha Gold Medal in Senior Mathematics. His career at school has been remarkably successful. He passed the Primary Examination at the Picton High School, obtaining the highest marks of any candidate in the Province. He secured his Junior Leaving Certificate at the same school and subsequently obtained the First Class Certificate at Napanee Collegiate, winning honors at both examinations. During his course at the University, he took an honor course and secured a scholarship each year, being successful enough one of these years to win two scholarships.

SPEAKERS SORE THROAT.

Public speakers and singers know how useless and blistering are coughmixtures, sprays, lozenges, &c., for irritable or sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhozone, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use in public places. Catarrhozone relieves congestion, allays irritation, and is a protection to the membranes. As a safe guard against colds and influenza it has no equal. Rev. Mr. McKay, Goderich, says "Catarrhozone is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from long speaking." Physicians, ministers, singers recommend Catarrhozone, druggists sell it for $1. Small size 50c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Pugilistic Pedlar.

An Assyrian named George Boodjer was on trial this afternoon on a charge of assaulting County Constable Sedore, of Elsevir. It is alleged that the Constable was rather roughly used by the Assyrian. The latter is a pedlar and the trouble is said to have risen through the constable asking to be shown his license. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. S. Masson the accused.

A Fish Story.

Mr. C. W. Pigeon, who resides at Port Arthur, kindly remembered some of his Belleville friends yesterday by sending a box of beautiful trout which were caught by him in Nipegon Lake. The fish was much appreciated by those who were fortunate enough to secure the delicacy.

HOLIDAY SEASON AT D. AND D. INSTITUTE.

PUPILS HAVE NOW DISPERSED TO THEIR VARIOUS HOMES.

The holiday season that casts joy and mirth to all hands, and the young voyagers who, for many a long month, consolentously trod the weary-some paths of learning, hail with unfeigned pleasure the more refreshing approach. Perfect success demands perfect application, and as thought brings labor nearer to the goal, the price to rest. When, therefore, the institution flag was flying to-day, waving a gallant farewell to the parting students, long and prolonged shouts of triumph went up in acknowledgment. A years wrestling with books, duties, tasks of all kinds, leaves one reminiscent, and it then be one thing brings pride to a man's of heart if it be to see those little mute lads, whose only weapon of instinct will, setting stout to vanquish, some even invading domains which their better equipped brothers were loth to dredge. But their courage met its reward as the examinations abundantly showed. As on previous years the principal especially lauded by the Government conducted the final test. Mr. J. Johnston, P.S.I., of this city, who performed the duty, this time, after many days spent at the school, was not less eulogistic of the work performed than his predecessors. Every pupil seemed to be given opportunity as parting good wishes are being exchanged and remembrances counted. Mr. Johnston, in fitting terms lly counsels of the Principal and those who assisted him, made these have profoundly impressed the students, especially the graduates who must now brave the tempests of life and seek ever for themselves and their future course. Let the star of hope be their guided by the pole star of religion, which must first secure their fidelity, their 'prentice bark cannot but reach the desired haven. The various routine, while parting, of the lads were subsequently assigned, the first group for their being the pupils of the Ottawa district in charge of Mr. Jlenys. Three special cars the bulk of the scholars, under Mr. Mathison and officers, left by the early train for Toronto and points west, the last to once being distributed under special direction. Mr. Forrester, one of the teachers, also left yesterday for a visit to Scotland. All wished him bon voyage and a safe return.

And now the temple is still, the lessons awaiting about the master a heartly welcome home. May our specialties friends enjoy their recess to the fullest, and those who will not return, heeding the lessons inculcated find their future years the stream of time most pleasant and prosperous.

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

The lacrosse boys go to Peterboro bright and early to-morrow morning, and hope to bring home a victory with them. The team is in first-class shape, and the very strongest aggregation the city can put forth will be taken. The prospects are the game will be a fast and exciting one, and there will be a great crowd to see it. Good luck to the Red and White Boys.

Miss Emberson's Pupils.

Following are the very satisfactory result of Mr. Tripp's recent class examination of a few of the pupils of Miss Embreson; Miss Antoinette Parker, Primary, 1st class honors; Miss Mabel Askerill, Junior, 1st class honors; Miss Maud Wilson, Junior, 1st class honors; Miss Ruby Milburn, Intermediate, honors. Mr. Tripp was local examiner for the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

About half a century ago the author of "Little Women" was in London, and saw the Prince of Wales, then a yellow-haired youth. His Royal Highness impressed her favorably, not a particularly significant fact, for Miss Alcott's weakness for all boyhood was frankly avowed, but she made a comment on her passing glimpse is worth a page of fact and fancy. "Fanny and I were out," nodded to him as we went by," Miss Alcott wrote, "and he gave me a friendly look as if he knew Fanny, with her golden curls and with her dimpling, bright face, and the poor little prince wanted some fun."

A kindly Massachusetts man was timidly wending his way through the West and stopped in a restaurant in one of the frontier towns. The waiter who greeted with a scornful tongue the advent of a tenderfoot in the fray and a couple of guns. The Easterner looked him over in a gentle way and asked him if he had any "spring chicken." A grunt was responded the cowboy waiter. "We got him and mutton, beef, veal, pork, steak, spare-ribs, mutton chops, corned beef hash, hog and hominy, fried hominy bread, toast bread, home butter, prairie butter, cow butter, coffee, tea, buttermilk and water. Them's the bill of fare, that's our wimper. Name your grub."

Piles To prove that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for Piles, it is only necessary to publish the statements of those who have used it. Such proof is given in the following letter from Mr. Thos. Hall, Bowmanville, Ont. He says: "I was troubled with Piles for a number of years, and tried many remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. I am pleased to say that one box completely cured me, and I have had no return of the trouble for over a year." Dr. Chase's Ointment

Modern Sermons.

The truly modern preacher
Discusses every line
That comes to public notice,
Be it human or divine.
He speaks of Ads. inserted
On "Should Our Hats Be Dyed,"
Or tells about the Sermon
"The Proper Way to Ride."

He writes on "The Curse of Cycling,"
Or "Should We Wear the Fezes,"
Or sows his wild oats merrily
In "Are In a Fire-Alarm,"
His talks on "Electric Flivvers,"
Or "Can Our Votes Be Bought?"
Or "Should Actors Be Ordained?"
Or "Thoughtlessness of Thought."

Some day he'll innovation
Will suddenly be sprung—
Some preacher of the nation
Will turn his silver tongue
To words of love and beauty,
And grace his verse with art,
And preach his religion
Without a single dart

For Rising, Not Passing.

A teacher in a New York public school discovered that some of her pupils were ignorant of the meaning of the title of polite life, and took it upon herself to instruct them in the games of courtesy.

She observed that whenever one of the boys passed in front of the visitors at the school, a strange, puzzled expression came into their faces.

The secret came out a few days later, when, desiring to stand near the visitors, she heard this boy-talk: each one he shambled awkwardly by: "Ankle-ee!"

She hastened to explain that the difference between "ankle" and "curtsey," which she had told him to say, and "Thanking-you-ma'am," he had understood, her to say, was wide enough to justify further instructions.

Tangled.

Few things are more joyous to an audience than the mixed metaphors of the orator. The more unconscious they are, the contributions to merriment in the hearthstone. Gladstone has given three illustrations:

"You will said a late Lord Mayor of Dublin, "standing on the edge of an precipice that will be a weight on your necks all the rest of your days."

"The young men of England," remarked an Indian clergyman, "are the backbone of the British Empire, and it is time they put their shoulders to the wheel and bring it to the front."

And this is from a member of Parliament: "Even if you carried these peddling little reforms, it would be only like a fleabite in the ocean."

The Most Familiar One.

Some Sunday school children were asked if they knew what prophet fell at a wall-and died. One little hand went up, and "Was it Humpty Dumpty" its owner asked.

And the Fan Went On.

The thermometer was doing business at the new stand it had taken up at number one hundred and something in the shade. Miss Muff, who sat next to the corner, was about the only one who was not fanning, which showed great evidence of life.

"Pop," presently came in a small voice from the sofa. "Pop, doesn't molasses run uphill?"

"Yes, my son, so keep quiet."

There was silence for a moment; then:

"Pop, doesn't all motion produce heat?"

"Yes, my son, all motion; even the motion of the fan, but don't bother me your questions causes more heat than is necessary this weather."

Once more the silence was broken. "Motion causes friction, does it not?"

"Yes."

"And friction causes heat?"

"Yes."

A pause of several minutes.

"Pop, doesn't heat rise?"

"Yes, my son, but what has it to do with motion, isn't it, popper?"

"Nothing, my son, please go away."

Another pause.

"Pop, I've just found out that fan is in motion, and motion produces friction, and friction heat, and heat rises, and that's why the hot air rises, isn't it, Pop?"

"Yes, my son, that's it," with a sigh, "but now motion thin fans necessary."

But there was nothing left, the fan went on.—Boston "Journal."

The Wiles of Woman.

GEORGE AKERSIDE "did" the book reviews for the Tolchester "Courier," and wrote the more flippant editorials. He had a small flair for writing, and what superficial knowledge of a large number of subjects, and was looked upon by many of his brother journalists as a coming man. George himself thought that he was the coming man. His reviews were conceded by all but the authors interested to be very amusing, and the "Courier" had justly obtained a name for merciless use of the literary pillory. When George Akerside got hold of a really bad book he revelled as a strong man about to run a race, and such was the feeling which he aroused that he was accused, over the leaves of "Her Heart a Target," by Mona Mulready, of "The Sad that the author was a woman did not weigh with the book-lists. The book was trash unadulterated, with an occasional soupçon of mild impropriety, and abounding in opportunities for the exercise of his peculiar gift. Stripped grammar, the constant misuse of words, glaring improbability of plot, he handled with the light and practiced touch of an expert, and when he conned his review before publication, it fit to the hairs of the printer, he felt with a glow of satisfaction that he had surpassed himself. He read it to the managing editor, who laughed heartily, and said it was the best thing he had ever done. The man's first attempt without gloves.

"Shall I send it to the paper?" replied George. "There are too many fancying they can write nowadays. Anything that will discourage that sort of people, irrespective of its merit, is a positive boon to humanity."

"You wrote a novel yourself, once, George, didn't you?" asked the managing editor, rather unkindly, and the reviewer went away without replying, for his work had proved a painfully slow sale, and he disliked to be reminded of it.

When George Akerside had concluded his Saturday's work by a personal supervision of the make-up of "The Book Chat," in which he's review of Mona Mulready's novel occupied a conspicuous place, he decided to treat himself to a few hours of recreation, and accordingly betook himself to Ripley, a summer resort, lying within a few miles of Tolchester. He was not a person of great vicarious instincts, but was by no means averse to agreeable females accepting a times, and when he encountered an old friend, a Mrs. Walthorpe, apparently one extremely pretty girl, and one particularly plain and unattractive girl

GAMEY EPISODE IN THE HOUSE

Evidence Analyzed by Premier, Mr. Whitney and Mr. Stratton.

Whole Day in the Legislature Devoted to the Bribery Charges—The Premier Is Splendid Form and Makes Rhetorically the Best of the Case—Considers Evidence Justifies the Commissioners' Verdict.

Toronto, June 18.—The long-expected debate on the finding of Chancellor Sir John A. Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge, the Royal Commissioners for the investigation of the Gamey charges, was commenced in the Legislature yesterday morning.

There was a considerable gathering of listeners in the galleries and on the floor of the House when the Premier rose to move the adoption of the finding, although the Attorney-General was conspicuous by his absence. The resolution also involved a vote of thanks to the Commissioners, "for their just and impartial conduct."

Mr. Ross in Splendid Form.

The Government leader was in splendid form and spoke with his wonted rhetorical grace. He spoke of the fact that the honor of the Province, as well as that of the Government was concerned, and alluded to the latter's many years of honorable service. He maintained that they had been completely vindicated by their right in referring the Gamey charges to a Royal Commission. He also referred to the right of the House to reject the report and to examine the evidence, but claimed that the responsibility of honorable members to study such voluminous matter with the necessary care. He argued that the judges were more competent to do so, because they had been charged with the duty. He dwelt on the fact that the Commissioners' examination had been aimed at, and the law of the evidence expanded for the purpose. Further, he declared, that there had been a thorough sifting of the minds, memories and consciences of all witnesses, and that every possible phase of the matter under inquiry had been exposed. The sincerity of the Government in desiring such an investigation was dwelt on, and their right to have an assurance of calmness, decorum and care in the investigation of a criminal charge against themselves.

Evidence Bore Out the Verdict.

Defining the charges, the Premier said the honor of the Provincial Government was involved in them. The patronage charge was disposed of by the fact that "he asked much, but got little," and the payment of the money was entirely discredited by the inability of Mr. Gamey to tell on what day and by whom the money was handed over. As to the protest of Mr. Gamey, it had been handled in the usual way, but the Premier observed that the question of protests was a disagreeable one to him. On the whole, the evidence bore out the verdict, and no jury of twelve could have arrived at any other conclusion.

Mr. Whitney followed, and his speech is given at length elsewhere.

Mr. Ross Fabulation.

The Provincial Secretary charged that the statement of Mr. Gamey was a pure fabrication, a mixture of malignant fiction and harmless fact. He contended that he should not stand the floodlight of enquiry. Mr. Stratton's protection that attention to the mutilation of the Crossin cash book, and the disappearance of the deposslip, and said the missing leaves would show where the money came from. Gamey had called attention at a critical period of the investigation to the leaves as evading language. Occasionally, his reference to the Commissioners' verdict were exceedingly pointed and unglossed. Mr. Stratton touched on a large number of points, and offered a new evidence except that his counsel did not use the evidence of Green, the backdriver, of sufficient importance to call him. Mr. Ross also dealt at length with the Provincial Secretary's speech was devoted to refuting the attacks that had been made by the Conservative press on the late Sir Oliver Mowat and the late Premier Hardy. He particularly dwelt on the Conservative attempt in their desire to prejudge the case.

Field Day of Heavyweights.

The session began at 11 o'clock, and continued till 10, with the usual intermissions. It was certainly a field day, the heavyweights having the floor. Mr. Ross spoke for an hour and forty minutes. Mr. Whitney occupied about two hours, and Mr. Stratton had talked about the hours and forty minutes when the hour of adjournment arrived, and will take half an hour this morning to finish up.

It has not yet been decided who will reply to Mr. Stratton.

SPEECH OF MR. WHITNEY, K.C.

"I Believe the Statements Made by Mr. Gamey Were Mainly True," Said Opp. Leader.

CHANCELLOR BOYD SCORED.

Had Three Sons in the Employ of the Government and For Two Years Had Been Receiving Large Sums Quietly.

Mr. Whitney commented upon the spectacle of members of the judiciary drawing pay from the Province, the sides of their emolument as judges, and sitting on election cases, the result of which would be that the government would stand or fall. Here was Chancellor Boyd, who has three sons in the employ of the government, sitting on a case, the result of which might mean the downfall of the government. For two years, Chancellor Boyd has been receiving from the government these sums of money, of the remuneration as a judge, yet in this case, he says, "I am sorry to say it," said Mr. Whitney, "but I do not believe him, and the fact that all these things are being done openly makes them all the worse. On the faces of the people, is another instance of the lack of public morality in the Province."

Mr. Whitney said the Judges had earned all the money they had received from the Province for the work they had done for the government.

Judges Not Infallible.

Mr. Whitney read several editorial articles from the Liberal press, also differing from the report, and then asserted that the judges were not infallible. The counsel for the government would not have dared to report the case, because they did not ask for it. The evidence had been sifted by the counsel taken by Messrs. Blake and Bitchie, Whitney and Aylesworth, and appointed Gamey, were absolutely ignored in the investigation. Mr. Whitney asked, one would imagine that it was the member for Manitoulin who was on trial.

"I believe the statements made by Mr. Gamey to be true," said Mr. Whitney went on. He took up the evidence, and went over it in detail, going to show that statements harmful to the Provincial Secretary and the Government were completely ignored, while those which appeared to tell in favor of Gamey were magnified and great stress laid upon them.

Things Established.

Mr. Whitney argued that the finding was not a reasonable conclusion as to the facts. He found that these things were established:

While the manner of the payment to Gamey, taken by itself, may present an arguable question, it is clear from the evidence recited and admitted by the report as worthy of credence, that money was paid to Gamey for the purposes alleged.

That Mr. Stratton tried to induce Hammond to alter The Globe interview:

That the charge of making and carrying out a secret bargain as to patronage has been already proved by Gamey and Lumsden, Gamey, Long and Dr. Arthur admitted he understood the bargain to mean:

That the Provincial Secretary admitted to Hammond, Gamey and Long that Gamey must be paid:

That the Premier produced from his custody the letter from Gamey, forming part of the correspondence, and the other letter to him, but refrained from giving evidence touching either paper himself, and, strange to say, he was not called by the Commissioners and did not offer himself as a witness:

That the finding shows that the Commissioners have ignored the effect of the evidence, and omitted reference to the letter of it, so as to leave Mr. Stratton, the Provincial Secretary, and the members of the government free:

There is a Difference.

Mr. Whitney commented upon the attitude of the Commissioners towards Gamey, as compared with their attitude towards Gamey. Wherever Gamey contradicted them, he was disbelieved, but where he conflicts with Mr. Stratton, Mr. Judge believes in his story.

The Judges took the statement of Gamey, in his letter to the Prem'r, that he had no intention to make a change of faith that that of the judges of Manitoulin, as a reason that there was no money considered in the choice of faith. What nothing could be plicity, as if the member for Manitoulin would say he had any corrupt motives.

Of the piano factory episode the Judges remarked that, at most, the evidence of the three witnesses may affect the credibility of Mr. Stratton, and that they did not till their story exactly alike. Further, that in the Province of Ontario knows that, when three or four witnesses set to state circumstances, and differ in the manner of telling, it is a valuable proof of the truth of their evidence. If they had met and concocted their evidence, in the event, they would have taken care to have avoided all the discrepancies made of many important witnesses, which contradicted evidence of the Provincial Secretary. It was impossible to frame a more dishonest comment than was made on the evidence of Mr. Hammond, in which the Judges remarked that the incident was not important enough to overshadow the great body of evidence. It was no offence when Mr. Stratton asked Mr. Hammond to commit a crime.

As Offensive Manner.

He desired to comment on the distinctly offensive manner of Sir John Boyd towards the member for Manitoulin. This was commented upon by everybody who sat in the courtroom, and the hope that could be said of him was that he had forgotten himself. If Sir John Boyd had been present on the opening of the House, and seen the Premier of the Province cross the floor and fall on the neck of the member for Manitoulin, he would not have been surprised.

"One page of the report referred to Mr. Gamey as a Conservative. I have never referred to him as a supporter of the Liberal government. There were many errors, omissions and misstatements in the report. Mr. Whitney claimed, as he pointed out some, and he promised that the document would be dissected by his supporters.

Fighting the Mad Mullah.

Aden, Arabia, June 18.—The British line of communication between Berbera and Bohotle, Somaliland, East Africa, was threatened by the forces of the Mad Mullah. Three companies of the Hampshire regiment and 500 native troops have been ordered to proceed from here to Somaliland, June 20. Further reinforcements has been received of the reports that the British officers are prisoners in the camp of the Mullah. About 14,000 Abyssinians are now co-operating with the British against the Mullah's forces.

KING PETER'S MANIFESTO.

Called to the Throne of His Father by the Favor of God and the Will of the People.

Geneva, June 18.—King Peter yesterday telegraphed to Belgrade the following manifesto to be proclaimed to the Servians:

"Thanks to the favor of God and the will of the people, I am called to the throne of my ancestors. I consider myself to be the instrument of God, and to-day proclaim my decision to take up the work which the people for the government.

Will Rule Justly.

Mr. Whitney read several editorial articles from the Liberal press, also differing from the report, and then asserted that the judges were not infallible. The counsel for the government would not have dared to report the case, because they did not ask for it. The evidence had been sifted by the counsel taken by Messrs. MR. J. P. WHITNEY, K.C.

final judgment had been given. He said a great deal of stress on the statement of the Premier that the government had allowed the Judges to conduct their own counsel. How magnanimous!

"What a sense of indignation would have arisen from Rat Portage to Cobalt Lac, and from Whitney, a Conservative government in a similar position had charged the Judges with interest in that the government had bullied better than these. Under the law the votes the men accused of high crimes and misdemeanors from the judges who were in try them, and by their own votes they are acquitted or convicted. How sadly had the Liberalism of the day fallen when it could adopt such an hypocrite days! It all went to show that if you scratch a Liberal you find a Tartar; if you scratch a Liberal you find a mixture of hypocrisy and tyrant such as no man cannot surpass.

Had Made Appointments.

Taking up the question of patronage, Mr. Whitney read from the evidence to show that Mr. Gamey had undertaken Appointments. But the Premier said Mr. Gamey did not get any patronage.

The Premier interrupted to say that there had been a number of political ags thru the Provincial Secretary's department.

"Very well, then," said Mr. Whitney, "all the more reason why the Premier of ministers should have cleared themselves."

Mr. Whitney then quoted the Judges as saying that Gamey's memory was not good little." There is the admission that he got some at all" they are criticised.

Can't You Forget?

The leader of the opposition then commented on the suggestion of Mr. Stratton to Mr. Gamey to forget some of the things." Imagine the situation," said Mr. Gamey, "I am suggested such a thing to one of the Judges!

He did not desire to attack the Provincial Secretary because he had given his evidence, but that the government side just as guilty as the Provincial Secretary, any impression that the Premier undertook to lead the Provincial Secretary to the slaughter would been necessary for the speaker to-say what he thought to say. And, did it come that many leading Liberals had said that no matter what was the outcome of the investigation they would get rid of Stratton.

Why did not the Premier go into the box and explain how the letter in his possession, and he had not gone into the box to explain his position, after the Judges said it would be necessary for him to be examined.

Judges No Right.

When the judges take the position that they have taken, they have no right to complain if they are criticised, he continued. It was not so long ago that Hon. George Brown criticised the courts in their treatment of election cases, and pronounced views taken against him for contempt. Continuing on that: "were we have respect for the judges, I apprehend that criticism will come upon the heads of those who are servants of the legislature, they will not be free from criticism, and the conduct of the government in calling to their aid members of the judiciary will not fail to bring them into disrepute. We had a judiciary of which we were proud, and who were quoted as examples all over the world. What is the position to-day? Ask the first man you meet if the judiciary of Ontario occupy the same position they occupied ten years ago, and the answer will be from a majority of the people that they do not. For which position part of the blame rests on the judges themselves, and part of it on the government of the Province."

It is a Spectacle.

Mr. Whitney commented upon the spectacle of members of the judiciary drawing pay from the Province, the sides of their emolument as judges, and sitting on election cases, the result of which would be that the government would stand or fall. Here was Chancellor Boyd, who has three sons in the employ of the government, sitting on a case, the result of which might mean the downfall of the government. THE COUNTY ROADS OF HASTINGS

The report of the Commissioner of Highways for Ontario has just been issued, the same containing much interesting information. The Commissioner gives an account of the inception of the good roads movement in Hastings County, which has already been exhaustively treated in these columns per the facile pen of Mr. A. P. Wood, of Madoc. The last paragraph of the Commissioner's description of our County roads and road-making system, however, is of more than ordinary interest. He says:

"The people of Hastings have every faith in their system of road management, and have no thought of giving up their County roads. These good roads, and the increase of comfort and conveniences they have produced, have largely advanced the value of property all over the County. The difference between five and ten miles to a market has become a matter of little consequence. The agent of the Canada Company states that he values land at the rear end of the County as at double the price of lands almost adjoining to the Counties of Addington and Peterboro."

A GRIT ON GAMEY.

The following from the Dundas Star shows conclusively that Conservatives are not alone in their dissatisfaction with the Judges' report on the Gamey enquiry. Incidentally, it may be remarked that you would need a very strong magnifying glass to find, in all Canada, a "stiffer Grit" than "Jim" Somerville. The Star says:

"There is at least one Liberal in this town who does not agree with the report of the Judges who tried the Gamey charges. While he does not look upon Gamey as a saint, James Somerville, Liberal ex-M.P., for many years, believes that Gamey told the truth, and says that the weight of evidence was very much in favor of the accuser, and that the report does not justify the evidence. Mr. Somerville is of the opinion that no green member such as Gamey is, would have stood up and made such serious charges unless he knew them true. He could manufacture such a story out of the whole cloth and tell it with such force and earnestness that it was a fact. He thinks that the Liberal party will be severely handed by the partisanship displayed by the Judges in their report. Will the Banner take note of the opinion of so strong a Liberal as Mr. Somerville, who has no party axe to grind, but speaks the honest opinion of a man who is not blinded by partisanship?"

Sir Thomas Lipton now says that, if he doesn't win this time, he will be back in Shamrock IV. and try again. The four-leaged Shamrock certainly ought to do the business.

Police Magistrate Flint's letter, in another column, would make it appear that he acted wisely in sending young Monahan to the Industrial School. It was certainly unsafe to have a boy of that kind at large, while at the same time it is rather hard for the people of this municipality to be taxed for the maintenance of a youngster who seems destined to lead an evil life. However, Mr. Flint points out that the boy was too young to send to the Reformatory, and his reason for sending him to the Industrial School are undoubtedly sound ones. There is the law, and no matter how people dislike it, it must be obeyed.

But does Mr. Flint really mean to say that there are at least forty boys in this city who should be sent to the Reformatory or Industrial School? We would so infer, from his letter. Is that not rather a strong statement? We have no desire to dispute Mr. Flint or deny his opportunity for obtaining information on the subject, but the statement that forty boys in this city should be sent to the Reformatory is an astounding one! If we have not misunderstood Mr. Flint, this matter should be investigated and action be at once taken by philanthropic organizations of this city, who, if they are doing nothing else, can awaken the parents of the boys to a sense of their responsibilities and duty.

Kidney Disease and Rheumatism

A STRONG RECOMMENDATION FROM A MAN OF SEVENTY YEARS WHO WAS CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Nearly everybody has a cure for rheumatism ready to recommend to his suffering friend, and while a good deal many a victim of this dreadful ailment keeps going from bad to worse because of useless and not-using any one medicine long enough to obtain lasting benefit.

It is claimed by the best medical authority that rheumatism comes from derangements of the kidneys. Why not select the most effective treatment for kidney disorders, and give it a thoroughly good trial? Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are curing rheumatism every day, as is evidenced by the words of testimony we publish which are similar to the one quoted below. It might be well for you to give this great medicine a chance to cure you.

Mr. Chas. Moorish, Dorchester Station, Middlesex Co., writes: "I desire to acknowledge to you the benefit I have received from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For about twelve months I could hardly walk, on account of being so crippled up with kidney derangements and rheumatism.

"I had tried many medicines without benefit, and, hearing of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I made up my mind to give them a trial. After having taken six boxes of the medicine in succession, I am glad to say that I am in better health to-day than I have been for twenty years. The rheumatism pains have entirely disappeared, and, as an old man nearly seventy years of age, I consider my cure remarkable, and give all credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book authors, are on every box of his remedies.

COURT OF REVISION.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

There will be a five-mile bicycle road race this afternoon starting from the parliament buildings, between young Tighe, of the College, and Waller, who won the last road race on the morning of Victoria Day. It will be remembered that there was only 18 seconds difference between the time of the two rides, and as neither one of them got inside the time limit it has been decided to let them race for the Canada Cycle Motor's cup de-morrer sporating. There will be no handicap; the boys will start together, and barring accidents, there should not be more than a block between them at the finish. The race will start, sharp, at half-past seven, the course being the same as that travelled on Victoria day. If you can get up early enough it will be worth your while to go and see it.

It seems that the Lacrosse club had considerable difficulty in getting a team to go to Peterboro this morning, and, if what we hear is correct, the best twelve in the city did not go. This is very much to be regretted, for there is a pretty stiff proposition waiting for the Red and White boys in the northern town. Business arrangements must have stepped up suddenly since yesterday afternoon, when the writer was informed by a leading member of the club that everything was lovely.

It is a regrettable fact that no sporting organization, with the single and solitary exception of the Hockey club, gets the support in this city that it ought to. In other places the best people take an interest in the boys and encourage them, putting them on the back when they win and cheering them up when they lose. Here people look coldly on while the lads struggle in the face of adverse circumstances, and forget that a little bit of money, honest sport is necessary to the well-being of every properly constituted young man. No wonder the boys lose heart sometimes and think that the game isn't worth the candle. It is a regrettable state of affairs, which could, and should, be bettered.

THE COUNTY ROADS OF HASTINGS

The report of the Commissioner of Highways for Ontario has just been issued, the same containing much interesting information. The Commissioner gives an account of the inception of the good roads movement in Hastings County, which has already been exhaustively treated in these columns per the feathe pen of Mr. A. F. Wood, of Madoc. The last paragraph of the Commissioner's description of our County roads and roadmaking system, however, is of more than ordinary interest. He says:

"The people of Hastings have every faith in their system of road management, and have no thought of giving up their County roads. These good roads, and the increase of comfort and convenience they have produced, have largely advanced the value of property all over the County. The difference between five and ten miles to a market has become a matter of little consequence. The agent of the Canada Company states that he values land at the rear end of the County at double the price of lands already adjoining in the Counties of Addington and Peterboro."

A GRIT ON GAMEY.

The following from the Dundas Star shows conclusively that Conservatives are not alone in their dissatisfaction with the Judges' report on the Gamey enquiry. Incidentally, it may be remarked that you would need a very strong magnifying glass to find, in all Canada, a "stiffer Grit" than "Jim" Somerville. The Star says:

"There is at least one Liberal in this town who does not agree with the report of the Judges who tried the Gamey charges. While he does not look upon Gamey as a saint, James Somerville, Liberal ex-M.P., for many years, believes that Gamey told the truth, and says that the weight of evidence was very much in favor of the accuser, and that the report does not justify the verdict. Mr. Somerville is of the opinion that no green member such as Gamey is said to have been set up and made such serious charges unless they were true. He could not manufacture such a story out of whole cloth and tell it with such force and earnestness, unless it was true. He thinks that the Liberal party will be greatly injured by the partizanship displayed by the Judges in their report. Query: Will the Banner take note of the opinion as given by Mr. Somerville, who has no party axe to grind, but asks the honest opinion of a man who is not blinded by partizanship?"

THE IDEAL LIFE.

Joseph Silverman, D.D., Rabbi Temple Emanu-El, New York.

And he said, Go thou forth and stand upon the mountain before the Lord.—1 kings, 19c. 11.

There are times when we who have lived constantly in the valleys become dissatisfied with our surroundings, with the commonplace scenery, the narrow horizon and contracted vision, and look with envious eyes to the few who have succeeded in climbing to the mountain top. Under the influence and lure spell, we summon up courage, gather our feeble strength and attempt to climb the steep and rugged ascent. And, when at last, after many trials and failures, we reach the summit we are fully rewarded for our exertions by the glorious sight before us and by the exhilaration of the upper air.

Those in the valley can see only a small part of the world's wonders—here a field, a garden, there a cavern, a river or lake. Upon the mountain top the sublime and awe-inspiring prospect of the world's varied design, its beauty, majesty and power bursts full upon the eye. From below we saw only a few peaks; from above hundreds of peaks come into view, hundreds of smaller mountains, separated by undulations of green forests or by silver threads of limpid waters. From below we had a limited outlook, saw only our own confined surroundings—a few peasants, villagers or convicted criminals people a shield only a few miles of mundane life, which seemed of such paramount importance to the denizens of the valley. From the heights we see, comparatively speaking, an almost unlimited horizon and can see at a glance many cities and villages, and the diversified condition in the countrs and lakes, and beyond the mighty ocean embracing all things. From above all great cities seem but as toy villages, men and women as tiny miniatures and our seemingly vast enterprises as the block houses of children at play. Standing there on the mountain top, in the very presence of the Lord, as it were, upon the throne of creation, we seem to realize a sense of our greater selves and our larger possibilities, and to feel that the people and the things we have left below are but the chrysalis from which we have escaped; that the world in the valley is but the growing stone of the higher world above.

There are luminous hours in our lives when the soul-yearns to emancipate itself from the limitations, narrowness and selfishness of our every-day existence which it was born and has continued to exist, and seeks to rise to some higher estate of manhood or womanhood. We have at times visions of better and worse who have risen to spiritual heights which we aspire to reach. They seem to live on the mountain tops of life and to have a clearer and broader view of human affairs. They are men of unmistakable, even profound reason, of uncompromising convictions; men who stand on the vantage ground of truth, who love righteousness, execute justice and walk humbly before their God; broad-gauged men, full of sympathy and love for humanity, who society and woo, women who can smile benignly and speak graciously, yet wisely; philanthropists, lovers of mankind, who treat others with mercy, judgment with charity, and who, like Divinity, are touched by suffering and abundant in kindness and mercy.

It is our better moments we seek to stand upon such a lofty plane. Our ordinary lives seem commonplace, petate, flat and unprofitable." We go constantly through the monotony of eating and drinking, sleeping and working. The great masses seem like thousands and millions of myriads of molecules and organized cells that contribute to the monotony of the universe. We seem often to be only as the small teeth on the cog wheels of human and cosmic life, rotating upon one another to move some other set of wheels and thereby produce activity and growth to an infinite number of revolving wheels. Now and then some of us rebel against a cruel, it least an undesirable, fate or destiny. We aspire to some higher existence than that of the beast; we want to be conscious and active forces instead of a cog wheel; we have an ambition to be a power that moves the best, and to be conscious and active directing forces not a mere passive piece of mechanism. We wish to be not the clay that is moulded,but the potter who designs and executes the plan. In our better hours we reach out to such an ideal life that is far above our material, worldly existence with its constant round of toil and care, coupled only with a modicum of pleasure.

It is such an ideal that reconciles s to the more bitter disappointments. It is the buoy that keeps us afloat in the tempestuous sea of life until some unexpected help comes to our rescue. It is a man without an ideal is lost in this world," selfish and unworthy of world. He is subject to despondency, despair and a broken spirit that often follows bitter disappointment, and to the loss of health, happiness and forbearance as a consequence, and to the gratitude of selfish and treacherous friends.

At such a time the words "Go forth and stand on the mountain top before the Lord" appeal to us with a wonderful force. Get thee out of the slough of despair, out of the valley where dwell the narrow and the evil minded, and stand on the mountain of the ideal life, with the great and the good, before the Lord. This ideal purifies the soul, brushes aside the fascinating care, drives away the lowering clouds and lends a ray of sunshine into our dark surroundings. We begin to feel that what we have lost is not all of life; there are still hope, happiness and fortune in store for us; that the sea is never drained; that new friends can be made in place of the old; that all truth and justice, all appreciation and sympathy are not destroyed; that new love can grow even in the gray of a dead affection. The ideal gives new zest to life, a new value to our surroundings. It is a new opportunity and undying hope.

For the Queen's Nurses.

The King and Queen received at Buckingham Palace on May 31, a deputation from the committee of the Queen's Nurses' Endowment Fund, says The London Chronicle, who handed over to their Majesties £50,000—made up by the subscriptions of four million—commemoration which is the women's memorial to the late Queen, which will be devoted to the training of nurses for Victoria's Jubilee Institute. The Queen and King made a most kindly address in connection with the gathering of 1897, after the deputation had been separately presented to the King and Queen, who cordially shook hands with all the members of the deputation, headed by the Princess of Wales and British residents abroad, together with a roll recording the names of the contributing countries and boroughs, and other details. The Countess of Cadogan, on behalf of the committee, presented the Queen with £20,000 in bags. The Duchess of Buccleuch also presented the Scottish contribution, which amounted to £12,000.
The Mayoress having endorsed each document with their names, the King replied in the following words:—"I am glad to have you on the occasion of the completion of the fund that so large a sum has been contributed to an object as the Queen's nurses. It is additional pleasure to the Queen and myself that this sum should have been collected as a memorial to my mother, the late Queen.
The Queen, as patron of the Queen's nurses, also briefly commented the branches and the deputation withdrew.

Æsurophobia.

Dr. Weir Mitchell has excited a good deal of discussion by hitting it he known that he is engaged in the study of what he calls "Cat-Fear." By this he means the extraordinary feeling of repulsion which is caused in many persons by the sight, or even by the unseen presence, of a cat. Strictly speaking, this feeling is not a fear of the so-called fear, for it is rather an indescribable loathing which is sometimes so intense as to produce a cataleptic condition in the case who experiences it. We are sorry to see that Dr. Mitchell has not yet hit upon a technical term to describe this strange obsession, and we venture to suggest to him the word Aelurophobia, which is a good Greek compound and one over whose meaning there is no possible complacent. As to aelurophobia itself we have many ideas upon the subject, but as we have already set them down in another place it is perhaps not worth while to repeat them here. Our own theory, says the "Bookman," is that a "cat-fear" is only a secondary manifestation of serpent-fear. On second thoughts, and asking our readers indulgence, we shall quote a little bit from ourselves, because the subject is a rather novel one and has a peculiar interest for those who are either very fond of cats or who are themselves aelurophobic.

"The peculiar feeling which the white man feels for the snake attends in highly sensitive natures to creatures or ever inanimate objects which resemble or suggest the snake. Thus, most persons shudder and shrink back when a long rat is thrown suddenly at their feet. They know perfectly well that it is not only a harmless creature, but that it is not a snake at all; yet they would not touch it, for love or gold, to save it. As in the mate objects; there are many which are sufficiently reminded when they are given the adjective "snaky" applied to them. Snaky locks, snaky ringlets, eyes of snaky movements—all these, and a score of other expressions, connote something repulsive. Now the cat is essentially a snaky creature. Most of us do not realize this, because we look at it from the eye and the instinct of comparison, but moreover, we are not troubled with the perseathesia. But just watch a cat as it moves about at ease, as it lies in the sun, or as it curves itself into its usual position when about to sleep, its steathings, its sinuous movements, the undulations of its lithe body—these are closely comparable with what we notice in the serpent. And if the cat have glossy fur, and if it be barred with stripes, there are moments when the resemblance is so striking as almost to make us shriek. Many persons feel this at times, but only in a momentary way. Other persons however, are aware of it all the while, or at least are conscious of a feeling of repulsion which they cannot explain, and which in reality represents the serpent dread, the loathing of the snake and of all that suggests the snaky, even when the mind is not aware of the underlying reason. This dread is, we believe, the dread to which Dr. Mitchell has given the name of "cat-fear." It may be called "cat-fear," but in the last analysis it is merely a secondary manifestation of snake-fear.

A curate, it is said, on applying to His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury for a license, Bishop of London, to be licensed, was ordered to read some sermons of Scripture as a test of his capacity for conducting public worship. He had not done so, for he began trembling, the Bishop declared that he was "the least enough." "Really sir," said the poor curate, "a lady in church only yesterday told me I could be heard plainly all over it." "Ah!" exclaimed the Bishop, "you are engaged to the wrong lady, then, and not for matrimonial purposes. His Grace darkly smiled and then smarkly said, "Then there is one, young man. While you are engaged don't believe everything she tells you, but after you are married believe every word she says."

Robert G. Ingersoll used to be fond of telling how, when he first came to Washington from the West, he once encountered in one of the corridors of the Capitol an old negro woman vigorously scrubbing the floor when she almost anyone supposed would walk on footsteps died away, busily reading her Bible. He stopped up on her very nearly by one morning, and, taking her by surprise with her precious book, said: "Mary, do you believe all you read there?" "I surtainly do," she replied, very word, Colonel Ingersoll." "Do you believe that God made man out of dust?" "I do, sah." "Well, Mary," he said, "I don't believe it." "Den I reckon I knowed enough to know dat it was time to make room for lawyers and infidels, Colonel Ingersoll."

Curse of DRINK

CURED BY COLONIAL REMEDY

No taste. No Odor. Can be given in a glass of water, tea, coffee or food without the knowledge of patient. Colonial Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for liquor, whether the patient is a moderate drinker, "toper," "spree," social drinker or confirmed inebriate. Is a scientific, reliable remedy that has been used in thousands of cases.
Indorsed by Members of the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Moore, Superintendent of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Ont., Canada, says: "Colonial Remedy is the only remedy I ever found worth using, and the cures have been almost marvellous. I have used it in my own family with perfect success, and order a Colonial Remedy. Members of our Union have used it with the same gratifying results, and we want to say to our temperance work."

TIMELY TOPICS

Toronto will give its Old Boys "a week of solid enjoyment." But many of them won't object to a little liquid enjoyment thrown in.

A New York man lost his voice recently from the effect of having a tooth pulled. And now his wife is about to sue for a divorce on the ground that every time she has a toothache he throws a wrapper around her and drags her off to that dentist, nolens volens.

It is apparent by a perusal of our exchanges that Belleville is about the only place of any consequence in Ontario which is going to let all the holidays go by this year without having a celebration.

The hay crop will be a little short this year, but the straw (berry) crop will be a long one. So let's be thankful that we don't eat hay.

Wasn't it unmercifully cold last night? June, where are you, June?

Summer resorts are not in it with home, sweet home, while this kind of weather keeps up.

(Oswego Palladium.)

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, speaking yesterday on the Chinese Immigration Bill, asked whether well-behaved Chinese were not preferable to Doukhobors, who ran naked around the country, and burn the houses they lived in.—Belleville (Ont.) Intelligencer.

The last sentence of Sir Mackenzie was a pointed one, but it would seem that not much time should be required in answering it. The Doukhobors, who immigrated from Russia to Canada on invitation, a few years ago, and on their arrival were liberally patronized by the Dominion Government, appear to be about the most degraded species of immigrants that ever crossed the Atlantic. It was especially for the Mackenzie to ask if the Chinese were not preferable. The latter are, at least, industrious, and while not desirable, they are superior to the scum of southern Europe, now landing in such great numbers in the United States. The Doukhobors appear to be a race of freaks, who obtrude public decency in the practice of their fanatical beliefs, and are not to be dealt with the title of religion. There may be a few exceptions among them. But when whole bands start out on long journeys—male and female—in nude condition, to hunt up the Deity, they become intolerable nuisances as a civilized community. Russia gained by their departure from that country, and Canada loses by their immigration.

GALA DAY AT FOXBORO.

THE PRESBYTERIAN GARDEN PARTY A GRAND SUCCESS.

Friday, June 5th, was a gala day for the Presbyterians of Foxboro. As early as six o'clock the visitors began to arrive, and for the next two hours a continual stream of carriages, bicycles and pedestrians poured in from the surrounding country and south to the beautiful grounds of Mr. Sills', immediately on the rear of rival they were treated to an excellent supper served in tables on the extensive lawn. The Menie Brass Band was in attendance and from the platform built up for them a first-class repertation in the vicinity of Foxboro.

Eight hundred people were assembled on the grounds and, without further delay, Dr. Jose, the very popular chairman, was called to take up the duties of the day. The first and most notable incident was the reading of the notes of the pipes, as Mr. Wm. Malcolm, in full Scotch costume, played most sedate Scotchmen were roused in the very outset by the stirring notes of the pipes, as Mr. Wm. Malcolm, in full Scotch costume, played themselves right royally. The Mouth Organ performance was received with a storm of applause. Mrs. Marvin and Mr. Kotcheson rendered a duet, and Mr. Stillman Gay's big rich voice was a pleasure to everybody. The three youthful entertainers, Masters Arthur and Clarence Vermilyea and Cleo Hoskins took the audience by storm and certainly give promise of very superior work as vocalists. As for the quartettes, duets and solos of the Belleville Prize Quartette cannot be done them in this brief paragraph. Suffice it to say their work was of a very high order and was greatly appreciated, and honorariums to the appearance of the names of Miss Lasier, Miss Keith, Mrs. Dunnark and the Misses McIntosh and Brown on any programme will always guarantee a large gathering of the lovers of good music in Foxboro. On the whole, the event was one of the most successful of its kind that has been known in this part of the province, and henceforward the date of the Foxboro Presbyterian Garden Party will be marked with red ink on the calendars in all the homes for miles in any direction. The proceeds this year were $207.15.—Com.

A Great Actor's Great Career.

London "Outlook."

From a merchant's office stool in Newgate street to the unchallenged headship of the English-speaking stage is an epitome of the career of John Henry Irving, 5th, now Sir Henry Irving, Knight, LL. D., whose appearance this week on the boards of Drury Lane in Bardell's "Becket" is the event of the London dramatic season. But how much between! The early struggle—bordering at times on privation—of this stage-struck Somerset lad, the hard, but infinitely nine years' apprenticeship in the provinces in the old "circuit" days before the actor's trade had become a profession; his triumph in "Hunted Down," which established the fame of Boucicault; and led to his first London engagement; his successful seasons of the Lyceum; his tours in the United States—all these are milestones on Sir Henry's career familiar to newspaper readers. It was he who in our time was able to apply T. R. Chatterton's fiction that "Shakespeare spells bankruptcy." In his own person, by his magnificent appearance as Shylock before a German audience at the Berlin Theater, and his "command" performances on several occasions before royalty, he added laurels to the brow of this great actor.

To mention Sir Henry Irving's name without linking with it that of his colleague, Ellen Terry, is impossible. The two have been so closely united in their art almost without a break, for twenty-four years, that old playgoers resent, somewhat in the sense of a private grievance, the presence of the actress in management of the Imperial while the actor is at Drury Lane. But these have been so among the inevitables of the dramatic world. On the other hand, one conjures back sweet memories of Miss Terry playing Ophelia to Sir Henry Irving's Hamlet; Marguerite to its Mephistopheles, and Madame Sans-Gene to his Napoleon, it is hard to stifle the feeling that this combination ended, some of the fragrance departed from our stage. People went, of course, to see Ellen Terry "as she lives," but it is speaking the mere forgot that they went to see Miss Terry act.

The professional association of Miss Terry with "Sir" Irving dates back, indeed, further than the Lyceum days, for these two young people were playing together in "The Taming of the Shrew" at the old Queen's Theater under the management of the Misses Wigan. Now, though Miss Terry is out of the cast of "Dante," is she a novice in Bardell's plays, for was she not, just three years ago, the leading lady in "Tobesperre," which ran for three months at the Lyceum company? An unkind fate at times has decreed that she should enact the tragedy-queen; but, as we all know, her truest successes have been in that species of comedy where gentle raillery and the display of arch perversity and merry mischief divulge her womanhood. Theater-goers of to-day are often unaware that Sir Henry Irving, too, possesses the gift of comedy to a degree which—in the former judgment of some—overshadows the tragic and realistic. Warrant for that view is to be found in his impersonation of such characters as Digby Grant in "Two Roses," Jingle, and Jeremy Diddler. But his career is identified in what is usually called the "high" walks of art when he is not playing under Bateman's banner at the Lyceum, where his Burgomaster in "The Bells" took London by storm some thirty years ago. Of late the management he ultimately succeeded.

L...bouchere on Sir Hector MacDonald.

London "Truth."

In poetry and the drama tragedy is supposed to have a bracing and ennobling effect on the emotions. The tragedies of real life are always put down as frequently sordid, and never anything better. Belleville, like all the rest, would only furnish the materials for a sensational novel if it were allowed to get on the bills of the evening papers. So much for the tragedy of the career of Sir Hector MacDonald; and now that the papers recording the event have had their say, there remains to be gained by dwelling on such a catastrophe. Mr. Stead, the distinguished enthusiast has declared his intention of spending £10,000 to clear the honored man's reputation. If money could do it, no one would regard it as money well spent. A man laid low the other day that he had spoken with Sir Hector MacDonald, who would stake his life that there was no foundation for the charges. As no man is a hero to his valet, this verbal testimony of some weight. But when a man has, by his own hand, taken by his own act, how can any such testimony avail? The coroner's doctor, taking a different line of defence, told me that he should direct the coroner's jury to put the facts together into the scale, and treat them both as evidence of physical degeneration, due probably to insanity in some such cause. This may be charity covering the vice of science, but who would not be charitable in judging a brave man and a great soldier, who has served his country so well?

Cinderella Revised.

With some petulance Cinderella notices that the complete has been transformed into a golden carriage.

"Does it not delight you?" asks the fairy godmother.

"Oh, of course it is very pretty and all that," concedes Cinderella; "but surely you do not expect me to go to the ball in such a fearful state?"

"Plebeian!" asks the fairy godmother. "Why, that's the finest transforming act I ever did in all my career!"

"Yes; but the automobile is the thing now."

"All right," grumbles the fairy godmother. She gives her wand another sweep, and the golden carriage becomes a huge tonneau, puffing and panting and smelling for the girl.

"How sweet!" chirps Cinderella. "But are you not going also?" she exclaims as the fairy godmother begins to vanish.

"Not much!" declares the fairy godmother. "No automobiles for me. Even a fairy has to adopt some measures of self-protection."—Judge.

DEATH'S SUDDEN CALL.

Rev. Dr. Dewart Succumbs to Attack of Heart Disease His Home in Toronto.

Toronto, June 18.—The sudden death yesterday afternoon of Rev. Dr. Dewart came as a great shock to thousands of Toronto's citizens, and the announcement will be received with deep regret throughout Canada, for the name of Dr. Dewart was well known from ocean to ocean.

Dr. Dewart, who was 75 years of age, is survived by a widow and two sons, Hartley H., K.C., County Crown Attorney, and Edward, of the Bank of Commerce. The funeral was in Ottawa yesterday, but left last night for Toronto.

In the death of Dr. Dewart the Methodist Church in Canada loses one of its oldest and foremost representatives. He was a man of great natural ability and force of character, a vigorous writer, a powerful debater and an able preacher. He was in the true sense of the term a self-made man, with his success largely attributable to his indomitable perseverance and unwearied application.

Literary competition, both in prose and verse, was always Dr. Dewart's chief delight.

In politics, Dr. Dewart was a staunch supporter of the Liberal party, and in the provincial elections in 1898 contested North Toronto in his party's interest against G. F. Marter, who was defeated by the narrow margin of 24.

Wolseley, N.W.T., June 18.—Leslie and Gordon Martin, sons of Joseph Martin, a farmer living near here, were drowned Tuesday night at Wolfe Creek.

and it's a fair one :—

Why should you buy "Queen Quality" Shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale ?

In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality." Thousands of women do just this thing, so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it ?

It is this :— Queen Quality gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more—that is—an accurate fit.

OSWOLD MISSERY, WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen,—About five years ago I was taken with a bad cold with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered terribly from this same complaint.... I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walker Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best doctors in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, and by last June I was confined to the Hospital of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise in a few days I began to improve. I continued using it for three months, when I found I was entirely cured; and for a year has always been well then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the per.istent use of it will cause the case of Dyspepsia. (Signed) OSWOLD MISSERY.

If thy friend is honest, do not belch him up altogether.

He Has Tried Them.—Mr. John Anderson, Elmtree, writes: "I venture to say few, if any, have used Parmelee's Vegetable Pills for the cure of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, than I have. I have proved it regularly for the past four years and have recommended it to all my friends that I knew of, and they also found it of great virtue in cases of severe bronchitis and incipient consumption."

For the Revelsworth Millions,

OR

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Foiled by the Man She Loves.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the brother. "You have a slight attack of fever, but little Betty is exhausting. Did you see her pretty little feet, as small as those of my mother, only her ankles are not so pretty? There is something which draws my heart to the little darling. She looks so good and kind and gay! I am convinced it was she, the mischievous one, who taught the parrot to say, 'You are a cat!' Oh, but it was funny that! You are a cat!'—and Victor lessened against the bridge, laughing heartily.

"The most interesting part of the whole business to my mind," said Dudley after a pause, "is the sudden appearance of the cousin. Francesca Revelsworth! Why, the name that, suggestive of a splendid personality. I've no case therefore that she is plain and stumpy. If I remember rightly, our uncle Harold was married some years before I was born. Probably the fair Francesca is a boy-old maid—or thereabouts. Francesca, run to roosts and fat in middle life."

"Why, what have I done?" protested Victor. "She is no more all Italian than I am all French. I have seen the portrait of her mother the countess. She was adorably beautiful, but her cousin Francesca will be adorably handsome also; for was not our uncle Harold all his life long the superb man, tall as a giant, with hand somemen and whiskers? ... Oh, remember we what the little Betty—or prophesied! Did she not say that our uncle Harold would have left one beautiful daughter, and that we should fall in love with her and marry her, and divide the fortune between us?"

"But we don't both marry her," laughed Dudley.

"Then we shall both fall in love with her, and she shall choose. You will make court to her in your own fashion, and I, Mr. My excellent cousin, I esteem you, I admire you, I think you a very nice fellow, but I love you not. Dudley Revelsworth! And I—I shall fling myself upon the ground at her feet, and kiss the hem of her gown, and I shall say, 'Adored angel, do let me, I entreat, have pity on me! Ah, you are beautiful as a star in the skies, as a rose in the month of June! Ah, then we shall see which of us she will prefer—if at all. Cannot make up my mind, we will decide it in the English fashion—so!"—striking a coin from the bridge, and splashing it on the side of the bridge. "Yorkshire!" he cried. "Heads, I carry the day! Tails, I fail, she marries you! Helas—it is fatal! The cousin is poor, and I detest myself!"

And, to the extreme surprise of the peasantry, Victor proceeded to slip his brow in affected anguish, and to make a pretence of springing upon the parapet of the bridge, until dragged towards the village by his brother.

Long afterwards that scene came back upon the latter's mind with extraordinary and sinister significance. The spring sunlight glinting upon the water as it was stirred from the weir, the cool breeze which had sprung up in the afternoon, causing the trees and leaves on the poplar-trees, the bustle and life around—all even at this early period of the year by a few omnibuses and chaise-carts now and then, and the merry laughter of the girls and the mellow red roofs of Wolsey's palace above the river—all these details of the scene he would flash upon Dudley's brain, to form a background for the gentle, happy face of, ignorant what destiny held for him, he jested in the sunshine on Hampton Court Bridge on this memorable afternoon.

They had not long to wait, save what bad made a few purchases, had strolled beyond the gates of the palace, and by the Green we ching the horses and donkeys which were there, and had bought a penny through the weather-beaten rustic gate-posts, tipped by one-and-one-coppers, and had then passed pat between the flower beds which led to the front door of their brother's house.

This they found to be ajar. In the passage a lady stood in the act of talking, conferring with the man-servant whom the brothers met on the first time. This personage was short and spare, of the type usually known as odd caricature likenesses to those of Francis I. of France. A long nose overhung a great, full-lipped mouth, and suspicion and unbelief dwelt in the slight twinkling eyes.

"So I am to say 'Miss Revelsworth,' am I, Mr. Jones?" he was inquiring in slow rasping tones.

Hearing him, Victor and Dudley glanced quickly at each other—the other moment, before the feet of either brother had reached the threshold, the lady turned and faced them, and, with a cry of mingled dismay and delight, Dudley recognized the heroine of his adventure at the theatre on the preceding evening.

CHAPTER V.

Francesca Revelsworth's face was towards the light, that of Dudley was in the shadow. He, for his part, could hardly control his astonishment at the sight of her; but no glimmer of recognition came from her large blue eyes as she first inquiringly regarded the new faces.

"Was it possible, he asked himself, that there were on this earth two women of such exquisite beauty as these? Those shining blue eyes should find their counterpart in any other woman's face?

Her dress was altogether unlike that worn by the heroine of last night's adventure. The close bonnet and voluminous black veil, the shabby black gown and all-concealing cloak, which disguised the charms of the blue-eyed lady at the variety theatre, were conspicuous by their absence, and Francesca Revelsworth's admirably-moulded figure was set off to full advantage by a gown of cross-barred fawn-colored muslin, worn-colored Suede gloves, a handsome sable collarette, and a large flat "picture" hat trimmed with ostrich feathers.

She looked many years younger than on the night of last; the daylight could find no flaw in her perfect features or in the sultry smoothness of the texture of her skin, while her hair, of which she appeared to have an abundant quantity, was silky as a child's and in color a rich auburn.

But for her eyes, which had the attention riveted, a man's gaze might have lingered, so Dudley thought, in wonderment and pleasure over the other beauties of her face, the low broad brow, the delicately-drawn brows lines above the eyes, the long lashes, dark as the shadow but gleaming golden in the light, the straight nose, the delicate nostrils, the short almost too short, curved upper lip, and the mouth, large in outline and of a vivid hue in color, the full under lip surmounting a round white chin and throat of perfect shape.

She was—she must be more beautiful than the lady of yesterday, more beautiful than any woman who had ever crossed Dudley Revelsworth's path. He was English, with English health and strength and fairness were blended in her beauty and charm. He seemed on Dudley that a century had passed since the conjuration of her before he heard a sweet voice, the voice of a lady, say with a pleasing inflection:

"Can you tell me whether I can see Mr. Revelsworth? I cannot make this person understand who I am."

After twenty years, Mrs. Revelsworth's man-servant said, in harsh rasping tones, "She is alive now, Miss Revelsworth. Mr. Mistress would have told me if a young lady called Revelsworth had been expected. All she told me about was two young gentlemen—them two, I am mistaken—but not a word about a lady; and my mistress never sees strangers."

Francesca looked down at Weldon, the half-humorous servant, with a gracious pitying smile. Then again her great eyes sought Dudley's face, and he felt himself to answer their appeal.

"You are Miss Francesca Revelsworth, are you not?" he said; and at the first sound of his voice he fancied that he detected a faint, a very faint, look of surprise and alarm flash across her face. Mr. Revelsworth expects you, I know. Will you let me introduce myself, my brother? We are your cousins, I believe."

"My cousins? I am so glad to meet you! Mr. Simpson told me my uncle Dudley left two boys; but he did not say they were grown men."

She smiled sweetly as she spoke, her eyes standing then on the threshold of the house, she extended her two slender gloved hands, one to each brother, and looked at each in turn. Dudley was not one of believers in the power of the woman he had seen on the preceding evening; and yet he could not fail to see in this new light of a gracious dignity, and charm. Even the staid Weldon, who was looking on stedonically at the meeting between cousins, was led to admit to the housemaid later that she "arrived it off uncommonly well."

"We didn't do it all attitood, under all that flummery?" Mr. Weldon said, in the scullery's girl to some one of those three. D'ye think they love a lady about the better for that? How much d'ye think I should love you or cook if you stood between me and a kitchen fire?"

All this comment on Mr. Weldon's part however came afterwards. At the time he was constrained to fall back in the narrow hall and make way for the two typically-handsome and finely-built Revelsworths, Francesca and Dudley, and for the smaller, slighter frame of Victor. In her fair hat and graceful gloves Francesca looked but little shorter than her elder cousin, but was more nearly of a size to Victor.

"He was hideously charged, after all these years of comparative peace, of dark brooding; so he reasoned, fault-finding with his boy, and nagging at the unconcerned, for have the house invaded by these unexpected, undesired visitors. Had they been inoffensive little people, their incursion would have been still sufficiently disturbing to his long silence and the beauty of two out of the three, and their air of dominant health, high spirits, and determination tried Mr. Revelsworth to its utmost limit.

He did not know, as he afterwards asserted, what room to show them in: he had no orders on the subject, and he might have left them standing in the hall in indefinite period had not little Betty Mannington, hearing strange voices, darted down the shallow oak staircase in the rooms.

In front of Francesca she stopped dead, drew a long breath, and uttered an exclamation of astonishment. "Why, I frightened you because I am so ill!" Miss Revelsworth asked, looking down upon her with a kind smile.

"N-o. You took my breath away because you are so beautiful," little Betty answered frankly, and both the brothers laughed at her naivete. "Are you Miss Francesca Revelsworth? I went on. "Won't Mrs. Revelsworth be proud of you! I am Betty Mannington, her companion; my father was Mrs. Revelsworth's cousin. Will you come in my room to wash your hat off? Mrs. Revelsworth wants you to stay to dinner. Let me show you the way, Miss Revelsworth, please show the gentlemen their rooms; and, please, you will take the first dinner-bell, please."

The brothers' room were on the second floor, to which access was gained through a felt-covered swing door exactly opposite the front door. Mr. Revelsworth's sitting-room on the first floor. The staircase to the second floor was steep and narrow, and led down by a flight of seven steps to the passage to the extensive kitchens and offices built out at the back of the old house, and upwards by a still narrower flight to two spacious attics, with dormer windows in the high-pitched roof.

The two rooms assigned to Dudley and his brother were clearly not intended at but one spacious apartment, the partition between them, in which was a door, formed of two leaves, covered with and plaster. The outlook from the window was on the high wall that avenues of chestnuts bordering the Palace-road, and beyond that the river—but there was a damp musty smell about the rooms, as though they had been unoccupied for a long time, and the furniture was both scanty and shabby. Mr. Revelsworth's principal post mahogany bedstead, destitute of curtains, with other furniture to match, stood against the wall of the small-er apartment, which had no outlet save through the one which led from communicated, a marble-topped washstand and a dressing-table, the latter upholstered with moth-eaten green velvet which showed considerable ink-stains, the larger room a capacious mahogany wardrobe, a painted deal chest of drawers and bookcase, an iron bedstead, and a horse-hair sofa made up as a bed. Some pegs, a few wooden boards, covered in parts only by scraps of carpet of different kinds and patterns, emphasizing the bareness of the rooms.

"Delicious—this is delightfully English!" cried Victor. "It is like the refreshing of a bad dream. Look out on the sly, with colored pictures on the mantelpiece, and the old-fashioned grim chatelaine, with her dogs and her parasols and her crinolines, and the haulting old seneschal, and, as a finish, the four-poster with the red curtains! Dudley, shall we sleep in the four-poster? All my life I have wished to sleep in such a bed. In this four-poster, I feel that they will, in the middle of the night, the long golden coiffures will enter and gaze at me mournfully—enchanting lay-ghosts, we shall then make talking me their little family secrets. Ah, it is the life! Dudley, I love this place!"

His last words were addressed to a pretty young woman with a turned-up nose and a self-satisfied expression who at that moment tapped at the door and entered the room, carrying a can of hot water.

"A most unexpected question Susan the housemaid grew red and white by turns.

"Really, sir, I can't say," she replied, after a moment's hesitation. "They are gentlemen and old houses—and, anyhow, this isn't the haunted room."

"Haunted room! What room, then?"

"Oh, how should I know, sir? They're such queer stories. It's only foe who are really seen anything—and boys who know you have to believe."

With that the young woman hastily jointed the room, as though she wished to avoid further questioning, and left Victor in a state of great excitement and delight.

"But this is excellent!" he exclaimed. "I, at least speak to him. I must introduce me to the ghost. All my life I have wished to make the acquaintance of a ghost. I'll ask it to be a lady, and not too old or too ugly, we will have a flirtation in front. On its return she will tell us the interesting little secrets of the haunted room."

"What do you think of our cousin Francesca?" Dudley asked, abruptly striking into his brother's babble.

For once Victor paused before replying. Francesca's beauty, set off by the vigorous ablution of his face, but little refreshed by travel and quite did not deceive Dudley, who waited impatiently with contracted brows for his brother's more impressionable judgment.

It came at last, in low impressive tones.

"I cannot speak of her—I can only think of her. Mon Dieu—how beautiful she is!"

"There cannot be two opinions as to that," said Dudley, still frowning over his letters.

"Yet it is not only her beauty," Victor continued, still in the same hushed rapt manner, speaking in French slowly, as though he were thinking words while still under Francesca's spell, "but that look in her eyes! You, Dudley—you do not admire beautiful women as I do, and perhaps you did not notice; but in her eyes there is like a blue fire burning. When she looks at me, my heart seems to contract—her eyes draw my soul like a magnet; I feel stupid, and I can scarcely speak nor move while

For the Farmer.

A simple way to test the quality of oil cake is to throw a few handfuls of the ground article into boiling water and let it cool. The amount of scum on the top will show the oil, along with the straws, chaff and light weed seeds contained in it; the sediment at the bottom will show the sand and dirt, while the color will indicate whether it is made of sound or inferior seed; this last point is a very important one.

Potato-growing.

Few people study into the reasons for doing a thing, and instead of doing their work according to reason many do it according to "grandfather's rule," handed down from bygone days. When the soil was new, full of humus and plant food, and was light and loose, the roots could get through it to great depths easily, and if cut off by a careless cultivator could get plenty of food in the circumscribed area; but now our soils have been robbed of all material which holds them up and keeps them mellow, and are sadly deficient in available plant food, so that a larger area is required to grow the plant, and an injury to the roots causes a famine of food and a lessening of the yield.

The ploughing between the rows and extensive hilling once in fashion is not the best method for the present time, and certainly is not the cheapest. It is said that when the potatoes were brought back to their native home from Ireland the practice of hilling was brought with them. I know of no other reason for it. In that country they made hills, to get them up out of the too moist soil; here we need more moisture as a rule. The roots are the means by which food is obtained, so to cut off roots is to cut off food supply. The roots as they become old and tough lose the power to take in food, and the process is continued further out where they are smaller. The older the plant the further from the base is the food obtained. The growth and length of the roots are very great.

When the foliage is not more than 20 inches high the roots are eighteen inches long, later they are from 30 to five feet. Should one wish away the dirt carefully and get all the roots without breaking them, they would make a rope larger than a braid of a woman's hair. It is safe to say that by midsummer there is not an inch of soil in a potato hill that is not filled with the roots. No deep cultivation can be given at this time without injury. Once I grew 150 bushels an acre without any cultivating at all. Potatoes grow in spite of, not because of, cultivation.

We cultivate to keep down weeds, to break up the crust and preserve the water supply, not to make potatoes grow. If you do not believe it, plant some and some with weeds, and see. The method which will do all of these things best, quickest and cheapest, without injuring the root growth, is the one we want and are seeking.

The previous preparation has much to do with the methods we can use, and the after treatment should always be kept in mind when planting any crop. Potatoes that are planted shallow must be hilled up some or they will be sunburned; hence, level culture requires deeper planting. The new tubers are always attached to the stalk, and are always above the seed piece planted. Therefore, a shallow-planted potato must be covered by hilling to keep the new tubers covered. This hilling not only saves the roots, but gives the sun a chance to dry out the sides of the hills and decrease the yield.

Where the mark was shallow and the soil was not very mellow, I would slough deep between the rows with a one-horse plough or cultivator with very sharp teeth the minute the potatoes begin to come up and before the roots are long. I would turn the first onto the soil completely over the top. This will smother small weeds, cover them deeper and loosen the soil between the rows all at one operation; but the weeder across the rows should follow at once, to level and loosen the dirt just as on the plants. If you have no weeder use a harrow with "pig" teeth.

The roots are the canals and the water the agent which carries the food through them to the foliage. One must dig up the soil well, so the canal can get through it, and so the capillary action will furnish water. This cultivation should be done

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance!

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

Literary Notes

CAMPING AND CANOEING.

This little book of over 200 pages, copiously illustrated, and well indexed in convenient pocket form, with clear type and of stitch best workmanship, has been published by William Briggs, Toronto. The author is a noted Belleville boy, Mr. James Edmund Jones, the son of the late Rev. Septimus Jones, former rector of Christ Church here. He commenced his water-way experiences as a mission worker on the tributaries, and has, during the summers of many years, paddled with friends' companions many hundreds of miles through lakes and rivers of Ontario. A few of the many subtitles will indicate the universality of the author's taste:—"What to take," "How to mend," "Canoe Sports," "What shelters," "Defences and Cures," "Preservation of Camp Outfit," "Medicines," "Luminous and Axes," "Cameras," "Getting lost," "Preservation and Remedy," "Camp Orchestra," "Hints for Fish Notes," "Cook Book with pages of Recipes," "Fires," "Where to Lay Be routed Overhead." The time of publication is appropriate and the little book is sure to be popular in this district, for no finer camping grounds or opportunities for health-giving sport can be found anywhere than are to be found on the Bay of Quinte and in the northern lakes and streams of Hastings and Addington.

To Protect Against Strikes.

Indianapolis, June 18.—David M. Parry, President of the National Manufacturers' Association, said the proposed organization of a company to insure employers of labor against strikes will undoubtedly be formed. "Organized labor will never know," he said, "when it orders a strike whether it is really fighting combined capital or merely making an onslaught on one individual."

THE CASE OF YOUNG WILLIAM MONAHAN.

POLICE MAGISTRATE FLINT LAYS DOWN THE LAW IN CONNECTION WITH THE MATTER.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir Dear Sir,—What a luxury it is for some people to have a reformatory. Without making enquiry into either the law or the facts connected with a case, such people will gossip with their neighbors, and enlarge upon the conduct of the magistrate in maletting the city with the support of a lad in an Industrial School. In the case of the boy Monahan, I have for several years been waiting until he was of the requisite age to send him to the Reformatory, where he would be maintained by the province. Unfortunately, however, his mania for crime is so strong he could not abstain from burglary until he arrived at the age for admission into the Reformatory. He had had been convicted of 4 repeated crimes, the public safety would not permit of his remaining at large, I had either to send him to an Industrial School, or permit him to go free of punishment with the certainty that he would very speedily commit additional crimes. The danger of allowing such a lad to be at large is very great, as his actions are not only liable to lose their goods, but a very strong possibility, that, in groping around buildings during the night, the buildings might be fired accidentally or otherwise. The spirit of the Legislature is to send all bads under The Act to the Reformatory or Industrial School and make the municipality where the lad originated the prime responsible for his maintenance, rather than have the institutions grafters bear the cost. The Government has created a department where boys of tender years, who exhibit a criminal tendency, can be restrained and educated, It seems to be the idea of our legislators that each municipality should be responsible for its own criminals of tender years. I feel that I would be doing a criminal injustice to make it pay for a term of years, two dollars per week for the support and education of a criminal, and those whose parents are very often distressed themselves for the necessities. The authorities advocate sending such children for an indeterminate period, which means, generally, five years. If I am to exhibit a lad that the municipality would pay, in five years $520. I am quite certain that there are probably forty boys in town should be sent to a Reformatory on account of their not being fifteen years old, but who deserve to be sent somewhere where they will be confined and punished. If I sent those boys to an Industrial School for five years the city would have to pay $20,800 for their maintenance. I have sentenced Monahan for one year and IS THE ONLY ONE I have sent to such a school. If our City Fathers think it wise that criminals of tender years should be sent to such schools at the cost of the city, their wishes can be easily gratified, but if they do so indicate I intend to pursue the same policy I have followed for many years.

I am, very truly,

THE MINE OWNERS ACCEPTED CHOICE OF THE UNITED MINE WORKERS CONVENTION.

Scranton, Pa., June 16.—There will be no strike in the anthracite region growing out of the refusal of the operators to recognize the credentials of District Presidents Nicolls, Fahy, and Dempsey, elected by the joint executive board of the United Mine Workers as the miners' representatives on the board of conciliation. The convention of the United Mine Workers, to-day elected the three district presidents by districts, as their representatives and the operators through President George F. Baer of the Reading Company, announced that this action was satisfactory. President Mitchell read a resolution directing that all grievances submitted to the committee on resolutions be turned over to the conciliators. The resolution was accepted.

In answer to an inquiry of one of the delegates, President Mitchell stated that no increase had been proposed for May 1st. Mr. Mitchell explained the sliding scale because the "differential" on coal did not get advanced to $4.55 although the circular issued by the coal roads on which figures he said and presumed they were correct. The average price had been $4.55 and not $4.60 per ton. The price, he thought, would reach $4.62 per ton, an increase would give a two per cent. increase coming to them.

Mr. G. A. Booth Released.

Ottawa Citizen: George A. Booth, proprietor of the Capital Fruit Exchange, who was arrested on Monday evening on a warrant from Police Hoey, charging him with obtaining 132 pounds of butter from William B. Campbell, of Port Hope, under false pretences, was allowed out on bail to defraud, and who was being held for the Port Hope police, was released from custody this evening by Chief Powell on the withdrawal of the prosecution. H. A. Ward, M. P., of Port Hope, was acting for the private prosecution, and E. Guss Porter, M.P., of Belleville, with George A. Kidd, for the defendant. When the lawyers came together it appeared that there had been a misunderstanding and any dispute there might be was only as to the quality of the butter. The release of the defendant followed on these explanations.

TWO NEW HOUSES.

Once upon a Time there were Two Men, each of whom decided to build for himself a Fine, New House.

The Man, being of an Arrogant and Conceited Nature, took counsel of Himself alone and declared that he would build his House to suit himself. "For," said he, 'since I is My House and I am to Live in It, why should I ask the Advice of my Neighbors as to My Requirements?"

While the House was Building, the Neighbors often and often looked at it, and went away, Whispering and Wagging their Heads in Derision.

But the Man paid no Heed, and continued to build his House as he Would.

The Result was that, when completed, the House was Lacking in Symmetry and Utility, and in a Hundred Ways it was Unsatisfactory, and for such Doors there was a Great Demand, said, "Had you asked Me, I would have Warned you against that Error."

The Other Man, who was of a Humble and Docile Mind, went to each of his Neighbors in Turn, and asked Advice about the Plans for his House.

His Friends willingly and at Great Length gave him the Benefit of their Experience and Opinions, and the Grateful Man undertook to Follow Out their Directions.

The Result was that his House, when finished, was a Model of Convenience, Style and Contradictory Effects, and Exceedingly Commodious and Inconvenient to Live In.

Eugene Stratton's Story.

Eugene Stratton tells a dramatic story of his early struggles in the profession of the minstrel profession. He travelled all over the States as a singer with Kelly's Mastodon Minstrels, and it was not until this organization left the States and came to London, was seen, and encouraged, says an English exchange.

Then at the performance Stratton was dancing and singing for Mr. Hengler, in the ring between the acts, when the ring-master, Mr. Hengler, gave the tin-drum, in imitation of the Salvation Army, which he can still give points to some of the boys in the Guards.

Stratton had visited a concert in Shepherd's Bush. He gives chapter and verse for the occurrence, but we may omit the name of the establishment. After the evening performance he went into a restaurant with some of the minstrels, who happened to congregate. Their table was at one end of the room.

Leaning against the bar, with odd bits of tin and his elbows on it, was the well-known comedian, Mr. Bobby Newcombe, not that—a local celebrity who had a considerable vogue in the halls at that time, and was then at the height of his popularity. He had been for some years in the United States for the greater part of that time, and had been elected a member of the Lambs' Club. People, Chas. B. Cochran, Alexander Ray and J. A. Rousaw.

"Ragging" at Cambridge

Though every effort has been made by the authorities at certain Cambridge theological colleges to suppress the facts relating to the "ragging" of some of the students during last term, the circumstances have become well known and accordingly to English papers.

Practically every college at the University is at one time or another the scene of mild and harmless "ragging," but in this case it was of a thoroughly brutal type, and the evil effects of it upon the college are likely to be felt for some time. one instance the practical joke became perilously near a tragedy, and, remarkable enough, the men were there studying for the church are the worst offenders in the disgraceful affair. It has been made upon quiet and harmless individuals. In one case a dead cat was made apparent use in disgraceful, who, in addition to having infringed the unwritten law by having preached the Gospel, included total abstinence among his social offences. The college Chaplain having sat in judgment, he was thenceforward "ragged" with shocking barbarity, his room pelted down bogus, and havoc made of his furniture. In the case of the unpopular undergraduate was astonished to receive an invitation to a dinner, his attended it, only to find himself the butt and victim of his fellow students. Upon the scene, and succeeded in barricading himself in his bedroom against his tormentors, who, undeterred by this, made desperate attempts to break down the door. Failing in this, they started destroying the furniture, books, sabres adorned the walls of his room, and the unfortunate victim barricaded himself out a panel of the door and one of them put his arm through. The terrified undergraduate started at him with one of the sabres, and severed the arm at the wrist. It is stated that the authorities of the college authorities that he had been driven to "dangerous conduct," and recently another undergraduate who had incurred the "ragging" set was pulled out of bed in the early hours of the morning, and, after being forcibly undressed, was shaved all over, was ducked in the bath, and becomes so seriously ill that legal proceedings against the culprits were threatened. These outrages have had a very disastrous effect on the college, for whereas a few years ago thirty-eight or forty undergraduates were in residence, the number has now dwindled down to twelve.

Railways in Africa.

Lord Cromer is a great administrator, and in South Africa, one of those born organizers who uphold the genius of the British for setting other peoples affairs in order, but, as is natural to a man whose work it is, he is not always apt to speak or celebrate when the matter merely by diminish a railway. Lord Cromer has accomplished wonders in Egypt, at one time, as will be remembered, he commanded Alfred Milner, and he may be entrusted with anything like Nile as a railway, der his own charge, but we cannot see the slightest reason why he should dance to the Uganda railway tune, in his report on Egypt, he has something to say, he writes:

"The necessity and practicability of a railway (from Khartoum) to Uganda, or, so onwards to the south, has, I venture to think, been much exaggerated in the past. In view of the very great physical difficulties to be encountered, never will be shown."

Mr. Rhodes' great scheme has nothing whatever about it, and as the permanent way stretches north mile by mile from Khartoum (1903), the earthworks are completed far in advance, as the engineers have to prepare the way for the line further north right to the front of the great lakes, the practicability which Lord Cromer has at it is no longer a matter of doubt. It is the settled policy of the Government of the Chartered Company to carry the railway onward from the Zambesi to the heart of Africa's country in the shortest time possible, by negotiations to in British territory. By agreement concluded by Mr. Rhodes with the Portuguese Government the Chartered Company has built the line, under certain conditions, to continue the railway through Portuguese Africa to the Pungwe River, on the East Coast, but Mr. Rhodes did not contemplate himself, nor does he now contemplate himself, personally building beyond Uganda, he held that the building of the remaining line, the connection Egypt and the Soudan with Uganda, was the work of the British Empire as a whole, and was one which he left when the rail head reaches Uganda, the Government of that country to make the boundary decision, and when he reaching well down past Fashoda. When it is considered how difficult navigation is south of Khartoum owing to the fact the railway is a necessity for the Soudan.

Farmer Black, the English clergyman who has been writing letters to the newspapers about the marriage of W. E. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Rutherfurd, visits the London prisons weekly and tries to reform the prisoners. In this good work he often succeeds. Sometimes, though, he has odd experiences. A tobacco pipper told recently how on one occasion he devoted a fortnight to the reformation of a housebreaker, and for the housebreaker said to him gratefully at the end of that time: "Thank you, sir; thank you for what you have done for me. There was a time when I knew nothing of God or of the devil, but now how you have made me love them both."

KIDNEY TROUBLE EIGHT YEARS

LUMBAGO AND TIRED, WORN-OUT FEELINGS WERE THE PORTION OF A TORONTO MACHINIST.

HE IS WELL NOW—DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS HAVE CURED HIM.

Mr. Jas. J. Walsh, a machinist in the employ of the Kemp Mfg. Co., and whose home is 321 Adelaide St., W., Toronto, told the story of his cure as follows:

"For eight or nine years I have been troubled with my kidneys. First had a severe attack of lumbago, then was troubled with intermittent pains in my back, and felt tired and worn out all the time. I used a number of remedies, but did not get much benefit from them. I heard of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and decided to try them. I have taken in all three boxes, and am happy to say the Tablets have completely cured me. I recommended them to my brother and they have cured him already. They are certainly splendid."

Every form of kidney trouble, from backache to Bright's disease, is cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and the cure is permanent. Price 50 cents a box, or three for $1.25, at druggists. The Dr. Zins Pitcher Co., Toronto.

Sad News Confirmed.

Detroit, Mich., June 18.—A telegram from Ione, about 20 miles from Harpster, Oregon, destroyed by the flood on Monday, has been received by Dr. E. R. Ellis, of Detroit, informing him that his married daughter, Mrs. Alexander Gunn, and her husband, were drowned.

Tobogganing into a Bear.

A member of the Wellman polar expedition of 1898-9, Paul Bjoerig, is described by Mr. Walter Wellman, in "A Dash Over the Far North," as a man of superior courage, of unexampled fortitude and of inspiring character. He was a bit of dangerous work to do, he was sure to be the first to plunge in. His swing axe laughed at his work. He went down into a "povrigg," half ice, half air, instantly, and was pulled out by his hair, he came up with a joke and a flash of ice water.

One day three men were out bear-hunting on an island. Two of them had rifles, the other had none. The latter was Bjoerig. They found a bear, wounded it, and then chased him to the top of a glacier. There brain stood at bay. One of the hunters had got a shot from close to the right. Bjoerig laboriously mounted the ice-pile to scare the beast down where the others could get a shot. But one of the hunters became impatient, and started to climb up after. On the way he lost his footing, fell, and slid forty or fifty feet into a pocket of soft snow.

At that moment, unfortunately, Bjoerig frightened the bear. Leaving the summit of the ice-heap, the beast slipped and slid straight toward the helpless man, who was floundering in his arm's pits below. Apparently the man's life was not worth a half-farthing. In a few seconds the bear would be upon him, and would tear him to pieces. The brute was wounded, furious, desperate.

Bjoerig saw what he had to do. He did not hesitate. He acted on the spur. From his perch at the summit he threw himself down the precipitous slope. He rolled, fell, slipped straight down toward the big white bear. He had no weapon but an oaken axe-staff, a club; nevertheless he made straight for the bear.

Down the hillock slope he came, bumping and leaping, and yelling at the top of his voice. His cries, the commotion which he raised, the vision of the bear as a man flying down at him, frightened the beast half out of his wits; diverted his attention from the imperiled hunter to the bold pursuer.

This was what Bjoerig was working for. The bear dug his mighty claws into the ice and plunged and lumbered after Bjoerig, but Bjoerig would not stop. The slope was too steep, his momentum too great. To dig his hands into the crust of the snow; he tried to thrust his stave-staff deep into the surface. It was in vain. Now he was almost upon the bear; the beast swerved to right or left, or the other second and it would all be over. Should the ride spoke. The man down below had had time to recover his wits and his breath. Another shot and the battle was over. Bjoerig and the bear rolled down together.

"You saved my life," said the man with the gun, when Bjoerig had picked himself up.

"No, no," responded Bjoerig, whipping the snow out of his hair, "you saved mine."

The O. K. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and stiff and I felt that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. K. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle when I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS HUNTLEY.

Teacher's Promotion.

Windsor, June 18.—Mr. Forsyth, principal of the Public school at Essex, is said to have been brutally assaulted by Samuel Smith, blacksmith, who had told the former if he caught his nine-year-old son on the street and he refused to attend school he would make him. The teacher was trying to log the youngster to his seat Wednesday when the father interfered.

More Canadian Victims.

Windsor, June 19.—Mrs. Thomas Legallie believes that it was her brother, Samuel McBride, and his wife and seven children who were mentioned as being victims of the Heppner flood. The family consisted of father and mother and seven children. They removed from Strathroy, Ont., to Heppner some years ago.

SINCLAIR'S AD

"CAN'T YOU FORGET?" "CAN'T YOU FORGET?"

Mr. Stratton Explains in the House His Query to Hammond.

Minister Concludes His Defence—Mr. Lucas is Severe—Asks if Acquittal Is a Blanket Certificate of Character For a Minister of the Crown—Points Out Many Inaccuracies in the Judges' Finding.

"Or forget," said Mr. Stratton. "Or I will resign to-morrow if Mr. Hammond withheld a single scrap of his evidence by reason of anything said to him."

Mr. Stratton concluded in part as follows:

Accepted the Findings.

"The findings of the Royal Commissioners I accept without any feeling of triumph or personal boast, and in the same spirit as I hope they will be accepted by my friends in this House and in the country.

"I hold no resentment against those of my opponents who have been misled, for the great wrong they have endeavored to do me. And I would say to my accusers, that I hope they will learn, from their experience in connection with this matter, that falsehood works its own revenge, and deceit brings its own just punishment."—(Long and renewed applause.)

Dramatic By-Play.

Mr. Stratton concluded his speech at noon, after speaking altogether about four hours. The Premier stepped down to the Provincial Secretary seat and shook hands with Mr. Stratton, and the Liberal members broke into applause again, although by this time another speaker had begun.

Mr. Lucas was Mr. Whitney's satirical comment on the incident.

"Oh, why don't you go and shake hands with your man?" retorted Mr. Graham.

HESITATED TO DENY CHARGES.

Mr. Lucas Deals With Mr. Stratton's Timidity in the Matter.

Mr. Stratton was followed by Mr. Lucas (Centre Grey), who spoke till the Speaker left the chair. He said that the treatment complained of by the Provincial Secretary was largely the result of his own conduct. He had not taken the opportunity of giving an unqualified denial on the floor of the House, to the charges against his character.

Mr. Stratton—I gave a denial through the press next day.

Mr. Lucas—An absolutely colorless denial. Why was not the denial given on the floor of the House?

Mr. Gibson—He denied it through the Premier.

Mr. Lucas—Did he? The Premier said he had every confidence in the Minister, but was that a denial? Mr. Ross—The Provincial Secretary gave the charges an unqualified denial through his leader.

Mr. Lucas, continuing, said if the Provincial Secretary had the truth on his side, it would have borne testing then. It would have had more effect in his favor than the charges made then all the speeches of defence the Minister could make for years to come. The denial he had made in the House was that of the prisoner who says "Not guilty" in the box. He had first to see what his friends could manufacture and what they would forget.

The Premier and his supporters had realized that if the Provincial Secretary was found guilty, it would mean the downfall of the Government. For this reason he had departed from traditions and British precedents and referred the charges to a judicial consideration. In support the House was now asked to endorse at a party vote the impartial conclusion.

Awaiting the Verdict.

It was fitting that the defence had acted throughout as if the trial were a criminal one. Had the Provincial Secretary been indicted for a criminal offence, as he might have been, he would now be sitting in the dock awaiting the almighty dollar verdict of a jury of his peers, instead of occupying his seat in Parliament, ready to vote with his colleagues on the declaration of his innocence. The report of the judges was not a unanimous one. It was only a favorable charge to the jury, but it was the charge that was the Provincial Secretary entitled to the congratulations which he had been receiving from his colleagues and associates.

Continuing, Mr. Lucas said that when the Provincial Secretary was confronted with the charges and confronted with the question as to whether he would stay bought, and then his friend would purchase him, he got some documentary evidence binding Hammond to silence. Then, he said, he could be more reasonable than he had been and adopt the suggestion of Mr. Aylesworth and get a letter from the member for Manitoulin setting forth the facts.

Judges' Inaccuracies.

Mr. Lucas said he proposed to point out some inaccuracies and omissions in the judges' report. One of these was in the finding as to Rule X 17 of the letter, which, it is admitted, was written by Frank Sullivan, the sentence which with instructions to deal with Gamey faced his constituents at the election of the child. The judges' comment on the timber transaction in which Gamey was a party, to the extent of $5,000, Mr. Lucas said the evidence of Mr. Grant and Frank Sullivan showed that the conclusions of the judge were wrong. That was the only transaction circumstances on the morning of Sept. 11? There was Gamey, Sullivan and Gamey; Sullivan agreeing to pay Gamey $5,000; Grant holding a suspicious interview in the Sullivan's back room; the Provincial Secretary anxious to see him the later, and he, Gamey refusing to give it up until the money was forthcoming. Was it on the morning of Sept. 11, there was Gamey with the large sum of money in his possession, which he drew down to Mr. Cronsis, with the remark, "I got the money at the Bank; you'll hear more of it later on." But the judges ignored these circumstances.

Not Impartial Summary.

Mr. Lucas said that the judges did not make an impartial summary of the evidence, in respect to the charges of 1900 on Sept. 11.

Mr. Stratton's affair was then dealt with, and Mr. Lucas held that the report of the Commissioners was not a fair statement of the evidence. The witnesses called to establish an alibi for Stratton were "not to be relied on officially." Why did not they call a host of friends? If their evidence, if the alibi could be established?

Where Did the Money Come From?

Where did the money come from? was still unanswered. The Commissioners were not so far as to say if the missing leaves of the Cronsis cash-book could be found the question might be answered. Where was the authority for that statement? "If I wanted to be unkind," Mr. Lucas said, "I could say that Mr. McEvoy, according to his evidence, was the last man who saw the books intact."

Adverting to the request of Stratton to Hammond to forget some things, Mr. Lucas charged that the Commissioners were not fair in omitting Stratton's words from their report and merely referring to it as a "statement attributed to Mr. Stratton." He was not prepared to say that Hammond's evidence which were important to the prosecution.

Mr. Lucas said he had done nothing more than call attention to the report, a thing that is done every day in the courts in asking that verdicts be set aside, by reason of prominent features eliminated from the report.

Is Acquittal Enough?

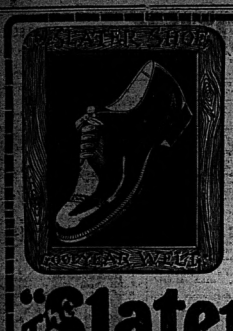

Mr. Lucas' concluding remarks had to deal with the question as to what was experienced on the Government benches because of the character given the accused by the judges. He said:

"But is it the proper conduct of a Minister of the Crown charged with a criminal offence, that he is not the right to expect something more—something different from the conduct of the criminal in the dock? Had we not the right to expect an immediate explanation of the suspicious circumstances? Such a statement and explanation at that time would have been of value and entitled to credit. But coming now, or as it did in the witness box, with every opportunity to make the statement dovetail with the evidence that could not be disputed, is of no value and entitled, in the circumstances, to little, if any, or weight.

"Has the standard of public life reached the low level where an acquittal on a criminal charge is a sufficient certificate of character from a Minister of the Crown? I believe that a sterling honesty and integrity in the hearts of the people will find that this is not the standard for their leaders. The leader of the opposition has for his motto on the banner which he has been so manfully carrying, 'Honesty the Standard of Political Morality,' and he trust him and supporting him are the majority of the votes of the people of this province, and who, he hopes, will yet triumphed the banner which he bears in the fight until it is torn and he borne on by the firm and determined hands of a victorious people. I certain, a sure, a not far distant victory."

"As some one has well said: No more heroic, devoted, self-sacrificing men ever breathed than the early settlers and pioneers of this province, who plunged into the wilderness to hew out for themselves new homes in the then pathless forests. The higher toned morality—the better Sabbath-day observance—are some of the fruits of this goodly plant. And I say, that I believe belief in criminal indictment, with its sturdy, rugged, straightforward honesty and self-reliance still lives in their descendants, and in them we have the ultimate decision."

Mr. M. G. Cameron of West Huron followed. Mr. Gamey, according to him, is a "pure-minded character, patriot, political truck," a common liar, who by his coarse conduct has left many homes in ke thes

A SCATHING CRITICISM—UNFORTUNATELY TOO TRUE!

It has already been predicted and pointed out in these columns, that the acceptance by Judges of semi-political positions would create a feeling in the country of suspicion and doubt as to the impartiality and fairness of those adjudicating upon such commissions. Such, unfortunately, is now the case.

The actions of certain Judges in Lennox, South Oxford, North Grey and Bruce, and the reports of Judges in the Gamey-Stratton case, has called forth expressions and opinions not at all complimentary to those who were entrusted with the investigations and administration of the law. No one will, therefore, be surprised at such comments as the following, coming as they do from a thoroughly independent source. The Toronto News says:

What do the people of Canada think to-day of the Canadian judiciary? The question is a vital one. It involves a nation's regard for law and order. It involves the integrity of our national institutions. And it involves our national morality and decency and self-respect.

A year ago there could have been no such question. Its answer would have been absurdly, unhesitating, unqualified. The judiciary was the one thing in which the people trusted. In the midst of a general breakdown of political morality, the disappearance of all party principle, the elimination from public life of almost all the big men who held the nation's confidence, the courts of Canada remained in full possession of the people's respect. Have they it, to-day?

A terribly significant incident occurred at the decoration of the Veterans' Monument in Queen's Park a week ago. In the absence of a patriotic oration, which was being enthusiastically received, the speaker made the customary colourless reference to the position of the Canadian Bench. It was received with ribald laughter, which compelled him to plunge his subject as soon as the jeers of his audience subsided into a hurried and hollow end. It was an incident that would have been impossible a year ago. And we can only hope against hope that it will be impossible a year hence.

The fact is that the people are ready to avoid, if any Government had the courage to avoid them, scandals have been made a part of the political machinery of a party. The responsibility is largely their own. They have approved them when they made political speeches when they need not have done so, and that is the charge which the public lays against them. But the burden lies mainly upon the Government which has imposed this new obligation upon them. And as straws show the wind, so the laughter of the Queen's Park crowd—every man of it a Conservative, assembled to honor their noblest dead—shows in what depths of degradation the administration of the Judiciary will land the people.

TIMELY TOPICS.

A Tennessee contemporary records the birth of a baby girl with three hands and arms. Fortunate infant. When she attains the age of long dresses she will be able to carry an umbrella in one hand, hold up her skirts with the second, and keep the wind from blowing her hat off with the third.

A crazy man tried to club the Emperor of Austria the other day. That's hardly worth mentioning after trying to club Parliament.

AN INDEPENDENT VIEW.
(Ottawa Journal.)

Many Liberal daily papers, from the Toronto Globe down, are assuming that the report of Justice Boyd and Falconbridge was a vindication of Mr. Stratton and the Government which will clear them, in the mind of the public, of all blame in connection with the Gamey charges. This confidence we fancy to be misplaced, and we are surprised at it. It would be better for the Ross Government and for the Liberal party in Ontario if the Judges' report had not been. We were less jubilant about the report, more silent regarding the iniquities or misdoings of Mr. Gamey's chief after reading the features of the evidence, which showed a mighty elastic conscience on the part of some of the Liberal lights and a very poor memory regarding the means they are willing to use to obtain power.

The Grit Chinese pirates are throwing their skirmish net in great style this year, they say. Their haulage must be pretty bad when the speaker has to call them down. Mr. Stratton's friends contend that their abuse is not argument, and that by following the Chinese example and making a great noise to frighten their foes they are only calling the public's attention to the weakness of their case.

Judging by that accident in Woolwich yesterday, bicycles is more dangerous in peace than in war, if what we used to hear a couple of years ago was true.

Mr. Gourley, M.P., need never expect to be invited to play in Uncle Sam's back yard, after his warm remarks in the Commons yesterday.

Having been a judge at that bicycle race this morning, the Toplow man feels inclined to resent the insinuation that the Ontario Judiciary is not all that it ought to be.

Strawberries are getting higher, but they are not so high as green apples yet.

Up to the hour of going to press the City Council has not notified Police Magistrate Flint that they would like those forty boys sent to the Industrial School.

The Peterboro people could best increase their fire limits by moving their chunks of ice at them, like they did at the hockey team. Because, you see, ice is not plentiful just now.

The Court of Revision seems to be using the axe pretty freely on some of those assessments.

The Bishop of Huron, whose remarks appear in another column, certainly read the Riot Act to the laymen of that diocese. They seem to be good after that. And if some men in this city don't want to be talked to in the same way they'd better go to church a little oftener.

Queen Victoria's jubilee gifts are to be honed in the shape of a few days' wages for exhibition; and the directors of the World's Fair at Shanonville are to be asked to try and get the same privilege.

The spectacle of Spotless Jim Stratton weeping before the Legislature was certainly a moving picture!

At the Glory Whalen inquest, a woman swore that she saw two tramps shake a little girl, seize her, and carry her off, screaming into the woods, and she never said a word about it for three days, although the whole neighborhood was astounded by the story of a shocking murder. Another woman heard the screams of a child and a shot, and also, too, said nothing about it. Who will be bold enough to say, after that, that a woman cannot hold her tongue?

is familiar with General Sherman's famous definition of war. The Grand Union Tea Co. are waging war now against the same harsh spirits of these life, the sore (is it "hell—downright hell"?)

Lot us help you! In an interviewer that she is "tired of the theater, but not of art." Many of the theatrical part of the day, tired of the necessary cooperation of artists, managers, scenshifters and lamp-lighters.

"Yes," she continued, "I am tired of all and everything theatrical. I have done my artistic endeavors and to interture you with more plans, executed or intended. I am speaking of entering the lecture platform, of writing on things in quite a different way from the ordinary.

"I mean to enliven the lecture platform and broaden its scope by relaxing some of the stage's features. My American tour will be my first step as far as staginland is concerned.

"After that I will endeavor to realize this dream of making the world acquainted with the great masterpieces of literature without detracting their attention by undue admiration of the unadvantageous or stupidity of actors playing incidental parts.

"Then as my ladies or gentlemen will be engaged as my assistants, merely to look their parts and give me the cue. As for myself, I couldn't think of assuming the garb of one of the stage's dramatic recitals.

"I needn't repeat," she continued, "that I leave the stage without regret, yet, at the same time I am almost forced to do something for the public. I can't be for ever playing Dumas and Sheldon, Ibsen and Sudermann. No one of account is writing new plays for me. Consequently, the written might as well remain quarantined.

"Hence, I plan to lecture illustrated by literary famine. Shall I wait until the publication of my repertoire? Besides, I must add myself to the crowd of stage life. That's no life at all. I assure you it is hell, downright hell."

Curious Whims.

Eccentricity is often nothing but the exaggeration of some trait, and a writer, a scholar of some distinction who died recently, had one of the strangest whims. His peculiarity expressed itself in the way in which he tried to carry out his interests, or for symbolism of it, into the grave. By the terms of his will he left $1,000 to a certain friend of his sister on condition that his funeral was carried out according to certain directions. His coffin was painted green, and was drawn to the grave by eight men—no relatives being invited—who were to receive ten guineas each provided they did not dress in black. The body was fully dressed. Under the eyes of each pall bearer a pair of eyes of Horace was laid underneath. The hired mourners sang over the closed grave his favorite ode, one of the twentieth ode of the second book of Horace, and directly after a generous supper, another ode was sung. "Which done," was the final injunction of the will, "I would have them take a cheerful view and think no more of me." A French historian has a whimsical fancy for dwelling and writing by candlelight. At full noonday, in the brightest summer weather, he would have his candle by his side, and he would carry it in his hand when showing his visitors to the door.

Appearances Deceived Him.

The Bather—I like this mixed bathing idea. It's worth dressing for.

Her Friend—I had an idea from your appearance that you thought the reverse.—"Pick-Me-Up."

Wit and Wisdom From New Books.

"When the lights are out," he said, "even the moon looks like a night that bids the stage farewell; when stripped of her mantle, she is a beggar." Said that Auditor who set him his parts; then perhaps he will be told what manner of man he is. The giant that now lies in darkness before his bulk—but he thinks a truer giant would show a shrunken figure.—"Audrey."

It is a miserable thing to linger on the threshold. The daring spirits pass across and close the door.—"Sister Teresa."

The devil possesses no one who does not desire him.—"Sister Teresa."

Men are born to hardship. It is the law which governs changes in of their metal.—"When the Land Was Young."

The over-exercise of a certain faculty is always dangerous, and by too much judging of others we become unfit for self-criticism.—"The Soul of Illusion."

Professional saints are very tiresome people. Amateur sinners are much more interesting.—"Casting of Nets."

To learn the words of a man's creation, do business with him.—"Aphorisms and Reflections."

Rules of grammar cannot give us a mastery of language, rules of etiquette cannot make us eloquent, rules of conduct cannot make us good.—"Aphorisms and Reflections."

A poet may be a good companion, but, so far as I know, he is even the worst of fathers.—"Pyt and I."

Altruism is a privilege, rather than a duty.—"The Symphony of Life."

Heaven and hell are, in fact, but the two halves of mind.—"The Symphony of Life."

When the law sets out to punish, it doesn't stop with the guilty only.—"The Hanger of the Black Arts."

They took his humor for flippancy, because their only quality was dogged stupidity.—"Men and Books."

The Up-to-Date Undertaker.

Yankee undertaker advertises: "Why are we so pleasant, when death can be comfortably buried for twenty dollars?" We shall expect something of the kind over here soon. Don't be surprised when you take up your morning paper if you read this sort of thing: "Bill Morgan looked down the barrel of his daddy's gun to see where the bullet went to when it went off. The funeral was handsomely conducted by Smith & Co., who have always a large stock on hand, and are ready to bury the whole neighborhood at twenty-four hours' notice. A pound of tea given away with every coffin. Order early and avoid disappointment."

The Friend of M'dame.

HERE is a little story which was told me in the twilight, when the lamps had not been lighted, and I was still at, cups in hand, both to my pipe and to my coffee, and had not yet a fawn for dawn seat, near which, there is a queer old grey stone, which has been inhabited in twenty years.

Twenty years ago, it was one of the prettiest places in Canada. A young married couple, who had taken it and over two of those old-fashioned rural hotels, which are now quite out of vogue. The master was a traveler, and, for a month at a stretch, but Jean and Jacqueline and M'dame were as happy and contented as three people could be. M'dame had her dogs, her horses, her pigeons, her cats, and her fowls and poultry. She was convent-bred, and had married from school—as perhaps, she never been to a dance or a play or a race meet, nor even to the Dominion Cup dined sometimes at the Stone House, the dining room of which smoke a pipe with the master and play cards; the master invited no one else, and the latter withdrew herself from the few gentlefolks who would have entertained her in the neighborhood. She was gently born and convent-bred—you know that—but she was never born

The McLean automatic gun-pound gun which is used in the navy, and which General Miles says is "the deadliest weapon" he has ever seen, has been improved. The new gun was recently tested at Sandy Hook. It weighs about 469 pounds and discharges 25 one-pound projectiles with one pull of the firing lever, making a total of the firing being done automatically by exploitation of a gas machine. It can fire 600 shots a minute.

The Sense of Humor.

He was an ordinarily mild and inoffensive little gentleman who had lived for many happy years when a volcano in Sachse Chelsea abandoned some of her theatrical scandals and came into his home. In the he read of delicious practical jokes played with unlimited success by Victor and Sothern and of how that great comedian, F. L. Graves, brought confusion to a fashionable shop displaying in the window a sign, "Families supplied," by requesting that some girls and a boy should be sent round as soon as possible.

That, he said, "is the exercise of true wit." Then he went out, still chuckling.

In further Chelsea, where custom still lingers, the ballgoer from the needy stands at eating-house which endeavors to attract the hungry by putting up on front the dubious message, "Everything as nice as mother makes it!"

"The very place," said the little gentleman, and entered.

"I can have a meal?" was his first query.

"Yes—straight through," said the woman behind the counter, pointing to another partition of the shop.

"Any everything as nice as mother makes it?" he asked.

"That's in the window."

"But how nice does mother make it?"

"Jim," said the woman, calling into space, "here's a cove wants to know how nice mother makes it," and she laughed.

"Clara," came a beery voice; "must be losing on the crumpet. Turn 'im out."

Nothing daunted, the little man went on: "Supposing she doesn't make it well enough? Supposing she makes it very nasty, what then?"

No answer.

The woman went on frying onions, but her eye gleamed.

"What if I don't remember any mother? What if she never made anything at all? What if——"

He got no further, but found himself thrust quickly through the door into the pavement outside, while a voice admonished him: "Hi'll 'ave you to come interfering 'ere—if yer wants a sausage and mashed, say so. If not, get out." And as he retreated hastily, though with dignity, the voice followed him: "Bedlam—that's the place for the likes of you—Bedlam."

Nothing discomfited little gentleman had walked nearly a mile before his recovery was completed by a big, well-served dinner, which caught his eye. "Wear Parkinson's Boots," ran the legend.

The little man fairly leaped into the shop.

"Why?" he asked, in mild enquiry.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the assistant who had hurried forward to greet him.

"Why should I wear Parkinson's boots?"

"Because they are the best, sir. We use nothing but the best leather."

"What's the matter with my own?"

The assistant glanced down.

"Uppers' want mending and heels leveling, sir. Do you a perfect boot for fifteen shillings."

"But supposing Parkinson's don't fit me?"

"We keep all sizes, sir."

"Yes; but I don't mean that I care about wearing another man's boots."

"Of course, sir, if you prefer to go on buying boots like those you've got on, but," with a deprecatory shrug, "it's to turn you out a much better article for fifteen shillings."

"But my name is Pettigrew, and I don't think it would be legal for me to call myself Parkinson's boots—it looks like robbery."

"Robbery!" said the assistant sharply. "Our prices are so low as they can be for sound wearing articles. If there's nothing further to-day, sir, nodding open the door, "good morning, sir!"

"Some people," said Pettigrew to himself, as he waited for the boulevard bus, "have no sense of humor. I wonder how Toole managed it?"—Punch.

A Keen Sense of Smell.

One of the sorrows of childhood is the slowness of some older people to take a hint. It is often quite a strain on good manners to be obliged to refuse a suggestion that should have been adequate in itself.

A little girl, visiting at a neighbor's house, sat near a plate containing some apple-parings. At last, unable to keep silence any longer, she said, "I smell apples."

"Yes," returned her hostess, "it's those parings."

"Now," said the little girl, solemnly, "I smell whole apples."

RECENT FICTION.

Wild Animals that have known me.—From "Life."

Is the Novel Dying?

Science and the stern reality of life are bound to destroy the novel. It is out of harmony with the scientific and materialistic spirit of the age. The more industrial and strenuous a nation is, the fewer novelists has she; only the backward, the peasants, the visionary peoples produce great novelists. The fable, the legend, the fairy tale, the epic, have died. Why not the novel? It, too, is subject to the law of evolution. It has been its career. "Apologist, and is on the decline."—Novoye Vremya," St. Petersburg.

ONE QUESTION

and it's a fair one :—

Why should you buy "Queen Quality" Shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale?

In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality." Thousands of women do just this thing, so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it!

It is this :— Queen Quality gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more—that is—an accurate fit.

EX-M.P.'S DEATH.

Mr. T. H. Macpherson, of Hamilton, Dies on C.P.R. Steamer.

Hamilton, June 19.—The news of T. H. Macpherson's death on a C.P. R. boat between Owen Sound reached here yesterday morning, and was a shock to his friends, for, although he had been in poor health for some time, his death was not looked for. He left Hamilton a few days ago to meet his brother, Malcolm, who was coming from New Zealand. His brother was with him at the time of death. The dead man was 61 years of age, and was a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Macpherson, Glassco & Co. He is survived by Misses Emily, Jean, Christine and Effie. It appears that he retired to his berth on the C.P.R. steamer Manitoba Wednesday night in his usual health and was found dead this morning. The deceased was a prominent Liberal, and with the late Hon. A. T. Wood, was elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1896, retiring from public life at the end of his term.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Fourteen Men Victims of Explosion at Lyddite Factory at Woolwich.

London, June 19.—Fourteen men were killed and thirteen injured by an explosion in the lyddite factory at the Woolwich Arsenal yesterday morning. Several of the victims were literally blown to pieces. The building was completely wrecked. The roof was blown off and the interior collapsed. The explosion is attributed to the bursting of a shell.

Six additional men are missing, and it is believed they were blown to atoms. The remains of the victims were collected in buckets.

Redistribution Committee.

Ottawa, June 19.—The Redistribution Committee sat again last night, and disposed of all the provinces except Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. It was decided that King's and Albert, in New Brunswick, be formed into one constituency. The Northwest Territories were then taken up. Alberta, it was arranged, should have four constituencies, and Assiniboia three.

The Marconi Bill.

Ottawa, June 19.—The Commons Railway Committee yesterday reported bills to incorporate the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, and respecting the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway.

Aged Men Voted.

Ottawa, June 19.—Dr. Chamberlain, Ontario Inspector of Charities, has complained to the steward of the Protestant Old Men's Home here that at the last provincial election certain of the inmates had exercised their franchise, and voted against the Government. He expressed the opinion that inmates of a charitable institution should not exercise their franchise.

Heals Inflamed, Itching Skin

CURES ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM AND ZETTER, LEAVING THE SKIN SMOOTH, SOFT AND NATURAL.

As a means of allaying inflammation, relieving the itching, healing skin and healing and curing itching skin diseases, sores and eruptions, we believe that we can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most potent preparation that it is possible to obtain.

So many extreme cases have been cured, so speedily and completely, so many has been relieved, and such a host of people have voluntarily testified in the regard that we challenge anyone to produce like evidence in favor of any other ointment or any preparation which is recommended for the same purpose.

Dr. Chase's Ointment certainly stands unapproached and unrivalled as a healer of the skin and positive cure for itching skin diseases, from pimples to eczema, from chilblains to ulcers, each and every form of itching skin disease has been cured by this great ointment.

Mr. G. H. McKnight, engineer in Fleury's foundry, Aurora, Ont., states: "I believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold. For about thirty years I was troubled with eczema and could not obtain any cure. I was so unfortunate as to have blood poison, and the disease oped into eczema, the most dreadful of all diseases.

"I was so bad that I would get up at night and scratch myself until my whole flesh was raw and flaming. The torture I endured is almost beyond description, but now I cannot say anything too good for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has cured me and I recommend it because I know there is nothing so good for itching skin."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is known in almost every community. Ask your neighbors about it. There is probably a marked cure at your door which you can investigate. The cures made by this preparation will stand investigation; 60 cents a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

A Sure Cure for Backaches. — Hillsboro headache, to which women are peculiarly liable, has been found by experts in some subjects that they are due to kidney disease. The stomach is then blood, and there is a constant drain from the kidneys of albumen, which from this which has become badly secreted, causes the headache, backache, nervousness, irritability, dizziness, and in neutralizing the effects of these poisons Doan's Kidney Pills have won on the nerves which cause the headache.

The best way to get rest is to forget.

Will Be Found an Excellent Stability Against Disease.—Impure blood causes Boils. Carbuncles, Eczema, Ulcers, from people have been made perfectly well by Burdock Blood Bitters.

The Well Known Strengthening Properties of HIRES Rootbeer, the best tonic and a most perfect nerve, brain, and blood builder. Put up in five cent packages. Try it and improve the blood and sweeten the temper.

It takes money to voice the opinion of the people.

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for Worms or Worm Fever. No article of its kind has given such universal satisfaction, and we make a fearless assertion.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and in all of these cases preventives is to avoid the disease. Change of water, food or climate may cause it, be sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Cordial as being the best remedy known in the market for all Bowel Complaints. If a few drops of it should be put in water that has caused sickness no further trouble will be experienced.

The villain's teeth are close to his heart.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no remedy that can be compared for efficacy with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It relieves at once, gives prompt and permanent relief. It removes all unnecessary mucus from the lungs, relieves the irritation of the throat, stops the cough, and by its healing and soothing effect relief to that depressing pain in the breast. Don't be persuaded to buy some other cough medicine that you may make more profit, but insist on having Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, which is guaranteed to do all we claim for it. Large bottles, containing nearly twice as much as 25 cent bottles, only 50 cents. For sale by druggists and dealers in the throat and lung remedies, and

Anecdotal.

In taking out a ten-thousand-dollar policy with a Milwaukee insurance company William J. Bryan had to state if he had ever suffered any from fever, and if so, what kind. He is said to have written: "Yes, had two severe attacks of Presidential fever, followed by severe chills, but I have fully recovered from both."

At a party in Dublin Castle one of the young side-de-camps tried to play a joke on Archbishop Whately. Approaching the primate, the youth said: "Does Your Grace know what is the difference between an ass and an archbishop?" "No," was the grave answer. "Oh," says the youth, "an ass has a cross on his back, while an archbishop has a cross on his breast." "Very good," said the archbishop; "now, will you tell me what is the difference between a young officer like yourself and an ass?" "I don't know," replied the youth. "Neither do I," said the archbishop, and walked away.

Lord Coleridge, Chief Justice of England, was driving toward his court one morning in his brougham, when an accident happened to it at Grosvenor Square. Fearing he would be belated, he called a cab from the street rank, and bade the fellow drive him as rapidly as possible to the courts of justice. "And where be they?" "What! London, and don't know where the law courts are at old Temple Bar?" "Oh! the law courts, is it? But you said courts of justice."

"John," said a Scotch minister to one of his congregation, "I hope you hold family worship regularly." "Ay," said John, "in the time o' year o't." "But what do you mean, John?" "Ye ken, sir, we pass see to the nights nichts." "But, John, can't you buy candles?" "Weel, I could," replied John, "but in that case I'm fearin' the cost would overgang the profit."

One of David B. Hill's first lawsuits was a non-jury case, in which the opposing counsel was one of the best attorneys in New York State. Hill gave a speech which lasted about three hours. It was such a speech as might be expected from a young lawyer, and it was very trying to the court. After he had finished, his opponent arose and said: "May it please the court, I intend to follow the example of my young friend and submit the case without argument." Hill lost the case.

Former President Scott of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad was greatly annoyed, when he first took hold of the road, by the claims for horses and cattle killed by trains on their way through Kentucky. It seemed as though it were not possible for a train to run north or south through Kentucky without killing either a horse or cow. And every animal killed, however scrawny, scrubby or miserable it may have been before the accident, always figured in the claims subsequently presented as of the best blood in Kentucky. "Well," said Scott one day, after examining a claim, "I don't know anything that improves stock in Kentucky like crossing it with a locomotive."

No Business to be Alive.

THERE is no name more honored among physiologists than that of Virchow, the great German scientist, nor is there any man who has done more than he to prolong human life and alleviate human suffering. Nevertheless, he is not infallible, and the London "Standard" tells an amusing story of at least one mistaken diagnosis which he made.

As private practice interfered with his scientific studies, Virchow practised medicine only a very short time. But one day in later life, while his students were waiting for their lecture at the hospital, a gentleman knocked at the door of the professor's private room and stated that he was not feeling well, and wished to consult the savant. Professor Virchow examined the man carefully, and then said:

"Why, my good friend, you have no business to be alive at all! You are suffering from three complaints, each one of which has long since arrived at a stage which ought to have caused your death. This is a most interesting case; it shows that one must not always believe in theory."

The patient began to feel uncomfortable, but Professor Virchow, in his professional enthusiasm, did not notice either the effect of his words or the comical side of the situation. He added: "Would you mind stepping into the next room? I should like to show you to some gentlemen who are there."

With ill-concealed nervousness the patient followed the professor into the lecture-room, where he was introduced as an interesting case, and was obliged to remain while the professor described the nature of the three diseases and the progress they had made. On hearing again that he was practically a dead man the patient felt a strong desire to get home, and left at once.

Just what part in his recovery was played by increased care and home comforts is not known, but the man is still alive. When Professor Virchow celebrated his eightieth birthday recently, the man who ought to have been dead years ago was among those who sent their congratulations.

Contemptible but Trivial.

Verbena, the colored cook, asked permission to bake a cake for the wedding breakfast of one of her friends. The next day her mistress said to her:

"Well, Bess, how did the wedding go off?"

"Law, Mrs. L.," Verbena replied, "it war a mos' pow'ful fine weddin'. De bride look war mos' appetizin', especially de cake you done sif me; an' wid all de guests wearin' der best clo's, an' bein' mos' mannerly. An' de bride sustainin' did look beautiful in her white satin gown, wid de long, white veil an' de orange-blossoms."

"And how about the bridegroom, Bess?"

"Der!" exclaimed Verbena, her eyes flashing, "de low-down, no-count nigger nevah come a-nigh!"—"Harper's Magazine."

JUNE WHITEWEAR SALE

The excellent values obtained by us, in really desirable garments, for our Whitewear Sale, this spring enabled us to surpass all previous season's selling.

Owing to rush of orders the manufacturer was, at that time unable to deliver many of our leading low priced lines. These have lately come to hand and on Monday go on sale at prices which will be more than ever interesting on account of the lateness of the season.

In reality what better time could be imagined than the present for underpriced Whitewear selling. Just the time you want them. Just the time we should be rid of them.

This change can be made on Monday at an expenditure which when you have seen the garments, will surprise and please you.

No need to speak of style and workmanship, every lady who visited our sale this spring will be satisfied when we say they are from the same manufacturer and contain every point of excellence which made them so popular before Sale begins Monday. If values control the quantity sold, this should be our best effort.

Watch windows and Saturday's paper for fuller details and prices.

HOSIERY VALUES

Good value in Hosiery, buying means more than good appearance, for that is often very deceiving.

The DYE and the WEAR are the points which time proves to be good or bad.

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION.

ANNUAL MEETING NOW IN PROGRESS AT PETERBORO.

The annual meeting of the Baptist Association for Peterboro district is in session at Peterboro. Believers in this district and the representatives from here in attendance are Rev. G. C. Elliott and wife, Mr. E. A. Hall, Mrs. Mason, Miss Gilchrist and A. Pilsworth.

On Wednesday afternoon the session was devoted entirely to hearing reports and discussions on the work of the Women's Mission Circles. In the election of officers which followed, Mrs. (Dr.) Drury of this city was elected Vice-President.

The Band Concert.

Although the weather was somewhat cool there was a large number of the park last night to listen to the music discharged by the band. The various selections appeared to meet with general approbation.

YOUR NERVES ARE WEAK.

You sleep badly, appetite variable. You eat but gain no strength. Morning tiredness making you wish it were night. When night comes refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. You're run down, your blood is thin and watery, your nerves have grown weak, the thought of effort wearies you. You need Ferrozone; it makes blood—red, strong blood. An appetite! You'll eat everything and digest it, too. Strength! That's what Ferrozone gives. Ferrozone gives hope, vigor, vim, endurance. Try Ferrozone and get strong. Sold by all druggists.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

There were several matches on the diamond of Mr. H. Corby's employes this morning, for the reason that one of their number, Mr. Herb. Weller, had been married last night. The main race and captured a trophy emblematic of the championship of the city. Mr. Weller's team was Mr. Mills, a student at Albert College. The prize was a cup donated by the Canada Cycle Motor Company.

There was considerable speculation as to the merits of the two lads, especially was at the Victoria day race, Wellar had the first prize and Mills second made the best time. Neither one of them, however, covered the distance inside the time limit, so the Messrs. Gimple had, who got up on race, decided to let the two boys go against each other, both starting from scratch, the winner to take the cup. The race was held this morning and the conditions were certainly ideal. There was hardly any wind, and the roads were dry with no dust. Both racers showed up on time, but it was 25 minutes to eight when the boys were sent away, with Weller leading the pace. A time limit of 33 1-2 minutes was set, which, in a ten-mile race on this Kingston road, is certainly calculated to prevent "loafing." Five minutes after eight came around, and the officials moved out on the Lake Shore, and ensconced at the north end of the park. And a second or two afterwards the lads flashed into view, with Weller's straw-colored jersey about two lengths ahead of Astle's white. The lads were putting all the steam had into their efforts. Down that as they turned on to the east road of the park Astle made his effort, and for a moment there was no daylight between the wheels. Weller, however, still had something in reserve, and try as he would Astle could not get an inch of terms with him. Forty yards from home there was a wheel's length between the racers, and Astle was further on the road to the finish a foianket would have covered both boys when they crossed the line. As it was he was about five yards behind. It was a fine race and an exciting finish. The time was 33 minutes flat. The officials were:

Starter—John Lally.
Timekeeper—L. J. Cheyn.
Judge—J. D. Ford.
Judges at turn—F. J. Bedford and Joe Lally.

The unexpected visit happen in Peterboro yesterday afternoon, and the local lacrosse boys were handed a rather severe trouncing. The reason is not hard to look for, for a reason for the boys were handicapped by having to leave many of their best players behind, but even then, we are told, they were pretty even for a while. Suddenly the locals seemed to become demoralized, and went to pieces. How they played is shown in the form in which they started, the score would not have been anything like so jog-handled.

The boys have not lost confidence, by any means, and say that, with their regulars on, and the game at home, they will turn the tables on the dandy Athletics. They freely express the opinion that the team which defeated Hastings could also defeat the Peterboro boys. Well, we shall see on Dominion day. An effort is being made to get the schedule changed so that Peterboro will play here on July 1st instead of Hastings, and, if the locals secure a good game, a lacrosse will see a warm game, and no mistake.

The boys say the Athletics are a pretty husky crowd of juniors, and their average is about 165 pounds, fifteen pounds more per man than the local boys. The term "junior," in lacrosse circles, only applies to players of the Canadian Bunch. Large party young man; large party. Senior, however, only applies to "larger." And then roll back and Senior, Senior, Senior,

MAN OUT IN GREY COUNTY

Twenty-Three Men Armed to the Teeth Leave Collingwood.

Will Attempt to Surround the Supposed Murderers of Glory Whalen in an Osprey Bush—The Hunted Men Said to Be Desperate Characters—The Town of Collingwood at White Heat Over the Chase.

Collingwood, June 19.—Interest in the capture of the murderers of Glory Whalen was at a white heat last night, and an armed posse of police expects shortly to surround two suspects and lodge them in safe keeping.

Repeated reports have lately come to town of them being secreted in the bush on the 10th line of Osprey, in the County of Grey, a negro and a white man, who subsisted by stealing chickens, ducks and geese from their neighbors in the vicinity.

These two persons are supposed to be the perpetrators of the murder of Glory Whalen, in the vicinity of Collingwood.

Provincial Const. A. A. Bond, Chief Wilde and Night Policeman Best have left for the locality in which the men are supposed to be.

It is their intention to spend a twenty special constables and surround the bush where these men are, at daylight on Saturday morning, and effect their arrest.

All the constables will be heavily armed, so as to meet all emergencies, as it is known, if they are the murderers wanted, must be desperate characters.

A Ghostly Game of Chess.

"The International Hall of the Cafe Monico is a truly palatial chamber, over 60 many feet long by over 30 many more feet broad by over 20 many more feet high. On the evening of Friday last the Saturday of last week," says London "Outlook," "it was divided by a barrier into two unequal parts. In the smaller and larger of these I observed a selection of the chess players competing against the American chess-players who were shut there. Though the larger contained a selection of the chess players, including the hunter, said next it, set Mr. James Mason at a chess-board. Lastly, as you may seem to have known Mr. Mason as a fine player himself, any interest you may take in this occasion he is opposing Mr. J. U. Barry of Americus, who is not here; Mr. Barry sitting in a room in Brooklyn three thousand miles away, beside the eyes of American spectators. It is easy to say that the two men are connected by electric telegraph; but it is not wise to dispose of the mystery and romance of space in so offhand a way. . . . But Mr. Mason, in this graded International Hall, seated opposite his solitary adversary, has with a book of telegraph forms who waits unencouraging for the next move. He says this dumbly and in absence against Mr. Barry in Brooklyn. Can you think it chess? It is a very ghostly business, and we never saw how you can get through with it at all. But the thing is as solemn, as rapt in thought, as the chess of Caxton's game as if Mr. Barry were opposite to him in the board, and not under the earth with an electric telegraph. Clearly to him the thing is serious. Nothing can disturb Mason's move comes to him by actual speech, by telegraph, or by psychic suggestion. But from time to time he will throw out a dread of the uncanny natures of the game. Sometimes I am inclined to look about for some manifestation of Mr. American Barry's spirit. What better evidence of it could we find than the arrangement of these wooden pieces on that chess-board? There is Mr. Barry—most effectually Mr. Barry, for he is causing Mr. Mason to think, and think, and think, to purse his lips in the old familiar way, to fall into immovable attitudes, because Mr. Barry, in Brooklyn, was revolving schemes of a new order of creation, gazing out on the mystery of man's origin and destiny; and Mr. Mason is doing the like to him in far Brooklyn. A strange and fascinating pursuit is chess, strange and unprofitable. Not always, for it may make wealth, nor love can so engross a man. These objects are usually compassed by flashes of passion, insight, and daring; but this slow, prolonged struggle of brain against brain through the medium of pieces of fantastically carved wood, is pure devotion to an abstraction. The man who wins, who loses, who in the face of some move of King that he may not move, gains nothing, loses nothing, simply proves nothing but "checkmate." Yet when he accomplishes that he tastes of a satisfaction deeper and more permanent than is accorded to statesman or lover, successful or humble. One complain it be deliberately, and for very love of the doing of it, undertakes an enormous mental effort, a thing which enabled in general sense is if it were Satan himself. Truly a most mystical business this chess. In Paradise you will find politicians near the moon, poets studying morals; merchants and traders watching the sun, and critics weeping on other people's graves; but the chess-players will be playing chess.

Dispensing With Early Rising.

Some genius has, according to his own advertisement, invented an apparatus to dispense with getting up so early in winter time to set the breakfast table. As far as we understand it, you fix the new invention on a range and at the proper moment it starts a fire under a kettle of water. As soon as the water boils a bell rings, and you wake up. This is not the sort of thing that takes the cake; it simply grabs it.

We once saw a remarkable invention of this nature in Sheffield. It consisted of a small, but powerfully built bedstead which had an ingenious clockwork arrangement attached, as you would expect, to the underside of the mattress. In the morning a phonograph, set free from under the bed, walked round to your side, and announced it was seven o'clock. After the lapse of two minutes it repeated the remark, and two minutes later one of the hands of the clock reached up and pulled your ear playfully. These were just preliminaries so to speak. If you did not leave the bed, the whole bed began business. It got up on its hind legs and ran downstairs with you inside it till it got to the garden, where you were shot into a modest little bath under the pump. By a clever arrangement of the process of suction you were drawn up to the mouth and a refreshing stream of cold water crawled down your back. If this failed to wake you, you had to wait for Gabriel's trumpet.

As a matter of fact, the inventor explained, it did wake most people. But in cases where it was slow it only collected your thoughts into fitting shape, by pouring a little hook in one of the blankets, a second phonograph would repeat it in your ear, and with a little ingenuity to ease your feelings. The invention is patented; and when it is on the market it will beat all the spring mattresses going. It does for summer, autumn and winter as well.—"Tick-Me-Up."

An "Informal" Dinner.

A tiny girl of seven gave a dinner-party the other day, for which twelve covers were laid, and that number of small maidens sat down to dine. It was a real little girls' dinner, and the little hostess herself presided, sitting at the head of the table. She had been very anxious to look after them to it, to do everything as it should be done. "Mamma," she asked, "shall we say grace?" "No," said mamma; "it will be a very informal dinner, and I think you need not do that." That meant one ceremony the less to be gone through, and was a relief. But the little lady was anxious to have all her guests understand it. So, as they gathered about the table, she explained: "Mamma says that this is such an informal dinner that we need not have grace to-day!"

The Railways of Africa.

In connection with African railway undertakings, it is interesting to read an official statement issued by Secretary Jones of the British South Africa Company, who recently visited Rhodesia. Mr. Jones, says Public Opinion, speaks with special gratification of the "inexhaustible supply of coal" which exists all over the railway to the Wankie coal fields, and upon these fields he says will depend the output of the Wankie colliery at 200 tons daily. He believes that with the exception of the west Wenk coal, there is no better steam coal in the world than the Wankie and Wenkis. With the gold-mining industry Mr. Jones deals at length, and says that in 1901 it is not at such high prices as formerly, size and other minerals deposited in Rhodesia in the shape of copper. He states that the prospects of agricultural industry are very good, and that the country is now safer for the employment of modern farming methods.

Proceeding to Uganda, one finds that the railway there is practically finished. All the way westward the rails have been completed, and there only remains the bridging of the Victoria Nile to be accomplished. Some temporary bridges are, however, in course of construction. Writing from Kampala, Mr. Jones says: "I have just returned from a journey through train twice weekly in each direction between Nimule and Port Florence. A few days ago the Pibourbon Nile was crossed by a steamer."

Abyssinia is to be explored from the east; it is, however, not unlikely that a large part of the trade of the path of civilization will be drawn towards Khartoum. Mr. Jones says: "I have recently had despatched a corps of engineers to Addis Ababa, and they will proceed to Adis Ababa, and they will proceed to Adis Ababa, and they will start for Abyssinia to descend the Blue Nile in order to test its value as a commercial waterway, in view of diverting a portion of the traffic passing through Egypt."

The general impression as to the natural resources of Ethiopia and the people is that they are rich, but undeveloped. With reference to this point, Mr. Jones says: "The Egyptian Gazette says editorially: 'Abyssinia is a country which is very little known, but which, on closer inspection, there are practically no limits to the possibilities for commercial exploitation the recovered provinces afford. With an unlimited tract of fertile land, and little but length, and with a water supply which, properly utilized, would make Metropolis to Indian Ocean, there is no reason why the Soudan should not become the granary of the Levant's granaries. All of these and other treasures were stored at the dreaming of many at large by the extermination of the Dervish power. Abyssinia has been hitherto hopelessly obstructed if it hangs back in the competition to cater for the wants of 70,000,000 people."

MR. GAMEY'S FIERCE WORDS

Member for Manitoulin Imputes Partiality to the Judges.

HIS SENSATIONAL SPEECH.

Tells Why He Went to Buffalo, But Denies Meeting the Crisp and the Regent From the Point of View of His Inner Consciousness—Spoke Five Hours.

Toronto, June 20.—Continuing in the Legislature yesterday morning his speech began last night, Adjourned debate, Mr. Gamey, Beattie Nesbitt took up the question of patronage, the evidence clearly showing, he claimed, that patronage had been given to Mr. Gamey. But it had been given through Ministers other than Mr. Stratton. And they have been caught in their own hands in the jar." Referring to the evidence in regard to sawerth the engineering district, Mr. Nesbitt read a letter from Mr. Gamey to Mr. Stratton van pe you Beatty's seat?"

"Why those who got Beatty's seat for him some years ago?" asked Dr. Nesbitt, referring to the fact that the appointment for Parry Sound had thrown in his lot with the Government, after being elected as a Conservative.

Gamey Protested.

Mr. Walter Beatty, Conservative M.P.P. for Leeds, rose to protest against the insinuation. In the name sake and relative he said had been elected as an independent Conservative, had decided to support the Government policy, and had honorably resigned and appealed to his constituents for re-election. "I want no more such insinuations," cried Dr. Beattie Nesbitt," he concluded, amid loud cheering.

Dr. Nesbitt, proceeding, said that he had not been aware that Mr. Beatty had offered his resignation. That put his action in an altogether different light.

Contemplate Double Dealing.

The action of Messrs. Grant and Aylesworth in the engineering show-off of the Gamey protest, when they knew all the time that Gamey meant to support the Government, was a contemptible specimen of double dealing.

Dr. Nesbitt then said that the principal evidence in the case might be roughly divided into the following groups: The Sullivan family, the Government employes, the Government officials, the legal men connected with the election, and last, but not least, Mr. Hammond.

Taking up the first group, Dr. Nesbitt said that Frank Sullivan's evidence rendered him of the Irishman who had been told by his father-confessor that he was the biggest liar in Ireland, in his Blarney Annalsa.

Sensational New Evidence.

Dr. Nesbitt then read the affidavits of three witnesses whose testimony was excluded by the Commissioners in the Gamey case. These were T. W. H. Leavitt, Conservative organizer, Toronto; Archie G. Davis, insurance agent, Rochester, and Thomas Flynn, ex-mayor of Rochester. All relate to the alleged bribing of Gray of Port Arthur, of Newmarket, the father-in-law of Frank Sullivan, who was afterwards brought from Rochester to testify. From these affidavits Wilson, in connection with these acquaintances at Rochester, said he was to get $5,000 for staying away until after the investigation was over, and that Frank Sullivan was to get $5,000 for his testimony. The reason for sending him to the States was, he told these men, that he had been aware of the scheme to bribe Gamey from the outset, and that Frank Sullivan had been in billing at Newmarket for some days after the revelations were made by Mr. Gamey. The connection of Mr. T. W. H. Leavitt, recently, with the Conservative organization having received a letter from Gamey, Mr. Leavitt went to Rochester and himself confirmed the fact that Wilson was making assertions.

Missing Witnesses.

Now, Mr. Speaker," said the member for North Toronto, "that's evidence of the witnesses who were shipped to the States." The evidence which was ruled out of court, effected Leavitt, Davis and Flynn, and Wilson, corroborating the tale told by Frank Sullivan.

The next group of witnesses to be considered, continued the Doctor, were the officials in the employ of the Government, Myers, Stratton's private secretary, for instance, whom positively that Frank Sullivan could not have been in Mr. Stratton's office without his (Myers') knowledge. "A most peculiar statement," considering the fact that Mr. Costello, a clerk in Stratton's office, had accounted for the Provincial treasurer's movements on Sept. 11th, but could not account for anything else that happened in Mowing. And as to the carrying of the bribe money by the smoking room, Mr. Boyd and Myers and Chase had absolutely no bearing in that. Mr. Boyd's evidence, inasmuch as the latter had stated that he simply accepted Frank Sullivan's statement as to Chase.

Character of Rejected Evidence.

Proceeding dealing with the character of the evidence for the defence, Dr. Nesbitt animadverted on incompetence in the evidence of Mr. Boyd, Dr. Arthers and Mr. Boland.

"The last group," Mr. Nesbitt put bright in the dark background is Hammond. The Globe reporter." Hammond's evidence was a tissue of all statements of defence witnesses must be considered in the light of his "Can't-you-forget memory."

Wanted to Get Money.

Dr. Nesbitt, after reviewing the affidavits, took up the evidence. He said that Mr. Gamey had retained Mr. Bain to identify the man who brought the money from Rochester. Mr. Bain, however, could not identify him.

Then came Sullivan's statement. Costello, Myers and Chase might swear themselves black in the face but they could not change Frank Sullivan's statement. Speaking of Mr. Boyd, the Government official who had taken charge of his road to call on Mr. Gamey, Dr. Nesbitt said that Mr. Boyd's association, the Chancellor, had gone further than that to oblige the Government.

Dr. Nesbitt then took up the Government's financial position, the various local banks, and said that politically friendly institutions were favored while others. Thus Senator Cox's bank and Mr. Stratton's bank had large accounts, thereby having an interest, while the Government was borrowing money at 4 per cent. to build the Temiskaming Railway.

The Only Cure.

In conclusion, speaking of over two hours, the speaker said that the degradation of the public and political life of Ontario was attributable to methods sanctioned by the Government. If the Province was to be lifted into a higher and purer political atmosphere it could only be accomplished by removing the Sullivans, the Vances, the Boles, the Pritchards and the Costellos, Hammonds and Lassites on the public life of Ontario and putting honest men at the head of the Government.

GAMEY'S FIERCE WORDS.

His Wilson Quotes—Knew Fox Must Testify—Opinion of the Commission in Vigorous Language.

Mr. Gamey of Manitoulin began his speech at 8 o'clock, and was met with plaudits of the Opposition. He said it was a wonderful change since that bright afternoon in the month of March when he entered the House for the first time, received the kind and genial hand-shake of the Premier and the general welcome of the Government side "because they thought I was an apostate to my party and a traitor to my friends.

"Had I smothered my conscience, closed my lips and buttoned my pocket, there would have been no censure as a condemnation of truth, as the composed it and of those who supported it.

If the commissioners wanted to get at the truth, why did they not call the witnesses, whether Stratton wanted them called or not. Let the truth be told, and if there was to their seats who might have been called to explain certain inexplicable circumstances.

Completely Appointment.

Mr. Gamey dwelt on the notice, ago question, and said he completed the appointment of Sheriff Jackson at the conference instead or Registrar Silvey notwithstanding the fact that Premier and Stratton wanted the registrar appointed. Let the Premier explain in the house that the appointment of the returning officer was Silvey.

The Premier had referred to the speech of Mr. Whiting, if he had any virtue. All he would say in reply to that was that when he was a boy he had his own mother tell him if you wanted to get anything from the then Minister of Education (Mr. Ross) you had to get a big whiting or a big trout, but never anything. The Premier dare not go into the Queen's Park to get satisfaction with the affair.

The member for West Huron had called the speaker a great many hard names, but, he asserted, he was the elder my private character has come in question. He (Gamey) was not accustoming it with him."

Mr. Gamey read the evidence to show that Aylesworth corroborated the statement of Commissioner Fox in regard to the stock transaction. It was absolutely false for Aylesworth or Premier to say that the opposition saw the statement before the Provincial Secretary. It was as false as the Provincial Secretary's statement that Mr. Gamey was a religious monstrosity at the head of a party.

Said He Preferred to Be Honest.

said he preferred to be honest to the Premier, and that to the reverend editor of The Globe.

Why Did Not Witnesses.

Why did not Stratton rise up and declare his innocence? Why was not Stratton 40 or 50 witnesses had gone into the box, and why was not the lawyers had schooled his witnesses?

The Provincial Secretary had been the boss of the box. Stratton was Mackenzie in the box. The judges would not accept that evidence. Gamey and he, with many other Manitoulin witnesses, went to Buffalo.

"If I'd stayed with the Sullivans I could have come back with the verdict I wanted. And I wonder how he (Stratton) got the verdict he wanted. He reported to have made. They tell me when he went into political life he didn't have all the money and shares in companies he has now.

Mr. Stratton had told the House all the things he could think of about the speaker, but he did not read what Mr. Blake said in the House. Mr. Blake had been called for the benefit of the House some of the choice expressions of his learned counsel. His Opinion.

Suggested Conditions.

The men from Manitoulin twitted the Provincial Secretary on having written a letter suggesting a condition. Was there any necessity for the speaker to give the letter of allegation to the Premier if there was nothing wrong? He could have supported the government on some things. THE ARTFUL DODGERS.

Mr. R. L. Borden, actuated by a desire to save the Canadian industry, has introduced in the Chamount a resolution in favor of adequate protection for the manufacturers of iron and steel and products thereof. The motion lacked every element that might be regarded as a note of want of confidence, and was a mere invitation for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to revise the tariff in keeping with the needs of the country. Hon. W. S. Fielding, in the face of the fact that millions of dollars are being lost by those who have money invested in iron and steel manufactures, called upon the Liberals to rejects Mr. Borden's resolution down. The time for tariff changes is declared inopportune, and again the future is loaded down with promises of protection when the government is convinced of the necessity for it. Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Patterson, however, made a trip to Montreal, spent a day in conference with some of the large manufacturers and endeavored to arrange terms with them. This was in keeping with the conference held by members of the government and the manufacturers in 1896, when the Liberal party was pledging itself to free trade. Again an attempt is being made to ride both policy horses, but this time it will fall, because of the strong public sentiment against any further trifling with the fiscal policy of the country. No government can serve God and Mammon and Sir Wilfrid Laurier must choose between protection or the ruin of Canadian industries.

PEN PICTURES OF PEOPLE YOU MEET

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON.

Any picture of the above-named gentleman which did not have Bridge St. Church as a back-ground would be decidedly incomplete. And well tell you why—but there! what's the use? Everybody in Belleville knows that Mr. William Johnson and the bell in the tower are about the two best-known features of Bridge St. Church. In early times Mr. Johnson Went to work for the big stone church in when he's asleep. Of course, he does other things (and does them well, too) in the way of purchasing weighing and measures, gas, electric lights and such-like matters, but the great aim and object of our good friend's life is to build up the Sunday School of which he has been superintendent for nearly a generation, and to help along Bridge St. Church, and, incidentally, the iron which was founded by the godly and gifted John Wesley. Oh my! Oh my! but next Mr. Johnson have a busy time when he gets to the Good Place, hunting up the British Methodists, forming a couple of same before, and shaking hands with them, and giving them the Chautauqua salute! His wings will get very little rest for the first month or two! And whatever will the big Sunday School and all the organizations of the church do without Mr. Johnson, with his aggressive enthusiasm and never-failing zeal? Perhaps they'll have to get him back to County Antrim for another Johnson! But don't run away with the idea that it is in church work alone that Mr. Johnson excels. My dear sir (or madam, as the case may be), he is just as enthusiastic a veteran as he is a Methodist, just as enthusiastic an Orangeman as he is a veteran, and nearly as much interested in the people who are always saying the thing else, perhaps. His record of twenty years on the Board of Education shows that the good old Johnson's ancestors fought under King William at the Boyne, so it is no wonder that the subject of this sketch felt himself called to join the Orange order, which he did in 1856, in Belfast, Ireland, and, when he came to Canada in 1873, it did not take him long to identify himself with his Orange brethren in this city, where he soon settled. Since then he has had many of the highest offices in the gift of the order. Mr. Johnson saw active service against the Fenians in 1866, as a member of the Fifteenth Battalion, and the medal which he wears for that meritorious service he thinks no more of than you or I do of our eye. When the Veterans' Association was formed, a few years ago, Mr. Johnson was one of the prime movers, and in that, as in everything else, followed his old habit of taking a very active part. If anybody a favor, and that is why he is so popular with his old comrades in arms. Mr. Johnson is never so happy as when helping a lame dog over a stile—whether it be an earthly or theological one, and is always ready to lose a night's rest or miss a meal to get a chance to whoop things up for the Old Flag. Perhaps you didn't see Mr. Johnson a couple of years ago, when an ocdate people were spreading ourselves because Ladysmith, Mafeking and other places kept the Old Flag flying? Well, if you lived right up to his reputation as an enthusiastic Britisher, I'm positive you should have seen him in the early days of the war, when poor Buller was "up against it" and things looked black for the "Absent-Minded Beggar!" Mr. Johnson couldn't smile during those dreadful days. He would have hurt his face if he had tried to do that you say? There were others? Well, I don't doubt it. But he was there. The biggest trial in Mr. Johnson's life must be getting other people to subscribe, sometimes, like he does himself. But he takes his little disappointments unflinchingly, and as fast as one duty is done looks for another. It takes all sorts of people to make a world, you know. (Well, Mr. Johnson is one of the people who are always pointing out other people on. Now, if that description doesn't fit him like the paper on the wall you can have our head for a football. How old is he? Well, he has passed the threescore mark, having been born in Antrim, Ireland, in 1842. And, when we come to think of it, that just about finishes our story.

GAVE HIM A SET OF TOOLS.

DEPARTING EMPLOYEE OF THE LOCK FACTORY KINDLY REMEMBERED.

For the past year Mr. S. W. Murray has been head tool-maker at the Belleville Hardware Company's establishment on Pinnacle street. Last night he left the city for Sarnia, where he has secured a responsible and lucrative position, having full charge of a manufacturing establishment. Last evening Mr. Murray was agreeably surprised by being presented with an address, accompanying which was a handsome set of tools used by the business. The presentation was made on behalf of the management and employees of the lock factory. The address, which follows, was read by Mr. R. Lamberty, and was signed by Messrs. H. G. Hunt, W. C. Springer and all the employees:

Belleville, June 19, 1903.

To S. W. Murray:

It is with regret that we learn of your departing from our midst, and we do not let the opportunity of the pass by without expressing the esteem in which we hold you. In both the star and ability. We sincerely trust that in the larger responsibilities of the new which you are about to fill, you may have continued and increased success.

We ask you to accept these tools as a practical evidence of our good wishes, not in the value of the tools, but measure of our esteem, but also to serve as a remembrance of the donors.

AN ENJOYABLE RECITAL.

GIVEN BY PUPILS OF MISS EMERSON, ASSISTED BY MR. AND MRS. PARKER, LAST NIGHT.

St. Thomas' Church hall was well filled last night, the occasion being a piano recital by pupils of Miss Emerson, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Parker. The programme was extremely enjoyable, and did credit to both the performers and their talented teacher. Those taking part were the Misses Ackerill, Jessie Mogie, Dorothy Grant, Jean Boyce, Jessie Newby, Ethel Morden, Marjorie Johnson, Muriel Sills, Annette Parker, Marjorie McCaig, Muriel Grills, Alice McCoy, Edith Penn, Miss Sills, Miss Milburn, and Mrs. Marsh. Mrs. Parker sang two enjoyable numbers, and with Mr. Parker, rendered a charming duet by Henschel, "Night Hymn at Sea." Miss Emberson is to be warmly congratulated on the success of her recital.

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

THE FAMOUS NON-ALCOHOLIC KIDNEY CURE.

Recommended by Physicians and Our Best Druggists.

Kidney troubles irritate the nerves, cause dizziness, irritableness, shortness of breath and disturbed sleep. Victims of this dangerous disease experience painful urination, inflammation of the bladder, jaundice, torpid liver and constipation.

If you note any of these warning symptoms, may Heaven direct your attention to Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, the only remedy known to medical science for the healing and building up of the diseased tissues that are now passing away well by cell in the urine

The kidneys abhor alcohol administered in any form. Be careful about the use of liquid medicines; they are largely composed of deadly alcohol. Kidney-Wort Tablets do not contain a trace of alcohol, they are purely vegetable, and have never failed in their work with old or young; they have cured some of the most desperate cases. Go at once to your druggist and buy a bottle of Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets. If you have the slightest symptom of kidney or bladder troubles, they will say you weeks and months of pain and anxiety.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fall by the Man She Loves.

As they walked along Dudley was looking over in his mind how much he should beat had up to the question he meant to ask Francesca. He had easily persuaded himself that Sidney Blake's case of making use of the omnibus.

"As it is hardly going, and we can telegraph until ten we might just as well walk if you are not tired," he had suggested.

"Tired? Oh, I am never tired!"

"You must be a very unusual young woman."

"I suppose I am. I never have headaches, and always sleep splendidly and enjoy my food; I never have toothache or neuralgia, I am very strong indeed, and, as I told you before, I am never tired."

"A healthy mind in a healthy body," he quoted. "You certainly look that; I've never seen you look ill, and you've been living all these years since my uncle Harold's death? You have no illness secret, or I should have heard of it soon in England?"

She paused a few seconds before replying; then she said—

"I have traveled a good deal. My father always spent the winter in Italy, and I had an English governess. After his death I had to earn my living, and so I taught Italian in English families."

"Did you say," he then inquired, unobserved, for a certain consciousness in her manner, "that you only spoke Italian to your pupils?"

"Yes. Why?"

"It is so curious," he said, looking at her closely, "that in the light of the moon and spoke with you last night."

Francesca stopped short in her walk and looked at him in surprise for a moment.

"With me?" she said. "Why, how is that possible? I crossed from Calais to Dover by the afternoon boat yesterday. Then, when I arrived in London, I was quite late; there was the difficulty of getting luggage and certainly equally so no man except porters and railway officials is noticed by anyone. Then the landing in England and going to bed last night at half-past two."

"You will say so, of course," he said, looking at her face to face and trying to read by the light of the moon whether she was speaking the truth. "But I cannot get it out about this hour last night in a music-hall in Leicester Square."

"A music-hall! I have never been to one in my life!"

"I thought you were dressed in deep mourning, and that you had a companion with you—a short woman, whose face I could not see. I thought you were wearing a very thick black veil, and that presently you put it back and looked about you—looked at me. And then— But I need not tell you the rest."

"On the contrary, you had better 'Go on,'" she said with a little laugh of dismay, "otherwise I shall be wondering what extraordinary mistake my double played. Is this a bad joke, or were you dreaming? And why did you associate this lady in deep mourning with a music-hall with me?"

"Because she had your voice and face and height. And yours is a face not easily forgotten."

"Then, that I should never have forgotten had I seen it before," she said, with simple earnestness. "You must know that I had my father present-ately, and that you are very like him. When I saw you first for the first time in the full light as I stood by the door of Revelsworth House to-day, your likeness to my father came upon me just at first as a shock. Then all sense of strangeness vanished, and I felt that in meeting one so like my father I was meeting a very dear friend. We shall be friends, shall we not?" she said, extending her hand with a pretty, half-timid gesture of gladness. "But please do not have any more extraordinary dreams about me in leisured-class places doing unheard-of things!"

Dudley took her hand.

"I hope we shall be friends indeed," he said. "But you must let me explain one thing. I am not—what you call a double last night. She did nothing extraordinary. She sat in the same place between us. Then I put her and her companion into a cab, and they drove off. I saw her once or another cab, in which was a man they knew and were talking and laughing to."

"Had you known me a little longer, Dudley," Francesca said, with a light laugh, "you would not be so confident with ladies who have to chase gentlemen to take what they want to see them. Up to now my experience is that it is they who wish to speak to me, and I to be the one who is sought after by them."

She drew herself up proudly, and a warm resentful crept over the white.

It's worth Ten cents to clear your house of flies and Wilson's Fly Pads will do it.

"Why, I am the second cousin of Mrs. Revelsworth," cried Betty ingenuously, "and you have pulls my father sir!"

"Perhaps you are not fond of little extravagances? I can't realist them myself."

"I should love to have them!" said Betty. "I should love to have silk stockings and high-heeled shoes, and short-silk petticoats with lace flounces like yours, and skirts lined with silk and pocket-handkerchiefs with lace insertion, smelling of delicious perfumes! But I can't get them, so I have to be content with cashmere and Lisle thread and mother."

"Why don't you ask Mrs. Revelsworth for what you want?"

"I do, I say, I've asked I must have some more pocket-handkerchiefs' and she says, 'You can get very good ones in Kingston for sixpence apiece at Woolworth's,' and we are three shillings for half a dozen."

"I should get two with the three shillings and ask Mrs. Revelsworth for more. You have no moral force," said Francesca, laughing. "But I suppose you mean to make up your mind to it and take some money at her desk."

"Oh, I'm not a thief, I say, I'm not, I say!" exclaimed Betty. "I would much rather have her than the two hundred a year I shall have when I'm of age."

"Only two hundred! Why, she has given you more!"

"Yes; but that was to go to Revelsworth, of course. She knows I'm going there. I'm not a thief, Revelsworth is sure to tell you—that by her manner. Walking along by Francesca's side, with her hand in hers, all his will against the magnetic attraction which drew him closer to her side. Her strong electric forces were twined round his and held them close, and her eyes, as they shone full upon his in answer to a question, seemed to forced himself to look at the scene, and to hold a half-mocking smile wishing their depths.

With a brusque movement he raised her hand to his lips, lightly to his lips and then let them go.

"We mustn't make a sentimental story into Kingston," he said, laughing, and she returned the laugh with parallel gaiety.

Nevertheless, when Francesca precisely stood, pencil in hand, within the door of Revelsworth House, and turned to call in a frown as, after a moment's reflection, she wrote the following message:

"Ezra Rivera, Hotel de Roma, Soho, London.

"Returning to-morrow. Dangers and difficulties ahead. Need your help. Affirming plans.

"Francesca."

CHAPTER VIII.

The fair Francesca slept that night in little Betty's room, and, to the latter's great delight, had breakfast with her, which time Mrs. Revelsworth was in bed, still past, midnight talking and "Francesca" "Francesca."

Now Betty was a chatterbox—a sunby-tempered merry little creature, who had a pleasant, clear voice and a variety of the voices of others. During the five years in which she had been the governess-companion of the eccentric, inconsolable, and companion of her elderly relative, she had had hardly any opportunity for conversation with people of her own rank and age. It was true that Mr. Revelsworth, who lived with his mother just across the Green, and who rented Mrs. Revelsworth's shooting, was in the habit of calling Miss Elizabeth Mannington in conversation; but there had intercourse between the two household—Mrs. Revelsworth openly denounced Mrs. O'Hearn as "that painted harridan"; while Mrs. O'Hearn retorted by dubbing the other lady "old Mrs. Moneybags," and "that fearful old scare-crow opposite."

"Poor little Miss Mannington, a martyr to that awful old woman's caprices!—that was the light in which Betty was regarded in the neighborhood, and the latter had always hoped that she would "come in for something handsome" in her employer's will. Betty had, however, received no communication from her own point of view however, and she was by no means sure of her probity. She was not quite twenty, and had little knowledge of the world. Revelsworth was her godmother. She had paid for her education, had taken her into her house while barely more than a child, and had promised to provide for her. All this in spite of the unfavorable imaginings of the Rivera's, who, when Betty's mother was asked to Betty, to whom she was entrusted her financial affairs generally. She was a strong-prejudiced, dictatorial old lady, with whom economy was a passion, and with them, also, were the elements underlying the superficial resemblance of character, and so Miss Betty Mannington did ample justice.

"You seem really very fond of 'my aunt Margaret,' Francesca observed presently, when she and Betty sat in a pool-room brushing their hair.

It was impossible to imagine a greater contrast than that which existed between the two girls. Betty, with her fair hair and her honor in her queenly guest, had brought out a fine flannel dressing-jacket intrimmed with real lace which she had fashioned from a piece of her mother's ladies' paper with materials supplied by Mrs. Revelsworth. The costly elegance of Francesca's garments were all purchased, and she unhesitatingly admitted that she had purchased all that many.

"As soon as I learned from Mr. Simpson of my aunt's position and my own prospects," she said, "I knew that I must be dressed as became the niece of Mrs. Revelsworth."

"Why, I am the second cousin of Mrs. Revelsworth," cried Betty ingenuously, "and you have pulls my father sir!"

"Perhaps you are not fond of little extravagances? I can't realist them myself."

"I should love to have them!" said Betty. "I should love to have silk stockings and high-heeled shoes, and short-silk petticoats with lace flounces like yours, and skirts lined with silk and pocket-handkerchiefs with lace insertion, smelling of delicious perfumes! But I can't get them, so I have to be content with cashmere and Lisle thread and mother."

"Why don't you ask Mrs. Revelsworth for what you want?"

"I do, I say, I've asked I must have some more pocket-handkerchiefs' and she says, 'You can get very good ones in Kingston for sixpence apiece at Woolworth's,' and we are three shillings for half a dozen."

"I should get two with the three shillings and ask for more," she said. "

TIMELY TOPICS

Isn't our regular weekly sensation from Melrose about due?

These are the days when many people would like to swear off—their assessment.

Who's seen any big fish yet? Have any been caught?

GOLD TRUTH.
(Atchison Globe.)

The only truth about the matter is that when a man's mother-in-law arrives on a visit he has two who are trying to please him instead of one.

Those resolutions to be submitted to the Imperial Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire are weighty affairs, and with every one of them right-minded men will heartily agree. The resolutions, which appear in another column, will repay an attentive perusal.

Bright young fellow drowned in Peterboro yesterday. Same old story—couldn't swim. But miscarries will tell you it is ridiculous to talk of public swimming baths, where people could be taught to swim!

Isn't the park a lovely place these days? If you haven't been down there this year it's worth your while to go.

And yet they say that some people in the city actually begrudge the few dollars that it costs to keep it in order!

The delay may be unavoidable, of course, but really the corporation is late in starting work this year. Many streets and sidewalks are shouting loudly for repairs.

Rev. T. Albert Moore ought to hand out a fine Decalcomanie sermon in the Tabernacle to-morrow morning. (With all the youth and beauty of Albert College facing him how many man should feel inspired!

Our friend Prof. Denys, of the Institute, bade his friends good-bye this morning and started for his old home in Quebec on a well-earned vacation. And we know of nobody better entitled to the dolce far niente than the ladies and gentlemen who, for nine months without intermission, bend their energies to educating the "rising." May their well-earned rest be pleasantly and profitably spent.

Not having a Solomon among his friends, Premier Laurier did the next best thing and appointed a David to the Senate.

WHO KNOWS THIS MAN.
(Tit-Bits.)

"Oh, he is a born debater," said one friend to another the other day. "There is nothing he likes better than an argument. He won't even eat anything that agrees with him."

Well, didn't Mr. Gamey warn us up for All Fools' Day and for three yesterday? And we believe that any unprejudiced person, who has closely followed the case, will admit that the Man from Manitoulin's words were justified. Mr. Gamey may be no saint, but there are greater sinners than he in the Ontario Cabinet.

THE LAST CHANCE.

Have you taken advantage of the big suit bargains Oak Hall are offering this week? Saturday night will close the sale. Most of the store are still in stock and $7.50 serge suits for $4.90 are not always easy to pick up. Don't wait and say anything to some in and take a look at them and try one of the coats on. Don't be afraid; we will not scared you about the buying.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND
Cures Summer Rheumatism

A Cornwall, Ont., Gentleman Completely Cured After Failure of Physicians.

Recent reports from medical men in various sections, indicate that rheumatism is on the increase this summer. This being the case, we implore rheumatic victims to make every effort to remove this dangerous febrile disorder before the intense hot season comes on. During the month of June, a few bottles of Paine's Celery Compound will speedily banish Arthritic Inflammatory or muscular rheumatism. Mr. G. F. McDonald, Cornwall, Ont., speaks about his cure as follows:

"For three years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. It seemed to me that I was forced to endure all the agonies and pains that a mortal could possibly experience from the dreadful disease. While suffering I tried many of the 'advertised' medicines and also doctor's prescriptions but never found a cure until I procured a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. It worked like a charm and seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. I am now cured; all my pains are banished, and in every respect I am a new man."

ONE QUESTION

and it's a fair one:—

Why should you buy "Queen Quality" Shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale?

In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality." Thousands of women do just this thing, so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it?

It is this — Queen Quality gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more—that is—an accurate fit.

MEETING OF PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE

LAST NIGHT—SOME IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS CARRIED.

A special meeting of the Public Works Committee was held last evening, presided over by Ald. Painter, Chairman.

A number of matters were considered, the results being as follow:

Moved by Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the Secretary be instructed to advertise for tenders for the sidewalk on Queen street, and take proper steps to prevent persons from passing before the Police Magistrate, carried.

Moved by Ald. Painter, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the future all sewers be built on the outside of trees on residential streets, and trimmed to the required depth for that purpose.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Painter, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the request of Mr. W. N. Ponton for a sewer on his property on Queen street with the Georges street sewer be granted, upon the completion of the sewer, and an agreement in the usual form as prepared by the City Solicitor, the work to be done under the supervision of the Street Surveyor.—Carried.

The committee adjourned.

SPEAKERS SORE THROAT.

Public speakers and singers know how useless and blistering are cough mixtures, syrups, lozenges, &c., for irritable or sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhozone, and the reason for this is that it acts quickly and conveniently. Public speakers find Catarrhozone relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and is a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and catarrh it has no equal. Rev. Mr. McKay, Goderich, says "Catarrhozone is an excellent remedy for sore irritation arising from long speaking." Physicians, ministers and singers recommend Catarrhozone, druggists sell it for $1. Sir Mackenzie Bowell has been unanimously elected president of the Imperial Life Assurance Company.

Mrs. Fred Chown and children are at home to her friends next Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and Thursday evening.

Married in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wilson Hendry announce the marriage of their daughter, Florence Fletcher, to Mr. Mackenzie Bowell Jamieson, on Tuesday, June sixteenth, nineteen hundred and three, St. Paul, Minn."

A number of relatives and friends in this city yesterday received the foregoing "announcement," and will join in congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Bowell Jamieson, and wish for them all the happiness which the union of two kindred minds brings with it.

DEATHS

CROOKS.—In Belleville, on Wednesday, June 17, 1903, Bella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crooks, 231 Albert street.

Why "Mike" Didn't Rise.

AMONG the employees of one of the important mercantile establishments of Chicago is a bright young man who is known as "Mike." There seems to be no clear understanding among "Mike's" immediate superiors as to the nature of his duties. He sits around among boxes at the rear end of the concern most of the time, and occasionally a pipe that has the death-rattle in its throat.

Occasionally there is a rag-picker or suspicious looking prowler to be driven out of the alley, but aside from looking after such persons "Mike" has no regular work to do. This gives him plenty of time to get fat and to ponder upon the great mysteries of existence.

The other day one of the firm's trusted men had occasion to look around among the boxes where "Mike" was on guard, and, finding the latter with his heels cocked up and his chin on his breast, while the old pipe gurgled and wheezed and threatened after every pull to give up the struggle forever, the man from the office proceeded to read his collaborer a little sermon.

"Mike," said the one who dominated to something, "why do you sit around here wasting your rare moments? You are neglecting golden opportunities. Instead of idling your time away you might have a book and be studying. Many a man in your place would educate himself, and become capable of taking a higher place in the world. I myself started in here at the bottom, but I was determined not to remain at the bottom. How do you expect to get up? By sitting around and waiting for my employers to come and lift me out of my place? Never, indeed, 'Mike,' I fitted myself for a better position. I put in my spare time studying out things about the way the establishment was run, and finding the latter unable to be kept at the bottom. I was determined from the start that I should be promoted, not merely for my own benefit, but for the benefit of the firm. I decided in time that I was valuable that they could not afford not to take advantage of my knowledge and my ability. I think a great many young men make a mistake in this way. They do not ascertain at the start what they can do, and then endeavor by every effort to get themselves in a position to fit. They should make themselves so competent that their employers could not help seeing that it would be most profitable to keep them docile. You have a hundred times as much pay for every one that I had when I started. Three-fourths of the time you have nothing to do. You could put in this time studying and finding out how your employers do it. In time you would make yourself worth more to the firm than the boss is at present. You don't see do it?"

"Mike" slowly removed his heels from the box on which they had rested, and, after having rubbed down a mouthful of nicotine, he replied:

"I've noticed one thing around this place. The boss never raises the less he has to do."—Chicago "Record-Herald."

New Zealand Like Newfoundland.

There will probably be no inclusion of New Zealand in the Commonwealth of Australia during the next fifty years, if, indeed, it ever takes place. The same has now been decided upon by the commission appointed by the New Zealand government to study the federation question, and the commission's judgment coincides with local sentiment. New Zealand is twelve hundred miles from Australia by sea, a fact that practically settles the only argument drawn from the benefits of a joint defence in case of war. It also appears that it has been brought under Australian control, such a step would imperil the many economic and socialistic experiments having been made under the auspices of the New Zealand government.

Church Hymns.

CONSIDERABLE interest and perhaps some uneasiness has been aroused of late by criticism, widely reported and discussed, of certain well-known and popular church hymns, the critics urging that our most common hymns "are not literature," that they do not possess sufficient literary excellence to win the approval of intelligent and cultivated minds, and therefore would better be dropped.

Objections of this kind—and they are not made for the first time—are usually made by men who are better known for their literary attainments than for their religious experience. They are based not an error, argues the "Youth's Companion." Neither in conception nor in purpose are hymns intended to be literature. Many of them are literature in the strictest sense. Yet who supposes that Luther was stirred by literary ambition when he produced "Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott"—"A mighty Fortress is our God" or that John Fawcett, the obscure country preacher, thought he was producing literature when he wrote "Blest Be the Tie that Binds?" The one was beset by terms with which he felt himself unable to contend; also the other touched by the love of the humble parishioners who crowded about to bid him to decline a call to a rich church in London. Each gave voice to the spirit which sang in his heart, and so were born one of the noblest songs of Christian courage and one of the tenderest expressions of Christian brotherhood.

It is not what the hymns are, but what they do, that counts. Think of the noble list—the "Rock of Ages," "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," "Lead, kindly Light," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul" and hosts of others which have molded the religious life of the whole English-speaking race. They have inspired deeds of love and mercy, instilled patience and courage in the bereaved, comforted the dying, and consoled those who mourned. So long as they continue to do these things they fulfill the purpose for which they were intended, and are worthy of the place they hold in the hearts of those who sing them.

The Undeserved Evil Repute of Paris.

AN interesting discussion as to the public morals of Frenchmen and Americans in Paris recently been started by John Cambon, the French ambassador to the United States, who made a trip home not long ago, and was so much impressed by what he saw in the Paris streets, during the summer season, that he felt constrained to make an earnest protest against what seemed to him bad tendencies. He complained of the mazed increase in the obsolete habit, and of the growing quantity of indecent pictures and cartoons to be seen in the public streets. Senator Berenger, another prominent Frenchman, who is at the head of the Society for the Prevention of Licence in the Streets, promptly admitted the justice of M. Cambon's censure, and said that the laws ought to put harder and faster restrictions upon the exposure, in the central parts of Paris, of engravings and cards which offend decency. He declared that this evil is always at its worst during the summer months, and that its unusual prevalence at this season is because it "springs up especially to meet the average foreigner's conception of the gay capital. Thousands of foreigners go to Paris every year, for a short visit, and they add naively, 'intent on having a good time, and declaring their intention so loudly that the city takes on a particular role for their benefit." This view has been emphatically sustained by the pastor of a French Protestant church in Paris, who declares that American visitors are the foreigners most to blame in this matter, and Americans the most offenders of all. He contends that the hordes of idlers where quantities of "lurid photographs" are sold told him that "Americans" are their best customers, and the big handles of vicious papers and cards, which they distribute widely in their own country.

According to the New York "Evening Post," striking testimony to the truth of all this has just been furnished by a member of the United States Congress. Representative Gillett of the Springfield (Mass.) district, a man of high standing and proved independence, has been traveling for some weeks, with Speaker Henderson of Iowa, in England and on the Continent. In a recent letter he remarked that the shops, the hotels, and, above all, the class of amusements which we call "Frenchy," and which "Americans" flock to Paris to see, seemed to him "artificial and made to order to meet the taste of American visitors." He frankly admitted that "it's no credit to us what they think our taste is," and bluntly declared that he had been "thoroughly disgusted to see not only American men, but ladies, too, trying to be amused by sights which they would think both stupid and low at home." He added that it seemed to him as though "quite a proportion of the Parisians were engaged in exhibiting as their natural life and recreations a pretense of high spirits and risky abandon which was all affected, a conscious thing." Such participation, and only interesting and endurable to strangers so long as they are deceived into believing it is the custom of the country." There is thus virtual agreement on the part of the French legislator, the United States congressman and the French clergyman that foreign visitors, and particularly "American" tourists, are giving Paris a worse reputation than it deserves—in fact, making the city worse in the summer months of their presence than it is during the rest of the year. The clergyman visited clears the readiest American colony of blame, pronouncing it exemplary, but the "Temps" undertakes to deny that visiting Yankees do Paris far more harm than Paris does them."

"Well, anyway, Willie, re-carrying does babies legally owe muscle."—Harper's Bazar.

Discretion Better Than Valor.

A New Yorker, the owner of a magnificent yacht, had for his guests on a recent trip three very clever young men, all of them suitors for the hand of his beautiful daughter. The young women could not decide which of the men liked the best, they were equally good looking and equally eligible as to wealth and position.

In her perplexity she sought the advice of Neil, a kindly and generous old sea-dog, who sailed the yacht.

"I tell you what I'd do, Miss, if I were you," said Neil, "the next time we are in a safe place you fall overboard. I will stand by to see that no harm comes to you, and then you can see which is the best man of the lot."

The plan was agreed to, and a day or two later the young woman slid off the plank into the water. In a second two of the young men were in after her and she was safely rescued. As soon as possible the heroine sought the captain.

"What am I to do now?" she asked. "I have two of them still left."

"Well, I would say this," replied the captain. "If you want a good, sensible husband, you take the one that did not jump after you."

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

Belleville's Board Of Trade Delegates

WILL SUBMIT SOME IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS TO THE IMPERIAL BOARD OF TRADE

WHEN IT MEETS IN MONTREAL IN AUGUST, NEXT—TEXT OF THE MOTIONS.

It will be remembered that at a meeting of the local Board of Trade, held on May 27, Mayor Graham, ex-Mayor Johnson and Col. Ponton were named as delegates to attend the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, to be held in Montreal in August next. Subsequently the delegates, in company with the President, Mr. C. M. Gay, met and drafted resolutions which they will submit to the Imperial Congress. The resolutions cover a wide field, and will, we are sure, be generally endorsed by Bellevillians. They follow in full:

Resolved, That whereas (apart from other and national considerations) the British navy is as necessary for the security of Canada's commerce on the high seas as the British Army is for the security of Canada's territory, and whereas insurance is provided by underwriters and maintained through the assessed contributions of all whom it benefits, while the navy is maintained by the taxes levied on the people of Great Britain and Ireland. Therefore this Chamber of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire earnestly express the hope that the Dominion of Canada as an integral part of the British Empire, will feel it a moral duty and Imperial obligation to pay a share of or make a contribution to the cost of the maintenance of the Imperial navy.

Resolved, That to fully round out and unify the Canadian Confederation, and to strengthen imperial unity, it is, in the opinion of this Congress of Chambers of Congress of the Empire, essential that Newfoundland should be included as a constituent part of the Dominion of Canada. The present is an opportune time to enter upon negotiations leading to this end, in view of the pending tariff treaty between Newfoundland and the United States, and the friendly relations now existing between Prance and Great Britain, and the probable disposition on the part of France to settle for all time matters, so long in dispute, respecting the French shore. It is, in the opinion of this Congress, a matter of Imperial importance that Newfoundland's seaboard should be fully permanently secured.

Resolved, That the present strained relations between capital and labor, involving disastrous results to trade and commerce, demand legislative and executive action, and that in addition to the existing laws for conciliation being afforded, enactments should be passed:—

(a) Requiring the incorporation and registration of all Labor Unions, so that they may be held responsible for their acts.

(b) The prohibiting within British dominions of interference by alien agitators.

(c) The insuring of the stability of contracts.

(d) The more effective prevention of acts of violence in connection with strikes.

(e) The securing of personal freedom and the individual right to work.

Resolved, That the transcontinental railways of Canada—both existing and those projected—are, in the opinion of this Congress, "or the general advantage and welfare of Canada and of the Empire, and should receive Imperial support and consideration for any proposed plan of Imperial Federation, that may rest on the ground that they furnish rapid and effective modes of transportation of troops and munitions of war for Imperial defence, but also on the ground that they afford the chief land links in the chain of British commerce, and are the inlets to and outlets from the granary of the Empire and essential to the future food supply of Great Britain.

Resolved, That the commercial education of young men destined for business careers, throughout the whole British Empire, is a subject requiring the supporting care and active encouragement of all legislatures, universities, colleges and schools—especially in view of the prominence given to such educational development in Germany and other commercial rivals of Great Britain—in order that, not merely by the study of modern languages, but also by the practical fitting of brightest British minds for the world's commercial work by a proper system of scientific accounting and business methods—we may as a race be fully equipped with our own fellow-citizens, ready and prepared to compete on the coveted machinery of the world's competitive commercial.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Congress of Chambers of Commerce, the codification and assimilation of all commercial laws within the Empire, is desirable, not only as for the economic convenience of trade and the stable security of commerce, but also in order to encourage the interchange of commodities between the most distant parts, to promote the unity of Empire, and so far as possible and practicable to promote the unity of language for commercial purposes within the Empire, wherever British trade is found and the British flag floats.

Resolved, That whereas the British dominions beyond the seas are now in a position to meet nearly all the requirements of the Mother Country in the way of food supply and raw material for manufacturing, and whereas the market of the United Kingdom is required for the surplus products of the colonies; this Congress of Chambers of Commerce recommend: That steps be taken to bring about a conference of representatives from all portions of the Empire to consider and formulate a plan to meet the financial requirements of the Empire, which will insure free trade within and throughout its bounds and impose such duties on the products of countries that maintain tariffs against British products as will, while yielding a revenue, foster and stimulate the various industries and natural resources on which the prosperity of the people and the stability of the Empire depend, quicken the development of its vast unoccupied domains, and enable the wealth and energy of our own people to be utilized within our own national bounds.

SLEEPLESSNESS

AN UNMISTAKABLE SYMPTOM OF AN EXHAUSTED NERVOUS SYSTEM—A WARNING OF THE APPROACH OF PROSTRATION OR PARALYSIS—THE CURE.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

To compel sleep by opiates or sedatives is not to cure sleeplessness. Once the effect of the drug wears off the whole system is left in a weakened condition, digestion is deranged, functions shrunken and the vigor of the stomach and other bodily organs impaired.

It is impossible to emphasize too strongly the dangers of such methods of treating sleeplessness. If you are tempted at any time to yield to being drugged remember this warning and you will be thankful for it.

The only way to treat sleeplessness scientifically is to inquire into the cause, which in the great majority of cases is found to be exhaustion of the nervous system and general weakness of the body. Sleeplessness can usually be cured, but only when the system is built up and the nerves are invigorated.

(We don't want you to get the idea that by taking four of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food pills on retiring you will obtain rest and sleep that night. This food cure does not work that way; it cures sleeplessness thoroughly by removing the cause. You will likely feel the benefit of this treatment in a week or two, but may have to use it for a month, or two, or three, before your nerves are restored to normal condition.

Mrs. A. Robinson, 297 Wentet Ave., Belleville, Ont., states:—"For some time I have been troubled with severe pains in the top of my head was quite dizzy at times, could not sleep and found that I was getting nervous. Since taking a treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my health has been very much improved. I rest and sleep well and feel better in every way."

Nerve diseases are slow in coming on, and can only be cured by patient and persistent treatment. Anyone who thoroughly tests Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will be amply repaid for their trouble by obtaining vigorous health and lasting benefit. You can satisfy yourself of this by the testimony of others.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

BUTTER DAY IN THE HOUSE

Minister of Agriculture Introduces a New Bill.

Under Its Provisions Makers Must Mark Their Butter Properly or They Will Be Fined.—Mr. Fisher Explains the Bill—Wants Creamery Butter Distinguished From Process Butter.—C.N.R. Guarantee Resolutions Passed.

Ottawa, June 20.—In the House yesterday afternoon, Mr. Blair submitted an engineer's estimate of the cost of completing the portion of the Canadian Northern Railway, for which the bonds are by guarantee to the Government. It will be printed.

Against Process Butter.

Hon. Sydney Fisher moved a resolution to prevent the improper marking of butter, and to prevent the manufacture or sale of renovated, adulterated or process butter, or of oleomargarine; butterine or other substitutes for butter unless they are wholly or in part from any fat other than that of milk or cream. He said that Sir John Carling's Dairy Station concern has carried on a process for a long time, the manufacture of what is called process butter or butter made from cheap butter melted down, churned with butter milk or skimmed milk and then packed in creamery boxes. In and legislated these manufacturers out of business. Now the Agricultural Department of Agriculture learns that the American process is carried on their enterprise purposes to establish themselves in Canada. Hence the act will prevent the marking of such butter as creamery butter, that concalico more than 12 per cent. of water. The act will also prohibit the use of alkalis or chemicals to absorb water. Adequate penalties are provided for breaches of the act. Mr. Fisher pointed out that it would injure Canada to have process butter sent to Canada, and sent abroad. It was desired that the country's good name as a producer of high-class butter should be maintained.

After some debate the resolution was adopted, and the Minister introduced a bill founded upon it, which was read a first time.

The Seed Grain Bill.

Mr. Fisher then introduced his resolution providing the penalties for the sale of impure seed, which legislation, he explained, was requested by the farmers throughout the country. The resolution was adopted.

The C.N.R. Resolutions.

The resolutions guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway were again considered.

Mr. Clarke suggested that interest at the rate of 4 per cent be charged the company.

Mr. Blair replied that the resolutions simply provided for a guarantee of bonds, and if there was to be any interest charged it should be in connection with the mortgage.

After some discussion the resolutions were passed.

The supplementary estimates for 1903 were taken up, and forty items were passed. The House then adjourned.

Ten Killed in Railway Wreck.

Waterloo, Ia., June 20.—A head-on collision between an Illinois Central passenger train and a freight, ended in the killing of both engineers and firemen, a passenger, the mail clerk, three unidentified tramps and one immigrant. The freight crew misunderstood orders.

William Berry, laborer, East Missouri, has been arrested on a charge of destroying a number of animals belonging to George Woods, farmer, at Holliday. Paris Green is said to have been the medium.

Gladstone was fond of loitering around the second-hand bookstalls, and one day, dipping into volumes which were there displayed, he picked up a book that seemed to interest him greatly because quite oblivious to his surroundings. On one of these occasions a lady, to whom I have frequently studied Mr. Gladstone's habits, approached quietly: "Hallo, you're pleased, sir." Without raising his eyes from the book, Mr. Gladstone put his hand in his pocket, and handed over the half-crown. The bookseller thought was getting off with his prize, when the bookseller, who knew him well by sight, stopped him with a demand for one shilling, the price of the book. "Tell I have already given you half a crown," said Mr. Gladstone, and expostulations followed.

In the heyday of the glory and power of the late Ward McAllister, the leader of New York society, he was a slave to conventions. Like most young conservatives, he grew liberal with years. When his brother, the late Hall McAllister, came to visit him from the Pacific coast, he looked upon it as an affliction of a country relative. Hall was flaxen-haired, and he wore a broad-brimmed hat, and had something of the Western broadness in his manner that distressed his brother, the New York society leader. Ward asked Hall if he would please wear a silk hat, frock coat and gloves. "No," said Hall, "you attend to all that nonsense for me. I am too old to change. Let me go my own way." Hall had the habit of shaking hands with ladies upon making new acquaintances. This especially distressed his brother. "It is very bad taste to offer your hand to a lady," explained Ward. "Don't do it, Hall." Finally Ward introduced Hall to Mr. Astor, and the inevitable happened when her hand. "No, madam," said Hall. "I should like very much to shake your hand with you, but I can't. My brother Ward says I mustn't."

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swelling and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope, when I started to use the O. K. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and I think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

POWERS BREAK WITH SERVIA

In No Haste to Recognize Government by Assassination.

Great Britain Withdraws Her Minister and the United States and the Netherlands Will Adopt a Similar Attitude. —What King Peter Must Do to Regain Diplomatic Relations—Other Items.

Belgrade, June 22.—Great Britain has practically broken off diplomatic relations with Servia. The British Minister, Sir G. F. Bonham, leaves here to-day for England. The Chevalier of Great Britain, W. G. Thesiger, will take charge of British interests.

Washington, June 22.—The United States Government has adopted the attitude similar to that of Great Britain toward the new Servian Government. It will be in no haste to recognize a Government created by assassination in the absence of any manifestation of a disposition to punish the guilty, therefore Minister Jackson will not present his credentials to the Government of King Peter at present.

The Dutch Also.

The Hague, June 22.—The Dutch representative at Belgrade has been instructed to assume the same attitude as Great Britain towards the provisional Government of Servia.

What Peter Must Do.

Belgrade, June 22.—Unless King Peter is prepared to altogether ignore the foreign demands for the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga, his early means of satisfying the requirements appears to be to persuade the criminals to absent themselves until quiet is restored, when they will be permitted to resume their places in the army. The provisional Government holds others ready at a wink of the army, and should King Peter promise to punish the officers implicated, it is unlikely as not that the army will enforce the withdrawal of the invitation to resume the throne. It is suggested in official quarters that Russia may possibly advise the officers concerned to absent themselves.

Servia Will Adopt Peter's Gotog.

Vienna, June 22.—King Peter will arrive here at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening. At the railroad station he will receive the homage of the Servian colony, and will continue his journey by way of Buda-Pest, arriving at Belgrade Wednesday morning.

FED PARIS GREEN TO COWS.

Woman Arrested Near Windsor on This Serious Charge.

Windsor, June 22.—On Saturday an information laid before Magistrate Cheyne in Windsor by James E. Hawkins against Eva St. Louis, daughter of Joseph St. Louis, a neighbor, living on the Tecumseh road, six and a half miles from Windsor. She is charged with feeding Paris green to cattle belonging to the former. The warrant was issued. Hawkins and his own family, consisting of his son, two daughters and wife, were seized with cramps. Several families in Walkerville who bought milk from Hawkins also experienced the same sickness. The constable and Hawkins suspected that poison had been placed within reach of the cattle, and upon investigation found quantities of salt mixed with Paris green spread along the roadside between the two farms.

Dive at Archer.

Arthur, June 22—A serious fire broke out about 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Scott's block, now occupied by J. Skerritt & Co.'s bank, Mitchell & Co.'s large grain store, F. S. Mitchell and William Feterkin's dwelling above. Mr. Jerome's new photograph gallery, which was just fitted up. The building was entirely destroyed. Skerritt & Co.'s had $7,000 insurance on stock, but there will be a heavy loss as there was over $5,000 worth of stock which was not removed. Mr. Mitchell and C. Jerome saved nearly everything. J. Skerritt' insurance on contents is unknown; $2,400 insurance on building.

Saved Children From Fire.

Tweed, June 22.—Ben Fisher, farmer, living about two miles from here, had his house and contents burned yesterday morning. All were early astir, leaving all rubbish in bed, when he discovered fire. He ran up to the house just in time to save his children.

Vienna.—It is reported from Aspang that ten persons were burned to death in a fire on Saturday night which destroyed the greater part of the village of Moenich-Kirchen, Lower Austria.

TOOK FAREWELL ON FRIDAY

Then Cardinal Vaughan Was Called to His Rest at Midnight.

Late Head of English Roman Catholics.

Succeeded Cardinal Manning as Archbishop of Westminster in 1892 and Was Created a Cardinal the Year Following—Remains Will Lie in State in the Cathedral at Westminster.

London, June 22.—The Very Rev. Herbert Vaughan, Cardinal and Archbishop of Westminster, died Friday midnight.

Cardinal Vaughan was born April 15, 1832. He became Archbishop of Westminster in 1892. He had been ill for more than three months. Late in March it was thought he could not survive more than a few days.

The Cardinal had been suffering for some weeks from heart disease and dropsy, died peacefully.

THE LATE CARDINAL VAUGHAN.

His death was not expected so soon. Friday Cardinal Vaughan was moved to bed in a carriage. Among the callers were doors of St. Joseph's College, which he founded. On the previous day he appeared in the college chapel in full Cardinal's robes, made a short address to his bishops and priests.

His remains will lie in state in the Cathedral at Westminster, another monument to Cardinal Vaughan's work, and will be buried at St. Joseph's College.

Sketch of His Life.

Cardinal Vaughan was born at Gloucester, April 15, 1832, the eldest son of the late Lieut.-Col. Vaughan of Courtfield, Herefordshire, and served with his father in the Crimea, where he invented a new and serviceable rifle pit when before the enemy. He was educated at Stonyhurst College, on the continent and in Rome. He was the founder of several colleges for foreign and home missions, among them St. Joseph's College for Missionary College, Mill Hill, Middlesex, and in 1871 he commenced the first detachment of priests sent from that institution on a special mission to the colored people in the United States. He succeeded the late Bishop Turner as the Bishopric of Salford in 1872, and was made Archbishop of Westminster in 1892. He laid the first stone of Westminster Cathedral, June 29, 1895. While still Bishop Vaughan he acquired considerable reputation as a preacher, and published a series of pastorals, besides numerous pamphlets and letters on educational, social and religious questions. He was also proprietor of The Tablet and The Dublin Review.

JUDGE ARMOUR DYING.

Press Report From London on His Lordship's Condition.

London, June 22.—Justice Armour of the Canadian Supreme Court, one of the British Boundary Commissioners, is dying at the London residence of his son, owing to stomach trouble.

Italian Ministers Resign.

Rome, June 22.—The King has accepted the resignation of Interior Minister Giolitti and Marine Minister Battolo. Premier Zanardelli will take the interior portfolio and Admiral Morin will be Marine Minister. The other Ministers have been confined in their present posts. A royal decree issued yesterday convenes Parliament for June 25.

Fitzsimmons Will Marry Again.

Chicago, June 22.—Robert Fitzsimmons, ex-champion pugilist, announces his engagement to Miss Julia May Gifford, the prima donna of the "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" opera company, now playing at McVicker's Theatre. Fitzsimmons' wife died only a few weeks ago.

South African Secrets.

Montreal, June 22.—The three steamship lines, the Allan, Elder-Dempster and the Pickfords, forming the South African service, have terminated their partnership by the Allan line withdrawing. In June the two other lines will send a ship every two months.

Queen For the Season.

Ottawa, June 22—United Canada, the Roman Catholic organ, announces that H. J. Cloran, K.C., of Montreal, has been appointed to the Senate to succeed the late Senator O'Brien.

BIG SUM MISSING.

Mr. Stephens Left Money With Manager Bowley But There Is No Trace of It on the Books.

St. Thomas, June 22.—The latest developments in regard to the Elgin Loan matters were discovered Saturday morning, when Mr. Bowley of Aylmburn of Yarmouth, one of Elgin's wealthiest farmers, came to town to look into his deposits in the company. Three months ago he made a deposit of $7,000 with Mr. Manager Geo. Rowley, to bear 5½ per cent. interest. There is no trace whatever of it in the books of the company.

PIERCE FIGHT IN MONTREAL.

Battle on the Road Between White and Colored Men.

Montreal, June 22.—As the result of a fierce fight between a crowd of white and colored men, which took place last night way between Montreal and Back River Saturday, several of the combatants are in a very serious condition, and two or three of them may die.

The fight lasted for fully half an hour, and knives and bludgeons were used freely.

The white men seem to have got the best of the fight, as two of them had to be taken to the hospital, and two others had their wounds dressed on St. Denis street. William Dilaire and Joseph Lamoureux are in the Royal Victoria Hospital, where no hope is entertained for their recovery. Dilaire is suffering from a severe cut on the head, inflicted with a bludgeon or a piece of a fence rail.

In the battle on the road, knives, bludgeons in the shape of fence rails; in fact, everything the combatants could lay hands on was used freely. None of the colored men were seriously injured.

WILL SINGE EAGLE'S FEATHERS.

Seymour Gourley Now Aroused to Hit the Yankee Hard.

Ottawa, June 22.—Senator Dopee's speech before the Pilgrim Club Friday night has been drafted to Ottawa, and incidentally to Seymour Gourley, M.P. Mr. Gourley read the speech with disgust, and indignation spoke in his ready comments:

"The spoiled child of the Empire," These were the words that grated on Mr. Gourley's sturdy Canadianism.

"Spoiled because we won't give the United States our gold country!" quoth the member for Colchester, fiercely. "They say I have given the United States away, but I give them more now."

Mr. Gourley has made a threat which he will not fail to execute. Dopee's speech has made the United States even more hideous in his sight, and when next he rises in the house of Commons it will be to singe the feathers of the bald old eagle with the hottest rhetoric that has yet found its way into the pages of Hansard.

BOATS CAPSIZED.

During a Squall Two Parties Were Upset and Two Were Drowned.

Rochester, N. Y., June 22.—The first drowning accidents of the season occurred Sunday at Braddock quoit Bay, near this city. Andrew Hortfelder, a tailor, 20 years of age, and three others, flero in a 16-foot sailboat, which was caught in a stiff northwest squall. The boat was under full sail when the squall struck it and it was literally capsized. Hortfelder went down in 72 feet of water, and the body was never recovered. The others were rescued.

The second accident occurred almost at the same time and about 1,000 feet from the first. Three men were out in a rowboat when water began pouring into the boat and one of them, becoming frightened, jumped out. This capsized the boat, and Joseph Lester, one of the occupants, was drowned.

COLLIDED WITH ICEBERG.

Norwegian Barque Belfast Abandoned in Mid-Ocean.

London, June 22.—The German steamer Theodore Willis, Capt. Mayerhoff, arrived at Gravesend yesterday from Quebec, having on board the crew of the Norwegian barque Belfast, Capt. Moe, Belfast, May 16, for Miramichi, N. B., which was abandoned June 10 in a leaky condition, the result of a collision with an iceberg the previous day in latitude 47 N. and longitude 46 W.

6,000 KILLED IN BATTLE.

Moorish War Minister Lost Them to the Rebels at Casablanca.

Madrid, June 22.—According to a despatch received here from Tangier, El Menebhi, the Moorish War Minister, has lost 6,000 men in a battle fought with the rebels at Casablanca.

SAFE BLOWER IS DYING.

Dropped a Can of Explosive and His Body Was Mangled.

Noblesville, Ind., June 22.—George Marlin is in the county jail here in a dying condition as a result of an all-night attempt to blow the safe in a general store at Jolietville. Citizens of the village, who were awakened by a terrible explosion, found Marlin lying unconscious near the store with one arm blown away and his body otherwise so terribly mangled that he cannot live. When officers approached a second man ran away. The accidental dropping of a can of nitro-glycerine was the cause of the explosion.

Lockers Blown to Splinters.

Cincinnati, June 22.—The building of the Central Manufacturing Company at Court and Russell streets was wrecked by an explosion yesterday. Fred. Dape, the engineer, was killed, and his partner, Joseph Kitchowski, was fatally injured. Several girls employed at the plant were injured, none seriously.

Lockers Blown to Splinters.

Cambridge, Ohio, June 22.—Lightning struck a large storage with 9,000 pounds of dynamite at the new mines now being operated near Cambridge, 12 miles from here yesterday during a storm, killing six men and injuring 15 more, one of whom died during the mine shaft. The men were scattered over a radius of 100 feet.

THE WALL GAVE WAY.

Thirteen Men Hurt at a Wilmot Township Barn Raising.

New Hamburg, June 22.—Saturday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock a very serious accident occurred on the farm of ex-Councillor Jacob Weber in Wilmot township, situated about two miles east of this village, whereby about thirteen persons were more or less seriously hurt. Mr. Weber was building a new barn, so his large barns, and had invited forty of fifty of his friends to assist him to raise the frame. When placing one of the huge timbers in position, it caused the wall, which had only been built a few days ago, and was not half separated thoroughly set, gave way, and precipitated those who were standing on the wall to the lower portion of the stables, with the result mentioned.

The following are the names of those seriously hurt: Jacob Steiner, right leg fractured and eye pierced; Aaron Shantz and John Steiner, injured internally; Jacob Shantz, thumb cut off; Allan Schiedel, one arm completely severed below the elbow; Edward Kropf, shoulder crushed; Joseph Stenneman, leg broken. Stenneman and Noah Shantz are also reported to be seriously hurt.

SUICIDED IN ST. LOUIS.

A Canadian Shoots Himself in Forest Park, St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—The dead body of John Flett was discovered in Forest Park Saturday. A bullet hole in his right temple and one beside his right ear and a 38-calibre revolver lying at his side clearly pointed to suicide. The dead man was about 30 years of age. No letters on him read:

"To whom it may concern: Please have my body shipped to our family burial lot, Chippewa, Ontario, Canada."

"Notify Mr. John Flett, 'care of Flett, Fisher & Co., Toronto, Ont."

The furnish Mr. Flett—Mr. John Flett was seen but was unable to throw any light on the suicide's identity. Any relatives in St. Louis, he said, Mr. Flett was informed of the tragedy by the St. Louis police on Saturday, but he replied that he did not know the young man.

WENT ASHORE IN DENSE FOG.

St. Joseph, From Toronto, Hard on Rocks Near Oswego.

Oswego, N.Y., June 22.—During a dense fog yesterday the steamer St. Joseph of Oswego, Capt. Hollahan, bound from Toronto to Oswego, for coal, ran ashore on Four Mile Creek, three miles west of this port. The St. Joseph is hard on the rocks in five feet of water, 1,000 feet from shore.

Two tugs worked all day in a fruitless effort to release the vessel. Her crew of nine is safe. The St. Joseph is owned by the Ontario and Western Railway Company.

Regina Becomes a City.

Winnipeg, Man., June 22.—Friday afternoon Mayor Hamilton issued his status of a town into the more extended standing of a city. The Lieutenant-Governor gave the royal assent to the bill creating the new city at the Legislative Assembly which closed Friday, and came to Regina and proclaimed it a city. With the giving of the royal assent to the bill the celebration reigned. Flags were everywhere manifest and many buildings were decorated with bunting. A half-holiday had been proclaimed by the Mayor, and was observed by everybody.

A Trust Goes Down.

Trenton, N.J., June 22.—Application was made in the Court of Chancery Saturday by Andrew H. McNeal of Burlington, N.J., for the appointment of a receiver for the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, which has numerous plants throughout the country. The company was organized in 1899 with a capital of $30,000,000. Of this amount $16,000,000 is preferred stock. The bonded indebtedness is $5,000,000.

Still in Precarious Condition.

Toronto, June 22.—Rev. Jos. Caven still continues in a very precarious condition. He took nourishment well yesterday, but the distinguished patient is very weak, and no general improvement was noted.

CANADA'S MISMANAGED CENSUS.

The mismanagement of the Canadian census of 1901 grows on one. From all parts of the country complaints are coming to Parliament as to the inaccuracy of the schedules compiled. In New Brunswick the Free Baptist denomination was almost entirely ignored, and whole congregations have gone unrecorded, simply because of clear stupidity and incompetence. For the incorporated towns and cities throughout Canada the Dominion census gives returns which show the populations of the towns to be considerably under those established by purely civic compilations.

These defects are in themselves bad. But when we come to consider the cost of the undertaking we are brought face to face with real disaster. The census of 1871 cost $400,000; that of 1881, $500,000; and that of 1891, slightly over $600,000. Hon. Sydney Fisher, however, already spent $1,127,333, which does not include charges for rent, lighting, fuel, caretakers, etc., at Ottawa. Further, he is asking for an additional vote of $35,000 and will spend $3,000 during June. The aggregate cost of the census proper for 1901, therefore, will amount to $1,130,333. In return for this immense sum the country secures a census which is declared by different sections to be worthless. Nothing but gross extravagance has characterized it and the people should punish the responsible parties.

TIMELY TOPICS!

Somebody writing to the Hamilton Spectator makes the following strong statements:

"No other place, I believe, in the civilized world, must a person submit to lying insinuations, insults and abuse as they do in a witness box in the Canadian courts. No matter how high a character they may have or how respected they are, when they leave the witness box they are left with a stain on their character. What do lawyers care? A big bag and put in the street flower over grown. I would not under any circumstances go as a witness but no matter what depended on my evidence."

Hardly! But what's overdrawn! And yet, when one recalls certain incidents in a recent celebrated case, it must be admitted there is a certain amount of justification for the remarks. Why should a witness, who has no particular interest in a case, be subjected to the insendos and insolent sneers of a cross-examining lawyer? That surely is not the way to further the ends of justice, and yet how often is it done?

"Fist Justitia" writes: "I would like to ask, through your columns, how it was that, in the case of Palmer vs. Rose, judgment in which case was given on Saturday, the defendant, being found guilty, was fined only one cent, when the Statute it says the penalty, upon conviction, shall be not less than $1 nor more than $20."

"Military Aid to Civil Power and Public Aid to the Military," is the heading of a two-column article in the Montreal Star, from the pen of Col. Ponton, of this city. The writer deplores the growing disinclination for military service, that becoming prevalent in smaller places, at the same time pointing out how necessary this service is to public welfare, sometimes, even in "the piping times of peace." The article should make "good reading" for Hon. Sir William Mulock, who is losing a lot of sleep these times over the bugbear of militarism in Canada. The Colonel points out and deplores the general public apathy in regard to military matters in Canada, and calls Hon. Sir Wm.'s thinking men would like to see," continued and united public sentiment in favor of the Militia, each locality supporting enthusiastically its own regiment, and the country, as a whole, not begrudging grants for its maintenance and support. When that happy state of things exists in Canada, we shall have the military spirit among us."

ALBERT COLLEGE ORGAN RECITAL.

ENJOYABLE AFFAIR IN BRIDGE ST. CHURCH ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The Albert College Organ recital, given on Saturday afternoon by the pupils of Prof. V. P. Hunt and Miss Marie Wheeler, was well attended and most enjoyable. The vocalists were Miss Frances Manning and Mr. K. Heathcote, both appearing to advantage in Shelley's "King of Kisses" and Liddle's "Abide With Me," respectively. The organ solos were Miss Leslie Hall, organist of the Methodist church at Napanee; Mr. Walter Honeyford, organist of St. Thomas', Miss Mabel Limbert, Miss Ethel Mann, and Miss Ida Ashworth. All displayed a technique and grasp which reflected much credit on their talented instructor.

A Judicial Joke.

A lad named Thomas Sullivan, of Frankford, is at present in jail waiting to be taken to the Reformatory for 5 years for horse stealing. He was on Saturday charged before the Police Magistrate with stealing a bicycle from Walter Scott. He admitted the offence. The Magistrate imposed a 5 years sentence to run concurrently with the other.

Fire in Hungerford.

The residence of Mr. Benjamin Fisher, situated in the township of Hungerford, was, with its contents, to ally destroyed by fire on Saturday morning. Mr. Fisher arose at an early hour and built a fire, and whilst he was milking, the horse caught fire. The flames made such rapid progress that Mr. Fisher had considerable difficulty in rescuing his four small children. None of the contents were saved. The building was insured for $400, but the contents were uninsured. Considerable sympathy is expressed for Mr. Fisher, as three days previous to the fire, he buried his wife.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can't be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knock-out to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute; get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

A TRUE BRAIN FOOD

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it passes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and digestive organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation; gives more strength to the heart; it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by all druggists.

Curious Bits of News.

It is averred that gas has proved injurious to the great church by setting up chemical change in the limestone of which its walls, arches, vaults and carvings are composed, thus hastening the disintegration of the building.

Captain K. A. Jansen of Chicago has won the distinction of being the first mariner to guide a steamship from Lake Michigan to San Francisco by way of the Straits of Magellan. The craft in which he made the voyage is a sister ship of the steamer "Tampico," which was built at Toledo in 1888 for the Great Lakes carrying trade.

According to "Engineering," the most result in respect of speed in navigation is that while ten years ago the highest obtained ocean speed was 20.7 knots, it is now 23.35 knots; the highest speed for large warships was 21 knots and is now 25 knots on a trial of double the duration of those of ten years ago; the maximum speed attained by any craft was 19 knots, as compared with 24.551 knots now; while the number of ships of over 20 knots was eight in 1891, and is fifty-four now.

When the King was Prince of Wales he refused to attend public banquets if the press were not seated among the guests. On one occasion the reporters were to dine by themselves in another room. They refused, and brought the matter under the notice of the Prince personally. He sent for the mayor of the town and made a few pointed remarks. When the banquet commenced the reporters were accommodated with seats from which they could have shaken hands with His Royal Highness.

During the past four years the United States Fish Commission has made important experiments at the station in Duluth. They have resulted in the successful planting and acclimatization in Lake Superior of the famous steelhead salmon of the Pacific, a salt-water fish exclusively herretofore. It was believed that this fish would thrive in the cold, fresh waters of Lake Superior, where its many other salmonidae grow. Several thousand fry were planted on the north shore of the lake, near Port Arthur, and at Silver Islet, both points on the Canadian side. The following year a larger number was planted off Isle Royale, and since then the planting has been kept up. Now, from time to time, the catch of an occasional steelhead is reported, and from the size of those found it is evident that they are growing about a pound a year in these fresh waters. It is also evident, from certain modifications of some of these specimens caught, that they have been propagating and increasing naturally.

Language in a Dog's Tail.

In the case of all hunting dogs, such as foxhounds or wolves, which pack together, the tail is carried aloft, and is very free in movement. It is also frequently rendered more conspicuous by the tip being white, and this is almost invariably the case when the hounds are of mixed color. When ranging the long grass of the prairie or jungle, the raised tips of the tails would often be all that an individual member of the band would see of its fellows. There is no doubt that hounds habitually watch the tails of those in front of them when drawing a covert. If a faint drag is detected suggestive of the presence of a fox, but scarcely sufficient to be sworn to vocally, the tail of the finder is at once set in motion, and the warmer the scent the quicker does it wag. Others, seeing the signal, quickly join the first, and there is an assemblage of waving tails before a single audible whimper is heard. Should the drag prove a doubtful one, the hounds separate again, and the waving ceases; but, if it grows warmer when followed up, the wagging becomes more and more pronounced, until one after another the hounds begin to whine and give tongue, and strong off in Indian file along the line of scent. When the pack is in full cry upon a strong scent, the tails cease to wave, but are carried aloft in full view, sometimes when the dog most excites life is the moment when he sights game. That moment is the time when he wags his tail most vigorously in order to announce his discovery to his fellow-dogs. In this way, by the habit of association, he got to wagging his tail whenever he was pleased; and the more pleased he is the more vigorously does he wag his tail, so that the wagging of a dog's tail under pleasurable emotion can be traced directly to the time when the dog used his tail as a signal of the discovery of his prey.

Mme. Eames's Diplomacy.

Many think that musical artists should present their services for concerts given for charitable objects, as the Philadelphia "Post." Mme. Eames is also of this opinion, but she recently, in London, put the matter in a new light to those who invited her to appear gratuitously. Mme. Eames was one afternoon at Lord Charles Beresford's, and the next day received a letter from Lady Beresford saying that two ladies present had wanted to ask a favor, but in her presence had lost courage. "But I am not afraid of you," wrote Lady Beresford, and proceeded to say that the ladies in question, who happened to be extremely wealthy, wished her to sing for nothing for a certain charity. Mme. Eames immediately sat down and wrote a reply. It was her duty, she said, to save money as much as possible for her operatic performances at Covent Garden, which were dominated by contract to be two days apart so that she might give her greatest best, but in the present, she felt, however, greatly attracted toward the charity named, and would make only one condition regarding the donating of her services. She had received 200 guineas (about $1,000) for singing at Mr. W. Astor's ball, about the same amount at other private concerts. She would gladly sing for nothing for the charity named if each one of the ladies interested, who had so kindly asked her, would donate 100 guineas to the object for which the concert was to be given.

As yet no replies from "the ladies interested" have been received. But Lady Beresford, not being one of the "interested ladies," appreciates more fully the humor of the situation.

KEEP UP MORAL BARS

REV. DR. TALMAGE ADVISES SUMMER VACATION RESORTS.

THE WAGES OF SIN ARE SURE.

How to Start a Summer Vacation So That It Will Not Work Sorefulness Instead of Rest—Shun the Summer Resorts Frequented by Fools—Don't Go Anywhere Where You See That Shall Be Your Whatsoever You Sow That Shall Ye Also Reap.

Second sermon in a set of Parliament of Oratory, in the year 1903, by William Bailey, of Philadelphia, Pa., on the Chautauqua platform.

Chicago, June 21.—In this sermon the preacher points out the all too prevailing hard drinking, late hours, and moral bars during the summer vacation. He declares that the policy of so-called popular summer resorts are unsparingly denounced. The text is Numbers xxxii., 23: "Be sure your sin will find you out." He says:

What are you going to do this summer? Take a vacation," you answer, "What else can I do?" I do not know. There was once a time when I did not believe in summer vacations. I thought that they were a waste of men's energies for shirking work. But now I know the fallacy of that. It has been gradually breaking down under the breakers of experience. I say, "I want and need a change," am going out among the green hill and down by the sea." I am going to rusticate. I shall turn myself out to grass, and feed and grow fat on the clover."

Good! Amen, that! I always did believe it better to pay for a fresh air ticket and country supplies than for medicine bottles. I always did believe it far better to associate with the birds and the butterflies in the country fodgate keeper for a little while than with the doctor. And it is to have the doctor and the undertaker for your constant visitants during the winter.

But, my hearers, before we separate from this subject I want to say that I would like to ask you another question: What are you going to do when you are in the country? How are you going to spend your vacation? "Well," you answer, "I really do not know. I am going to let things drift and not bother me. If I feel like fishing I will fish." If I want to take a drive I will go driving; or will take a trip upon my bicycle. That is what I do in the country. I will do I know I need the trip." Yes, my brother, you will find that is the best men can give. You have been working hard during your life. In one sense you have destroyed your ability to play. Therefore you have to go to the country and do not know what to do temptations will there assail you, which, while not nerve you when you are at home and at work. Now, the purpose of this sermon is not to talk to libertines and loafers and dead beats. But I would to-day, as a pastor, earnestly and prayerfully give a few words of great importance to hard working people who will spend their vacations during the coming season. I want to warn you against the temptations which, while they seem very good, if successful, may destroy your entire Christian character.

Summer will light the first: Beware of Sabbath desecration. That means to-day with you. Do not ensnare yourselves by one false move and leave your young hearts defenceless before the poisoned arrows of the Satanic archers. Beware of those who practically say to the evil tempters: "Here am I, oft on my summer vacation. I have left my religion at home. I am ready to let you lead me where you will. For two or three weeks, or one month at least, I will enter no church. I will be a sermon utter no public prayer and ask for no divine protection. I will take a holiday from religion as well as from business, and be a beginning I will forget the Lord's day."

What do you mean by such a warning as that?" some one asks. "Why do you place such emphasis upon Sabbath observance?" Because, my friend, the way you generally spend your summer vacation. That is way you will end it. The Sabbath regarded by many as a day of rest, or the forerunner, of a long series of spiritual backsliding. How? Why? Simply because your summer vacation will start on a Saturday afternoon, and you will spend your first day in the country? Will you do it with prayer and thanksgiving? Will you do it by taking your children to the Sabbath-school and joining the Christian workers of that neighborhood in public worship within the four walls of the little village church, or will you do it by coming down in your fishing dress, or by taking your golf stick or with your baskets full of food for a rollicking time in the woods on a Sunday picnic? Here are the two extremes. Which will you choose? Which will you make the initial renovation; the other hends to-ward Sabbath desecration. No sooner a man ever lived who could successfully rules the summer vacation. Summer resorts who started their vacations by breaking the law of God. I married Sabbath-breakers in church-room for always comes back to his church wedding ring after the gold that he spent the Sabbath days of his summer vacation in handling the billiard of a sailboat or in hitting the little ball with a golf stick. The eye that is looking at the bobber floating at the end of a line attached to a fishing rod Sabbath. Your vacation should be God and it will end right.

Summer will light the second: Beware of the hotel ballroom and the summer public dance hall. I am not now discussing the question of dancing in general; I am not considering whether it be right or wrong for the young folks, within the quietude and the sacred precincts of a home, to have one of their number finger the keys and the rest, with the light of the stately strains of the minuet or the lancers sound forth, to have the boys and girls join hands and the slippered feet keep step to the swiftor graceful beating of the pulse. I do know that Miriam danced before the Lord. Perhaps there are times in the home when the dance may be a harmless amusement. But the dance of the hotel, of a harmless frolic and the means of keeping the children in the parlor, the chaffeuring and mothers and grandfathers and grandmothers may be participants in the domestic merriment, though I am not now denouncing the harmless social enjoyments which take place in the home, but the unchaperoned protest against the promiscuous dance hall at our summer resorting places. I know of what I am speaking. I am not a stranger to the fashionable etiquette of the world. And I believe the hotel ballroom and the summer dance hall are the most awful compounds of mental, physical and spiritual degradation. They are the places where the young men and the young women who have been best trained are often irresistibly drawn into a life of worldliness, of sin and of ruin. Young men and women whom I address to-day, I defy you to find one single instance of noted spiritual power who will contend that the summer dance hall is a safe place in which to allow our sons and daughters to pass the summer months.

Beware, then, that of the summer vacation can aptly be termed the "Devil's Race of Death." Mark Hanna, Jim H. Ainsworth, the famous Engineer, can give you a description of such a dance. It was during the famous plague which devastated Memphis a few centuries ago. The homes of thousands and tens of thousands were deserted, and upon thousands were dying. Thousands upon thousands were dead. Dead cards used to make their rounds every day. The dead carts would pile piles of stenchful corpses, would call from street to street, "Bring out your dead!" Many of the unburied corpses would be brought out upon the streets, "Bring out your dead!" upon their cards as a scavenger would call out his dog to bring his wagon. During that awful plague many of the young people ribbed the houses of the dead, the homes of the wealthy citizens. They took possession of the deserted mansions. They turned the churches into dance halls, and they danced and drank during the night. They danced and drank during the day. When one of their number would fall in the dance the dancers would stop and lift up the body with a shout and carry the body out of the room to await the awful time. But if we could look below the surface and see the dancers, even those of some of these dances whirling around the summer ballrooms, we would find that the fatalities, physical, moral and spiritual, are almost as appalling as they were in great plague. The summer ballroom and the dance of physical death and benefit. Is it not a place for physical death?

Is not the public dance hall of the summer vacation—the place also of moral death? Is it not the place with whom our children associate in the city, who are engrafted in getting that young man, about whom you know practically nothing, to promise he would be your son or your young daughter as he moves about in the fashionable throng? Is not the dance hall one hypocritical. They may say I am trying to keep the young people from having fun. But I say that any place where there is the physical and moral damage the summer dance hall has done our children ought to be forbidden. I am one who is not much afraid that our young folks may enter the dance hall of evil—for sort as I am that they may enter the wondrous beauty. But I am afraid to those Satanic dens. I firmly believe that the summer dance hall is the place where there has been for months thousands upon thousands of our young people have lost their immortal souls dostroyed.

Summer will light the third: Beware of all games of chance. What does that mean? Beware of joining in the gambling game, which will be played every night in the sidetroom of the hotel which you go into the hotel bar which game is to be played until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. Beware of commingling with those "plungers" gathered before the bookmakers' stands at the famous summer races? Oh, no. I would not mean that. I mean you be found in such flagrantly compromising positions as to cause a reflection to find your pastor there. But beware of the insidious beginnings. Beware of wagering the box of candy upon the game of tennis or quoits which you are playing in the afternoon. Beware of betting the penny upon the single game of pool in the parlor on the hotel porch. In other words, beware of taking your first footsteps in one of the awful, the most fascinating and the most destructive of all the fields of evil.

When the poisonous desires of a game of chance are implanted into a young man's heart there seems to be no human power to stop him from committing moral, physical and spiritual suicide. Trifle not with the games of chance. Throw over small the wager, my more than you would risk your life. No more a sneaky dang or toy with a box contractor's coin or a tiger's claw. Summer will light the fourth: Beware of trifling with human affections. Summer resorts do not be a fool. Do not falsify with the glance of the eye or the touch of the hand. Do not imagine that you can treat the delicate instruments of the human heart as mere temporary plaything, thumping the piano, and then, as you laugh at its many silver strings, and indulge the belief that you have strayed over it unused and made capable of sending forth sweet music. That means do not trifle with the beautiful element of love and plunge it into the Satanic fires of a summer flirtation and then hope it will have lost none of its luster. It will not retain its purity. It will become as black as the fatal line of Cain's forehead, which marked him as a destroyer of his brother's life.

Oh, the fascinations and yet the hellish malforming power of a summer flirtation! Have you ever sat upon a horse boating of the gentle, the insects gather out of the darkness and hurt and plays about the electric light? Then the moths for them the fatal spell that the glittering eye of the black snake has on the mother bird sitting upon the eggs nest. The insects will circle round and round the brilliant light. They will disappear for awhile, but they will return. But the hot tongue of death is ready to catch them. Then they will begin to make one plunge and in an instant the wings and the legs are gone. Then the poor suffering creatures fall to the ground, wriggling and twisting and writhing to be trampled under the foot of man. Such are the awful results which follow when the summer insects play about the blazing, blasting fire of a summer's flirtation. It may be pleasant for awhile to feel the hot flush upon the cheek, the hot breath upon the lips, to pass a few hours as a coquette, teasing and inflaming the tenderest feelings of a true man in a summer rowboat or in romantic walks through the woods. It may seem to be a glorious act to boast how many you can conquer in love, as an Indian warrior boasts of his prowess in war by the number of scalps he has taken at his belt. But by the scorched and tortured and outlawed hearts of thousands which have been malformed for time and eternity in the glowing flames of a summer flirtation I denounce trifling with human love. I denounce it from the lips of every one who may be participants during their next summer vacation in the heartless, heartless and damning unliversal evil.

Summer red light the fifth. Beware of the serpent which lies coiled up in the bewitching wine cup. Many summer and winter resorts of this country are especially noted for the power of their mineral water to physically straighten a man out after a day's debauch. But I believe there are a few, a very few, summer resorting places where, because of their curative qualities, most of our summer watering places are ruled by men who will not make drunkards rather than reform them. They will not sell the poisonous liquor and not in retail. Men carry their bottles to their rooms and drink when they go fishing or dancing or taking a tramp in the woods, and men often overcome.

But this is not the greatest curse of the summer resorts which I denounce. They are noted as places where women as well as men go to the men. To me the most abjectly repulsive creature on earth is a drunken woman. When I see one I know not which feeling predominates in my heart, that of pity, that of horror. Therefore, friends, I beg of you that when you are in the summer party where wine is passed around do not touch it. For your Christian example's sake do not touch it. For the danger of inflaming your appetite for strong drink.

Summer red light the last: Beware of the family resorts which take away for any length of time wives from husbands, husbands from wives, mothers from children, and parents from children. Where do you say that you are going this summer? If you answer, "I do not know, I have not yet got down to the seashore if I can't go down to the seashore if I could, but that is so far away. My husband and I will be left in the city only a little while if I go there." Mothers, that is too far away from home if I were you. If your husband must remain in the city to work during the summer to earn you a livelihood it is not good for you to leave him. It is not good for you. It is not good for husband and children. Back this, my friends, what I say. I speak calmly and deliberately. Right from all the family combinations of our summer resorts are directly or indirectly the cause of separations of families. These separations lay the foundation awful temptations, at the feet of the men who are compelled to stay at home and work. They lay the foundation for awful temptations, at the feet of the women who are left in the country, or at the summer resort near to your home. Be it a place where the members of the family can get together every few days. Never let your husband learn the lesson that he is happy without you and the children. Wives and mothers, never let your husband learn the lesson how you can be happy without the companionship of your husband and the children by your side.

In closing I would speak to you words of congratulation and good cheer. Before we separate for the summer season is the holiday, men and women, I congratulate you because you have earned your rest. I congratulate you because you have finished a hard winter's work. I congratulate you that you are going out among the trees and the flowers, among the mountains and the valleys; that you are going to the sea, that you are going where you see the cows gather for the evening milking. And I also congratulate you that you are going where you worship here you can worship there. Take with you the Saviour's companionship. Everything the next few days will be divine—country and hole. Then, if you have Christ along, there will be no fear that you will encounter any of the temptations which beset every one during a summer's vacation.

Use Boiled Eggs Sparingly.

Hard boiled eggs mixed with bread crumbs, one half of each, is very good for one's lunch or supper every other day for the first week. But too much boiled egg is not good for a person and a return back of hard boiled eggs would soon kill a great many of the little tots.

Fecundity of the Oyster.

The fecundity of the oyster is wonderful. A single female oyster in one season's spawning will produce, as she is of an average size, about 16,000,000 eggs. A large, lazy oyster will produce 80,000,000 or 90,000,000.

Anecdotal.

Not long ago a prominent country lawyer, becoming nettled at the ruling of a judge, picked up his hat and started to walk out of the court room. He was followed by the court with the inquiry: "Are you trying to express your contempt for the court, Judge Tour. Honor," was the reply "I am trying to conceal it."

A poor Scotchwoman lay dying, and her husband sat by her bedside. After a time he said, "Janet, my dear husband's hand and said: "John, we've gote to part. I have been a good wife to you, haven't I?" John thought a moment. "Well, just middling fair, Janet," he answered, "middling fair, to say too much. Again the wife spoke. "John," she said "you know many a night I've sat up in the auld kirkyard at Strawon before my mither." "I remember that," replied the peace among unco' folk in the dirt and dreeks of Glasgow." "I mind, weel, Janet, my woman," said John, soothingly, "we'll just try'n in Glasgie first, and if it winna do we'll e'en awa' and try'n in Strawon."

It is related by an exchange that in a certain parish, the name of which is prudently withheld, the wife of a clergyman was spending clothes when a neighbor dropped in for a social chat. The visitor's attention was attracted to a large basket half-filled with buttons, and carelessly fingering them, she remarkd: "Why, here are two buttons missing from the coat of my husband had on his last winter suit." "Indeed," said the wife, in surprise. "That is odd—all these buttons were found in the collection-basket the last two times we had church, I might put them to use." After this the conversation languished, and shortly after the visitor took her departure. But the story got abroad, and the missing buttons were found in the basket.

Lemice Theriaux once worked off a little prescription on a druggist while at play in which the Pelion of misery was heaped upon the Ossa of despair, says a writer in "Chambers' Journal." Toothache was the complaint, and it caused a prominent seat in the gallery. When the pathetic moment arrived, Theriaux pulled out a handkerchief and rubbed his tears. The effect was electrical. The man arose, left the house of mourning, and also took hold of the handkerchief. The sympathy was so infectious upon extended all along the line of the faithful; some were so much overcome by the emotion he took hold of the end of the handkerchief, until at last all the company were weeping in it. The handkerchief was twenty feet long, and had been previously prepared for the occasion. The low comedian struggled a great deal with the addition of wee, but his witticisms were of no avail, for the tragedy was above the more frequent were the sobs of the sorrowing twenty.

From the Countess of Lord Kitchener, told by a British officer, who served with him in South Africa: A young sublatern in charge of some construction work in Upper Egypt was the misfortune to be engaged in native women through the accidental explosion of several cases of ammunition. In fear of a avenging from headquarters, he telegraphed for the Field Engineer to report killing or ten laborers by premature explosion of mines. He then set to avail the reproof of his stern superior. In a few hours came this laconic despatch: "Am astonished and more dynamite!" A second story is as follows: "Before I engaged in this embridge for the 'advance upon Proteria, an interior native representative of danger to his workmen, communicated the fact to the Field Engineer, explaining that a different mode of construction would be much safer than the one employed, which might, indeed, cost the lives of twenty or thirty men. Kitchener listened patiently and then asked: "How much longer would it take to do the work by this safer method?" "Not more than an hour longer, sir," was the reply. "Carry on the plans. You will continue the work as it has been begun."

A Rare Cure for Headaches.

Sick headache, to which women are more subject than men, is caused by a disordered stomach and the effect of acute is sense nausea that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach must be relieved of the cause of the trouble and during effort to free the stomach from bile vomit has frequently been resorted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a most effective, and in neutralizing the effects of the bile, they relieve the nausea and cure on the nerves which cause the headache. 4

The best way to get rest is to forget.

Will be found an Excellent Remedy for sick headache. Carter's Little Liver Pills are recommended to us by those people who have used them for sick headache. 4

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

The Wall Known Strengthening Properties of IRON, combined with other tonics and in perfect harmony, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, when strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion. 4

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

The soothing effect of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms is wonderful. The child has given much satisfaction. 4

Many a man's failure is the busy cause.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use something to relieve them quickly. The dangerous Change of water, drinking and green fruit, will cause these attacks. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a safe, sure and speedy Cordial as being the most reliable remedy for all disorders of the stomach and bowels. Only a few drops at a time are required. Be sure and get the genuine. Refuse all substitutes. 4

TIMELY TOPICS

No one can deny that Queen Victoria's death must be a lovely place, when horses jump into the bay to swim to it.

After hearing Rev. T. Albert Moore preach in the Tabernacle yesterday morning, one can well understand why several churches up west are following the example set by Olivet Twist.

Everybody will regret to hear that Mr. P. C. Jones has sold his pretty little steamyacht. That means three gone lately, the Skylark, Carina and Madge. However, there is no need to despair while Mr. O'Flynn's flagship still sails fair Quinte's waters blue.

"Listen to the band playing 'Onward Christian Soldiers,'" said a lady yesterday. And the band was playing "Hold the Fort," in fine time.

Yesterday was the longest day, but we regret that it was too short for some people to get to church.

It will do some people in this vicinity no harm to ponder over that judgment given out by the Magistrate on Saturday in the case of Palmer vs. Rose. Bicyclists have as many rights on the King's Highway as anybody else, and they are evidently going to get them in future.

Pains in the Back, Hips and Spine.

GREAT SUFFERING AND LOSS OF WEIGHT—DOCTORS COULD NOT HELP HIM—A SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

When you read such letters as the following from well-known and highly respected people in all parts of the country you need no longer wonder why the sale of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is so far in advance of any similar remedy. When the people find out the virtue of this great medicine they tell their neighbors about it, and so the good news spreads.

Mrs. James Clark, Cameron, Prince Edward Co., Ont., states: "Eleven years ago I was taken with pains in my back, settling in my hips and extending up my spine. The pain was very severe and at times almost unendurable, and many days I was not able to do an hour's work. My weight was reduced from 190 to 160 pounds, and though I had consulted many first-class physicians and tried several advertised medicines I could get no relief.

"At this time my father-in-law told me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and said he knew they would cure me. I secured a box, and great was my surprise when I began to feel better after using only the one box. I continued their use until I had taken about four boxes, which made me a sound man, and I also persuaded my usual weight, 190 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have done so much for me. I have recommended them to a number of my friends, and have never yet found one case where they did not meet with good success. My daughter, Mrs. Chas. Phillips, has also been cured of a severe stomach trouble by the use of these pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, or five for $1.00. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

A Large Covey.

Two old hunters were swapping yarns and had got to quail.

"Why," said one, "I remember a year when quail were so thick that you could get eight or ten at a shot with a rifle."

The other one sighed.

"Ah, there's the matter" said the first. "I was thinking of my quail hunts. I had a fine black horse that I rode everywhere, and one day out hunting quail I saw a big covey on a low branch of a tree. I threw the bridle rein over the end of the limb and took a shot.

"Several birds fell and the rest flew away.

"Well, sir, there were so many quail on that limb that when they flew off it sprang back into place and hung my horse!"—Los Angeles "Times."

Speaking of sympathetic strikes the other day, Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers told of one that he conducted when only a boy working on a farm: The force of hands had dwindled to two, a fellow named Joe and me. The farmer decided to discharge the other fellow, whereupon Joe suggested that I should strike, too, leaving the farmer in a fix. This I did. I went out on a sympathetic strike; but the result was that the farmer hired Joe back again, and I was left out in the cold."

FREE CONSUMPTION HOSPITAL.

A Pitiful Appeal from a Poor Consumptive—Money Urgently Needed to Carry on the Work.

The following letter is shown as one of many discussing appeals made by applicants seeking admission to the Free Consumption Hospital:—

"I am advised to make application on behalf of my daughter, Pauline, who has contracted the dread white plague while lovingly performing her duty in caring for her dear mother, who eight months ago succumbed to the dread disease. Mine is a sad case. For three long years my wife suffered from consumption, of which she finally died, leaving me alone to raise a family of children, one only five years old. My daughter, Pauline, who nursed her during her long illness, was my only hope, as she took charge of my home, and now the hand of disease has fallen upon her. Her physicians have pronounced it a case of consumption, and advise an immediate removal to the Sanatorium. I am only a poor man, dependent on my daily wage, and the long and heavy expenses of my wife's illness have depleted my resources that I cannot possibly pay the expenses in an expensive sanatorium, though I would be glad to do so were it in my power. Can you not receive her into your Free Hospital, and so snatch a young life from the waiting sufferings of so terrible a disease! The doctors consider her case a curable one at this stage, but delays would be dangerous. Hoping and trusting to hear from you shortly, and to receive the proper application blank forms, I am, yours in trouble and need."

Everything possible is being done by the Association to meet the many and urgent calls from consumptives. Seventy-six patients are now being cared for in the Free Hospital, and not a single patient has been refused admittance because of his or her poverty. The great matter of concern with the management is the lack of funds. The question that is facing the Trustees to-day is whether they shall not be compelled to close some of the wards because of this.

Readers of this paper who desire to help, can do so by sending contributions, no matter how small the amount, to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, K.C., Vice-President National Sanitarium Association, Lamport Ave., Toronto, or W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto.

The Phraseology of Sport.

THE London "Outlook," in a recent number, while conceding that every sport and pastime should, naturally, have an especial phraseology, deplored the fact that this phraseology is becoming mere jargon. In its "palmy days" the P.R. could boast a language of its own; and one regrets to notice that the picturesque reporter is now doing the same disservice to cricket. When an eleven makes a bad start it is suffering from "rot and rout." One batsman is "breezy," another plays with "graceful assurance," a third is "cheaply dismissed." A score that progresses unevenly is "streaky," and a very favorite formula runs that Bobs and "played excellent cricket." This might reasonably be expected on a cricket field, where Bridge or Pine-pong would be somewhat out of place. After all, however, it is the billiard reporter who most savagely murders the vertebrae of the King's English. Not long ago one of the brotherhood varied the monotony of life by describing the red ball as a "pinky round."

After all, the most glaring examples of idiotic phraseology in the English papers are exceedingly tame beside those of our own, says the "Bookman." For instance, let us take the sentence equivalent for the English game of golf, which he knows rather well—"The ball was driven by the batsman never makes his base on balls; "he strolls" or he "saunters" to pass to the batsman. He does not make a base hit, but "he steps at" or he "slams the ball to the center garden." He does not strike out, but "he fans" or "he pounds the air." The pitcher does not pitch; he does "slab duty" or he "bends his arm." He does not walk. We might continue in this strain indefinitely.

To refer to a baseball team representing a certain city by its proper name would be to betray a woeful lack of knowledge and experience. A few years ago, after the veteran ballplayer Anson relinquished his leadership of the Chicago team, that team was, for a short time at the beginning of the season, without any nickname whatever. Sporting writers all over the country were in a state of chaos. The Chicago newspapers opened their columns to suggestions for a suitable antique, and matters generally were unsettled and unsatisfactory until the significance of the description of Anson fawned upon one ingenious scribe, and the Chicagoans immediately became "the Orphans." During the first two years of their career in the National League the New York team was known as the "Maroons." In 1885 this title was dropped for that of "the Giants," a term which at a period when the game was unpopular was modified to "the Joints." The Bostons are, of course, the Beaneaters; the Washingtons, "the Senators;" the Baltimores, "the Orioles;" or "the Birds;" the Brooklyns are "the Trolley Dodgers."

She (scornfully)—I despise you from the bottom of my heart! He (cheerily)—Oh, well, there is always room at the top.

Foot Elm Cools Hot Feet

Sometimes people are troubled with hot, burning condition of the feet that even bathing will not relieve.

This trouble in most instances is due to blood congestion, and the only remedy that will give relief is Foot Elm.

It cools and soothes the feet by equalizing the circulation and relieving the local congestion. Mr. W. Bowers, Concession, Ont., speaks of the benefits he derived as follows: "I can honestly recommend Foot Elm for sweaty, hot, tired feet."

"Foot Elm" is 25 cents a box at druggists or by mail. D. L. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

ONE QUESTION

and it's a fair one:—

It Is That Satisfaction

that so much pleases the public — satisfied that if their work is done by this house it will be properly and promptly executed.

And There Not Disappointed

not even for a day or hour unless they anticipate the unreasonable.

It may be outside painting and the weather is threatening, in such cases we only delay judiciously that our work may be profitable and lasting to our customers — or ourselves — but this one thing we can honestly state, that although busy as we dare hope to be in our painting and decorating department and also our picture framing department, is through a perfected system and the best of workmen execute our work promptly and in a perfect manner.

Picture framing is again on the boom—people like pictures and our framing. We have just placed in stock, too, a beautiful line of new pictures, very uncommon lines, and at reasonable prices for artistic productions. A new lot of framing just to hand also, to swell the already abundant assortment we are showing.

Our picture framing is just as correct as our mouldings are new.

Our painting, graining, decorating, is just as perfect as perfect workmen can execute work.

We are not employing boys in our department our staff are all sturdy—honest and tried men—that we are proud of.

Our Painting Department

Ready prepared paint or we will mix it for you in any quantity to any shade desired, we'll mix you paint that will wear and will cover as paint should—if you want the best in paint have us mix it for you is will cost a trifle more per gallon than prepared paint but it will go much farther and last much longer.

We are Selling.

A nice line of wedding gifts these June days and supplying some choice wedding stationery just drop in and question our ability to serve you in any style of stationery — some beautifully new lines of correspondence note and envelopes just to hand and as reasonable in price as you would care to have it.

For the Revelsworth Millions, OR AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Foiled by the Man She Loves.

"I suppose so—or we went home for it. Oh, it's a man, Beth. Now, what has the City run or barmaid to do with you and me?"

"That's what I want to know."

"You're too sharp, that's the fact of the matter! Well, shall I come to the Revelsworth House and ask old Mrs. Monkeybags if you may be engaged?"

"Her name is Revelsworth, not Monkeybags," little Betty answered with dignity. "And your acting Mrs. Revelsworth wouldn't be of any use, for I wouldn't wed so young."

"Why not? We're just the right age for each other—four years' difference on the right side—we're both good tempered and affectionate, we have just the same taste in some love for rowing and riding, for dogs and horses and old-fashioned ale, my mother's very fond of you. I've been over-head-and-ears in love with you for four years, and—"

"But you are not mine," said little Betty, "I'm very fond of you, Mr. Ormsara, but not in that way. I'm not—not—I'm not in love, really. I am only a little coquettish, after all. I'm not a bit more than more than one hundred a year."

"Just enough for Pocket-money. Why, I've only a thousand a year. Well, I'll tell you all about it. And my mother knows all about it. She wrote me about it, and I'll tell you all things up with you as fast as possible."

"What did your mother say?"

"Said I was a fool; but she often says that."

Betty burst out laughing.

"I'll never fall in love with you!" she exclaimed with conviction.

"I never marry one I am not in love with. Here we are at the landing-place, and there is Joe Wellbore. I believe he is waiting for me! Pull in as fast as you can. I am afraid, Cyril, that something has happened."

"What an evil-looking young imp it is!" said Heremon.

The slender lad of between fifteen and sixteen years of age who neatly dressed in a page's livery, with his right hand bound up and his right arm in a sling, waited for Betty to land hardly deserved so unflattering a description. Son of a sandy-haired man of Scottish descent and a pure-blooded Jewish descent and a pure-blooded ginger Jewess Wellbon, with his pale olive skin, jet-black curls, full brown eyes fringed by thick lashes heavy and brown, prominent nose, and vividly-red lips, looked eminently picturesque and not English. His face was full of clever keenness and eagerness, and his movements were singularly graceful and alert. At

Revelsworth House Mr. Revelsworth's father's butler, Mr. Jervis, received him, his arm in a sling, waited for Betty to land hardly deserved so unflattering a description. Son of a sandy-haired man of Scottish descent and a pure-blooded Jewish descent and a pure-blooded ginger Jewess Wellbon, with his pale olive skin, jet-black curls, full brown eyes fringed by thick lashes heavy and brown, prominent nose, and vividly-red lips, looked eminently picturesque and not English. His face was full of cleverness and eagerness, and his movements were singularly graceful and alert. At

"What! is the matter?" Betty asked of her, as she sprang out of the boat and noted more clearly the boy's frightened face.

"It's Briton, Miss Betty. You know you miss him this morning when I started to give him his form a run? I found him crouching in a corner of the field with his hind-leg dislocated—and he's very sad, miss."

"Hell! What do you mean?"

"He moaning and won't move out, miss, for fear of choking. You know he don't like me, and I'm afraid to touch him; but I can see his mouth bleeding, and he looks—well, he looks sad!"

"Dying, do you mean?"

"The boy nodded.

"Joe," she exclaimed, "have you done this?"

"There—I knew you'd say that; and of course every one else will! That's why I haven't tell anybody, and—and I've run and waited for you between the and the omnibus to catch you first, for the sake of goodness, Miss Betty! I'd do it, and I aware, I don't know nothing about it no more'n you yourself, miss. I'm sorry it was me because I always said I'd give Briton 'ellsa time when I was cross, when I was cruel to him. But I hadn't any hands in this.

"Heremon had jotted them down, and Betty, turning towards him a face full of comical sarcastic, asked him to accompany her to the stables.

"I don't know what Mrs. Revelsworth could say if anything were to happen to Briton," she declared. "He's such a good, kind, Faithful creature! Besides, I can't think what he could have been doing to get hurt like that."

"Fighting, most likely. They're beggars to fight! You let me have a look at him, and I'll soon tell you what's the matter with him."

The large stable belonging to Revelsworth House, which the O'Mearas had taken for the time, were surrounded by a small clock-tower, stood at the back of the house, and were reached by a paved court-yard. Mrs. Revelsworth retained only one portion, consisting of a stall for her donkey and a loose-box for her basket-chaise. And here, huddled in a corner, standing dully and breathing with difficulty, lay poor Briton.

It was impossible to mistake the fact that the dog was dying. Already his eyes were glazing, and from about upon his lips. With an animal's instinct he knew that death was near at hand, and crept into a corner where the sight of the suffering might not be seen by the terror of the strong and well. Betty felt that she almost loved Heremon's dog when she saw his tenderness with which, kneeling beside the dying animal, he raised the head and examined the wounds in his throat.

"It doesn't look like a bite," Heremon said at last. "More like a violent pressure on his wind-pipe. The throat and gums are enormously swollen, too. See—you, Joe, go and get some water, and be quick about it, and remember that you," the young Irishman continued, as Betty left the stable; "that you never saw the dog crowded at him, ill as he was, and some of the mares here look uncommonly like human beings. Mr. Revelsworth is the last to be suspicious, and I'm sure he would not like to think that a lounge is to swoop on and injure—just this small one eighth object if he'd been eating decomposed food. Does he eat anything by the side of the road?"

"What dog doesn't asked Betty, she tears coffee from the chalet at night, if Briton's sufferings. "It doesn't matter what bits you give them, they'll all always pick up dirty scraps in the road."

"Miss Betty," said Joe at this juncture, entering with a bowl of water for the dying animal, "the misery is asking for you everywhere. Oh, please, miss, don't tell her about Briton. She'll only think it's me; and it isn't—on honor it isn't! And he ain't dead yet, miss; he may still."

"Run in, Betty. I'll do the best I can for the poor beast. I promise you."

Thus reassured by Heremon, Betty tried her utmost to help Mrs. Revelsworth's consignment of novels from the floor of the stable, and made her way into the drawing room on the first floor, where the old lady was busily engaged in her bed-room and did not come down-stairs until eleven o'clock, was seated in her usual place by the window, reading a letter.

"I'm glad to see you have you been, child?" she began testily. "I've been ratching from the window for the parcel of novels I sent for the post-bifore. I have had a very astonishing letter this morning, and I've sent for the house—a very astonishing letter indeed!"

"Indeed! And who is it from?" asked Betty.

"It was from my newly found niece Francesca."

"Your Francesca! But she came into your room to say 'Good-by' to you! How could there be a letter this morning?" and had to write?"

"That's the point. Come, now—were you under the impression that Francesca was an orphan?"

"Yes, I was."

"Well, she is nothing of the kind," said Mrs. Revelsworth triumphantly. "At this late hour of the day she has sprung a perfumed mother upon me. Her Italian countess, or whatever she calls herself, is alive and in London."

"Oh, I'm so glad!"

"Dear aunt Margaret," Francesca's letter began—let me call my letter because there is something about me which you must know before I return to you—if I do return at all—and it is something which, having kept it from you so long, as I do foreigners, I have not ventured to tell you verbally. I am not an orphan—indeed I never told you I was—you took it for granted that my mother was dead as well as my father when I came down to Revelsworth House alone. But my dear worth House alone. But my dear mother is living. She cannot move without my help, for she has been seriously paralyzed ever since she heard news of my father's tragic death reached her. She has never been parted from me, and even last night I could not rest until I had telegraphed to her in terms of my absence. Dear aunt Margaret, your plans for my future are very generous and—and that after eleven years of hard work and of the humiliations and trouble consequent upon extreme poverty, the notion of wealth and ease is overpowering! I cannot leave my mother, nor can I accept any home or any provision which she may not share. She is weak, helpless, and afflicted; she would die of misery and starvation if I were to tell your children to foreigners is a great that you would not tolerate—a Italian countess under your roof, although my mother can speak English very well indeed. But her people are my people, and either she goes or I must go. Already I have given all that I possess to her and to the wretched Michael Bethune, but, if I have to choose between a life of toil and poverty and starvation in this land of my father's to which I have never been, and a life of wealth and ease without my mother, I must choose the former. I cannot leave my mother, who depends upon me utterly, and for whose sake I have renounced married until I can. They forgive me if I seem ungrateful. If you will not invite me, I will not. I will tell at Mr. Simpson's office for letters. But I know what I am doing, and I hope you will never let a foreigner realize you would root. Forgive me, dear aunt Margaret, and believe me your loving niece to

"Your grateful and affectionate niece,
"Frances Revelsworth."

"What do you think of that?" Mrs. Revelsworth asked Betty, as the latter returned to her Francesca's letter for reading it carefully deliberately.

"I think," answered Betty, with decision, "that she's starving, and that which cars were gathering. "that it is splendid of her!"

"You are a goose!" said Mrs. Revelsworth, gently enough. "Why didn't she tell us she was poor instead of—while she was here?"

"Why, to hide her fingers—don't you?" Betty suggested.

"Of course I do! Thank Heaven I am patriotic! Patriotism is out of fashion nowadays! But I'm no monkey-Duke! And if the girl's mother starved and half starving—don't stare at me, child—not crying—in the midst of the draught at this window which has given me a cold in my eyes—and you've not my mother's really helpless and afflicted, it is very creditable of the girl to have stood by her, and by her alone by her filial affection. I will write to her at once, and you shall take it—go, I'll telegraph to her, care of Simpson. Here, give me a form!"

Betty obeyed with alacrity, and Mrs. Revelsworth proceeded to write in her large, bold hand the following message—

"To Miss Frances Revelsworth, care of Simpson & Wait, 49, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London. Your letter received. Revelsworth House with your mother; she sh-ll have every care. Margaret Revelsworth."

"Send off Joseph off at once to the telegraph-office, and tell Susan to prepare the spare-room over the porch. It is better superintend the arrangements, there won't be half enough furniture and nothing fit for an invalid."

Betty stopped in last words. The place must damp, and the carpet is hor-ri-"

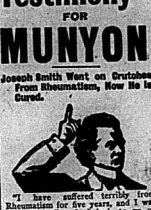

"I'll come up-stairs and have a look at it," said Mrs. Revelsworth.

As a result of her investigations, Betty was sent off by the 2:30 train to Kingston with orders to purchase a carpet, a mat, a bearthrug, an arm-

Curious Bits of News.

Of the 21,000,000,000 letters annually distributed by the postoffices of the world 4,000,000,000 are addressed in English, 1,200,000,000 in German and 1,000,000,000 in French. All the other languages have less than 2,000,000,000 between them.

By employing compressed air, a Dresden manufacturer has lately succeeded in producing glass vessels of extraordinary size. Heretofore, it is said, conserve glass could be blown into vessels having a capacity not exceeding about 16 gallons, but by the new process glass bath-tubs and large glass kettles can be blown.

The highest tunnel in the world is now in course of construction by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at Crow's Nest Pass. It is at an altitude of 4,300 feet above sea level. The Long Tunnel, as the work is called, will be 10 feet long, of which over 700 feet are completed. A force of 200 men is working day and night, and it is anticipated it will be finished by December next. This tunnel will shorten the route by fourteen miles, and will greatly reduce grades and curvatures.

A sporting friend of the editor of "Sporting and Dramatic News" keeps some green tree frogs in a glass globe, and the children feed them on flies and other insects. "In their bowl stands a miniature flight of steps, and when the frogs climb up and perch on these steps my friend leaves his muckintosh at home, being assured of fine weather. When the frogs huddle together at the bottom of the globe, then he says it is a safe sign of coming rain."

"For soldiers' use, and for employment under circumstances where fresh milk, coffee and chocolate are not easily obtainable, a dried preparation is now being manufactured which serves excellently as a substitute. Skimmed milk is evaporated by the help of an air blast to the condition of a paste, and, after being dried, is reduced to powder by grinding. Then it is mixed with powdered chocolate, half and half, and be either put up as dust or compressed into cakes. When wanted, water is added, the resulting fluid is boiled, and all that is needed is a little sugar."

A system of teaching the French languages by phonograph is to be tried in England. Several prominent French professors are devoting their energies to preparing phonograph cylinders carrying French lessons upon them. The phonographic records are accompanied by a book, which contains thirty lessons, each of which corresponds to a phonographic cylinder, and each lesson is ingeniously illustrated. All that the student has to do is to set the phonograph in motion, and the book will explain what the instrument is saying.

The following advertisement is from the Tokio "Nippon" (newspaper): "I am a beautiful woman. My abundance undulating hair envelops me as a cloud. Supple as a willow is my waist. Soft and brilliant is my visage as the satin of the flowers. I am endowed with wealth sufficient to saunter through life hand in hand with my beloved. Were I to meet a gracious lord, kindly, intelligent, well-educated, and of good taste, I would unite myself with him for life. And later share with him the pleasure of being laid to rest eternal in a tomb of pink marble."

One of the oddest of recent inventions is a refrigerating cup, as it might be called. "It is an ovoid capsule of nickel-plated copper, about the size and shape of a hen's egg, hollow and nearly filled with ice. If you have a glass of milk that is not cold enough, but you do not like to put ice into it, because dilution with water spoils the beverage. But, if you have one of these eggs handy, you may drop it into the glass, and in a few moments the liquid is reduced to the desired temperature. In the same way you can cool your cup of coffee, if it is too hot, and the eggs is equally applicable to any other drink.

The newest floral wonder is the "Shasta daisy," originated by a flower-grower of California. It measures a foot in circumference, and, when one was exhibited recently in a florist's window in San Francisco, people literally flocked to see it. It is really a new kind of flower, and has been produced by several years of crossing and selection, three different kinds of daisies being used—the common American species, the larger and coarser European sort, and the Japanese daisy. There are three rows of petals of the purest white, and each blossom is supported by a single strong and wiry stem which is nearly two feet long.

The Origin of Whist.

THE following statement, culled from the current number of a magazine, is an egregious blunder:

"The originator of the game of whist is (sic) Edmond Hoyle (1672-1769)." Cotton writing in 1674 tells us that Whist was so well known at that time that "every child almost of Eight Years old, hath a Competent Knowledge of the recreation." Hoyle was then not two years of age. But we must go a great deal further back to find the origin of the game, which is indeed lost in the obscurity of the centuries. Reference is made to the game of Trump (whence trump), which embraced the essential features of Whist, had considerable vogue in England. It furnished Bishop Latimer with an illustration for a sermon preached at Christmas, 1529. Shakespeare's familiarity with the game is evident from Antony's address to Eros ("Antony and Cleopatra," Act IV., Scene XIV.):

The game acquired the name of Whist, or Whisk, in the forepart of the seventeenth century. Butler uses the present appellation in Hudibras (1663).

About 1728 a little circle of players, presided over by the then Lord Folkestone, was wont to meet in the Crown Coffee House. This was the birthplace of scientific Whist. Hoyle was probably a member of the coterie in question.

The publication of his treatises (1742-3) and his efforts as a pretentious teacher did much to establish the game in the favor of the upper classes of English society.

"What do you think of the movement for shorter honeymoons?" I asked my fellow-traveler, an experienced gentleman from Chicago. "That's right," he declared, without a pause, "from honeymoons and more of them. That's my platform."—Ex.

An Exciting Runaway.

An exciting runaway, and one which might easily have been attended with serious results, occurred at a few minutes after 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. A young man named Chapman, accompanied by a young lady, was driving down Station street, when, near Victoria Avenue the horse became unmanageable and started to run down our main thoroughfare. All efforts to check the animal proved futile. At the Bathbun dock the buggy came into contact with a pole and the horse was released. The occupants were thrown out but fortunately escaped with a few bruises. The horse was not content to stop here but plunged into the bay and swam on towards the park, where it was finally brought, none the worse for its ducking. The vehicle was somewhat damaged.

NEW SUITS FOR LITTLE MEN.

Nefer were the styles in clothing for children more "taking" than they are this spring. The pretty things in Norfolk and Russian Blouses and in Sailor Suits are a delight to all mothers of boys. We often wonder, when looking at our children's clothing, what in the world a mother could ask for in the way of clothing for the little fellow that we haven't got. Suits at 75c and $1.50, or $2.75 and $5.00, or at most any price to please and satisfy.—QUICK & ROBERTSON, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY

Rev. T. Albert Moore Preaches the Baccalaureate Sermon to Students.

The Bishop at St Thomas' Last Night—Fifteenth at St. Andrew's.

The Baccalaureate Sermon.

There was a large congregation in the Tabernacle yesterday morning, when he had gathered to hear the Rev. T. Albert Moore, of Hamilton, preach the baccalaureate sermon to the students and family of Albert College. The students, especially the young ladies, made an attractive appearance in their procession through the streets to the church. During the service the choir sang two anthems, "Stand Up for Jesus" and "Lead Me to the Rock of Everlasting." In his letter Mr. Erwin Gordon sang a bass solo with excellent effect. Just before the lifeting hymn, Mr. Mahaffy Armitage, sang, "God's Slumberland," in a very impressive manner, indeed. Rev. Mr. Moore took for his text part of the 1st verse of the 21st chapter of Revelations:

"I saw a new heaven and a new earth."

St. John's prophecy was not a new one. Isaiah and Peter had both expressed the same sentiment. The word heaven in the text probably referred to the arch of the sky. But why was a new earth prophesied? What is the earth to be made new? The preacher said he could not imagine a more beautiful earth, than this, and in grand language and striking metaphor descanted on its beauties. He went out one day, he said, to ask different people if they could think of one place to improve this world. A farmer said yes, it was a beautiful world, but it would be better if there were no weeds and destructive insects and droughts to cause anxiety; a business man said he would like a world where his employees would not always be grumbling about wages, and a cut-off and get drunk just when he needed them the worst; a workingman said the world would be better if there were more equality between laborers and their employers, and better pay; others said it would be a grand world if we could do away with liquor and political corruption and gambling and lynching; a sick person said the world would like pain and bereavement banished. Others from the pulpit, the church, and said to one of the old men, "Isn't it a beautiful world? What could you think could make it better?" And the old man said: "Why it's a beautiful world, but sin has left its trail over all. What a beautiful world this would be but for sin!" And that was the root of the matter. God made the world right from it should have the new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. He appealed to the students to use their endeavors to bring about this better condition of affairs. We must start on the basis of action, and it must be the action of righteousness. Love one another. When people modelled their lives by the Golden Rule we have the Old Art. John did, the new birth. As Christ lived for others, so should we. The regeneration of Jesus would color all our lives. The good must be perfection—for "that's good enough." The preacher closed a striking and practical sermon by referring to his hearers. If they had not yet done so, to open their hearts and let the Saviour in; then would they in reality appreciate the beauties of this world and the glories of Heaven.

Bishop Mills at St. Thomas'.

The impressive rite of confirmation was administered last evening at St. Thomas' Church by Rt. Lordship Bishop Mills. An exceptionally large congregation was present and the address by His Lordship, which more particularly addressed to those who were about to be confirmed, was attentively listened to by all. After the usual closing service the Bishop spoke from the chancel. Referring to those who were about to be confirmed, he said they were about to take upon themselves a most solemn and solemn obligation. He would be sorry if any would come to receive confirmation for simply form's sake. If this were so done it would be trifling with God and with themselves. They were confessing their God and Saviour that they intended to live Christian lives and be hoped all would do so. This rite was not of man's design, but it is the will of God, clearly taught in the Holy Writ. He cited many scriptural passages where the laying on of hands was performed by the Apostles in Christ and His disciples. The ordinances of God, such as baptism, the partaking of Holy Communion and Confirmation were simple, but their meanings were sublime. They would no doubt be compelled in a greater degree by the Evil One, after participation in this rite, but God had promised to be with them in trials, and His promises were sure. They would need to be ever watchful and prayerful, holding continual intercourse with God. He is able and willing to save all who come to Him with a pure heart, no matter what their environments might be, God would give them strength to overcome all difficulties.

At the conclusion of the address 22 females and 21 male candidates were confirmed.

Whilst the offertory was being taken up Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain sang very sweetly, a duet untitled "Angels of Light."

Soldiers at St. Andrew's.

The Fifteenth Regiment attended divine service at St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning and listened to an earnest and practical discourse, delivered by the Chaplain of the Regiment, Rev. M. W. Maclean. There was a fair turn-out, and the church was filled when the services commenced. After the usual devotional exercises the Chaplain announced his text: nicely, Joshua, 12th chapter and 1st verse:

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

The Rev. gentleman prefaced his remarks by extending a hearty welcome to the Regiment. This was the 22nd or 23rd time he had addressed them in his capacity as chaplain. The words of the text, he said, made a worthy and comprehensive motto, and they could do no better than follow it. By it we are asked to acknowledge God as our leader. Of their service will they become soldiers of the King, and be inspired thus to become true soldiers of the King of Kings. What many have done, as tenderfoot soldiers, fighting for their country, God asks them to do for him, and manfully, enlist under His banner and fight for Him against the world, flesh and the Satan. All will make a fair future a glorious future was our trust in God. What higher aim could we have than to be a true fellow-ser of the Lord Jesus Christ? The Master, as the text implies, is reasonable. God has promised and will do His part. He is merciful, kind and just but do so.

During the service the choir rendered an anthem entitled "O, Praise the Mighty Lord," Miss Norah Lasier taking the solo and a selection, entitled "The Wayside Cross," was sung by five male voices, Mr. J. W. Brown taking the solo.

Bridge Street.

At Bridge Street Church yesterday morning Rev. Dr. Pearce, Rev. H. Crews, preached, his subject being "A Song that Inspires." In the evening Rev. T. A. Moore, of Hamilton, preached, his sermon being for young people. Large congregations were present. During the evening service Mr. Frank Ketcheson sang a solo entitled "The Publican" a duet was given by Miss Mabel Vermilyea and Mr. J. P. Watson, J. A. Mamie, J. A. McDougall, Toronto.

GREAT LOWELL STRIKE OFF

Seventeen Thousand Operatives Resolve to Go to Work.

These Textile Workers Will Have Been Idle Since the 30th March Last. Lost in Wages $1,300,000 During the Time Strike Was on—"We Shall Rise Again and Conquer," Said the Union President Smilie.

Lowell, Mass., June 22—The textile council yesterday afternoon declared the great strike in the Lowell mills at an end. Every union affiliated with the council was represented and the vote was unanimous.

Mule spinners and loom fixers were included in the vote, despite statements that they would oppose a return to work.

There was no dissension. The situation was discussed carefully and with no suggestion of excitement. The vote showed every delegation favorable to a return to work, and the sentiment was that the vote takes immediate effect.

When asked for a statement, President Coorney smilingly said: "We now worship at the altar of defeat; but later we shall rise again and conquer."

The strike began on March 30 and involved about 17,000 operatives. Two mills have since shut down until June 1, when the agents opened the gates and the majority of the operatives went back to work.

The strike has cost in wages about $1,800,000. It is understood that the agents will take back all the old help they have room for, and will make no discrimination against the leaders of the strike movement. The high price of cotton precluded any hope of the success of the strikers' remaining for a 10 per cent. increase.

Three Photographs.

"PHOTOGRAPH all the prisoners? But why?" demanded Sir Felix Felix-Williams.

Old Canon Smithers shrugged his shoulders. Admiral Trewbody turned the pages of the Home Secretary's letter. They sat at the bake-covered table in the magistrates' room—the last of the visiting justices who had met under the regime, to receive the Governor's report and look after the welfare of the prisoners in Warwick county jail.

"But why, in the name of common sense?" Sir Felix persisted.

"I suppose," hazarded the Admiral, "it helps the police in identifying criminals."

"First the letter says 'all the prisoners?' You don't seriously tell me that anyone wants a photograph of Bertie Wiggins, Thebbs, whom I've committed a score of times if I've committed him once? And perhaps you'll explain to me this further demand for a 'Composite Photograph' of all the prisoners male and female. A composite photograph—here—over our own cases?"

"Ho," the Admiral mused, "but I see what the Home Office is driving at. Someone has been reading them to test these new theories in criminology the doctors are so busy with, especially in Italy."

"Not Italy!" plaid Sir Felix Felix-Williams.

"My dear Sir Felix, science has no nationality." The Admiral was a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and had microscopes and guineas his leisure.

"It has some proper limits, I should think," Sir Felix replied. "I'll not have him—a chairman of Quarter Sessions for the time upon Wednesday next—say that the science of criminology was put in its infancy, and had planned out between which the justices might choose at their next meeting.

The letter was resolved, and the resolution entered in the minutes; and next day the photographer was at work. Some of the prisoners resisted and "made faces" in front of the camera, squinting and pulling the most horrible mouths. A female shoplifter sat under protest, because she was not allowed to send home her own photograph. But the most consented obediently, and Jim Trease even asked for a copy to take home to his wife.

The Admiral (who had married late in life) resided with his wife and young family in a neat villa just outside the town, where bobby was to grow petargoniums. The photographer passed the gate daily on his way to the prison, and was usually hailed and catechised on his progress. His patience with the recalcitrant prisoners delighted the Admiral, who more than once assured his wife that Smithers was an intelligent fellow and "would get on in his way. I'll see how he manages it," said Mrs. Trewbody, "he told Bobby last evening that he might would fly out of the camera when he took off the cap, and certainly Bobby was in one of his most lifelike. But I don't like the idea, and I think it may injure his trade."

The Admiral could not always follow her wife's reasoning. "Why, my dear, you dislike?" he asked.

"Well, it's not nice to think of one's self sunk into the same camera he has been using on those wretched prisoners. I'm sure I don't dare say; but I had the same feeling when he stuck Harry's photograph in the show window at the railway station, among all kinds of objectionable persons, and it requested him to remove it."

The Admiral laughed indulgently, being one of those men who find a charm, even of subtle flattery, in their wives' opinions.

"I agree with you," he said, "that it's not pleasant to be exposed to public gaze among a crowd of people one would never think of knowing. I don't suppose it would actually encourage criminality, at the same time that's a bit far-fetched, but it's an abomination all the same, and I'll speak to Smithers about it."

"I agree with you," he said, "that it's not pleasant to be exposed to public gaze among a crowd of people one would never think of knowing. I don't suppose it would actually encourage criminality, at the same time that's a bit far-fetched, but it's an abomination all the same, and I'll speak to Smithers about it."

"This is quite a surprise, Mrs. Smithers. A capital photograph! May I ask how many copies your husband has ordered?"

"I'm not aware, ma'am, that the Admiral has ordered any as yet, though I heard Smithers say only this morning as he hoped he'd be pleased with it."

"I think I can answer for that, although he is particular. But I hoped enough he disapproves of these things being spread in the town. I'll take this copy home with me, if I may. Has your husband printed a private list?"

"Well, no, ma'am. There was one or two copies, but Lady Felix-Williams happened to be passing just now, and spied it, and took and would do it. She must take it away with her."

"Lady Felix-Williams!" Mrs. Trewbody set stitched with sudden distrust. "Now what could Lady Felix-Williams want with this?"

"I'm sure I can't tell you, ma'am; but she was delighted with it, quite joyness," she said. 'I've never seen a photograph before that caught the very expression of his.'"

"I should very much like to know what she has to do with his expression." Mrs. Trewbody murmured to herself, and between wonder and curiosity and alarm. But she concealed her feelings. Lady Felix-Williams paid for her own purchase, carried it home in her muff and stuck it upright against one of the devree candlesticks on her boudoir mantelshelf.

And there the Admiral discovered it three-quarters of an hour later. He came home wanting tea; and, finding the boudoir empty, advanced to ring the bell. At that moment his eye fell on Smithers' replica of the very photograph he had passed for forwarding to the Home Secretary. He picked it up, and gave vent to a long whistle. "Now, how the dickens—"

His wife appeared in the doorway, with Harry, Dicky and Theophila clinging to her skirts, fresh from their ride and boisterous.

"My dear Emily, where in the world did you get hold of this?"

He held the photograph towards her at arm's length, and the children rushed forward to examine it.

"Papa! Papa!" they shouted together, capering round it. "Oh, mammy, isn't shim exactly?"

KING AIDED IN MURDERS

Peter I. Fully Informed of the Belgrade Conspiracy.

General Staff Officer Named Card Used by His Agents, and Their Absence Caused to Prove Up the Crime to Have Been His Idea. Not Was the Publication to Address the Throne.

Berlin, June 23.—The Allegemeine correspondent learns that the new King of Servia was not entirely ignorant of the military conspiracy at Belgrade, but that all was actually carried out by his consent. He declares broke into the Konak with the fixed determination of killing the royal couple. The question of demanding the abdication of King Alexander was not mentioned. On the contrary, the late King, perceiving his peril, spontaneously offered his resignation then, but the officers ignored this and proceeded to the murder.

King Peter Leaves Geneva.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 23.—King Peter I. of Servia, left Geneva, on his way to Belgrade at 9:45 o'clock this morning. Several time. He was loudly cheered, and was presented with many bouquets of flowers as he passed to the car- ing. King Peter cried "Vive la Suisse."

WILL BANQUET MR. GAMEY

Man From Manitoulin to Be Honored by His Constituents.

THE DEBATE IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Gamey Considers His Speech—Was It a Blunder?—Mr. Cleary Severely Criticized—Mr. Ross Reaches in the Evening.

Toronto, June 23.—Mr. Gamey, in opening at the Legislature yesterday, devoted a few moments to replying to some criticisms of his remarks on Friday.

Continuing, Mr. Gamey said the Premier had no right to ask anyone to vote that the enquiry had been a full and searching one. He said he had been informed that Mr. Robinette had been warned on the case and withdrew when this man McCoy (Crown counsel) was brought by Mr. Robinette declining to do the characteristic work. He knew that man McCoy would do. The defence had sent out Government detectives to find something about the private life and business relations, but were unable to get anything that would be of any use to them. He told of some incidents in detail.

Personality.

They had even sent men to his home, but his wife replied she could say nothing against him. They found that the speaker received the money from Gamey, or given to say that in his township, where he had a majority of 91, in a total vote of 161. That threw it on the peculiar monstrosity that this township was a Tory and The Globe would have you believe it.

Sinclair's "Evil Man."

The Provincial Secretary pretended that Frank Sullivan was not his associate of his. The evidence was that the Sullivans opened the negotiations with him. The Premier had admitted. It was admitted that Frank Sullivan introduced the accused to Sullivan. That was particular, considering the alleged lack of friendliness of the Sullivans. Mr. Gamey Sullivan told Gamey that Sinclair was a friend of his.

Frank rows to the speaker, in which letter he spoke of putting Sullivan's name on the list. There was no evidence at all to show that any deal at all was made between Gamey, except the deal between Sullivan and the speaker. One of the "other deals" said to exist was by Smyth of Algoma.

Mr. Gamey read what the telegram from Sullivan. "Important that you get Sinclair to-night as that did all the Sullivans' business. If they did not put Sullivan on the back of the provincial Secretary."

Then the letter provided familiarity. Gamey wrote to the Provincial Secretary suggesting that an executive meeting of the association would be held, and asking for instructions. Then Sullivan would came a letter from "X. Y. Z." which the Provincial Secretary said was from Sullivan, with an enclosure, which the Provincial Secretary read. The phraseology of the enclosure proved that it was not Sullivan's. It was certainly not the letter of a two-dollar-a-day clerk, should go to the head of a subscription list and ask him to write a letter, and that the Provincial Secretary should get on the same official and ask him to write two documents of a peculiar character. Mr. Gamey said Frank Sullivan told Frank Sullivan to go to Port.

Defence Admitted It.

Mr. Gamey pointed out that the Provincial Secretary refused to say in his affidavit on production that he had anything to do with the documents, but when exports were put into the box to prove the letter, the defence admitted it. If he hadn't done that the prosecution would have shown it. The "X.Y.Z. referred to Sullivan's letter came from Stratton.

"If you thought you were buying a man you would not pay him money to let me tell you that I will use the evidence against your report," said Dunn from Manitoulin, with outstretched hand toward the Premier.

Mr. Gamey said Frank Sullivan was in and out of the Provincial Secretary's office, and did not have to go through the outer office.

There was enough evidence in the letters read by the Premier on March 11 to convict the biggest scoundrel, even if he were a Minister. That was why the independent press of the country spoke of that the speaker's story was true.

Premier's Magnanimity.

"It was a useful kind for the Premier to say that he would not expel me from the House," said Mr. Gamey. "Marvelously kind, wasn't it?" If the Commissioners had done their duty he would have had the power to expel any man from the House; and let me tell you that any self-respecting man in this province would not think for one moment of getting out of the Government considering the minority vote of the people, the burning of the Post Office building, the violations in the Crown Lands Department, in which Sullivan had a letter were shown to be stealing the people's money. If the Premier had any self-respect he would step out like a man and appeal to the people to see who is going to be premier.

Will Strikes Sue For Libel?

"I intend to make the charges outside the House, and I defy the Provincial Secretary to bring an action against me. I should then see that I would be tried by a jury of my countrymen and not by paid officials of his Government. I would then make surrender the money he has received from the Government at this province in the way of fees, outside of his regular salary as a judge; when he surrendered the money he will receive from this Government for this investigation. I will surrender every dollar money he has received for arbitrations outside of his regular salary when he will let his three sons earn their pay in the independent walks of life then, and not till then, will I consider whether the report is fair. I might go on and say that Chief Justice Falconbridge, but he is so industriously small, I wouldn't refer to him at all. When I get a report that does not come from pensioners on the province and fathers of peoners on the province I will consider it fair and impartial."

Both Knew the Truth.

"I will go home," Mr. Gamey said in conclusion, "proud of the fact that no man will accuse me of asking witnesses to commit perjury. I believe there's a God in Heaven, who has let Gamey do this or not; but he knows, as God knows, that what I said is true and I leave it to the country to decide between us."

No Answer to Gamey.

There was stillness in the chamber for some seconds, and the Speaker was about to put the question, when Mr. Malhenny rose to his feet. Are the Government going to say nothing about these charges?" he asked. "If not the Attorney-General (Mr. Ross) is going to sit quiet and say nothing?" He continued to ask similar taunting questions, and before sitting down said he believed Mr. (Gamey's) story in the main was true.

Mr. St. John.

Mr. St. John walked for several minutes for the Attorney-General to reply, but Mr. Gibson at once made a motion under the eyes of the Speaker.

Mr. St. John then reviewed the appointment of the Royal Commission and the charges against the members of the Opposition, and charged the Premier with having had the Commissioners engage in a reference of the charges to a committee of the House, and in the end time to consult with the accused Minister, to fall back upon a commission for the purpose of making a whitewash finding.

Said Not Guilty.

If a committee of the House had been appointed the Government, and not in the hands of the House, would have found itself in a minority without the casting vote, and how they could vote that the commissioners' finding was "fair and impartial" he could not understand. The Ministers did not have a majority in the House. If they were guilty they were holding office by their own votes, and the Premier had the worst to argue that a Government was "morthund when it did not have a clear majority in the House, and not counting the members of the Administration.

Chancellor Boyd's Bias.

Mr. St. John then quoted largely from the Chancellor Boyd's bias against Mr. Gamey, even going so far as to say that Chancellor Boyd had a bias against Mr. Gamey's counsel, Mr. Robinette, and at the same time was treating Frank Sullivan, a friend of the Government, with the greatest consideration. He argued at length that the Commissioners were merely appointed to take evidence.

Enemy Government Counsel.

At 8 o'clock, Mr. St. John resumed. There were six members on the Government benches and the Provincial Secretary was not one of the number. Mr. St. John, in opening said, "I'm sorry he don't sit there more than he does. He thinks he is safe under the cover of the judge's report. But he isn't safe. Look at that sight (pointing to the Government benches)! Does it mean innocence or guilt?"

Mr. Pattullo—Don't you worry.

Mr. Gibson—It means effective oratory.

Continuing, Mr. St. John said the actions of the Provincial Secretary would not only condemn him to ignominious disgrace, but would send him, in the language of Mr. Ross, to Kingston penitentiary.

"That's right," came clearly and boldly from the Minister.

Mr. St. John said the finding of the Commissioners amounted to: First, congratulations to the Provincial Secretary and the Government; second, a condemnation of the accuser, the member for Manitoulin; third, a sop for moral courage. In its relation to Ontario politics. The motive was clearly shown.

Care of the Matter.

The Commissioners found that the payment of the money was the care of the whole matter. He held that it was the signing of the contract prepared by the Crown solicitor that was the core, and the majority of people in the House bought the sequence.

These were some of Mr. St. John's conclusions:

You can't make the people believe that Frank Sullivan was not the trusted official of the Government. It was Frank Sullivan who introduced Gamey to the Provincial Secretary, and it was Frank Sullivan who introduced Gamey to Mr. Aylesworth.

Frank Sullivan told Gamey they (the Government) were in doubt about the member for Prescott (Kennedy), and had given him a room in the Parliament Buildings. This was in the department of the Provincial Secretary, and I turned out to be correct. Mr. Evanturel got the room and Frank Sullivan said he would.

Where Aylesworth Was Lax.

Mr. Aylesworth swore that he knew Gamey was for sale, but why did he not report to the Government that something was wrong if he did not understand that Liberty was for again between the Government and the member for Manitoulin?

Would anyone believe the member for Port Arthur (Conmee) when he said that Gamey came to him on the 14th of June that he was going to support the Government, to find that in the following month he put up $1,000 to protect Gamey's election? And why was Conmee paying out his money? Because he is a contractor under the Government, having shuffled the other day that he was interested in a grant to the Nepigon Pulp Company.

Would anyone believe Mr. Grant when he says he had no record of the $19,000 paid to him to protect seats? It was as hard to believe as the Provincial Secretary's statement, that he did not know who his secretary of the Reform Association was.

Mr. St. John pointed out that responsibility for the Gamey story, and at 10:05 o'clock he moved the adjournment of the debate.

FOUR FIREBUGS ARRESTED.

Locals Are at the Bottom of the Incendiarism at the Dress.

Kingston, June 23.—Four arrests were made by Chief Jackson this morning, and the prisoners are in custody. Two of the men arrested are Dress employees, and the other two are local men. The charge against the prisoners is that of setting fire to the Dress' factory on Saturday night, thus destroying the new building and destroying the factory of April 19 last. The loss on the building is estimated at $1,500. The result of the fire is that four hundred of the institution, namely, Boy Wilson, James Delso, Isiah Antoine and Alexander Mackenzie, are under arrest, charged with causing all three fires.

At the court yesterday morning Boy Wilson, aged 12, the youngest of the four charged with setting the match and collecting the material which caused the fires of April 19 and 20, was arraigned.

Jailer Nolan, also examined by the magistrate, corroborated the statement of Wilson, but denied knowing that Wilson intended to burn the institute.

The other two boys corroborated Jailer Nolan's statement, and also assisted Wilson Dey knew nothing of the intended fires. Antoine was also charged with setting fire to the building on April 19, but was not guilty, but said that Frank Wiggle, who slept with Mackenzie, had confessed to him that he was guilty.

The arrest of Wiggle was ordered. The other four were committed for trial.

A GOVERNMENT LINE.

Quebec to Winnipeg With Railway Rights by All Companies.

Toronto, June 23.—The Evening Globe publishes the following special:

Ottawa, June 22.—Messrs. Hays and Wainwright are here for the purpose of having further conferences with the Government.

The report now is that a majority of the Cabinet favor the construction by the Government of a line between Quebec and Winnipeg, giving equal rights to all companies that wish to use it.

There is a possibility that this plan may take the place of the proposal for a guarantee of bonds to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Messrs. Hays and Wainwright were closeted with the Minister of Justice for a couple of hours this morning, before a Cabinet Council was summoned, at which, it is believed, Mr. Hays' proposals submitted in the memorandum to the Government containing the basis of an agreement.

SAD QUINTON CONFLAGRATION

Three Stores and a Hotel Destroyed—Loss Heavy—Insurance Light.

Quinton, June 23.—Fire broke out in the store of Mr. Peterson, Quinton's oldest merchant, at 2 o'clock this morning, and before it was subdued three stores and the Quinton House were destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated in the store of Mr. Peterson, but how is a mystery. The loss is heavy, and the insurance light. The following is the list of losses and insurance:

	Loss.	Insurance.
Peterson	$ 5,000	$ 2,000
Quinton House	10,000	5,000
Mrs. Hall	1,000	500
Mr. Hall	1,000	500

SIR WILLIAM VAN HORNE DECLINES.

Will Not Act on Transportation Commission—Appointments Are Expected Shortly.

Ottawa, June 23.—Sir William Van Horne has declined to act on the Transportation Commission. This information received by the Government following the refusal of Harold Kennedy of Quebec to act, has very materially changed the makeup of the Commission. It is now practically settled that Mr. Justice Britton, of Toronto, and Mr. Justice Killam, of Halifax, will be appointed. The third member will probably be Mr. Kenny, who has also been asked to act. Mr. Kenny is a Montreal lawyer, and has had many other duties to take up. The Government is anxious to get the appointments made at once, and it is expected the hope that Commissioners will be appointed shortly.

Toronto, June 23.—W. H. Beatty, Queen's Park, received the following telegram from Sir William Van Horne, dated from Montreal, Quebec:

"Thomas Flynn Farewell. Fell on orchard. Failing to recover body will be some days away."

Mr. Flynn went to a fishing expedition taken three or four days ago. Later inquiries showed that Mr. Nesbitt and Sir Charles Rose accompanied Mr. Flynn. Mr. Flynn was the Deputy Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Carthy, Oster and Hoskin of Toronto, who drowned last was only 17 years of age.

Dr. Henderson Elected by a Score.

Winnipeg, June 23.—Dr. Henderson, Conservative, was elected by a majority of 20 over Mr. Henderson, was returned by acclamation. The vote was taken yesterday, being kicked in the shins by a horse when leaving the polling booth. Dr. Henderson was driven with his brother from the country to attend the election. The doctor sustained no serious injuries.

Mayor Was Fined.

Amherstburg, June 23.—Mayor of J. Brault, charged with keeping a barroom on Sunday, again failed to appear. A conviction was entered, attorney proceeded with the trial and secured a conviction. The defendant was fined $10, and $12 costs, in all $21, to be paid forthwith, or committed to jail for twenty days.

Sir Ashley Cooper Lost.

Halifax, June 23.—Advices received here yesterday state that Sir Ashley Cooper, one of the party of English men who left Halifax on March 1st in the schooner Hattie L. May, has been swept overboard and drowned during a storm. The schooner, which is bound to the Straits of Magellan to search for gold.

Wire Killed.

Winnipeg, June 23.—Nicholas Andrews and his nephew, a lad of about 14 years, were driving in a buggy across the tracks at Regina last evening and did not see the approaching train. Andrews was killed instantly and the boy had a leg broken. Deceased was a prosperous farmer living near Regina.

Burned at the Stake.

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—Report of a couple of thousand people who broke into the jail here last night and took George White, the negro who was charged with murdering and killing Miss Reynolds, confessed to the crime and was burned at the stake.

SINCLAIR'S AD.

Defence Admitted It.

I should then see that I would be tried by a jury of my countrymen and not by paid officials of his Government. I would then make surrender the money he has received from the Government at this province in the way of fees, outside of his regular salary as a judge; when he surrendered the money he will receive from this Government for this investigation. I will surrender every dollar money he has received for arbitrations outside of his regular salary when he will let his three sons earn their pay in the independent walks of life then, and not till then, will I consider whether the report is fair. I might go on and say that Chief Justice Falconbridge, but he is so industriously small, I wouldn't refer to him at all. When I get a report that does not come from pensioners on the province and fathers of peoners on the province I will consider it fair and impartial."

Both Knew the Truth.

"I will go home," Mr. Gamey said in conclusion, "proud of the fact that no man will accuse me of asking witnesses to commit perjury. I believe there's a God in Heaven, who has let Gamey do this or not; but he knows, as God knows, that what I said is true and I leave it to the country to decide between us."

No Answer to Gamey.

There was stillness in the chamber for some seconds, and the Speaker was about to put the question, when Mr. Malhenny rose to his feet. Are the Government going to say nothing about these charges?" he asked. "If not the Attorney-General (Mr. Ross) is going to sit quiet and say nothing?" He continued to ask similar taunting questions, and before sitting down said he believed Mr. (Gamey's) story in the main was true.

Mr. St. John.

Mr. St. John walked for several minutes for the Attorney-General to reply, but Mr. Gibson at once made a motion under the eyes of the Speaker.

Mr. St. John then reviewed the appointment of the Royal Commission and the charges against the members of the Opposition, and charged the Premier with having had the Commissioners engage in a reference of the charges to a committee of the House, and in the end time to consult with the accused Minister, to fall back upon a commission for the purpose of making a whitewash finding.

Said Not Guilty.

If a committee of the House had been appointed the Government, and not in the hands of the House, would have found itself in a minority without the casting vote, and how they could vote that the commissioners' finding was "fair and impartial" he could not understand. The Ministers did not have a majority in the House. If they were guilty they were holding office by their own votes, and the Premier had the worst to argue that a Government was "morthund when it did not have a clear majority in the House, and not counting the members of the Administration.

Chancellor Boyd's Bias.

Mr. St. John then quoted largely from the Chancellor Boyd's bias against Mr. Gamey, even going so far as to say that Chancellor Boyd had a bias against Mr. Gamey's counsel, Mr. Robinette, and at the same time was treating Frank Sullivan, a friend of the Government, with the greatest consideration. He argued at length that the Commissioners were merely appointed to take evidence.

Enemy Government Counsel.

At 8 o'clock, Mr. St. John resumed. There were six members on the Government benches and the Provincial Secretary was not one of the number. Mr. St. John, in opening said, "I'm sorry he don't sit there more than he does. He thinks he is safe under the cover of the judge's report. But he isn't safe. Look at that sight (pointing to the Government benches)! Does it mean innocence or guilt?"

Mr. Pattullo—Don't you worry.

Mr. Gibson—It means effective oratory.

Continuing, Mr. St. John said the actions of the Provincial Secretary would not only condemn him to ignominious disgrace, but would send him, in the language of Mr. Ross, to Kingston penitentiary.

"That's right," came clearly and boldly from the Minister.

Mr. St. John said the finding of the Commissioners amounted to: First, congratulations to the Provincial Secretary and the Government; second, a condemnation of the accuser, the member for Manitoulin; third, a sop for moral courage. In its relation to Ontario politics. The motive was clearly shown.

Care of the Matter.

The Commissioners found that the payment of the money was the care of the whole matter. He held that it was the signing of the contract prepared by the Crown solicitor that was the core, and the majority of people in the House bought the sequence.

These were some of Mr. St. John's conclusions:

You can't make the people believe that Frank Sullivan was not the trusted official of the Government. It was Frank Sullivan who introduced Gamey to the Provincial Secretary, and it was Frank Sullivan who introduced Gamey to Mr. Aylesworth.

Frank Sullivan told Gamey they (the Government) were in doubt about the member for Prescott (Kennedy), and had given him a room in the Parliament Buildings. This was in the department of the Provincial Secretary, and I turned out to be correct. Mr. Evanturel got the room and Frank Sullivan said he would.

Where Aylesworth Was Lax.

Mr. Aylesworth swore that he knew Gamey was for sale, but why did he not report to the Government that something was wrong if he did not understand that Liberty was for again between the Government and the member for Manitoulin?

Would anyone believe the member for Port Arthur (Conmee) when he said that Gamey came to him on the 14th of June that he was going to support the Government, to find that in the following month he put up $1,000 to protect Gamey's election? And why was Conmee paying out his money? Because he is a contractor under the Government, having shuffled the other day that he was interested in a grant to the Nepigon Pulp Company.

Would anyone believe Mr. Grant when he says he had no record of the $19,000 paid to him to protect seats? It was as hard to believe as the Provincial Secretary's statement, that he did not know who his secretary of the Reform Association was.

MONEY FOR FOREIGNERS.

Canada consumed 800,000 tons of iron and steel last year, the direct products of blast furnaces and rolling mills. Of the 545,000 tons, valuing at $17,327,165 were purchased abroad. The home manufacturers supplied 253,452 tons, worth $9,200,672. In the case of the latter the profits in the country secured the iron and steel and retained $6,200,672, which was kept in circulation. By buying Belgian, Canada pays $11,126,493 for iron and steel, but in the process $17,327,165 was sent to foreign countries to be distributed among their workers. Last year the net profits engaged in the production of iron and steel in the United States received in wages the enormous sum of $112,116,163. Whole cities were dependent upon this money for an existence. Now, suppose the Government of the United States were to follow the example of the Laurier Government in 1897, and reduced the duties on iron and steel products so as to throw open the American markets to the manufacturers of other countries. What would be the result? Ask such a move? Just $61,000,725 now spent in Pittsburg, and other great iron and steel producing centres would be expended in Germany, England and other countries. Instead of adopting such a ridiculous policy the Yankees keep their money at home and employ their own people. That is what the Conservative party asked the Laurier Government to do by granting adequate protection to our iron and steel industries. But, Hon. W. S. Fielding met the demand with a flat refusal and a declaration in place of granting bonuses to iron in the Canadian savings bank is inopportune. The United States may be excluded, but Canadians may get along as best they can.

TIMELY TOPICS.

If theorists keep up, there may be a number of drowning accidents among the bathing hogs.

Rev. Mr. Tom Sin favors us with a letter in answer to an anonymous communication which appeared in a contemporary. As The Intelligencer admits no anonymous letters on religious matters into its columns, it must decline to publish letters which deal with anonymous communications of either party.

Rev. Mr. Camblin's intentions, we are sure, are good, but we would respectfully submit that, in reply to the Rev. Mr. Sin's letter, the man who has not the courage to sign his name is not to write. So is giving coming for nothing.

MR. GAMEY'S SPEECH.

(Montreal Gazette.)

Mr. Gamey's speech in the Legislature contained a good many rough things and a few smooth ones. Under the latter head was also a good deal of truth put in a truthful way. Contrasted with that of Mr. Christie, it is not difficult to discern which is the wronged man.

It is rather suggestive that, when the Globe was edited by a laymen, it got quite a reputation for publishing fair reports of all public speeches, whether for or against its political friends. Now, with a clergyman directing its affairs, the Globe has descended to the level of an ordinary partisan journal, which distorts the speeches of the Government's opponents (as witness its report of Mr. Gamey's speech in the Legislature) and poses as the champion apologist for political corruption in Ontario. How can the "reverend monstrosity" (as Gamey called him) reconcile his conscience to the new state of affairs, and to look at his brethren in the ministry think of him?

The strawberry shortcake season is growing short. Would that it lasted longer.

HOW A YOUNG COUPLE SAVED FOR A HOME.

(H. M. Ferley, in Life.)

How did we do it? Simply by going without everything we needed. When I was first married my salary was thirty dollars a month.

My mother-in-law, who lived with us, decided to save enough out of my salary to build us a home.

When the cellar was finished, I became ill and lost my position, and had to mortgage the cellar to make my first payment.

Although we went without food for thirty days the first year, we never missed a monthly payment.

The taxes, interest on mortgage, and monthly payments on house went now three times the amount of my earnings.

However, by dispensing with the services of a doctor, we lost our father and mother-in-law, which so reduced our expenses that we were able to pay for the parlor floor and windows.

In ten years seven of our nine children died, possibly owing to our diet of excelsior and prunes.

I only mention these little things to show how we were helped in saving for a home.

I wore the same overcoat for fifteen years, and was then able to build the front porch, which you see at the right of front door.

Now at the age of eighty-seven, my wife and I feel sure we can own our comfortable little home in about ten years, and live a few weeks to enjoy it.

There is considerable food for thought in Mr. Gamey's speech, but the perusation is a horrible. Ross and his creatures may ignore the statements made by Gamey, but the people of this province will not. There is absolutely no comparison between the hypocritical, shining Beckamillion utterances of Stratton and the ringing, manly, straightforward words of the Man from Manitoulin. Hands to you, Mr. Gamey. You may have committed one or two indiscreet acts (the man never lived yet that didn't, sometime or other), but, under your hat there walks a man, not a white-washed hypocrite who incites men to commit forgery and perjury.

VIOLATED THE HIGHWAY ACT OF ONTARIO.

POLICE MAGISTRATE FLINT GIVES JUDGMENT IN A DISPUTE OVER THE RULES OF THE ROAD.

Palmer vs. Ross.—In this case defendant is charged with violation of the Highway Act of Ontario. Palmer was riding a wheel on the main road in Thurlow, leading from his residence to Belleville. Ross also was seen following him at short distances. Ross was driving in a covered buggy, having with him his sister and a child. Opposite the farm of Mr. Main, Palmer, who was travelling more rapidly than Ross, rang his bell repeatedly, to which attention was paid by Ross. Palmer then called out, asking for a piece of the road to pass. Ross did not pull out, but turned to the hand, and said, "there is plenty of room for you to pass," or words to a similar effect. Palmer wheeled past Ross, and followed shortly after by the other wheelmen. Ross swore he did not hear the bell, and his sister declared she did not hear the bell, but heard the voice of Palmer, and knew that Palmer desired to pass. Under the evidence, as Ross did not hear the bell, it must, in effect, be his evidence and find that he is not guilty, disregarding the bell intentionally. The next question is having heard the voice, and becoming aware that Palmer desired to pass, did Ross obey the provisions of the Statute by turning out and giving part of the road? Two defences are set up to this part of the case. One, that the place where Ross was overtaken was level and smooth, so that Palmer might have pulled out and passed Ross without danger or difficulty, and, therefore, Ross knowing this, did not consider that he was obliged to pull out, and the other, that the Statute does not say how much room Palmer came upon Ross so rapidly that Ross was afforded no chance of complying with the law by turning out. The Statute says that if a person overtaking a vehicle is overtaken by a person travelling more rapidly, upon the vehicle overtaken shall turn out. The word shall is imperative and commanding, not permissive. I find that the road at the point indicated was sufficiently smooth and level to permit Palmer to pass without injury if Ross did turn out. Palmer and the others passed safely and without trouble, for the road, tho' not perfectly smooth, but quite smooth enough for Palmer's purposes. The difficulty is that the Statute does not provide for the person overtaken exercising his discretion as to whether he should turn out or not. The law is, that he must and shall turn out upon audible warning being given. There is no exception provided for in the Statute. The next point might well be decided in Ross' favor as it rests for his own evidence. When he heard the request, he thrust his head out and looked to the road, and told Palmer "there was plenty of room for him to pass." Instead of doing this, he ought to have attempted to pull his horse out of part of the road. He did not do this. He made no effort to do so. If he had made an effort to turn out, but had not quite succeeded, because Palmer was so quick in upon him after the request, I would dismiss the case, but as he did not do so he cannot claim the benefit of the act and must be convicted. I hold no person can exercise a discretion under similar circumstances. If discretion is permitted, then a child, a young girl, unfamiliar with driving, would have the right to exercise a discretion, which might be dangerous to the public.

ALBERT COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

LAST EVENING'S ELOCUTION CONTEST—THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF CONCERTS TO BE GIVEN THIS WEEK.

The first of the series of entertainments to be given this week in connection with Albert College took place last night when the elocutionary contest in connection with the elocution class in competition for a medal presented annually by Mrs. Dunlop was held in Massey Hall. The musical and physical culture departments. The following prizes were awarded: Miss Carter, offering a piece full of quiet pathos, and showing a delicacy of attainment in the entertaining art. The contestants for the medal were Miss Gwendoline Smith, Miss Tom Mathews, Miss May Hagar and Miss Ada Greenleaf, who recited in the order named. Miss Gwendoline's number was nicely done, and showed her to be a coming elocutionist. Miss Mathews' selection was excellent enunciation, but a failure of memory rather marred the rendering of her number. Miss Hagar's selection was much appreciated, her natural graces of manner and style made a pleasing impression. Miss Greenleaf excelled herself in her selection, showing originality, subtlety and delicacy of interpretation, though it must be confessed the effect of the number was considerably spoiled by the introduction of a rather imperfect guitar accompaniment.

When the contestants had taken part the judges, Ald. McFee, Rev. Mr. Stratton and N. Vermilyea, Esq., retired for consultation. On their return Mr. Vermilyea, as spokesman, announced that the committee had decided in favor of Miss Greenleaf.

Miss Gwendoline Hamilton, the first year's graduate in elocution, also gave a number, entitled Strength of Will, by Ruskin, which showed her ability and the excellence of her training.

The literary numbers were interspersed with pleasing songs by Miss Mabel Lambert, Miss Margaret Ostrom and Mr. Charles MacMechan, and a couple of numbers "Chimes Dancing" and a "Wand Twist Drill," by members of the physical culture department were quite interesting, though not new numbers.

Citizens attended the concert in goodly numbers and Massey Hall was filled to overflowing by students, visitors and citizens. All seemed to enjoy the evening.

How He Came to Have Mara.

Halifax, (N.S.) Wesleyan.

A clergyman was once staying at the house of an English working man. He happened to see an image of the Virgin Mary standing over the mantelpiece, which struck him as incongruous. By way of making talk he asked how it got there. "Well, you see, sir, it com about this way," replied the host. "I was out gittin' o' two sisters—Sally and Maria—an' I wasn't just sartin which I was to have. One day, as I was sittin' into a shop window, I saw that 'ere statoot, with 'Ave Maria' underneath it. That came right 'ome to me, so I med up me mind right off to 'ave Maria, an' we 'ave splored. She bin a real gude wife to me, and so I bought the image to keep it in mind."

The Romance of Diamonds.

Mr. T. F. O'Connor tells the following as his "story of Major Maxwell's Jewel":

In the circle whose members make a living out of dealing in diamonds, there is a keen interest just now in the operation about to be performed at Amsterdam on the famous "Excelsior," which is claimed to be not only the largest diamond yet found in South Africa, but the largest stone of its kind in the world. So it may be of interest to the general public as an appropriate moment to recall the romance of Major Maxwell's jewel. It was mined, about which there was no doubt whatever, in the Jagersfontein Mine, in the northern portion of the State, and was reported from Brazil like great diamond stones usually are. Even before the statement was made to sell it to the King of Portugal, Mr. Maxwell, who had proved to have anything to do with the painful business, had been approached by Mr. Isaac Emanuel, Mr. Barnato and Mr. Jacobs of Hamburg, and Calcutta (the original of the late Mr. Martin Corbett's "Mr. Isaacs"), took the matter in hand. Finally, Emanuel arranged the sale of the stone to the Nizam of Hyderabad for £400,000 sterling, or 40 lacs of rupees, were at the moment worth £500,000 sterling. Emanuel and Barnato deposited the money with the Imperial Bank which held possession of the diamond, the deal having been carried out by means of a glass replica and the expert description given by Mr. Jacobs. But there's many a slip between a deal and a delivery, and Maxwell was not out of the woods yet. He was, in fact, up against an Irish boy, Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick, at that time British Resident at the Ancient Court of Hyderabad. It is the business of the British Resident in a Native State to advise—and tactfully to control—the ruler, and Sir Dennis, who was himself a diamond expert, had strongly suggested that there would probably, on the general principle, be a famine in Hyderabad the following season, and it be could imagine what his starving subjects would do to him if they knew he had just squandered forty-six lacs on ancient diamond for his tyrant. Seldom had such a bombshell exploded in the midst of the Nizam's Household. Abandoned at the thought of admittance at his throat or poison in his pilau, the ruler took fright, the alarmed Nizam sent off at once to Jacobs a quick bill of sale, which was actually the letter refused to be cast off the Excelsior, and the Major, with the diamond, left Hyderabad a day from Calcutta. This raised an alarm, on account of the twenty-five lakhs that would be due, and Jacobs was arrested before the steamer got clear of the port. After a long trial, in which all the Bar leaders in India were engaged, the Major was acquitted by Jacobs returning the twenty-five lakhs, and Maxwell received the £400,000 to cover his expenses over the transaction.

French Juvenile Criminals.

In The Nouvelle Revue, says Public Opinion, Mme. Jean Izoulet has a thoughtful article concerning the very serious problem of the French juvenile criminal. During late years juvenile depravity and criminality have increased terribly all over France, and more especially in Paris. Some fifty years ago, or sooner, there was founded which undertook the defence of young criminals, and it is remarkable that the society were organized several admirable institutions for the reformation of the young. One, known as the Petit Roquette for prisons, were yet more until to be more severe. Each new society, though experience in law, passed many years ago, caused every criminal under the age of sixteen to be considered still a child, and as such to be treated with the greatest consideration. Now, in the Petit Roquette, a child is now sent are twelve in number; six are to all intents and purposes a first-class college; in the six others are taught trades. Each state has its own three houses of correction for girls, and in addition to these there are numerous private institutions, as well as the ordinary primary schools. In the agricultural houses of correction each boy society, though protected in all its branches, and many ads, after serving their sentence are placed out in the neighborhood by the authorities. Gardening, farming, and the like are taught to them, and they are thus enabled to keep the children in touch with their families. Once a month they spend one Sunday with their parents, supposing, of course, that they have any. Unfortunately people once a year; also, each child spends four weeks at home.

Before the Windsor Magistrate, The London Star says, a woman, named Bates, was charged with theft. Chief Constable Woodall gave the lad's bad character, and said he threw notes at his mother and father, and locked them in rooms until they gave him money. The

The Tiara of Saltapherces.

If the Oriental King Saltapherces had, before his death, come in contact with some soothing syrup, and had bought a large supply of the various gobs of it that were offered him on Monday, he probably would have had enough left over to have filled with it the tiara which his own IOU was expected by some of more than two thousand years. His contemporaries, it is said, died simply to the fact that he and his contemporaries knew not Joseph, and were with the practices of shady art dealers and modern political manipulators.

The disagreeable part in which the Louvre Museum is involved is the fact that, through the shady activities and astonishing cool cheek of a few men, a lot of sadness, of unjustifiable suspicion, of unmerited obloquy, has been cast upon the whole Louvre staff, and upon several clerks, covered with Greek decorations and honorable titles, who have had to bear

Piles Torture Many People

WHO DO NOT UNDERSTAND THE NATURE OF THEIR AILMENT AND HESITATE TO UNDERGO A LOCAL EXAMINATION.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

THE ONLY POSITIVE AND GUARANTEED CURE

Piles, or hemorrhoids, are small tumors, which are in and about the orifice of the rectum. They are caused by habitual constipation, a condition of the veins, which are very numerous in this portion of the body. Piles frequently attack women during the expectant period, or after childbirth.

In bleeding piles the hemorrhage is sometimes so profuse as to cause death.

Protruding piles are most dreaded because it is commonly believed that a surgical operation is the only positive cure for this form of ailment. I tried several other remedies, but could obtain no benefit from them, but am now cured, and have no doubt that the cure will be quite as entirely due to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Mrs. J. Gill, 445 Bathurst street, Toronto, states: "For three years I was tormented with bleeding piles, and at once obtained a box. I can vouch that I almost immediately obtained relief, and was soon permanently cured. Though I have never had a recurrence of the trouble, I always keep some of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the house in case of need. I can recommend this preparation with full confidence, and especially do so to mothers of families."

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

A salutation of respect in China is to comment on the mature and even venerable appearance of one's guest. When the United States Minister to Siam (Dr. Barrett) called officially on Li Hung Chang he was accompanied by a prominent missionary, a man eighty years of age, with white hair and beard, who was to serve as interpreter. Unknown to Mr. Barrett, the missionary and the Chinaman had had a falling out some years before. Li came into the reception room, saluted Mr. Barrett cordially, and bowed stiffly to the patriarchal interpreter. To the puzzled Minister the Premier said: "I congratulate you, sir, on your venerable appearance," then, nodding toward the octogenarian, he added: "And is this your son?"

Oh, well, I get on right enough with the wife, but it's the old people I can't put up with."

A Highland laird who could not afford to keep a private piper was accustomed to employ the village piper when he had company. On one occasion, through some oversight, Donald had not been given his customary glass of whiskey before he began his performance. Accordingly, he found his bagpipe in a most refractory temper. He laird asked him what was the matter with the instrument. Donald replied that the leather was so hard that he could do nothing with it. "What will soften it?" asked the anxious laird. "Och! just whusky," said Donald. A tumbler of whiskey was at once brought, which Donald immediately drank. "Tou reason why," said the laird; "but not say it was for the bagpipes?" "Och, yese, sure," said Donald, "but she will be a verry peculiar pipes this. She are likes it blawed in."

TRAVELLED FROM WINNIPEG.

A Mother and Two Daughters, in Needy Circumstances, Make the Journey from Winnipeg to Gravenhurst to Seek Admission to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

An illustration of the many distressing cases constantly coming before the management of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst is at present this week. A week since, the Secretary, at the head office in Toronto, through whom all applications should properly be made, received a long-distance telephone message from the Physician-in-Charge at Gravenhurst, saying that a mother, with two daughters, both of whom were afflicted with consumption, had presented themselves at the doors of the Free Hospital, hoping to be at once admitted.

One daughter has the trouble only in a slight degree, and from a medical point of view is admitted as soon as room can be made. The other has his disease in a more acute condition, and will need to be taken immediately until it becomes somewhat quiescent. The family are poor, their railway fares having been paid by a friend. The mother has been given employment on the domestic staff of the Hospital, and the daughters will board in town until there are vacant beds in the Hospital to admit them. They came all this distance poverty stricken, but in the belief that somehow they would manage to get admission to the institution.

Want of money is the only thing the Trustees tell us, that is preventing the increase of accommodation beyond the eighty patients already provided for. Up to the present no one has been refused admission on account of his or her inability to pay. It is hoped that the sum of funds is preventing the Trustees from providing the increased accommodation needed. Indeed, a heavy burden of debt is already resting on them, and must be promptly met if the work is to be carried on.

Contributions may be sent to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Q.C., Leonard Ave., Secretary of the Free Hospital, 9 Front St. West, Toronto.

A Bank on Wheels.

One of the most brilliant ideas of modern times has just occurred to the local authorities which administer the public moneys of the town of Mesieres, in the Ardennes. The idea becomes concrete as an "automobile savings bank." The term requires some explaining.

The inventors apply it to a new sort of motor car which they are having built. The vehicle is propelled by electricity and contains four seats, one in front and apart from the others, for the driver. The three places behind are arranged round a revolving table in the middle of the car, one at each side and one at the rear of the vehicle. Writing desks are fitted over each of the three seats and devised in such a way that they can be either folded flat against the sides of the carriage inwardly or opened outwardly. The central table also contains desks, besides bookshelves and a small metallic strong-box. Such is the new automobile. The use to which the authorities of Mesieres intend to put their invention is as follows:

The car will travel round the country, making stoppages of an hour or so on prearranged days in the different localities of the department. The passengers will be two clerks of the local treasury administration and a cashier. They will carry with them a complete collection of savings bank books, registers and forms, and the third of the above-mentioned officials will be empowered to receive moneys. Your reader will have now divined the purpose of the financial authorities of Mesieres. It seems that these gentlemen, assembled in council lately, came to the conclusion that economy should be done to encourage thrift among the peasantry of the Ardennes. On the other hand, it was recognized that the saving propensity was already very marked among the country folk. What was needed was that the administration should meet their wants halfway. The peasants put by their earnings thriftily enough, but frequently fail to invest them in savings banks because, especially in the busy summer months, they have little time for journeying to the few principal towns where the offices are situated. So the idea was conceived upon sending the savings bank to the country folk instead of waiting any longer for the latter to find time to go to the bank.

The description of the vehicle which the authorities have had built, according to their own designs, requires no further explanation except to say that the movable desks are intended for use by the public, hence the arrangement which they can be opened outwardly over the road. It is reported that the scheme meets with the unanimous approval of the savings bank clerks, whose days hitherto throughout the fine season have been spent in musty offices. But, contrary to what might have been expected, the peasants do not look upon the innovation with unalloyed favor. Some suspicious persons have spread a rumor that the administrative motor car will not always be followed by savings bank clerks, but will occasionally bring more often, perhaps than would be desirable—the unwelcome visitor, the tax collector.

An English mining engineer who has come out from the Yukon brings among other interesting things evidence that the higher the latitude the greater the luck. Watching a poker game in which the stakes were heavy, he saw a player give himself four aces from the bottom of the pack. Burning with indignation at such shameless cheating, he turned to a bystander and whispered, "Did you see that?" "See what?" "Why, that fellow dealt himself four aces!" "Well, wasn't it his deal?"

When Miss Delavelle Barrington was playing Miami in The Green Bushes at the old Mary Street Theater, Cork, a memorable incident occurred. She had to jump into the Misssippi, but when Miss Barrington reached the rocky eminence from which she had to leap she saw there was no mattress below to receive her; also the ledge of rock in front of the supposed river was too low to conceal the actress after her leap. Miss Barrington, however, nothing daunted, took her leap, and came down with a thud on the bare stage. The situation struck a member of the "gods," for a stentorian voice called out: "Oh, be jabers, 'tis frozen!"

For the Revelsworth Millions.

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

(Copyright, 1903, by Frederick A. Stokes Co.)

Mrs. Revelsworth takes in most of the social gossiping, and that's how we learn all things about fashions and so on. There—the curtain's fixed! Now I will come down and make your tea, in my little "sun down-stairs."

Betty's little "den" was, as Dudley learned, one of the four rooms on the ground-floor. Of these, the dining-room, separated by the overhanging bay portion of the house, fronted one, and of the remaining three one was a large assembly-furnished room in the front of the block, to which servants rarely took cases save on the name of library, and the others were two little bedrooms, one for a guest, the other and kitchen outbuildings.

Betty's den showed clearly enough the girl's industry, good taste, and lack of means. With her own hands she had hidden the unattractive outlook from the window with a clever imitation stained-glass effect, fastened old chintz behind the doors, draped the mean-looking mantelshelf in white muslin, and arranged, called a square of similar material, in the fireplace so as to the grate and painted the woodwork into shades—pleasing and a little round tables with pretentious covers, a writing-desk, and a few other articles of furniture completed the effect.

Betty, in a cheap but pretty blue-and-white dress, filled with yellow and white flowers, looked the picture of freshness, and when the young girl took from a brown paper parcel some cakes, and a spirit-lamp and kettle, and set about making the tea, shattering gaily all the while. Dudley felt that he had never seen with so perfect a combination of the sweet-tempered and the sweet-natured, who in appearance and disposition reminded him so strongly of his mother. Here was a girl whom Victor so fondly loved in the old Paris days.

"You may smoke in here," Betty said; "I like the smell of tobacco. The lamp-glass has a crack, but they are all in rather weak in the legs."

"Then I'll take window-seat," the young man said, seating himself on a long cushion covered with blue serge, with which Betty had decorated the deep window embrasure. "What a jolly homely little room it is! I like it better than any room in the house have seen yet."

"I could make it really pretty if I had a little money. But do you know that I've already near eating up enough just to buy the varnish and serge and sticky stuff for the windows!" But, I dare say I like it all the better for having had to wait for it. Mrs. Revelsworth rings for the tea every day at exactly 4 o'clock, Susan grumbles at having and I read aloud until a quarter of seven, when I change my dress for dinner. Then I have tea with you and your brother a cup of tea at this time, and that is my little round."

"Do you find time to make it the exact hour?" You are a perfect wonder, Miss Betty!"

"Why don't you call me 'Betty'? All sweet everybody does."

"I would very much rather. Will you then do you Betty, that you have mind Victor and me so wonderfully of a certain incident in Paris—'La Petite' as we used to call her?"

"I'll be told on it, of course."

"I'm not told, seeing that you are so very much younger. But she might be very little older than yourself. She more than seven or eight and twenty years when we left Paris. Haven't you have a brighter color and she is rather pale, and that her eyes are of a more warm shot, and that she was older and a little plumper, and, above all, that she is so much and you are English there really is a young likeness between the two—the strangest of all, perhaps that, when I want to say some thing very kind or complimentary, I should tell you you are like my step-mother; and I wish I could make you understand what a loveable little woman she is, so kind and thoughtful and sensible, and yet so happy-tempered and so very pretty—one of those women who don't seem put into the world to bring sunshine wherever they go. Yet her end I would be the most married I've ever met, and yet I just such another

M. A. P. on Amusements

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, in his Mainly About People (May 23), found in the crusade against bridge "food for much merriment. I would be intolerable but for its amusements." Said a great politician and a fellow-member of the National Party: "You do have said it he had lived to see the day when the diplomats against whom, amidst The Daily Express is waging, is one of the most powerful of the Ministers, and the very men whose present methods and habits of life he most denounces." Of which I have great sympathy. I remember a few years ago, when I was in the full flush of great beauty and social attractiveness, I had to go on a round of visits to country houses, and the round included—with many other very happy days—a visit to Chatsworth. I am not a bridge, of course, in art or science, but I am very fond of it as a game, and there are other very serious people who are fond of it, too. I confess there were moments when I should have preferred to see my host, and one lovely morning, after breakfast, I slipped into the room where he was sitting down at his table and lose money to me on the game that I had known. But I was able to afford it, and my companion was not, and it was pleasant to see how delighted he was to get back a little of his own. I remember, too, a certain article that she has seen men and women sacrificing every decent thing in life on the morning of the day when the Derby was run. I have seen the most genuine weeping—in real distress—because they had lost their money. Why should I call these things bad? I would rather see people playing bridge, for the most part, than playing golf. To my poor judgment, bridge is a game for the mind, golf for the body. But I would rather see a man or woman playing golf than sitting about in a stuffy room, smoking and drinking and talking scandal. Perhaps the best amusement brought with it an element of danger, and I am not quite so alarming as I used to be. I remember, in my younger days, I was staying in the country and would have thought it possible that some young girl would sit down in the middle of the day on a shooting stick and refuse to start to gamble. Who would have thought it possible that a number of women—of the most delicate and fastidious breeding—would stop up all night gambling, and that again, when the cards would be found amongst the keenest and the most exacting of the players was a girl? Yet that was how things now constantly take place, and indeed I myself have been the witness of scenes of excitement at bridge which I should have thought would be voted bad form if they took place in the street. I have protested and protested against all this, and I am sure I am glad to see that certain newspapers and individuals have taken up the cudgels in the crusade."

An Indian Postage Stamp.

We published recently, says The Daily Graphic, the accompanying facsimile of a postage stamp of the native Indian State of Bundi, in Rajputana, sent to us by Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. of Ipswich, who wrote that the stamp was one to give you no translation of the inscription, nor a correct description of the figure on the stamp, which looked to us like a cow-elephant repelling the attack of two Facsimile of the Stamp—Daily Graphic.

abnormally bird-headed calves, which are assured fully capable of repelling it."

Mr. Lionel Bignol, writing from on board the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Sardinia, sent us a translation of the inscription on the stamp, which is as follows, he says:—

"The figure means the State of Bundi. The line under it consists of two letters forming the word Sawai, meaning "one and a quarter," which is the name given to the Rajah of Bundi in 1836.

The Sanskrit, too, is correct. It is meant to represent the emblem of the paramount power, which is the Lion, Chief of Beasts, holding in his paws and in subservance by the Hindu god Siva, and the Devotees of that sect have bells at their signs."

A Valuable Picture Refused.

There has been some heart in Bristol, England, an interesting romance of a picture. For some years there has been exhibited in the bristol Royal Academy Association a picture entitled "The Holy Family." The owner lent it for a long time, and once proposed that the Academy should buy it. He was not what to drive a hard bargain. He asked the modest sum of £10 for it. Then it was reduced to £5 and a half for. Would the committee like to buy it for £3? The committee did not like to buy so much sympathy with your excellent work; but I am sure you will appreciate the sacrifice toward the purchase money." But the committee failed to see the matter in important light, and declined the picture with many regrets accordingly. By and by the owner died, and his executors proceeded to realize his estate. The picture was looked up and sent to the auctioneers to be packed and sent to London for sale. Judge the satisfaction of the executors when they received an offer of £2,000 for the picture. Further inquiry soon revealed the fact that the artist had painted the picture as from the brush of Pietro de Cortona, the famous painter of the early seventeenth century.

Wanted to Work For Herself.

The following story has been going the rounds of the British press:—A young Russian woman, of the aristocratic class, the only daughter of a wealthy and influential family, who disappeared mysteriously about a year ago, has just been discovered to be the person of Alexander Rodzhevsky, a young man who was masquerading as a man and acting in the capacity of a valet to a Russian officer in the Russian army. The young woman has been discovered by her disappearance was about to return to her home, but was prevented by a ready made accusation that her father, found the girl explained that her intention was to rise to an eminent position in the world of the facts which woman, when the really will, is capable of achieving. The fellow-workers of Alexander Rodzhevsky, on the other hand, speak of him as industrious and ambitious, and received the information of his sex with surprise. Since that he would rise to be Minister of Wars and Communications.

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-made and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS this assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S REGRETS.

EXPRESSION OF CONDOLENCE FORWARDED TO THE WIDOW OF THE LATE R. T. PORTER.

At the recent meeting of the County Council the Clerk was instructed, on behalf of that body, to draft and forward a resolution to Mrs. Richard T. Porter, regarding the death of her husband, who was a member of the Council, and who recently passed away. The following resolution was prepared by the Clerk:

To Mrs. Richard T. Porter, Thomasburg, Ont.,

Dear Madam,—The County Council of Hastings by resolution requested me to convey to you and your family the deep sympathy of every member of the Council with you in the great loss you and your family sustained by the untimely death of your husband.

Although it was but one meeting of the Council in the year that you had the privilege of attending, and his acquaintance with some of the members was slight, yet all, by his manly bearing, obliging disposition, courtesy with them, now feel they have lost an honorable counsellor and a faithful worker.

Having known Mr. Porter favorably as a neighbor to join with the Council in expressing the high esteem in which he was held, and our sincere sympathy for you in your sad bereavement.

Yours respectfully,
WM. H. LAYLSWORTH,
Co. Clerk.

Regimental Parade.

There was a fair turn-out of the Fifteenth Regiment last night. The men were marched to the hospital lot and drilled by the commanding officer, Col. Hallwell. A large number of spectators were present.

They Hold First Place as a Banisher of Kidney, Urinary and Bladder Troubles

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

GIVE MARVELLOUS RESULTS TO SUFFERERS.

Kidney trouble when neglected and allowed to take its course, is Bright's disease, nothing less than a consumption of the kidneys—then death.

When you know that kidney disease has fastened its iron grip on you avoid the use of wines and spirits and carefully shun the liquid medicines of the day which are largely composed of alcohol.

You are safe and certainly when you call Kidney-Wort Tablets to your aid. They are purely vegetable, and contain nothing that can interfere with rapid improvement and complete banishment of the disease. Thousands of men and women who felt the effects of gradually weakening kidneys have saved themselves from Bright's disease and Diabetes by the prompt use of Kidney-Wort Tablets. The packet is so convenient that it can be carried in the vest or coat pocket and used at any time. They are strictly pure and non-alcoholic, and cannot injure the youngest child. Those never failing Tablets can be bought at your drug store; price 50 cents per bottle or six bottles for $2.50.

COURT OF REVISION.

KETCHESON AND BLEECKER WARD APPEALS CONSIDERED YESTERDAY.

The Court of Revision held two sessions yesterday, one in the afternoon and another in the evening.

The balance of appeals in Ketcheson Ward were considered in the afternoon, the results being as follows:

McIntosh Bros.' assessment of $6,000 personal property was reduced to $5,000.

Mrs. S. Kustace's assessment of $800 on personal property was reduced to $400.

J. R. Orr's assessment of $2,200 on personal property was reduced to $800.

A number of appeals were reserved.

In the evening appeals from Bleecker Ward were considered.

Rev. Ira Tompkins's assessment, amounting to $1,500, was reduced to $1,100.

John McDonald's assessment of $600 was reduced to $500.

McGinnis Bros.' assessment on real estate of $2,000 was reduced to $1,500. Their personal property assessment of $1,200 was reduced to $800.

Miss Hall's assessment of $700 was reduced to $600.

J. J. B. Flint's assessment on real estate of $2,250 was reduced to $1,900.

Dominion Organ Co.'s assessment of $800 was reduced to $700.

E. B. Berrell's assessment of $1,200 was reduced to $1,000.

Coleman's appeals will be considered this evening.

SUMMER COMFORT.

The Oak Hall can fit you to shine in the best summer resort society by half an hour or less. The clothes we offer are ready-to-wear. Our low prices give no man an excuse for going about in shabby attire. They'll be dried up by that time, no doubt, and lovers of lacrosse can be sure of seeing a good game. Turn out and encourage the boys. They deserve it.

This is how that sporting journal, the Toronto Telegram, "rubbers in" the Toronto Baseball Club. From a playfully terse "Gardner's Giddy Goats":

But for the present the Maroons have had better go take a much-needed rest, for they are slowly but surely breaking the hearts of the boy printer and the other others of the officiating clergymen. And, by the way, about the last game. Those rules for the usual fortnight's holiday, isn't every blind man entitled to one? They've not the Giddy Goats, and if they want an extension of time why we'll give it to them with pleasure. We don't mind stopping up at a full season, though we would like to begin to give the Goats their days."

All interested in sporting events should remember the meeting in Hotel Quinte to-morrow night, when arrangements will be made for a series of youth races in the near future. A hockey meeting the grand sport was due for a revival this summer.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes. In one night. Nerviline gives a complete knock-out to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates the muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it's so penetrating. Penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't take substitutes, other liniments; get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for you'll be sure you were born it will cure you. 25c.

Resolution of Condolence.

At the regular meeting of the local Orange Lodge, held on Friday evening last, the following resolution of condolence was unanimously adopted, and ordered to be forwarded to the family of Bro. Crooks, of this city:

Belleville, Ont., 19th June.

Dear Bro. Crooks.—We, the members of Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 274, extend to you and your family our deepest and most tender sympathy in your sore bereavement by the decease of your dear daughter. We are well aware that no words we can write will fully remove the heavy burden from your heart, but actuated by brotherly feeling, we want, as far as we can, to share your sorrow with you. The Holy Scriptures, which we recognize as the basis of our profession of its religious belief, reveal Jesus as a God of infinite love and compassion, and a happy home beyond the grave, wherein dwelling is the loving sympathy and Fatherly care of His is able to comfort His people in all their afflictions.

Signed by order of the Lodge,
WM. GALBRAITH,
Worshipful Master.
ROBT. DUFFIN,
Rec. Secretary.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT ST. MICHAEL'S.

REV. MGR. FARRELLY WAS BUSY THIS MORNING.

A double wedding took place at St. Michael's Church at 7.30 this morning, and despite the inclement weather and early hour there were a number of interested spectators at the church.

The first couple married were Mr. Albert Erwin, of Stoco, and Miss Annie Naphan, of Sidney. The groom was assisted by Mr. Dennis Naphan, whilst Miss Mary Freeman was the bridesmaid.

The second couple were Mr. Edward Brayne, of Deseronto, and Miss Margaret Naphan, a sister of the preceding bride. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss Annie Naphan, of Tyendinaga, whilst Mr. Charles Brayne, of Deseronto, did service for the groom.

The Rev. Mgr. Farrelly performed the ceremony, in the presence of which he celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The wedding party, after the ceremony, repaired to the residence of Mr. C. Byrne, Bridge, townsite, where the wedding breakfast was partaken of. The young couples left afterwards for their respective homes.

WHY CATARRH IS FATAL. Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation that impair digestion and digestion so materially as to reduce the blood supply, thus wasting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a germicidal germ-destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It dissolves and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to perfectly cure bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit $1. Small size 50c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

FAREWELL TO REV. DR. ROSE.

OTTAWA PASTOR WELL KNOWN HERE, LEAVING FOR HAMILTON, PRESENTED WITH PURSE.

Ottawa, June 22.—Hundreds of citizens of Ottawa of all parties and denominations, last night bade good-bye to Rev. Dr. Rose, for the past five years pastor of the Dominion Methodist Church. Many floral pieces and addresses were delivered by Revs. Mr. Cameron (Baptist), Geo. McIlraith, S. G. Bland and John Grenfell (Methodists), Rev. Mr. Ramsay (Presbyterian), Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. Chas. Taylor, M.P., Rev. Dr. Wells, Mr. A. B. Keeler, Mr. Geo. Johnson, Dominion Statistician, and many others. Dr. Rose's address was attitude-wrestled and dress to the esteemed pastor, and Mr. Neil McBryde followed it up with a pocket-book containing nearly $600. The presentations were made after many addresses in Ottawa. The recipient was greatly affected at the generosity of his friends, and made a touching reply. Dr. and Mrs. Rose left for Hamilton on Wednesday. The doctor commences his pastorate at the Centenary Church next September.

COLLISION NEAR TWEED.

PROBABLY MANY LIVES SAVED BY BRAVE ENGINEER.

Tweed, June 22.—The fast train on C.O.R., west, leaving here at 5.40 this morning, collided with a load engine, John Watson, driver, coming from Havelock. Watson's orders were to meet the local Bulley Siding at 5.45 local pass, but he took chances, and when within a mile of Tweed station met the local; Watson saw the fireman jumped and were not hurt. The local driver stuck to his engine, reversed, but was not probably prevented many lives being sacrificed.

Belleville, Ont., May 7th, 1903.
The O. R. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism. My hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered pain in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. R. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now only used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

A Dozen Clauses of the Bill Discussed in Committee of House.

Government Refused Regarding Its Policy on Subsidy—Minister Says Charter Is One Thing and Assistance Another—Minister of Railways Peaks—Questions Respecting the Capitalization.

Ottawa, June 23.—A dozen clauses of the Grand Trunk Pacific bill were considered in committee of the House yesterday afternoon.

Renewed efforts were made to force a statement of policy from the Government, and these stubbornly resisted, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Messrs. Blair and Fielding insisted that a charter is one thing and federal assistance another. They would not listen to the suggestion that national interests, like the location of the route, capitalization and bonding should be safeguarded in the provisions of the charter. If federal assistance is given the Grand Trunk Pacific the charter will be modified through the subsidy resolutions.

The Government contention is that if no federal assistance is granted the company should not be subjected to new restrictions that have not been imposed on railways of less magnitude.

Opposition in the House.

Criticism of the bill beyond its general features turned on the question of over capitalization and certain bonding privileges. The Opposition, backed up by a few Liberals, including Messrs. McCreary, Bourassa and Angers, argued that over capitalization and excessive bonding meant unnecessary burdens on the traffic and an increased difficulty in fixing rates. Following up this argument, Mr. Bourassa moved that the capitalization of the road, which the bill authorizes to be $75,000,000, should not exceed $60,000,000.

A. L. Bell of Pictou gave notice of a motion that the total amount of capitalization should not exceed in all per mile for the eastern section $50,000, Quebec section $30,000, Woodland section $30,000, Prairie section $20,000, Mountain section $50,000.

Mr. Bourassa's motion was ruled out of order. It is understood that only unimportant amendments can be moved without notice of motion in the committee stage of a bill. The amendment will come up in another form.

Mr. Borden's Speech.

Mr. R. L. Borden said that the capitalization varied from $40,000 to $70,000 per mile, and this, added to the bonding powers of the road, must mean a heavy indebtedness. "If," said Mr. Borden, "the Canadian Northern can build up its road for $18,000 a mile, including equipment, why should the Grand Trunk Pacific, running through the same country, be capitalized for over $40,000 a mile. I am not in favor of unduly reducing capitalization for capital must have some margin, but an unduly high capitalization restricts the control of rates."

Mr. Borden also stated that the Grand Trunk Pacific is not bound to construct any particular part of the road. If it is built only 1,000 or 1,500 miles of the railway then the capitalization would amount to over $50,000 a mile.

Minister of Railways.

Hon. Mr. Blair said that the Grand Trunk Pacific bill will and should be dealt with as any other private bill. If the 1,000 miles of railway, 1,900 miles would be through very difficult and expensive country. A capitalization of $75,000,000 or 5,000 miles was equal to but $25,000 per mile, a figure he did not consider excessive.

Mr. Borden still contended that there was a direct relationship between capitalization and rates.

Mr. Blair—"I've fought to keep down capitalization in this road. It is true that large bonding powers impose an unreasonable burden on traffic, but that is one of the necessary results of the building of railways by corporations if the country wants the Grand Trunk Pacific to build this road, it must put the instruments in its hands that will enable it to finance the enterprise. Otherwise, it must offer other special inducements. The C.P.R., with all great subsidies, has to-day over millions of stock at 25 cents a share."

Mr. John Haggart said capitalization should have no part in the fixing of rates. The cost of the road and the earning powers should be the only guides.

Stay and May Not.

The question of Government assistance again arising, Mr. Blair said too much argument was based on the assumption that a subsidy would be voted. "Aid may be given, and it may not," he said. The bill should be discussed on the assumption that there will be no Government aid.

Mr. Sam Hughes repeated Sir Charles Hivers Wilson's assertion that the road would not be built without a subsidy. To this the Minister of Railways made no response.

E. E. Kemp gave notice of a motion that a majority of the directors, of whom the president must be one, shall be British subjects.

The route clause passed, as did several of the clauses following.

The committee then passed all the clauses except four.

Government orders were then taken up to facilitate the passage of some supplementary estimates that are urgently needed. The House went into concurrence and exhausted the list of pressing appropriations.

Brings and Bites.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that Judge Britton would conduct the Treadgold enquiry. Chief Justice Killam of Manitoba has been asked to be associate commissioner with Judge Britton, but his acceptance has not yet been received.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Identifying the "Slater Shoe"

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 8.

The Slater Shoe trademark is practically a quarter million dollar guarantee behind every pair of "Slater Shoes,"

—because measured in cold commercial parlance that is the value of the modest little mark by which "Slater Shoes" are identified.

The Slater Shoe makers have the sole and exclusive right to use any combination of words containing the word "Slater" as applied to shoes and this right is duly set forth in imposing looking legal documents with large red seals and much vermillion tape,

—but the exact wording to be found on a genuine "Slater Shoe" are the three words "The Slater Shoe" in a plate frame—no initials, no other words, no marks of any kind.

This particular and precise form of words is rigidly adhered to by the makers of the genuine "Slater Shoe" to enable the wearer to easily identify the real "Slater," though the makers have the exclusive right to use the word "Slater" with or without other words.

And to you that identification mark "The Slater Shoe," has a protective value which no other shoe without these precise words can have,— —because behind it is the commercial value of a trademark worth $250,000.00 in cold cash.

—and be it remembered that the value of a trademark is measured exactly by its ability to command trade,

—because no matter how popular a trademark may be or how skilfully or largely it may be advertised

—it could be robbed of its value in one short season by inferior goods made and sold under it,

—and do you think the "Slater Shoe" makers who have for so many years been building up this valuable trademark would entertain any three-cent-saving proposition to skimp the unseen vitals of a shoe in which so valuable an asset as a quarter million dollar trademark is wrapped up?

Not likely is it?

ST. JOHN MOVES AMENDMENT

Declares Report Is Not Supported by the Evidence.

Even The Premier Refuses To Condone or Palliate Corruption Disclosed.

Report Finally Adopted After Many Motions, Several Divisions and Speeches.

The House realized that one thousand copies had been printed, of which 500 were in English and the bound copies of the botanical papers.

Mr. Whitney asked if it was not possible to print 1,000 copies.

The Premier replied that it was impossible to get more now. The matter had been set up on the linotype machine and the metal remelted again as soon as the impression was taken off.

Mr. Whitney said he knew only 1,000 copies were being printed he would have been willing to have saved the people of the Province this expenditure. He thought it was an outrage that the money should be spent for so few copies.

Mr. St. John Resumes.

Mr. St. John, resuming, dealt first with the evidence of Dr. Chamberlain. He said that it was shown to be false by Hammond's testimony. Mr. Globe reporter had been told by Mr. Stratton, "I am going to try your case, while Chamberlain swore that Gamey had made the suggestion himself.

Mr. St. John also took up the statement that Mr. McEvoy met in September entries in the Crossin cash book before they disappeared.

Mr. Stratton said they were not seen by McEvoy, Mr. James A. Macdonald, jun., solicitor for the prosecution, had called him up by phone last week and told him so, and had also repeated this to him in the corridor.

Mr. St. John and Mr. Smyth (Algoma), both insisted that Macdonald and told the exact opposite to them.

Continuing, Mr. St. John said the Government and the Provincial Secretary knew the source of the money. He challenged the Premier to offer a reward of $30,000 for information as to the source, promising immunity from prosecution to the witnesses.

Mr. Pattullo—The money might go to some friend of the Opposition.

Mr. Whitney—Speak up; offer it, then.

Mr. St. John—The member for South Grenville is looking for it, forward himself. He wants a Cabinet portfolio, and is sitting dumb as any oyster for that reason.

A Sad Infliction.

Mr. St. John quoted from a recent editorial in The Globe that the cancer of corruption had eaten deeply into Canadian politics, which he took as a condemnation of affairs in Ontario as well as in other parts of Canada. The had been written before the report came out, and the report was not in the expectation of such a report as actually did come out.

Mr. St. John condemned the Government for the actions of Mr. Sullivan, and concluded by saying the matter was before the people themself to public opinion. The people clamored for a better state of things, for a better Government, let it come from whatever quarter it would. He then moved the following amendment to the Premier's motion:

Mr. St. John's Amendment.

"That all the words after the word 'that' be struck out and the following substituted therefor:—In the opinion of this House the report of findings of the Commissioners appointed to inquire into and investigate the charges of bribery set forth in the statement made to this House on the 11th of March last by Hotmer R. Gamey, Esq., ex-member elect for the District of Manitoulin, and the further statement made by him on the 27th of March last is not supported by the evidence adduced before the said Commissioners, and that the conduct of Hon. J. R. Stratton, as shown by the said evidence to have been discreditable, corrupt and scandalous and this House regrets that the Premier, Hon. Geo. W. Ross, having received a letter from the said Gamey, dated September 10, 1902, failed to give evidence before the Commissioners, and also that the said Hon. Geo. W. Ross and his other colleagues were aware of the charges long previous to the said House furthermore expresses its earnest regret that practices contrary to law which were indulged in by members of the Government, and which practices, if persisted in, are calculated to undermine and degrade the dignity of public life, have been justified and defended by the same Commissioners in their report."

Would Send Him to Prison.

Mr. Wm. Blakeard (West Durham) followed Mr. St. John, speaking until the noon adjournment. He said he considered it being degraded with a star. Mr. Gamey should have a stripe. He then went into the incident of the bank deposit slip, referring each time to Mr. Gamey's action in being done in a plain and simple way. He concluded by moving the following amendment to the amendment:

That all the words after the first word "that" in the amendment be struck out and that the following be added to the original motion: "And this House regrets that it has become the duty to place on record an expression of censure of members of the Government for certain acts forming the subject of investigation."

Dispersed At Charges.

After recess, Mr. Pettypiece said that unless the judge of the case was proven all the charges fell to the ground and there was no reason for censuring the Government. Gamey had stood up in the House and told of what he was going to prove, but when his witnesses were called one after another they denied the truth of his story. It was charged that the Government gave patronage to a member for Manitoulin. What have was there in giving patronage to a supporter of the Government? There was there anything wrong in the Government asking for the assistance of the member for Manitoulin that there was no corrupt bargain.

Predicts Conservative Downfall.

Mr. Pettypiece said the result of sweeping off election protests was an old one, Mr. Pettypiece referred to Dr. Mitchell's speech in which he would stand by Gamey. When the charges were made in the House Liberals were shocked, and calmly waited for the evidence. The evidence was brought out and if there had been any leaves missing from the Provincial Secretary's cash book they would have been quick to condemn him. Mr. Gamey had promised that the plano factory evidence would have cleared the latter for him, but it was not. It was said there of the $3,000 which was the essence of the whole charges. He believed that the report would be sustained by the people, as it would be sustained by every member on the Government side of the House, and he was confident by none on the opposite side of the House.

Contesting the Church Also.

Mr. Milton Carr spent a few minutes condemning the remarks of Mr. Dr. Carman, who wanted to quarantine the Legislature. "How would Dr. Carman like it if someone should want to quarantine the whole Methodist Church because a few Methodist preachers went to Syracuse and disgraced themselves? Not one ninety-eight was anywhere and there would be sure to be one Judas Iscariot among them."

Mr. Gamey said he was one for the Legislature.

Mr. Pattullo Asks a Question.

Mr. Andrew Pattullo, after defending his position in supporting the resolution of Mr. Whitney before, which declared against sending charges to the Privileges Committee of the Crown to a commission of judicial weight, said the Manitoulin electors would regret his action in this matter. Mr. Gamey had declared his friendship.

Mr. Gamey—Did you ever deceive your friends, Mr. Pattullo?

Mr. Pattullo—I am getting a further revelation of the character of the gentleman.

Continuing, Mr. Pattullo said he was glad that the Premier and the Government because he was saying the Government had been given the same motive on the Opposition side as the Government. The real leader of the Opposition aspired to be Premier of the Province. He denied that he was a friend of the character, but defended them from the charges. The Government had given a history of Conservative corruption, and they had failed to throw a stone even if all their charges were true. The attack on the Provincial Secretary was a contemptible piece of privilege, and the people would punish them for it.

The Liberals Confident.

If the Conservatives chose to make the election turn on Gamey, he thought they (the Liberals) would accept the challenge. They had confidence in the enquiry into every schoolhouse in the Province, and whether it be in the Legislature or in the general elections they would appeal to the people with confidence in the result.

Mr. Hoyle moved the adjournment of the debate at 6 o'clock.

MAY BE $100,000 SHORT.

Elgin Loan Company Manager Dipped Deep Into Loan Funds.

St. Thomas, June 24.—It is expected that the defalcations of Manager Rowley of the Elgin Loan Company, will amount to $75,000 or $100,000. It is stated that the amounts paid on mortgages may turn out to have been tampered with.

BLAMING GEORGE III.

The Attorney-General of Ontario furnishes an explanation of the political deadlock, which has disgraced this province during the past five years. The people are told that an arrangement by which Sheriff Dixon of Leeds and Grenville, bound himself to pay an annuity of $1,200 to his predecessor on the latter agreeing to relinquish office, was legalized by an old statute enacted in the reign of George III. That is going far afield for justification and if the laws of a century ago were all recalled "Cap" Sullivan, Duncan Bain, Archibald, Hon. J. R. Stratton, "Slug the Machine" Preston and others of the gang of manipulators would cut a poor show. Offences which are now regarded as petty or serious some of the crimes these gentlemen have been accused of, were visited with capital punishment in the days of good King George. Public whipping posts were considered proper decorations along the highways of Merrie England at the period late which Hon. Mr. Gibson has penetrated. The evidence in Ontario is to be given against Mr. Stratton in the eighteenth century, might have pleased the Provincial Secretary, in a far more unenviable position than he occupies in the eye of the admiring commissioner, had what might have been the facts in "Cap" Sullivan and his friends had they been detected taking money from King George's purse? Gentlemen, Ontario is to have George III. ladies, by all means let more of it be meted out.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Kingston is wrestling with the swimming bath problem, but those who are in favor of them are knocked down with the unanswerable question: "What do people need with swimming baths when they can easily catch rain water and bathe in a wash tub?" I suppose how great minds run in the same channel.

The Ottawa citizen pays a high tribute to Rev. Dr. Hoss, who has just taken his departure from the Capital, as follows: "Speaking for the citizens of the federal Capital, the Citizen regrets the loss of so reasonable a Christian, so able a minister, so good a citizen and so high-minded a patriot."

We foresee, in this weather, unlimited trouble for the man behind the lawn mower.

The cisterns and swamps are full, and if we don't get some warm, dry weather soon the farmer may become reckless and follow suit.

What a blessing it is that we don't have to complain of floods, drouth, heat or cold all in the same breath.

A prominent member of the W.C.T.U. tells us that the members of that organization have been greatly interested in the discussion which has recently been going on re swimming bath. Some of the ladies, recognizing the good that such an institution would like to see a subscription list started with the object of aiding the Council to provide the money necessary to build it. It is pointed out by one party interested that swimming baths would be an attractive feature to a place which, like Belleville, claims to be a summer resort. The suggestion is undoubtedly a timely one. The members of the W.C.T.U., being in favor of cold water, feel disposed, we are told, to take this matter up. If they do the thing can be considered as good as settled, for the local W.C.T.U. never fails in anything it undertakes.

Chancellor Boyd has just decided that euchre and whist are games of chance. Yes. A poor player has about as much chance as Gamey had in the late investigations.

The manager of the G.T.R. Thomas loan company can hardly be called a thief. Having defaulted to the extent of $100,000 he is entitled to the title of financier.

Mr. Milton Carr, M. P. P., tearfully acknowledges that the Legislature contains one Judas Iscariot. If it becomes the fashion to handy biblical names, somebody may insinuate that Mr. Carr himself has a few of the characteristics of Ananias.

King Edward has set the seal of his royal approval on the cake walk, and now, surely, it is up to all loyal subjects to cultivate a taste for ragtime.

At a public meeting in Brockville the sentiment was strongly against accepting money from Carnegie to build a library, his recent utterances having deeply incensed the Brockvillians. The Counell wants to take it from the people, we don't. Vox populi, etc.

Mrs. R. L. Borden, on leaving Ottawa, was simply overwhelmed with bouquets, and if having a clever, honorable and hard working husband entitles a woman to beautiful things of that kind Mrs. Borden certainly ought to get a good many of them.

ALBERT'S ART EXHIBIT.

WAS VIEWED BY MANY INTERESTED VISITORS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Yesterday afternoon the Art Room in connection with Albert College was very busy one for the inspection of visitors, and, despite the fact that the weather was very disagreeable, a large number braved themselves for the opportunity of viewing the work of the pupils in this department of the college. The exhibit was much admired and many words of commendation were expressed towards the pupils, thus reflecting great credit upon the teacher, Miss Emma Clarke, who certainly has every reason to be proud of her scholars. The walls of the large room were literally covered with oil and water color paintings, original sketches and other work done by the members of the art class. This year the exhibit was one of the best ever shown, both as to quantity and quality.

Miss Mary Leslie is the winner of the Blackburn gold medal for general proficiency. Her display consisted of designs in water colors, studies and figures. The collection was certainly much admired and demonstrated that Miss Leslie has a future as an artist.

Miss Ethel Gillman's collection consisted of miniatures painted on ivory, water color pictures and sketches from nature. Some original designs for centre pieces painted on chamois was especially praised.

Miss Edna Osmun had a varied and beautiful display of her handiwork, consisting of water color studies, sketches from nature, original designs, antique casts, original designs, plaster centre piece for ceiling and stained glass for memorial and other windows.

Miss Agnes Copeland, whose work last year was so much admired, has made equal if not better. Her work is pleasing and artistic in its nature. She showed miniatures in water colors, sketches from nature, and an original illuminated design.

A very neat collection of hand painting upon a set of china was to be seen, the same having been executed by Miss Lena Ford.

Miss Jennie Miller's work consisted of water color studies, oil studies, original designs, carved wood panels, one design of wall paper and border, which were very pretty.

Misses Minnie Phelps's and Esther Hallett's collection of studies in oil and water colors reflected credit upon these young ladies.

Miss Helen Yarwood had a fine collection of water color sketches from nature.

Misses Ella Hudgins, Florence Courtice and Addie Gordanier exhibited water color studies, and Misses Bessie Maguire, Adeline Rogers and Margaret Cameron's collections consisted of all studies, all of which were worthy of praise.

A number of local sketches from nature were to be seen, showing some of the city's prominent churches and buildings. These were very natural and well executed.

RECEPTION IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE ROOMS.

The visitors at Albert College yesterday afternoon were most hospitably received. From the hours of 3 to 5 a reception was held in the Domestic Science rooms, which had been tastefully decorated with flowers and plants for the occasion. Miss Hagar, who has charge of this department, is not only intensely interested in the art of cooking, but is greatly encouraged by the interest taken by the pupils under her tuition. During the past term there has been a slight increase in the number of students taking this course and the examinations showed marked improvement. Lessons are given every day but Thursday, and the young ladies who take advantage of these will in future life be much benefitted. To an intelligencer representative Miss Hagar explained the various subjects taken up in the course, which include not only the art of cooking by principle, but all the duties of house work, such as household sanitation, laundry work, home nursing, cleaning and cleaning, chemistry and physics. Whilst there were no demonstrations yesterday, the numerous visitors were served with strawberry punch and cake, prepared by the class, which proved to be dainty viands. Misses Day, Pringle and Earles were the hostesses for the afternoon, and the waitresses were Misses Cora and Adeline Pringle, Foster, Sprague and Cameron. All the young ladies fulfilled their parts well.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knock-out to pain in the back. for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates the muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is strongest, most penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute; get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

THREE MEN INJURED.

SCAFFOLD FELL AT BLOOMFIELD, P.E. CO.—WALTER SHARP MAY DIE.

Bloomfield, Ont., June 23.—Late on Monday afternoon a very serious accident occurred on the farm of Mr. M. H. Bure, Ridge Road. While carpenters were at work shingling a new barn, the scaffold gave away, allowing Thos. Rounsell and Denis Rounsell and Walter Sharp, to fall to the ground, a distance of about thirty feet. When found they were unconscious. The Rounsells are injured internally, while Mr. Sharp received a blow upon the head, causing concussion of the brain. His death is expected at any moment.

W.C.T.U. NOTES.

BETTER THAN LEGISLATION.

(Contributed by the Local Branch.)

The Anti-Alcohol Congress, held recently in Brussels, Germany, was a notable gathering, calculated to make a deep impression for good upon the intelligent and morality loving element of the entire world. It was attended by fourteam hundred delegates from fifteen of the chief nations of Christendom. Nothing was attempted in the way of passing resolutions, but many noteworthy papers were read and expressions made in behalf of total abstinence.

Dr. Ford, an authority on brain and nerve disease, declared that neither science nor experiment justified taking alcohol a food. Professor Berne, on "Alcohol and arts," said that "alcohol by dulling the spiritual aspirations, sensibility to great work; is an enemy of the highest attainment." To all persons of good sense such testimonies are more powerful than legislative enactment. Those who have regard for the well being of themselves and others will take notice of such words, and will govern themselves accordingly.

AFTER OTHER HELP FAILED.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS RESTORE A YOUNG LADY TO FULL HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Doctors and nurses recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they have the great curative power to make new, rich, red blood, and to cure all diseases due to poor blood or weak nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not a secret medicine. They do not purge and weaken. They contain no poisonous drugs. They are safe, sure, simple, stimulating and scientific. That is why these pills should be taken by all who suffer from bloodless, nerveless and sickly. Here is a bit of very positive proof of the wonderful power to conquer disease which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills possess: Miss Esther B. Nevin, Lynn, N.S., says: "At the age of sixteen my health failed me completely. At that time I was attacked by la-grippe, which was followed by excessive palpitation of the heart, which I was left in a deplorable condition. I became very pale, suffered from headaches, dizziness and want of appetite. I tried several medicines, but they did me no good; on the contrary I was growing weaker, and finally became so bad that I would take spells of unconsciousness, lasting from fifteen minutes to an hour at a time, and I had become so weak that I could hardly stand. At this stage I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have great reason to bless the day I began their use. I had only taken them a few weeks when I began to recover and in their continued use for some time longer I fully regained my former good health. I will be glad if my experience will be of benefit to some other poor sufferer."

When buying the pills see that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" is printed on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A TRUE BRAIN FOOD

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative powers. To remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain-strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red vitalising blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by all druggists.

TESTED HOLSTEINS.

An official from the Ontario Agricultural College has been at the farm of Mr. Mallory, near Frankford, during the last two weeks doing some testing under the rules of the Canadian Holstein Friesian Association. About three years ago the association commenced a record of merit similar to the advanced registry of the American association.

Under the rules an animal in the 7 year old form is required to produce in seven consecutive days 7 lbs. of butter, or in a mature cow 15 lbs of butter fat in 7 days.

Mr. Mallory has had six animals under test, and from the figures below it will be seen that all have passed the ancunt required by the association rules:

Name of Cow.	Days in Milk.	Lbs. of Milk Yielded.	Lbs. butter Fat.	Butter So p.c. Fat 7 lbs.
May Echo.....	2	61	562.75	11.331
The Ida B.....	2	61	496.5	8.28
Rose Comb.....	2	54	541.75	8.521
Duchess Lady.....	2	54	510.5	8.51
Countess Ellen.....	2	60	452.25	12.48
Rose May.....	2	7 d	534.25	13.335

Below the rules are given in the 7 days test form.

Seven years ago, cornstalks were not known in Belleville. Now the ensilage factory is in full blast, and from the record of the Acme Cheese Factory to which the milk is sent,

During the season of 1902, fifteen cows produced 102,690 lbs after keeping five families in milk from 7 to 4 months before the factory opened. Previous to the month of June of this year 56,434 lbs. has been sent in, and for the first 10 days of June the average has been 760 lbs. daily from twenty cows of which six are 2 year old heifers and two farrow cows which will "come in" in September.

THE FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES

AN URGENT APPEAL FOR HELP.

TO THE EDITOR.

Dear Sir,—I take the liberty of soliciting your aid in raising funds for the maintenance of the Free Hospital for Consumptives. On account of our need, we find it necessary to make an urgent appeal to the public.

Permit me to state that the sum of $150,000 has already been invested in the like Gravenhurst institutions and property just outside of Toronto on which to erect a home for advanced or incurable cases of consumption. The maintenance of the existing institutions necessitates an expenditure of over $50,000 per annum, and to-day there is a debt of $73,000, in the form of an overdraft, for which the Bank demands settlement, and so we need the help of all.

Seven years ago, consumption was commonly believed to be incurable. The Toronto Globe, commenting editorially on our proposition to erect a consumptive sanatorium, said: "The consumptive is under sentence of death." It was soon shown, however, by the cures effected in the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium, that a great field for useful work had been opened. But the demand for increased accommodation, and the cry for help from those who could not afford to pay, became so urgent, that the trustees decided to open a second home, which was located within a mile of the parent institution. Since we first began our work nearly eight hundred patients have been cared for; and the medical records show that of this number a large percentage have been completely cured, and others sent home so greatly improved that they were able to return to their regular work.

There is no other hospital for consumptives in Canada. The demands are, therefore, urgent. Our board of trustees, who had already given freely of their time and money, having faith that the people of Canada would come to their relief, and pressed by the urgency of the needs of the hospital, incurred this debt which must now be provided for. We have no endowment, nor money with which to care for the large number of patients who are now in the hospital and not able to pay a single cent towards their maintenance and treatment.

Canada alone 8,000 die of this disease annually, and it has been shown by experience and results of our work that the greater number of these could be saved, if promptly treated. One hope—the only hope—is in the philanthropy of our people and their knowledge of our needs, and we appeal to you to help us to make these needs so known that all may be impelled to help. Do not let those who cannot give large amounts feel they cannot help; all gifts are helpful.

I am, yours faithfully,

W. J. GAGE.

Queer Cases of Heredity.

DOCTORS disagree as to the influence of heredity. Some hold that the strongest deal shapes upon it; others believe the contrary. Some of the latter class have recently told to exemplify this mysterious bond between ancestors and descendants are two curious cases.

There was in London society a few years ago a young girl who among the visitors to her father's house was noticed but without near relatives, and was often seen in the company of her mother or her governess. As she passed through the gallery one particular portrait always attracted her attention, and she went back to it more than once. Her companion saw in her by nothing but a commonplace painting of a middle-aged woman in the dress of the latter part of the last century. "It is such a nice kind face," said the girl, rather childishly imagining any one whose sight have looked like that had he lived." On another occasion, when the gallery was visitors had purchased no catalogue but, being young, they were like to look one at the entrance and made a last visit to the picture, for which she had felt so strong an attraction. To her astonishment she found her self face to opposite the picture, and learned on inquiry that the original was one of her direct ancestors.

Another occult coincidence or psychological phenomenon happened a few years ago to a Southern statesman and financier whose family has always been of rank in his native State. This gentleman was overhauling old documents and letters which had been stored in a musty chest for years and intended to destroy whatever might be of historic value and interest. To his surprise he unfolded a letter yellow and time-stained, which was written in his own peculiar hand-writing, or seemed to be, when he was a boy. Although the date was two generations before his birth he "knew" the handwriting, which was the same as his own, was the peculiarly characteristic that he could scarcely believe his own hand did not pen the letters.

A Loquacious Cockatoo.

The most loquacious cockatoo in the world used to live on a farm in the Mallee scrub, near a Riverina township, Australia, and as this is, perhaps, the only bird that ever figured in politics the "Melbourne" the Melbourne "Punch" deems the occurrence worthy of being recorded. A general election was on, and one of the candidates for the district had engaged a hall wherein to address the electors. There was a good attendance, and the candidate went from scratch with a rush, but at the end of five minutes was brought to a halt by a croaking voice, like that of a little devil muttering from within a cupboard, which called from one of the rafters: "Oh, I'm tired of this!" Nobody seemed disposed to take the remark personally, and the candidate went on with his speech, but was soon interrupted by the same voice, which called out: "Oh, you're a fool!" Then the audience began to laugh, and the candidate was thrown completely off his balance. He was able to make any impression on the meeting after the cockatoo had made himself from the hall, and the evil bird grew in the last hour to be very pleasantly: "So long, so long!" The mortified candidate finally resolved to the effect that the cockatoo was a fit and proper party to represent that district in Parliament.

Palmistry Triumphant.

(Fragment from a Town Romance.)

The reader was a little anxious as he placed his open hand before the earnest gaze of the soothsayer.

"You are a man of the utmost ability."

The enquirer seemed satisfied.

"You have the organizing power of a Kitchener and the dash of a Baden-Powell."

Again the enquirer smiled.

"You have the tact of a Talleyrand, the courage of a Bismarck, the subtlety of a Shakespeare, and the sense of color of a Rubens, a Turner and a Gainsborough."

"Quite true," murmured the enquirer.

"You could, had you wished it, have taken a Double First at Oxford or come a Senior Wrangler at Cambridge."

The enquirer bowed acquiescence.

"I see you think that you are not the Archbishop of Canterbury, and from my knowledge of the lineaments of the distinguished personages I am about to mention I am sure you are neither the Prime Minister, Field Marshal, nor the Commander-in-Chief."

"You are right," said the enquirer, "but I am not disappointed."

"You occupy a position of greater importance, and are more powerful than either of the situations I have specified."

"Again you are correct," returned the enquirer; "I have the honor to fill the post of Secretary to the President of the Imperial Universal General Dry Goods and Woollen Drapers' Association."

And with mutual expressions of regret and admiration the soothsayer and enquirer separated.—"Punch."

Midsummer Maxims.

Old married folks never sit in the sanmock together. A drug store in the neighborhood is always productive of thirst. It usually gets cool for mamma and papa about 9 o'clock. The young lady who is always objecting to her brother's smoking tells her young man that she likes the odor of a good cigar—with the accent on the good—but that cigarettes are too complicated for her. The neighbor's piano ought really to be tuned, but those who could transmit the natural impulse to sprinkle the lawn with the hose always jollies its next door neighbors who can't. A woman can sit with nothing in her hands and rock, but a man has to have a paper or a cigar or both. When the Old Man and his neighbor get their feet on the railing side by side the young man who is calling on the Old Man's daughter usually proposes a stroll, for he knows they are planted until bedtime.—Ex.

French and German Duels.

IT is announced from Berlin that on the invitation of Prince Lowenstein, one hundred and forty representatives of the German nobility, for the most part members of old Catholic families, have signed a declaration against duelling. The declaration says: "We disapprove, although it receives a passive encouragement from the State, of maintaining the military spirit, from the basis of which duelling has grown, by its intelligence, religion, culture, and duty to preserve the peace of life. The signatories bind themselves to work for its abolition, stating that it is false and unjust to call him who is a coward who refuses to fight, and they regard every one of a true sense of respect who, by conscientious scruples, ignores it as the noblest representative of the present state of affairs, they reserve the right to the individual decision according to the old usages if honor is at stake, but at the same time ask for the withdrawal of the challenge, which would give a much more real satisfaction than that obtained on the duelling field of honor. Two recent French duels, by the way, over which Paris has been laughing, concern two promising young men. The first is "Petite Republique," as a result of a social gathering at which Mlle. Lantelme is not young Daudet's first duet. One of his friends, Jean Carrere, fought him with M. Jean Carrere, son of the great physiologist of the Salpetriere. A few days ago M. Jean Carrere, "Le Matin," a serial intended to satisfies the public demand for gossip. In this way that his brilliant father, Alphonse, had also been a duellist. He had fought the other recent duel, M. Barrere the and Lemaitre, the well-known dramatic critic and book-reviewer, were the seconds. M. Taillades delivered himself of the opinion that Lemaitre had the influence of the late M. Barrere on the paper, and that he was therefore trying to arrange his father's memory, called out the critic, who is a great writer and and the hot-headed young man faced each other on the field of honor on one of the Bois de Boulogne. M. Barrere first fired and missed his adversary. M. Taillades declared that he was only taking his bat by his hand he went up to his opponent and said: "I am sorry you're the satisfaction you demanded of me." The duellist replied haughtily the sentiments which made you act up to the end." "I am sorry to hear no dust; I am one-eyed, one-armed. Now that I have stood your fire let me say how sorry I am to have having wounded your filial feelings." And with this the duel ended. M. Taillades extended his hand and the quarrel was ended.

Holiday Reading.

Froude, in his "Sea Studies," had a word to say on the subject of holiday reading. "While freely granting that the solitary side of our nature demanded that we should occasionally turn subjects on which the dash and whirl of daily business could be intellectually fasten itself, he yet lodged that the mental exercise needed by its energies strength. So: "We require consecutive reading—reading which will trench upon us only when we invite them; we require books, and the choice of a serious one is not to be made by old, the class of novels which we can read with interest, and forget instantly. The love agonies of the Fredericks and Dorotheas cannot be intellectual food. The taste for romance is the first to disappear, and it starts to be corrected. The liver and the digestive functions in the healthy working of the brain, and if you know that the blood pressure is too high, or that you are bilious, you will say, he will see to the liver and stomach, and the mind will take another picture to itself. The wilderness tests are close to us.

Bad La Grippe.

Mrs. A. Chidder, Dutton, writes: Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me in a very bad state of health. I got all of my head and thought I would try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did so and before I had taken one box I felt better, and after using four boxes I was entirely cured. I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them to be the best pill I ever used. I have also used Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Tablets and found them to be the best I ever used. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Chase's Medicines to my friends.

A Child's Logic.

His was very young. To be precise, he was five years and seven months. As long as he could remember he had had to set aside a part of the money he received to educate the little chil dren of China. He didn't love them as much as he should, or he would not have asked:

"Mother, they're killing all the Chinese children, aren't they?"

"Yes, isn't it dreadful? Are you not glad you are not a little Chinese boy?"

"Yes. But when they get them all killed, I won't have to send them fifty cents of my money, will I?"

A Man Who Knew It All.

The late Flavius Josephus Cook was long on faith and short on love. "Charity," he used to say, "and sweetness, generosity, sincerity—the qualities that win the confidence and affection of men." He carried an audience of non-thinkers by storm, but the scholars distrusted him, and when the people began to see through his "popular" plays, he held upon the public loosened. For ten years he was the most prominent figure in the "Monday Pop" lecture platform. The thundering champion of spiritualism, the noble orator of the Disciples of Christ, the self-confessed "Paul" of the nineteenth century, he heaven and earth, once a week, with advantage to his pocket and fame. As Herbert Spencer put it:

"He said things with a bang."

That was a fitting characteristic. Walking through the college yard with the present writer one day, Cook and Grady exchanged spied his astonished companion by the arm, glared at him and cried:

"Do you see that blade of grass? It is a miracle."

A ticket-collector on a railway got his tickets in one set, punched, and was given a pass over the line. On the way back he showed it to the conductor his marriage certificate by mistake for his ticket. The latter studied it carefully, and then said: "Eh, mon, you've got a ticket for a most awesome journey, but not on the Caledonian Railway." Tit-Bits.

The Longest Word.

The controversy as to what is the longest word still goes on. We have already mentioned several claimants, of which "floccinaucinihilipilification" (twenty-eight letters) appears to be the longest legitimate English word. As to the longest word in any language, a writer in the "Living Church" thinks the following word bears the palm, namely, "krungthepmahanakornamorn-rhawyrdrohwityalilyogogoch." "It is the name of a village in North Wales, it is said, to write, and while hunting at a Welsh inn at Bettws-y-Coed recently I heard the name pronounced with perfect ease and clearness by a young Welshman." But, according to another clerical correspondent of the same journal, this word simply "isn't in it" with the Greek word for "hash," of one hundred and eighty-one letters, to be found in Liddel and Scott's unabridged Greek lexicon: "Lepadotemachoselachogaleokranioleipsanodrimhypotrimmatosilphioparaomelitokatakechymenokichlepikossyphophattoperisteralektruonoptokephalliokigklopeleiolagoiosiraiobaphetraganopterygon." After this it is expected that the controversy will languish.

Wireless Telegraphy and the North Pole.

It has been suggested that wireless telegraphy may play an important part in future Arctic explorations. The conditions surrounding Arctic travel are such, says the "Electrical Review," that the principal difficulty is found in maintaining communication with a base of supplies. It is believed that wireless telegraphy has now reached a point where, at least, it promises such development that future exploring parties will be able to carry along apparatus and keep constantly in touch with their base camps. If this proves to be the case, much of the terror of the Arctic will be removed, and exploration will be made both easier and safer, with the possibility that this added instrumentality will enable the discovery of the pole at no far distant date.

Dizzy Spells and Body Weakness

TELL OF A RUN-DOWN SYSTEM AND EXHAUSTED NERVES—STRENGTH COMES WITH THE USE OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

To many people peculiar spells of dizziness, weakness are nothing more of almost daily annoyance and distress. Some one flashes it light before them, and become blind and stunned; others experience severe attacks of headache. The cause is exhaustion of the nervous system and deficiency in the quality and quantity of blood. In all such cases Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most certain as well as the most thorough blood builder.

Mrs. Symons, 42 Sinclair street, Belleville, Ont., states: "Some weeks ago I began a course of treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found it very useful. Every month I was formerly troubled with nervous prostration, and as a result, fluttering heart. Whenever my heart bothered me I would have spells of weakness and dizziness, which were very distressing. By means of this treatment my nerves have become strong and healthy, and the action of my heart seems to be regular. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as an excellent medicine."

Mrs. Woodcock, East Moira street, Belleville, Ont., states: "I was all run down and my system so exhausted that at times I would take severe nervous spells, so much so that a friend and at other times I had splitting headaches. In fact my whole nervous system was being undermined by my trouble. I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after having used this preparation for some time I am pleased to say that my nerves are strong and steady, the dizziness is gone and I am entirely free from all of the past."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

IRISH LAND BILL.

Landlords Accept Enlargement of Tenants' Purchasing Rights.

London, June 24.—A compromise between the Government and the Nationalist landlords and the Government's recently partial opposition to the Irish land bill is withdrawn, and unless unexpected difficulties arise, a satisfactory scheme will come up again in the House of Commons today, is likely to be speedily passed. The compromise consists in the landlords' acceptance to an amendment to clause 2 enlarging the purchasing rights of the tenants.

Anecdotal.

A Yorkshire miller, noted for his caution in financial matters, was once on a boat trying his best to get across the street, which drove his mill. The breeze was flooded, and he was taken out the point at which he wished to go and, while further on misfortune again overtook him, to the extent that the boat was upset. His wife, realizing the danger he was in, ran frantically along side of the stream, crying for help in a piteous voice, when her sheer distress at last she was suddenly brought to a standstill by her husband calling out, "If I'm drowned, Molly, dunna forget that flour's gone up two shillin's a sack."

In the year 1871, when the Government of Monsieur Thiers was at Versailles, and before the National Assembly had decided whether the future government of France was to be monarchical or republican, the late Comte de Paris visited the Duc de Chartres. Just as he was about to enter, M. Jules Simon met and recognized him. Bowing low, Monsieur Simon said with much gravity: "If we are a republic, mount, you are in my house, and I shall be delighted to do the honors; but if we are a monarchy, then I am in your house, and cannot play the host." The Comte de Paris laughed, and took Monsieur Simon's arm. "Ah, monsieur," he said, gaily, "let us go in together!"

A Philadelphian tells the story of a waiter at a restaurant in the Quaker City, who had lately announced that he had begun to study French. "Do you find it necessary here?" asked the customer. "Not here, sir," said the waiter, "but I've been offered a steady job in Paris as one of the hotels if I can learn French." "But Paris is full of French waiters," said the patron. "Yes, sir, but I'm afraid you're being deceived." "Oh no, sir!" said the man, with much earnestness and absolute simplicity. "It's a perfectly straight business. The advertiser in the hotel says the waiters he has can't understand French as we Philadelphians speak it, and that's what he wants me for, you see."

"Who," asks "The Candid Friend," "does not recollect Lord Hardwicke, the Gilmer Peer, immediately before uniting an almost priceless horse in the Row of a morning, or walking down Piccadilly, he hat at an angle which defied the laws of gravity? Spontaneously witty, with that talent for repartee which is as rare as it is delightful, Lord Hardwicke was the best of good company, and one of the unforgettable social leaders of London in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. No one will have forgotten his famous answer to a well-known tailor who had been asked to stay in the house of a noble patron, and complained to Lord Hardwicke that the accommodation was 'cold.' 'Lord, man, you didn't expect to find 'em all blazes?'"

The late Joseph Cook was celebrated for his positiveness, which, when he did not admire him termed "cocksureness." The Boston "Pilot" relates several stories in illustration of this. It says that when he went over to Scotland to demonstrate by practical experiment the dangerous effects of alcohol on the human body, he beat up the white of an egg with spirits until the mass coagulated, but it did not survive his audience as he had expected. On the contrary, it only evoked from Professor Blackie the caustic remark: "That seems to prove that whiskey must be good for nutrient of the brain." But the cruelest sarcasm said of him was when Bill Nye demurely wrote: "I understand that my friend the Rev. Joseph Cook has completed a sensational essay entitled 'A Bird's Eye View of the Kingdom of Heaven.'"

In the early Indiana days, when both judges and attorneys "rode the circuit," a newly elected judge, noted for his lack of personal beauty, was holding court on horseback between two county-seats one fine summer day. Suddenly he was confronted by a lawyer, who unslung his squirrel-rifle from his shoulder, and ordered the horseman to dismount. Somewhat startled by this extraordinary command, the latter began to remonstrate. He was quickly cut short, however, by the remark: "It's no use talking, I long ago swore that if I ever met a homelier man than I was, I'd shoot him on sight." The judge, sizing up the situation, promptly threw off his bonnet, yielding to the

Choose The Best

It is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand it on non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Studies if our work were not fitting and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. For the Revelsworth Millions, or AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

over his head and smiled, and seeing that the strange woman was interested, with a little gesture of the head he was off country dance. "Will you honor me?" he asked, as he led her out.

The light in which he had come to regard her prevented him from seeing how much better to Mrs. Revelsworth.

"Now what was her reason for hoping her mother's existence a secret?" That was the question that rose in Dudley's mind, while Victor was melted to tears by the affecting reminiscences of Francesca's tenderness to her mother. Victor had been equally astonished and pleased at the discovery that Francesca might have been concerned in the death of the dog which had attacked him. At the same time, after administering a sharp reprimand to the western youth, he had been constrained to bestow a shilling upon him with the injunction that he was not to keep silent on the subject of that emotional waif upon which Francesca had started in company. Perhaps no one of the party would have had nothing better than to confide to his brother every detail of that triumphal entry, but Miss Inge lady had objected, otherwise, and Victor, who, by his tender and chivalrous nature, was especially liable to become a woman's slave, always declared that he thought Francesca's will was law.

That evening, after dinner, in the drawing-room, when he and Francesca retired to the piano, he lasted upon singing something from "Faust," a love solo, which he executed in a tuneful tenor with a fair amount of correctness, with little Betty's sweet high soprano to help him out. Mrs. Revelsworth, who liked listening to music, but down her rattling wooden fan to hear the better, while Dudley, seated near her, stroked his moustache and pondered chiefly about Francesca.

"Good brother," said his aunt in a whisper, leaning over the broad wooden arms of her chair and suddenly breaking off in the cab drew nearer, brother is in love. Is it some one in Paris, or Rome, or Venice, or Is it Francesca?"

"It is Francesca, I think."

"Think! Think! he told you?"

"There isn't much to tell you."

"Hold better have chosen Betty,"

"No I think."

Mrs. Revelsworth's keen eyes scrutinized his face.

"So Betty's more your style?"

Dudley reddened.

"Her style," he said, "I only meant that Betty is more the style that makes a man happy."

"But every man's style a man falls in love with!"

"That most men will fall in love with—certainly."

"But are you not one of them?"

Dudley was inclined to resent his aunt's abrupt cross-questioning, but fearing that to do so he could not fail to be struck by the anxiety expressed in her eyes, he watched him.

"Francesca is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen," he said gravely.

"She is beautiful certainly," Mrs. Revelsworth replied, speaking in a lower tone than the sweetly tones than was her wont. "And this letter of hers is a most letter-writer letter, and I admit that. Now I am not one of those silly people who talk about 'beauty and her style-deep' and 'handsome is as handsome does,' but I know well that nonsense came in; it isn't British-all, for certain. If you know Englishmen, you know better than in Mesopotamia the priests had all to be handsome. Now spot or blemish, and that all the chosen leaders were 'goodly and well favored.' I like to see handsome men and handsome women about me, but it must be one right and handsomeness. You may think I have been living so long out of the world, but I am not quite out of it yet, when my niece Frances lay back last night in that chair in which you are sitting now, taking stock of me with half shut eyes, it came to me that there was something wrong, something sinister in her good looks, and—it's a strange thing to say to say, we have never parted anything yet, but, when that girl comes to me I almost feel I am afraid of her!"

Dudley looked with frowning brows, deeply interested.

"As the light of a river that flows to the sea."

My soul rusheth ever in tumult to thee."

The lines, sung with much fervour by Victor to little's accompaniment, reached the ears of Mrs. Revelsworth and her nephew at that moment. They ended, however, with a half smile.

"You," Dudley said in a low voice, in answer to the unspoken question in his aunt's eyes—"Victor certainly admires Francesca very much, but he does not as a rule take his love-affairs much to heart."

"Frenchmen never do!" said the old lady, with sort of disdain for all "foreigners."

"At the same time," pursued Dudley slowly, "I would even in the face of things rather a desirable arrangement, would it not, for two out of the three Revelsworths to marry and make their interests one? And, as I said, old sort of romantic attraction, half repulsion I feel about Francesca."

"Then I do too!" the old lady cried triumphantly.

"Something like it; though in my case it amounts to no more than an unwillingness to become her slave. What I was going to say was that her beauty is so unique, and shows so unusual a blending of the healthy fairness of an Englishwoman with a touch of Italian voluptuousness and warmth of color, that it probably impresses us oddly, simply because we have never seen it before, and inclines us to be mistrustful and perhaps unjust towards her."

"You are not in love with her, I hope?" said Mrs. Revelsworth sharply.

"I will answer that,"

"I wish to Heaven," the old lady exclaimed irrelevantly, "that she had stopped in Italy! Surely you and your brother could contrive to set up a rivalry against each other."

"It remains to be seen," said Dudley quietly, "whether she intends to encourage either of us. A girl with that accomplished air and single mind at the twenty-five nobly on her mother's account is not likely to fall in love with her first suitor. Bravo, Victor! You sing like 'Faust' and indeed." Who is the composer?"

And so the conversation on the subject of Francesca ended.

The first post on the following day brought Revelsworth a short note from Francesca, written on plain paper without heading.

"Dear aunt Margaret," it began. "How can we say mother and thank you for your kindness? Believe me, we are grateful. I have only just found my brother, and he is going to the Simpson's office, and have already arranged to go to Scotland from here to-morrow afternoon. We hope to arrive at Revelsworth House about six o'clock.

"Always your grateful and affectionate niece,

"Frances Revelsworth."

"And surely enough, a few minutes past six on the following day, Mrs. Revelsworth, seated at her bedroom window, with a shawl round her head, perceived a closed fly coming slowly from the direction of Wilton, and announced her approach to her companion.

"They have had to go to carriage out up because of the rain, no doubt," she, Revelsworth muttered.

"I am sorry that I had suddenly changed for the worse, and a deluge had been pouring down for the last hour or so all day."

"I am really anxious to see this paragon of loveliness," Mrs. Revelsworth presently said, as the cab drew nearer. "Both these boys have spoken to me about her beauty. She's been married and divorced, and has a child abroad, and of course paralysis ages a woman. Yes can, there she is, with Betty, and baby Wilton to lift her from the fly. Good Heavens! Is it a woman or a monster?"

"Mrs. Revelsworth was by this time close at the window, for little Betty had flown from the room to assist the herald. But the old lady could not repress her feelings of astonishment at the long, lengthened form discovered the short bent form and malignantly-ugly face of the pained woman whom Wilton and Francesca between them were assisting from the carriage. Viewed from the bay-window above, Mrs. Harold Revelsworth appeared absolutely wicked—like with her pallid wrinkled skin, hooked nose, and prepossessing black eyes, as she lay, in a huddle bundle, in the arms of her stalwart daughter and Wellden, and blinked with her malignant gray eyebrows at the house into which she was being borne. A feeling of something inexplicable amounting almost to horror crept over Revelsworth as those evil, black-like eyes fixed themselves upon her own keen blue ones close to the bay-window. She had risen from Wilton in her involuntary excitement, and her tall form, in its voluminous purple silk gown and lace cap, was clearly visible to those without. Mrs. Harold Revelsworth had seen her—that was evident. A strange tremor, almost amounting to paralysis, overtook the upright frame, and the naturally bright color of her cheeks, her throat, with trembling hands, she sought her chair and sank down upon it.

"I have lived too much alone," she murmured to herself, "and I must be getting weak-witted with age. For it seems to me I have admitted a bundle of rubbish into my house."

Down-stairs, Betty Mannington was experiencing a similar shock. Mrs. Harold's looks did not improve at close quarters. As the passage from the fly to the house her bonnet had become disarranged, and the long ringlets of straight iron-black and iron-gray, which fell over her brow down her wrinkled cheeks so greatly emphasized her remarkable ugliness that Betty had to make an effort to keep from screaming at the sight of her.

From the windows of the library in front of the house Dudley and Victor beheld their strange-looking aunt's arrival with dismay.

Was it possible, they asked themselves, that the lovely Francesca had a stroke of paralysis could transform the lovely black-eyed hour whose picture they had so often admired as children, to that hideous and uncanny-looking little object with the hooked nose and its claw-like hands?

"But you Frances must be an angel indeed to be good to a mother like that," was Victor's conclusion; and Dudley agreed to do so with him.

In his secret heart however Dudley by no means shared his brother's sentiments on this subject. The abnormal pitch-dark hair which he fancied he detected in the ensuing eyes and cruel mouth of Francesca's mother impressed him as being most powerful and disagreeable manner. He had too much fairness himself to be inclined to be biased entirely wholly by first impressions, but the ugly face of his aunt Harold's widow would belong to any but an evil-natured woman he would have found it difficult to believe.

"There is something about all this which I don't understand," he told himself; "and I don't think any better of my beautiful cousin now that I have seen her mother."

Meantime little Betty was finding that the sensations of surprise and aversion which the first sight of Francesca's mother had inspired died away on better acquaintance.

Not one word escaped Mrs. Harold Revelsworth as she was carried up the shallow oak staircase across the passage on the first floor and through the private sitting-room to the bedroom beyond, and found sight of none towards the room which had been prepared for her use, but Betty, who, as Francesca's nurse by Betty's directions, flowers stood about in the room, and a comfortable sofa, installed invalid's chair was drawn to the hearth. Into this Mrs. Francesca's mother was lifted—silent, shrivelled, and relieved that she was not dead, and then, seeing the keen black eyes, which wandered restlessly about, fasting to every detail of her surroundings.

"Air!" she spoke, in a thin but not unmusical voice, with a marked foreign accent.

"I thank you, my good man; I thank you, Frances, my daughter. Forgive me that I have troubled you. You are very kind, kind indeed. Is there no old woman. The young man can now go, can he not?"

Cross-grained and cynical as Wellden was, he still possessed some vanity, and the expressions of gratitude he received from the old woman were not unpleasing to him. Still, he hastened to deny the soft impeachment.

"If as you mean me, madam, he said stolidly, "I am not old, and I am not a man at forty-seven isn't a young man any longer, more's the pity!"

"Old!" the old lady cried, murmured Mrs. Harold, "It is true, then, that in England, which is a great land, men get old. Ah, my friend, what if you knew? Old! Why, I am old! Only Heaven had seen it to strike you down! Then you would know what it is to be old!"

She ain't a bad sort, barring that she's got the temper of the devil," was Wellden's criticism later, when he discussed Mrs. Harold with his fellow servants. "But she's got a blarsaying tongue that don't take in a man of my years, that don't."

"My mother won't be able to come down-stairs to-day or for some days," Francesca explained to Betty. "The journey has her poor head when it carry her."

"You must be very strong!"

"Oh, she isn't heavy, and I am used to it!"

Francesca was standing behind her mother's chair as she spoke, with her hands resting on the back of it, and to new Mrs. Harold suddenly lower her head, and, as Betty saw her lips touch her daughter's hand, she did so, her wrinkled white-like face seemed transformed, as it bent down from the forecoat-black eyes, and for a few moments the hideous, repulsive look which overspread her features rendered them almost strangely beautiful.

Little Betty turned away with a lump in her throat. For a moment the mother's love had seemed to her, but in her early childhood came vividly back to her mind. But Betty, determined to make no responses to her mother's caresses, and when Mrs. Harold Mannington's eyes again sought her, she was composedly removing her hat and gloves before the glass of the other side of the room.

"So," thank you: I am not at all tired after my journey," Mrs. Harold said, in answer to Francesca's inquiries. "I have been kept up by the hope of seeing my dear brother's children—Margaret, and my two dear nephews, and the dear pretty little Betty Betty, of whom my daughter has told me so much. It will be so much pleasure for my invalid to have with her so sweet a companion. She has told me that you are fond of her."

"I shall be very glad indeed if I can do anything to make you happy and comfortable said Betty, "but Francesca worth has been watching for you and her mother for hours, and is very tired, poor. She will be so glad to have you back."

"Shall I see her before dinner? And the dear boys too?" Mrs. Harold inquired, with her head on one side.

"Mrs. Revelsworth is nearly eighty," replied Betty politely, "and I think though she is extremely active, she prefers her own somewhat early hours, and doesn't care about going up-stairs. But I am sure Mr. Dudley and Mr. Victor will be glad to see you. Would to come up if you are not too tired."

"I will wait, then, for Miss Betty ask them?"

After a moment it struck Betty that there was something almost fawning and cat-like in the servant-manner of Mrs. Harold's tones. But she dismissed the though as unworthy, and hurried off to tell the boys the news.

Left alone together, mother and daughter exchanged a long look, the older woman's eyes asked a question which the other replied in words.

"It is the younger."

Her lips formed the words silently and almost inaudibly.

The invalid nodded. Suddenly she seized her head on one side with a cry.

Francesca caught her meaning and, following the direction of the invalid's gaze, listened also.

Two Japanese screens divided the bedroom, separating the room from its more decorative aide. By a swift intuition Francesca guessed that behind one of these out of its place, and there, concealing on the floor, between the screens and the foot of the bed, she supposed to view the covering form of the lad Joseph Wellden.

CHAPTER XII.

A fierce angry look flashed swiftly into Francesca's face as her eyes fell upon Joseph's trembling form; but in a moment she had controlled her features and spoke in a voice was perfectly calm

"Get up! What are you doing here? Get up on your feet, and hang your head, glanced up at her furtively from under his long dark lashes.

"Don't you hear me? What were you doing here?"

"I wanted to see you," he muttered, in a thick voice, as he rose to his feet, or a third in order to do so.

"I had something to say to you." he replied in a sly sort manner. "Leave the quiet. I meant to come out when the others had gone."

"You had something to say to me? What was it?"

Joe was silent for a moment. Then he forked his head in the direction of the little old woman in lace-cap, whose glittering black eyes were fixed upon his face.

"I can't tell you before her," he muttered.

"Stupid boy!"

Crossing the room, Francesca opened the door and motioned imperiously to Joe to pass out through it before her. The boy obeyed, with the same furtive hang-dog look on his face; and, after a moment's interval, Miss Revelsworth joined him in the passage, carefully closed the door of her mother's room behind her.

"Now what have you got to say?" she asked sharply.

"Please, miss, the dog's dead."

"What dog?"

"The one that flew at you yesterday morning when you went out with the young French gentleman. It was the mastiff Britton—the one as gave me thy bite."

"Oh! And was it you who killed him?"

"No, miss. I wanted to, but I hadn't the heart."

"How did he die, then?"

"The vet' seemed to think somebody

Some Hints For the Bride to Be.

NOW that the season of summer weddings is over, brides will again in the country have leisure in which to contemplate. Among their many contemplations are those which pertain to the acknowledgment of wedding gifts. To acknowledge the receipt of one hundred and fifty presents; to thank the donor of each in a way that carries proof of life-long gratitude with it; and to find one hundred and fifty different styles of expressing the same sentiment, would be classed with the far away tasks of earth. Unless she was party to an elopement, no bride ever knew, on receiving what she did not expect during the last quarter of her honeymoon, the dimensions of polite correspondence. Those who were married last June have passed through the trying ordeal, but by those of next June, or next October, a few suggestions of timely character will doubtless be appreciated.

Although at the outset it appears difficult, the job of acknowledging wedding gifts is really one of the simplest known. It does not require even ingenuity or originality, all that is indispensable being a box of note-paper, a pen and a bottle of ink. When the young bride sits down to contemplate her array of presents, her first perplexity is to decide what to say to the donor of each. Nothing easier! Uncle Peter, for instance, has sent a heavily upholstered chair with a spring rocker. What could be more fitting than this as a reply to Uncle Peter?

My Darling Uncle—

I can not thank you half enough for your beautiful chair. It was awfully like you, so soft and easy. Every time we sit in it—Charley and I—we think of you. You simply come around soon and sit in it yourself.

Your loving niece, Clara.

P.S.—Charley and I had a perfectly lovely trip. It didn't rain a day while we were away.

That, dear girls, is the idea in crude shape. Your reading text does not always improve the quality of expression. The principle, however, will soon become apparent to you. No matter what the gift is, always effusively insist on its grave to come around and try it. "Dear Kate, drop in any time and have a six hour drive-thing tea-cups."

"Dear Aunt Carrie, be sure and stop whenever you are out this way and let poor you to drink from your charming decanter." "Dear Cousin Tom, your cuckoo clock is a dream! Don't forget to set your watch by it whenever you're in the neighborhood." And so forth. No trouble. Sips from tea-cups and vinegar cruets; seats in chairs and divans; catnaps on lounges at all hours and food from forks. If your gift gives you a house tell him to come down and live in it whenever he feels like it. Follow this plan and rest easily. Your temper will keep sweet and no one suicide will be offended.

Carrying the idea a step further, it will remain for some enterprising bride-to-be to send out supplementary notes with all her wedding invitations. Well known is it that the gift feature of a modern ceremony is far from being perfect. Duplicates continue to come in, despite the most judicious hints thrown out beforehand by the bride-to-be and her near relatives. Finally, when seven water-bottles and six ice-cream sets arrive in one day, the limit is reached and the pretty-soon-bride realizes it, but what can she do? It is too late to remedy the matter, so the duplicates hold the fort.

With what ease, however, could all annoyances be averted by the adoption of the Surprise Party system; the method which inclosses with each invitation a request to please furnish cake or to please bring lemonade. Applied to a wedding this method would work like a charm. Duplicates among the presents would be impossible, for each guest and her name home well-nigh furnished with gifts, if proper discrimination was observed and memoranda cards sent out. Uncle Paul, who ordered the silver set, should be asked to please furnish a set of bronzes. He can afford them, and the note relieves him of the necessity of thinking. Consideration, of course, should always be observed, and the value of the present asked for should be measured by the pocket-book of the party to whom the invitation is sent.

If next June's copy of brides, whether they belong to the blushing class or not, adopt these well-meaning suggestions, they will stave off many an attack of Americanitis.

Henri—You will hear fr-r-rom us!

The Umpire—Gentlemen, I am aware you satisfactions whenever you wesh. Only you must put eet on file at least tree weeks—I haf so many cessaire duels of se same sort zat all my time is taken up day an' night. Is it agreed? Tray bong, messieurs.

They all bow extravagantly, and Alphonse and Henri kiss each other on the cheek as they retire to the bench. The game then proceeds.

Katie and Willie are twins, aged five. During a recent visit to their grandparents, who live in the country and keep chickens, the twins were cautioned in their strife to see what could find the most eggs, never to take any but small eggs. One morning Katie reached a nest first, and, seizing the forbidden egg, started for the house. Willie hurried after her, shouting: "Grandma! Grandma! Katie's got the egg the old hen measures by."

APPRECIATED WHITE WEAR VALUES

That excellent White Wear values have not lost their fascination was clearly proven by the large number of ladies who visited our Mantle Room on Monday.

"Best we have ever seen" was the opinion heard on all sides from the ladies, and who are better able to judge the beauty of trimming and neatness of work in these underpriced garments.

White Wear selling has been one of the many things to build us a reputation for reliable low priced goods.

Judging from the number who have already made satisfactory purchases this reputation will—if possible—be strengthened.

Perhaps you could not come on Monday. If so come in to-day.

The quantities are liberal—although selling fast we have still a large assortment of prices and styles. Read these:

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tail ors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

W. M. S. Matters.

The quarterly meeting of the Sidney, Scott's and Pleasant View Auxiliaries of W. M. Society was held at the Stone Church, 4th Con. Sidney, June 16th, at 2.30 p.m. About forty members were present from the different appointments, also a number of visitors. Mrs. L. Massey, Pres. of Sidney Aux., conducted the meeting. The programme consisted of missionary readings and recitations on the work, also singing by the young people of the neighborhood. A beautiful solo was given by Mrs. Avelina Ira and a duet, well rendered, by Misdames D. E. and G. Ketcheson. Refreshments, though sad, features of the meeting, was the presentation to Mrs. Massey, who is a purse of gold gift from the ladies of the circuit. All felt sad as they thought she was so soon to leave us for her new field of labor. She will be much missed as our president of this branch; also as an earnest worker in our League, and Sunday School, and in the neighborhood, when any were sick or in need, she was truly a mother in Israel. After a feeling reply by Mrs. Tonkin, light refreshments were served, and all went home feeling it was good to be there.

WHY CATARRH IS FATAL.

Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation, that saps vitality, and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a fragrant germ-destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and relieves and never fails to perfectly cure bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit $1. Small size 25c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Wedding Bells.

On Wednesday evening, June 17th, at seven o'clock, a quiet but exceedingly pretty home wedding took place, when Miss Ethel P. Little, youngest daughter of Mrs. Thomas Little, of Murray, was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. F. Cole, Rev. Mr. Coon'ourtie, of Frankford, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her eldest brother, Mr. J. Little, looked very sweet and girlish in a beautiful gown of ivory taffeta, with a bridal veil caught by orange blossoms. Two little cousins of the bride, Misses Beasie and Louise Demorest, were flower girls, wearing white organdie. The bridesmaid was Miss Maude Clarke, who wore cream taffeta. The duties of best man were ably performed by Mr. Geo. Cole, brother of the bride. Miss B. Cole, of Albert College, sister of the groom, played the wedding march. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome gold watch and chain, to the bridesmaid a beautiful pearl crescent, and to the groomsmen a pearl stick pin. The happy couple, amid showers of rice and good wishes for their future happiness, left for Rochester and on their return will take up their residence on Dale's Island.

Death Came Swiftly To Robert Leslie.

FELL OFF HIS WAGON ON THE MARKET THIS MORNING, AND DIED OF HEART DISEASE BEFORE MEDICAL AID COULD REACH HIM.

Like a thief in the night, without a moment's warning, death came this morning to Mr. Robert Leslie, whose home is in the 6th concession of Thurlow township. Mr. Leslie had driven into the city in a load of live hogs, and was in the act of getting them weighed upon the market scales when he fell from the wagon to the ground, striking heavily upon his face, making an abrasion on the left side. At the time there were a number around the scales, and as the unfortunate man did not move he was tenderly picked up and moved. It was apparent that his condition was serious. Did medical aid was summoned. Four physicians were soon upon the scene, but their services were not required, as the vital spark had fled before any one arrived. Heart disease was given as the cause of death, as he had been previously afflicted with that ailment.

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. Leslie, of Thurlow, Hastings county, and was 50 years of age. He was a son of Mr. Samuel Leslie, one of the best-known women residing in Thurlow. Robert was born and bred in the homestead, and had always lived at home. He was an industrious and upright man, and was highly spoken of by those who knew him. A brother and sister reside in the vicinity of Tweed, and they gained upon the lifeless form of their departed brother was touching. To the aged parents and members of the family the sad event will call forth sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends in this, their hour of bereavement.

The remains were taken to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial before being taken to the family residence.

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Peterboro Review: The Belleville team will undoubtedly be stronger when the three Indians, who, it is said, will reside in that city, are added to the team, but we have very confidence in the ability of the Athletics to win every or any combination that Belleville can put on the green.

We shall see, old chap; we shall see. Perhaps you may lose a little of that confidence before this time next month.

Indications point to a good game of lacrosse at the Driving Park on Friday afternoon, when the local boys will clash with Campbellford. The Campbellford team is a fast one, and used to make the best of 'em beatin in the old Trent Valley league. Belleville should be close on the leading, and the good people of this city ought to help the boys along by patronizing it.

UNPLEASANT PERSPIRATION

THE OFFENSIVE ODOR OF PERSPIRATION ELIMINATED BY FOOT RUM.

If there is any unpleasant perspiration odor from any part of the body, it can be entirely overcome by the use of Foot Rim. Dusted in the armpits or in the shoes, its antiseptic action is most effective, destroying those bacteria or germs which are the cause of perspiration and odor. Besides this, it is soothing, cooling and refreshing, and leaves a fresh, healthy purity on the most delicate skin. Foot Rim is for sale by druggists and by druggists or by mail. R. I. A MUSICAL EVENING.

THE SECOND CONCERT OF ALBERT COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES—A RECITAL BY PUPILS OF THE PIANO AND VOCAL DEPARTMENTS.

Music lovers who attended the recital at Albert College last evening spent a pleasant hour listening to a programme of instrumental and vocal music, which, considering that the performers were mainly pupils, was unusual excellence. The concert was a success throughout and the teachers of the music department are to be congratulated on the showing made by their pupils.

The programme was opened by a Concert Chorus, organ accompaniments by Miss de la Dauphine, nicely played by Miss Myrtle Foster. Then followed vocal and piano numbers, alternately, throughout the programme of nineteen numbers.

Miss Helen Vandewater played a Berwenal number pleasingly, and was followed by Miss Cora Thompson, who gave one of Liszt's Nocturnes. Then Miss May Trevillyan played "Valse Arabesque," by Lack. Miss Mabel McCaw showed excellent technique in "Staccato Caprice," Vogrich, and was Miss Helen Dyer gave a double number, (a) "Rustle of Spring," Sindling, (b) "If I were a Bird," Hensalt, both dainty little bits, which were suitably rendered. Miss Susie O'Flynn and Mr. Hunt played a "Concertstuck," by Weber, in a very pleasing number. Then Miss Laura LaVoie played Liszt's beautiful "Gondoliera, Venezia," bringing out the colorings and tone effects in a masterful composition. This number was perhaps the finest of the evening. As the last piano number, Misses Lowe and Wanda Riggs played a duet Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The first vocal number was the familiar "He was a Prince," nicely sung by Miss Mabel Flynn. Miss Devlin then gave Tosti's "Good-bye." The next number was a duet, "In the Dusk of the Twilight Fairies," by Misses Frances Manning and Miss Edna McNeal. Miss Manning has a fine voice, but they do not blend perfectly in duet. Miss Manning was encored to better advantage in Masenet's "Ave Maria," with piano, violin obligato, by Miss Maud Crothers, and organ, a well received number; Miss McNeal gave a fine rendering of "O, Dry Those Tears," Del Riego, also with piano, violin and organ. Miss Elma Wiltse sang Adams' "Island of Dreams" with good tone, and Miss Maywell Sicks gave a dainty song, "Rose of My Heart," by Lohan. Miss Eva Horton sang rather a difficult number, "Love, the Pedlar," by Gerrish, in which her fresh soprano voice showed to advantage. Mr. T. Holgate gave the popular "Admiral's Broom," in his usual popular style, and Mr. Gerald Ellis sang Phillips' "Song of the Desert."

The accompanists for the evening were Misses La Voie, Thompson and Dafoe. The two latter evening ladies have not appeared in this capacity with recently, but did quite good accompanists. Miss Thompson follows nicely, accents the accompaniment in proper or secondary place, but perhaps does not support the singer quite as closely as she might. Miss Dafoe seems to have a slight difficulty in following.

The good these concerts and recitals are doing by inculcating a love for the best in music was shown last evening, when every number given was encored, the most insistent interest.

A misstatement was made in the report of Monday evening's concert. It was stated that the elocution contest was to be conducted by Mrs. Aid. McFee. This year the conditions governing the winning of the medals have been altered, and it now goes to the graduate in elocution, provided he or she obtains a certain standing in the examinations. The contest on Monday night was for a money prize.

A certain congressman who had instructed his butler to tell all seekers after office that he was in Europe and could not be seen, was recently visited by a constituent who had a job for the exploit. He called every day at the house, but no matter what time he presented himself he was invariably informed that the congressman was in Europe. The constituent finally sent one day to the servant: "Say! Sandford is in Europe. I want him! Tell him he is through with his habits of dissipation and must come home at once!" The statesman soon waited his honor on the constituent, and on the following day he received number 2 of the unexpected communication: "Sandford has written. Come home at once. Am in need of your services. Your persevering, in getting your body clean for a few days, has at last won. I will spend the rest of your life in a bottle, but I would not justify your confidence or your political record."

A correspondent of the "Scandinavian" tells the story of the origin of the following story of the origin of the absorbed devotion of the late Lord Iddesleigh to the things of eternity. "One day I was walking through the fields with him, when he came to the telegraph wires at the point where they pass from the poles into a nice meadow, for Lis instead of stopping there to admire the beauty of the meadows and although Lis Lordship was not a man to be interested in the technical business of the Commercial Telegraph Company, he at once directed my attention to the Rev. Joseph Parker, who was standing on the meadow side of the wires, and who was evidently waiting to tap the wires. The engaging Baker at once began to converse with him, and entertained the unconscious man with an able pole-climbing exhibition, which was quite a novelty to the wire. Descending down the pole with a most graceful sweep of the body, he remained at the end of the line for a while, and then after words proceeded to the next pole. Lis lordship, who had only fooled the old man," Lid, however, been deluded, and remained at the end of the line for quite a long time, before he discovered the trick that had been played upon him."

NOTHING LIKE EXPERIENCE.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than a thousand maxims learned by rote." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine for children's coughs, colds and croup, and he chokes matches, he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, for that he is liable at any time, and he will then tell his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. Curious Bits of News.

It is said that the pawnshops of Paris are filled with bicycles, and that when the wheels are put up at auction it is hard to get a good bid for them. "What a change has come over the scene in a few years," says a Paris paper. "And may not a prophecy regarding automobiles be safely risked? It seems but a matter of time to deal with most fads and fancies."

The Canadian Gazette" (London, England), prints a paragraph stating that a professor in a Toronto college made a test of the literary knowledge of 40 of the second-year students. Two of the 40 could mention six plays of Shakespeare, 14 did not know who wrote "Paradise Lost," 20 did not know Walter, 34 were unacquainted with Falstaff, 36 could not mention a single quotation from Pope, 36 were similarly ignorant of Wordsworth and Browning.

Some days ago a swarm of bees entered a weddding letter-box near Mallinger, in Ireland. A number of letters were in the box, and the postmaster-general offered a reward of two shillings (50c cents) to any person discovering the bees. The reward was submitted in the sending of a stinging letter from the owner of the swarm, who threatened, if the bees were injured, to take legal proceedings against Lord Londonderry, as his own offer to remove the intruders was ordered from the premises by order of the post-office authorities to allow the door of the letter-box to be closed.

During the burning of the Standard theatre in Jersey City, Thursday, N.J., m. July, 1906, an immense column of smoke, shaped at the top like an enormous mushroom, rose into the air, where very little wind was stirring, to an elevation, measured by telescope, of 10,000 feet, or more than two miles and a half. After the conflagration this cloud formed in an otherwise cloudless sky, and remained there for days. Then, before continuing to burn and the smoke to rise. After the explosion of a gas-oil-tank dimmed shot up to a height of 1,000 feet, and the dark radiated from them was felt at a distance of a mile and three-quarters, where it was more noticeable than close to the fire.

Houghton Hall, which is to be the residence of the British heir apparent and of the Duchess of Cornwall on their return from their trip around the world, enjoys the peculiar distinction of being haunted, not merely by one but by two ghosts. The one is supposed to be the ghost of Dorothy Walpole, wife of Sir Robert Walpole and wife of Viscount Townshend, a little brown figure who enjoys the evening air and disturbed the rest of King George IV. at Houghton Hall, and of having scared him away. Another is said to be that of a woman who put him in a room which they knew to be haunted. The ghost is under-stood to be that of a member of the Walpole family who was shot by his brother on the premises, which is supposed to haunt the billiard-room after dark.

The old rule for obtaining one's expectation of life—subtracting your present age from 86 and dividing by 3 and a-half—which has been found useful by the newspapers for many years, is found to be used by insurance companies. The rule which was based upon 86 years as the limit of life is now considered obsolete. It was originated by Demoivre, whose name it bears, and was first set forth in writing, writing, in 1725. It was at first deemed correct by insurance men, and was used by the Northampton Company in 1780 in preparing tables when His Insurance was comparatively new. By these tables a person of 20 was expect to live 38 years; one of 30, 33 years; one of 40, 21 years. According to the modern computation a person of 20 may expect to live 41 years; a person of 30, 34 years; a person of 40, 28 years; a person of 50, 21 years; and a person of 60, 15 years, figures being given without the decimals.

A Chinese Funeral.

A prominent Chinaman died the other day in Boston, and his fellow-countrymen, according to their custom, prepared to bury him with the rites of their race and religion.

The coffin was placed on trestles in the middle of the street. At its head stood a small table on which were platters containing roast pigs, a fowl and other food. At the feet lay a mat. From the houses on either side the friends of the dead man came, in white garments, and burn joss-sticks and offer prayers. The dead man's son, also dressed in white, came out alone, and loosening the long hair of his queue spread it long about his face, knelt sobbing on the mat.

Then, rising, all we see them are a comical people, but it was plain that the son was a mourner in fact as well as in name, and that bearing counts for anything, so, too, were some of the loud sighs of his friends.

Meantime a crowd—of white men—was collecting on the sidewalk, and in a little while was pressing close about the coffin and commenting aloud and cracking jokes. In the very midst of the service a photographer pushed to the front, and, shoving some of the mourners aside, ordered others to stand where they were while he took a picture of the ceremony for an afternoon paper.

Let us suppose for a moment, says the "Youth's Companion," that the scene is shifted from Boston to Pekin, that the mourners are Americans instead of Chinamen, the rites Christian instead of pagan; now crowd the spot with a mob of unbridled strangers, who chatter in a strange tongue and laugh, and having satisfied their curiosity, go away. Is it hard to imagine the feelings of the dead man's son in either case?

Worse and Worse.

"'Cordin' t' th' statoots," began Judge Wayback, as he stood up, "I'll see t' it, sir, I'll see t' it!" pennyfeed Jury.

"Fool!" exclaimed the lawyer for the defendant, jumping to his feet, "there are extenuating circumstances."

"They is?" cried the Judge in alarm. "Sit I thought that, durned if I would-n't give 'im fifteen years."

Teacher—As I have been telling you, there are two general classes of workers. Tommy, does your father make his living by using his brains or by using his muscles? Tommy—Neither sir, ma'am; he's a policeman.

Anecdotal.

According to "Vanity Fair," a celebrated painter met a young soldier in Piccadilly the other day, and greeted him with surprise: "Well, I am pleased to see you! I am surprised! Do you know I painted a picture of your face?" "Yes," replied the soldier, "I saw it." "Ah, well," laughed the other, "I can safely spare that; it never got a better likeness of you."

In one of his conversations with Archbishop Hare, Chief Justice Sharswood, he was sitting on the bench in Ireland, and after a case had been tried he said to the prisoner: "Now, to consider this matter, you will remember, gentlemen of the jury, and two-thirds of them went into the dock. Another time he said to a prisoner, "I see gentlemen of witnesses who saw you steal that cow." "Yes," said the prisoner, "and I can produce five hundred who did not."

One of the stories told in the street London just now deals with Sir Henry Irving's revival of "Coriolanus." In this, he will remember, he appears in rose. During one of the later rehearsals a consultation was held on the stage between Sir Henry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who wrote the music, and Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, who designed the scenery. "Leave it to me, my knights," remarked a superintendent. "You," replied another, "and that's about as much as any of us will leave to you."

The Duke of Wellington was once much surprised by receiving a letter in which he read as follows: "Being in the neighborhood, I take the liberty of permission to see some of your grace's horses, dogs, and cows." He answered it, the Bishop of London tells us, he had great pleasure in assenting to the request, and added that he should be had given him very considerable surprise. The letter was returned to him in confusion. The note was from London, the writer's intention was to say "brooches" should have been read "brooches."

On being ushered into the house of Commons a few days ago, a visitor noticed that a mammoth tiger-rug was spread across the floor of the reception room. In his surprise, he remarked: "I should think, doctor, that you, of all men, would be the last to keep the emblem of Tammany Hall so prominently displayed." "Not at all," replied the doctor, hurst smiled, and replied: "I keep the tiger here to remind me that the enemy is always near. Then, again, I keep the tiger here to walk all over occasionally."

It is said that not long ago Rear-Admiral Evans was pictured a fervent admirable houses of worship in New York city. He was not a church goer, but he was not very expensively dressed. Soon after the admiral was married his self a man and his wife entered. He was in mourning, and noting out his card wrote on it: "Do you know I've not a hundred dollars a year for this pew?" Not to be outdone in courtesy, Admiral Evans took one of his own cards, and above his name, which immediately after his naval rank, wrote in reply: "Well, you pay too much for mine."

A country minister in a certain town took permanent leave of his congregation in the following pathetic manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say farewell. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love me, because I will but not very expensively dressed. Soon after the admiral married his wife a man and his wife entered. He was in mourning, and noting out his card wrote on it: "Do you know I've not a hundred dollars a year for this pew?" Not to be outdone in courtesy, Admiral Evans took one of his own cards, and above his name, which immediately after his naval rank, wrote in reply: "Well, you pay too much for mine."

A Human Curiosity.

There are bad bargains that we remember sometimes with regret and often a little bitter amusement. Says Mrs. E. D. Gillespie in her "Book of Bargains":

"My father had taken some land in Illinois for a debt and for it he had never visited. After he had paid taxes on it for several years, he was asked to sell the tract. He agreed to do it, and named the price. He was sure he must be had paid for it, without the taxes.

The deeds were scarcely signed when my father found that a city, Peoria, had grown up on the spot, so his was naturally disappointed at what seemed the block of the purchaser, but several years after his annoyance was linged into amusement. A man came into his office and asked:

"Are you W. J. Duane?"

"Yes."

"Did you own the site of the city of Peoria?"

"Yes."

"Would you sell it for six hundred dollars?"

"Yes."

"The man rose from his chair.

"Good-day, sir," he said. "I only thought I'd like to look at you."

The Swiftest Creatures.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four-footed animals, and the speed may be regarded as equal to that of harrier pigeons. English greyhounds are which are carefully selected, and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between 25 yards and twenty-three yards every second. How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely, if ever, exceeds nineteen yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards. These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dauchier has fully proved the right of the greyhound to rank as the swiftest of dogs and quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY JUNE 25, 1903 NO. 46

BEFORE THE BAR OF THE HOUSE

Hector Charlesworth, Reporter of The Toronto News.

Sent a Note to Mr. Pettypiece, a Member of the House, Marked "Personal," But It Contained an Offensive Word and "Toombstone" Had to Make Personal Apology—Written Under Extreme Provocation, Says Journalist.

Toronto, June 23.

Hector Charlesworth, the legislative reporter of The Toronto News, appeared before the bar of the house yesterday morning. He was in the history of the legislature that any one has been similarly situated, and quite a little interest attached to the individual. The offence was a note marked "personal" which Mr. Charlesworth sent by messenger to Mr. Pettypiece, the member for East Lambton, while the latter was on his feet making a speech in the house on Monday.

Mr. Pettypiece had been criticising the attitude of the Toronto Globe, the News, and former editor of The Globe, Mr. Charlesworth, regarding the remarks provoked the reporter to write the note. Mr. Pettypiece, on attributing his own journalistic ideas to Mr. Charlesworth, considered they were so offensive word. This was on Monday afternoon. Mr. Charlesworth saw the member for East Lambton after the Attorney-General's speech, and it was thought that nothing more would be heard of Mr. Pettypiece's note, however, had other intentions, and viewed the offensive communication in the light of a challenge, and on the opening of the house yesterday morning he rose in his place and brought the matter up. He said the usual practice in matters of this kind was for gentlemen to appear before the bar of the house, but he hoped the privilege would request the privilege of being allowed to withdraw without a formal motion being made.

Mr. Whitney considered this position. It was necessary to hedge about carefully the privileges and rights of members of the house, but it might be necessary to take similar action in other cases.

While not at all that was said at the time. When the Speaker took the chair in the afternoon the Attorney-General said he understood Mr. Charlesworth was prepared to make an explanation to the house.

Mr. Charlesworth's Statement.

Mr. Charlesworth was then called into the chamber by the sergeant-at-arms, and from his position before the "bar" made the following statement:

"Mr. Speaker—With reference to the letter addressed by me to the member for East Lambton, on which I submit I had justification, I can say that the communication was not in any way, in idea or in journalist and not upon his conduct as a member of the House. I am sorry that the personal communication passing between old and intimate friends of journalists, containing but one offensive word, which I should not have used under any circumstances, and that it was written under what I deemed extreme provocation. Since I am advised that it was an offence to the general honour of the house, I desire to apologize for it and regret the occurrence."

Mr. Rosebery replied: "On behalf of the house I accept the apology from the gentleman, and I hope that nothing of this kind will ever occur again."

Mr. Whitney said: "IT MAY BE WELL TO UNDERSTAND THAT WITHOUT THE PRIVILEGE OF BEING EVERY DAY THERE ARE OUTSIDERS WHO DO NOT ARE OUTSIDERS WHO DO NOT APPRECIATE THE TO ROAM OVER THE PREMISES, WHO USE PLAIN PERSONAL LANGUAGE TOWARDS HONORABLE GENTLEMEN ON THIS SIDE OF THE HOUSE, WHO HAVEN'T PAID ANY ATTENTION TO IT, WHO DON'T KNOW WHAT IN THE FUTURE."

The Speaker replied to.

The Speaker said he would be glad to hear a report of the matter.

The Premier agreed that any reference on the conduct of members, either private or public, should be brought to the attention of the Speaker.

THE GAMEY DEBATE.

Mr. Hoyle, Attorney-General Gibson, and Mr. Ramsay the Orators of the Day Yesterday.

Toronto, June 25.—In the Legislature this morning Mr. W. H. Hoyle (North Oxford) moved the motion of censure that he thought the members were well justified for having adjourned the house on the Wednesday on March 11 when making his charges against the House. At the time he says Mr. Gamey was in the North Perth by-election. Mr. Gamey then delivered a strong speech of an hour and a half, in which he criticised the government's timber and mining policies and outlined a policy of his own, whereby individuals would be able to establish small mills and make them little centres of industry. He had said that the Opposition did not realize the necessity for a radical change in the mining policy. He was greatly surprised, therefore, when he saw in The Globe the interview recanting these views. When the House met in March and Mr. Gamey rose to speak he expected to hear his reasons for going over to the Government. But he had been denied. He had decided to continue with his old friends it was surely no evidence of "unholy joy" when he applauded the member for Manitoulin's statement.

Treacherous Independent Press.

Mr. Hoyle criticised the Provincial Secretary's reference to the treachery of the independent press. He quoted from "A Bystander" in that morning's Weekly Sun, stating that it was clear that the member for Manitoulin had been bribed and asked whether The Sun was treacherous.

Mr. Stratton said that there was a difference between prejudging the case and offering comments after the investigation was over.

"Oh, that's your old friend, sub judice, again," said Mr. Hoyle.

Mr. Whitney said that the treachery probably consisted in not supporting the Government.

Defends the Government Branch.

Mr. Hoyle referred to an article in the Peterboro Examiner, which was doubtless inspired by the Provincial Secretary, in which great value was laid for Mr. Stratton for the success of the Liberal party at the late elections, the paper stating that Stratton's organization made the Government through. He, therefore, wished to compare this with the statement of the Provincial Secretary under oath that he did not know who the president or secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association was. He wanted the Provincial Secretary to explain the two statements.

Mr. Stratton repeated that he did not know at the time nor now who the president or who were the vice-president or secretary, or treasurer of the Liberal Association.

Mr. Hoyle said he had been misunderstood. He was merely instituting a comparison between the statement of the Provincial Secretary under oath that he did not know who the president or secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association was. He wanted the Provincial Secretary to explain the two statements.

Mr. Stratton repeated that he did not know at the time nor now who the president or who were the vice-president or secretary, or treasurer of the Liberal Association.

Mr. Hoyle said he had been misunderstood. He was merely instituting a comparison between the statement of the Provincial Secretary in the paper (if he made the article) and the statement made under oath.

But Mr. Stratton did not make any explanation.

Mr. Hoyle quoted from speeches by Earl Grey and Lord Palmerston, pointing out that the only way to avoid the "miserable political scandals" arising out of the wrongful use of patronage was to make the giving of patronage the right of both sides for a period. He, therefore, had said that long government by one party was one of the worst things for a country, when the patronage was in the hands of one party.

The Patronage System.

The patronage system, as abused by the Liberal party in Ontario, was to the unsatisfactory state of affairs existing to-day. The Judges' resignation on the question of patronage put there was no criticism there of the evil and the suggestion of a remedy.

Ontario's Augean Stable.

Mr. Hoyle concluded with an analogy between the present state of affairs and the old story of Augeus, who had a stable capable of holding 20,000 cattle, and which had not been cleaned for many years. At last he met Hercules, and asked him to clean it out. Hercules went there and "the Hercules," said Mr. Hoyle, pointing to Mr. Whitney, who would have in the great river of public opinion to clean out Ontario's Augean stables.

Mr. Ross—The river of Manitoulin.

Mr. Hoyle—Oh, no, that is only an inland lake, where you can't dive deep enough to find anything.

Defends Judges' Appointment.

Attorney-General Gibson defended the appointment of Gamey to the judiciary. They could not have the chief justice of the Court of Appeal because he was at that time the administrator. He (Gibson) was asked by Mr. Stratton for the success of the Liberal party at the late elections, the paper stating that Stratton's organization made the Government through. He, therefore, wished to compare this with the statement of the Provincial Secretary under oath that he did not know who the president or secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association was. He wanted the Provincial Secretary to explain the two statements.

Mr. Stratton repeated that he did not know at the time nor now who the president or who were the vice-president or secretary, or treasurer of the Liberal Association.

Mr. Hoyle said he had been misunderstood. He was merely instituting a comparison between the statement of the Provincial Secretary in the paper (if he made the article) and the statement made under oath.

But Mr. Stratton did not make any explanation.

Mr. Hoyle quoted from speeches by Earl Grey and Lord Palmerston, pointing out that the only way to avoid the "miserable political scandals" arising out of the wrongful use of patronage was to make the giving of patronage the right of both sides for a period. He, therefore, had said that long government by one party was one of the worst things for a country, when the patronage was in the hands of one party.

Theory of the Money.

Mr. Gamey had a protest hanging over his head at the time he attended Conservative caucus on Sept. 10. The $1,500 could easily be put up by Conservatives. It was the last thing that he would do for the party to be the bank and check it off for ordinary business purposes.

Mr. Gibson would not say that the money came from the Conservative party as a whole, but he did intend to say that he believed there would be found in the ranks of the members opposite those who might be trusted with seeing the gentleman brought in the matter of the $1,500. Stress was laid by the Opposition speakers on the fact that the protest was dropped, but the dropping of the protest as a charge was a consideration of support was flimsy.

He concluded that the protest had gone out of existence as others had and the matter had nothing to do with the interview between Mr. Stratton and Aylesworth or any other politicians. The protest had been dropped just because it was decided not to go on with it.

Cold Shoulder For Gamey.

Mr. Gibson went on to state that at the time of Mr. Hoyle's speech to Buffalo, the bank slip episode, and the missing pages of the cash book, they had not decided any change in the attitude of the hon. gentlemen opposite to the member. Mr. Gamey said he had received the cold shoulder when he came over to the House after the enquiry. Later symptoms of reconciliation appeared when Mr. Whitney invited Gamey to [illegible]. If it were true that the $1,500 came from the Conservatives that would indicate the change of attitude towards Gamey.

Mr. St. John—If the hon. gentleman is in earnest let him offer a resolution that the money for East Lambton was suspected of being the simple tool of the Provincial Secretary by which the Provincial Secretary could waylay the Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Gibson—I am not going to take his position in the House to the detriment of the constituency he holds and independence in a way Gamey never did.

Mr. Hanna said he did go to Buffalo, but without consulting anyone and found that Gamey was ready to come back immediately. He did not go there to coach Mr. Gamey up to act, nor had he any conversation with him at any time unless it was in the presence of one whose word would not be taken by anyone in the House.

Mr. Conmee began his speech at 9.45, and moved the adjournment at 10 o'clock.

MR. BLAIR'S RAILWAY BILL.

Long Discussion Over Speed Over Unprotected Highways.

Railways Will Be Required to Limit It to Ten Miles an Hour—Mr. Clarke Urges Better Protection at Level Crossings—Grade Separation Talked of—Crossings Must Not Be Held Longer Than Three Minutes.

Ottawa, June 25.—Mr. Cochrane, in the absence of Mr. Blair, moved the estimates Tuesday night, referred to Hon. Sydney Fisher as director of The Montreal Herald. Yesterday in the House Mr. Fisher rose to a question of privilege, and stated that he had sold his stock in The Herald and has become a Minister of the Crown.

Replying to Mr. Wilson, Mr. Sutherland stated that 15,703 immigrants landed at Quebec during May. Only six were rejected by the medical inspectors.

Mr. Hibbard supplied the information that Lawrence Herchmer, late of the mounted police, retired in 1900 on an allowance of $1,144 a year. Under the Pension Act passed last session he will receive $1,716 annuity of $440. The act will not be made retroactive.

Mr. Monk was informed that 88 officials employed by the railway department were transferred to the statistical staff at Ottawa between May 1st and Sept. 1st, 1903.

Mr. Blair's Railway Bill.

Mr. Clarke, K.C., East Toronto, offered some wise suggestions to Mr. Blair's railway bill. He thought that the railway railways to limit their speed over unprotected highways in thickly settled districts to six miles an hour was at the present rate of speed impossible for a street car to stop in 10 miles an hour.

The promoter of a bill should be required to deposit a sum sufficient to cover the rate to 10 miles an hour over public highways would be a sufficient check to make the railways gave protection to such crossings.

Mr. Blair replied that the board could be given power to make such regulations as they should think fit in the circumstances.

Mr. Fowler of King's said there was no public opinion behind the bill, except cities and watchmen.

Mr. Bennett's suggestion that the road should look after the question of protection to public crossings did not go far enough. Mr. Lancaster. He did not believe in delegating legislative powers to the board. Mr. Blair's bill was a good one, but the people had been killed at public crossings, and the damages brought in verdicts. The courts could not make such things right.

Mr. Kendall said he did not think more roads were blocked for 15 and 30 minutes by long trains.

Mr. Powell of King's complained particularly of the C. P. R. at Newmarket.

Mr. Bickell said he did not approve of Grand Trunk yards in East Toronto. There the whole country had to go down the one avenue on the main line. The train runs back and forth on the main line and sometimes those walks standing cars, and sometimes 20 minutes are held up for half an hour. Mr. Maclean stated that the Board of Commissioners had power to order that the railways be required to build and fix the proper way. The company at which he is director had built a bridge at Hamilton at a cost of $100,000.

Mr. Pugsley inserted an amendment to the clause providing that in the shunting of cars public traffic should not be interrupted for more than three minutes at a time.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:

To incorporate the Home Bank of Canada.—Dr. Osler.

To incorporate the Algonquin Lumber & Power Company.—Mr. Gould.

PETER ON HIS THRONE.

New Servian Monarch Was Crowned at a Cathedral Service—Cheered as a Sovereign.

Archbishop Made Protestation.

Belgrade, June 24.—King Peter arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning. He was received with great enthusiasm. The premier and the Austrian ambassador were present at the railway station.

The interior of the cathedral was filled by the traditional, picturesque ceremony of the offering of bread and salt by the Mayor of Belgrade.

Peter was crowned at a cathedral service. A torchlight procession was held to-night, and the King was cheered.

IRISH LAND BILL SAVED.

Secretary Wyndham's Amendment to Clause One Adopted with Cheers.

London, June 24.—The resumption of the debate in the House of Commons to-day on the Irish Land Bill was marked by the introduction by Mr. Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, of an amendment designed to remove the difficulties in regard to the retention in clause one of a provision that tenants under certain circumstances may purchase their holdings and permitting landlords to be made entitled to the judicial zones.

The amendment is hailed on all sides as being a great concession. John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, said that Gamey was ready to come back immediately. He did not go there to coach Mr. Gamey up to act, nor had he any conversation with him at any time unless it was in the presence of one whose word would not be taken by anyone in the House.

Mr. Conmee began his speech at 9.45, and moved the adjournment at 10 o'clock.

MR. WHITNEY AND THE GAMEY CHARGES.

The following article, from the pen of the former editor of the Toronto Globe, who now controls the Toronto News, is commended to all right-thinking men:

"It is occasion for the Liberal press to make such a bitter attack upon Mr. Whitney for his attitude towards the report of the Royal Commission. In the common judgment Mr. Whitney's speech on the report was a moderate, rational and forceful argument. It is not necessary to ascribe evil motives to the Judges when it is said that the report is not generally accepted by the thinking people of Ontario. It reads quite too much like a partisan speech in the Legislature and it gives a practical sanction to practices which tend, directly to make public life a pursuit for which self-respecting men do not care to engage. When it is pointed out that the system of making off-election petitions and of trafficking in patronage are not condemned by the report, we are told that it was no part of the duty of the Commissioners to preach political morality. In the next breath however, it is contended that all the practices revealed in the investigation are legitimized by the report of the Commission. If this were so, the report would be the most base that has ever been dealt to the integrity of public life in Canada.

"In his speech, Mr. Whitney very frankly admitted that, as respects the payment of money, to Mr. Gamey, the evidence was by no means conclusive. Upon all other points he condemned the report of the Commissioners and the proceedings of Mr. Stratton and his associates. This probably represents the common judgment on this whole miserable business, and so long as Mr. Whitney maintains this attitude he need not be afraid to face his 'accusers.' He is taken any other position, he would have stood before the province in the pitiful role of politroon. If the Liberal party of Ontario feel that they can carry the cause of political beaters who negotiated with Gamey, Mr. Whitney surely can afford to condemn the political methods exposed by the investigation. It is also necessary to understand that, when a Government undertakes to send charges against its honor and good repute to a tribunal of its own creation, whether composed of Judges or not, the right of public criticism as the conclusion is reached is not lost in the sense that the commissioners must not be subjected because they are Judges cannot receive a moment's consideration."

TIMELY TOPICS

Keep cool. It worse comes to worse, we can soon build an ark.

Farmers on low lands are getting rather worried.

The Toronto News very neatly agrees with Chauncey Depew that Canada is a "spoiled child of the Empire," because she has, in times past, been spoiled at times of her rights by the United States.

King Peter of Servia has arrived at Belgrade, and so far has not been assassinated.

Kingston's Police Magistrate has a fashion of dealing with juvenile offenders which seems to work successfully. He orders them flogged handsomely. How could that cure be improved upon?

The City Council will hold a special meeting to-night, and the business, it is whispered, is consideration of the gas question. Nine people out of every ten in this city think that the best way out of the present difficulty is for the city to secure a controlling interest in the works.

One thing is sure, things cannot go on much longer as they are. Something will look as though we must have gas and we must not have a monopoly. Considerable interest attaches to the meeting of the City Council this evening.

The business manager of The Toronto Globe, a bright business man, died of heart failure. And it's a wonder some of the Globe's editors don't, when they read the Reverend Editor-o's editorials.

There is a very large amount of truth in the following from The Toronto Telegram:

Judiciary should command respect Judiciary should command respect Judiciary should command respect by reason of its rank. It is not less important that the findings of the Judiciary should command respect by reason of their merits. Obloquy tributed a few ecountry's respect cannot possibly be offered re to deliverances which is more conspicuous for its errors than for its excellence."

Goldwin Smith, in the Weekly Sun of the 24th inst., writing on the Gamey debate in the Legislature of Ontario, gives his opinion as follows: "After all the tornado of mutual recrimination, the unfavorable wranglings of counsel, and the technical disqualification of the Bench, few of us are pretty much shaken as in the belief that an attempt was made to bribe Mr. Gamey to betray his duty to his constituents, and that the money came from a party fund formed and used with the privity of the leaders of the party." No honest man will say the "Amen!" to this view of the case.

To a witness who has been subpoened to give evidence. "Can't you forget some of those things?"—Hon. J. M. Stratton.

While the Grit papers are ransacking files of Conservative papers for opinions of Mr. Tarte, would it not be well to discover Sir Wilfrid's opinion of Tarte? "Nothing is too good for Tarte," and "When Tarte goes, I go."

WORSE AND MORE OF IT.

We have had lots of weather recently, and we have more of the same kind where that came from, and now you can't shirk it. The fact is positive that you must buy to-day. Our prices are so low you're going to get wet a few, more times and then suffer the consequences? Don't be a value in rainproof coats at the Oak Hall.

H. G. Wells' Criticism of "Americans."

"Fortnightly Review."

For example, the theory that every man is as good as his neighbor, and possibly a little better, has no effect in fact, and instead of the respectful silence in England there sometimes is such ordinary English mind—an extraordinary quantity of crude and ignorant criticism. Then you get as an impression that the sort of mind that is particularly active, and, as a consequence, particularly influential in American politics, American social affairs are perverted by a dis- tinct lowering of the level and do not want to hear. The real and steady development of American institutions is missed by the European observer, and it must be greatly hampered by the spirit of criticism of the four discoverer, and the American crop of new religions and new socialisms is one more and a warning to the common British Intelligence. They produce nothing in the world so absolutely despicable hold a theory that unhampered personal freedom for a hundred years has made out of the British type a type less deliberate and thought in exercise and more noisy and muffled in conduct, restless rather than indefatigable, and vainer less rather than intelligible, and altogether than who. If ninety-nine people out of the hundred in our race are vulgar and unwise, it does seem to be a fact that while the English fool is generally a shy and negative fool, content to hide the fact, the American fool is a loud and positive fool, who swamps much of the greatness of his country to many a casual observer from Europe altogether. American books, American papers, American manners and customs seem all for the showy and nine.

A SHREWD JOB.

"Readers in the matter of astronomy will remember," says Prof. W. W. Payne, in Popular Astronomy, "that more than one hundred years ago Sir William Herschel thought, on account of his knowledge of the proper motions of the stars, that the sun and all the rest of the system were moving in a straight line toward the constellation of Hercules. This wonderful conclusion has been spoken of by modern astronomers as 'one of the grandest steps for which Herschel was lastly famous' and he was mainly led to it by the study of no few than twenty-six proper motions of stars in that constellation. Since that time astronomers have been hard at work to measure the distances of some of the stars and the velocity with which they move in line of sight and in direction at right angles to it, so as to get information concerning the motion of Herschel's system. Methods have much improved, and it all tending to show that it was not wise to put in this early conclusion; still, later solutions are not entirely satisfactory, for there is an outstanding uncertainty regarding the point toward which our solar system is moving of at least 10 degrees, and the direction of the point is to be settled by the observations made in both the northern and the southern hemisphere at the same time."

TOURISTS.

There was a grand musical concert in the Method st church on Friday night. The ladies of the church served cake and ice cream to the crowd which filled the church to overflowing. Proceeds of the evening amounted to $80.

A Glimpse Into the Future.

HOMER G. WELSH is a Scotsman. Frank writes the "Captain's Letter" in Boston, and as a striking glimpse into the future he predicts what most Scots will consider a very highly colored item. His description of the New Republic is, of course, an arraignment of the present order of society.

"The men of the New Republic," says Mr. Welsh, "will not be squeamish either in facing or inflicting death, because they will have a higher opinion of the possibilities of life than we possess. They will have an ideal that will make living worth the while; like Abraham, they will have the faith to kill their own sons rather than be compromising about death. They will naturally regard the accident suicide as unworthy, melancholy or diseased or helpless person as a blot on the escutcheon of duty rather than a crime. And since they will regard, as indeed all men raised above a brutish level do regard, a very long term of imprisonment as infinitely worse than death, as being indeed death with a living misery added to its natural terror, they will, I conceive, where the whole tenor of a man's actions, and not simply some incidental or impulsive action, seems to prove him unfitted for real life in the world, consider him carefully and condemn him and remove him from being. All such killing will be done with an opiate, for death is too grave a thing to be made painful or dreadful and used as a deterrent from crime. If deterrent punishments are used at all in the code of the future, the deterrent will neither be death, nor mutilation of the body, nor mutilation of the life by imprisonment, but will be something very like that, but good scientifically caused pain, that will leave no shadow on the memory. Yet even the memory of overwhelming pain is not the only mutilation of the soul. The idea that only those who are fit to live freely in an orderly world should be permitted to live is entirely against the use of deterrent punishments at all. Against certain men conduct to children or women, perhaps, or very severely on brutal assaults of any sort, the men of the future may conceivably use a salutary remedy, at least during the pains of transition while the brute is still alive. But in the case of all this sort, do, under conditions that neither doctors nor scientists point to an essential difference in the perpetrator, I am inclined to think that even in these early years of the coming time will be far less distinction made between the sane and the insane. They will have another aspect to consider. Society cannot punish a man for the sake of the pain is against the better nature of man, and it is fitting that no man for any reason do undertake this duty. To kill under the second conditions seems to afford it a far less offensive thing. The rulers of the future will grudge making good people into jailers, warders, punishment desirers and the attendants on the bad. People who cannot live happily and freely in the world without ingesting the lives of others are better out of it. That is a current sentiment to-day, but the men of the New Republic will have the courage of their opinions."

Not What He Meant at All.

Politeness, it is true, must have its origin in a kind heart and a desire to please; but tact and thoughtfulness and quick wit are also essential to good manners.

A very stout hostess who was entertaining a large company one evening was in a group of young men standing near her chair and smilingly asked: "Which of you favorable one of the young gentlemen for a glass of water from the pitcher on the table?"

Several of the young men hurried to comply with the request. One, however, was particularly active, succeeded in reaching the table first.

As he handed the glass of water to the hostess she complimented him on his quickness.

"Oh, that's nothing," he said. "I am used to it. I got into many a circus and menagerie when I was a boy by carrying water for the elephant."

It was only when he saw the expression on the lady's face, and noticed the fat person on the lady's face, and noticed the fat person on the lady's face, and noticed the fat person

SUGGESTIONS.

The Story of a Prison Chaplain.

"YOU will no doubt tell me that I shall myself be to enjoled and befooled by a jailbird," remarked the chaplain. "Nevertheless against the imputation my story produces upon your mind of my honesty and critical experience of humanity, am a confident appeal to your generosity and hypocrisy, and I profess this story will be a mouthful enough to convince that I am persuaded of the genuineness of Mrs. Fullbrook's distress.

With that he pushed his chair a little back from the fire, and his pipe in his lap, and with his eyes fixed upon the fire, he told me the following extraordinary story:

Miles Fulham was sentenced to a long term of imprisonment on a charge of forgery. Her maiden name was Cheesman, and she was the daughter of a Canadian rancher. At the age of eighteen she married a man named Fulham, who came from Liverpool, and after some five years of life in Canada she went with him to England, where they settled down to a humble, handdrum existence in the suburbs of London. There were no children of the marriage.

The man, Thomas Fulham, was seven years older than his wife, and was a weak counterpart. Whereas she was small, fair, gentle and loving, he was large, huge, black, stern, and a man of iron determination. He was a man whose face expressive of the most profound melancholy, and the character of his mood was severe in the extreme. Even when he was frequently thrown into fits of gloomy depression, he would remain days. He was glum, taciturn, secretive His wife, at the time of her marriage, and for several years after, knew nothing of his antecedents. She was frightened by into her somewhat lonely life—a stirring looking man of magnificent physique a great talker, and a lover of solitude—and so powerful was the enchantment he exercised over her mind that for many months, thinking he did not care for her, she remained rooted both in mind and body. Her love for him was of the blind and unreasoning order—a passion, in fact, rather than a nance; the sort of love that is common enough in the most unsophisticated communities, however rare it may be in modern life. Indeed, it was only when she found herself in the grip of a man who persecuted her with a love as fanatical as her own, who forced upon her a personality that was not hers; and this man was the most terrible and powerful in the world! Her brain was possessed with the horror, and she did nothing but cry out, "It is a lie—a lie!"

He looked at her calmly as she said this, and then, as she sank down on the floor where she had dropped it, and with her handkerchief to her eyes, he picked it with the photograph in his pocket-book. She stood, trembling violently, while he slowly closed the book and put the elastic strap about its covers. The room was growing dark, and she remembered that the street lamp outside the window had been lighted as he replaced the book in his pocketbook and looked up at her. She could see his black eyes shining upon her as he stood with his head bent back, the flickering rays and tyrannic—the flame of the street lamp dancing against the window behind him.

He came to her, rested his fingers upon her shoulders, and looked down into her fixed intensity, his face close to her own. He spoke in a low voice, and as he spoke to her, that he stood there in the gloom facing her with the long and searching gaze. Some of the very words he spoke he put his arms about her, gathered her to his breast, and laid the head of the sick child, carried her from the little bed, and in the darkness delivered her tender to her. His very voice was a caress.

"Beloved," he said, "you are ill, though you do not know it—very ill. I will watch over you and nurse you till you are restored to me again, for I could not endure to be parted from you even now.

He assisted her to undress, and put her to bed, sat by her, holding her hand, beside, and, sitting there, holding her hand, talked to her soothingly.

"I once had a terrible dream, dearest; I dreamed that you were dead; that people came and bore you away from me, locked up in a coffin so that I could not see your face until the last day, and many dear hands, which they had folded upon your breast, I had to unclasp from you, and when I woke up and found you still with me, I could scarce believe that it was true, so strong was the terror of the dream upon my mind. And now that I am here in the full of reality, I know that my dream may come true. You must help, Mary—you must help to preserve me, for without you the devils will goad me to madness and destruction. Promise me that you will try to live."

The yearning in the last sentence filled the girl's heart with pity, and she kissed the hands fondling her own, promising that she would try, that she knew she would never leave him.

Then he sat down and talked of a past in which she had never shared. He described scenes in her home, her father, and her mother, and she listened amazed, and knew that he was talking of the home of his childhood, described it, and narrated four years before he married her. It was a horrible situation; to all his appeals, "Do you remember this?" and "Don't you recollect that day we rode to this place or that?" had to nod her head and express recollection of a past she knew nothing about.

Well, for the first day of this treatment she was overcome, and naturally urging her to learn all she could of this man's family life, and he never left her eyes to fetch food and drink, tending her with extraordinary fear and gentleness. Early on the next day her brain grew weary, and it was then that his demon first began its assault upon her consciousness.

Now, you know what it is to think during a conversation," I have heard all that, listen to it, or, during a scene, it suddenly strikes you that you have seen it—some scenario. You know all that, but there is no time for explanation. When the intelligence of the mind that is thinking of something else is instantaneously to the consciousness, it takes the form of a great flow of words at the very moment that you have been upon the drum of the ear. But let one look at it in the light of reason and worry, the attention flagging, and the mind, in consequence, relaxing its fatigue, that fraction of a second's interval in which the mind's working of the mind is sufficient to produce these words of another mind. It was the picture of a girl some twenty years of age, with bangs, curled eyes, and a beautiful gentle mouth. The hair was worn in the fashion of to-day, and there was no likeness between herself and this picture.

"This is not I," she said, looking up.

"Not physically, it is true, but possible that you have forgotten yourself!" he said.

"But, really, this is nonsense she."

"Not to me," he replied. "What could possibly have occurred to make you doubt the truth of your own identity! Look at the back of the photograph, and have written your own name there."

She turned the photograph over and there on the back, written across the photograph, in a bold, dark, masculine hand, was the name of Mary Townsend.

She looked up at his hands, and was regarding her with a smile of quiet triumph.

"Well?" he asked.

"This is all wrong," she said. "There is some mistake. My name is Mary Chambers. My own name is h."

"Mistakes sometimes occur," he said, smile tolerantly, he drew from his pocketbook a similar document, and passed it to his wife.

She opened it and saw that it was a certificate of marriage, and began to peer nervously, and tears rose-of her eyes. It was a certificate of the marriage between Thomas Fulham of Liverpool, England, and Mary Ann Townsend, of Salem, Ore.—four years before her own.

"What does it mean?" she cried, with a sob.

"It should convince you," he said, tently, "that your name is Mary, that you have written it on the back of the photograph, and that the signature at the back is your own."

"Oh, no!" she cried, starting up. "It is a lie!, I say it is a lie!"

At that moment, she told me, the poor thing felt the full force of her lonely sense. Without a relative in the world, she was in a strange country, and there was no one to whom she could appeal. She was in the absolute power of this man, and he knew it. Her brain was possessed with the idea that he was a madman, and that she was in the power of a madman. Hysterical Thomas Fulham. Eliza Chambers was forgotten.

She was weak in health, and her weakness increased. The growing heat of the day was passed on the sofa, her husband in the chair adjacent to her bed, and had become a complete invalid.

Three years after this, when she had almost forgotten her belief in the existence of Eliza Chambers, her husband came to her room one morning in a state of great excitement, with a letter in his hand.

"Mary," he cried, "I have had news from you, good news, too. You remember, your uncle, Jeremy Townsend, the ironmaster? He is dead, and he has left you a fortune—over £20,000!"

He came to the bedside, put the fluttering letter before her hands, and as she read it he placed his arms tenderly about her and kissed her.

Well, when she had received that fortune she believed herself to be the dear friend of Mary Townsend, and to be unswerving conviction. You can guess the sequel. Her husband spent the money wealth, other heirs in the States heard of the fortune, claimed it, and proved that her death were forthcoming; evidence that Mr. Fulham's second m—riage with Eliza Chambers had been a bigamous one, and then the newspapers here got hold of it, and rumours of the very awful things were in the air.

Reading from the account of the story in one of the papers, the conviction returned to Eliza Fulham that she was not Mary, the daughter of Auberon Townsend.

Bewildered and all confused—for her mind, I fully believe, was affected—she went to her husband.

"Read this!" she implored. "It is all not true, is it, about me? It is all a mistake—it is wrong, something is wrong! Tell me that it is wrong!"

Her husband wiped his knee, held her against his breast, and read the paper. Then he looked down at her, and looking him, he drew his breath in sharply, and his face grew deadly white.

And then—all in a minute—he sprang up, dinging her from him, and cried out in a loud voice:

"Mary in heaven—forgive me! I have been deceived! I have sent an innocent woman to her death!"

He was looking up, one arm raised above his head, the fist tightly clenched with the other he tore at his hair.

"What does it all mean?" she whispered.

He turned upon her a glance of the most horrible ferocity, shrinking back from her.

His brows were black with rage, his pectoral muscles were rigid with expression of loathing and contempt. He said, panting it gasily upon her head.

While she trembled before him, before him, however, his face suddenly softened, and he came to her tender eyes, and standing in his arms, fell upon her head.

"Against two women have I sinned," he said, slowly and intense way, "but to whom I forgot in death, and the woman whom I must forget in life."

And he left her—another word he went out of the room and out of the house.

She never saw him again. Shortly after this she was brought to her trial; she confessed everything as though she had impersonated the dead wife for purposes of greed, and was sentenced to nothing wrong with her mind she was sentenced to five years' penal detainment.

She attended her every day, struck by her fragile beauty and the extraordinary dreaminess of her great eyes, which gave the lie to her confession of premeditated guilt.

But it was only toward the end, when she was dying in the hospital, that she told me the story, and I went to see her husband and tell him that she knew that he had been deceived.

"He has never been discovered."

DEATHS DOOM—DESPITE CONQUERED—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH. Gentlemen,—I am a practical advisor and others and me I would not possibly why when I found relief to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery & Dyspepsia Cure, was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not get rid of it. I was induced to try your medicine and in 3 months I was entirely cured. I feel it my duty to make this statement, hoping that others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia. Signed, JEAN VALCOURT. Wotton, P.Q. Geneva, November 11th, 1902. is the birth given that town where a night's lodging and breakfast cost such a price. While this plan works splendidly, it must be universally adopted, or it merely serves to drive the vagrant to other towns.

"An Interested Citizen" writes: "I am greatly interested in the welfare of our birds. It is disgraceful the way in which the young lads are killing off our birds and destroying their nests. Please publish in your paper the penalty for shooting birds and robbing birds' nests, and also state whether people buying birds' eggs and encouraging others to rob birds' nests are held responsible."

The City Solicitor, Mr. W. C. Mikel, very courteously supplies us with the information requested by our correspondent, as follows:

By the Act for the protection of Insectivorous and other Birds, Chapter 229, R.S.O., 1897, it is unlawful to shoot, destroy, wound, catch or injure any wild native birds other than hawks, crows, blackbirds and English sparrows, or attempt to do so. It is also unlawful to expose same for sale or to have them in one's possession. It is also unlawful to take, injure, destroy or have in possession any nest, young or eggs of any bird except of hawks, blackbirds and English sparrows. Any person may take such birds unlawfully possessed from the person in charge of same and carry the same to a Justice of the Peace to be by him liberated if alive. It is the duty of market clerks, policemen or constables to seize and confiscate and if alive to liberate same. A person may on his own premises during the fruit season, for the protection of his fruit, shoot or destroy a robin. A person guilty of a breach of this Act may be fined $20.00, the whole of which may be awarded to the prosecutor.

Healthful Action Of the Bowels.

THE MOST CERTAIN MEANS OF AVOIDING SERIOUS AND DANGEROUS DISEASE.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

It is a crime against the body to neglect to keep the bowels regular. Constipation is the beginning of all sorts of ailments of the kidneys, liver and intestinal tract, and only by avoiding constipation can one hope to keep free from all of these other organs as it should be.

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is that they not only bring prompt relief to the sufferer from constipation and accompanying ills, but give a lasting benefit.

Mr. John L. Hickey, now caretaker of the Public and High Schools, Trenton, Ont., states:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them the greatest medicine I ever tried. I used them for some time, lumber camps and believe by keeping the kidneys and bowels regular and the general health good that they protect a person from catching consumption and pneumonia which are so common in the camps.

"I have seen hundreds of men using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the lumber camps, and they are backed by the dozen when going in, and to show how much faith they have in them they buy them when they could get their medicine for nothing by going to the hospital camp. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills keep my liver, kidneys and bowels regular, and my health good. I would not think of being without them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Attempted Train Wrecking.

Midday, June 24.—As John G. Weber was walking along the track between Hahn's crossing and Elora road crossing, just after dark, he came across several pieces of oak wood along the line, some being bolted securely fastened.

These evidently put there by those malicious person or persons for the purpose of derailing the incoming train.

Mr. Weber removed the wood and reported at once to G.T.R. Agent Clarken. An investigation will be made.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Our wireless special from the Forty-ninth at Barrieield says the most of that gallant regiment are having the time of their lives. The weather so far has been ideal—for ducks, and the boys are thinking of going on strike for waterproof suits.

Assuredly such weather as the present was never mentioned in the touching ballad entitled "The Good Old Summer Time."

Dr. Lindsley, secretary of the Connecticut Board of Health, makes the astounding statement that many babies die every year because their mothers feel selfish reasons refuse to nurse them, and are therefore guilty of the crime of infanticide.

A U.S. writer on the tramp problem tells how vagabonds scorn the woodyard and revolt at the snow shovel. But the supreme ingignity, he says, is the compulsory bath. In the few places where this has been tried it has proved effective. Wide

Have Women Intuition?

In a recent magazine article William S. Walsh discusses the question, "Have Women Intuition?" He does not throw bouquets to feminine vanity, for he writes:

Literature is the final expression of human thought. If women can lay claim to a special faculty of intuition, why do they not manifest it in their writings? Intuition, if it means anything, means the faculty that gets down to the germ of actions and characterization, and focuses external traits into a central verity recognizable to the general public. Now there are more female writers than male. No woman poet has ever written an intuitive line, a line that flashes spontaneously out of the human heart and itself illuminating light upon the abyss. Woman has added practically nothing to our stock of familiar quotations. Take down your Bartlett or your Anthology, and may be surprised to find that from Mrs. Browning to Mrs. Meynell women have never dropped a phrase which has passed into the common currency of speech. Mrs. Browning has indeed written fine lines, but nothing of hers can be said to have become a household word.

Nor has any woman novelist created any character that is generally recognized as typical. George Eliot has come closest with her Tito Melema and Mrs. Poyser. You would appeal only to the educated few if you described a woman as a Tito or a Poyser. But call a man a Don Quixote, a Micawber, a Shylock, a Falstaff, a Colonel Newcome, a Bilitri, a Parson Adams, a Bob Acres; call a woman a Mrs. Malaprop, a Becky Sharp, a Beatrice, a Diana Vernon, a Meg Merrilies, and even the illiterate will mentally classify the individual as you wish him or her to be classified.

"Ah, but," you say, "in real life women are the true intuitives. They size a man or a woman at a glance. They are never mistaken when they trust to their instincts."

I can only testify to my own experience. I have not found that women's many judgments of character are lumped with any special fidelity. They form likes or dislikes quicker than man does, because they are subject to the trigger of conjecture. They can only be one of two things—right or wrong. Sometimes they are right, as they must be in fifty per cent. of cases, but their right guess is generally not treasured up by the slower-minded man as an extraordinary instance of intuition. The wrong guess is forgotten.

Mary Anderson's Advice to Stage-Struck Girls.

Mrs. Antonio de Navarro, better known as Mary Anderson, has written a striking preface to Charles Morris's "Life in the Stage," which is on the eve of publication in England. In a glowing tribute to the American actress, Mrs. de Navarro declares: "She is the greatest emotional actress I ever saw," and adds the significant warning to stage-struck girls: "I hope she who writes this work will help to stem the tide of girls who so blindly rush into a profession of which they are ignorant, for which they are unfitted mentally, which dangers as numbered lurk on all sides. If with Clara Morris's power and charm, so much had to be suffered, what is, what must be, the lot of so many mediocrities who pass the same ordeal with no reward in the end?"

Taking the Waste.

The last word in the utilization of waste material seems to have been said by a correspondent of The American Analyst, it says The Literary Digest, who writes as follows to that paper about a New York factory for the transformation of old tin cans into various useful articles: "I was much surprised and greatly pleased to be shown through the factory by the courteous English establishment near Long Island City, to find that the raw material used in the manufacture of empty fruit and vegetable cans rescued by the carload from the dump heaps of the city, of hard coal, up to that time, that the only purpose for which it was used was to burn and the ashes of it so attached to the cans as to be unfortunate canines. The original process of this establishment, which is a foundry, are window-sash weights, door weights and other heavy cast boots. The weight castings are very hard, and when struck with a hammer ring like steel. About sixty tons of these castings are used for expanding screws and fire in the foundry the cans are brought in from the dump heaps and located under a huge, heavy, cast-iron machine, like a smokestack. They are sprinkled liberally with crude oil and then set on fire. The process consumes the labels, loosens the tin and melts the solder, which falls through the grating is collected, and is found to be pure enough to be sold to the refiners. The cans, which are found to have simply lapped and soldered joints, are next split completely; these are pressed out and the sheets forming the shell are straightened out. They are then found to be sold to trunkmakers, who utilize them for the bottoms of trunks. The castings for the fire-box are also sold to the trunk manufacturers, who stamp from them the handles and other trunk fittings. The remainder of the cans, being practically worthless, do not come apart. They are loaded into large carts, taken to the dump-floor on the second floor of the building and thrown into a furnace in the basement. This is a curious affair. It is constructed practically an old-fashioned coal-stove of tin-cooking used, but cans form the built of the material. There is a grate light that some of them are carried out at the top of the stack by the heat from the blast, and a large fan in the basement blows a strong draft up the stove from fall-on the floor. The ashes are rendered of The American Machinist to whom these facts are new there are any who have occasion to use the elevators in the skyscrapers of New York, I can tender such wondering how many empty cans it took to make the tin with which inclose the car in which they ride."

British Trade for 1902.

The annual statement of British trade for the year 1902 shows that as far as imports are concerned the highest figures ever reached are recorded—£523,981,174. The nearest approach to this was in 1900, when the imports amounted to £520,678,139. On the other hand, exports of British produce and manufactures for 1902 total only £283,822,000, as against £291,797,000 in 1900. The difference between imports and exports is therefore £239,159,000, and it means that to great at any period of the country's history, as a consequence. Many of the items of trade have an interest of their own. In 1902 we bought from other countries wool of £56,000,000 sterling, cotton of £37,000,000, and silk of £10,000,000, while the value of motor-cars imported is stated by value at £67,000, and exported to the value of £14,000. Our exports of gold bullion to countries of the world, the lowest bill in this respect for five years. The gold "sent out" exceeds by £6,000,000 the gold "received," and the net national account was the foreigners' debt to us, and not ours to foreigners. Interest on investments paid £104,000,000; profits and pensions cost well over £71,000,000 more for nearly the whole of that period. Among the criminals of the year 1902 were 1,500 persons and there at least 30 men and women of every rank in life who have been in prison on journey. Once in every year Queen Victoria. In his van Queen Victoria. In his van Ted Sowerbutts, was sent to prison in default of paying a fine for obstructing the street. In charge of him in the van had to wait while the prisoner drove off. Two fashionable girls walked up to the van by singing "The crowd" and cheered, and the Queen Victoria, have been much surprised at the cheerful strains proceeding from the black "musical box," as he termed it. Although the van contained prisoners, including six men charged with serious offences, Sergeant Delaspee has only once been attacked, and that by a man who was half mad. No prisoner has ever tried to escape from him, and he attributes his immunity from violence to the fact that he always treats his fellow-creatures with politeness. Of the 30 persons he has conveyed with twenty men, every one of whom was charged with some act of violence. He "boxed" sixteen of them in the tiny compartments, and spoke to all with the other four in the van. Of the sixteen, four were charged with assaulting the police, but there was no disorder evident on the ride, although a dense fog prevented the sergeant from proceeding at a casual pace. Peers of the realm have ridden in the van, and Sergeant Delaspee is a member of two club three members of the noble-born. The sergeant's name of "Black Maria" is rather that with police officers in the famous cabs. Of the murderers whom Mr. Delaspee has conveyed the most notorious were the German Muller, who killed a man by taking him up in a balloon and then cut Mrs. Pearcey, the murderess of Hammersmith. Mrs. Pearcey sweetheart. From the sergeant's description of the prisoner Mrs. Pearcey protested her innocence, and she was not likely to expect to be released. The other murderer on his way to trial, Thomas Bergerson, was very silent during the journey and was Bergerson's only companion. Bergerson was the best clerk in London for his age, and in the evening he returned, sentenced to death.

Surgery Seven Hundred Years Ago.

Surgical operations were performed on the human skull in America two hundred years before Columbus discovered it, says the Toledo "Blade." The gory tests done in those days were made on the skull of shells and flint hatchets. Many skulls have been discovered which illustrate the methods of these early surgeons. From the appearance of the skull it is also evident that a considerable proportion of those operated upon survived the ordeal. Dr. Wyman, who has probably performed to save the lives of those who received a serious wound with a club or a stone. Dr. Wyman considers the surgeons of those early days were skilful in nothing more effective than sharp shells or flint knives, the work is accomplished gradually. Hence the scraping the signs of similar operations also have been found in Europe, dating back to prehistoric times. In the South Sea Islands the operation was often performed with the same primitive implements. The most surgeons not only trephine to relieve pressure on the brain, but as a cure for epilepsy and certain forms of insanity. Trephining has been performed in this primitive way even as a cure for headache.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Foiled by the Man She Loves.

...lin fell upon me! I could then have been as trust you might have been proud of. But it is the will of Heaven! I must not complain." And with that she crossed herself devoutly. "You must tell your dear aunt," she proceeded, after a short pause, "how grateful I am for her kindness. I have been so poor—so poor—for so long—and all this beautiful darling here I should not be alive—that to have this beautiful home seems too good to be true. And to see my nephews, and one of them, such a handsome brother of whom my beloved husband was always talking—it is all too much happiness! You are like your husband," she went on, addressing Dudley—"very like him. Ah, was he not handsome and grand to look at with his blue eyes and his yellow curls and mustache—the grandest man that ever lived! Which is the youngest of you two?"

"I am, madame."

"Not Madame, but 'Aunt Anne'! You are not so like the Revelsworths; but you have the artistic face of the artist soul; I do not doubt. My husband had some of your hands, I remember. Ah, he was a superb artist, and without doubt you inherit his talent! How old are you, sapajou?"

"Twenty-three."

"Twenty-three!" she repeated, and looked at him reflectively. "It is the morning of life."

"That is the first dinner—ill, malvais," Francesca's voice here rose with a faint note of impatience. "My aunt doesn't like to be kept waiting; and we have only ten minutes to dress for it."

Her cousins were not unwilling to take the hint. Try as they would, they could not reconcile themselves to Mrs. Harold Revelsworth's stinted allowance. "The smallest aunt Anna," observed Victor, when the young men found themselves in their own room, "is without doubt a lady of the highest character; but as an unscrupulous old fox, eh! she what you call gives me the shakes!"

"How in the world she can ever have been goodlooking beats me!" observed Dudley, brushing vigorously to brush his curly hair. "And there's something common and servile in the fawning flattering manner. Didn't it strike you in that light?"

"But how, then, can she be common, when she comes of a noble Italian family?"

"Noble Italian families are sometimes confoundedly poor! It seems a mean thing to be hard upon a cripple; but Mrs. Harold Revelsworth's appearance and manner are certainly very much against her."

Left alone with her mother, the beautiful Francesca did not waste many words before hurrying to her room, which was adjacent, to change her dress.

"Don't overdo the politeness, mother," were all she said. "And, before I go, tell me what you think of him."

"Oh, la—la, will do, so will she," Mrs. Harold murmured softly, as she rubbed her chilly hands together.

"Already he has asked me to marry him."

"My beautiful queen, that is not surprising! And the other—the big one—eh?"

"He will ask me too, sooner or later."

"They are all yours—the men—you desire; they belong to you. But, away, my beauty, and put on your very pretty gown. Let him see what a princess you can look; my daughter!"

Alone with her mother, Mrs. Harold Revelsworth and Dudley left their room at the appointed time. Victor was not leaving here, and both young men agreed as to the unnecessary trouble to him in a dinner-gown of deep ruby velvet, cut in a small square at the neck, and with large sleeves reaching a little below the elbow, she looked like some superb Cleopatra—which comes to pass—the contrast between her white skin and the dark hair and eyes—was quite absolutely startling. Even Weldon who waited at table, and professed to regard himself in her very beauty.

"Dress does a lot," he subsequently confided to Dudley, and not "but that Francesca is a fine woman, and no mistake." Over late Mrs. Weldon was a fine woman in her way, though a temper-ed like a tigress. But this by-the-way, she's something out of the common good-looking. In my private opinion Norman is a handsome as her aint responsible for the damage they do.

"Because no beauty," said Oscar, with a toss of the head, "she's twenty-five and can't get a husband."

"Tut-tut, my-servant, Susan, and you haven't got one; tho', to do you justice, it your case it aint for want of crying!"

Up-stairs Weldon's betters were fully as much impressed as he by Francesca's splendid appearance. Mrs. Dudley and Victor found it difficult to keep their eyes off of her; and little Betty was in a state of admiration. Even Mrs. Revelsworth deigned to comment favorably upon her handsome costume.

"You've much too fine for a quiet little dinner with your relatives!" she observed. "Still, that's a very handsome dress. What's that nasty thing you've got on your arm?"

"That, Aunt Anne?" was Francesca's sole ornament—a bracelet of enamelled gold coiled round her left wrist in the form of a snake.

"It is my only bit of jewelery, aunt," Margaret. "I always wear it for luck."

"Luck! Why, it's a disgusting reptile, with a great ugly head—a loathsome thing to wear!"

"My father gave it to me a short time before he died," Francesca said in a low voice, "and I hope to wear it all my life."

Seated next to her, Victor looked down upon the trinket where it curled twice round the dazzling fairness of his cousin's arm. Without wishing to share his aunt's prejudice, a slight shudder at repulsion ran through him as he noted the realistic coloring of the animal-work; the dull green and brown tints of which faithfully reproduced those of certain breeds of vipers. The head especially, with its dark crown and yellow spotted throat, appeared disgustingly lifelike.

"But it is horrible!" he exclaimed! "You are too beautiful, Francesca, to wear so hideous ornament!"

"I cannot understand the popular prejudice against snakes," she said calmly. "They are often pretty and graceful, and very seldom venomous."

"We will take you to the snake house at the Zoo, Francesca, and show you Victor," said Dudley. "I should be waiting it for a waist-belt if I had such ornaments."

"A morbid fancy I call it," interposed Mrs. Revelsworth in decisive tones—"and I hate morbid fancies!"

"I am sure Francesca doesn't look a bit morbid," exclaimed little Betty, ever anxious to keep the peace. "Morbid people—I mean people who are morbid—are always pallid. Don't you remember, Mrs. Revelsworth, those Americans who stared at the White Hart Hotel all last summer and kept pet frogs? Dreadfully pallid they were, both!"

"But, Betty, there is no affinity between fleshy feeding and pallor," protested Dudley; and at his ready use of her Christian name both his aunt and cousin glanced quickly in Betty's direction.

The girl laughed and colored slightly. "But morbidity and pallor usually go together, don't they?" she said. "And Mrs. Revelsworth considered me fairly morbid."

"Allens donot" cried Victor. "Then all little girls who are what you call morbid, and assuredly they are not pale. I myself at school—I would have you to know, Miss Betty—was the only and shiny beetles in my hat, and a little—a very little—in my trousers-pocket at the same time. I loved animals, as you see."

"But, Francesca doesn't love animals," remarked Mrs. Revelsworth, who evidently cherished an animosity against her niece on account of her fondness for jewelry. "She objects to dogs, if I remember aright."

"I don't like savage ones, certainly," said Francesca gently; "but I try not to show that I am afraid of them."

"Talking of dogs," said Mrs. Revelsworth, "reminds me that I haven't seen Britton to-day. Surely he has come back by this time! Why do you all look so mysterious? Has the dog been stolen, or has anything happened to him? If he has been stolen or lost, Betty, tell me the truth about him at once."

"Poor Britton is not well," faltered Betty. But at the point Weldon, to whom Mrs. Revelsworth turned impatiently, blurted out the truth.

"Britton died last evening, ma'am I found him dead when you came back from the station."

"Britton dead!" exclaimed the old lady, rising in her chair, pale, excited, and angry. "Why was I not told of this? And how did it happen?"

"He was taken ill before mid-day yesterday," Betty explained. "We were afraid to tell you, for fear that the vet, and Mr. O'Kears was very good to him. But—I think he must have been fed wrong, and must also have eaten something that disagreed with him. He died very peacefully between five and six."

"And you let me eat my dinner without telling me!" It was most unfeeling and deceitful! Let me see the poor thing's corpse!"

"He was buried in the stable-yard to-day, Mrs. Revelsworth. Indeed we were afraid to spare you."

"I object to being spared by being kept in ignorance of what goes on in my own house!" said Mrs. Revelsworth sternly.

She was still standing, with features that trembled with agitation, she folded her table-napkin, laid it on the table, and, without another word to the rest of the company, she left her dinner untasted on her plate and stalked majestically from the room.

Little Betty rose also, and, begging the others to excuse her, hurried after her employer.

"Excitement is not good for her," she whispered as she left the room. "I must try to calm her."

The two young men half rose in their turn, and glanced at each other interrogatively. But Francesca resumed her dinner, and calmly requested Weldon to hand her the new potatoes.

"Of what use will it be, if we leave our dinners to follow her?" she asked her cousin philosophically in French. "She will be less angry in half an hour, and we shall be less hungry. It is a pity to lose this nice chicken and this excellent claret; and after all, it is not your fault she d... fought and was killed, and we shall not bring him to life by starving ourselves."

"Poor little Mademoiselle Betty will get the brunt of it!" observed Victor, as he and his brother resumed their seats. "She is so sympathetic and kind, the little Betty!"

"She is spoiled too, I am glad to say," Francesca remarked. "I met her sweetheart at Kingston Station yesterday—a most handsome and attractive young man. Some more asparagus, if you please!"

"Her sweetheart! Has she then a sweetheart?"

"He lives just opposite, across the Green, I believe, and rents the stables here. She is such a nice and pretty girl that I am greatly interested in her little affairs du coeur. But you must not tease her about it; I don't think she would like it."

"We shall be rather shy of going up into the drawing-room after that little countretête," Dudley presently remarked, "and yet I don't know what else we can do."

The incident seemed to have had the effect of separating the inmates of Revelsworth House into two camps—Mrs. Margaret and Betty in one, and in the other Francesca and the two young men.

"Aunt Margaret ought to have thought Betty and myself worthy of being invited to a billiard-room," said Miss Revelsworth, as she helped herself to a second peach.

"Who is going to suggest it to her?" asked Victor, with a comical grimace.

"I am," responded Francesca.

She was so calm, so grand and gracious in her self-possession, her sweet manners, and her evident enjoyment of her dinner, and so evidently without any fear of her aunt returning, that the two boy cousins looked at her in wonder and admiration. She had not the fashion of speaking to the servants, which language she appeared to be nearly as well acquainted as the gentlemen themselves, so that Weldon's and Simmons presence in no way embarrassed them.

"After all," she said, raising her head and looking from one to Dudley with those shining eyes which exercised so strange a fascination over him—"after all, we are the heirs to the property—we three—and it is only fair that a little attention should be paid to our comfort. It is not as if we were the days of our grandfathers, and had to be grateful for the fortune. Our aunt has done nothing; she only sent for us when she could not help herself. Why should we trouble ourselves in the least about her? I for one am not hypercritical, and I consider that, in having come here at all, we have done a deed of struggle and hardship for all of us, aunt Margaret has surely performed an act of penance—nothing more."

"Now is that, thought Dudley, "we have the true Francesca showing her hand."

For all that, he could not take his eyes off her. Her audacity, her calmness, her courage and frankness stirred to take his imagination captive almost as much as her beauty. It was a new tone. The way in which she, a poor relative on sufferance in the house of a wealthy and arbitrary old woman, had contrived to assert her individuality and establish her position in the space of a few hours absolutely amazed him. "There is an element of cruelty and hardness about her," was Dudley's mental comment; "but, by Jove, she is a grand creature!"

CHAPTER XIII

Before Francesca had been established two days in the house of Revelsworth House, it became clear that Mrs. Margaret Revelsworth's position as an absolute and unquestioned despot was gone.

Francesca was always courteous towards her, always considerate, and respectful towards her aunt, but absolutely indifferent, under the redoubtable old lady's wrath. She was invariably kept her point, whatever it was, whether it were, as food, or of the management of her leisure time. Ten days after her arrival she boldly asked her aunt to furnish at her expense the wife did not turn the library into a billiard-room. "It is not the right size," she explained calmly, "and it is of no use as a library—as I think it! There are only standard and educational works, such as nobody reads, on the shelves, and all the books are kept up-stairs. It would be no loss for the boys!"

"Perhaps," replied Mrs. Revelsworth in icy sarcastic tones, "being a young generation of actors, they may care a champion billard-player!"

"Oh, I mean to play, Margaret," Francesca returned, with a charming smile "I have very seldom seen either boy play. But it is an admirable thing to have a billiard-table when there are men in the house, and makes the room more interesting to them."

"Are there any other improvements which you can suggest in my house," inquired Mrs. Revelsworth, in a tone of emphasis "since you appear to consider it your own?"

"Dear aunt Margaret, such an idea never entered my head! At the same time I should be extremely glad to be given that little back room on this floor for my embroidery-frame. The room has nothing but lumber in it, and my frame is not large enough to take my work and little things."

"You may have the room if you like," Mrs. Revelsworth said ungraciously.

"You are very kind, aunt; but I must have it papered and furnished as I like, will you not?"

"And you have the money to pay for it," "Oh, I have no money!" exclaimed Francesca, with a little laugh. "I will have to ask the shop people to send in the bills to you, and trust to your generosity to pay them."

"I am not generous—I am only just."

"Well, if justice stops short of furnishing my little room," returned the imperturbable Francesca, "I suppose I must start giving lessons in French and Italian and fine embroideries in the neighborhood, and earn my living, as I used to do. But I don't think you would really like me to send out cards —Miss Francesca Revelsworth receives pupils from ten to four, or visits at pupils' houses. Introduction to your schools."

"You are insolent!"

"I beg your pardon, aunt Margaret, I did not mean to be. But I must certainly have some money, and, if you will not supply it, I must earn it."

Her voice was low and conversational, her manner of speaking so suave and agreeable, that any rudeness in the words themselves was lost sight of in her perfect method of saying them. It's was by no means the first occasion

DO YOU KNOW THOMAS HUNTLEY?

PEOPLE WHO KNEW HIM A YEAR AGO, AND SEE HIM NOW, HARDLY RECOGNIZE HIM—HE LOOKS SO WELL AND STRONG.

This is what he says—

Belleville, Ont., May 7th, 1903.

The G. R. Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatism; my hands were swollen and enlarged so that I could hardly use them. I suffered with pains in my back and hips, and up between my shoulders. I tried a great many remedies without getting relief or benefit. I had almost given up hope when a friend induced me to try the O. R. KIDNEY CURE. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and have now used three bottles, and think that I am permanently cured. The pains have all left me, and I now feel a different man.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS HUNTLEY.

Curious Bits of News.

Scotland for many years held the record for the highest mill chimney in the world, but now the Silver Works Company, at Antwerp, has bested that record with a shaft 419 feet high, surmounted by a lightning conductor 59 feet high.

An examination of the ravages due to tuberculosis shows that, except with a damp and foggy climate, only some 10,000 consumptives per annum, while in France, with a much healthier climate, the victims, on an equal population, are annually 150,000.

The flags to be hoisted at one time in signaling at sea never exceed four. It is an interesting arithmetical fact that with eighteen various colored flags, add never more than four at a time, no fewer than seventy-eight thousand six hundred and forty-two signals can be given.

In the recent heat wave in Rome four swimmers made up a party at eleven o'clock in the morning and one-eleven o'clock in the morning and proceeded to take their breakfast in the Tiber. They appeared on the river bank carrying a table loaded with dainties, pushed off, and had their meal without returning to the bank, and what is more surprising, without touching the bottom.

A singular deed has been filed in Northumberland County, Pa. It is dated October 9, 1784. In a series of whereases it traces the ownership of the land conveyed from the Creator of the earth, who, "by parole and livery of seisin, did convey unto the parents of mankind, to wit, Adam and Eve, of all that certain tract of land called Paradise, known in the planetary system as the earth."

Berlin is in possession of a shorthand writer with a unique specialty. He attends all funerals of prominent persons and takes down verbatim the addresses of the officiating clergymen. Then he prepares highly ornamented copies of the addresses and sells them to the friends of the deceased dead. His business is so good that he has found it necessary to engage a staff of assistants.

The "Mexican Herald" tells of an exciting scene witnessed in the Romita ring during a bull fight on bicycles. Two of the chaps placed the banderillos, or short stabbing sticks, into the neck of the bulls. When the second bull entered the ring, Jose Basurto, manoeuvring his bicycle cleverly, placed the sticks with great darting, while his comrade coolly sat on his wheel, which was propped up and upright in the center of the ring. Luckily, the bull paid no attention to him.

In Lower California there is a colony of outlaws, including some of the most hoted escaped criminals who operated during the latter half of the nineteenth century. They live in a stunted, rugged stretch of country, with the Gulf of California on one side and a range of foothills which spread down toward the Mexican border on the other. There are no roads at this point on the coast of California, and no railroads reaching in from the other direction, so the men are pretty well isolated. They are practically farmers, but as they do no harm nobody has troubled to interfere with them.

Arrangements are being made by a Mr. Robinson of New York for a round-the-world trip on a motor car. It is proposed that the tour shall start from Calcutta about May, 1905. Moscow will be taken in via Paris and Berlin. Thence the route will follow the great Siberian Railway to Vladivostock, when ship will be taken to Japan. This interesting country will be traversed, and the party will re-ship to America. No difficulty is anticipated in crossing the American Continent, though up to the present no one has accomplished the feat. At New York passage will be taken for Liverpool; from there the run will be to Dover, when the tour will conclude.

Fifty disks of a special design and the strongest possible construction, says the "Fourth Companion," will soon be cast in Bering Sea by the United States Revenue Marine Service, and placed along the first known route of the floe ice. It is hoped by tracing their future course to test the direction of the currents that cross the polar regions. The casks are twenty-eight inches long and sixteen inches in diameter, pointed at the ends and painted black, so be to be seen easily. Inside of each are directions printed in several different languages, asking the finder to write to the nearest United States consul, giving the latitude and longitude in which the cask was found, and the date."

Purveyor by Appointment to His Majesty the Cat.

"Those of the public who may imagine that there is no room for initiative and ingenuity in the cats' meat trade, says the London "Outsider," are vastly mistaken. In Kensington an enterprising young fellow has had to be pursing young fellow has had to be making a fortune through the happy idea of supplying, on request, fish instead of meat for the cats to feed on round. The pets of the prosperous can obtain meat at almost any time, and they will not look, for the most part, at the worried cat's meat man's cart, but no cat can resist a tasty bit of fish, be it offered by the hand of man or woman. Again, there is the innovation. Again, there is the purveyors who take trouble to obtain a close knowledge of every single animal on their round, and his little peculiarities. This knowledge once gained, the cats' meat man buys and cuts his portions accordingly, taking care that each cat gets its favorite bit. All chance of rivalry is removed at once by this means, for a cat will not for weeks, unless driven by desperate hunger, touch the strange cuts of a new purveyor.

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

A GOOD SHOWING

MADE IN THE REPORT OF GRAND SECRETARY ROBERTSON, OF THE SONS OF SCOTLAND.

The Grand Camp of the Sons of Scotland is now in session at Brantford. On Tuesday the report of the Grand Secretary, Mr. D. M. Robertson, was presented. It showed a membership of 7,573, of which 6,688 are in Ontario, with total insurance of $5,749,750. During 1902 $158,262.55 was collected in assessments, $3,011.03 in interest, $33,333.33 was paid on death certificates for 41 deaths, the death rate per thousand being 5.67. The amount of assets per $1,000 of insurance was shown to be $35.74, and the reserve fund $140,976.99. The amount at credit of the general fund on December 31st last was $921.50, the total credit in nine years, as against a debit of $2,001.54 on December 31, 1901, and of $3,386 66 on December 31, 1900. During 1901 854 726 16 was raised by assessment, $4,357.74 came in in interest, and $45,643.17 was paid out on 54 deaths, the death rate per 1,000 being 8.88, the highest in the history of the order. Since the last meeting 35 new camps have been organized, and 12 have become defunct.

Masons Make Merry.

Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, D.D.G.M. of the Masonic fraternity, last evening officially visited Eureka Lodge of this city. There were a large number of the craft present to welcome the District Deputy. At the conclusion of the lodge business supper was partaken of in the banqueting hall. A very pleasant time was spent in speech making and songs.

A TRUE BRAIN FOOD

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by calmness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Psychine has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Psychine does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart; it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Then it is a true brain food. Psychine is sold by all druggists.

STUDENTS' JOLLY REUNION.

ALBERT'S STUDENTS MAKE MERRY LAST EVENING. PROMENADE, LISTEN TO THE BAND, SIT IN COSY CORNERS AND PROBE THE ICE CREAM FREEZER TO THE GINGER DEPTHS.

Albert College's year is hastening to its close with rapid steps. One more day, with "Convocation" in the evening, brings the year's work and worry, fun and frolic, study and recreation, to an end. Last evening saw the celebration of the annual students' reunion and promenade concert, the much-looked-forward-to event of the "closing."

Students, their friends and many visitors enjoyed themselves to the full last evening. It had been intended to hold the promenade on the campus, but the forbidding weather prevented such proceeding. However, the best was made out of the unfortunate, the concert being held inside, and nobody seemed to feel very downhearted over the enforced change. The I.O.O.F. Band was present, stationed in the entrance of Massey Hall, and furnished a choice programme of ten numbers for promenading. And not only the Band was present. Albert's halls last evening were thronged by crowds of merry young people. Prettily dressed young ladies with their gentlemen escorts, jostled one another good-humoredly in the crowded, lingered over rather serious tete-a-tetes in out of the way corners and helped themselves plentifully to the refreshments provided by Caterer Wilson. The young people of the city were well represented, and added their quota to the hearty laugh and enjoyment.

In anticipation of an unpleasant evening, particular pains had been taken with the interior decorations of the college halls and rooms. There were numerous cosy corners and secluded spots, which were constantly in demand. A liberal use of bunting, evergreen, colors, etc., had been made, and in consequence the halls were greatly transformed from the ordinary. The decorations of the consecrated rooms in the conservatory were particularly so. In the centre was a dome formed of twisted tissue in the colors, and in each corner was a characteristic comfort spot, constructed of, from full publicity. Here and there were set dainty tables, and in this room the caterer and his maids held sway. And they did a rushing business. Prettily screened girls in charge of attentive men seemed to have an unlimited capacity for frozen delights, and over the heads of the faculty were noticed indulging in huge dishes of the indigestible.

Quite a number of old students have arrived during the last few days to enjoy the present entertainments at their Alma Mater, and these last evening was a delightful one. Old reminiscences were renewed, reminiscences related and admiration expressed for the college's numerous improvements. No matter where they may happen to go or what paths they have advanced they are all glad to come back to "Old Albert." It was decided, too, that former Principal Shipe were still continued, and many earnest conversations, out of ear shot, but not out of sight, led to the belief that Albert's star was going to happen.

But all good times must come to an end. At midnight the unwilling and unweary maidens must perforce bid adieu to the halls of pleasure, their companions in pleasure and regret, the young men, withdraw to their own quarters of the residence to indulge in dreamy reveries, haunted by love and indigestion.

This year's reunion was pronounced one of the most successful ever held. Everybody enjoyed themselves, and the pleasures of the evening will be remembered for many a day.

...WHY CATARRH IS FATAL.

Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation, that saps strength and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a fragrant, germ-destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to perfectly cure bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit $1. Small size 25c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Charged With Horse Stealing.

A young man named John Carn-y was to-day on oath before Judge Lazier on a charge of stealing a horse from Mr. John R. Brown. The alleged culprit resides near Madoc, as does also the complainant. The horse was said some time ago by Carney allege that a man named Smith is the guilty party if the horse was stolen. The case will in progress. Mr. Lewis for Crown and Mr. McMahon for the accused.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline will relieve the most wonderful pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, cuts out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute; get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

BISHOP HOFFMAN AT EMMANUEL R. E. CHURCH.

TALKED EARNESTLY AND ELOQUENTLY TO THE CONGREGATION.

In spite of the rainy and threatening weather, a good-sized congregation assembled at Emmanuel R. E. Church last night, to listen to a distinguished preacher in the person of Right Rev. S. Hoffman, D.D., of Philadelphia, Bishop of the Canadian Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church. The usual evening service was read, and the Bishop took for his text the 31st verse of the 9th chapter of Acts:

"Then had the churches rest throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria; and were edified; and, walking in the fear of the Lord and the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied."

Progress, the preacher said, was supposed to be the spirit of this age, but he did not believe that the church to-day could compare in progress or zeal with the first church in Jerusalem. It was the intention of Christ that His church should advance, for He said, "Go ye unto all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." The text showed clearly the means by which churches were to grow. In order to grow a church must be in a state of peace, namely, rest from persecution and the members must be at peace among themselves, in honor preferring one another, loving one another, living in harmony and peace there was in any congregation the better it would be and Christ's work the better taught us how to attain this state of rest, namely, by walking in the fear of the Lord, not running nor hurrying, but walking quietly walking, showing ourselves daily to be trying to live a good life, with an unostentatious spirit. It was not our talk that counted, but our walk before men. The world was the church's inspections, for it was eagerly looking for Christ's work to be done. Christ said, "The church has more to fear from its friends than its enemies." Backsliding Christians are like the dark spots on the sun. The world looks at the mass of the sun, the great, brilliant sun itself. The need of the church to-day was more spirituality, for many Christians were living below their privileges; they were taking the first-fruits of the harvest. The Holy Spirit was free if men would but take it. How could a man be an example to others while he himself was in a state of doubt? We needed something to make religion real to us. In conclusion the preacher exhorted his hearers to cultivate a spirit of peace and harmony, and by their daily walk to show that they meant to live righteously and strive for a higher life in Christ. Then, come what might, they could withstand the temptations of Satan and be sustained unto the end.

The sermon was intently listened to, and made a deep impression on the congregation. At the conclusion of the service the Bishop left for vestry of Emmanuel Church, and to-night he will be tendered a reception at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Dunnett, at which the congregation and all friends of the church are invited.

THREE LITTLE BAD BOYS

WHO HAVE BEEN STEALING PURSES FROM MRS. R. GREATRIX.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. R. Greatrix had a pocket book, containing $3, stolen from her residence, Pinnacle St., and the thieves proceeded to pay a visit to the place and succeeded in obtaining another purse containing between $3 and $4. The affair was reported to the police and resulted in the arrest of Elmer Russell, Alfred T. Burke and Albert Williams being arrested, charged with the offence. The boys admitted taking the money, and said they had spent the greater portion in ice cream, candies, etc. Williams is 10 years of age and the other two lads 9 years.

The boys were allowed their liberty last night upon the understanding that they were to appear before the Magistrate this morning. Not one of them put in an appearance.

WEDDING AT CORBYVILLE.

NUPTIALS OF MR. CHARLES E. MOORE AND MISS MABEL E. SHOEBRIDGE.

A very pretty and largely attended wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. Findlay Shoebridge, of Corbyville. The bride was Miss Mabel Estella Shoebridge, and the groom Mr. Charles Everett Moore, of Rochester, N.Y., who formerly resided at Corbyville. Rev. W. W. Pope, of Foxboro, was the officiating clergyman. The bride's cousin, Miss Artie Shoebridge, of Picton, was bridesmaid, whilst Mr. Harry Benton, of Bloomfield, did honors for the groom as best man. The party entered the drawing room a wedding march was played by Miss Archibald. After the ceremony a rich repast was partaken of. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on the evening train for a bridal tour, after which they will go to their future home in the Flower City.

REPORT OF ATLAS LOAN CO.

The Figures Are Favorable and Favors the Depositors.

Financial Situation at St. Thomas Not So Gloomy, and Excitement Has Somewhat Down Very Materially—Mortgages Have Not Yet Been Valued in Detail, and the Situation Still Contains Some Elements of Uncertainty.

St. Thomas, June 24.—(Special)—The statement of the Atlas Loan Co. was issued to-day and the figures are favorable. Mentioned in a general form of action somewhat briefly here. There is a much better feeling established. President Wallace has given out a statement in which he declares that if the assets are properly managed the loss of the depositors at least will be avoided. The shareholders of the Atlas, however, will probably lose their investments, for the statement shows that the liabilities exceed the assets by over $400,000. It is thought that the shortage of the Loan Company will run into the hundred thousand, as fast as many discrepancies have been found in the deposits that the officials are completely in the dark. The Surety is supposed to be in Spanish Honduras. The Attorney-General declares no effort has yet been made after him. A meeting of the creditors will be held this evening to discuss the report.

The statement is as follows:

ASSETS.

Mortgages	$94,390.00
Mortgages assigned to Mortgage Investment Co., less loans on same	33,130.00
Loans on stock security	46,375.00
Loans upon the security of stocks and bonds	12,080.00
Notes given by shareholders on account of reserve fund	10,403.00
Real estate, less incumbrances	13,303.00
Stocks, bonds, etc., not hypothecated, par value	227,320.00
Cash on hand	26,477.51
	$463,964.51
Realizations on unpaid shares to be added.

LIABILITIES.

Deposits	$474,147.98
Sundry creditors	280,000.00
Capital stock	51,000.00 $537,289.98
Contingent Liability:
Reserve Fund payments	$201,979.80

The report declares that the mortgages have not been valued in detail, but that information is being sought to determine present worth or ask exception. Some of the figures will be altered, too, by the claims of some of the debtors who are also depositors and insist on an offset. In depositors and insist on an offset. In depositors and insist on an offset. In

ONE SPEAKER ON EACH SIDE

Then House Will Vote on the Gamey Amendments and Report.

Lead Grant to the Canada Central Railway Projected—Is the Gamey Debate on Through the Speech Closed? Ought Made a Final Speech That Pleased His Friends—Mr. Graham Has the Floor.

Ottawa, June 26.—Mr. Conmee occupied the whole of the morning in the Legislature yesterday. His first observation dealt with a statement read by Mr. Whitney in Algoma, in which he accused the speaker of being a company that was privileged to export pulpwood. That was not true, but Mr. Smythe, the member for Algoma, was engaged in the business of exporting pulpwood. Mr. Whitney had said that Gamey's charges were true in the main; he believed they were false in the main.

Mr. Conmee criticised the leader of the Opposition for his violent language, and remarked that the methods of the Opposition had been these where they were. If they went to the country with the epochs of purity from Manitoulin at their head, the avowed leader of a lynching mob, the liberals were ready to meet them, and he believed the people would stand by their trusted leader, the present Premier. (Applause.)

It was within a minute or two of 1 o'clock when Mr. Conmee concluded, and Mr. Macdonald moved the adjournment of the debate until 8 o'clock.

Macdonald of West Elgin.

Mr. Macdonald said he accepted full responsibility for the question asked in the House as to the relationship of Sir John Boyd with the Government, and he hoped the Attorney-General would do the same for the answer. The Attorney-General had spoken in very high terms of the distinguished commissioner, in which the speaker concurred, but he regretted that the Attorney-General should have replied to the question as to what money Sir John Boyd had received from the Government of Ontario to "go and search the public accounts" in the tone of a man who was master and not servant. Sir John Boyd could not be said to be "in the employ" and he regretted that the Chancellor should have been employed in so unholy a task. Mr. Macdiarmid dealt with Gamey's letter in the Premier. The Premier, he said, was a courteous man and would not show a slight to anyone on either side of the House. What was it, then, that he did not reply to Gamey's letter? It was because the letter was a receipt and did not require an answer.

There was not the slightest danger of the Government appealing to the people for a verdict on the question. They would hold the by-elections of the session as possible. In conclusion, Mr. Macdiarmid asked why did not the Government punish some of the men who had disgraced the province, and who had apparently enjoyed the respect of the Administration.

Sutherland of South Oxford.

Mr. Sutherland said that the action of Gamey, when he told his friends not to "go over" to the House, and showed the defence what they had to beat, did not indicate that he had committed anyone. Mr. Sutherland reiterated that he had been approached by agents of the Government previous to the opening of the House and offered "a good thing financially if he would forsake his party allegiance," but because he did not do so, and was a defendant against the men, he was laughed at.

Some people contended that Frank Sullivan got too high a commission from Gamey, but Cap Sullivan divided the risk of the financing equally with a clerk in the Crown Lands' Department, "just for love," and the honesty of the officials of the Government to the performers who were used in the South Oxford stuff showed that pretty high prices ruled.

Downey of South Wellington.

Mr. Downey said the position of the Opposition before the investigations had been fully justified, as the report of the Judges had come to them unimpeached. The record of errors and misrepresentations of evidence, the reports of the judiciary had been severely shaken in the minds of more than one-half of the people of Ontario. The Opposition offered no apology for criticising the report.

Mr. Downey turned to the member for Port Arthur and charged that he (Conmee) pleaded for a grant of lands for a company, in which he was interested. That provoked a sharp verbal melee, in which several gentlemen on both sides took part. Mr. Conmee replied that he had demonstrated that he was not a stockholder in the Rat Portage Mill Co., but interested in the Nepigon Fish Company.

Mines Pamphlet Again.

Resuming his speech, Mr. Downey said Mr. Ross had refused to allow the pamphlet against the leader of the Opposition. He (Downey) had charged the Premier with the Committee of the Conservative party during the last campaign. Ross had written to him and submitted the vilest, the most contemptible, pamphlet and pictorial assault on the Premier of the province with the remark: "That's the kind of thing I'm up against with." The speaker rejected the literature as far as he was able to do so, to the disgust of the Opposition, who was appalled that the Government should be so base as intended for use against the Premier, and would not have anything to do with the vile publication. Gamey went to the other side and was received with open arms.

"We law him for the enemies he has made," said Mr. Downey, referring the leader of the Opposition. "Every grafter, every Cap. Sullivan, every thief, every liar, every man down deep in the public chest, has been approached by agents of the leader of the Opposition."

The Ministerial speakers spoke in loud terms of Conservative corruption at Ottawa, but Sir John Macdonald appointed the Pacific and Royal Commissions had been ineffective in every case in sending the guilty people had found the grafters out and punished them. The Government made no attempt to defend the report. One half of their speeches was devoted to the abuse of the Judges, and the other half to a condemnation of Gamey.

Not on the "Honor" Roll.

The Commissioners had honored Mr. Hammond by not placing his name in their honor roll of witnesses, said Mr. Downey, as he pointed to the evidence of the Government officials whose testimony was commended by Judges Ferguson and Falconbridge.

The people of Ontario had come to the conclusion, said Mr. Downey, that the ordinary witness puts little value on an oath. He likened the recent investigation to the demeanor of witnesses in the West Elgin commission, and to the Carleton prosecution in South Oxford, where men of the widest kind, by comparison, left men who sit opposite or the agents of those men walked in the witness box from to time to time away the reputation of an honest man."

The Premier had not yet risen to explain how the letter, which was in his hand, got into the hands of Gamey to his hands. If Gamey had shown the memory to Mr. Ross before the latter drew up the statement in his office, and had asked him where he (Gamey) got it, he would have been treated by asking, "Where did you have that letter?"

Discussing Mr. Pettypiece's attack on Mr. Whitney, Mr. Downey said that Mr. Whitney had said to Mr. Whitney gave to The Globe a reputation for fairness, and his long association with Mr. Ross gave him a reputation for honesty. Mr. Pettypiece had said that the Parties were "banded along the chariot of Liberalism." Seated on the Ross throne, holding the reins, was John Sullivan; collecting the fares, Mr. A. J. Matheson; with the whip and announcing that there are pickings for the man who keeps his eyes open, Frank Sullivan; and, in minor positions, the Bolces and the Grahams, and Mr. Frost, of Leeds.

Graham of Brockville.

Mr. Graham of Brockville followed and had not finished when the House adjourned at 10 o'clock. It was part of the duty of the Opposition to point the incredibility of the main witness, he said, in criticising the acts and attacks on Gamey. They were not abusing him, but stating and analyzing some of their rights. He would admit that the Judges were not above criticism, but, when the Opposition accused the judges of manufacturing a campaign document, it amounted to slander. Every man who applauded Gamey's slanderous words on the Judges made those words his own.

He argued that Mr. Gamey was to take political questions before judges. The election trials were given over to judges, and when they were taken out of their hands and given into the hands of retiring barristers it was a wrong step, and that law was appealed. There were two courses open to a defeated party, to appeal the case and to abuse the judges, but they seldom took advantage of the latter.

Only Two Speakers More.

Only two speakers remain to be heard and the legislators of Ontario will pass upon the report of the Gamey Commissioners. Mr. Graham will finish his speech this morning, and Mr. Foy will reply. The Premier will not speak again. It is possible that the whole question will be disposed of before the hour of adjournment, and the afternoon and evening should see the last of the business of the session.

Bonus for Canada Central.

To-day Mr. Latchford will bring down a resolution to set apart 7,400 acres of land per mile for the Canada Central Railway, from a point at the head of deep water on the Nipissing, on the French River through the town of Sudbury to a point in the Township of Hagar, a distance of 70 miles. The bill will provide that the lands are to be chosen along the line of railway as far as possible. This route is to be known as the road favored by Mr. Clergue, which is to connect Sudbury with the Canada Atlantic at Scotia Junction.

Killed by a Train.

Brockville, June 26.—Peter Shaw, a carpenter, living in Prescottville, was killed Wednesday night on the C.P.R. tracks a few miles from here.

ROWLEY RETURNS.

Remanded For Trial on a Charge of Theft and Forgery.

St. Thomas, June 26.—George Rowley, the fugitive manager of the Bank of Montreal, Aylmer, was returned to St. Thomas Wednesday night by the 11.30 train. Yesterday morning he went to the city jail and pleaded guilty to two charges of forgeries. At 10 o'clock the prisoner was arraigned before Police Magistrate Ermatinger. Crown Attorney Meredith prosecuted. W. L. Wickett represented the prisoner. The charge was theft of $4,000 from the company he was employed by, and forgery. He was not asked to plead to the complaints. The case was adjourned until 2 p.m. Mr. Wickett asked for bail on bonds of $8,000. His sons-in-law, Dr. Bell and Mr. Wm. Bell, Christ-man qualified in $2,000 each. Rowley's personal recognizance was accepted for $4,000. The amount is made from the $4,000 stolen from the bank. The accused walked from the room, entered a cab and was driven to his home.

Appoint Permanent Liquidator.

St. Thomas, June 26.—Two hundred of the Atlas Loan Co.'s creditors met here yesterday and appointed the National Trust Co. as permanent liquidator. Such a roar went up when it was mooted to appoint the president, A. E. Wallace, that the matter was not pressed.

FARM BUILDERS CONCLUDE.

International Association of Farmers' Institutes That Are Agricultural Colleges.

Toronto, June 26.—Yesterday 100 of the members of the International Farmers' Institute visited the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, this entertainment being provided by Hon. John Dryden. The visitors were shown through the various buildings of the college, beginning with the dairy building, they passed on in succession to the cheese house, the poultry houses and runs, the Massey library, and then a tour of the various of the experimental plots. After returning to Toronto in the evening, they entered into session and cleared off a number of interesting technical papers.

The report of the Nominating Committee for officers for the coming year was adopted as follows: President B. W. Kilgore, North Carolina; vice-president, E. E. Kaufman, North Dakota; secretary-treasurer, G. C. Creelman, Ontario; Executive Committee, George McKerrow, Missouri; H. C. Gaylord, Illinois; J. C. Hardy, Mississippi.

St. Louis was agreed upon as the next place of meeting. The session closed with resolutions of thanks all round.

EUREKA FOUNDERED.

Government Boat Took in Water at the Mouth of Rideau.

Montreal, June 26.—The steamer Eureka foundered at Cleary Island, near Nile in a Government boat, which is fitted up with the Ratcote brake, and has been giving demonstrations in Montreal in connection with the brake for some time. Yesterday she left for Quebec at 1 p.m., and stopped at Nicholls Island for the night. Some mischance some of her portholes happened to be open, and the weight of the coal caused the vessel to take in water. Soon it was apparent that she would founder. She was moved across the Nicholles River to the Government dry dock, but in a short time before she reached the shore she went down. The engine and boat reached dry land in safety, but some clothes were lost. Sir Alex. Lacoste and his secretary and the press representatives who were on board lost all their belongings. The Ratcote brake was in no way responsible for the accident.

Fatal Fall at Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, June 26.—Thomas Barclay, well known in this city, of the Northwest mounted police, acting in the capacity of cook, committed suicide here yesterday by taking carbolic acid.

MEMBER SCHELL TO GET OUT

Must Leave Commons Owing to His Partner's Action.

Mr. Fleming & Schell Sold Goods to the Government to the Value of $4.00—Member Makes an Explanation to the House, Saying He Personally Knew Nothing of the Matter—Thought Goods Were For Glasgow Exhibition.

Ottawa, June 26.—In the House the other day, Mr. Fowler of Kings asked if J. D. Schell, M.P., for Simcoe, was a partner in the firm of McPherson & Schell, who supplied goods to the department of agriculture as published in the Auditor-General's report.

Mr. Fisher replied that the Government knew nothing of the personnel of the firm of McPherson & Schell, mentioned in the Auditor-General's report in connection with an item for five dollars and thirty cents.

Mr. Schell rose in the House yesterday afternoon and explained that he is a member of the firm of Fleming & Schell. The firm had a contract for the sale of goods by the firm. Mr. Schell's defence was that the order came from Mr. J. D. Scott, written on paper with "The Glasgow exhibition" as letterhead. He had supposed when the order was filled that Mr. Scott was acting for the Dominion Government. It was assumed that Mr. Scott was a commissioner for the British Government, or acting as a private individual. Personally, he (Mr. Schell) had known nothing of the matter until the question was placed upon the order paper.

Mr. Fitzpatrick at once moved that the matter be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The motion was carried, and Mr. Schell immediately walked out of the House. He will not return while he has the right to the seat in question.

Though Mr. Schell made an explanation that acquits him of personal knowledge of the transaction, he will undoubtedly have to retire from the House. His continuance, Gregory, is in direct line of his political teachings. Mr. Schell was defeated by Hon. Mac Lennan in 1900 by a majority of 37, while in the elections of 1900, Mr. Schell had a majority of some 600 over Hon. Mac Lennan.

Better Weighing Required.

Mr. Monk asked what was the report of the investigation held by the Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce into the weighing of butter and cheese.

Mr. Fisher replied that the commissioners had not yet made out their report. Complaints had been made by many shippers and others interested in the matter. It would be premature to speak of the justice of these complaints. The cost of the investigation so far is $426.25.

Buying Texas Cattle.

Mr. R. L. Borden read a paragraph published in The Montreal Gazette, stating that the steamer Atlantean, having 2,000 tons of hay in Montreal as export cargo, would proceed to Galveston, Texas, to take on board between 2,000 and 2,500 dairy cattle. These cattle, it was explained, were for the Orange Free State, and are purchased by the British Government to replace the cattle commandeered during the war. Mr. Borden suggested that these cattle should be purchased in Canada. He wanted to know if representation had been made to the British Government with this object in view.

Mr. Fisher replied that he could not vouch for the truth of the statement as to the shipment of Texas cattle. Representations had, however, been made to Lord Strathcona. The idea that cattle for the restocking of Boer farms should be purchased in Canada. This suggestion was referred to the imperial officers in charge of the matter. Representations had since been made to the Imperial Government, but no action had been paid to them.

Must Have Fifty Cows.

Mr. Fisher's bill prohibiting the manufacture of process butter was taken up in committee of the House. The clause enacting that only butter manufactured from the cream of fifty cows or more should be marked "creamery" led to a long discussion.

Mr. Henderson moved that the number should be amended to read 25 cows instead of 50.

Mr. Speight moved an amendment providing that butter manufactured from the cream of fifty cows with the aid of separators should be entitled to rank as creamery butter.

Other Amendments Seen.

Mr. Henderson's amendment, providing that a creamery shall be a place where the milk of not less than twenty-five cows is manufactured was declared lost. A similar fate befel Dr. Sproule's amendment, declaring creamery butter to be butter manufactured by the ordinary creamery process, and with the aid of separators.

Texas Cattle Again.

Mr. Ingram Foye brought up the matter of the sale of Texan cattle

ONE KILLED AND MANY HURT

H. G. & B. Electric Trolley Cars Collide Near Winona.

Cars Were Racing Down Steep Incline and Met on the Curve at the Bottom—Motormen Jumped and Escaped—Cars Wrecked, and Number Passengers Was Wedged in So That It Took Two Minutes to Release Him.

Hamilton, June 25.—As the result of a head-on collision of two electric cars on the Hamilton, Grimsby & Beamsville Electric Railway yesterday afternoon, the conductor was killed outright, being badly injured that there is doubt of his recovery. Two more railway employes were seriously injured, and a number of passengers received painful cuts and bruises, and several others had their ears more or less injured.

Dead Man's Name.

The dead man is Conductor Robert Braidwood of the city.

The injured: Conductor Harry Branton, who got a terribly scalp wound, his condition is reported as serious.

Peter Gibson, motorman, suffered about the chest and ribs, also internally, it is feared, from internal injuries.

Harry Patience, conductor, left shoulder injured, and badly bruised up.

J. A. Doucette, 371 North Victoria avenue, an electrician for Caterpillar Power Co., sprained ankle.

Mrs. Hendry, Hendry Park, ankle sprained.

All the passengers are nursing bruises and cuts of a painful nature, but will all be around again in a few days.

Met at Bottom of the Hill.

The cars plunged into each other about 500 yards east of the Winona crossing at 3 o'clock. It would be difficult to imagine a worse place for such a mishap. Both cars were racing down sharp incline, and they met at the bottom of the hill. To make matters worse there is a curve in the road.

The dead conductor, Braidwood, was acting as motorman on it. The cars came together with such force that their front vestibules were jammed and wrecked. Poor Braidwood was jammed in so that it took fully two minutes to release him. Both cars were filled with people down were mangled, and one was broken above the knee. He died before he reached the city on a special car.

Braidwood had been with the company ever since it started to operate cars in 1894, and was one of the most popular men on the road. He was 31 years of age, and leaves a widow and a young child.

TIMELY TOPICS

There was tremendous excitement and quite a warlike demonstration on the west hill the other night. Two inoffensive citizens, one of them a veteran, armed with shotguns and thirsting for gore, were patrolling a back yard near a chicken coop, with blood in their eyes and murder in their hearts. Thirteen 'de black chickens had been stolen for the last week, and the two parties decided it was time to go on the warpath. The veteran was given the post of honor—and honors. With his gun at full point he sat for 'free hours, but not a mosquito moving, waiting and watching for the thief. The other fellow, it is said, agreed to watch on the other side of the coop, but after a while he got tired and sneaked off to bed. He, for the veteran finally and sternly he was there as though turned to stone. Suddenly he paused for breath and the murderous flashed across his mind that the desperate chicken thief might come upon him at last. He aimed later and he was sure of it. With a wild shout he sprang to his feet and fled, leaving the gun behind him. "Take those chickens and bury them," said the first person he met. And slowly and sadly the veteran obeyed. The next day he wore his Sunday clothes. He says he will never forgive the coward who shot him in the back. The post and it is said the neighbors are thinking of getting up a straw-bury fund to bury the veteran's another medal.

The Intelligencer extends hearty congratulations to the young ladies of Albert College, who, besides overshadowing their male classmates in the matter of looks, have this year left them behind in learning. It will gratify the good people of Belleville no less, by Principal Dyer's remarks, that the past year has been the most successful in the history of the College. It opened 12 on that memorable day, and closed with 200 students on the roll. Another college year has passed, the bright young ladies and gentlemen by the time the re-merge will be scattered far and wide, the hard-working and enthusiastic faculty can now enjoy a well-earned rest, much-needed rest, for the students whose college career ends with this term. The Intelligencer wishes them very success on the voyage of life, to those who will come back next autumn we can, in the name of the citizens of Belleville, promise a hearty welcome.

A TRUE BRAIN FOOD

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that would be foolish. The true brain food must be made by rich red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Fer-rozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone tones and stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. This is the true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by all druggists.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, if the right kind of Nervilline gives a complete knock-out to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nervilline saves quickly because it is strongest, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute; get Nervilline quick, and rub it in, for soreness you were born it will cure you. 25c.

The Southern Garden Plays.

The cane-brakes on the borders of the southern rivers are beautiful. Little folks never go there to play—they are too many snakes! But canes are brought up, in one way and another, for the children. We always had them to play with, writes Martha Young in Little Folks.

Long ago, before the gentle soft-voiced Indians, the Choctaws, left our fields, wandering westward, we looked for them every spring to come into our villages, and out to the plantations, bringing their wares to sell. They brought very beautiful baskets made of brightly-dyed and woven cane-reeds. What Alabama girl has not her own pretty Indian basket?

For the little boys they brought bows-guns and arrows.

The gun was a long straight cane, carefully hollowed out, the tough fibre at the joints burned through with red-hot wires.

Some of those marvellous guns were twelve yards long! The arrows were short wires, with a wisp of cotton firmly bound about one end and round and round was the cotton tightly bound until the arrow looked like a cat-tail grown by the bowers.

The arrow was put into the long gun; then you lifted the gun in both hands as if it were a trumpet, and—blew!

How the arrow flew!

It was wonderful how expert at target-shooting we children became—we little girls used to shoot with these long slender blow-guns, as well as our brothers.

Then again we used to think, we little girls as well as our brothers, that nothing made so good a fishing-rod as the long little cane—how those natural rods would spring for a little bit of a fish!

And oh, the music we children used to get from our cane flute! They were the true Indian flutes—the mild Choctaws used to bring them about to sell. They looked simple; but we found by experience that it was not easy to make a cane flute that would "play;" though it was just a section of cane, with a mouth-hole cut near the thrown joint, the pith extracted, and small notches cut where the fingers might start and stop the breathing melody. What little southern girl has not worked for many a sunny hour, with her slow, patient little pocket-knife, trying to make a flute that would "sound."

Oh, the cool, waving, murmuring, rustling, green cane-brake! It is one of the dearest of all my childhood's delightful pictures! But it will not be very long, now, before all the rich old river-bottoms will be cleared up for the growing of cotton crops and corn. Then good-by to reed baskets, and to blow-guns, and to cane fishing-poles, and to Indian flutes! The little southern children of the next generation will not know them!

Lost chances never leave any trail.

THE "POPPY"

If you desire to see the very newest and most beautiful patterns in Sterling Silver Tableware, the right time now so popular in New York, call and let us show you the "POPPY." It is placed on a good substantial weight, excellent die-work, and finished first in French Grey. A gift of this design would be entirely new and different from others received by the bride.

These goods being the product of the Gorham Co's Canadian factory they are among the lowest possible price as well as the high est obtainable quality.

The "POPPY" may be seen in our window.

WHAT are the most expressive phrases in colloquial English? Of the downs that slip and flap, lisp-speaking tongues in the course of a day some person, be better suited for their purpose and more characteristic of the time and their originator than the others. When foreigners come to this country they catch such expressions almost immediately, and long before they can attempt to speak the language they have a large part of the local vocabulary. It would seem that these phrases are the most easily learned, and to Americans and that "slang" are peculiarly facile languages. "Hurry up," "all right," "skidoo" and "23" are known the world over. This should be interesting to purists who desire to restrict "slang" to its first and original meaning of "secret." Now it is merely the most distinctly aristocratic to please them takes the form of "slang" collegiate, "Cockney" ing, and foreigners clasp it with joy. Wonder language is the fact that they are outraging the feelings of anybody by so doing. "Hurry up," "all right" and "It's nice" captivate the fancy of the newspaper, but these three rule. Gentleman—You you to go and spend it in drink? Japanese—Hurry up, please (coolly)—Been a beggar yourself some time eh?—Pick-Me-Up."

A Four Leaved Clover.

I WAS hard at work shaving a bird, which might eventually draw a dollar on three dollars, when I was disturbed. I didn't want to be disturbed, for I was the editor, a few editors are, was a soulless brute when at work, but I was concerned, and my drawing had to be completed.

In a moment the servant brought in a card. It was the proper size, and all that, and I read, "Mr. Edward Rose."

Now, clients are peculiarities about cards, and somehow, this one rather impressed me. It was for one of that name, yet the neat, white thing was unmistakable; so, laying down my brush, I gave the waiting servant the word.

A big, trim-looking young fellow loped in, a fellow who probably had made me good-morning with a certain cheery promptness, which was very pleasing, and a pair of particularly keen eyes took me from head to foot, then apparently fixed themselves upon my left ear.

"I'm afraid you are busy?" he remarked, as his eyes shifted from my ear.

At that instant I remembered a second brush, for the completion of certain artistic ideas.

"Not too busy for business," I replied, at the same time saying inwardly, "You've got a quick eye and wit."

"Good—it's business I've undertaken. "The fact is, a friend of mine wants a story of the Klondike written by this memo. He asked me to get it; I made a few inquiries, and I'm advised seeing you." As he concluded he handed me a slip of note paper, on which was scribbled, "Conception, prime movers, construction, cost, preliminary disbursements, and probable returns, if any; interesting as possible; 40 to 50 thousand words."

"That's all easy enough, if the price be right," I said.

"Oh, I'll pay you for it," you first—providing the story reaches him by the fifteenth," he continued.

There was nothing for me, so I closed with the offer, and the business end of the interview was over.

"How far is this Spookyarea from here?" I asked, for I like to know where I be prepared to leave.

"Only a few hours," I replied; then urged by a sudden impulse, I added: "If you don't mind waiting twenty minutes or so, I'll run down. I have a small matter, I'll take you up there."

"Good," he said, and I left him not too happy, if you are sure I'm not too much trouble."

"This way," I replied. "Smoke up and talk to me, for I don't want to—doesn't bother me in the least."

His eyes lighted with pleasure as they left the room, and I completed my drawing, and his remarks presently proved that he knew what he was at. In a few moments I was busy with finishing touches, and as he said little, his keen eyes noted every move with absorbed interest. Then I put up my sable brushes, picked up the glass, verified the work and rose.

"That's the picture for the glass," said. "I'll show you what the result will be."

He looked long and smiled approval. "It's wonderful," he said, "what knowledge and skill can do. That bird is the very thing, and I'm glad I met you. I have a rare good eye. That little drawing carries me back to a place where I spent a year. I have also his home in a certain tree. I know him well and would recognize him and not that! I mean after you are through with it?" he hastily added.

"No, but I'll give it to you three weeks hence, and not before or twice, you know," I retorted, laughing.

"I'll take you at your word, and I'll get busy. Au revoir," he answered.

In a few moments the drawing was ready for the glass, and I rose to leave. The first mail-box trapped the bird; then we started off in high animation. From the bridge we looked down upon shallow rapids, small grayness, and here my companion's personal knowledge of Upper Manhattan ended. Once upon the water he became as animated as an eager boy, but the shrewd observer saw under some extra important feature proved him to be nearly as interested concerning the cost of and work and the requirements of a fad, safe canoe. Then we both paused beneath the mighty arches which eloquently declare man's mastery over nature, and I was not a little wondering, for those keen eyes of his saw everything, that my companion proved that he had read much and had a wonderful memory.

Those who have not seen the Speedway can have no conception of its beauty. Upon the one hand the broad water, yet stirring with the pulse of the flood, and on the other, the noble hills rolling away in tremendous, halted waves of greenness, with here and there stone wall, with its guarding metal rail; then the road, with its path then the Way itself, broad, and ample and carefully brushed as smooth as a private lawn, across it another road, a bridge walk, and towering far above it, tremendous steel, the magic work by which the wizard money conjured from among rock-masses flung by roaring Cyclops in early days of time. Legends of giants' hour and crafty elves cling there, and the rock remains but now, at their bases, curves a modern race-course, and the flying feet of the swiftest light-harness horses are the fairies.

As we strolled along a beautiful brown colt passed us at speed. It got the perfection of smooth trotting, the dainty pneumatic seeming hardly to touch the ground. Then a sulky jogging back, full of fire and eager for exercise, and I looked to my driver, and in response to my query of "Anything doing?" got a "Guess so" response was gathered about the headquarters at the farther end of the course.

Then I remembered that a couple of rival gentlemen drivers had matched their favorite fliers weeks before, and that the event was to come off soon. Furthermore, I was aware that big money had been wagered and that a clinking race was expected. The coming contest explained the deserted appearance of the Speedway—beyond a doubt a crowd of real horsemen was gathered about the headquarters at the farther end of the course.

"Shall we go?" asked my host, and suggested our walking wheels were for it, which, by the way, were near what would be the finish.

"Know anything about them?" he queried, while his shrewd eyes twinkled with humor.

"Yes," I replied; "one's the best horse, but its owner's up, and t'other's got the best mechanic behind him. He's a jockey, by the way, or a horseman."

"What's the difference between the horseman?"

"Weight!"

"And between drivers?"

"Nerve!"

"Sure of that?"

"Almost certain," I retorted.

"How will the betting be?"

"Even money on the one the nag that's going to lose. He's a fast, showy horse, his driver is a great bluffer, and the crowd will surely back his combination. But I know something of the jockey's pair, and I reckon they won't makes mistakes. The man is an amateur, but he's fit for professional company—wise, cool, absolutely straight and has a head to him with a head when a head will do the trick."

"Looks like something of a cinch, then."

"Very like it. The match was made apparently as the result of some animated argument. I know both parties, and I'm willing to bet a hundred that the man who is going to lose it imagines that he has the other into making it. Do you savvy?"

He smiled, then remarked that he wouldn't mind having a small bet on the result, and suggested that we move on to the end of the course to watch. As we turned to go, he started slightly, and looked down at his vest.

"I see it, too—pick it up," I remarked, laughingly.

Before us, on the strip of sod and almost hidden, lay a small silver bracelet, in the centre of which were attached a few plated bangles. As Rose picked it up, he smiled, and said:

"Well—of all the curious things!" he then smiled, then remarked that he wouldn't mind having a small bet on the result, and suggested that we move on to the end of the course to watch. As we turned to go, he started slightly, and looked down at his vest.

"I see it, too—pick it up," I remarked, laughingly.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Some Chicago ministers, it is said, are going to try hypnotism in order to pull money out of members of their congregations. If that don't work they might try a corkscrew.

Things turn out strangely in this world! Among the pranks of lightning at Waterbury, Conn., lately, it is noted that a bolt struck George Norton's house, seriously damaged an old Bible, and dodged a copy of Payne's "Age of Reason."

END OF ACTIVE LIFE.

C. W. Taylor, The Globe's Business Manager, Passes Away—Death Startlingly Sudden From Heart Failure.

Toronto, June 26.—Charles W. Taylor, business manager of The Globe for the past twenty-three years, died suddenly yesterday morning at the family residence, 42 Willcocks street. At 7.30 he got up as usual, and went to the bath-room. A few moments later Mrs. Taylor heard him groan, and then he came back into the bedroom suffering intense pain and lay down on a sofa. While Mrs. Taylor was seeking to supply restoratives he succumbed. Dr. Milton Cotton, who was summoned, said death was due to a pressure of blood about the heart. Mr. Taylor had complained of pains in the region of the heart, but was otherwise in splendid health.

The deceased was born on May 22nd, 1841, at Ash, south of the late Captain John Taylor, a retired army officer. He leaves a widow and four children, Miss Laura, Frederick, Charles and William; Henry Taylor, Chatham, John Taylor, of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic; Judge Taylor, White Horse, Yukon, and William Taylor, are brothers, and Mrs. George Bingham, Mrs. Cull, and Mrs. Rosebrugh, Rothwell, are sisters.

Thirty-six years ago Mr. Taylor entered the service of The Globe, as office boy, and at the death of George Brown, in 1883, was appointed business manager. Mr. Jaffray, president of The Globe, speaking of his death, alluded to the late Mr. Taylor as one of the most generally liked men he had ever known, and that his only fault had been his too great generosity and self-forgetfulness. His chief interest had been in the welfare of The Globe, and he had ever taken an almost fatherly interest in members of the staff in time of sickness.

Eczema's Torture For Twenty Years.

CURED PERMANENTLY SEVERAL MONTHS AGO BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Mr. John Pratt, Blyths, Huron Co., Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with Chase's Ointment too much praise, for I was troubled with eczema for over twenty years and had been treated by three doctors, though they all failed to cure me. Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured me completely and I have not had the slightest sign of a return of it this disease for several months. I am quite satisfied that it has been a permanent cure at last."

There is no longer any doubt about the efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema and every form of itching skin diseases, and as the standard ointment the world over and though many others are offered more or less similar in appearance they lack the antiseptic healing, soothing qualities which effects a cure.

Mr. W. D. Ketchesson, Bailiff, 9th Division Court, Flesherton, Grey County, Co., Ont., states: "I was troubled for 20 years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered large legs down to my knees — perfectly raw. I have tried every remedy that I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and less than this one box I-considered a complete cure."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Baited by a Leg.

Scaforth, June 25.—Wm. Allan, a farmer aged 45 years, who lived three miles south of here, was accidentally killed yesterday. While he and his little boy were carrying a log for the well curbing from the bush, joining field to the house, Mr. Allan slipped and fell, the log striking him on the neck and killed him almost instantly.

SORE FEET

CURED BY POOT ELM.

Feet that get sore, that blister, scald or chafe, and cause much discomfort and actual suffering can be soothed and healed by Foot Elm.

Rev. P. S. Owens, Ayton, Ont., writes: "I have used Foot Elm, and can certify that it is a sure cure for scalded or sweating feet. Foot Elm is 25 cents a box of 16 powders, at druggists or by mail. B. I. Stott & Co., Bowmanville, Ont.

A Fashionable Sham.

A SHORT time after Mme. Sybil Sanderson's first debut in New York, when the papers were ringing with praises of her jewels, her beauty and her voice, she was the guest of honor at a dinner-party, at which her hostess remarked: "Those jewels that you wear in 'Manon,' Miss Sanderson, are the most beautiful that I have ever seen." "Good heavens!" cried Miss Sanderson, "you didn't think that they were real, did you? Those are only stage jewels. If they had been real, I would deserve all that the American papers have said about me."

The New York "Sun" declares that fashionable women are at present wearing quantities of false jewels cleverly made, and perfectly set in gold in imitation of the real article. One of the pictures of the Duchess of Manchester which was printed in the newspapers showed her wearing a pearl necklace which was said to be the famous Manchester pearls." This claim was knocked in the head only the other day when a New York firm of manufacturers of imitation jewels began a suit against the duke for some thing like six hundred dollars for this very necklace for which his grace had failed to pay. "It has only been within the last few seasons," adds the "Sun," "that this vogue of artificial jewelry has become fixed. . . . The possession of genuine pearls, for instance, is possible only to the very few, for necklaces of well-matched pearls are very small and even large fortunes. Many of the most perfectly matched ropes have taken years in their accumulations, while others are heirlooms that have passed from one generation to another in the royal families of Europe. When the pearl necklace became so fashionable in America there was a demand for them that could not be supplied, and now nine-tenths of the beautiful ropes that are worn are false. The new imitation pearls are indistinguishable from the real except under a glass and to the eye of an expert. They are perfect in shape, finish, color, and the wonderful satiny surface that gives the pearl its beauty. . . . The diamond imitations are only effective at night, for this stone is one which most successfully defies the art of imitation. A counterfeit pearl takes an expert for its detection, while any one at all accustomed to handling diamonds can readily discover the imitation stone. The Paris makers are sending to this country some very clever products in this line, the stones being artistic, and the stones tiny and closely set. Those are extremely effective at night, and are worn for stage purposes by actresses who are famous for their so-called diamond collections. These imitations are not cheap. On the contrary, they are constantly advancing in price. For parlor ornaments the imitation stones are in much demand. There are some who say that they really approximate the genuine diamond under the electric light. But they are impossible to wear in the daylight, and by no means approach the degree of perfection to which the pearl counterfeit has been brought."

Dinner at a Hundred Dollars a Plate.

ONE of the most remarkable private dinners in the history of Delmonico's was given in New York lately by Mr. George Heyn. For the pleasure of entertaining nine guests from fifteen minutes past seven o'clock until half-past ten o'clock, Mr. Heyn transformed the Red Room of Delmonico's into a miniature bower in a pine forest, and spread before them a repast which cost him about one hundred dollars for each of the ten covers laid. Hundreds of pine-boughs had been brought from the woods, and there were so adjusted upon the walls, ceiling and floor of the apartment as to completely conceal the original architecture. Invisible wires were stretched through them and connected with hundreds of small incandescent electric light globes, which peeped out from the green boughs on walls and ceiling. Each globe was shaped like an acorn, and shone with a pale-green light that lent reality to the semblance of the rare woodland flower. Over the carpet that covered the floor has been strewn pine-boughs, the yellow and brown moss, and bushels of autumn leaves in all their rich tints of red and yellow and gray. A round table, eight feet in diameter, made of unstained oak, rose from the litter of moss and leaves, and its stout legs were completely covered with the same gray moss. Ranged around the table were ten high chairs, each of which, specially built for this occasion, was made of stuck branches with fashionable and splendid rustic designs and with the back rest on the surface. The center of the table was a mound of maiden-hair fern, moss and wild-flowers in their original state. Twenty or thirty electric globes, like those peeping from the walls, were scattered among the ferns and mosses in the center of the table, and in front of each cover was a pitcher of thirty of the rarest of natural forest. The name-cards for each guest were pasted on oak-leaves, and the menus on squares of white birch-bark about to be seven inches in size. The wines were all of the rarest and most expensive vintages.

Trapped.

Theodore—It's all right, darling. I have met your father, and we took to one another at once. He even went so far as to borrow ten dollars of me. Surely, he can't refuse me your hand after that.

Edith—Dory, I'm afraid you've made a mess of it. Pa told me about the ten dollars, and said I'd better let you slide; that you were too easy.—Boston "Transcript."

At the Author's Front Door.

Messenger-boy—Is this Mr. Ernest Seton-Thompson, or Mr. Ernest Thompson-Seton's, or Mr. Sompson-Seton's, or Mr. Ernest Thetson-Seton's son's? Maid—Wait a minute, can't you. He didn't say what it would be to-day. I'll go and ask him.

LEARNING TO COMMAND

How the Bartenbies Took Part in the Parade.

"I want to be captain!" cried Lake Edwards, just as soon as he put his head round the corner of the barn where the other boys were already assembled.

"Why, you've got your bell," retorted Tommy Green, indignantly. "I'wan't fair coming on in that way. You're always doing things when you're not ready, to get always. You didn't think of the company." Willie Jackson spoke of it first, and asked us to meet here and this is his barn, and we're to train in his band, and of course he ought to have the first chance."

"Then he ought to have spoke first," mocked Lake. "He didn't, so I'm captain."

"But you don't know so much 'bout training," expostulated Tommy, although less vehemently. "Willie's my brother's a soldier, and he understands things, and—and is int'rested."

"Well, I guess I can walk on ahead and give orders and wave my sword, can't I?" demanded Lake, aggressively. "That's what a captain's for. And I'm the biggest, and I spoke first."

"Oh, let him be captain if he wants to," interposed Willie, generously. "What's the odds?"

"But he can't do it as well as you," said Tommy, smiled Willie. "That's what I'm trying to do. If I was captain I'd do just what you would not do—it was a reflection on his dignity as an officer to see active duty in the ranks. And more than that, he insisted on putting his brother in lieutenant's. He's two counts above me, tenant and sergeant; and to keep the peace, Willie persuaded his company to accept the situation.

Thus it went on until along in October, when the town was thrown into sudden excitement by the unexpected arrival of an old resident who had gone away, and in twenty years had risen to be a famous general. Of course there was a hurriedly arranged parade, in which the prominent men and the High school children took a leading part, and in which—to their consternation and delight—the Invincibles were asked to join. They were at the very end of the parade, and when they came through the plazas of the little hotel, the spectators were astonished to see the grand suddenly leave his chair and approach them.

"Very good, very good indeed," he approach the degree of perfection to which the pearl counterfeit has been brought." said. "It makes me think of a little company that I commanded on this very street some forty years ago. But I have a proposition to make, boys, that I hope you'll agree to."

"We will!" they cried in chorus.

"Wait till I get through," genially. "There are some defects in your manoeuvring which I noticed and would like to remedy. If you will let me reorganize the company, I will give you a full outfit of caps and belts and wooden guns, and swords for the officers. Do you agree?"

"Yes! yes! yes!" cried the boys.

"Then I'll go through all your movements carefully. I want to study each man."

At the end of twenty minutes he held up his hand.

"That will be called. "The boy with the brown cap will step from the ranks. He will be your captain."

The boy with the brown cap was Willie Jackson.

"Now that boy in the base ball suit, and the one with the red tie, and the one in knickerbockers will become officers. They will be your first and second lieutenants and sergeant."

The boy in the base ball suit was Tommy Green, the others were two who had closely followed Willie's advice to obey orders. Lake Edwards was the boy in knickerbockers.

"But what'll I do?" he demanded.

"Oh, you will have to go back to the ranks, my boy," the general smiled. "It will be for your own good. No one can command until he learns how."

Rest.

Oh thought of infinite joy—
To sleep all soon or even,
With never a care or sorrow,
And with never aught to do.
And to rest—to rest—forgetting
We ever have sobbed or cried;
Forgetting that those who love us
And those whom we love have died.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior goods is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles —we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own material at the actual cost of the less valuable readymixed material.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

For the Revelswortha Millions, or AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Suit by the Man She Loves.

her which had taken since supper, and since at mail-time. At other hours of the day she was very amiable as Mrs. Revelsworth supposed, to her former wife, but evening it had shifted her gay mood until midnight.

Then a short nap in the afternoon before her whiffer after dinner, and filling up the rest of the afternoon with her drive in the donkey-chaise between two and four, her tea, her dinner tea, and the society of little Bettina.

During the two hours which she spent in the drawing-room after dinner Mrs. Revelsworth either knitted and listened to the music, or, on the occasions when Francesca and Victor played chess together and Betty tried over new music from Klugelin, she would converse with her favorite nephew Dudley, for whom she had conceived a great affection. Dudley was English, Dudley was a Revelsworth, and Dudley was something in the wine and spirit business, his quietly humorous manner of speech found Mrs. Revelsworth's mind pleased his aunt greatly. But against the beautiful Francesca Dudley's influence was daily becoming more firmly established in Mrs. Revelsworth's mind. She admired her generosity, she was even, although such a feeling in her would have surprised others, a little afraid of her; but she distrusted her wholly, and it was not the least item of her dislike to Dudley that Francesca possessed either a fanlike tem per or the most perfect self-control possible. Watching her, Betty was inclined to attribute to her the latter rather than the former quality. Mrs. Revelsworth was continually girding at her and finding fault with her before the Others, and then, with no doubt that she treated Francesca's mother with the most humiliating difference. She had indeed taken no violent dislike to that lady when she taught sight of her on her way into his house from the cab that, although Mrs. Hendrick had been for many years an inmate of Revelswor..h House and had repeatedly asked to see to mistress, her wish had never been accorded.

"How is your mother, Frances?" Mrs. Revelsworth usually had the civility to inquire at luncheon-time.

"She is much the same, thank you, aunt Margaret, and would be very glad to see you when you have time to go up."

But Mrs. Revelsworth never had time.

"I am sorry to appear heartless, but I do," she would say, "though I don't much care what people think of me. But, when I'm with Francesca I feel my digger's monkey-face, and hear from Iman and Weldon about her mercenals of garlic and sausage and macaroni and onions, and see that she eats of here—and I wonder how Frances can go it or why she humors her mother in such outlandish tastes—I feel that and the idea of climbing up-stairs to pay her a visit. Faugh! I'm certain I couldn't eat my dinner after smelling garlic and olive oil and all those sauces. And my appetite has been falling off during the past few days as it is."

"It must be the unusually hot weather, Mrs. Revelsworth. You are it's very unreasonable to have the thermometer so high before June."

"Oh, it isn't the thermometer, child!" Mrs. Revelsworth interrupted testily. "It's Anno Domini, I suppose—nothing else. But I was hale enough until this bridge party began to tax my nerves."

"Then why not get rid of them, if they grew upon your nerves and worry you?"

Mrs. Revelsworth shook her head gloomily.

"I have invited them here" she said, "and I must put up with it. I am't complain of the old woman, as I never even saw her, but the fact of her and Dudley; and, as to that French fool, he gave me the idea of inhalation for the sake of which I told you before that I would not have my nerves worried in the house. Twice within the past few nights I have been awakened in the night with an odd stifling feeling. I have sat up in bed and drunk a little water, and it has passed away. But I suppose it is something to a woman of my age to be sure of a warning that the heart is growing old and tired of work."

Betty glanced at her in pained surprise. Mrs. Revelsworth looked like the old lady's bee-bee ever which she had never noticed there before. She looked, in fact, as if she appeared deeper and more plentiful than usual in the strong afternoon light of the drawing-room. Up to this point she had borne her weight of years bravely, but she now looked worn and aged.

"If you feel like that about Francesca," Betty counselled, "I should send her away."

"I cannot be unjust."

"But, if you perish a off her and her mother, it would be unjust—and that's so unjust as cherishing such feelings about her. I think she is splendid—so good to her mother, waiting hand and foot upon her in the dog, and refusing to let me a maid-or a doctor for her. Just to save you money! And you know, dear Mrs. Revelsworth, at such times—without meaning it, I am sure—you do try them. Even I could scarcely stand the things you say to her, and you know I haven't any temper."

"But she hates me all the same," said the old lady emphatically. "I can see it in her eyes through all her amiability. Don't tell me! I know the Italian nature. I read the papers, and know how those brutes stab at Safra in behave. It is, 'Oh, I forgive you, and it doesn't matter!' and they then stick fire in the back when you are not looking. That's Italian all the world over. Francesca is very amiable and long-suffering, but I tell you she hates me, only she is too cunning to show it."

Yet on the day following Francesca's request for a billiard-room for the boys and a "den" for herself, a party of workmen arrived from Hamilton with certain measurements, and one of them, who stood with instructions were to ask for Miss Frances Revelsworth, informed that young lady that he had come to take her orders as to papering a room she would show him.

Francesca was surprise. Miss Revelsworth examined his patterns of wallpaper, selected them all, and ordered him to procure her at once a certain expensive paper of new design which she had seen in London.

Then she went up to a broad oak window-seat and play's lute and embroidery on a cushion with a well-paper and a pair of scissors, and finished a ninety-six" she had of its kind, thing

Betty thought this extravagance would be an absurd anachronism. The room was to be Jacobean and as mediæval as the price will allow. But with those words in his the workman would have agreed to anything that happened to be ultimately instructed. The English workman, he felt in with her views, and built, under her directions, a sort of Jacobean fireplace, with a carved balustrade surmounted by a frame for a piece of her own tapestry-work—a reproduction of a mediæval arrangement of Jones's "Cleo," showing the enchantress in the act of dragging the wine of the ill-fated mariners whose ships are approaching in her direction across a sea studded with rippling sets.

The dentistry art-training which as had had a taste for art, and sufficient knowledge to attain the picturesque in little more than a week she gave an "At home" in her "den," to which Mrs. Revsworth, Betty, the two young men, and Heremon O'Mara were invited.

There was just about room enough to bring Revelsworth's "den" for the six guests who came, and Francesca had done wonders. The window overlooking the workmen was now filled with "blistered" glass in octagonal leadings that let in the light but obscured the view; beneath, the window-seat had been widened and furnished lavishly with cushions covered with old-gold brocade. The whitewash which disfigured the skirting-board and frieze had been replace by ark oak-stain, and the space between filled up with tapestry-paper, which so exactly resembled the old-oak that it was necessary to touch it to assure oneself of the material. A bevelled mirror in a long and narrow frame of carved oak hung on the wall, curtains of old-gold brocade screened the window and the door, a massive rocking-chair, a settle, an embroidery-frame, and two comfy-cushioned old-fashioned seats, made of the packing-cases of time-worn, and and two small tables of the same completed the furniture, with a leopard-skin rug, a highly polished floor-cloth, and a handsome lamp of oxodized silver and pale-green glass from the ceiling, which was covered by a dull-gold papering.

Bowls of beaten brass, filled to overflowing with red roses, and a tea-set of what looked like rare "old royal" china, gave the finishing-touches to the room, which, thus modified-could was in perfect harmony with the picturesque beauty of its mistress, as clad in a tea-gown of her favorite Venetian red, fitting closely to her figure, and fastened at the waist with an enamelled clasp over a loose front of lace, she did the honors at her little reception.

Old Mrs. Revelsworth was unusually subdued in manner. She objected, it is true, to "sitting-all-agee on the ceiling" and "fitting in the windowpanes with broken bottles," and she pointed out know why her niece was in fancy-dress so early in the day." But Francesca's calm graciousness flattered her, and the girl's manner towards the little young man was irresistible. Even without any effort, she established herself as their liege lady and their queen —a position which it was easy enough for her to assume, as Victor was wholly and Dudley partly in love with her, and Heremon, although faithful to Betty, was considerably dazzled by the charms of her "panther-friend," as he called her privately.

Betty made tea; and even she was not the ordinary Betty of every-day life, as her little figure in its Tudor sore silk and mouth blouse to match. Miss Revsworth was for one day only Show any violent contrast to be remarked between her own bandeau dress and the cheap gowns of common material such as little Betty usually wore. Consequently she had demanded Mrs. Revelsworth's permission to "buy a few things for Betty," and had astonished old lady had perforce consented. The girl with soft-fawn-colored face and mouth frills about her flushed face, her curls of the true auburn and black silk stockings and the neatest of buckled shoes on her feet was a very pretty Betty indeed. And here Francesca showed her wisdom. Little Miss Revelsworth was overflowing with gratitude, and the three young men were filled with hearty admiration for Miss Revelsworth's kindness and magnanimity toward her friend.

The "At Home" was a great success, and only Mrs. Revelsworth felt out of her benefit. Iced coffee, instead of ordinary tea, and sweets and strawberries and cream and ices—all these things smacked of Babylon to the old lady, who liked to read of Babylon and be cozy another thereat, but she not care, as she afterwards expressed it to have "scarlet ladies" and extravagant foreign ways brought within her own doors.

Presently Francesca, seated among the cushions on the window-seat, took her lute upon her knee and struck a few chords. Forthwith Betty, from behind the table, broke into melodious swelling song to every one present, with the exception of Mrs. Revelsworth, was delighted.

"You told me you did not play," the latter observed to her niece severely.

"I don't play the piano," responded Francesca. "As I have only a very little talent for music, I chose to become mistress of the instrument best suited to my personality."

"I dare say that is very modern and very clever," observed her aunt tartly, "but I have no idea what it means."

"It means," said Dudley, who was beginning to lose his head a little on the champagne cup, "that Francesca feels rightly she is a 'throwback' a revival of some superb type of Roman ancestress now lived in inactival clines. Nothing about her belongs to the nineteenth century, and nothing she should she turn her back upon the world by the time-worthy Elizabethan upon that most hideous instrument the piano."

"The piano is quite good enough for me, and should be for any English girl, for as to boring for the rest of us on the world, it's the fashion nowadays, so I've read to drag piano into the middle of the room and stick candles on each side—three on each side—and pots on the top. I haven't seen such silliness, but I suppose some of those Futurist people do it."

"There wouldn't be room for a full-sized piano in my den," said Francesca to little Betty.

But, she, with wise ens spoke, she knew was the very appropriateness and beauty of Francesca's attitude as she played upon the lute and performed which angered Mrs. Revelsworth.

The old lady was keener-sighted than her friends imagined. Francesca had gone out to be, older nephew, and, partly through sympathy with him, partly through her powers of observation and skilful attention to the wishes of Francesca, she seemed to see how slipping into an infatuation for the female which was likely to be all the stronger on account of the resistance which she opposed to it.

In truth Francesca interested, puzzled and fascinated Dudley. In his heart he was deeply conscious that he did not possess the art to make her wholly believe in her; and yet, when he took himself to task and tried to analyse his feelings, he could find no grounds for his own mistrust.

As a daughter she was a marvel of devotion. She allowed no one else to minister to her mother in her, and even went the length of occasionally carrying her down-stairs and lifting her on to a sofa-chair, which was then slowly wheeled a little way along the courtyard by Victor Forsyth, who was ready to do anything in the world for Francesca's sake. As to Mrs. Hendrick herself, she clearly worshipped her daughter, and daily spoke of her without tears of love and tenderness in her eyes. In her conflicts with her aunt Dudley could not help admiring Francesca's coolness and resource, and, moreover, she was undoubtedly in the right, and her aunt's meanness, in her opposition, was surprisingly absurd. To Francesca's beauty and personal charm Dudley was not blind, but his every nerve he was conscious of her presence, nor could he by any exercise of will keep his eyes from her beautiful face. As to his brother's infatuation, and Betty's own blindness before it, and, to do Francesca justice, her manner to Victor was perfection—at least as far as Dudley was in a position to observe it.

Then even Dudley, observant as he was, did not see everything. On this identical afternoon, for instance, while his attention was being distracted by Francesca's pirates between Betty and her Irish admirer, his eyes failed to catch a little incident which did not escape his aunt's attention.

For Victor, while affecting to bend all his energies to the tuning-pegs of the lute she held, contrived to slip a little note into her folded hand, and receive one from Francesca in exchange.

CHAPTER XIV.

Before her tea-party was over Frances had extracted another confession from Heremon.

"What boats have you, aunt Margaret?" Francesca inquired, in languid tones. "I have been so busy looking after my mother that I have had no opportunity to go out in a boat on the river yet, and here we are in June!"

"Boats!" repeated Mrs. Revelsworth scornfully. "What about those boats for? I haven't been in a small boat for years."

"But Betty is passionately fond of boating," said Miss Relesworth, "who told me so."

"Miss Mannington does not like being to use my boats sometimes," put in Heremon.

"Then we can't all go in your boat," observed Francesca, smiling sweetly at Betty. "I am sure Betty would prefer—don't you, Dudley?"

"I should Betty, whenever we could get a chance," her cousin answered.

"We ought to have a skiff," Francesca went on. "I am fond of rowing. Is La on cushions in a punt?"

"Miss Revelsworth in the world do you know about punts and skiffs," Heremon asked bluntly. "Did you have lived all your life in Italy?"

"I have lived so much with English people that Heremon exclaimed, flushing a rosy red, "that I know all about them. I have been rowed and carriage and boats. May we have a punt and a skiff, aunt Margaret?"

"I suppose so, if you want them," she said, "but I must let Heremon O'Mara's great surprise.

"That's splendid! After tea I will change my dress and put on my hat and Dudley and I will go down to the boat-house and get a punt out."

"O'Mara is a better judge of a punt than I am," Francesca.

"But, as we intend setting up a rival boat in which we may sometimes be racing Mr. O'Mear's, we must choose it ourselves," said his cousin.

By a little before six o'clock Mrs. Revelsworth had gone up to her own room, leaving Dudley, Betty and Heremon, seeing that Victor was look-

Slater Shoe Advertising

Shoe Adulterants

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 9.

Pasteboard inner soles—leather—ud,
Spongy sole leather under a costly finish that lasts a day.
Gloomy cotton thread passed off for silk stitching.
Imitation Goodyear welts that deceive even experts,
Skimped in the unseen vitals to save pennies
Robbed of dollars' worth of wear;

Such tricks may be practiced on shoes of no particular standing, with no valuable trademark at stake, no advertising to attract attention and invite criticism, —Sold under a nameless brand that's here to-day, gone to-morrow with another in its place.

—But

How long could the makers of the "Slater Shoe" practice such deceptions and survive?

—Of what use publishing this ad, or its $100,000 worth of predecessors for unworthy shoes?

How long would its quarter million dollar trademark continue to attract the trade that makes it valuable?

The "Slater Shoe" by the very force of its advertising has got to be a good shoe and a corking good shoe.

The Triumph of Hope.

"NOWHERE else in life is the triumph of hope over other people's experience so beautifully illustrated as in matrimony," writes Dorothy Dix. "Every young couple who joyously step up the church aisle to the altar believe that they are going to be the one exception to the general rule, and that they will live in a perpetual honeymoon, where they will never want to do anything but gaze into each other's eyes and murmur vows of adoration.

"This is before taking. After taking they find, ah, that they are like other people, and that they have unintentionally taken each other in with a show of virtues that they are not prepared to make good in everyday life. Many a man gets the jar of his life when he finds out that the being he has regarded as an angel has a temper like a fishwife, and many a bride sheds salt and bitter tears when she discovers that the hero of her romantic dreams eats onions, and swears a blue streak when his collar-button rolls under the bureau.

"Age and experience and previous records count for nothing, and no matter how often you may have seen the trial performances of the candidate for matrimony, you never know how he or she will turn out at last as a running mate. A young woman, for instance, who is of the clinging vine pattern, and desires a manly form about which to festoon herself, can base no assurance of future support upon the conduct of her lover. Because, in the days of courtship, he tenderly lifts her over a shadow on the carpet is no sign that after they are married he won't stalk along over it four feet in front of her and leave her to carry six bundles and the baby.

"Neither is there any way to tell beforehand whether a man's supply of patience and forbearance will be equal to the strain of the wear and tear of domestic life. Before marriage a man will accompany a girl shopping and stand around for six hours while she prices things, and assure her that he is enjoying it all and having the time of his life. But the married man who is detained five minutes while his wife purchases a spool of thread rushes Bam Hill, and wants to know what-ah earth she was doing, and if she supposed he wants to spend the balance of his life in a department store?

"So far as men are concerned, the venture is even more hazardous. Women are uncertain ever, and never a greater risk than in matrimony. Many a man who marries a saint gets a scold instead. The trimmest and daintiest and neatest damsel maiden in the community may need only the liberty of her own freedom to degenerate into a slovenly creature in dowdy wrappers and curl-papers, and no man living may prophesy when a fairy-like little thing will turn into a feminine heavyweight, with three chins and a figure like a feather bed.

"There's only one woman in a thousand who pursues the same tactics to keep a husband she did to catch one. Before she was married she listened to his stories with absorbed attention, she laughed at his jokes, and when he took her out was all animation and interest. After marriage she reminds him that she read his pet witticism in the comic papers; she interrupts his best story to say that the neighbor's cat is lost, and at the theater she does not even try to make conversation between the acts. It does not take any Sherlock Holmes to tell when a man is enjoying the melancholy pleasure of taking his wife out."

Surgery by Steam.

A SURGICAL operation performed under canopy by an amateur in the Maine woods was quite as remarkable as the operations of city specialists, who are provided with all the perfect implements and elaborate conveniences. The accident was a dislocated shoulder, and the extempore surgeon's assistant was of a kind hitherto unused in professional practice. It is described by a writer in the Lewiston "Journal."

Old Sabattus was not an Indian, for the nickname implies, but a Yankee guide. One autumn he was left on a steamboat at one of the upper landings on Moosehead Lake while the engineer and all went with some guests.

A man named Meservey came aboard, and in fooling around the boat managed to fall into the fire-pit and put his shoulder out of joint. Here was a dilemma. The other members of the party would not be back for half an hour, and the hurt man was in a great pain.

The guide was a man of expedients. He got a rope and tied his patient securely to a post. Then he tied another rope around the man's wrist and fastened the loose end of it to a pulley of the engine. He managed somehow to turn on steam, and the pulley began to wind up the rope.

It drew the arm out tight in beautiful shape, and presently the joint snapped back into its socket. Then Sabattus jumped around to shut off steam, while the pulley kept on winding.

"How does it go? I don't know where it is!" gasped the guide, excitedly. "I guess that's the trouble!" And the pulley meanwhile was slowly but surely pulling the patient to pieces. His eyes were sticking out of their sockets, and he screamed and gasped for breath.

Sabattus danced around like a wild man, not knowing what to do, when he happened to spy a hatchet lying near, and, jumping for that, he cut the rope.

Some years afterward a lot of summer company arrived at Greenville. Sabattus was there, too, and presently a distinguished-looking man, one of the newcomers, went up to him and said, with a meaning smile, "Aren't you the man who practices surgery by steam?"

Sabattus admitted that he was "that same feller."

New Words.

Many new words have been brought into use by the automobile. The correct word for a private collection of automobiles, equivalent to "stable," seems to afford considerable difficulty. "Motorbarn," "motorama," "motorden," "motorium," "motorshed" and "motable" have all been suggested. The French term "garage" would be a good one if it was not used for designating a place simply for storing and repairing automobiles.

Woman's Wonderful Powers.

In discussing the "sixth sense" in animals, the London Daily News announces that, among the other domestic animals, women possess this gruse to a marked degree In evidence of which there is the instance of the woman resting in the hotel at Arnhill the day before the landslip, who refused to stop another night because she could "feel" that the earth was moving. Similarly, domestic animals manifested symptoms of unrest and apprehension before the serious earthquake of 1897 in the Rivera, and it is commonly noticed that previous to earthquakes, storms and before great storms, dogs, cows, horses—and women—"feel" the approaching disaster. Why domestic animals, including women have this prescience, which is almost entirely wanting in wild beasts and men, is explained by the statement that the former have less to think about than the latter and so are more attentive to their sense impressions. Men and wild beasts labor under the absorbing necessity of providing for themselves against enemies, while the domestic animals are spared all this.

Now that the sixth sense of woman has been certainly discovered and clearly explained in London, Harper's Bazar, one naturally looks there to know why, if anything, come to woman in measuring up the fourth dimension.

Three Excellent Recipes.

CHEESE BISCUITS.—Place four ounces of Parmesan cheese and four ounces of pastry flour in a bowl, with a little salt and a few grains of cayenne. Rub into this two ounces of butter and make into a stiff dough with the yolk of an egg. Roll the pastry out thinly, cut it into rounds, prick with a fork and bake in a cool oven until crisp. Keep these biscuits in a tin until quite cool.

PRUNE JELLY.—Take one quart of prunes, stir well and soak and mash through colander half a box of gelatine; put in bowl, cover with cold water, let it soak for about five minutes; take a pint and a half of the mashed prunes, add to the gelatine, with three tablespoonfuls of sugar; put on the stove, and let boil for two minutes; pour into jelly moulds and serve with cream.

EGGS A LA JOSEPHINE.—Boil six eggs twenty minutes. Remove the shells. Remove the yolks without breaking; cut the whites in thin, narrow slices, and mix them with an equal quantity of fine shredded cooked fish and a tablespoonful of fine bread crumbs. The mixture may be put in a circular or oval ring, and put the yolks in the centre. Set the platter in a steamer to heat the mixture. Make a pint of thick white sauce and pour around the edge of the dish.

He who forecasts calamities suffers them twice over.

RECEPTION AND MUSICALE.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR AT THE RESIDENCE OF MRS. J. W. DENNIS LAST NIGHT.

The beautiful residence of Mrs. Dunnet, corner of West Bridge and Commercial streets, was thronged last night with ladies and gentlemen who had gathered to meet Bishop Hoffman and his gracious wife, and incidentally to listen to a brief but highly pleasing programme. Rev. W. J. Gilliland was chairman, and Mrs. Dennis, Miss M. Gibson and Miss Lois Mannet were indefatigable and charming hostesses. The programme consisted of songs by Mrs. A. G. Parker, whose numbers were, as usual, received by with delight; recitations by Miss Jessie Tuite, which proved highly entertaining and pleased the audience hugely; a piano solo by Master Reginald Gean, who displayed a rare touch and wonderful technique for one so young; and songs, splendidly rendered, by Mr. Harry McKee. At the conclusion of the programme, the Bishop, in a few well-chosen words, expressed his thanks for the pleasure afforded Mrs. Hoffman and himself, and his delight with the beauties of Belleville, which he described as one of the most charming places he had ever visited. Dainty refreshments, served by the Ladies' Aid, and social intercourse brought a pleasant evening to a close.

WHY CATARRH IS FATAL. Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation, that saps strength and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a fragrant germ-destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to perfectly cure bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit $1, small size 50c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CONVOCATION AT OLD ALBERT.

Honors Conferred on Many Bright Young Ladies and Gentlemen Last Night.

Distribution of Diplomas and Medals — Successful Year Comes to a Close.

The commencement exercises in connection with Albert College, which have been going on for the past few days, were brought to a close last evening and the students of that institution have left for their homes. The annual convocation is an event which is eagerly looked forward to by not only the students but citizens generally. It took place in Massey Hall last night, and the delightful evening brought out one of the largest audiences ever seen within the building. The programme was interesting, the proceedings being enlivened at intervals by choice songs rendered by the girls and boys, who were grouped on either side of the hall.

At 8 o'clock the faculty and a few of the invited guests took seats upon the platform, amongst the latter being Rev. Dr. Potts, Toronto, J. R. Reid, Dr. Galbraith, G. Horton, A. Campbell, S. F. Dixon, Dr. Gardiner, F. B. Stratton, Mr. Wm. Johnson and Mr. N. Vermilyea.

The proceedings were opened by prayer by Rev. Dr. Gretton, followed by the reading of the prize essay, the subject being "John Wesley as an Author and Educator," by Mr. J. R. Bell. It showed careful and thoughtful preparation.

The conferring of degrees was next proceeded with. Rev. Dr. Wright, Dyer remarked, the girls this year had led the boys. Two young ladies, Misses Iva May Horton and Edna Agnes Berry are to receive the degree of M.L.A. conferred upon them and they were heartily cheered as they knelt before the President.

There were 13 candidates who wrote for senior matriculation (Toronto University), but what number is not yet known, as their names did not appear upon the programme.

The granting of diplomas, certificates, etc., was then proceeded with, the following being the successful students in the various subjects taught:

In the conclusion of this interesting part of the programme, Principal Dyer gave a brief address, referring to the work of the college during the past year. It was the most successful year in the college's history, in every respect. The enrollment of students was the largest, the attendance ever had, namely, 186 females and 156 males, a fact which is a marvellous growth. He referred to the improvements made in the institution and spoke in flattering terms of the loyal support given the college by the citizens of Belleville. He also announced the Lady Principal, Miss Gardiner, as the recipient of the gold locket presented by the students.

The pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Dr. Gardiner brought the proceedings to a close.

DON'TS FOR PARENTS

The Health of School Children is Now Receiving Attention.

The health of school children is paramount to every other consideration, and parents should be particularly girls, between the ages of ten and seventeen. Prohibit evidences of nervous disorder such as twitching of the face muscles, extreme irritability it is a sure sign either that the school work is too severe or that they are working under proper hygienic conditions, or both.

In the majority of cases to conquer the difficulties of arithmetic or grammar or the intricacies of a new language is harder work for the child than are for the business or professional man his every-day vocation. Hence children need constant care, sympathy and encouragement.

Children should spend not less than two hours a day in the open air, and after school should play games requiring both skill and activity. They should not be permitted to attend social parties or public meetings or entertainments on an evening previous to a school day. They should have been reared to play or study at suitable change or occupation, study or recreation, at least every half hour.

The children should have food hours for study.

When parents find that their children are not making satisfactory progress to accomplish the work assigned by the teacher in the time, specified in the term they should at once investigate the fact to the principal of the school and ask diminution of the tasks assigned.

Parents should never urge children to the extra efforts for competition, nor show annoyance if they fail to obtain promotion. What children need for the intellectual and moral progress is systematic work. If for any good reason the child is not promoted or graduated at the end of the term, he should not be reprimanded but encouraged to try again. Nor should parents by finding fault with the teacher weaken the child's respect for good.

Cigarette-smoking by growing boys is dangerous alike to the physical, the intellectual and the moral nature. Parents cannot be too vigilant in preventing their sons from using tobacco in any form, and particularly in that of the cigarette.

Soldier is Singular.

The uncompromisingly ugly rack-a-bones, usually discovered in boarding-houses in the Summer months, says Harper's Bazar, from which the illustration is taken, by slipping over it a plain piece frame, from whose lower part hangs a curtain like that in the picture, and upper half may be arranged with shelves for bric-a-brac or crockery. If the curtain be made of delightfully flimsy stuff the covering may be left on in Winter as well as in Summer, and it will look very attractive. The frame may be stained to match the woodwork of the room.

Fish Need Rain Food.

"The popular notion that "fish is a brain food" is a mistake, for eminent physiologists tells us that fish, no more than other animals, contains any contributes to brain growth and development. All nitrogenous foods, such as lean meat, eggs and so on, repair the tissues of the body, but fish is of no more importance than the others.

"Marry, I feel dizzy. Suppose I should fall."

"Forsooth! I should cast myself down on top of you."

"Well, after all, 'twas but a momentary feeling. I guess I won't fall. Marry."

Among the Old Masters.

A GOOD looking young woman, who had evidently been fed on large quantities of "culture," was visiting at one of the day art and comfortable middle-aged soul, whose agreeable but totally unspoiled interest in things that here was the proud privilege of being mother to her companion. The girl dragged her mother from corner to canvas, explaining things in a high-pitched voice, and a portion of the conversation is recorded by the "Tribune."

"Rembrandt was a Dutchman," she observed. "You see how full of shadows his pictures are."

"Shadows, indeed," returned the mother. "I must say, though, it was well for that lady he did put her in the shadow. He must have been mad as a hatter for painting her, I should say," she added with scorn.

The two passed on to Rubens.

"Ain't they fat, those ladies—if you can call 'em ladies!" exclaimed the portly matron, for once interested.

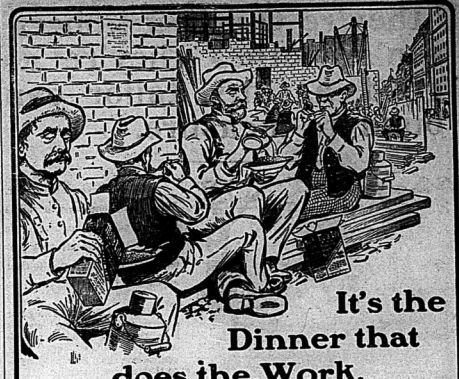

"He used his wife as a model, mother," volunteered the cultured one.

"Well, now," said mother, wrathfully, "to think a man would make such a show of his own wife! No, I may not be so well educated as you, but I know better than that, I hope."

The conversation, carried on in clear tones, had attracted the attention of half the room. The girl blushed deeply, and drew her mother away in the direction of the modern rooms. The hopeless remark floated back:

"No, Antoinette, it ain't no use. Them old masters all look alike to me."

Stranger—And don't your congregation consider it a sin to tell a lie? Kentucky Parson—It depends on the lie, stranger. We don't consider it any great harm for a man to make out he has been bitten by a snake in a prohibition district.

It's the Dinner that does the Work.

To sit down on the soft side of a plank and eat dry bread and molasses, as many workmen have done, is not a pleasant prospect after a hard forenoon's work. The "full dinner pail" is all very well but it should be full of something good.

MALTA-VITA, the perfect food, gives to both the mechanic and the laborer a most delicious dinner at very small cost, cooked ready to eat, easily carried. A few ounces of Malta-Vita in a paper bag and a little milk, makes a most nourishing and satisfying meal for any able bodied man.

MALTA-VITA is the whole wheat impregnated with barley malt then cooked, flaked and toasted. The most appetizing and sustaining of all foods.

Your grocer will tell you all about it.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL.—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL.—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1891 NO. 48

BY THEIR OWN VOTES THE MINISTERS STAND.

Ross-Stratton Cabinet Declares its Own Immaculacy.

Straight Party Vote of 41 to 37 on the Final Resolution of the Gamey Referee—Report in the Legislature—Mr. Ross Will Not Resign, and Others Will Not Be Asked to Resign—Gamey Will Only Visit the Provincial Secretary.

Toronto, June 27.—In the Legislature yesterday morning, Mr. Graham, in resuming his report, remarked that after the Metrovey investigation by committee in 1891, the Caron charges against Dr. John Thompson and D'Alton McCarthy, who had been before the previous committee, favored investigation by committee. The report of the committee was then laid before the house, and the evidence and report would be the same as before. The Opposition said he should resign. Mr. Whitney had said he should resign now. Mr. Whitney had said he believed the statements of Mr. Gamey, which meant there were some things in it which he did not believe.

Mr. Whitney—I said that I believed that the allegations of the member for Manitoulin were proven to be mainly true. There may have been some details which were not proved true.

Mr. Graham said he had distinctly heard him say "true," but there was this difference in meaning. The whole chain must go to prove if some of the links were to break the accuser did not know the date on which he said he sold his honor to the Provincial Secretary. Was it any wonder that the leader of the Opposition could not believe the details?

Story Is Absurd.

It was a monstrous proposition to ask any sensible man to believe that he did not know the date when he entered upon the greatest contract of his life. The story was absurd on that point. Then the accuser did not know who gave him the money. He turned his back and looked out of the window. That was not the witness's attitude, and it was no wonder the opposition did not believe the details. Granted that the Opposition did not believe Mr. Gamey, they would not say he was a natural born idiot, and go with the money that passed through the hands of three other men in order to make evidence against himself.

The Missing Slip.

Further the leaves were cut which Gamey said had been for $5,000 and the $1,000 period. On the Saturday morning Gamey went to the Dominion Bank and asked for the $5000 deposit slip of September 11, 1890. He gave another slip, and when asked for the original search-for it and finally produced another with the teller's initials thereon, but not the right slip. Then he went to Buffalo. Was anything further needed to discredit the man from Manitoulin?

Then Gamey's story that he had borrowed $1,500 was incredible. Inspector Frank Sullivan giving him $500 in January, then Gamey owed him $1,000. Gamey had used the money in his own business, and even at the present time had $1,200 of the money invested in his business.

Mr. Gamey—You'll find Judge Boyd with $2,000 of the money in his possession.

If Gamey got the money, where he said he did, why did Mr. Smyth not go to the Government after a reward of $10,000 for information as to the payment of the money?

Mr. Graham said the member for Manitoulin couldn't produce a bit of documentary evidence, although in his statement he said he had lots of it. He had a written agreement, he said, and he could not produce it. That was not with Frank Sullivan, which would have proved the whole case. It was destroyed the fact that the delegate Government candidate was by common consent entitled to the patronage of the riding. The judges should have been apprised of this in order that they might understand that Mr. Ross and not Mr. Gamey, should have been consulted by the Government in the bestowal of patronage.

Evidence and Report.

The report was, whether the evidence justified the report. There could be no harm in criticising the judges; they were not infallible men; if they were right always they would be as high as a Court of Appeal. It was the right and duty of the House to criticise the judges. The report was a surprise to the whole people. They had been following the evidence and were of the opinion that the report was right.

Some of the discrepancies were called trivial. They were told that when the judges referred to Macgregor as a Conservative organizer, they made a mere slip, perhaps that was so, but it was apt to mislead somebody, and it had no doubt misled the Provincial Secretary, who he manufactured his theory as to the source of the money. Looking into the report, Mr. Foy did not find the formulated charges set forth in the second statement of Mr. Gamey in the House.

A Fatal Omission.

It was a fatal omission for the judges to leave out the "if" in Gamey's statement, and put it in another place. He was sure the Commissioners would correct that omission. No attempt had been made by the Government to do anything like that, but they passed it over to talk about something Gamey did with a Mr. Smith.

The judges stated in their report that Gamey had refused to put any of his writing to the Provincial Secretary. Mr. Foy read the letter in which the statement by Gamey was fully set out in his statement in the House, and which was ignored.

The member for Brockville occupied a short time in which the leading the member for Manitoulin was a very bad man; therefore, the Provincial Secretary must be innocent. That was not the correct reasoning. The Provincial Secretary had a right to demand a letter from Gamey unless there was a bargain.

Predestinus Not Correct.

It was a mistake to remember a conversation and repeat it verbatim. The member for Dufferin-Simcoe could not do it, but Gamey was a scoundrel and a villain because he could not remember the exact word of his numerous conversations.

The next point at issue was shown by evidence which no attempt had been made to controvert, that a bargain had been made. The improbabilities of the case would be really too great to believe. Moreover, it was proved that there was an illegal and fraudulent conspiracy in existence to the protest, and an illegal and improper use of the public funds for campaign purposes. He concluded by expressing regret that the Ministers did not go into the box and explain their actions.

Straight Party Vote.

The ayes and nays were then called for on Mr. Rickard's amendment to the amendment to move the member for Manitoulin, and it was carried by 41 to 37.

The vote on Mr. Rickard's amendment was as follows:—Ayes—Anderson, Auld, Bell, Bowman, Brown, Burt, Caldwell, Cameron (Huron), Cannes, Currie, Dancey, Dryden, Evanturel, Gibson, Graham, Grant, Hardy, Harper, Hesson, Holmes, James, Yatchford, Lee, Little, (Norfolk), Patullo, Preston, Richardson, Preston (Brant), Richardson, Rickard, Ross, Rowell, Scott, Sinclair, Smith, Taylor, Thompson, Truax, Tudhope.—41.

Nays—Barr, Brower, Carnegie, Carscallen (Hamilton), Cascaden, Cochrane, Cook, (Glengarry), Crawford, Downey, Duff, Ebber, Foy, Fox, Gallagher, Gamey, Hunter, Kerr, Lount, Lyon, Major, Joyst, Kidd, Little (Cardwell), Lucas, Mathews, Morrison, Mountain, Macdiarmid, Nesbitt, Pearce, Powell, Preston (Durham), Rae, Rose, Smith, John, Smyth, Sutherland, Tucker, Whitney.—37.

Commissioners' Finding Passed.

This disposed of Mr. Sutherland's amendment to the Provincial Secretary.

The original motion, adopting the report of the commissioners and thanking them for their fair and impartial conduct was declared carried on the same division.

Mr. Clarke (West Clarke (W. Northumberland) and Kirke, Routledge and Waterous, Brantford, Wilkinson, McCart and McLeod, Michaud and Ilsoume, McKay and Ilsoume, Macdonald and Macdonald, and Beck, Carr and Beatty.

Railway Subsidy Passed.

Hon. Mr. Latchford introduced his bill to set apart out of the ungranted lands of Ontario for subsidies to the Canada Central Railway, 7,400 acres of land per mile, being the company's railway from a point at the head of deep water navigation on the French River, through the Town of Sudbury, to a point in the Township of Hutton, in the county of Leeds, twenty miles. The bill was read a first time.

On the second reading, Mr. Pettypiece opposed the bill.

Mr. Hardy explained the Government building it.

Mr. Mills (Bast) favored the bill.

Mr. Whitney favored the grant on its merits, but scored Mr. Latchford for his secretiveness and the Government for bringing down the bill at the tail end of the session.

After some further discussion, principally as to details, the bill was called for by the opponents of the bill and resulted in the bill going through by 57 to 18. The nays were: Pettypiece, Carscallen (Hamilton), Gallagher, Gamey, Hanna, Tucker, Hoyle, Broder, Clark (Brock), Downey, Preston (Durham), Sutherland, Carscallen (Lennox).

The bill passed through committee without amendment, and was finally given its third reading.

CHAMBERLAIN DINED.

Honors Progress To-Day.

At noon to-day His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will attend at the Parliament Buildings and formally prorogue the first session of the tenth legislature of Ontario. The detachment, of 100 men of the Royal Grenadiers will form a guard of honor.

THE MAN FROM GLENGARRY

J. T. Schell, M.P., Keeps His Seat in Dominion Commons.

The Privileges of Election Committee Reports That the $2.50 Transaction Was With a Private Individual and Not With the Government—Position Maintained by Mr. Sutherland—Minister Blake Agrees to Consider Mr. W. F. Maclean's Three Amendment.

Ottawa, June 27.—Jacob T. Schell will continue to represent the Glengarry. The Committee on Privileges and Elections having decided that he is not guilty of an infringement of the act respecting the independence of Parliament. Mr. Sutherland presented the report of the committee to the House yesterday. The report set forth that the goods sold by McPherson & Schell to W. D. Scott, was a private transaction, and that the firm was no contract as between the firm and the Government. Carried.

No motion was made. The report of the committee was then laid on the table of the House. Mr. Schell had taken his seat in the House, but Mr. Fiedler walked over and took his seat and whispered a few words to him. The members of the House was noticed to hastily leave the House. His countenance while passing Mr. Schell, is not yet officially complete.

Death of a Member.

Feeling reference was made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the death of Donald Farquharson, the member for Prince P. E. I. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said Mr. Farquharson was absent from House while in poor health, and was therefore not able to be present when the undoubted talents entitled him to. The deceased had, however, been able to attend the House for a few days during the present session. His position as a solicitor, it

OUR PRESENT RULERS.

Marvellous is the wise statesmanship of the present School of Liberalism, which has grown up under new leadership and on the old school of party principle laid down by Alberals prior to 1896. It is not a matter for surprise, when one looks back over the history of the party during the past seven years, to see staunch journals which supported Wilfrid Laurier declaring that should a Liberal (of the old school) return after an absence of some years, he would be unable to recognize the policy of the person now known as Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Conservatives have been invited to make definite proposals in regard to changes they desire in the tariff. They have found and have moved for increased duties on iron and steel and market garden produce. Then the Government pronounced those proposals unfair they asked for unsupported. Men who voted in the strength of the Conservative platform against protection did, at first making declarations that it was necessary in the interests of the country, Sir Wilfrid Laurier declares himself to be a free trader. He supports what he calls a revenue tariff. Further than that he makes secret conclave with manufacturers to increase duties. Last, but not least, he invites his colleagues to vote for trade or preference as the votes of their constituents demand. There is no stability, no responsibility, no honor in such a policy. If it is wise on but for power and that at any price.

PEN PICTURES OR PEOPLE YOU MEET

ON A BELLEVILLE STREET.

REV. PRINCIPAL DYER.

Only once a year, on "Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday," do the good people of Belleville have the privilege of seeing Rev. Dr. Dyer in cap and gown. How many years the Rev. Doctor has been wearing that cap and gown Jeponest saith not, but they surely bears the signs of honorable age, if not of antiquity. On the other hand days of the year our subject is generally seen driving a quiet pony, which, like his master, appears to be wrapped in abstruse meditation. A very quiet, self-contained, soft-spoken gentleman is the Principal of Albert College, with unfailing suavity and a peculiar fitness for his position which is shown by the fact that the attendance at the college, since he assumed charge, has increased by leaps and bounds, particularly in late years. If the Rev. Principal, we are told, insists on any one thing more than another, it is thoroughness. Some people think the writer board him preach from the text (to quote from memory) "Forget not the study of little things." "It is the little things (big accent on the little) of life, my friends," he said, "which make or mar us in this world. Then let us be thorough, in whatsoever our hands find to do, do it with all our might." A fine motto, that, for anybody to be his first endeavor. Nobody would call Principal Dyer an orator, but he has a deliberate manner of speaking which somehow or other seems his remedy to sink into the minds of his hearers, and he never has been known to speak without having something to say. It is rather a pity (this is between ourselves, of course) that Dr. Dyer is not able to see his way clear towards mixing a little more with social life in Belleville, but I don't when a man has the care and supervision of two or three hundred lively young people of both sexes on his shoulders he has trouble enough. When one comes to remember that Dr. Dyer has been principal of Albert for eighteen years he is rather surprised to hear that the subject of our little sketch is still under 50, but that's the truth. Of course, he doesn't look old, but then he has such a sedate air, and his position, you know! The Rev. Doctor was born at Orono, Ont., in 1854, and received his primary education at that place. Subsequently he was sent to Albert College (B.A., with honors in Philosophy and Natural Science, 1877; M.A., 1879). He also studied Divinity in the institution of which he is now principal, and was admitted to the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1875. Subsequently he was appointed Professor of Natural Science in his alma mater, and became principal on the retirement of President Burgess, of happy memory, in 1885. Principal Dyer took the degree of D.Sc. in Victoria University in 1892, and received from it the honorary degree of D.D. in 1895. The W.P. in front of his name stands for William Pirritte. It is not necessary to tell anybody that he is a Methodist, or that he is attached to the Tabernacle in many ways like a fine one. We don't know that he ever has time to think about politics, but it is a lamentable fact that many of the young men who have grown up under his wing have decided Liberal leanings, and actually seem to glory in it. There is nothing like cold truth in the statement that Rev. Dr. Dyer is a popular man with all classes in Belleville, and the wish is universal that he may long be spared to watch over and advance the interests of the excellent institution on College Hill.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Belleville has a pretty fast lacrosse team, taken as a whole, though, with the Indians off, yesterday, the team was not nearly so strong as it will be on July 1, when the first champion lacrosse game is played here. However, the team was strong enough yesterday afternoon to make the visitors from the neighboring village of Campbellford look like a lot of novices. The local home could probably have scored twenty goals if they had wanted to, and, in the first part of the game, before it became apparent how painfully easy the visitors were, the local home showed some very fine clever, fetching work, good enough to win applause anywhere. Kennedy, Whitty and McGuire had a fashion of working the ball down on top of the visitors' flags, which it would take a fast defence to check. The local team is able to put up a fast game, and, if in proper condition, can undoubtedly any team which comes this way hustle to hold them even. The Campbellford boys ran well and speed prettily before the game began; after that they were like the man who fell out of a balloon. The score had the locals worked hard, would have been as one-sided as the judge's report on the Gamey case. The Bellevillians seemed to get uncommonly near whenever they pleased, and the home scored so often and so easy that it grew monotonous. The locals got four goals in the first quarter to Campbellford's one, that being from a long shot. In the second quarter Belleville got three more and the villagers another. In the third quarter the Red and White Boys got two and Campbellford a goose-egg, and in the last quarter the local home tossed the ball to the visitors' home and shouted "Let 'em score. They did seem three times in Belleville's favor, the final tally being 12—5. It was 3.30 when the match started, and many did not wait for it to finish. Mr. Dryden, of Campbellford, was referee, and the teams lined up thusly:—

Notes of the Game.

Painfully easy!

Big "Billy" Hitchon played like a colt at inside home.

Kennedy, Whitty and McGuire are a trio who will bear a lot of watching.

Kennedy seems to be an all round athlete. He plays every game going, and plays it well.

If the Peterboro Athletics can beat the local bunch in their own grounds, with the Indians on, and every man in proper shape, well, the Petes will be deadies, that's all!

The attendance was not large enough to put the home club on Easy street for the rest of the season, but those who saw yesterday, that the local boys have speed and skill, and there ought to, and probably will, be a fine gate at every game hereafter.

PAIN IN THE BACK

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knock-out to pain in the back, for it penetrates the muscles, tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is strong—very strong, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute; get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

They Contain No Alcohol

Kidney-Wort-Tablets

AN EFFECTIVE AND POSITIVE CURE FOR KIDNEY DISEASES

Every man and woman should know when his or her kidneys are becoming weak and diseased. You will realize the fact if you experience backache, loss of appetite, cloudy or milky colored urine, swelling of head and feet, bloating of the body, unnatural thirst and loss of weight. These symptoms are sure indications of kidney trouble.

Directly these symptoms are noted, make immediate use of Dr. Pettigill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, a purely vegetable compound, and free from alcohol. The ordinary liquid kidney medicines are largely made up of common alcohol, which inflames and irritates the kidneys.

Dr. Pettigill's Kidney-Wort Tablets have rescued thousands of kidney sufferers from death after the failures of physicians. Try them today; you cannot be disappointed. 50 cents per bottle or six bottles for $2.50. All druggists recommend them.

COURT OF REVISION.

POPULAR YOUNG MAN DEAD.

MR. HARRY DOWZER CROSSED THE DARK RIVER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

In the death of Mr. Harry Dowzer, which occurred yesterday afternoon at the residence of his mother, Moira street, a young man who was universally esteemed passed away. Deceased was in his 20 years of age and was born in this city, where he had always resided. For nearly a year he had been ill with kidney trouble. Lately, previous to his illness, was employed by the Mac Machine Company. He was exceptionally popular with his companions, who will sincerely regret his demise. A widowed mother, one brother, Frank, and one sister, Daisy, survive. They will receive the sympathy of many friends.

Grandchildren at Edward VII.'s Coronation.

It has not been a common thing in English history for the eldest child at the time of coronation to have royal children gracing the ceremony; and as the grandchildren being present, the king or queen of England had any at the coronation of a reign. Royal juveniles have been conspicuously absent from these grand ceremonies, and it will be a unique feature of King Edward's coronation that some of his grandchildren will be old enough to witness and understand the scene. It was a matter of regret that the dishes fell by King William IV. for the Duchess of Kent occasioned him to retrain from inviting her and her daughter, the latter his heiress-presumptive, to see him crowned; and the Duchess felt the slight keenly.

Sentimental.

The capitalist colored when he spoke of the check that hung in a neat frame over his desk. "A token of sentimentalism," said he; "the first billion I ever made!"—Detroit "Free Press."

Lost chances never leave any regret.

OUR PRESENT RULERS.
Marvellous is the new statesmanship of the present school of Liberalism, which has grown by under new leadership and on the ruins of every principle held dear by Liberals prior to 1896. It is only a matter for surprise, when one looks back over the history of that party during the past seven years, if one staunch journals which supported Wilfrid Laurier declaring that should a Liberal (or the old school return after an absence of some years, he would be unable to recognize the policy of the person now known as Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Conservatives have been invited to make definite proposals in regard to changes they desire in the tariff; they have found and have moved for increased duties on iron and steel and market garden produce. Then the Government pronounced these proposals whilst they asked for "unsportunity" then who voted in the creak of the Government; whip against protection and a fiscal basis; declarations that it was necessary in the interests of the country, Sir Wilfrid Laurier declares himself to be a free trader. He supports what he calls a revenue tariff. Further than that, they be makes general promises with manufacturers to increase duties. Last, but not least, he invites his followers to talk free trade or protection as the votes of their constituents demand. There is no stability, no responsibility, no honor in such a policy. It is unworthy bid for power and that at any price.

PEN PICTURES of PEOPLE YOU MEET
ON A BELLEVILLE STREET

REV. PRINCIPAL DYER.

Only once a year, on "Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday," do the good people of Belleville have the privilege of seeing Rev. Th. Dyer in cap and gown. How many years the Rev. Doctor has been wearing that cap and gown depends, sadly not, but they surely bears the signs of honorable age, if not of antiquity. On the other 364 days of the year one delights to generally seen driving a quiet pony, which, like his master, appears to be wrapped in abstruse meditation. A very quiet, self-contained, self-spoken gentleman is the Principal of Albert College, with unfailing suavity and a peculiar fitness for his position, which is shown by the fact that the attendance at the college, since he assumed charge, has increased by leaps and bounds, particularly in late years. If the Rev. Principal, we are told, insists on any one thing more than another, in his examinations, these years, as the writer heard him preach from the text (to quote from memory) "Forget not the day of little things." To get not the day of little things (or accent on the little) of life, my friends," he said, "which make or mar us in this world." This is the warning, then, whatsoever our hands find to do, do it with all our might." A fine motto, that, for anybody, but a doubly fine one for a preacher. Nobody would call Principal Dyer an orator, but he has a delicate manner of speaking which somehow or other causes his remarks to sink into the minds of his hearers, and he never has been known to speak without having something to say. It is rather a pity (this is between ourselves, of course) that Dr. Dyer is not able to see his way clear towards mixing a little more with social life in Belleville, but then when a man has the care and supervision of two or three hundred lively young people of both sexes on his shoulders he has trouble enough. When one comes to remember that Dr. Dyer has been principal of Albert for eighteen years he is rather surprised to hear that the subject of our little sketch is still under 50, but that's the truth. Of course, he doesn't look old, but then he has such a sedate air, and his position, you know! The Rev. Doctor was born at Orono, Ont., in 1854, and received his primary education at that place. Subsequently he was sent to Albert College (B.A., with honors in Philosophy and Natural Science, 1877; M.A. 1879). He also studied Divinity in the institution of which, he is now principal, and was admitted to the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1878. Subsequently he was appointed Professor of Natural Science in his alma mater, and became principal on the retirement of President Burgess, of blessed memory, in 1895. Principal Dyer took his degree of D.Sc. at Victoria University in 1892, and received from it the honorary degree of D.D. in 1899. The W.P. in front of his name stands for William Pirrite. It is not a bad name to fall anybody's that he is a Methodist, or that he is attached to the Pirrsons in some way that we know. We don't know that he ever was in to think about politics, but it is a lamentable fact that many of the young men who grow up under his tuition decide Liberal leanings, and actually seem to glory in it. There is one thing he could teach in the statement that Rev. Dr. Dyer is a peaceful man, and all classes in Belleville, and the wish is universal that he may long be spared to work for good and advance the interests of the excellent institution on College Hill.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Belleville has a pretty fast lacrosse team, taken as a whole, though, with the Indians off, yesterday, the team was not nearly so strong as it will be on July 1, when Carroll and Johnston are placed here. However, the team was strong enough yesterday afternoon to make the visitors from the neighboring village of Campbellford look like a lot of novices. The local home could probably have scored twenty goals if they had wanted to, and, in the first part of the game, before it became apparent how painfully easy the visitors were, the local home rushed matters very gratuitously work, good enough to win applause anywhere. Kennedy, Whitty and McGuire had a fashion of working the ball down on top of the visitors' flags, which it would take a fast defence to check. The local team is able to play a fast game, and if it is in proper condition, can undoubtedly any team which comes this way hustle to hold them even. The Campbellford men were well and speed prettily before the game began; after that they were like the man who fell out of a balloon. The score had the locals worked hard, would have been as one-sided as the judge's report on the Gamey case. The Belleville team played as they observed whenever they pleased, and the home scored so often and so easy that it grew monotonous. The locals got four goals from the first quarter to Campbellford's one, that being from a long shot. In the second quarter there were three more and the villagers another. In the third quarter the Red and White Boys got two and Campbellford a goose-egg, and in the last quarter the local home tossed the ball to the visitors' home and shouted "Let 'em score. They did score three times to Belville's twice, the final tally being 12—5. It was 3.30 when the match started, and any old not will for it to finish. Mr. Dryden, of Campbellford, was referee, and the teams lined up thusly:

Campbellford.		Belleville
Shannon	Goal	McFee
	Point
Pope		Wallace
	Cover Point
Mitchell		Cook
	1st Defence
Stephenson		Brown
	2nd Defence
Crowe		W. Ford
	3rd Defence
Beattie		Fish
	Centre
F. Shea		McGuire
	3rd Home
Lowery		Whitty
	2nd Home
Sanders		Kennedy
	1st Home
L. Shea		Allen
	Outside Home
Blute		Burke
	Inside Home
O'Sullivan		Hitchon

Notes of the Game.

Painfully easy!

Big "Billy" Hitchon played like a colt at inside home.

Kennedy, Whitty and McGuire are a trio who will bear a lot of watching.

Kennedy seems to be an all round athlete. He plays every game going, and plays it well.

If the Peterboro Athletics can't defeat the local bunch on their own grounds, with the Indians on, and every man in proper shape, well, the Petes will be dandies, that's all.

The attendance was not large enough to put the home club on Easy street for the rest of the season, but people saw yesterday that the local boys have speed and skill, and there ought to, and probably will, be a fine gate at every game hereafter.

PAIN IN THE BACK
makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. POPULAR YOUNG MAN DEAD.

MR. HARRY DOWZER CROSSED THE DARK RIVER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

In the death of Mr. Harry Dowzer, which occurred yesterday afternoon at the residence of his mother, Moira street, a young man who was universally esteemed passed away. Deceased was in his 27th years of age and was born in this city, where he had always resided. For nearly a year he had been ill with lung trouble. Harry, previous to his illness, was employed by the Mac Machine Company. He was exceptionally popular with his fellow workmen, who will sincerely mourn his demise. A widowed mother, one brother, Frank, and one sister, Daisy, survive. They will receive the sympathy of many friends.

ing somewhat discordant bits, good-naturedly offered to scroll over to Hampton's piano, where he had best, and badly, been dinner.

"Your mother has Jolly well benefitted your aunt," the young Irishman observed, as seated at the door of Revelsworth House closed upon them; "and all the male members of the household appear to be going on her, with the exception of that wobden-faced Wellington; but it would require Venus and Helen of Troy put together to have any effect upon him. That young imp Ivo's a sight starve at her as if he could eat her all the time he is in the room with her."

"But it is an abominable b'y, and its time at 'Aryhowe without ceasing!" protested Victor.

He was rather hurt that Francesca had chosen his brother as the companion for her evening walk to the boathatidere's; but he could not be certain jealous or depressed in face of the delightful fact that a note was in his pocket, which, under the pretence of studying a local paper with the information to be from a passing newsboy, he had just succeeded in reading.

The note was in pencil, and ran as follows:

"If you will be good, and promise not to tease me, and to keep your own counsel, you may come to see me with me in town to-morrow. I shall take the 11:15 from Hampton; but you must be had better find some excuse to stay after me and take the 2:45 train with travellers. I will return by the 6:24, and you can come back later. "F. sister's strange conduct to Francesca, with ever-widening conviction, that there was some very mysterious lady at the music-hall were linked one half to the other.

She walked and took up into her face it first. Her voice was as cool and level as usual, but there was a strained look on the trouble he had taken, and indignant flush in her cheek that was trying to give a few old clothes to the little colored boy.

"Then we will go for our walk, if it isn't too late," she said.

"Not at all," said her tea-gown for a dress very similar to that worn by Francesca, silk skirt and a blouse of delicate chiffon and lace, with a belt of gold and a cluster of red roses at her black waist; while she was most surely know, Ludley told him, that that day was her birthday, circulate! But she went on unconcerned. She was thinking of the charitable hallucination she was helping as she passed through the garden and bidding him, with the fur-lined cloak trailing after her upon the stairs as she carried it upon her arm.

"The little Sister took the money and said Francesca would be home in a quarter of an hour, leaving the cousins alone together. Victor was standing at the piano by Ophelia with raised eyebrows and inquiring eye.

"Something has happened to vex you, I am sure," she said. "You look quite angry and cross."

"We can go after the boat to-morrow, Ophelia answered, "if you will come with me now to the Palace grounds, what's we can have a quiet talk."

Without a word she accompanied him out of the house and across the three courts of the palace to the garden, where the fountains were playing, lodendrons and budding roses. He led her to a seat by a sward to where a line of woodes beechen a grassy slope that ser spreading trees overlooks the quiet-ness of the Lake of Geneva. He was impassive for a few children playing on the grass. He waited, watching the white forces on a distant seat, they were absolute alone. Then he turn Dudley resolutely turned and fast his cousin.

"Why did you tell me all those lies?" he asked, speaking in a low, hard voice at the music-hall?"

"I do not understand Francesca—"It was I."

"And yet you could lie to me as you did on the subject!"

"Yes," she said again; "I will not try to explain to you why I did it, because I was anxious that you should not recognize me; but I repeat, I could see the only way."

"Your utterness was wasted," he returned coldly, "for I never wholly believed you."

"I could see you did not," she said simply.

Then she suddenly thrust forth her gloved hand, as though she were pushing from her some unwelcome proffer.

"Now I shall not have to deceive you any more," she said, with a sound of relief in her voice. "But—I thought, I feared you would not like me if you knew."

"Like you!"

"All that miserable old story. Oh, don't force me to tell you! I see by your tones how much blushing about. It isn't that I feel ashamed, but naturally I see as that I isn't tell off-part of the life I have been living, you have chosen to suppose that I am a single woman, wherein in reality I am a wid-ow."

"A widow!"

"Yes, surely there is nothing astonishing in that! Remember, I am twenty-five. Was my father died I was nearly as tall and looked nearly as old as I do now. I was very young. Ago I had to work to support myself and my parents, and I could not, as I was twenty, in the grounds of an hotel as a singer, where I met my husband. He was some pupils, I met a young man of about my own age, the son of an English nobleman, who fell in love with me at first sight, and, by promises of a brilliant future, induced me to marry him secretly."

"Did you love him?"

"I thought I did at him strangely. "Did I love him?" she repeated slowly, "I can hardly say. There are so many different kinds of loving. I think I was very handsome. Remember, I was only a child, and I was very ignorant. At any rate, I married him, and for a few months I was happy enough. Then I found I was with child, and my husband's people insisted that I should be kept entirely apart from him. I was living in Paris at the time, and was sent off to a house in the country, where I was very lonely indeed, and where I only received letters from my husband, and occasional visits from his mother. I was very young, and I was very fond of him, and I was very proud of him, and I was very much in love with him, and I was very much in love with him, and I was very much in love with

The strawberry crop is about "all in," but the straw hat crop is coming strong.

Hamilton Times: How could Gamey keep his wife in the bowers of ease and the sea of honesty all out against him?

Without admitting the truth of the above statement, we would very much like to know how a good Methodist like Brother Gardiner came to be so well posted on "beavers" and "seas." As Brother Chadwick would say, it's a "big fooling."

"I'll pledge my journalistic reputation," said Mr. Geo. P. Graham, M. P.P., as though any pawnbroker in this fair land would lend him 90 cents on it.

Port Hope has a lacrosse player named Cain, and he won't do a thing to his brother Abel, especially if the latter plays on the Oshawa lacrosse team.

If the Campbellford lacrosse team will come again the newspaper men will organize a team to play them. They appear to be just about our size.

Even the Kingston papers are complaining about the disgraceful condition of the camp grounds at Barriefield. They are badly drained, and the men have suffered much discomfort. The camp should have come to Belleville.

Montreal is to build its third public bath, which has been recommended by the Health Committee. Poor misguided people, to throw money away like that! Don't they know that a wash-tub and some rain water (in the opinion of some estimable Belleville people) is all that is necessary?

A citizen tells us that the language of small boys at the Hospital lot last evening was shocking. Parents might well keep them at home.

Our wireless special from the 49th says the boys are now getting on finely. The regiment is in the Sixth infantry brigade, which is commanded by "Fighting Sam" Hughes. The men get the following rations daily: 1 lb. of meat, 1 lb. of bread, 5 oz. beans, 1 lb. potatoes, 2 oz. flour, or 2 oz. beans, 9 oz. of jam or 3 oz. of dried apples, 2 oz. of butter, or 2 oz. of cheese, or 2 oz. of bacon, 1 oz. split peas, 2 oz. of white sugar, 1-2 oz. of salt, 1-3 oz. of coffee, 1-4 oz. of tea, 1-36 oz. of pepper, and a certain amount of vegetables. Of course this is not proportioned out to each man, but twenty times as much is got as would be given to one. Then the portions are given according to the tastes of those concerned. The city editor of the Kingston Whig, Capt. Dean, supervises the distribution of food, and a special guard is placed over him to see that he does not "hold out" on the dried apples. There are 2,160 men in camp.

REV. J. P. WILSON, B. A.,
NOW OF PETERBORO

WILL IN ALL PROBABILITY SUCCEED REV. DR. CROTHERS AS PASTOR OF BRIDGE ST. CHURCH.

The last general conference of the Methodist Church divided the city pastorates as the longest a minister could stay in any one charge, and in accordance with this the Rev. W. J. Crothers, D.D., pastor of Bridge St. Church, will be required to leave here in June, 1904. It had been hoped that Dr. Crothers would have stayed with his present congregation for five years, as he did at Port Hope, for as the years go on the congregation and pastor has become increasingly popular with his own congregation and with others.

The Quarterly Official Board of the church met last Tuesday to consider a successor for Dr. Crothers, and chose the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B. A., pastor of the Geerge St. Methodist Church, Peterboro. A reply has been received from Mr. Wilson accepting the invitation. Mr. Wilson preached for the Bridge St. congregation about two years ago, and made so favorable an impression, that many of the members have had their eye on him since, as one of the ministers they would like to have for their future. His reputation as a man and a clergyman wherever he has been has been a high one.

It will be of local interest to know that Mr. Wilson is a sister of Mr. A. Roberts, of this city.

Address and Presentation.

It having become known that Miss Emmons, teacher of class No. 5, Queen Victoria School, is about to sever her connection with the work, the pupils of her promotion class on Wednesday afternoon gave her a pleasant surprise, when Master Cyril Drumm read an address and presented her with a silver syrup jug and tray, appropriately engraved, and Miss Laurel Foster, at the same time gave her a handsome bouquet of pink roses. Miss Emmons, who was completely taken by surprise, made a suitable reply, in which she alluded to their pleasant associations, the regret she felt in leaving the class, and thanked them for their beautiful present and the kindly words contained in the address.

On the previous evening the teachers of Queen Victoria School assembled at luncheon and during the evening, Miss Urquhart on behalf of the staff, presented Miss Emmons with a very handsome silver pudding dish, accompanied by a few appropriate remarks from several of the teachers, expressing their regret at the loss for the time being of a good worker for her future welfare.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College As Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Baru Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no fells on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles —we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed material..

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

True and Unfailing Help for Suffering Women.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The World's Medicine for the Cure of Female Troubles.

A large share of the evils and sufferings, which women are liable to, result from special female weaknesses and diseases. From the girl entering womanhood to the woman who arrives at the Grand Climacteric or "Change in Life" there are troubles, ailments and irregularities—too often borne in silence—which undermine the health and result in disease. Where such conditions exist, heaven help the poor sufferers to fully realize their perils and dangers!

It is well-known that ordinary medical treatment too often fails to build up the delicate nervous system of woman, and give necessary tone and strength to the important female organs. The experience of years, medical testimony and letters from tens of thousands of cured women point to Paine's Celery Compound as woman's friend and life-giver. Jessie M. Ross, Quyon, P.Q., says:

"It affords me much pleasure to testify to the great good that Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I was completely run-down in health and a victim of female weaknesses, and after using three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I was completely cured. It is the best blood purifier I know of, and I recommend it to all who are troubled as I was."

A DRAFT HORSE'S DEBUT.

How the Auctioneer Introduced Himself to the City Buyers.

How Chiefstalk, a heavy draft horse, made his debut in New York city is told by Sewell Ford in "Horses, How," as follows: He had been the boast of Kookuk county for the whole year. "We'll show 'em what we can do in Indiana," the stock master had said as Chiefstalk, his sire's sire and dam's dam done up in red flannel, was led aboard the cars for shipment east.

They are not strangers to ton weight horses in the neighborhood of the Bull's Head, where the great sales stables are. Still, when Chiefstalk was brought out, his fine dappled coat shining like frosted steel in the sunlight, and his splendid tail, which had been done up in straw crimps over night, rippling and waving behind him, there was a great craning of necks among the buyers of heavy drafts.

"Gentlemen," the red faced auctioneer had shouted, "here's a beauter; one of the kind you read about, walks as a wagon, with a leg on each corner. There's a ton of bone in whole ton. You'll start him at $300? Why, he's as good as money in the bank."

That had been Chiefstalk's introduction to the metropolis.

The Somali.

A military correspondent gives a good description of the Somali, who as a fighting man is not first class, though he is fond of drill and proud of his uniform. But he is not to be outdone by effeminate; his toilet is a constant source of anxiety to himself, and the time he will take to arrange his crisp black hair by the application of various substances in his hand is incredible. If a fond of finery, of luxurious and fodolent habits, and keeps up an incessant flow of talk. He is greedy, fond in the matter of food is greedy. Timid in the presence of the European, he is brave enough and quickly loses his head. Dancing is one of his chief pastimes, accompanied by the loud clapping of hands and a continuous and monotonous wail, which no doubt does duty for a song. Somali women never dance, and scarcely even smile; they are completely cowed by the men, who treat them in most cases unkindly, if not actually cruelly. The Somali is most punctilious in the performance of his religious rites, but he seems hypocritical to a degree.—London Express.

Violin Varnish.

The violin dealer was talking about the mystery of the old violin varnishes. "The wonderful tone of the old 'violins,' he said, "depended on the varnish a great deal. The secret has been lost. We don't know how the old varnishes were made. Charles Reade, who went into this subject deeply, claimed that oil with gum in solution and color evaporated in spirit were the bases of the varnishes, but whether he was right or wrong no one knows. A violin consists of from thirty to seventy pieces. We make violins today just as they were made in the past, but we don't varnish them in the same way. Some varnishes contained ground amber. Recently, to the ruin of a priceless Guarnerius, its varnish was scraped off and analyzed and an abundance of amber powder was found."

Bear Worshipers of Japan.

The quaintest and perhaps the oldest people of the earth are the Ainos, the bear idolaters, who are found in the Japanese islands of Kovrilles, Sakhalao, and chiefly in Yeso or Honnaido. They number less than 18,000 souls in all, and they are fast disappearing. They have long brown hair and the oblique eyes which characterize the Chinese and Asiatic races generally, but there the resemblance ends. The Ainos are a large and powerful people, straight as an arrow. All the Ainos declare they spring from the Great White Dog—the bear—and a princess of the south. The bear is their chief god.

How to See Under Water.

A lens for seeing under water is described as producing an effect which is both astonishing and delightful. It gives distinct vision to objects from twenty to thirty feet below the surface which are usually out of ordinary eye range. The eye's loss of refracting vision when under water is owing to the fact that an entirely different focus is required. This spectacle which can adjust this focus are made by putting two watch crystals back to back over the eyes, the concavities outward. Try it and be surprised.

The Only Thing They Ever Did.

John Bright's powers of sarcasm were almost unrivalled, and some of his sharpest utterances have been against members of the nobility. When boasts had been made of the deeds of a prominent family, that their ancestors came over with the Conqueror, his reply was generally to never heard that they did anything else."

Wanted Every Detail.

Pauline, aged six, was listening to the story of the marriage at Cana and the miracle of the water and the wine. After her mother had finished her recital the little girl inquired:

"Mother, what did you say was the name of the gentleman what gave the party?".

Not Wholly Idle.

Clara—Does Harry help you with the home cleaning?

Harriet—Well, he hangs the pictures crooked and does the grumbling.

His Proud Boast.

"What is your position in the choir?" asked the new church member.

"Absolutely neutral," replied the mild tenor. "I don't side with either fac-

Lost in the Desert.

THE helplessness that comes over one when he is lost is one of the most terrible parts of his experience. Perhaps this is at its worst when it is not he but the guide who is at fault. The late G. W. Steevens, the war correspondent, had a terrible experience of the kind in the Egyptian desert.

"We had been journeying all day, nothing to be seen boundary or sky sight. I began to feel sleepy and to droop in the back. I swung my leg over the pommel, and settled myself to ride sarradik. Then I decided to sit side-saddle the other side for an hour, then change and ease the strain again. So I rode, looking steadily at the great yellow blotch ahead of me.

"That noon the sun was slipping me down again under our hot-brims. It was past four. It would be dark at half-past five; we had not sighted our encampment, we were helpless.

"The suspense was broken the guide raced up each new eminence, the straitest hypothenuse to the stars, the slow disappointment you could read in the relaxed limbs, the fresh hope renewed, but each time fainter, with which he dashed for the next prospect —he was at fault. To my eye one ridge, one dip, one hill was exactly like every other, we had been riding ten hours and must have come fifty miles; our monastery was only forty-five. We had missed it and it was all but dark.

"A night in the cutting wind of the desert, a night without tent, water, fire or fodder was the very best we had to look for and—I gripped the pistol-butt just then up panted Said.

"'Have you seen, Said?'

"'Effendim, I have seen; I saw from the hill back yonder. Come and see for yourselves.'

"And he led us back to the brow of the hill, and there, surely, yes, there gleamed something white. The monastery, hurrah! It can't be four miles off. We will walk; the camels can follow. So up put the patient camels and off we strode, five miles an hour, over sand as hard and ridgy as the early morning snow.

"The blazing crimson and orange of the sunset blinded our eyes to the white blot of the monastery. But faster and faster we walked. Now crimson and orange blazed no more; it was really dark now; we had come five miles and had not arrived.

"'Are you sure you saw, Said? Quite sure?'

"'Effendim,' replied Said, 'I thought I saw something white.'

"Nothing in sight white now. The guide was thrown out utterly; and there we were, fifty-five miles from home, camels done up, and foodless; camel boys, starving; thirsty and wearied ourselves; with possibly two days' food and certainly not two days' water; lost, clean lost in the Libyan Desert."

That night their sleep was broken by fears. At early dawn they were up and searching. Mr. Steevens continues:

"Then the sun comes up, and the desert is yellow again; and now what sound is that? Yes, a yell from Said. Surely he has seen. On to the camels and briskly westward.

"'Have you seen, Said?'

"'No, but behold—a camel track; and I know this place.'"

The Inventor.

A SMALL man with blear eyes and shaking hands took the seat opposite me. I was not surprised to hear him call for absinthe.

"You are sitting at the table with an unrecognized genius," he said, without looking at me.

"So are you," I retorted. I was then a struggling art student in Paris.

"You laugh," he said, "but it is true. Your voice is sympathetic, and I will tell you."

"Thanks," I said.

"You are an artist, and have, undoubtedly, remarked the natural affinity of colors. White, for instance, is supposed to contain all colors."

He had hit on my favorite subject for discussion, and I hitched back prepared to listen.

"Have you observed," he asked earnestly, "that people with blue eyes have yellow hair?"

"The Irish," I answered, "have black hair and blue eyes. It's a beautiful combination."

"Yes; that's my point. I can change the color of the eyes."

"What!"

"You mix paints! You get green from yellow and blue! You make a color darker or lighter! You make black with red and purple! I do the same with eyes! A year ago I discovered an injection for the retina of the eye that would change its color. Suppose you have light gray eyes. I inject such a colored fluid as will make them black, blue—any color!"

I looked at his eyes. They were a sallish green.

"My own eyes," he continued, "I tried to change to green, as an advertisement. It was before I had perfected my invention, and—I lost my sight. Tell me, are my eyes green?"

I became conscious that he had been gazing directly past me and had not looked at me once.

"You are blind?" I said.

"Entirely," he answered indifferently. "But what does that matter? I have perfected my invention. Had I a paltry five-franc piece I could show it to women in the world beautiful. Women are the power of the world. Ah, France, has there been, since Napoleon, thou rule the nations of the earth again!"

I handed him a five-franc piece.

"Your story is worth it," I remarked, "whether it be true or not."

He slipped the money into his pocket and turned to go.

"It's a loan," he said, over his shoulder. "Come and call for me."

That evening I lounged in the Art Students' Cafe in the base of the Odeon had found friends. Tobacco makes man confidential, and I told them the story while they puffed on their pipes in silence. Then each spoke in turn.

"I gave him five francs when I first arrived," said Jones.

"Sacre! I gave him ten," said Montbois.

"Donnerwetter! and I gave him fifty," cried Becker.

"But is he really blind?" I asked.

"No," said Rand; "you were the blind one."

A New Treatment For Cancer

A CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDY WHICH HAS SUPERSEDED OPERATIONS.

The old methods of treating cancer by cutting the knife or by pastes and plasters, while cruel and painful in the extreme, by no means effected a cure, as they only removed the surface indications of the disease and did not reach the cancer germs in the blood.

The new constitutional treatment does away with the pain and danger of operations, while pleasant to take and harmless to the delicate system, it is most prompt and effectual in destroying every cancer germ and clearing away every trace of cancer poison from the system. Send two stamps to B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., for full particulars.

Died in Toronto.

On Thursday, at Toronto, Sarah Ann, wife of Mr. John Flowers, died. Deceased was known to many in Belleville, having, with the family, resided here. Mr. Flowers was for some time connected with the Deaf and Dumb Institution. The late Mrs. Flowers was a member of the Methodist Church. A family of two sons and one daughter survive.

A TRUE BRAIN FOOD

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain, that were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain, but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by all druggists.

CIVIC COMMITTEES MET LAST NIGHT

Mrs. F. R. Lingham Submits Three Requests Re St. Agnes' School.

Acting Mayor and Chairman of Executive Attend Gas Company Meeting.

Trenton Electric Company Asks That Matter of Street Rails be Deferred.

At the civic committees last night the Aldermen present were Gal-braith, Cooper, Salman, Sinclair, Panter, MaFee, Chown and Pope.

St. Agnes' School.

Mrs. F. R. Lingham was present and addressed the Committee at some length. She asked that three requests which she would fmsin in reference to St. Agnes' School be granted, namely: That free connection with Bridge street sewer be granted; that water be supplied free until it is seen the school is firmly established, and that the Council purchase the first cement manufactured at Point Ann for a walk in front of the building and grounds.

Mrs. Lingham was informed that the matter would be considered when Mayor Graham returns to the city.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Ald. Sinclair presided, as Ald. Panter had to attend a meeting of the Gas Company.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

Pay Sheet, No. 18	$276.51
C. G. Leavens	7.00
C. G. Leavens	19.25
W. Alford	14.00

A motion prevailed that all teams employed by the City be paid the rate of $2.50 per day.

The Surveyor stated that he had commenced to build the granolithic crossings ordered by the Council.

Ald. Cooper moved, seconded by Ald. Galbraith, that the crossing on Moira street near the upper bridge be repaired.—Carried.

Ald. Cooper called attention to the bad condition of portions of Coleman and Moira streets.

On motion the Surveyor was authorized to give estimates of the cost of doing this work.

FIRE.

Ald. MaFee, chairman, presided over this Committee. The following accounts were passed:—

Gas Company	$ 2.63
Laidlaw & Ketcheson	26.48
F. C. Hagar	11.25
F. F. Brown	19.30
Mobile & Co.	11.25
Tidwell & Son	10.00
T. C. Wilson	1.50
W. P. Clarke	1.50

MARKET.

This Committee was presided over by Ald. Salman, chairman. The accounts passed were as follows:—

W. Alford	.50
J. Holland	13.50
Gas Company	1.50
Mary Seama	3.50
Gas Company	24.25

Ald. Sinclair asked if anything was to be done in relation to having the city clock kept fit all night. He had seen something about it in one of the city newspapers.

Ald. Salman said the matter would be considered.

Ald. Salman said he had received ten orders for the supply of coal for the city building and fire halls. The tenders for the supply of coal for per ton.

Ald. Cooper moved that the tender of Mr. Dempsey for $6.75 be accepted.—Carried.

PARKS.

Ald. Pope, Chairman, presided. The accounts were as follows:

E. L. Palen	$16.15
Geo. Walton	17.40
Pay roll	71.57
S. Burton	3.40

EXECUTIVE.

The Gas Company's Affairs.

Ald. Chown presided over this committee. He stated that he had been in attendance at a meeting of the Gas Company, at which $25,000, independent of the city's interest, was represented. It had been decided to offer the plant for sale by tender, but neither the highest or lowest tender was to be necessarily accepted. He did not consider that it would be a bad thing to allow the company to ask for tenders.

Ald. Pope—"Have they the right to do this?"

The Solicitor said it was rather difficult to answer the question offhand, as he had not the whole by-law or contract in his head. In reference to the pipes laid down in the streets, they are freehold by a recent decision of the Court.

Ald. Pope—"Supposing a stock-holder is opposed to the proceedings, how is the transfer to be completed?"

The Solicitor—"It can be done, as it would have to be unanimous on the part of the shareholders."

Ald. Pope thought that the best thing to do was to appoint a liquidator and wind up the business. There was apparently no headway being made in the matter. He thought that the company took the cake in badly managing its affairs. It was time to take the proper time for the city to take hold of the concern.

Ald. Panter said the idea of leasing the concern had evidently been abandoned. The asking for tenders might give the city an opportunity of taking hold of it.

This ended the discussion upon the subject.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

T. Stewart	$6.00
Pay Sheet, No. 18	276.51

A communication was read from Mrs. F. R. Lingham, inviting the members of the Council to visit the St. Agnes' school premises.—Referred to the Council.

The Street Rails.

A communication was read from the Trenton Electric Company in reference to the Front street rails. It was to the effect that, owing to the continued illness of Mr. Wright, their chief electrician, the company had not been prepared at present to make a definite offer, and suggested that the matter be left in abeyance until spring.

On motion a committee composed of Acting Mayor Panter, Ald. Chown and Ald. Sinclair was appointed to interview Belleville Cement Company in reference to purchasing the rails.

Cow Inspection.

Ald. Chown called attention to the fact that there were complaints in reference to the manner in which cows were herded, as supposed to be herded.

Ald. Galbraith—"What is the Cow Inspector doing?"

Ald. Sinclair said if it was a fact that cows from Sidney were brought into the city and herded upon city property.

Ald. Panter said he understood that such was the case.

A number of the Aldermen spoke against the cows being on it in this contrary, they thought, to the by-law.

A motion prevailed that Mr. Arnott, the Inspector, be authorized to look into the matter and report to the Council.

Ald. Cooper read a communication from Mr. John Baldrick, a non-resident of the city, but who owns property in the city, to the effect that last year it was assessed at $1,200, but this year the assessment was $1,190. He complained that he had not been notified of the reassessment notice in time to appeal.

The matter was referred to the Court of Revision.

This completed the work of the session.

A Summer Emulsion

There is a popular impression that Cod Liver Oil is only suitable for cold weather, and so far as plain Cod Liver Oil and most emulsions are concerned, there is a good foundation for this idea. However it does not apply to FERROL, which (although it is particularly rich in oil) may be taken as freely in the heat of summer as in the coldest weather.

This must be considered a fortunate circumstance, because on account of the enervating effects of the hot weather a reconstructor is really more urgently needed in summer than at any other time. Ferrol is the ideal summer emulsion.

Fun in Umbrella.

A Texas man has invented a parasol made of which is constructed a revolving fan. The fan is worked by simple mechanism. A reciprocating rod runs along the handle and connects with a gear wheel connected with he wheel at the end of the fan, and a sent spinning by a single pull of a rope by the parasol's handle. The result is that obtains shade and breeze at the same time.

WHY CATARRH IS FATAL.

Because it pours a flood of poisons into the circulation, that saps strength and digestion so materially as to render the body incapable of resisting disease, and consumption is the result. Catarrh is quickly cured by Catarrhozone, a fragrant germ-destroying vapor that goes to the root of the disease. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, clears the head and throat, and positively never fails to perfectly cure bronchitis, asthma or catarrh. Nothing is so good for diseases of the respiratory organs as Catarrhozone. Large outfit $1. Small size 50c. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A New Bacchian Theory.

Historical novelists have worked for all it was worth that mine consisting of the supposed secret marriages and unacknowledged offspring of sovereigns. Nobody seriously believes that Charles, cautious Queen Elizabeth went so far as to wed her Earl of Leicester. Nor the best part of her reign. Her hand had to remain a prize, open to untrammelled competition, for never husband. Still, in fiction she has several times figured as a wife and a mother, with one son, perhaps, or one daughter, and but lately, with two sons, one the acknowledged Francis Bacon, the other the Earl of Essex. In this last amazing story, Bacon is not only Elizabeth's son—but the author of Shakespeare's plays. A third distinction ought really to be his, but been bestowed upon him to make the thing complete.

In Harmony.

She attended the concert and, as she believed,
She was dressed in appropriate taste:
An accordion skirt and long piped sleeves
And a brass band around her waist.

The Art of Breathing

Breathing is an art. We ought to take in fourteen pints of air per minute. At the usual rate of breathing we do so. But if we get into a ravelled atmosphere we take in, at the usual rate of breathing, less than the fourteen pints. Sedentary people can get all the advantages to health of a long walk or other exercise by simply increasing the rate of breathing during one or two hours a day, thus adding to the amount of oxygen that enters the lungs.

Same Old Answer.

An old minister returned to his ainsh after forty years of ministerial service, and was being conducted over the old place.

"Same old corridors," he ejaculated as he entered—"same old corridors! They took him to the dining hall. "Ahme! Same old dining hall!" Then he opened a study door. "Same old study —same old study!"

Half round the fire a screen was drawn, and behind it he saw a student talking with a young lady.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the old minister quietly, "same old practice—same old practice!"

The student sprang up indignantly. "Excuse me, sir, this is my sister"

A smile broke over the ancient one's face.

"Ah, and the same old explanation—same old excuse"

Wild Birds in Germany.

A correspondent of the London Mail at Dresden writes that the Germans are fair in advancing of some other people in caring for the wild birds in their towns. During the winter shelters from the snow are erected in public parks and private gardens for them and plentifully supplied with food of various kinds, including mountain ash berries for thrushes and blackbirds and other seeds for the smaller birds. This mixture is sold at a very cheap rate in shops for the purpose. In springtime one may see many birds nesting in specially made boxes placed in the higher trees, out of the reach of cats. The boxes are of different sizes, to suit starlings, sparrows, tomtits, etc.

Wouldn't Lie Twice.

Nora had been told to say at the door that her mistress was not at home when certain callers appeared upon the scene.

It evidently went much against the grain for her to make herself responsible for even so small a white lie, but she promised to do so, and, with certain modifications, she kept her word.

"Is Mrs. Blank at home?" queried the caller.

"For this was tolme, Mrs. Smithers, she sin't," said the maid, "but hivin help her if you ask me again, I'll not lois twoice for anybody livin'!".

The Mysterious Power of Nature.

AND HOW NATURE IS ASSISTED IN HER WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The human body is composed of certain elements, such as iron, potash, lime, soda, magnesia, etc., and nature has created cells and tissues by extracting these elements from the food we eat. Consequently errors in diet, unsufficiency of food or failure of the digestive organs to properly perform their work are among the most common causes of disease.

Once the system is weak, run down or exhausted in the slightest degree, assimilation is tediously slow, usually slower than the wasting process, and the end can only be physical bankruptcy and collapse.

It is just at this point that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proves its wonderful power as an assistant to nature. This great food cure contains in condensed pill form the very elements required by nature to revitalize and build up the system. These immediately enter the blood stream, and through the medium of the circulation of the blood and the nervous system carry strength and vigor to each and every organ of the body.

Mrs. John Hogan, Strachan street, Belleville, Ont., states:—"I have used several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and as a result I have been restored to good health. I used to suffer a great deal with headaches, dizziness, nervousness and weak, fainting spells. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food these ills have been entirely overcome and I have been entirely overcome and I feel like a different person. My nerves are steady, I have no headaches and the dizziness and fainting spells have entirely left me. I can speak most highly of this medicine as an excellent tonic."

Nervous prostration and exhaustion, headaches, dyspepsia, dizzy and fainting spells, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, feelings of weakness, depression and despondency are readily overcome by this treatment, working, as it does, hand in hand with nature. Though gradual, the results are all the more certain and lasting, and by noting your increase in weight you can prove to your satisfaction that new, firm flesh and tissue is being added. Fifty cents a box, six boxes for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

ON WATERLOGGED VESSEL

Crew of Erie Steward, Sinking for 3 Days, Almost Starved.

One of the Most Thrilling Experiences That Ever Fell to Mariner's Lot—Vessel Abandoned, Crew Taken Off by Steamer and Brought to Owen Sound, Where They Tell Their Story.

Owen Sound, June 26.—(Special)—In a waterlogged condition, with only her bowsprits above the waves, the schooner Jane Stewart was towed into Owen Sound harbor at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the big tug Harrison after one of the most thrilling experiences that ever fell to mariners' lot.

On Tuesday night about 10 o'clock the Erie Stewart was towed out of Byng Inlet with a heavy load of lumber piled eight feet above the bulwarks, destined for Chatham. With sails set the trim vessel was scudding along before a stiff breeze, but Captain Grenville noticed a slight list which he ascribed partly to the arrangement of the cargo—the best of which was caused by the winds.

By midnight the vessel had settled so far that water stood in the after cabin two feet deep, and only the lumber kept the Erie Stewart afloat. On Wednesday and Thursday the vessel continued to settle deeper, the crew held to the rigging while the after deck of the vessel was washed from under them, and the vessel sank lower and lower. Would the lumber hold keep the vessel afloat?

Capt. Grenville cheered his crew by the assurances that it would, and for two days and three nights the men on the schooner, soaked and chilled by every wave that washed from stem to stern, watched hopefully for a passing vessel, splintering only on scraps found on the deck. On Wednesday the signal of the distress was noticed by the steamer Harrison of the Northern Navigation Co., bound for Owen Sound.

The sea was rolling too high to render assistance, but the condition of the schooner was reported at Owen Sound, and the tug Harrison at once started to search for her. Capt. Simpson sighted the waterlogged vessel off Cabot's Head this morning and towed her to port.

About one-half of her deck load was washed overboard.

The Erie Stewart is owned by John Pigeon, a son of Chatham. She will be repaired at once, although a speedy go into dry dock probably caused the vessel to sit.

KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Officially Celebrated in London and Throughout Empire.

London, June 26.—The King's birthday was officially celebrated to-day in London and all the home naval and military stations. At the government buildings and the residences of the officials the flags were hoisted at 8 o'clock in the morning, the warships at all the ports dressed themselves in their gayest colors. The 30th battery of royal garrison artillery fired the King's Guard parade, which the King reviewed in person. This is the first time he had ridden since his last illness.

The parade ground was a brilliantly picturesque scene. Queen Alexandra, the Princess of Wales, the Princess Victoria, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, Princess Henry of Battenberg and other members of the royal family and court occupied seats in the central window of the royal pavilion, while the King and his staff occupied positions in front. Among all the other vantage points were occupied by the members of the royal family, the ministers, members of the House of Lords and House of Commons, and the ladies and officers' wives present formed a brilliant and fashionable throng. Lord Roberts, commander-in-chief, and Lieut.-General Lord Cheylesmore, commander of the London district, acted as aides of the Grenadier Guards, rode on the ground with the King's staff, which was also accompanied by a brilliant staff of foreign officers. The King looked well mounted, and, although the weather was cold, he was without overcoat. The massed bands played the National Anthem, and after the inspection of the troops, the ceremony of trooping the colors took place. The King's personal colour was then carried to Buckingham Palace, and the King followed by the troops along the route.

KILLED IN CONGO STATE.

American Said to Have Been Murdered by Natives.

London, June 26.—A despatch to the Daily News from Boma, Congo Free State, says that news has been received at the latter place that Mr. Stanley Phillips, an American employee of the Congo Free State, was murdered by natives of the Arruwimi district. Mr. Phillips' party was attacked by natives, and Mr. Phillips, Sergt. Kahei, Dr. Hamel and all the members of his escort were killed.

Shooting Affray Ceases.

Albany, Ga., June 26.—Three negroes, Garfield McCoy, Geo. McKinney and James Wiley, were taken from jail at Newton, Baker County, 21 miles south of here, last night and lynched. The three men were in jail for killing F. S. Bullard, a white man, who was called to quell a row at a negro dance near his house one night last week. The negroes were taken 9 mile from town, hung to a tree and riddled with bullets.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JUNE 29, 1903 NO. 49

POUNDED WIFE'S HEAD OFF

Cloyne Man Slew His Partner in Life in Ghastly Fashion.

Lord Told Him to Stay the Devil, and He Thought He Was the Evil Spirit—Then Went to Police Station and Confessed of the Terrible Deed He Confessed to on Saturday—Pressing Brutality of the Murderer.

Napanee, June 29.—A most brutal and unprovoked murder occurred on Saturday morning at Cloyne, a village 18 miles from Kaladar, and about 50 from Napanee, in the rear of the County of Addington. The perpetrator of the deed was Gideon Butts, and the victim his wife. From the facts gathered it appears Butts committed the horrible deed at an early daybreak on Saturday morning, literally pounding his wife's head to an unrecognizable state with an iron stone in his own dooryard.

Butts, who is a man of between 55 and 60 years of age, has been a resident of Cloyne for the past few years, working as a laborer around the village and with the farmers in the vicinity. He appears to be the same, as he does not seem to realize the enormity of his crime. Public rumor has said hold of him, and he says the Lord told him to commit the awful deed. He was brought to Napanee Saturday evening by Constable Lapum and Clerke, who arrested him, and he was at once taken before Police Magistrate Carscallen of Renfrew, who committed him to jail.

Told to Slay the Devil.

It appears that Butts was laboring under the delusion that he is a prophet, and that the Lord commanded him to slay the devil and he fancied his wife was that personage, and he was only carrying out the commands of the Lord. In committing the awful deed he walked about half a mile to Constable Cuddy's house and said to him: "Come and see the devil I have slain." When the constable went with him to his home his terrible sight that met his view was the almost unrecognizable form of Butts' wife lying in her yard with her head completely pounded off, and cold in death.

Butts tells how he committed the deed. He says he struck her in the house, then carried her out to the yard, and with a large stone beat her head against another large flat stone. From the appearance of the man, the murdered woman must have made some resistance, as she has several scratches on his face and his legs are black and bruised, as if from kicks. From what the constable told us, after leaving Cuddy's house, he went to Halifax, N. S., June 29.—John Hennessy, aged 16, was shot dead yesterday afternoon. He was in company with four other boys when a small rifle which they had with them and which was lying on the ground was discharged. The bullet penetrated his heart, causing instant death. His four companions were arrested, and are charged jointly with causing his death. It is thought the shooting was accidental.

with a sheet, before going to Constable Cuddy's house.

Wife Pounded For Him.

The day before (Friday), about 8 o'clock, in the morning, he came to Constable Cuddy's house in his barefeet and only partially attired, and acted so strangely and erratically that the constable consulted with some others and they decided that he should be locked up, but his wife begged him not to do so, as he was quite harmless, and only through her intercession was the man allowed to be at large. The murderer is of English origin, and has been living in Prince Edward County and Tamworth, Parkers and Clyde, for a number of years. He was married to the murdered woman about eighteen years. No family by birth.

The Friday before he committed the deed he spent with his wife building, and he told Constable Cuddy that one of the fish he caught turned out a serpent and entered into his wife, and he had to slay her to kill the serpent. In bringing the prisoner to Napanee, Constable Cuddy says he gave him no food. The evening before the train, and then he wanted to jump out of the window, and he had to use some force to compel him to sit still.

Reads Bible Constantly.

He asked the constable to allow him to bring along a Bible and that he has been reading and quoting from ever since. So far as can be learned, he has no relatives in this country, and his wife's relatives are also unknown to the constable who brought the man to Napanee. He spoke freely to us, constable about the awful deed, and thinks he only carried out the command of the Lord, who told him to slay the devil.

MURDER AT ESQUIMALT.

Employe of Naval Store K. Is His Superior's Slayer.

James Bailey.

Victoria, B.C., June 29.—Frederick James Bailey, naval storekeeper at Esquimalt, was murdered Friday morning by Alfred J. B. Frith, a subordinate, who shot and killed him. Frith has been arrested and confessed. He tells of having words with Bailey, who accused him of undermining him, and Frith shot Bailey in the back of the head, killing him instantly. He then waited to see the deed done, and left the weapon into the harbor. He went home, and ate breakfast with his family, whom he had not appraised of the deed, when arrested.

Boy Shot Dead.

Was Sent to Have Men Killed and Fire Pots Destroyed.

Paris, June 29.—A despatch from Jibuti, Abyssinia, says the Mad Mullah has destroyed five British posts between Bulao and Bohotle, in Somaliland. Twenty-nine British officers out of forty-two white men were killed in the engagements. Two thousand native troops were made prisoners.

Report Not True.

London, June 29.—The War Office has received a telegram from Somaliland enabling it to contradict the French report of a British disaster. The telegram says: "Bohotle, which was the scene of the Abyssinians, who are advancing from the south.

Officers Killed.

"This flight of the Mullah would have been turned into a rout if it had been possible to send a column of sufficient strength from Bohotle. The prisoners captured say the tribesmen are disorganized."

Fighting Continues.

St. Petersburg, June 29.—A new (the tenth) trans-Amur railroad battalion is being organized in Turkestan for service in Manchuria.

Mahdi Dead.

Madrid, June 29.—A telegram from Tangier Saturday confirms the report, published June 20, of the defeat of El Mezehbi, the Moorish War Minister, in a battle with the Pretender at Aunieidinna; but it says he lost 4,000, not 6,000, as previously announced.

RIOT AT UNVEILING.

Police Charge Mob of Nationalists With Serious Results.

London, June 29.—During the unveiling at Athlone of a Nationalist monument to the rebels who fell in the battle of Arklow in 1798, at which ceremony 20,000 Nationalists were present, the latter collided with a detail of street preachers, one of whom narrowly escaped death at the hands of the mob. The house in which he took refuge was wrecked. Several hundred policemen were obliged to charge the Nationalists and stones were thrown, batons freely used and many persons were injured before the mob was mastered.

BRAKEMAN HORAN KILLED.

Two Bad Railway Accidents at Morrissey, B.C.

Morrissey, B.C., June 29.— J. B. Horan, a new Kootenay Central and High line of the Morrissey colliery, was run by a construction train and died at the Fernie Hospital Saturday evening. He attempted to jump on the donkey engine while in motion, and, missing his footing, fell in front of the wheels. The engine passed over him, amputating one leg and injuring the other.

A handcar with thirteen men was run down by a passenger train Saturday 13th inst., at Morrissey Junction, resulting in the death of an Italian named Antonio Salvatore. His body was horribly mangled.

Fell Fifty Feet.

Hamilton, June 29.—While working on the roof at a new barn on the farm of George Hallett, Barton Township, J. Gunby, a contractor, fell fifty feet into the cellar. When picked up he was unconscious. His jawbone was broken and chin whole and his left leg fractured. The doctors fear that he cannot get better. He is 74 years of age.

Neck Was Broken.

Guelph, June 29.—The inquest on the body of Joth. King of Toronto, who was found dead in the Western Hotel stables on Friday evening, was held Saturday night before Coroner Savage, Jr. O'Reilly, who made the post-mortem examination, found that the deceased's neck had been broken. The inquest will be again continued to-night.

Bicycle Caused Death.

Montreal, June 29.—Father Clement of Rimhurst, Mass., died Saturday evening at Notre Dame Hospital, having been run down and fatally injured by a bicycle the day before. Abbe Clement had come to Montreal to take part in the proceedings attending the unveiling of the Bourget monument.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUED.

Not Fifty People Were Present at Saturday's Ceremonial.

Speech From the Throne Contained No Mention of the Gamey Investigation—Lieutenant-Governor Assented to Bills and Read Speech From the Throne—Expressed Approval of the Important Measures Passed During Session.

Toronto, June 29.—The first session of the tenth legislature of Ontario was brought to a close at noon on Saturday, when Lieutenant-Governor Clark attended and duly prorogued the House. There were but few spectators and only about a dozen Cabinet Ministers and half a dozen members were present.

The Lieutenant-Governor was escorted by Commander Law, Col. Otter and Capt. Ellmsley, A.D.C. After giving assent to a number of bills he read the following:

Speech From the Throne.

In relieving you from the labors of the session, I congratulate you on the desire to congratulate you upon the many measures of public importance to which you have given your attention.

The amendment and consolidation of the laws respecting municipal institutions will, I have no doubt, be a great convenience to municipal authorities and to the legal profession, and will contribute to the efficiency of municipal Government, in addition connected as it is with the prosperity of the province.

The legislative powers of the amendments made to the acts respecting public High Schools, and more especially the establishment of one Board of Education for the City of Toronto, the course of study in the various subdivisions of our school system can be more readily adapted to the interests of the different classes of pupils, and will thereby tend to the object of the school law to promote, if it can be done, the education of the state to the measure which you have passed enabling municipalities, either singly or in combination, to apply for the construction of municipal water works and the distribution and transmission of electrical energy. The adoption by the municipalities of the privileges conferred by this bill will, I have no doubt, promote the development of our industries and prove of great advantage to the manufacturing and artisan classes.

I am pleased to notice that you have amended the Industrial Schools' Act with the object in of extending its usefulness to children more advanced in years than those at present coming within its application; and in the same connection I desire to express my approval of the act respecting Municipal Houses of Refuge, whereby municipalities that have not the necessary provision for the aged and indigent shall be required to do so within a reasonable time.

The amendment of the Judicature Act, by which another division of the High Court is established, will, I trust, facilitate the administration of justice and enable all the Superior Courts more promptly and readily of the many cases that come before them from time to time.

I notice with pleasure the increased growth in the facilities for transportation as shown by the unusual number of charters granted for steam and electrical railways in different parts of the province. The measures, too, together with the measures for the improvement of highways, will greatly add to the comfort and convenience of residents of the rural districts.

I thank you for the liberality which you have shown in granting the necessary appropriations for the current year, and I assure you that the supplies which you have voted will be expended as economically as is compatible with the efficiency of the public service.

Fall at the Curtain.

The Provincial Secretary then said: "It is the desire and pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor to announce that this Legislature be prorogued. The Legislature is therefore prorogued."

The Lieutenant-Governor bowed and beckoning to his aide walked out with the Premier, followed by the Speaker and the Sergeant-at-Arms, bearing the sacred mace, and the most exciting session ever held in the legislative halls of Ontario was over.

Winnipeg Editor Arrested.

Winnipeg, June 29.—Considerable commotion was caused in Winnipeg by the arrest of W. Hallen, managing editor of The Manitoba Free Press on Saturday afternoon, on a charge of criminal libel, preferred against him by Senator H. Mc Kenzie, Provincial Secretary of the Robin Go ernment. In addition to Mr. McKenzie has also commenced criminal proceedings against The Manitoba Free Press Company.

Held Under Serious Charge.

Hamilton, June 29.—John Murney, 26 George street, a young fellow only 20 years of age, was dragged through the streets last night chained to an officer and was locked up in the cells, charged with attempted rape. Josephine Harrison, Elgin street, a pretty girl, 15 years of age, and small for her age, is the complainant.

KING PETER AT CHURCH.

The New Servian King's Message to Ex-Queen Natalie.

Belgrade, June 29.—King Peter yesterday attended the services in the cathedral without any escort.

Sims is Queen Natalie's.

Vienna, June 29.—A despatch from Belgrade says King Peter has notified former Queen Natalie that he considers that all the property in the old palace at Belgrade belongs to her, and that she can dispose of it as she pleases.

Congratulate King Peter.

Belgrade, June 29.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, King Charles of Roumania, President Loubet of France and Prince Nicholas of Montenegro have telegraphed cordial to their congratulations to King Peter. It is officially intimated that the Sultan of Turkey intends to take similar action.

SIX ESCAPED UNHURT.

Out of Total of 350 Passengers on Spanish Train.

Madrid, June 29.—Fourteen bodies and 50 injured persons were taken from the wreck of the Spanish express train which overturned at Medeville River Saturday night. According to the latest advices there are 300 injured and 60 others seriously injured. Many of the latter will die. Of the three hundred passengers on the train it is stated six escaped unhurt. The train, which was composed of two engines and 16 coaches, was thrown from the bridge by the failings between the engines broke. The second engine left the track and was followed by the entire train, into the river. Fortunately the water was low.

Wife Sister Bill Killed.

London, June 29.—The opponents in the Scott divorce bill of the deceased wife's sister's bill talked the measure to death Friday for that day. The bill was giadh on the order of the day, but, owing to the lack of time through Cecil and others, it was not reached until too late to proceed further. This disposes of the bill again, but it will likely appear again next session, as usual.

Daily Intelligencer.

A POLL THAT IS WORTH SOMETHING.

Parliament has just been called upon to pass a vote for $40,000 to enable Hon. Sydney Fisher to pay the balance of the salaries due to medical officers employed in watching and vaccinating immigrants. Last year $113,000 was voted for this purpose, but the total cost of this patriotic job for the year 1902-03 will be $175,000. For 1903-04 an equal sum will be needed. Mr. Fisher has not yet had enough to satisfy the greed of doctors, to whom he said this immense sum, did not succeed in discovering a single case of smallpox in the sections where these favored individuals reside, they are beat known to the discharge of their public duties, from the promptitude with which they draw their cheques. The majority have been appointed on the recommendation of party managers, and are not to be dismissed by Parliament in order to keep political assistants in line. Evidence has been furnished to Parliament to show that in many cases disease has come into the country under the very noses of the men who are supposed to keep it out. Did the Conservative party get enough into nights to be satisfied, but when it is not to, as a great machine, it is a universal disinfectant of humbug and have a large practice are allowed through a poll to secure a pension of $1,200 for doing nothing. Screw machine.

TIMELY TOPICS

Mr. Geo. R. Graham, M.P.P., could hardly have been more spiteful against Ganey in the latter's last speech at Galt, if he had printed them (rankness) himself.

A Western editor says: "Going to church on Sunday evening we picked up a wasp in the sermon." The world would be decidedly happier if we had fewer "fatty" during life and less epitaphy at its close." Solomon in all his glory didn't say many wiser things than that.

When do you think Parliament will prorogue?" said The Intelligencer to Mr. E. Guss Porter this morning. "Oh," said Mr. Porter, somewhat irritably, "I never indications. I think about the middle of August."

A TOUGH LOT.
(Hamilton Spectator.)

As we said before, there's not one honest man on the Grit side of the Ontario Legislature—not one.

What do they do when they insult a minister? Instruct the assembly by: "Did they put him in a stall and feed him?" "No," said the father, "they harness him to the church and expect him to draw it."

Toronto old boys will be at home this week. And they'll have a high old time, you may be sure.

A Hamilton man 80 years of age fell out of a tree which he had climbed to prune some branches. The prune habit must be virulent in Hamilton when octogenarians indulge in it.

Mr. J. W. Dafoe, managing editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, who has been arrested charged with criminal libel, is a Hastings County boy, and appears to have got into bad political company since he left his native heath.

Everyone will regret to hear of the illness of "Hugh John," and hope that he may speedily recover. Politicians of his type are scarce in Canada.

Terrible affair out there at Clayton on Saturday morning. Religious mania needs watching.

It is noteworthy that the Lieut.-Governor did not speak of the Ganey judgment in his only speech from the throne. Perhaps he was ashamed of it. He should be.

THREE YOUNG MEN, IN THE TOILS.

CHARGED WITH A SERIOUS OFFENCE AGAINST THE LAW.

Three young men named Spohn, Mowat, and Earl from Ohio, Hamilton, whose homes are in the northern portion of the County, were on Saturday evening brought to the city and locked up in the County jail. They were charged with theft from the premises of Mr. Wilmot Hamilton the night of the 23th inst. they stole $100 from a man named Mumby, whose home is in the township of Marysburgh, Prince Edward. The theft took place at Eldorado, and Mumby states that the men went through his clothes after he had retired for the night.

The accused were this morning brought up before the police magistrate and there remanded to be tried by him. The trial was commenced at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. McMahon the accused.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

The local Lacrosse Club is in rather hard luck, the Hastings lay-matches, who were to play here on Wednesday, having defaulted. This was decidedly shabby of the villagers, who, knowing they had no chance to win, had not the courage to face the music and take their defeat like men.

However, efforts are being made to get the Port Hope intermediates team here for Saturday, July 11. If to be hoped the efforts will be successful. The Port Hopers play fast lacrosse, and the game between them and our boys is sure to be fast from a long way to see. Since the above was in type we learn that the Port Hope team will not come here but will be nothing doing in sports on Dominion Day.

The games for the Minto cup, between the Shamrocks, the 'present holders, and the Brantfords, the challengers, are provoking a lot of interest in lacrosse circles. The first game will be played on Wednesday. The Brantford team, by the showing it made against the Toronto Shamrocks, is thought by Ontario people to have a good chance, but down below they can't see anything but the Shamrocks. It does not look to us, this distance, as though the bargain counter rallies on the Brantford team will be able to do one more than most things mildly interesting for the green-shirted Montreal home rulers, who are brought up on lacrosse from their cradle. The Brantfords may win the Minto cup, but they'll have more than a shamrock fight before they beat the Shamrocks.

Lacrosse results on Saturday: Tecumsehs 7, Oshawa 2; St. Catharines 3, Brantford 2; Capitals 8, Orillia 1; Port Hope Juniors 4, Oshawa Juniors 2.

SORE THROAT AND HOARSENESS

with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a medical plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness, simply because that's what it is made for. The large 25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unrivalled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

Hurt on the Logs.

A lad named Monahan, son of Mr. Hugh Monahan, was on Saturday afternoon playing on the logs in the river, when he met with a serious accident. His right leg became jammed between the logs with sufficient force to break the limb between the ankle and knee, also badly lacerating the flesh. The boy was taken to his home and medical aid was summoned. He is doing nicely.

THE SINGING BULLET.

If You Hear a Whistle, You May Be Sure It Won't Hit You.

"Don't be afraid of a bullet that you hear whistling," said an old soldier. "If it sings in your ear rest assured that it will never harm you. It is a fact, and one that soldiers will tell you, that you never hear the bullet which hits you. It is a projectile of velocity, as the boys in the army called it. In other words, the bullet which you hear sing has already sped past you and the bullet which hits you has passed in the air of some other fellow a moment before it got to you. It is a simple proposition, after all. The singing of the bullet is the atmosphere vibrating back of it, and the atmosphere which the air offers to the progress of the bullet. The bullet can be detected by the ear until the bullet has crossed a parallel line with the ear. It may sail over your head or with close to the ground, but it it passes you at all the ear will catch the sound of its flight. So the soldier is correct in telling the voice of the bullet is music. He knows that he need have no dread of the bullet that sings in his ears. It is the bullet that he does not hear that must be feared, and it is this bullet which always brings harm to him. No soldier ever heard the bullet which inflicted a wound on him."

Nerves and the Breakfast Table.

The longer I live the more convinced I am that breakfast is the real battle of the day, more domestic friction than can be accounted for by mere incompatibility of temper. It is not in human nature to be amiable in the early morning. The patriarchal system by which forty or five different branches of a family live under one roof could not possibly continue abroad were the various families obliged to submit to the breakfast test. Your father-in-law, your mother-in-law, your brother-in-law and his wife, your sister-in-law and her husband carefully conducted over a dish of poached eggs in the early morning would be impossible, but by midday we have lulled our savage instincts, assumed once more the Christian virtues and are prepared to face the world of relations-in-law with resignation and perhaps even the semblance of appreciation.—A Countess on English Customs.

Little Faults in Social Life.

A fault in the young is to form some feverish admiration for one or two particular friends, often of a so called superior social standing. These are referred to constantly. They are held up as patterns, oracles and patrons. In private circles and public places this same set is going mentioned, in the hope and desire of impressing bystanders. At bazaars, in the lobbies of theatres, at railway stations, in railway carriages and, indeed, wherever the company may be described as mid-dle this distressing form of vice that is known as brag is very much in evidence. The obeying of nicknames and Christian names at moments when in ordinary intercourse one would not be addressing anybody is also done in order to advertise some small degrees of intimacy with the well known.—Society.

Forrest's Great Power.

An effeminate young man, an intense admirer of Forrest, enlisted among the supers so as to be near his idol. At the end of Forrest's most effective speech, then on, the new actor ran to overcome that he fainted. The incident so pleased the "old man" that he called him to his dressing room, where, after a few remarks, he presented him with a dollar as a memento of the occasion. On rejoining his fellow supers, five in number, the happy recipient spoke of his good fortune, dilating upon the cause thereof. At the next performance Forrest kept his eye on him to see if he could again so overcome him as to cause him to faint. When he reached the scene and climax his actions could be imagined when six of the supers fell over in a dead faint.

Pain Is a Relative Term.

"Pain" even in the human subject is purely a relative term. It means a very real sensation, but it does not express its degree. And so far as man's mind is concerned the sense of pain, in the intensity in which it can be felt, depends very largely indeed upon two great factors. The first of these is civilization, and the second factor is that of education.—London Magazine.

Styles of Architecture.

In their architecture the Mexicans strove for the negation of the weight altogether; the Egyptian placed the weight dimly on the ground; the Greek lifted it up in the air with an assertion of graceful power; the Roman confused weight and support; the Byzantins represented weight without support; the Moor suggested that there was no weight at all.

Pickled Statues.

The marbles in Westminster palace are treated to a bath once a year. They are first sponged off with water and then "pickled." This pickle consists of a solution of soft soap and sulphur, which removes the incrustations due to the smoke laden atmosphere and is said to do the marble no harm.

No Familiarities.

"I suppose you are familiar with John Rockin, Miss Tootles?"

"Indeed I am not! I never allow myself to become familiar with men, Mr. Penniman. I have not even met the person you refer to!"

The fellow who sits down and waits for his rich relations to die must consider that they are worth their wait in gold.—Philadelphia Record.

NATION'S BIRTHDAY.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AS A BIRTH CERTIFICATE

OUTGROWTH OF THE MOMENT.

"Beautiful Salutation of Many Tongues Crosses of Palestine," Says Rev. Dr. Talmage in His Sermon Prior to the Coming Fourth of July—Quaint Proof Cast Reserved as the Quality of Mercy.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year one thousand nine hundred and three, at the Dept of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 28.—In this sermon the preacher chooses a patriotic theme. The text is Psalm cxvi, 9: "That I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation."

When a child is born the attending physician makes out a birth certificate. This important document is sent to the county building where are preserved the county records. The omission of this certificate or the improper filling of the same might cause inestimable damage. Years hence the lack of it might disinherit the child of large property interests and involve many would be heirs in interminable legal strife.

But though the birth certificate of an individual may be vigilantly guarded it is not so carefully preserved as is the birth certificate of a nation. Those sentimental as well as the intrinsic value places it above the price of silver and gold. Its framework is generally housed within the sacred hall wherein the nation was born. Its contents are written in the Declaration of Independence and that is the nation's birth certificate. Other nations came to recognition by the slow process of history. OUTGROWTH OF THE MOMENT.

"Beautiful Salutation of Many Tongues Crosses of Palestine," Says Rev. Dr. Talmage in His Sermon Prior to the Coming Fourth of July—Quaint Proof Cast Reserved as the Quality of Mercy.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year one thousand nine hundred and three, at the Dept of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 28.—In this sermon the preacher chooses a patriotic theme. The text is Psalm cxvi, 9: "That I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation."

When a child is born the attending physician makes out a birth certificate. This important document is sent to the county building where are preserved the county records. The omission of this certificate or the improper filling of the same might cause inestimable damage. Years hence the lack of it might disinherit the child of large property interests and involve many would be heirs in interminable legal strife.

But though the birth certificate of an individual may be vigilantly guarded it is not so carefully preserved as is the birth certificate of a nation. Those sentimental as well as the intrinsic value places it above the price of silver and gold. Its framework is generally housed within the sacred hall wherein the nation was born. Its contents are written in the Declaration of Independence and that is the nation's birth certificate. Other nations came to recognition by the slow process of history, but the United States of America sprang into existence in a day, and the declaration announced in an astonished world on July 4, 1776, the birth of a new member of the family of nations. As the young King Alfonso, of Spain, was the day he was born after the death of his father, has the unique distinction among sovereigns, so this baby, the American Goddess of Liberty at her first appearance took her place in the world as a sovereign. The document is without parallel in American history; since within its walls is that sacred little parchment on which was first recked the cradle of this newborn national infant. It publishes to the world that the men who signed their names to the foot of that immortal document, penned by Thomas Jefferson in the little three story red brick house still standing at the corner of Seventh and Market streets (Philadelphia), were not ambitious witnesses whose testimony gave validity to that national birth certificate.

The "Declaration of Independence" was the startling culmination of many years of intolerance of injustice. The document was not, as some suppose, the impulse, the result of a long and carefully planned conspiracy extending over many years. It seemed rather to have been the outgrowth of the moment. It was the crystallization of sentiments the results of which the last few years had produced. The British ministry had not anticipated it, neither had the American people. When the First Continental congress assembled in Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774, there was probably not one prominent leader in all America who wished for independence with all the sole exception possibly of Samuel Adams of Boston. "Before the 17th of April, 1775," wrote Thomas Jefferson, "I had never heard a whisper of a disposition to separate from the mother country." "Then I first heard the sentiment of the army July 3, 1775, I abhorred the idea of independence, but when George Washington in one of his letters, "but I am now convinced that only force will save us." All that the American colonies wished for was England was not separation, but justice.

The two countries in every essential of true liberty had grown up were one. They spoke the same language. Many families had brothers and sisters and other relatives in both countries. The children of the American Americans were for the most part educated in English schools, where they were taught to reverence the British king. When Richard Henry Lee arose on the memorable day in June, 1776, and read the following resolution: "Resolved, That these United colonies are and of a right ought to be free and independent states and that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown," his own boy was at that time in England's public school. This American youth, some weeks later, was standing beside one of his teachers when a visitor asked, "Who is the boy there?" "He is the son of Richard Henry Lee," was the teacher's answer. Then the visitor laying his hand upon the lad's shoulder and said, "Boy, we shall yet see your father's head upon Tower hill." To this the son replied, "Yes, you may see it, but you shall not see it!" Richard Henry Lee for years had been consulting for American independence. He would never have sent his son across the sea to be educated under the domination and influence of the English throne. The Declaration of American Independence was written and signed as a last resort but even then the British Ministry would not listen to American petitions. It was written because King George would not listen to royal and imperial natures imagined that he had the right to enforce his will on a people as resolute as himself. He believed that it was for him to command and for them to obey and that their protest against taxation without representation was wicked rebellion against divinely constituted authority. It was when he betaked our forefathers believed that in a struggle for right and justice God would be on their side, though they had to contend with a foe more powerful than themselves.

Standing here in this year of grace 1903 with the sweep of centuries clear and sacred scroll, we may learn the mightest lesson that the only, the great, the unconquerable test and enduring Government is not that which rules by force of arms, but by the all conquering power of loyalty, and duty of love. Such is the historical teaching of England's two thousand years. The one man or great nation, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic Ocean, a nation of over 70,000,000 souls. But our people will resist the attempt to ration only so long as they are an honorable and a powerful people. Beware of the legislation that would make one law for the rich man and another for the poor man. Beware of the law that would send an ignorant criminal to prison and yet permit a brutally selfish coal baron to traffic in child labor. Beware of a social condition which makes it possible for capital to starve and grind down labor—for labor is capital, and capital is labor. Our laws should tolerate neither tyranny of capital nor tyranny of labor, but should afford equal protection to all and arbitrate equitably of interests and friendly between them. It is only when a Government thinks that it can favor unequal justice and afford equal protection to all that it can safely be entrusted with the reins of immortality and direct its fortunes. Overburdened by unwise laws and administrative neglect make possible the enslavement of the people, accordingly as they are helpless ones such a Government is to be overthrown by revolutionary agitation. Had King George III. been wise enough to have granted justice to be as just to the thirteen colonies in 1776 as he granted tyranny to their colonies at the present time our country might have been a province of Great Britain to-day. But a profound sense of justice so closely interwoven with our national life, and which, we hope, might always be just to the helpless the weak and the poor as well as to the strong and powerful. Let the people who are responsible for the laws of the land, the people who employ others, the people who are employed—let them see to them all, protecting each and every one if he acts directly and squarely and faithfully with his fellow men. If he does not act squarely and fairly, let him be punished by the law. While all people are foolish if they are ignorant, those who are rich and educated as well as foolish, but all foolish—yea, the most foolish and the most culpable of the men of wealth who complains because the law is administered in the interest of democratic. May God always continue to inspire the hearts and minds of our executive men who are Presidents of the United States, and may he inspire the Government is not a Wall street hireling or a gigantic monopolizing trust, a corporation for the benefit of the rich as well as poor, black as well as white, but that it is a just, humane, woman's virtue as well as man's virtue, and that it is for every class, but who will protect and guide all honest people alike!

The eldest daughter Scottish youths were inspired to deeds of valor by the recollection that they were members of the clan MacGregor or Campbell. Before the battle of Bannockburn battles the MacGregors were heard to shout the slogan that rallied his followers and led them forth to a victorious charge which put to flight the foe. "Come on! Come on! Fight like brave men! Your ancestors are looking down upon you!" So let us be brave and true to America's best interests, and may the very name of our nation also for the sake of those meritorious ancestors who are watching us at this national anniversary be to us a day of consecration to the best and highest principles of life. The mother of Hannibal led her son to the altar and there made him swear to there made him swear ugcreasing war against the enemies of his country. So may we, remembering the noble virtues of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, encourage one another to the struggle against the evils which surround us, encouraging the righteousness of the nation that they established.

Finally, in the great crisis of national affairs God, if we only trust him, will lead us to the right and to the right places. Did he not give Moses the law for the Israelites when he gave Thomas Jefferson as the writer of this immortal document? Did he not give the right man for the right place when George Washington was at the head of the American armies? Did not God give the right man for the right place when, at the breaking out of the civil war, Abraham Lincoln became president of the United States? Did not God give us the right man for the right place in William McKinley sat in the White House and calmly and firmly guided the ship of state during the Spanish-American trouble? And so may not God raise up men and future leaders if the American people are a Godly nation and unfailingly look to him for divine guidance?

But while the members of the Continental congress of 1776 were brave men, they were also, as a class, praying men. True courage and consecration are brothers. They were men who believed in God. They were men who, down upon their knees, reverently, and earnestly, and sincerely sought divine aid. In the famous historical picture the members of the Second Continental congress are shown on their knees in prayer. To the Christian American it seems that, perhaps, one of the most impressive historical paintings that hang in legislative hall or in foreign or domestic art gallery, I have seen this noted war pictures of Berlin and Dresden. I have seen the form of Emperor William in many lands, flanked by Von Moltke and the nation builder, Prince Bismarck. In Paris I have seen the Napoleonic pictures and in London the war pictures of Waterloo; where a great mounted Wellington immovably sits his horse, watching the destruction of the French grenadiers. But of all the art galleries of the world there is no historical picture that, to my mind, is so impressive, so significant, so full of inspiration as that historic picture of the Continental congress in prayer.

Most of the members of that congress came from praying Christian homes. They attended the church and summer of 1776 to take the most momentous step ever in the congress of any country can take. It was no light or trivial act to renounce allegiance to King George and to defy the power of the British government. They knew full well the consequences involved in such a step. But God had imbued them with a saving divine guidance. One of the members arose and moved that a prominent Episcopalian minister of Philadelphia should be sent for and asked to lead them in prayer to God. Samuel Adams, I think it was, objected. He had declared in substance: "I am not an Episcopalian, but I am not a bigot. I feel that God's hour has struck for the national crisis. I second the motion." The motion was carried. The next day this Episcopalian minister came to the legislative hall. He read from his full canonical robes. All the members knelt. I can well believe that his self-same lips offered the prayer that the God of the armies of Israel and of Christian nations might guide them. How on any other assumption can we explain the success that it campaign would have been sheer temerity for those men to sign that Declaration unless they had believed that God would be with them in the struggle that must ensue. And their faith was justified by the result. The God who heard the prayers of the fathers in the Revolution. The life and death struggle in which she had to engage nearer home in the war of secession. It was that fact, due to the overruling mercy of God, our forefathers owed their success. Oh, my fellow countrymen, let us in this anniversary renew the faith that our fathers had in the God of nations. May we continue to be a people who pray! Washington in 1776 and in 1812 and in 1861. May we feel as a nation that we live in a prayer answering God, and that he will listen to our petitions for protection

TIMELY TOPICS.

Glorious day, yesterday, wasn't it?

Blue skies, bright sunshine, flowers—accented sir. Our friends the Methodists certainly had an ideal day on which to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of their church's founder, the great John Wesley.

Two hundred years ago—on June 17, 1703 (old style), or (on June 28 (new style)—John Wesley, that sweet singer, preacher, evangelist and soul-winner, first saw the light in the little country rectory of Epworth in Lincolnshire. He was an aristocrat by birth, a Tory by politics, a High Churchman for many years, and he died entitling at his seat with his last breath, his membership of the mother church, yet the great democratic body to which he gave being is perhaps as far away from his early ideals as most Christians are from the life of Christ. But Wesley's example, Wesley's teachings, Wesley's life have been the greatest levers which have propelled the enormous machinery of Methodism, which has seventeen different organizations throughout the world, and numbers not less than eight million members.

There is a lesson for the ladies in that late terrible affair in Seven Sisters Graveyard, it now turns out, had ample warning of the intended assassination, and had made plans to leave Belgium, but women's vanity stopped the way. Queen Draga had, to use her own phrase, "nothing to go away in." She was awaiting the consignment of a particularly smart travelling dress from one of the principal Paris dressmakers. This failed to arrive in time; the arrangements for flight were deferred, and just as it happens to people who linger in a burning House, escape was at last cut off.

"Justice to All" writes: "It is an unfortunate fact that the recent assessment, which was promised to do such great things for Belleville, has caused an immense amount of dissatisfaction. Many people had hoped that the Council would have acted on the suggestion made to them, and have the assessment published. Of course we have just as much respect to pay our share of the taxation needed to keep the civic machine running, and we do not complain so long as he is taxed fairly. But it is a bad thing for any city when a spirit of dissatisfaction gets abroad. Rumors soon multiply. If one can believe what he hears on the streets, the present assessment was neither fairly nor properly made. There is an infallible safeguard against matters of this kind, and that is publicity. I would like to see the Council, at Monday night's meeting, take steps to have the assessment published. To be sure, it may be too late to allow of any changes this year, but it would pave the way for a satisfactory assessment next year, something highly desirable."

Stone in the Bladder or Gravel.

SERIOUS URINARY TROUBLES INCURRED PAIN THAT CAN SCARCELY BE DESCRIBED — AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

If you could only read a few of the letters of commendation which are received at these offices you would not wonder why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have become so popular and obtained such an enormous sale. The following letter is a fair sample, and in order to be sure that it came from a responsible person we wrote to the postmaster, whose reply is also quoted.

Mr. Daniel Brown, English River, Ont., writes: "For three years I suffered from urinary troubles, partaking of the nature of stone in the bladder or gravel, and the pain which I endured can scarcely be described. I was unable to do any work, and frequently discharged blood. Though I spent hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills I received no relief, and at last decided that I would never be at work again.

"While in this condition I was advised to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and, though I had no faith in them or in anything else, I decided to give them a fair trial. After using one box I felt a decided change for the better, and after taking five boxes I feel like a new man. I can sleep fairly out of pain, and have no more discharge of blood. I can honestly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to any fellow-sufferer, and will cheerfully verify this statement to any one writing me."

Mr. W. Bowen, postmaster and station agent at English River, Ont., writes: "I have interviewed Mr. Daniel Brown of this place in regard to his long illness and cure, and can certify that the testimonial is as given by him is correct."

There is probably no more dreadfully painful thing than stone in the kidneys or bladder, and thousands of persons have been cured of this wretched disease, just as Mr. Brown has been by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Anecdotal.

The Shah of Persia is said to have told the Duchess of Westminster that the fame of her beauty had reached Teheran. "Ah," said she to someone who was near by, "he takes me for Westminster Abbey."

Lord Morris did not at first make a favorable impression in the House of Lords. One conspicuous member is said to have enquired what language the noble and learned lord was speaking. Lord Morris himself was subsequently told how he had got on. "Well," he replied, "I made one mistake. I should have practised 'spaking' to a lot of gravestones before I addressed their lordships."

An English alderman of one of the new boroughs in the provinces, thanking a friend who occupied a similar position of dignity and usefulness in a neighboring district, said: "We have provided our mayor with a splendid chain; what are you doing for yours?" "Oh," replied his friend, "we are going to let our bounder run loose." This story has a peculiar appropriateness in Canada at present.

The Venerable Dr. Thurston, who is much more at home in mazes of theology than in the amenities of social life, not long ago was introducing to a fourteen-year clergyman, a handsome widower, a former parishioner of his own, no longer young and extremely sensitive to the fact. "My brother," said Dr. Thurston, leading the lady forward, while his face beamed with ingenuine affection, "this is Miss Almeda Jennings, one of my oldest sheep."

Strange tales are told of the methods of the United States customs. A lady who had visited the Continent and done much shopping in London, on the way home on the boat made the acquaintance of a most delightful man, to whom she confided the story of her triumphant bargains. "But what about the customs?" asked her friend. "Can you dodge them?" "Oh!" said the lady, "I always do it in a way that cannot be found out. For instance, I roll up a glove in each of my stockings. Then the pleasant acquaintance saw, and the consequence of his seeing was that the lady's stockings—as well as several other things—were carefully examined and surcharged when she reached New York. For that was the business of the pleasant acquaintance.

A city reporter does not always, result so satisfactorily to the perpetrator as in the case of the young cur/ate who obtained a valuable living in the West of England by means of a note. The rector who held the living had died, and there were many applicants for the post, which was worth ten thousand dollars a year. The living was in the gift of a trust, who was appointed at the funeral by the manifestations of grief by the assembled rectors and curates. So he said to the young curate, who had been acting as the latter of his son: "Naturally they should feel a proper amount of grief, but I cannot understand why they should weep so penitentially for the dead." The young man instantly replied: "You see, they are taken, my lord; it is not for the dead they weep; it is for the living." Then upon the earl was so pleased with the keenness of the remark that he presented the living to the curate.

William E. Curtis tells this story about Stanford White, the well-known architect of New York city: "A man with a deep weed on his hat came into Mr. McKim's office one day and said he would like a design for a monument for his wife, recently deceased. He was questioned as to the style of tomb that he preferred, but said he would leave it all to the designer. Stanford White, who was a genius in that line, made a beautiful sketch after the Gothic order, with graceful tracery and delicate lines, which is thought particularly suitable for a young woman. A few days later, however, the bereaved client rejected the design instantly, and said it would not do at all. He wanted something solid and substantial. Mr. White was disgusted at the architect's taste, but did what their client want, and he made another sketch, a heavy and ungraceful as an Egyptian pyramid. When the widower called again he looked at the plan carefully and asked how many tons of granite would be needed to carry it out. 'I should say about forty tons,' remarked Mr. White. 'I guess that will be about right,' said the stranger sadly, and ordered the monument erected over the grave of his wife at once."

Mixed Morals.

THE TWO FARMERS.

Once on a Time there were Two Farmers who wished to Sell their Farms.

To One came a Buyer who offered a Fair Price.

But the Farmer refused to Sell, saying he had heard rumors of a Railroad which was to be Built in his Vicinity, and he hoped The Corporation would buy his Farm at a Large Figure.

The Railroad Company went Away, and as the Railroad never Materialized, the Farmer Sorely Regretted that he lost a Good Chance.

The Other Farmer Sold his Farm to the First Customer who came Along, although he Received but a Small Price for it. Soon Afterward a Railroad was Built right through the Same Farm, and The Railroad Company paid an Enormous Sum for the Land.

MORALS:

This Fable teaches that a Bird In The Hand Is Worth Two In the Bush, and The Patient Waiter Is No Loser.

THE TWO BROTHERS.

Once on a Time there were Two Brothers who got Out to make their Way In The World.

One was of a Roving Disposition, and no sooner had he settled Down to Live in One Place than he would Get Tired of his Goods and Chattels and Move to another Place. From here again he would Depart and make Half a Fresh Home, and so on, until he Became an Old Man and had gained neither Fortune nor Friends.

The Other, being Distinctined to Change or Diversity of Scene, remained Quietly in One Place. He therefore Became Narrow-Minded and Provincial, and gained None of the Culture and Liberality of Nature which comes from Contact with various Scenes of Life.

MORALS:

This Fable teaches that a Rolling Stone Gathers No Moss, and a Setting Hen Never Grows Fat.—Carolyn Wells.

BEING POPULAR.

Be Nice If You Want to Succeed in Attaining that Desirable Object.

Popularity is not by a mixture of self-appreciation and self-assertion. The first step toward learning how to please most people is by realizing that they are more interested in themselves than in you, and the nearer your regard will be the degree in which you minister to their pleasure and self-satisfaction.

The way to be popular is to give much and take little. After all, we ourselves like best the friends who desire to know details of our private experiences, so why should we set toward others as though their affairs were matters of indifference to us? Learn to rejoice when you hear of the success of an acquaintance, then you become one of the fortunate few whom she next meets you. Be sorry for a neighbor's clouded prospects, but don't forget to congratulate her when

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do any of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles —we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

A1ap barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will put you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

She turned to him impulsively and held out her two hands with an appealing gesture. Mentally knowing what he did, Dudley caught them and held them against his heart.

"I want to tell!" she whispered, "my mother thinks strongly on the subject, and I know you will not quarrel against me, and if Dudley cares—do not wish to conceal it, I am quite quite lately. Let my hands go, dearest —some one will see us!"

The children by the water's edge had gone home, and the lovers on the other seat were absorbed in talk or in sweeter silence. Dudley drew Francesca nearer to him until her lovely blushing face was close to his. But hardly had his lips touched her cheek when a shadow fell across the grass at their feet, and Joseph Weldon stood before them.

"I beg your pardon, sir—I beg pardon, miss, but Miss Betty wants me to tell you it is ten minutes to seven!"

"THANK HEAVEN!" exclaimed Dudley.

It was not by accident that little Betty suggested the exact spot in which Francesca and Dudley were likely to be found.

From the bay window of Mrs. Revelsworth's drawing-room she had seen them set off together in the direction of the Palace and only two days before as she and Dudley and his brother were strolling in the grounds, Dudley had remarked that those were on the stretch of gloomy grass far from which he could be "idle for a few years."

Victor had picked up his cue in the words, and had presently wandered off in the direction indicated by his brother in search of a quiet spot for prayer. Dudley had noted his action, and had laughed slightly, glancing at through little Betty's heart an unaccountable pang had passed.

She was greedy and unreasonable. She told herself so quickly, with the self-reproach. It was perfectly natural that both Dudley and Victor should be in love with Francesca. If she had been a man, Betty decided, she would have adored Francesca, who was by far the most beautiful and fascinating creature she had ever seen. And had set she, Betty, an admirer of her own who was handsome and amiable, and anxious to her in spite of Mrs Revelsworth's superior attractions?

Unfortunately for Betty Mannington love is seldom controlled by reason; and, although for nearly three years she had been wooed by Hermon O'Mara, who was in every way a suitable match, and whose society was altogether congenial to her, she could not bring herself to feel for him anything but a pleasant friendly affection.

She was quite a heart-whole little creature that it had scarcely occurred to her that she could be in love. Had any one suggested the possibility to her, she would have protested, laughed, that she had "no time" for such sentiment. Afore all, had any one told her a month before that she would secretly cherish a romantic devotion for a man who during the time was wholly brotherly, she would have been equally amused and indignant. And yet this is just what had happened to her. Into her tender heart there had stolen an especial love for and interest in one man, whose looks and words and actions gradually grew to be more important to her than anything else in the world. And this man was certainly not Mr. Hermon O'Mara.

It must not be supposed however that Betty plied, or "let concealment like a worm i' the bud prey on her damask cheek." She was happier at times, although sadder at others, than she had ever been in her life before. Her love

VISITING A TURK'S HAREM.

What Took Place on a Lady Visitor's Wedding Day.

(Lucy Truscott, Marrying Kid.)

Mrs. M. A. Crosley of this city, wife of the pastor of the Central Universalist Church, Galata, in Turkey recently—a society which she has visited twenty times in the past two years—had the rare experience of being admitted to the luxurious harem of a wealthy official. "The first thing to do," said Mrs. Crosley, "if one wishes to see the inside of a harem, is to secure a special, or, as foreigners like to call it, an invitation. Knowing that we would be welcomed to the home of the official over whose party I went there in carriages. I sent in my card by the servant at the door and it was carried to the first wife, who, in reality, is the head of the household. By and by word was sent back by the servant that we might be led here. We were brought into a reception room. Our party consisted only of women, as, of course, no men are allowed to enter the harems. In some houses eunuchs are employed to take charge, but only female servants were used in this home. While we were admiring the beautiful furniture, the coverings of which were of silk, heavily embroidered, the officials wives came in to greet us. There were nine of them and they ranged from a woman apparently 60 years old to the last wife, a beautiful dark girl of 16. They were dressed in the loose flowing robes of their country, the lower part of the costume consisting of wide trousers gathered at the ankle. The trousers were so full, however, as to have almost the appearance of skirts.

"Our clothes at once attracted the attention of the women, as we were, I believe, the first party of foreigners they had ever really come in contact with, although they must have seen others as they passed through the streets in their closed carriages.

"They took off our bonnets and examined them curiously and we had to explain how all our garments were made and worn. Any piece of jewelry at once caught their attention and in return they showed us their ornaments, many of them of great value.

"Through an interpreter, a lady I had remembered to take with us, we conversed quite freely and pleasantly. It is the custom wherever foreigners call on the native women to take them presents and we had come prepared in this respect. We gave them beautiful flowers, bright colored ribbons and other gay presents we knew women would like to have, for strangely enough families in Turkey have the pretty things seem to be the same the world over. Our gifts made them happy and they treated us with the greatest courtesy.

"It is the Turkish custom to offer you cigarettes and of course they were presented to us. We all took one, for to have refused would have been a serious breach of etiquette. We were two tasked to smoke the nagilich, a kind of pipe where the smoke is drawn through a glass bowl filled with water into the mouth by means of a long rubber tube. The Turkish women divide their time between their needle work and the nagilich, or "bubble bubble," as the English call it. We declined the treat, saying we much preferred the cigarettes, which made excellent souvenirs anyway.

"One of the wives, a beautiful Circassian woman, could speak French fluently, and this made our visit more interesting, as several of the party could thus talk to her. She invited us to go over the house and pointed out all rooms including the dining rooms of the wives and also of the master of the house. This latter room was fixed, up so that the husband might entertain a great many of his friends at once. All of the wives never gather with him in the dining room, however, as Turkish custom decrees that not more than one wife shall share the husband's meal at a time with him.

"Just as we were leaving the harem the Circassian woman took me to one side and asked confidentially if I knew some beautiful girls who would likely suit her husband as he desired another wife. I told her I had seen so few Turkish women I could not make a selection and that I feared no American girl would wish to become the tenth wife. This answer, although intended as a jest, was taken seriously by the wife, who was not able to understand this aversion to being chosen so late.

"Girls in Turkey are married very young—between 13 and 15 being the usual ages. The girl who is not married by the time she is 16 is looked upon with wonder. In our party were two girls, each a little over 16. The inmates of the harem discovered they were not married and were surprised beyond utterance. "Why, how old are you? they inquired. 'And not married?' they would say when told the girl's ages. Nor could they understands how such a thing as a girl being left to be married without being married could come to pass."

Little Etiquette Points.

When you meet a gentleman you know on the street in company with another gentleman, you must bow to the gentleman you know only. The other gentleman will acknowledge the bow to his friend by lifting his hat.

If a man stops aside to let you pass, a bow is sufficient thanks. If he opens a door or gate you should thank him.

A large number of notes of congratulation received by a bridegroom from ladies. It is not, however, considered good form for a young lady to write notes of congratulation to her men friends. Congratulations may be spoken, but written congratulations from young girls are not expected.

Notes written by a bride or bridegroom in response to good wishes should be very brief—simply expressing thanks.

If a young lady is stopping with a friend it is customary to have her name written on the cards of the lady who is chaperoning her.

If they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce, which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothing, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

HONORS FOR MEMORY OF DEAD BELLEVILLIAN.

WHO DIED A HERO'S DEATH IN OWOSSO, MICHIGAN.

["This Tablet is Dedicated by the Citizens of Owosso, Michigan, to the Memory of Fireman James Frederick Ross, who Lost His Life in the Heroic Performance of His Duty, April 7, 1900. Dedicated June 9, 1903."

The above inscription tells its own story, for Jim Ross, a young man, who, born in this city, went with his family to Owosso, Mich., when a boy, James Frederick Ross, who died a hero's death in his humility as a fireman, was a grandson of Mr. Zenas Ross, of Thurlow, and a nephew of Mrs. D. Roblin, of this city. His mother's maiden name was Lawrence. The Rev. Canon Ross, of Owosso, has a lengthy account of the unveiling ceremony. Over 5,000 people were present, and the occasion was one not soon to be forgotten. Speeches were made by leading clergymen and citizens, and the testimonials to the dead man's character were all that even public warmest friend could desire. So rests in peace a Belleville boy, who, in the land of his adoption, was, to quote the words of our Owosso wire, temporary, "prominent, not only as a fireman, but was a soldier in Co. A, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, a young Mindian and Maccabee, a loving husband and an honored man."

Fall Resulted Fatally.

On Tuesday last an aged woman, Mrs. Hannah Whalen, residing with her son on Mill street, had the misfortune to fall down stairs head first. Concussion of the brain was caused, resulting in Mrs. Whalen's death, which occurred on Saturday night. Deceased was in her 86th year and had lived in Belleville for some time. She was born in Ireland, but the greater portion of her life was spent on the Island. Mrs. Hannah Whalen was a member of St. Michael's Church. Her husband preceded her to the tomb many years ago.

UNNECESSARY TO SUFFER FROM ASTHMA:

This distressing complaint can be perfectly cured by inhaling Catarrhozone, a vegetable antiseptic that destroys the germs which cause the disease. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth from a convenient pocket inhaler, and after permeating the minutest air cells, is exhaled slowly through the nostrils. It stops the cough, makes breathing regular, and eradicates the asthma so thoroughly from the system that it never returns. Don't suffer from asthma, use Catarrhozone; it will speedily cure you. CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY

Rev. Dr. Crothers Preaches a Patriotic Sermon to the Fifteenth.

Bishop Mills Holds Confirmation Services in Christ Church and St. John's.

The Wesley Bi-Centenary Celebrated in the Different Methodist Churches

The Fifteenth at Bridge St.

Yesterday morning the Fifteenth Regiment paraded to Bridge Street Methodist Church. The attendance was very good turnout and the appearance of the Regiment generally was favorably commented upon. The Pastor of the Church, Rev. Dr. Crothers, preached and his discourse was both patriotic and eloquent. His text was taken from the 11th Timothy, 1st chapter and 7th verse:

"This charge I commit unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mightest war a good warfare."

In his opening remarks the preacher alluded to Gideon's decision to call the Regiment to the church. He complimented them that upon their appearance as a fine body of men and hoped they would always live up to their traditions. In the course of his remarks the Rev. gentleman said the occasion was a unique one, as there was need of soldiers to-day more certainly than ever. The text he quoted resembled the times when swords may be turned into plough shares. Wars fell out in the world owing to ignorance in the world. He referred to some wars which had taken place, which were righteous in their nature. The late war in South Africa was fought because great principles were at stake. There was another warfare in which all should engage, namely, the religious warfare against sin. Our leader and commanding officer is the Lord Jesus Christ, and we must all wear triumph. His leadership inspires us that all our soldiers require, namely, courage. Then the reward will be great and everlasting. In conclusion, the preacher referred to some of the noted generals of the British Army and were true christian soldiers. He implored all to be true to the Great Leader so that at last they might hear the Well done."

During the service the choir rendered an anthem entitled "Lead Kindly Light," and during the offertory a hymn entitled "Be a Hero," was sung. Miss Holton taking the solo.

Confirmation Services in St. John's and Christ Church.

A large congregation was present at St. John's this last evening. Bishop Mills was in attendance and preached, after which the rite of confirmation was performed by him. His discourse was in reference to "The calling of St. Paul to be an Apostle." The text was taken from Romans, 1st chapter and 1st portion of the 1st verse:

"Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an Apostle."

At the conclusion of the sermon His Lordship addressed the candidates were to be confirmed, impressing upon them the importance of the rite they were about to participate in. Seven candidates were presented, five females and two males. During the offertory a solo was rendered by Mrs. J. G. Parker who sang, very sweetly, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

Confirmation services at St. John's Church were conducted by the incumbent, Rev. Mr. Mundin, assisted by Rev. Canon Sweeny, Rural Dean Beamish and the Archdeacon of Kingston.

The Wesley Bi-Centenary.

At Bloecker Street Church yesterday morning Rev. Mr. T. Bates preached his farewell sermon as Pastor, and Worful Wednesday referred to the work of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism. The Rev. gentleman's text was a portion of the 19th verse of the 13th chapter of St. Mark:

"And the common people heard him gladly."

At the Tabernacle Church the bi-centenary of the birth of John Wesley was appropriately observed. In the morning the Sunday school had charge of the service, which was largely attended. Two papers were read, namely, "The early life of John Wesley," by Miss Ethel Sager, and "John Wesley's Activity," by Mr. E. Gordon. The Pastor, Rev. F. W. Locke, gave a short address. Several hymns were sung. In the evening a platform meeting was held when appropriate addresses in reference to John Wesley were given by Ald. Chown and Mr. C. Frith. Jeffers' orchestra rendered selections.

In all the Methodist Sunday Schools yesterday the day was fittingly observed. The General Conference had prepared a programme of responsive readings, Wesley hymns and historic data, in which most of the members of the congregations joined. At Bridge Street Sunday School, addresses of five minutes each were given by Mr. W. G. F. Clarke on John Wesley's early life; by Miss Addie D. Dibblee on John Wesley's motives; by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn on John Wesley's personality; by Mr. Lester J. Chown on John Wesley's organizing power.

At Holloway Street Methodist Church yesterday morning the Pastor, Rev. J. R. Real, preached the pulpit and gave out his sermon being in keeping with the Bi-Centenary of John Wesley. In the evening Mr. Wm. Johnson gave an address entitled "The Activities of John Wesley," which was carefully prepared and well received by the congregation. During the service a quartette composed of Misses Watson and McMurray and Messrs. Barkley and R. Lawrence sang a selection entitled "Lead me gently Home, Father."

There was a large congregation present at Bridge Street Church last evening, and the sermon by the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers, was in every respect worthy of the occasion. It was in relation to John Wesley and Methodism in this country. The preacher dealt very thoroughly at times with his subject, and spoke with earnestness. Special hymns and music were rendered by the choir.

The subject of man's future state and the first resurrection was taken up yesterday, showing the judgment at the Christian's works and the impossibility of a believer ever being lost. The speaker announced that during the Sunday evening the entertainment and the millenial state will be taken up

COURT OF REVISION.

HELD ANOTHER SESSION ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Court of Revision held a session on Saturday night and disposed of a few appeals which had been left in abeyance. There are still a large number of undecided appeals, which the court will consider some evening this week. The following was the result of Saturday's session:

St. E. Clarke's assessment of $1,000 on personal property reduced to $250.

C. J. B. Flint's assessment of $1,400 on income reduced to $1,000.

C. Gurney's assessment of $800 on income reduced to $200.

W. R. Taylor's assessment on income of $300 reduced to $60.

H. Lavoie's assessment of $300 on income reduced to $150.

N. R. Whitcroft's assessment of $300 on income reduced to $150.

Mrs. F. Meudell's assessment of $12,000 on personal property reduced to $3,100. Assessment of $4,000 on income reduced to $2,000.

Mrs. J. W. Dannell's assessment of $2,000 on income reduced to $1,400.

Married in Tweed.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Houston, Tweed, on Wednesday, when their only daughter, Miss Mabel S., was married to Mr. Bidwell A. Holgate of the railway mail service. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. E. W. Titus, and the handsome floral arch with banks of palm and cut flowers for a background. Miss Sadie Humphries, of Cambridge, was bridesmaid and Thomas S. Holgate, groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Holgate left on the 3.30 train for Toronto and other places in Eastern Ontario and Montreal. They were assisted at once they will take up their residence in Trenton.

The Case of James Howatson.

The latest word concerning the remarkable case of Mr. James Howatson, who for the past six months has been hovering between life and death at St. John's Hospital at Escanoba, Montana, with the spinal cord nearly severed and paralyzed from the waist down, is that he is slowly improved. A severe attack of Lagrippe has weakened his vitality and strong constitution very materially. His temperature at times is 105 and pulse 106 to 125. Special mention is made of the kind treatment he is receiving, and the daily visitations of Lodge Brethren. Belleville Lodge I.O.O.F., of that city, pride themselves on their WORD OF HONOR in assisting their Fraternal Brothers.

INCOME OF THE FAMILY CUT OFF.

Appeal from Friends on Behalf of a Poor Family.

The following letter from an esteemed friend of the Intelligencer, who, addressed to the Secretary of the Associated Charities, Toronto, explains itself:—"What steps can be taken to relieve the distress of patients in the Free Consumption Hospital? We have a good many friends already. The only source of income of the family has been cut off. I think the father would be better if he had the proper care, but his illness and that his family it is impossible to give him proper treatment. If any one knows of the Consumption Hospital for advanced treatment, then the people here can manage to get him there. I think he will be restored to health. He is able to go around. Poor man!"

We publish this letter to illustrate how great is the need for the Free Hospital for Poor Consumptives, established by the National Sanitarium Association at Gravenhurst. Just one year ago the first patient was a woman from Belleville. Since then a number of other Belleville and district patients have found a home within its walls, and have received at times when wholly unable to pay anything towards their maintenance. Many of the letters from those who pay is less than one-half the cost of their support.

There is no advertising, and the Trustees depend solely in the making up of the deficiency on the annual contributions of kind friends. With the increasing demand for patients, welcome to the hospital, should the subscriptions increase, it is hoped that the building for the next three months, the limit of patients will be more open to them, but to have some of the money.

Hon. Wm. R. Meredith, K.C., Vice-President of the Association, and Mr. Geo. Gooderham, Chairman of the Executive Committee, have generously contributed this much needed work.

AN INFANT MAGICIAN.

Mozart at the Age of Four Composed a Different Concerto.

As a child of four Wolfgang Mozart's wonderful playing at the harpsichord was the talk of Salzburg, and a year later his compositions were being played in public by his father. He was only four years old when he composed a concerto which, to the horror of his father, one of the most skilled violinists in Germany, could not play it. "Of course," said the latter contemptuously, "no one can be expected to play it without constant practice." But when Wolfgang was only five years old, he was invited to give a recital in public. He, unconscious of the tragic magic of his tiny fingers worked his audience to a pitch of the wildest enthusiasm.

At six he made a tour of Germany and became the idol of the courts, the empress herself taking him on her knees and hugging him in an ecstasy of admiration, while the child, embraced him and called him "Papa Hiffe magician." Shortly after he had passed his eighth birthday Mozart was electrifying England, was being petted and praised by the royalties of the land, queen and was publishing sonatas, a symphony and an anthem, which created a furore among music lovers from one end of the country to the other.

McINTOSH BROS.

WOMAN'S TRUE FRIEND.

The Diagnosis, And the Power She Was a Subject Died of Paradise.

ONE Day a Beauty Doctor sat in her Pink Reception Room, hoping that she might remember her Lithia Water. Her income was a dollar every time she took a Puff of Her Gum, but it, by selling Freckle Food and a Preparation for getting rid of Moles and Warts, that she had Specially was to Calcimine the Noses and feed the Little Little Hair-Beasts and feed them into the Arena looking like Vassar Girls unless the Hair happened to wash it off. It did not look long to put an Extension on an Eye-Brow, and she could provide a Mash for those who were going to Card Parties so long that they had forgotten how to brush. When she got after a Wild Hair the Hair simply threw to both Heads and quit. In a little Folder entitled "How to Fool Everybody except those who live in the Same House," she had proved that there was no Reason why a Girl of 60 should look like 19 if she put on enough Shellac and kept out of the Light.

The Beauty Doctor had seen many a Derelict float in for a new Coat of Armor Plate, but the Nobody's Darling had landed in this Day established a Record. She was something like Penelope Pitt, but it attracted anybody. It did not show in her Face or Feet, and it made Miles suffer from Home Sickness the Moment they saw it. She had a Bird's-Eye Maple Complexion and wore one of those Gowns that you get by measuring yourself with a String and sending Two Dollars. She had about as much Contour as the Letter I. Without saying anything Disparagement of her Private Character or denying that she may have been kind to her Relations, it may be added that she resembled a Daily Hint from the Short Timber.

"I am your Card in the Bee-Keepers' Bazaar, and I have decided to back in for a Re-Engagin," said the Visitor. "If you can build me out with a Set of Curves the same as I see in the Circus Pictures and cause my Hair to Bush out and hang to the Belt Line in the same as it used to when I was Goddess of Liberty on a Hay-Wagon in the first Grand Campaign, and give me some Perfumed Dope that will restore a Peaches and Cream Complexion on or before May 1st, I will do the Generous Thing by you and pay in up to Seven Dollars."

The Beauty Doctor seldom took the Count, but this was one of the "Times." "My Private Secretary will take charge of your Case," she said faintly, and then she went into another Apartment and fell down.

The Private Secretary was the Last Resort. He had no Conscience. For two seasons he had been a Cloak salesman. "Surely you have not come back for Treatment," he said, smiling at the Caller. "You have the Shape that they are raving about in Paris this Spring, and we could not improve your general Tint no matter how we might try. Disgrace of your Gender, mobstruck Elegance of your Gender, nourished with Nature has so generously parcelled out to you, makes it unnecessary to attempt any Altered Ideas. All that you need to do it to retain intact your present Category of Ravishing Charm. This you can manage by a careful Perusal of our Book, 'How to Stay Pretty,' it costs us Ten Bucks."

So the mouthing Lynx had the Volume wrapped up and went away tickled, for she knew that she was a chipper Bird of Paradise.

Boy Outwitted a Woman.

A woman who had lived in Washington for years and but lately removed to New York found herself obliged to earn money.

"I am often so busy," she said, "that noon comes that I cannot leave my desk to go to some restaurant, and I am often obliged to wait for a bite until two or even three o'clock. If I could only have a lunch, say a sandwich, a piece of cake and a glass of milk brought in to me I know I should be better health.

"I get so faint about half-past twelve that it often brings on a headache, and by the time I get out I have lost all desire to eat."

Now, the woman put on her thinking cap and remembered having heard that a woman in Washington was going around among the government clerks serving a dainty light lunch every day between twelve and one o'clock to all those who did not care to go out or who could not leave their desks.

She obtained permission from the superintendent of one of the largest buildings down town to canvass among his women employed in the offices and find out if this really was a want, and if so if it would pay her to cater to it.

Her canvass resulted in obtaining almost a hundred customers in that one building. The lunches, a lunch consisting of two sandwiches, one of meat, the other of lettuce, cheese or sardines, a couple of liberal slices of some made cake and a glass of milk put in a small bottle, which is required the next day.

These little lunches are nicely done up in white paper, served at twelve every day and cost fifteen cents.

A Belgian engineer, Tobiansky, has invented an apparatus for predicting the thunder storm. It appears that the origin of the smoke is a matter of little importance. It is simply forced into a receiver, where it is saturated with ultraviolet rays, and can then be burned, giving a brilliant illumination.

The biggest man in the world is Brunow, the Swiss giant. There are several Swiss giants, but Brunow is the tallest all with the height of 8 feet 7 inches, and he is a big man, in proportion. His clothing costs three hundred dollars per suit, and he cannot get into an ordinary railway carriage.

A party of Bedouins Arabs, with camels, horses and donkeys, which camped for some weeks at the Zoological Gardens in Vienna, took with them when they left, for Trieste, seven Viennese brides, to whom they will be married with Arabian rites upon reaching their destination. All the women had previously, Thirty-eight, who wanted to take up a desert life were rejected because of their poverty.

The Sedan chair still exists in Orleans, a southern town not far from Paris. In this pretty city, says a Paris newspaper, especially on Sundays at Vespers, can be seen the classic Sedan chair, as it was known to the gallants of the eighteenth century, as borne through the streets by robust carriers, who compass leaving in the midst of invalids, to whom the jolting of a carriage is intensely distressable.

The Italian "Commercial" notes the fact that all the Presidents of the United States have come from British ancestry except two, both of whom were Dutch, Martin Van Buren was the first President of Dutch ancestry, and Roosevelt is the second. Washington, Adams, Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Lincoln, Johnson, Garfield, Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison were of British ancestry; Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Arthur and McKinley were Irish descendants; Monroe, Grant and Hayes were Scotch; Jefferson was French, Van Buren Dutch, Cleveland English, 14; Scotch-Irish, 5; Scotch, 3; Dutch, 2; Welsh, 1.

Alexandre Duhamel of Paris has made a timepiece that stands twelve feet high, and is composed entirely of bicycle wheels and other components parts. The framework is a huge bicycle frame, around which are arranged twelve ordinary-sized wheels, all fitted with pneumatic tires. A ring within the large wheel bears the figures for the hours, the figures themselves being constructed of crank rods. The hands are made of steel tubing, which is used for the framework of bicycles. The minute strokes on the dial are seven inches long, and clear. The top of the clock is an arrangement of cranks, handle bars, etc., and serves as the hours and the quarters, bicycle-bells sounding the respective notes. The pendulum is made of a bicycle wheel, and the pendulum-rod of various parts of a bicycle frame. It is said that the clock, besides being a curiosity, is a correct one, and will be an adorn one of the public buildings of Paris.

Mrs. Isabel Savory tells in her book, "A Sportswoman in India," this story about a man she knew: "He had a tame partridge, a hen that was sitting, but unluckily for her hatching out time she left her nest and found a chink in the henhouse. The cobra made a fine feed of well-warmed eggs, and when it essayed to retire by the same hole through which it had entered it found it too large to get out at such a time, so it had to stay in the henhouse and bait outside. There it was discovered by the owner of the fowls in a satisfied condition. It paid for its greediness with its life, and then it paid back the eggs it had stolen; for when the body of the snake was opened the eggs were all found unbroken and warm. They were replaced under the hen, and in due time there brought none the worse for their peculiar incubation. The strangest fact is that the cobra could swallow whole an egg much bigger than its own head is accounted for by the peculiar construction of that head. The head and jaw of the cobra are loose, and can enormously stretched and distorted."

Madame Gadbois a Martyr for Seventeen Years —Now Cured and Free of Pain.

"I have had Rheumatism for 17 years, and have been in bed for three months at a time from this terrible disease. I have tried many different kinds of medicines, but they did me no good at all. The pains affected the muscles in my shoulders and neck, and they were in such a chronic, painful condition that I could scarcely get out of bed. At times I could not stand on my feet, the pains were so terrible. I bought a bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure gave me great relief, and the second bottle cured me."—Madame E. VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1903 NO.

THE UNREADY GOVERNMENT

Transportation Plans Too Chaotic to Be Yet Stated.

Administration or Fusion Of Power a Conclusion as Ever, Says Minister Blair—Grand Trunk Pacific Project Seems to Stand First, but the Opposition Is Not Persistent in Endeavoring to Get a Statement of Policy Without Avail.

Ottawa, June 30.—Replying to Mr. Thompson of North Grey in the House yesterday, Mr. Prefontaine stated that during the past nine years the repairs on the steamer Dayfield amounted to $6,671. The steamer was sold in March to John Harrison of Owen Sound for $2,250.

Mr. Wilson was informed by the Minister of the Interior that $20,000 was advanced to the Doukhobors in 1899. None of the loan has been repaid. Interest at the rate of five per cent. will be charged, and it is intended to make the amount of charge against the homesteads of the persons mentioned.

Sir Richard Cartwright stated that the first inspector of binder twine appointed was Joseph L. Haycock. He will be employed most of the year. His traveling expenses are borne by the Government.

Deputy of Haldimand.

Mr. H. Bennor called attention to the reported appointment of C. W. Coulter, K.C., to the county judgeship of Haldimand. He said the question of appointing judges to the county in which they lived had been discussed before, and he asked the Government to state its policy in this respect.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that resolutions concerning county court judges would soon be brought before the House and the subject could be discussed then.

Deals With Cigarettes.

Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced a bill to amend the criminal code. He explained that the amendments related only to details in the criminal code and that no general principle was involved.

Mr. E. F. Clarke asked if the amendments bore any relation to the bill introduced by Senator Lougheed in the Senate. Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that his bill had been drawn up without any reference to the Lougheed bill.

Mr. Clarke—Does the bill deal with cigarettes?" asked Mr. Henderson of Halton.

"I may say," replied the Minister of Justice, "that there is a clause in the bill dealing with cigarettes."

Insurance Company's Stock.

The House went into committee on the bill respecting the Central Life Insurance Company. Mr. Walter Scott moved that subscribers to the stock of the company should be held liable for the balance of their shares notwithstanding the extension of time granted in the bill. He said the conditions under which the stock was subscribed might be changed by the legislation and he desired to safeguard their interests.

"You've been told," said Mr. Scott, "that if the extension is granted they will be pursued in the courts for the balance of their shares."

Mr. Morrison, who has the bill in charge, objected to the amendment, and his objection was sustained by the House.

Road to Cross the Trunk.

The bill to incorporate the Alliance Bank was read a second time.

The Grand Trunk Pacific.

The House went into committee on the bill guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway. Mr. Borden asked a statement of the Government's transportation policy so far as it affected the Canadian Northern west of Lake Superior. He said the House had not only to consider the Canadian Northern but also the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. "This bill," said Mr. Borden, referring to the Canadian Northern, "cannot be considered until we have a scheme of transportation. It extends from ocean to ocean. It will never do for a charter to the coast. We have a right to know whether the Government has made up its mind to leave the question of a transcontinental railway entirely in the hands of private individuals or companies aiding them, as many seem reasonable, or whether it is proposed to extend the Intercolonial Railway westward."

Deals With Legislation.

The Minister of Railways said that the question of aid to railways has no connection with a general transportation policy. The Canadian Northern had not been aided from the standpoint of a transcontinental road. It had never asked to be considered as a transcontinental project. "We want these lines to be built with all possible expedition," said Mr. Blair. "We want its transcontinental position as a position to finance the lines, and to that purpose we are aiding them."

Mr. Blair said that the construction of another road north of the Canadian Northern would in no way affect the lines that are being aided by a guarantee of bonds. He was not prepared to make a definite and final statement of the Government's policy on the Grand Trunk Pacific project. Therefore he would make no announcement at all. The Government, Mr. Blair declared, was anxious to take the House into its confidence, but it could not do so yet. He could not say whether Parliament would be asked to take action in the matter of the Grand Trunk Pacific this session or whether the consideration of the project would be deferred. He hoped to be able to make a statement in a few days.

Mr. Clarke said the Government should now announce some definite conclusion as to its transportation policy. He frankly told the House it had no policy to announce.

"I have nothing to add to the statement already made on this subject," Mr. Blair replied, "which is simply that the Government is not sufficiently matured its plans to lay them before Parliament."

Mr. Bell said that a condition precenting amalgamation with the C.P.R. existed in the original charter of the Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway, and in the Canadian Northern arrangement had Manitoba Government there was a stipulation for the holding amalgamation by the United States railway.

Mr. Blair insisted upon the advisability of inserting a clause to prevent amalgamation with an American railway.

Mr. Sifton Indicisive.

Mr. Sifton said he sympathized with Mr. Blair's desire to have Canadian products transported through Canadian channels. He had also agreed with Mr. Blair that the practical way to attain this was by a railway from the most advanced cageous route. He submitted that the Canadian Northern amalgamating with an American railway would not west through 50 miles of the State not subsidized, and would be longer than they was of the C.P.R. Railway amalgamating with an American line. Canadian products can run through part of the State of Maine to reach St. John.

Mr. Tarte, picking up a map, pointed to Duluth as the "most important grain shipping system in the world," and said that Duluth might be most likely worth while to buy the Canadian Northern and all its works at Port Arthur in order to increase the traffic at Duluth! "As for the C.P.R. route through Maine, most of us in Quebec, although we supported the Government on the whole, strongly objected to that part of the scheme," said Mr. Tarte, "and the hon. gentlemen will find that it was also a mistake. Why does he wish to reach it in Maine? Is it to Canadian Northern?"

Both Mr. Fielding and Mr. Sifton admitted that the clause forbidding amalgamation with the C.P.R. had no legal value, and they indicated the conditions under which the assistance was given.

After further discussion, the clause respecting control of the lines was held over.

Mr. Davis moved an amendment to clause seven that the Government should have power at any time to take over the lines upon which it guarantee of bonds.

Mr. Blair said he could not consent to this amendment until he had consulted with his colleagues. The clause was allowed to stand.

Railway Labor Disputes.

The amendments made by the Senate to the bill to aid in the settlement of railway labor disputes were considered. All these amendments Sir William Mulock endorsed, with the exception of the one providing that witnesses shall be paid for attending arbitration boards.

Money For Harbors.

The bill providing for further advances to the Harbor Commissioners of Board of Montreal was read a third time. Fielding informed the House that $3,748,514 had been advanced as a loan to the Harbor Commissioners of Three Rivers.

Railway Clerk's Superannuation.

After amendments by Sir William Mulock the House went into committee on the bill to amend the Post-office Act, but none of the clauses were amended when the committee rose and reported.

PROTECTION OF TOBACCO.

Government Will Increase Duty on the Important Article.

Ottawa, June 30.—Important regulations have been adopted by the Government for the protection of Canadian tobacco. At present foreign raw leaf pays an excise duty of 10 to 14 cents, and after the date of July foreign raw leaf tobacco will also pay the following rates: "Except when used in the manufacture of cigarettes, 24 cents per pound on unstemmed leaf and 28 cents per pound on stemmed; when taken for the manufacture of cigarettes 371 cents per pound on unstemmed leaf; and 35 cents per pound on stemmed, when taken for use in the manufacture of cigars 16 cents per pound on unstemmed leaf, and 23 cents per pound on stemmed."

Elizabethtpol, Transcaucasia, June 30.—A terrible explosion is reported to have occurred at Ensell, Province of Caiias, Persia, whereby 1,000 persons were killed.

MANY INDICATIONS OF WAR

Conflict Between Bulgaria and Turkey More Probable.

Situation in the Vilayet of Adrianople Is Very Grave—Villages Are Being Destroyed—Turkish Troops Allowed to Do Everything in Their Path—Serbian Raiders Active in the Vilayet of Monastir—War Loan Is Troubled.

London, June 30.—A despatch from Vienna to The Morning Leader says the situation in the vilayet of Adrianople is very grave. There are many indications that Bulgaria and Turkey regard an outbreak of war as a probable contingency. It is reliably stated that the Turkish authorities are organizing a regular persecution of the Bulgarian inhabitants, their villages being razed to the ground, and absolutely the Bulgarians being imprisoned on slight pretexts. The Turkish troops in the vilayet number 120,000.

MANCHURIA MAY CAUSE TROUBLE.

Japan Getting Excited and Russian Officials Called to Confer.

London, June 30.—According to the Tokio correspondent of the Times the excitement in Japan over the Manchurian problem is increasing. Many meetings have been held, at which hitherto advised a waiting policy, now the Japanese advocate resolute action by the Japanese Government.

Russian Minister's Sudden Summons.

Pekin, June 30. — The Russian Minister, M. Pavloff, has been suddenly summoned to a conference with Gen. Kuropatkin, Russian War Minister. Admiral Alexieff, in command of the Russian fleet in the Pacific, and Admiral Abaza, chief of the Russo-Chinese Bank at Pekin, and other officials. First Secretary Hoshing Russia's position in Manchuria. M. Lemar leaves here July 1.

Extending Chinese Rebels.

Washington, June 30.— The State Department has received the following cablegram from United States Consul McWade at Canton: Viceroy has declared war. War of extermination against the alleged rebels in Kwang Hsi and Kwang Tung. No temporary headquarters. Disturbers will receive no mercy.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

London.—The Times correspondent at Pekin says it is announced that the ratification of the commercial treaty between China and Great Britain is in its way to Pekin.

Berlin.—The new Reichstag is composed of: Clerical, 102; Socialists, 81; Conservatives, 52; National Liberals, 51, and other parties represented by from one to 21 members.

Belleville.—A boy named Monahan, while playing on the logs in the river here, had his legs caught between two logs, and before he could be rescued his leg had been broken and the flesh badly lacerated.

The Slyvanus Sea Serpent.

Southampton, June 30.—Sunday some persons were walking along the beach a short distance from here when their attention was attracted to a veritable monster of the deep, which was plainly to be seen near the shore, twisting and squirming, and again gracefully sailing along the glassy surface, evidently fully enjoying the cool and limpid waters of Lake Huron. The story is vouched for by responsible persons, who say the reptile was at least 60 feet in length.

On a Serious Charge.

Collingwood, June 30.—Benjamin Johnson, a deck hand on the steamer Britannia, about forty years of age, was arrested yesterday morning by Chief Wilde and Constable Best on the charge of attempted rape on the little daughter of Mr. Ayre, Caledonia. Johnson is in the well protected in town, having lived here all his life. He has a wife who is at present in the asylum. Johnson will appear before Police Magistrate Nettleton today at 10.30 a.m.

Memorial to Boscawen.

London, June 30.—An influential meeting took place at the Mansion House yesterday, to determine the erection of a memorial to Sir Henry Boscawen, the English inventor, to which Andrew Carnegie recently promised £1,000 as a practical subscription. It was resolved that the memorial take the form of a complete equipment for the study of teaching and research works, to be located in London.

More Murder Suspects Arrested.

Wingham, June 30.—Two tramps were arrested here yesterday answering the description of a white man and a mulatto, yesterday afternoon. Their stories were so conflicting that no definite conclusion can yet be drawn. They admit being in the County of Grey the week ago, and also being near Brockville since.

Drowned at Regina.

Regina, June 30.— Wm. Trainor was drowned in the reservoir here on Friday morning. He and a companion went to swim and when Trainor reached shore, and looking saw Trainor sink.

The Proof is in the Eating.

People have been talked to so much about what they should eat for breakfast that mere words have lost their value. The real test of a food is found in the numbers who continue to use it after they have given it a fair test.

Malta-Vita

is so deliciously appetizing that one single trial is all that is asked for it. The people have found out that it is easier to digest than the raw meal foods insufficiently cooked, that it makes one feel brighter and more ready for work, and that it is more convenient to use.

No Work. No Heat. Just Cream. Then Eat

and after that—well, all other breakfast foods are forgotten.

NORTH GREY PETITION.

Declared to Be Valid—The Election Trial May Now Proceed.

Toronto, June 30.—The appeal against the judgment dismissing the North Grey election petition was allowed by the full Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning. The decision is frankly that of the Liberals had been for dismissal of the petition on the ground that it had not been filed with the registrar within the time fixed by law. This technicality, the petition was dismissed. The Court of Appeal, however, held that leave should have been given, under the circumstances, to file the petition after the time for registration of the stated time for filing petitions had expired. The time for filing petitions should be extended.

WORMS ATTACK CROPS.

Column Nearly Three Miles Long and and 150 Yards Wide.

Tecuma, Wash., June 30.—Mighty hosts of army worms, in a solid column 150 yards wide and nearly three miles long, are marching through Walla Walla County. The origin of the worms, which have never been seen here before, is not known. Growing grain and vegetables are being denuded. The worms are from one-half a half to two inches long, and are brown and dusky, like caterpillars. The ranchers are alarmed for their garden truck and wheat.

170 WERE KILLED.

In the Railway Wreck at Bilbao, Spain, on Saturday.

Madrid, June 30.—By midnight one hundred bodies had been extricated from the wreck of the Bilbao train which was overturned Saturday night from a bridge into the Nelperia River, and it is estimated that seventy corpses remain in the wreckage. The bodies are horribly mutilated, headless, and limbs being separated from their trunks.

Petition to Release Miller.

New York City, June 30.— Col. Asmun, fiscal agent of receiving $30,000 of the proceeds of the infamous Miller lottery, for which Miller was sentenced to four years imprisonment.

District-Attorney Jerome has instructed Assistant District Attorney Nott to prepare a petition to Governor Odell, asking for executive clemency in Miller's case, on the ground that Miller has tendered valuable services to the State in testifying against Asmun, and also that he is very ill.

Favors Independent News Service.

Ottawa, June 30.—Evidence of disappointing results of the operation of the Pacific cable, says Sir Sandford Fleming, are overdrawn. The fact is that the receipts for the past month are quite up to the estimate of revenue upon which the financial factor of the undertaking was based. Sir Sandford urges strongly in favor of the establishment of an independent British-Canadian news service assisted by the Government.

Lightning Struck Tammany Hall.

New York, June 30.—Lightning struck the flagstaff on the roof of the new building of the Bank of the Metropolis in Union Square yesterday, tearing a large hole in the roof and causing a panic among the clerks in the various offices in the building. Lightning also struck Tammany Hall, but the damage to the building was trifling. The rain storm was one of the heaviest of the season.

THE KING COMMANDS ADMIRALTY.

The following laurel wreath is placed on the alabaster brow of King Edward by the Buffalo Express:—

"Honour, or later ideas will have upon the world that a new influence for peace and calculated to lessen the chances of wars. When Edward VII. ascended the throne of Great Britain it was then that concessions were offered to the Boers, bringing about peace in South Africa. For a few months the campaign of opposition in Ireland was kept up, and then suddenly there was a complete shake, so startling that it startled both Irishmen and Englishmen. In place of the enforcement of the Crimes Act came the proposal of the land-purchase bill. Then there was a Royal visit to France and an end of the international blustering between London and Paris."

A Canadian contemporary suggests that there seems to be some danger that our neighbors may try to steal our King and make him President of the United States. We loyal and patriotic subjects pray for a very different fate from that.

THE PROMISED FAST LINE.

Those who imagined that the negotiations for a fast Atlantic service would result in anything will be disappointed. The Government has announced that neither of the tenders received for such a line will be accepted. This is largely due to the impracticable conditions imposed by steamship owners, who were invited to bid for a service which would be neither fast or slow. The abandonment of the scheme marks the third failure on the part of the present federal Government to grapple with the question. An excellent offer to operate a fast, small carrier service, by the Canada, was received from the Allans in 1900, and all that was necessary to make this agreement was the consent of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The opportunity was allowed to pass. A couple of years later a contract was given to the Allans for a service which we are up against another fiasco. In 1901 the steamers carrying Canadian and American mails averaged 11 1-20 knots per hour, and 12 7-30 knots per hour on their western mail evasion voyages respectively. The speed of this service will in no way be the same fix, which means that we are quite dependent upon the United States for the transaction of our mail business. If the Government had displayed ordinary intelligence seven years ago, Canada would now have a fast service going to Liverpool and not to Portland, but there is no clause in it authorizing the Council to reconsider its action.

Ald. McFee will keep on pegging away at that forfeit money, till some fine evening he will succeed in having it withdrawn.

Ald. Pope ever receives the honor of knighthood he should certainly be known as a Knight of the Bath.

Three hundred appeals against the assessment would make it appear that there was a little dissatisfaction.

We agree with Ald. Hoyes that the Council should do everything in reason to advance the interests of St. Agnes' School, which will be an excellent thing for Belleville in more ways than one.

Two Court of Revision jokes are related, One party appealed against his assessment on income, and found, when he appeared before the Court, that he was not assessed on income at all. Another party appealed against his assessment, and proved his property assessment of $1,500. He would not object to $1,000 and found, when before the Court, that his actual assessment was $850.

"Christ has arisen; let us embrace, kiss and exhort kill the Czar." Such was the Easter-tide greeting circulated in some of Russia's cities. How would you like to live in 'a country like that?

THIS IS OUTRAGEOUS.

The wife of a Wichita man makes him wear tartar tucks in the sleeves of his nightgown, trimmed with pink ribbon, so that the baby won't know the difference when he walks the floor with it at night. Ain't it a shame?

Sir Gilbert and Lady Parker have sent another cheque for $100 to the Belleville Public Library, the same being received this morning in Pontoon. This makes the sixth year in succession the donation has been received. Though lately ensconced in the Seats of the Mighty, Parker does not forget His People, nor will they fail to remember his generosity with gratitude or his brilliant talents with pride.

Col. Ponton shows us a very letter he received from that "Broth of a Boy," John McNair, whose name will not soon be forgotten in Belleville. "Jack" is at Lorenzo Marques, where there is quite a Belleville colony, including Messrs. Weller, Mills, Barker et al. Times are good, money plentiful and excitement never falling. There are ball fights on Sundays, bloodless, padded-boxing affairs, however, and very little religion or politics to make men love or hate each other. He went to church on Good Friday to see the Portuguese hang Judas, and the incident had to be repeated three times to satisfy the camera fiends. Lorenzo Marques, "Jack" says, is the healthiest part of South Africa; in fact he has been so busy since he has been there that he has not had time to catch the fever. The Bellevillite cobbery he says, are sanctified to know if the old dailies had yet been made presentable, and threaten to send over a subscription if it has not. The letter ends with a suggestive sentence: "To-morrow is salary day, and the Bay of Quinte Club will not adjourn till late in the evening." Nuff sed!

HON. JOS. CHAMBERLAIN EXPRESSES HIS THANKS.

AND IS MUCH INTERESTED IN THE RESOLUTIONS TO BE SUBMITTED ON BEHALF OF THE BELLEVILLE BOARD OF TRADE.

The following letters explain themselves:

Belleville, May 30th, 1903.

The Right Honourable Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary, London;

Sir,—As one of the representatives of the Belleville Board of Trade appointed to attend the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of Montreal in August next, permit me to enclose to you a copy of the resolutions which we have suggested for the agenda of the Congress and which we will, there, move. I venture to submit these to you, as tending to show public opinion in one very loyal part of His Majesty's Dominions beyond the seas and at the same time to express our appreciation of the great personal and inspiring interest which you evince towards all parts of this extensive and progressive Empire.

I have the honor to be,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) W. N. PONTON.

Colonial Office,
London, England,
15th June, 1903.

To W. N. Ponton, Esq.,

Dear Sir,—I am desired by Mr. Chamberlain to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of May 30th, and to express to you his thanks for your courtesy in sending to him copies of the resolutions you intend to put forward at the Congress of Chambers of Commerce to be held in Montreal in August next. He has read the resolutions with much interest.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT BROMLEY.

SHAKY NERVES.

SUFFERERS FROM NERVOUS TROUBLES ARE IN A STATE OF CONTINUOUS TORTURE — SUGGESTIONS AS TO HOW THIS TROUBLE CAN BE OVERCOME.

When your nerves are shaky your self-control is shattered—your will power is broken. Sudden sounds startle you; your temper is irritable; your hand trembles; there is pain in your knees; you are restless at night and, either when you wake or if you recede from nervous exhaustion, perhaps due to overwork and worry, you have hot days and sweat at blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People make new, rich, red blood. They brace up jangled nerves and strengthen tired backs. They give health and energy to dull, weary, despondent men and women. Positive proof is offered by the case of Mrs. Wm. Westcott, of Canford, Pictou Co., N.S. "For a long time my health was in a bad state, I was subject to headache, dizziness and nervous exhaustion. My appetite was poor, and I had no energy. I could not stand the least exertion. I tried several medicines and consulted different doctors, but they did not help me any. One of my neighbors strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had used them was finished on turning point for the better had been reached, and by the time I had taken a half dozen boxes to the surprise of my friends and neighbors I was again enjoying good health, and have since been strong and well. I do not know anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down."

What the pills have done for others they will do for you if you will give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers, or each post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Halifax Wedding.

The marriage took place Wednesday morning at St. Paul's Church, Halifax, of Flavie Edmund Sillick, son of Dr. C. S. Sillick, Toronto, late of this city, to Annie Lee Mahon, only daughter of the late Edward P. Mahon. The rector, Rev. Hen. Wi. J. Armitage, M.A., officiated, and the bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Harry Mahon. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sillick took train for Quebec, whence they sail for England, expecting to be absent some months.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason you you should wear pants there is every reason why you should buy them of Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes to them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 200 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into lots at $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

The Melrose Oil Well.

BROCK'S MACHINERY HAS FAILED. A SUSPENSION OF DRILLING.

Operations at the Melrose oil well have been stationary for the past two weeks, caused by the fact that the steel "Derrick" intended to the drill broke, and the drill and sand pump are now at the bottom of the well. Mr. Brock has been waiting for a month to release them clothing else can be done. It is expected that the tool in question will be procured to-day or to-morrow. The excitement has been considerably discouraged by the accident, but things look brighter now, and they will not let this interest lie dormant. Drilling operations will be resumed. There is a strong odor of petroleum around the derrick, and gushes before considerable quantity that oil will be found before long. The well is now down 1700 feet.

NICE COOL CLOTHING.

We will have plenty of hot weather, don't get alarmed about that, it may have been a little late coming, but it's here now, and we have suitable clothing. Our Hall summer clothing is ready for your inspection, and you won't find any fault with the price.

Sunshine Furnace.
REGULATED LIKE A WATCH.
"Sunshine" dampers are so ingeniously arranged and control the fire so perfectly that the consumption of fuel can be regulated almost as accurately as a watch—the operator knows just what time a certain quantity of coal will retain fire and the degree of heat it will produce.
All parts of "Sunshine" furnaces are mechanically correct—the castings are clean and extra heavy, while the steel used in the dome is of the finest quality and is specially made for the "Sunshine" furnace.
Every detailed feature in the "Sunshine" has its purpose, and all combine to produce the most heat from the fuel consumed and distribute it without waste.

AMUSING CHILDREN.

Some Clever Ways of Entertaining Children's Visitors.

When I was a little girl oranges and raisins were great luxuries in the town where I lived. I hardly ever had an orange unless I was ill, writes Elizabeth Robinson in Harper's Bazar. I remember having some nice oranges when I had the measles and my little brother and sister standing beside my bed and wishing that they had the measles, too, so that they could have nice things like Betsy.

We never had food lemonade when I was ever wished it on hot summer days, as people do now; but we had a luxury, too, and we very seldom saw that, except in the winter; then it was so cold that grated maple sugar would be served like frost in the house over night, and we didn't want ice at all. It was quite grown up to believe ever to see a banana, and I never learned to like them, and when I was little I liked fairly eating great big bananas oils after another as fast as they can, it seems to them.

But when I was a little girl we had many kinds of apples on our place, and I could eat just as many as I wanted every day all winter, and there were some that got sweeter and sweeter in autumn, too. I can't think of all the names now, but some that you may not find to-day were called "pound sweets," because they weighed a pound apiece; and there were some others that were called "maple sweets," and we had some funny little apples that we called "bells of Ayer," and some long formed dark red ones that we called "pipe noses."

We children used to do a great many things with apples. We liked to tie them by their stems on short strings and hand them before the open fire to roast; we kept them twirling round and round, and pretty soon they were all soft and juicy, and how nice they were to eat then!

Sometimes we saved with a strong thread all around the apples just under the skin, getting the needle into the same hole it came out of each time, and having the two ends of the thread long when out of the last hole, then we held the ends together and pulled very hard till the thread came out; this cut the apple in two under the skin, and we would give it to some one to eat, and when he ate it we appeared it fell apart, and was a fine surprise "surprise apples" we called them.

Sometimes we took small apples and cut little holes in them, and after they made nice spicy smelling balls to put in bureau drawers, but they were not good to eat. We liked better to make what we called "cider apples;" we would each take a big "growing" apple and go out of doors and pound the apple against the side of the house until it was very soft all over, being careful not to break the skin. When the apple was just as soft as could be we made a small hole in it and could suck out all the apple but a little about the core.

Then we generally ate some of the core, too, and if the seeds were ripe fat ones, we dried them and played with them. You see we did not have any playthings as children have now, so we made the most we could of what we had. Then we had what we called "jack with. We sewed the seeds edgewise on cards for miss making the tails of scarfs with fine brown cotton; sometimes we put on the card a tiny little bit stuffed with sawdust to look like meal, and had the apple seed miss feeding it, and some of them toting up on the bag.

Handball with a Dog.

This game is a very good one for a rainy day, but should not be used in the house where there are no ornaments to be knocked over and broken. It is even better to be out of doors, but then there are sometimes rainy days out of doors, when the weather is clear and the other little boys and girls can go out and play as usual.

A small, solid rubber ball is the best to use, but an old glove stuffed very full of rags and woolen tightly with twine will do very well.

Show the ball to the dog and then roll it on the floor one or two times. He will run after it at once every time. Then throw the ball out of the room so that it will bounce low enough for he dog to catch it in his mouth. After he has done this over and over he will be so pleased at his success that he'll run hardly wait for you to throw it again. Now the real game commences. You must strike the ball with the open hand and so that it will come back from the floor low enough for you to just hit enough for you to strike it and knock it against the wall again. This is not at all easy, as you will find out when you try it, for the dog will jump for the ball and strike it so balls that you had no idea he could reach; besides, the ball will frequently bound back so near the ground that he can get it a great deal quicker than you can. In fact, if the dog is large he will beat you every time.

When the dog strikes the ball without catching it he scores a foul, but he scores score him one point. When you strike the ball without its touching it against the wall you count a foul and three fouls score you one point.

PLATONIC FRIENDSHIP.
Something Which, in Its Modern Sense, Plato Never Understood.
The name "platonic" is not very accurately used when it is employed to denote the friendship of a man and a woman into which there enters no trace of amatory sentiment. Plato in various treatises, especially the "Symposium" and the "Symposium," speaks indeed of a love which is free from sensuousness, being the love of soul for soul, but Plato, whose spirit was tinged with asceticism, was not framing of woman at all, and in general what he says upon this theme refers wholly to the affection of man for man, of the binding force of high character and honor. He goes so far as to say that the true lover is to be compared with the true philosopher, rising from the contemplation of the many who are beautiful to the contemplation and love of the beauty that is abstract and absolute. In fact, when he discusses "beauty" he uses the word almost as the equivalent of "goodness" —that is, in an ethical rather than in a physical sense. Therefore "platonic friendship" in its modern conventional meaning is something which never entered Plato's mind. "Platonic Friendship," in Cosmopolitan.

Making an Impression.
A Virginia lawyer was talking of negroes and their love of making impressions. He called attention to the well known fact that negroes, as a rule, when paying for a ten cent purchase, will deliberately count out a large number of bills though they have the ten cent piece in another pocket.
The senator told the story of a negro who saw an advertisement which read, "Prunes, exactly like cut, $6.75." On the trunk appeared in large figures "$6.75." As the negro contemplated a trip through the north he forwarded the money for a trunk. When the trunk arrived the colored man was very much puzzled. The figures were missing from its side. He returned the trunk, demanding his money back because of the important omission.
The trunk firm saw the point, admitted its error and by way of making amends agreed to paint an additional figure. When the trunk arrived the second time the negro was satisfied. On its side, in glaring colors, were the figures "$16.75."

Strictly Sarcasm.
"My brethren," said Dean Swift in a sermon, "there are three sorts of pride—for them, of which and of which I shall not now speak of the latter, those of you that are being liable to that abominable vice."

Curiosity is looking over other's people's affairs and overlooking our own.—Wayland.

TIMELY TOPICS.

To-morrow Miss Canada will celebrate another birthday, and, counting from the date of Confederation, will be 36 years of age.

Things have gone well with this fair Dominion in recent years, thanks to the untiring efforts of the great administrative leaders of days gone by. (t is well, on a national holiday like to-morrow, to reflect upon what we are and what we might have been had Sir John A. Macdonald listened to the voices of, the Grits and fattened in his great work of protecting Canada' industries and building the Canadian Pacific Railway. To those two things, more than anything else, this country owes to-day her unexampled prosperity, so to-morrow, when you arise in your might and prepare to ride away to a picnic or excursion, and get time to reflect on what a goodly pleasant land you live in, don't forget to thank the Giver of All Good for His beneficence in stocking Canada with everything that makes a nation wealthy, including hard-headed men who know how to lay the foundation for a great and glorious future.

It is unfortunate in many ways that Dominion Day is not celebrated in Belleville as it should be and used to be. Time was when the great people of this city puffed their hats to nobody in the matter of providing recreation and amusement for their citizens on high days and holidays. Alas! and alack-a-day. The old men and women have gone, and the old Canadians with them. The younger, judging by present indications, promises to be about as lively as a Quaker meeting. Instillations of boss systems crave amusement and recreation will tear away to Nepanee, Picton, Thrasher's, Corbett's, Wellington or some other metropolitan centre which has enterprise enough to celebrate Canada's birthday in proper style, and much that Belleville enjoy, which should stay here, will find its way into the tills and pockets of other people. Such is life, but it's a pity!

So far the Court of Revision has knocked off the assessment the tidy sum of some $65,000. And the end is not yet. Not by a long shot!

Acting Mayor Panter is having the time of his life. It is said pretty he likes his new position so well that he is thinking of offering Mayor Graham a bonus to stay away.

June drops out to-day, but then a bride in any other month is just as sweet.

A Lasting Cure Of Itching Plies

A CHRONIC CASE OF UNUSUAL SEVERITY AND LONG STANDING CURED BY DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mr. Alex. McLaughlin, for 30 years a resident of Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"For twenty long years I suffered from itching piles, and, although those who have been troubled with that annoying disease can imagine what I endured during that time. About seven years ago I asked a druggist if he had anything to cure me. He said that Dr. Chase's Ointment was the most favorably known of, and on his recommendation I took a box. Before using it I was terribly afflicted, but after the first application I felt better, and by the time I had used one box I was on a fair way to a complete cure. I continued the treatment until thoroughly cured, and I have not suffered any since. I am, gladly, willing that the ointment made a perfect cure."

"I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment as invaluable as a treatment for piles. In my case I think the case was remarkable, when you consider that I suffered as long as I did, and had been so long a sufferer from this disease." Mr. H. Bull, Belleville, Ont., says: "I take pleasure in stating that after 12 years of suffering with itching piles, Dr. Chase's Ointment has perfectly cured me. I had tried many remedies that was advertised with little or no benefit, but as I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment only one box, Dr. Chase's Ointment made a perfect cure."

THE MARKETS.

Grain Markets Are Easier—Wheat Lower in Liverpool and Chicago—Live Stock Unchanged.

The Intelligencer, Tuesday Morning, June 30.

Liverpool wheat futures today are 1d lower. Corn futures are 1d lower and cash 1d to 2d lower.

At Chicago wheat futures today are 1c lower. Corn futures are 1c lower.

At Chicago to-day July wheat closed 1c lower than yesterday, and the May closed July oats 1c lower.

WORLD'S VISIBLE SUPPLY.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada has increased 1,000,000 bushels; corn 1,000,000 bushels; oats 1,000,000 bushels, and barley 250,000 bushels. Following is a comparative statement of the world's visible supply of breadstuffs and the corresponding week one year ago:

	June 29, 1903.	June 30, 1902.
Wheat, bus.	58,300,000	52,750,000
Corn, bus.	4,850,000	4,177,000
Oats, bus.	4,850,000	4,177,000
Barley, bus.	1,250,000	1,000,000

The total visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat for Europe, is 49,000,000 bushels, against 39,000,000 bushels a week ago and 42,000,000 bushels one year ago.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—American and Canadian Prices Show Same Tendency.

London, June 30.—Live cattle are 12½c to 13½c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 12½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9½c per lb.; sheep, 16½c to 18c.

For the Farmer.

In all breeds of poultry it is the largest females which will produce the largest offspring; hence if you want to increase the individual size of the flock select eggs laid by the largest hens. The same rule holds good in regard to egg-producing qualities; if you want better laying pullets select the eggs for setting from the best laying hens. It pays to follow the laws of breeding, and to use as much care in selecting fowl as in buying fruit trees, farm implements or a horse.

No experiment station can make a fair and reliable comparison between the general purpose cow and the specialty dairy cow covering a brief period by figures only. It is what a herd of general purpose animals will do for their owner through a series of years that proves their value. It is the income from a herd in the form of calves, growth, animals sold, milk, meat—all considered that gives value to the general purpose herd. No limited experiment can measure the value of these several parts of one common whole in a short time.

The recent rains have greatly improved the crop outlook in this Province and the west. In the Province of Quebec the prolonged drouth has had a very unfavorable effect on the growth of hay and grain. In Ontario up to the first week of the month rain was badly needed, but the moisture that has come since that has greatly improved the condition of the growing crops. In Manitoba and the west there has been a steady improvement in crop conditions, and the present outlook is exceedingly promising for another bountiful harvest.

Sheep Prospects in Canada.

The Farmers' Advocates writes in respect to the sheep industry :—"Now is their opportunity" (referring to the flock owners) "for selection and improvement; so as to be ready for the upward turn of the tide when it comes. Indeed, it appears to be close at hand. The demand for mutton continues to grow, and it is quite certain that its limit will not be reached yet awhile. Since breeders may, we feel sure, look forward with confidence." It is quite certain that Canadian breeders will be far better and larger customers for our stud rams when the demand for their own stock is an increasing one. Then the prospects for the demand during the coming season from Canada are probably better than they have been for some time past. Despite all the drawbacks which the sheep industry has to contend with in that colony, it ranks very high amongst the different sections of the Australian agricultural interest, and bids fair to become quite as important as it is at home. No matter what breeders of other varieties of live stock may say, there is no question that the key to successful farming is the same abroad as at home, namely the maintenance upon every holding of a flock of sheep, either breeding or otherwise, as the character of the holding may determine. The profit and benefit arising from sheep breeding and feeding is certainly larger and more general than from any other variety of live stock.—Farmer and Stockbreeder, London, Eng.

Broody Hens.

Very soon broody hens will be getting rather plentiful in many yards, and a few hints as to the best method of dealing with them will no doubt be acceptable. In the first place, it is decidedly natural for hens to desire incubating varieties to develop their natural propensities during the warm season whenever a batch of eggs is laid. This propensity may be very persistent or the reverse, according to the type to which the hen belongs. Cochins, Brahmas, Indian Game, Malays, Langshans, and Buff Orpingtons are decidedly such as the Buff Orpingtons, Buff Rocks, Buff Wyandottes, are very liable to become frequent sitters during warm weather, but it is very rare to find any of the fit than birds with a milder tendency to sit, and these will generally get rather fat and heavy are also rather difficult to break from sitting if they do sit, while to keep incubating varieties to keep them only in fair condition during the spring and summer. They will lay all the better in consequence. However if a hen becomes broody she should be kept away from the nest for a couple of days, a preference put in a coop with a square bottom in the middle of the yard. The floor should be of wire netting two inches from the ground, and about two and one-quarter inches between the spars. When a hen is placed inside she does not feel in a comfortable position. Her overpowering tendency is to sit, and to sit well, while she is forced to stand, and to stand upon a hard and uncomfortable surface. Very little time will she sit on it, and in her continued anxiety to secure more comfort outside the broody coop she is forgotten. One feverish desire conquers another. This proceeding is not in the least degree cruel, and the bird quickly returns to laying again.

During the period of confinement food should be supplied sparingly, and of a kind which does not heat or stimulate. Broody hens drink a lot of water, owing to their feverish condition, and a little Epsom salts put in the drinking water daily greatly helps the cool them down and break up the broody fit. A plentiful supply of green food should be given. It should be chopped up finely, and placed in a vessel at the side of the coop.

The company of a vigorous cockerel in a strange run sometimes cures fits quickly as the broody coop. This is not always available, however.—E. G., in London (Eng.), Farm and Stockbreeder.

Many a man who does tat fight thing on his wife's advice takes the credit unto himself an' wonders if the neighbors ever realize what a genius dwells in their midst.—Reflections of Uncle Ike.

Business vs. Biliousness.

The man who is subject to biliousness cannot attend to business—biliousness demands all his attention. Biliousness arises from the retention of waste and foreign matter in the system, natures drainage being clogged.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

goes to the root of the trouble and eradicates the cause—persuades the stomach and bowels, in a gentle but insistent manner, into healthy action, Abbey's clears the bile from the system in nature's own way, bringing health, a clear head, a clean stomach and energy for work.

Mainly About People.

In pronouncing sentence, a Scotch judge once added: "Ye did not only kill and murder the man, and thereby take away his valuable life, but ye did push, thrust or compel the lethal weapon through the bellyband of his regimental trowers, which were the property of His Majesty."

J. Pierpont Morgan was showing some friends through his kennels the other day, and one of them expressed great admiration for an imported setter. "Yes, he's a fine dog. His name is Russell Sage." "How did you come to give him that name?" "Well, he never loses a scent."

Curran said to Father O'Leary, the wittiest priest of his day, "I wish you were St. Peter." "Why?" asked O'Leary. "Because," said Curran, "you would have the keys of heaven, and could let me in." "It would be better for you," said O'Leary, "that I had the keys of the other place." "Why?" asked Curran. "Well, then I could let you out."

Secretary Hay's poem, "Little Breeches" was frequently attributed to the late Bret Harte. A young lady once said to him: "I am highly pleased to meet you, Mr. Harte. I have read all your poems, but I have enjoyed 'Little Breecher' the most." "Pardon me, madam," Harte is said to have replied, "but you have put the 'Little Breecher' on the wrong ma."

On one of his later birthday anniversaries, United States Senator Hear wrote to William M. Evarts and congratulated him upon the length of years. In his reply, the aged lawyer said it brought to mind an old toast in New England, who had occasion to refer to a friend about some matter of trifling importance, and when she had reached the end of the friend's age expressed in the fact that she had been rather diffuse, and added: "Excuse me for my superfluity."

Samuel Foote, the English actor, was one day invited to a new mansion by a club where he was a stranger. Left alone a minute, he did not perceive at once, Lord Carmarthen, wishing to relieve his embarrassment, went up to speak to him, but became embarrassed himself and could only say: "Mr. Foote, your humble servant, I imagine out of your pocket." Whereupon Foote, looking around with playful assurance, and hurriedly thrusting his handkerchief back into his pocket, replied: "Thank you, my lord, thank you; you know the company better than I do."

At one of the great London hospitals a cold storage chamber was being constructed in connection with the post-mortem room, and the secretary of the hospital, on going to see how matters were progressing, found that the chamber was being fitted with double doors instead of the small ordinary ones in one large door. He made enquiries as to the reason for the deviation from the original plan, when the chief assistant, who was superintending the work, replied: "Oh, sir, we are putting in double doors and double partition in order to keep the sexes apart!"

It is only the framing of a picture you may see shall have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, andproper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and calsomining at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed material.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

For the Revelsworth Millions, or AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fall by the Man She Loves.

...ness, and talked about Arthur dying, and Ivan and Rube being ill—it. "Surely she did not connect me with that!"

She seemed to say it! Was all of a piece, and dogs having had bad dreams—too, and her having had bad dreams—too. Then she spoke so low I could not hear. Still I made out she'd dreamed of she'd seen a ghost a night or two ago, all in yellow brocade, like the curtains in the haunted room.

"What an extraordinary idea!" exclaimed Miss Revelsworth, with a forced laugh, for the notion evidently amused her.

"Yes, miss. She said she'd heard it in the rustling about; but she could not think night-light trying to get at the matches. Some one was playing a trick on her, she said or else she was breaking up."

"Breaking up! Were those her exact words?"

"Yes miss. But I've heard the ghost too!"

He was glancing up at her sideways as he spoke, with a look of frightened admiration. Francesca looked down at him steadily.

"How can that be," she asked, "when it is you who have been playing this ghost-trick? Have you forgotten that I caught you at it on the very first night I spent in the house?"

"Not at!" returned Joseph undaunted, stiffly. "Nor I'm not likely to forget it either, if I live to be a hun...d. I thought it was an angel or a fairy or a ghost or something, when I come softly tip-toeing the stairs after me, all golden hair and white and yellow brocade and—and a flute! I was 'alf dead with fright. But it's not me ghost-playing now, miss."

"Who is it, then?" inquired Francesca, sternly. "Is it some mischievous boy friend of yours?"

"For shame!" Joseph drew from his pocket a slip of tissue-paper, which he carefully unfolded, exposing to view a strip of dark yellow brocade about three inches long. "This he held out in silence for Francesca's inspection.

The color rushed into Miss Revelsworth's face.

"Well," she said quietly, as she took the silk from his hand, "what of it?"

"I got it out of your work-basket under the embroidery-frame in your own room."

"Very possibly. I often embroider on brocade. But why have you kept it?"

The boy looked at her hard clearly taken aback by her coolness.

"—I liked the color," he stammered, holding out his hand for the silk.

But Francesca coolly slipped it into her pocket.

"It belongs to me," she said, "and I may want it for my work. I shall be angry with you, Joseph, if you tried to sticking my things about; and, although I am very kind, I should advise you not to offend me. I have shielded you so far about the ghost trick and about the dogs; but, if I find you interfering with our affairs, I may not be so kind for the future."

Joseph stared at her open-mouthed. "About the ghost-trick and about the dogs!" he exclaimed. "Well, I like that—I do!"

At the sudden familiarity of his tone, Francesca drew herself up to her full height and, with a grave air such a scornful look that Joseph quailed beneath it.

"Have you anything more to say that will interest me?" she inquired icily. "We are at the gates now. I do not wish to be seen returning with you, and I am not concerned with your likes or dislike."

"I beg your pardon, miss," the lad murmured in abject tones, tears starting to his eyes at the contempt in her voice and manner. "I'd do anything for you, miss—I would indeed! And if hats ever send in that house except Miss Mannington. As to father and mother, old and ugly as they are to us children, you may do what you like to them."

"I may do what I like to them! I don't understand you!"

"I only mean I don't care what happens to them, nor to those beastly dogs either. I'm sick of the sight of 'em by this lot; and I hate those young gentlemen too, with their boots and their books and always wants polishing and that Frenchman's laughing, and Mr. Dudley's always jawing about his change and his cigarettes! I hate 'em all, and—"

"But all this does not concern me, Joseph."

"But what's coming does," the lad said eagerly, pausing under the tree outside the gates. "Mrs. Revelsworth she says as you're to be married to Mr. Victor next spring; on with boffy young gentlemen as once, and send you slipping it back into the Frenchman's hands. Then Miss Betty, she spoke up for you, but she always does; but the old 'un she says, 'Don't tell me,' says she; 'I don't believe she's a governess at all; and I must be particular, because, if I die to-night, she says, 'all the Revelsworth money would go between the three—Dudley and Victor and Francesca, only Dudley will get the most. But,' says she, 'I have written to a friend who's been all his life in Rome, and asked him to find out all about Francesca and her old witch—pardon, sir. And, if he can't find it out,' she says, 'I'll employ a detective.' And, if she has, I would be, I send for Simpson and change my will and cut off her, or Victor either, when that marries her, Dudley or Victor, with next to nothing at all."

As the boy told Francesca all this in low rapid tones, his sharp eyes, fixed upon her face, saw every trace of color die out of it and leave it as white—gray. For a few moments she stood beside him in perfect silence, drawing her breath hard, gazing with unseeing eyes before her. Lost in thought, she had clearly forgotten his presence; and Joseph, alarmed at the effect produced by his intelligence, was wondering how he should recall her to herself, when the sound of voices, chiming out from the stable-clock of Revelsworth House across the Green, reminded Francesca of his intolerable presence.

She laid her hand on Joseph's shoulder.

"I must run to the house to be in time for dinner," she said. "Listen, Joseph. You are a good boy; I like you and trust you; and I know that you are my friend. Wait here a few minutes, then go to the house and straight up to my master's room. Knock at the door, and wait to hear is she will let you in. If she says you come from me, then repeat to her just exactly what you have told me about Miss Betty, without leaving out one word!"

A moment later, gathering up her silk skirts, Francesca ran swiftly until she reached the shelter of her aunt's house, just three minutes late for dinner.

It was quite impossible to glean from her manner that she divined her aunt's hostile sentiments towards her; for she was unusually flushed, and looked more beautiful than ever—a fact which Dudley and Victor naturally attributed to the exciting nature of his recent interview with Mr. Revelsworth. Even Miss Betty at once she always showed characterised the change as "odd" and asserted her aunt's sharp-toned queries as to the cause of her late appearance with ready mendacity.

"I am so sorry sorry, aunt Margaret! I didn't quite estimate how long it would take me to get home from the garden. Where's papa? I was sitting thinking under the trees—"

"And Dudley sitting thinking' sarcastically. "He at least contrived to be at table in time."

"He left me in the garden before I did, that he might dress for dinner and not keep you waiting," answered Francesca. "But, as Betty and I had our new silk frocks on, I thought we need not change then."

"I understood you were anxious to go to Dudley and other boats."

"I don't think we would have time before dinner," Francesca was beginning, when Dudley, who was not in the room when she spoke, struck in their" came to her rescue.

"And, besides," he said, "we were so much interested in our conversation that we forgot all about everything else."

Mrs. Revelsworth frowned at him sharply and gave a grunt of indignation.

"Love making, I suppose!" she suggested, in a hard caustic voice.

"Love making, Dudley, piqued by manner; "I suppose that is what you would call it, aunt."

The rest of the meal passed off very uncomfortably. The tone of half-veiled defiance which Dudley had assumed angered Mrs. Revelsworth greatly, coming as he did from her favorite nephew's wife to little Betty this open avowal of tender passion which existed between Dudley and Francesca could not fail to come with a sense of painful shock. Mrs. Revelsworth on her part had her own reasons for regretting Victor's words, which plunged his brother Victor into a state of such evident bitterness that not another word was to be extracted from him during the remainder of the meal.

As soon as the ladies left the table, he turned upon Dudley in pathetic appeal.

"Dudley, done, my brother!" he exclaimed, "if ask you if this is just, if it is fair? You must know well my love for Francesca; and yet you, you too you are paying court to her! She cannot marry both of us!"

"But no! Not yet. She cannot decide—could not in a few days perhaps—"

"As I understand," said Dudley, still wrathfully looking at his brother, "she objects to marriage between first cousins."

"She has some silly prejudice of that sort," Victor admitted. "But, curse, curse, curse the fun without doubt be persuaded—"

"Have you tried to persuade her?"

"Often. And in time I shall succeed," pursued Victor eagerly. "If I have but a rival in the same house."

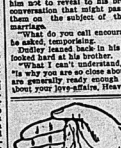

"Do you mean that she encourages you?"

Victor was about to speak, but suddenly checked himself. His large lady had laid her solemn command upon him not to reveal to his brother any conversation that might pass between them on the subject of their love affairs.

"What do you call encouragement?" he asked, temporizing.

Dudley leaned back in his chair and looked hard at his brother.

"What I can't understand," he said, "is why you are so close about it. You are generally ready enough to chatter about your love affairs. Heaven knows!

This plan is slow and not very sure.

Slater Shoe Advertising

"Sight—unseen"

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad. man, No. 10.

The one thing that literally makes or breaks a shoe, is the insole and it can not be seen, felt or tested till worn.

A poor insole means a stitch-cut outsole, loose stitches, ripped uppers, causes mishapen, shrunken, stretched, unsightly, short lived shoes.

A good insole is all that a poor one cannot be—it is the keystone to the arch—the steel skeleton of the tall building.

But you have got to take it "sight-unseen"—must trust to the stake the maker hangs on his own honesty —and the stake that's hung on the honesty of the "Slater Shoe" is the expenditure in six years of a hundred thousand dollars for advertising and the trade commanding capacity of a quarter million dollar trademark.

That is your protection when you buy and wear the "Slater Shoe" and it's the only one of its kind in Canada.

PRINCE EDWARD.

Fairy Tale of Princess Flavia and a Prince Flavre.

There was once a beautiful princess with long, silky hair, cheeks like wild roses and lips like poesie. The little princess's name was red of the sunset and the black of the midnight and the shining coal, so she never could tell. Morning: red and black.

Princess Flavia was an orphan, and her guardian, Uncle Flavre, was so jealous of the little girl that he said who would take the kingdom after her possession when, because of the fact that he tried in many ways to get rid of her. Nor that he wanted to kill her. Oh, dear, no! He did not have to do that, because she, the child, uncle who waged his power and would have help rid of an accent to put him in prison. So he contented himself with looking for a husband who would take her so far away that she would never come back to her own kingdom.

He first proposed to marry her to the lord of the Seven Isles, on the other side of the great lake, but Flavia frowned at him at sight, and saw that he was old and fat and had several eyes. The eyes were convenient, because they enabled him to see his seven isles at the same time, for one belonged to each, but oh, dear, they did make him look so horrible! There were two in the forehead and two below the forehead, and one in each cheek and one in the chin. It really was frightful, you know, and no princess of any taste could be expected to marry him.

When Flavia declared that she never, never would marry the lord of the Seven Isles Flavre was exceedingly angry, but thought he would look for some one else. This time he selected the King of Frostoria, which was so high among the mountains that the only road to it was deeply covered with snow that it could be crossed only twice in the year. This would have suited Prince Flavre, but Flavia dreamed that everybody in Frostoria had frozen feet and that the king's head was made of ice. So he cried and said that she never, never would go to Frostoria, to get her death of cold, and she would go to her uncle Sparcle if Flavre tried to make her. That frightened Flavre, so with a growl he said she should have her way.

Soon after this Prince Flavre was walking one day in the forest thinking and thinking how he could force his ward to marry the Prince of Somnolia, when, overhearing eighteenty hours a day. "For then," he thought, "I surely will not have any trouble to get over her." But he knew that the dream angel of the princess would hit her that Somnolians had cruel eyes in their bodies, and were unbearably hideous. Of course, they hadn't to have many eyes or they could not have slept so much, but that did not make them any more attractive.

While Prince Flavre was walking and thinking he heard the voice of the princess, and stopped to listen. Then he approached cautiously through the trees, and saw a handsome young man whom he knew to be King of Bonbonia, the very next kingdom to Flama's. Flavre was in a rage because he knew that if his ward married Prince Bonbon they would be able to reign over both kingdoms without the least inconvenience and his own rule would be ended.

"I would give my head if I could turn you into a log of wood, young prince!" Flavre said to himself, shaking his fist at the two as he stood hidden among the trees. At that moment a wicked fairy stood before him and said: "Then I will." Whatever you touch with it will turn into anything you wish. You have only to say 'Be a tree' if you want that to happen."

Flavre seized the wand and, while stood rooted to the ground and lis and leaves began to sprout all him, and in a moment he was just as one of the trees of the forest, wh only his sighing left to remain. Th princess of his humanity. She sud herself weighed at his feet, but t uncle said: "If you will not marr the king I have chosen for you I w to the sons to you, and lies who sprang up and danced him. Too angr to restrain himself, he struck her wi the wand, saying, "Become a bird and Flama's red dress changed to re feathers, and all that was not re about her were the little black shoe and stockings. And because the fairy was so young that her dress was short and cut low in the neck it left her silk stockings and shoes all uncovered, which is why the Flamingo has such a long neck and legs.

At this moment the fairy appeared and had the wand in her hand in a twinkling. "Now give me your head!" she demanded. "Nonsense," said Flavre rudely, "it is of no use to the rest of the world," she retorted. Then she struck him with her magic wand and said: "Be a worm, which has no head nor any use for one." And instantly Prince Flavre sank to the ground and became a worm.—New York Tribune.

A Woman's Teeth.

Remember, if you wish to keep young, that the dentist is your best friend. Do not allow any of your sisters to get beguiled into saying that you can help it, for lost molars mean hollows in the cheeks.

Tooth-powder is not harmful. Preparec chalk is harmless, but much soap should be avoided, for it is likely to affect the gums. If the points where the gum is receding can be treated by your dentist. Consult him without delay.

A HAMILTON MAN SUICIDES

Fatal Aftermath of the A. E. Ames & Company Failure.

Mr. Jeffrey, Formerly Owner of the Hamilton Steam Laundry, Was Heavy Loser in Stocks, and Attempts His Head as Casualty of $300 a Year Fet a Bullet Through His Head—Accidents and Fatalities of a Day.

Hamilton, June 30.—Joseph Jeffrey, one of the social lights of the city, and a man who was able to retire five years ago on his wealth, placed the muzzle of a revolver in his mouth yesterday morning and pulled the trigger. The bullet passed through his head, came out behind his ear, and lodged in the ceiling. He lingered and died a very short time afterwards. He did not go to the trouble of dressing, but sat on the edge of the bed and fired the shot. He died about 8.30.

His friends hold the Ames failure in Toronto responsible. His sister, who lived with him, knew that he was worrying about money he had dropped on the stock market. He was in no danger of poverty, however, as he had an annuity of at least $800, and owned some valuable property. He seemed to fear that through the loss of so much money he would lose his place in society, and his life of luxury.

He was 59 years of age, and had never married. His brother, William, is a traveler for R. H. Macy & Co., New York, and Mrs. Surrees, Ottawa, is a sister.

"MAN'S FAITHFUL FRIEND."

Two Dogs Watched by the Drowned Body of Their Master.

Toronto, June 30.—Percy Kemp, a fourteen-year-old son of James W. Kemp, who lived at the corner of Indian Road and Bloor street, started out on Sunday afternoon with the two pet dogs for a romp. As he did not return home several of his boy friends set out to search for him yesterday morning, and about a mile and a half from the mouth of the Humber they came across his two faithful dogs sitting on his clothes and a few feet away the body was found in three feet of water.

Killed at the Throttle.

Winnipeg, June 30.—An engineer named Stratton was killed at the throttle Saturday evening. While leaning out of his cab his head struck a projecting post and so long the train went on its way before the accident was noticed. A brakesman on the rear end saw Stratton projecting in front the cab window and went forward to investigate. The accident happened just west of Schreiber, and at Ross Park, the next station, a doctor was secured. Stratton never recovered consciousness, and was taken to the hospital at Port Arthur, where he died.

A Child's Narrow Escape.

London, June 30.—Hazel, the 8-year-old daughter of B. J. Walker, Windsor's well-known grain dealer, has escaped death by half an inch and the timely service of a doctor. While amusing herself on a swing and when 15 feet from the ground the ropes broke, throwing the child violently to the ground. Her neck struck the edge of an iron fence close to within a fraction of an inch of the jugular vein. It was feared that the closing of the wound would break the strip of flesh that held it together, but the operation was successful, and the child is out of danger.

Helpless at Weil's Bottom.

Ingersoll, June 30.—Struck by a falling block of wood, while making some repairs in a well, Daniel Robinson of this town was rendered unconscious and after lying helpless at the bottom for five minutes was hauled out almost lifeless. Robinson probably owes his life to Frederick Borland, who, while driving by, was informed by Albert Shortt and W. Law of their fellow-worker's predicament, and volunteered to climb down the well and assist in his rescue.

Two Were Killed.

Montreal, June 30.—A carter's carriage, driven by Chouinard, collided with a hackman, in which was Mrs. Decarry, a French-Canadian lady, aged about fifty, was struck by an incoming Grand Trunk train at the Cote st. passenger crossing last night. The rig was smashed to pieces and both the carter and the woman were killed.

Drowned in Brewery Creek.

Ottawa, June 30.—Emil Bouchard, aged 9 years of age of Hull, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Brewery Creek. He was trying to put his dog in the creek, and the dog shoved him in. His playmates could not help him out and ran away. The body was recovered five hours later.

Died in the Ambulance.

Brantford, June 30.—Miss Myrtle Lacey, aged 22, was struck by a G. T. R. train yesterday morning in West Brantford. The ambulance was called to take her to the hospital, but Miss Lacey died before reaching there.

Murder in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 30.—Nelson Boggens shot and killed Harry Bender here yesterday afternoon in apartments at the rear of 1,171 Michigan street. Boggens was arrested. It is said jealousy was the cause.

Shot by Newsboys.

Chicago, June 30.—Resenting the jeers of a crowd of newsboys, which were directed at his women companions, Arthur J. Weber, 23 years old, was shot and instantly killed by one of the boys Sunday night. The shooting took place in the presence of a large crowd of Lincoln Park visitors. It caused great excitement, and during the confusion the boys escaped.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK

IF they're Quick & Robertson's clothes they're as good as any tailor can build to measure.

Did you ever notice, Mr. Man, that some custom tailors have a knack of putting little kinks in the garments they produce which add greatly to their appearance?

It's the same in ready for service Clothes, some makers have the same knacks as the tailors—we know ours have, comparison has convinced us as to that, as it will you.

When they're to be had for the price of the ordinary, why not have clothes that equal and cannot be distinguished from the made-to-measure sorts—you get it in these that bear the Quick & Robertson label—they cost no more than do the ordinary ready-mades and about half what a tailor would charge to build them to-measure.

MEN'S OUTING SUITS that assure comfort even in the hottest weather. Of those fine Homespuns, Wool Crashes, Tropical Serges and Worsteds—you'll prefer these suits to the others, not just because of their appearance, but because they're made so as to retain their shape—that is where this good tailoring in them counts, $3.75, $5.00, $8.00, $10 and 12, the prices range, and there's goodness at every price.

The Ober Patent Sad Irons

Gives the best satisfaction to the user for the following reasons.

FIRST—They are SOLID and will HOLD HEAT MUCH LONGER, thus enabling a lady to do much work in the same length of time.

SECOND—The handle is a quarter circle, which gives the hand a more natural grasp and WILL NOT CRAMP THE HAND when at work.

THIRD—The catch, or latch for disengaging the handle, is the most natural lift in the market only requiring the touch of one finger to loose the same from the iron, and does not require touching at all to put same on the iron.

FOURTH—The handle will not rattle while in use.

FIFTH—The spring in where it will be removed by the heat.

SIXTH—It is the most desirab handle made.

THE TALE OF A CHEQUE.

WHICH GOT A TRENTON MAN INTO A PACK OF TROUBLE.

A man named George Lucas was arrested late last night and taken to Trenton, where he will have to stand his trial for an alleged fraudulent transaction. It appears that Lucas was for some time a clerk with the Gilmour Company, but a few weeks ago was discharged. Shortly after his discharge it is alleged that he filled out a cheque on a bank for $200, and, it being after hours, had the same cashed by a merchant of the town. This was on Saturday and on the following Monday when the cheque was presented to the bank, it was found there were no funds to meet it. In the meantime Lucas had left the town. It was ascertained that the man was in the city, and Constable Grass came here last evening and located Lucas at the Albion hotel. He was arrested and taken to Trenton.

UNNECESSARY TO SUFFER FROM ASTHMA.

This distressing complaint can be perfectly cured by inhaling Catarrhozone, a vegetable antiseptic that atroys the germs which cause the disease. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth from a convenient pocket inhaler, and after permeating the minutest air cells, is exhaled slowly through the nostrils. It stops the cough, makes breathing regular, and eradicates the asthma so thoroughly from the system that a cure always turns. 'Don't suffer from asthma, use Catarrhozone; it will speedily cure you. Large outfit $1.50. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Trial Postponed.

The trial of the three young men John N. Moore, Jas Fox and Wm. Hamilton, who are charged with the theft of $1200 from E. D. Mumby, of Bannockburn, has been postponed until Thursday.

SORE THROAT AND HOARSENESS

with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polsons Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness, simply because that's what it is made for. The large (25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.
